IN BRIEF. Last week Gen. Washburn was elected U. S. Senator from Minnesota, and Senators Plumb, of Kansas, Harris, of Tennessee, Dolph, of Oregon, Coke, of Texas and Ransom, of North Carolina, were re-elected..... Congressman Burnes, of Missouri, who was stricken with paralysis in the House Wednesday, died at 12.45 Thursday morning. He was one of the ablest and best liked of the Democratic members, and was apparently in robust health at the time he was stricken down..... Batchelder & Stafford's granite polishing works and the covered bridge in South Barre, Vt., were burned Friday afternoon. Loss estimated at $7,000..... Charles A. B. Shepard, of the firm of Lee & Shepard, Boston, died Friday after an illness of several months, aged 60 years. For more than 40 years he had been an active man identified with the book publishing business and was widely known throughout the country..... Severe earthquake shocks are reported in the southern states of Ecuador. A vessel from Guayaquil to Panama, from Zanzibar says an American sailing vessel bound from Zanzibar to Madagascar, was fired upon by a German vessel and one mast broken..... The unknown man who holds that estate and wealth are in no way related, has been confirmed by the news from Jim Fisk of 10 murders, five personal duels to death, three killed in a railroad accident, 20 drowned and one Brethren, besides numerous minor accidents and crimes..... Arrangements for the great winter carnival at Montreal, beginning on the 7th and ending on the 9th of February, are nearly all completed. The programme will be carried out on much the same scale as it was last year..... A special from Kansas City to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch says: Information has been received here that many of the people in Swartz county, Kan., are on the verge of starvation. It is reported that a contract has been found that Chief Clerk W. W. Dudley by the United States grand jury in Indianapolis..... The date for Holiday of Lasper or William of Germany was fixed in Chicago Thursday morning..... The Merrimac, which went down off the New Jersey coast 21 years ago, and whose whereabouts was unknown, has been located off Cape Lookout, Va., but has drifted out of existence and of market. Her cargo of cotton was partly passed off without serious disturbance, although attempted by outsiders yesterday. The vessel was not generally expected to reach port, but it was hoped that some of her cargo might be saved..... Senators Allison and Cullom, elected Presidential Harrison on Saturday. It is published that Allison will be Secretary of the Treasury, Blaine and Wanamaker are also talked of for a place in the Cabinet..... The Territorial capital of Arizona from Prescott to Phoenix has passed both houses and been signed by the Governor..... A dual fight of the Presidential Republican and Democratic Congressional caucuses was made on Saturday in New York House, and it is understood, was successful..... The bill of Mr. Hatch, in the Senate, and Mr. Harding's, in the House, to provide a legal holiday for the representatives of James B. Eads..... The Senate passed the Army Nurses Pension bill Monday. It allows a pension of $25 a month to all nurses who served during the war, prior to August, 1866, who were approved by Miss Dix, superintendent of women nurses, or her authorized agent, or specially appointed by the Surgeon-General, or other proper United States authority, who performed six months' service or were disabled and honorably discharged. These new provisions less pension under special acts are to be entitled to the benefits of this act. The House passed the Senate bill to extend the preference of soldiers or sailors who have lost their hands to clerkships.

Bowdoin College Correspondence.

Prof. L. A. Lee has returned from Washington, where he has been engaged in Government work.

Geologists and Portlies, 92, stenographers, are reporting legislative proceedings this winter.

Pendleton, '90, is teaching at Hillside, where he has classes in Algebra, Geometry, Philosophy and French.

Parker, '91, was recently presented with a gold watch and chain by a Boston firm for whom he canvassed.

The seniors are making rapid progress in fencing and our college begins to assume the air of a German University.

The Kennebec Journal does not a little of its success to its enterprising editors, Burleigh, '87, Lane, '87, and Williamson, '88.

A new piano has been placed in the Sargent Gymnasium, and hereafter the classes will drill by music. Each student is required to wear a jersey or flannel suit.

The Seniors of Wellesley College so enjoyed President Hyde's sermon, preached there in December, that they had copies of it printed and distributed among the students.

The Freshman class has at last dared to utter its yell, although at the expense of a duking by the indignant "Sophs." Here it is: "Rah, Rah! Hoo-Rah! Bowdoin! Rah! Rah! Dos kai cuenaquenta." Let us hope that '92 will feel the true spirit of class unity whenever they utter their in spring (?) cry.

No less than four of the Governor's Staff claim Bowdoin as their Alma Mater. They are Col. E. J. Crane, '78, Col. Co. L. Thompson, '77, Col. D. A. Robinson, '73, and Col. Stanley Plummer, '67. It is certainly a fact that Bowdoin has sons in all the higher walks of life and in this respect, size considered, stands easily foremost among the colleges of the country.

Appointed Appraiser at Portland.

The President Friday appointed Russell D. Woodman appraiser, and Benjamin F. Chadbourne to be assistant appraiser of merchandise at Portland. Mr. Woodman is now in the customs service, and this appointment, to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mr. E. R. Pierce, is a promotion. Mr. Woodman is a native of Searsmont, Waldo county. The Portland Argus says of the appointment:

There are few men in Maine better qualified than Mr. Woodman to discharge satisfactorily the important duties of his office. Graduating from Bowdoin college, where he stood high in his class, Mr. Woodman devoted himself for years to mercantile affairs, and there gained that practical knowledge of values so indispensable to the proper discharge of the duties of appraiser. His judgment is not only reliable, but is formed with promptness. Personally he is one of the most genial of men.

Newspaper Notes.

The Vinalhaven Echo suspended publication with the issue of Jan. 24, after an existence of fifteen months. The editor says: "There is not support for a local paper in Vinalhaven. We have given it a faithful trial and find the task a hopeless one."

The American Citizen Co. of New York have issued the first number of The American Citizen, a weekly, with the following objects in view: "To combat ecclesiastical interference with our public schools; to advocate commercial union with Canada, State inspection of all schools, suffrage to women on temperance and school matters, and simon pure American principles in politics."

Proposed Change in the Lobster Laws.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 25. An important matter to come before the Maine Legislature this session is a proposed change in the lobster laws. Maine's lobster law is now very similar to the Massachusetts law providing for a 10-1-2 inch limit, but differing from the Massachusetts law in that it provides a close time of six weeks from August 1 to September 16. Numberless petitions are being circulated among the fishermen asking for the repeal of the close time. [Special to Boston Journal.

There are many remonstrances against the proposed repeal of the close time, and dealers and the public in this vicinity are opposed. It is believed here that the present law has tended to increase the supply, and the size of lobsters, and more and larger lobsters is what people want. The Portland Express says: "It will doubtless be generally admitted that so far as the mere question of protection to the lobster is concerned, the law as revised by the last Legislature has proved to be far more effective than any other. The leading features of that law are an absolute close time from Aug. 1 to Sept. 15, and the prohibition of the catching of lobsters of less than 10 1-2 inches in length at any time."

Our argument in favor of the repeal of the close time is that it will enable the summer visitor, who does not come in force to the shore resorts until about the first of August, to enjoy this favorite shell-fish. Under the law of 1885 the taking of lobsters for family use, of not less than 10 1-2 inches in length, was allowed in close time, and this was construed as applying also to hotels. It is said, however, that the effect was to practically nullify the close time feature of the law. Some think the close time may be wholly done away with if the other restrictions are retained, but this is by no means assured. Another move which certainly would be injudicious is that looking to the doing away of the 10 1-2 inch restriction from April 15 to July 15. This is understood to be petitioned for by the canners and it is thought it might be for their temporary interest. It is thought it would tend to lessen that industry by cutting off the supply in the future, "Turtlemugs," as the Portland Express well says, the interests of the consumers should be considered. The lobster is a natural born product of Maine. And the people of the state, generally, are entitled to legislation which will tend to make that food as abundant and, and their force as cheap as possible."

The story told in Portland Press is reported by "a prominent Grand Army man," to the effect that in the contest for Department Commander, Col. Drew and Benson Aaron Andrews are likely to come out winners. Mr. of Waldoboro, is the pivotal action. Mr. W. is a hidebound Republican who voted 20 times for such nominations. Judge Drew and Bros Miller are very close friends, and whatever contest arises between them will be conducted in a manner entirely worthy of the fraternal and comrade principles of the Order. Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty. [Bath Times.

Rev. Shorey is a G. A. R. man and speaks by the card. All that is said of Col. Drew may be said with equal truth of Rev. Miller. He has an honorable ambition to fill the position of Department Commander, and is well qualified for it, for he was elected to get the place at the cost of harmony in the order, we wish both candidates may meet with success and honorably.

We are glad to know that Mr. Millet's strength is increasing, and those familiar with the situation say that if not elected on the first ballot he will no doubt be the leading candidate. Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc and Androscoggin are solid for him, and he has a large number of delegates in Cumberland, Kennebec, Penobscot, Waldo, Somerset and Washington counties. He is strongest where he is best known.

The Canco-Breckenridge Copyright Bills which passed the Senate May 16th by 41 to 10, is now before the House of Representatives. This is a compromise measure, the outcome of years of labor. Whatever its defects the bill will put a stop to the habit of piracy. It will free American authors from the competition with stolen goods. It will enable American writers to support themselves by their pens. It will make American books cheaper by opening more avenues of enterprise to us. It will give American books a chance to reach the American people who now feed many worthless books by foreign authors, reproduced in rival editions solely because they can be had for nothing. It will result in securing to American authors important and growing foreign markets. It will take from our country the stigma of being the only great nation in the world which despises the foreign author. It is heartily advocated by the authors, the leading publishers, and the printers.

A committee of the American Shipping and Industrial League has sent to President-elect Harrison a letter on the question of the mercantile marine service. The disappearance of the American flag in the great trade on the high seas is deplored, and the letter states that "The population, wealth and manufactures of the United States are increasing in an unprecedented measure. Its previous growth bears eloquent testimony in favor of the policy of protecting home industries, but we cannot regard with tranquility or pride of country the neglect and refusal to sustain one of the most potent agencies of a nation's independence, international prestige and creative power. Of the $1,000,000,000 paid since 1865 on account of American freights, only 7 per cent. went to the support of our own shipping."

An Ottawa dispatch announces that "henceforth the Dominion policy toward American fishermen will be on the most stringent lines that can be consistently followed. The entire fleet of fishery cruisers will be given almost carte blanche in the matter of interfering with the Yankee skippers and making life on the Nova Scotia and Cape Breton coasts a burden to them." The Boston Journal, however, reminds the Tories who are arranging this nice little programme that "Cleveland and Bayard go out of office on March 4 next, and that thereafter they will have men of a different stamp to deal with."

Joseph A. Moore, of Indianapolis, the financial correspondent of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, is a defaulter to the extent of nearly $200,000. Yet Mr. Green, the president of the company, says in an announcement to policy holders that "in spite of this unexpected loss, the company will make a heavy gain in assets, pay a larger dividend than last year, and probably increase its already large surplus." This would seem to indicate that the profits of a life insurance company are at least equal to those of the average country newspaper.

Col. A. M. Waddell, of North Carolina, who is one of the defeated candidates for Mr. Ransom's seat in the Senate, has given notice that in future he will work for the Democratic party only for a fixed salary.

If the salary is "fixed" according to Waddell's worth there is no circulating medium in existence that could be used in payment. Waddell to Ransom is as a firefly to an arc light.

The January number of Quiet Hours contains a condensation of "Robert Elsmere," and those who do not care to read the book may get the meat of it in this excellent Maine magazine. A second instalment of the Dexter bank story is also given in this number, with other matter of interest.

Joseph A. Moore, the alleged Indianapolis defaulter, places his liabilities at $500,000. It is reported that Winslow, Lanier & Co., of New York, are losers to the extent of more than $200,000. Moore has not yet been arrested.

Probably if he had stolen a ham or a pint of peanuts he would now be languishing in jail.

Wonder what was paid a Boston daily for that three column advertisement of the Louisiana lottery, published as reading matter. In this state there is a law against advertising lotteries.

An Amsterdam, N. Y., woman wants a divorce from her husband because he compelled her to cook liver in lard. He is an Amsterdam miser.

The Richmond Bee has come to the conclusion that what Maine wants is more justice and less law.

It is announced that one of Gen. Harrison's new horses is a Cleveland bay. The nag ought to go.

Poor Secretary Bayard has got into Samoa trouble.

Gossip About Newspapers.

The fact that The Press, of New York, now little more than a year old, had attained a daily circulation of over 100,000 on reaching its first birthday, caused no little congratulatory comment. No doubt at the time, in common with others, the Journal expressed surprise at this unprecedented success; but if so we wish to take it all back. On reviewing the matter we can see that, even with New York's numerous newspapers, there was a field awaiting The Press, and to make assurance doubly sure, the new paper was admirably designed to supply the long felt want. New York, through the Tammany machine and its manipulation of the poll lists and ballot boxes, is certain to give a Democratic majority; but there are a good many Republicans in the city, and measured by intelligence and property they are in the preponderance. The Tribune was the only Republican morning daily published in New York when The Press was started. The Times, which under the talented Raymond was staunchly Republican, had gone over, with the name to Independent Regold, to the free trade Democracy; and the New York Evening Post, from a highly-toned literary and family paper of Republican proclivities had descended to blackamaildom and Democracy. The Tribune is a high priced paper, and manifestly could not cover the whole field; and so The Press was born, price one cent per copy, with protection for American labor and American industries as guiding principle. In four pages it gives all the news of the day, which is spread over the utmost innumerable pages of its unwieldy contemporaries. Indeed, as a newspaper The Press is second to none and superior to most of its rivals, is eminently to its readers, while the principles it advocates make it the duty of every Republican to contribute to its support. Looked at in this light the success of The Press is not surprising. The making of such a paper is, however, a surprise, to those who know the brains and the industry, to say nothing of the cash, required to accomplish it.

The Boston Evening Record is another notable success in recent journalism, and it is a most enjoyable deserved. The Record has been from the start a reformer of the most aggressive sort, and in many cases its ventilation of abuses has been followed by their remedy. It would be idle to attempt to enumerate the series of collection and commission The Record has brought to public notice. It was an important factor in the movement which forced Boston from ring and ring rule. It has fearlessly exposed the open violation of law by Boston liquor sellers, and pointed in vivid colors the dens where the young are corrupted and ruin indited and fostered. It is now exposing the unsanitary condition of the public school buildings of Boston, a matter of vital importance. Of course The Record has made enemies. As it should, well says:

A newspaper and a newspaper editor that people don't talk about and abuse, are rather poor concerns. The men and business that are worth attention seem to have a way to collect enemies as a flock of sheep collect fleas, and are often the first to show their appreciation. The editor who expects to receive much gratitude will soon find out his mistake and his stamp go on and say and do what he thinks is right, without regard to the frowns or smiles. We like to please, but at the expense of conscience, never.

The officials whose uses the Record has tried to reform have tried to boycott the paper, but it has been the rule rather than the exception that the people have rallied to its support. The Record has been strengthening all the time, and its circulation has grown from a few hundred to many thousands. Business in the committee rooms has been stopped by its exposures, and hearings are the order of the day. The great Boston contest was fought before the committee on towns last week and occasioned more interest than any other occurrence. Hosea Witcher D. Baker was the attorney for the petitioners and Frank P. Flower, Esq., of Rockland, for the remonstrants. A crowd of witnesses was examined and four days was occupied, the attorneys making the closing arguments on Friday evening. In Representatives' Hall before a large company of sportsmen and ladies predominating. The committee will be called on to report in advance of the other bills, and the result will be watched with the same interest as the contest over the rights and privileges of the Bangor Boom Co., and the Maine dentists have been pleading with the committee on legal affairs to persuade them to favor a law for registration of dentists. But it is not likely that any measure of the sort will prove successful, for it was the case with the medicine registration bill the people are not inclined to have their liberties taken away from them. The committee on labor gave the evening to a hearing on Senator Lowe's bill, which gives women the privilege of contracting to labor more than ten hours, practically nullifying the ten hour law. The only speaker for support it was Senator Lord himself. While Labor Commissioner Matthews, Deputy Campbell, Hon. E. B. Plaisted of Augusta and others spoke in opposition. The legislature will take no steps towards changing the law unless it is to repeal the six hour clause, which it is said makes the enforcement of the ten hour law difficult, as when women are found working over time they will say that they are working out their sixty hours. On the afternoon of February 6th the Judiciary Committee gives a hearing to the woman suffragists. A numerously signed petition for woman suffrage was forwarded from Portland and a few days later a petition containing a long list of women-tramps, who gives notice that "We will also fall of a passage." The Maine House and Senate. An interesting meeting will be that on the Australian ballot bill in the Senate chamber on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 31. The committee on Fisheries and Game have assigned February 13 as a day on which all matters pertaining to game and game laws will be considered.

The "stamp act" shed easy in the Senate. The order was taken from the table and on motion of Senator Ryder indefinitely postponed, non-concurring with the House. Upon this the House Friday appointed a committee of conference to consider the matter and in a similar committee from the Senate. But there is little hope that the House will succeed in obtaining the 25c apiece which each member wishes to obtain, ostensibly for postage. When Uncle Sailor's order directing the Secretary of State to furnish each member with $10 for stamps was passed the secretary refused to do so on the ground that there was no appropriation for such an expenditure and he did not feel able to lend the money to the state from his own pocket. If he could receive any encouragement as to an appropriation he might do as ordered, but as the Senate would probably refuse to vote money for this purpose he should not take the risk. Then the House passed an order directing the Secretary of State to stamp documents and communications for the members to an amount not exceeding $10, and it failed in the Senate as related above.

R. B. Tuttle and James Harriman, of Canaan, president and director respectively of the company which asks for a charter to build a railroad from Waldo county to Moosehead Lake, were before the committee on railroads Wednesday in favor of the charter, and Hon. E. F. Webb, of Waterville, in opposition, he holding that the construction of such a road would conflict with the rights of the Somerset Railroad Co., which has already built 32 miles towards the lake from Oakland.

The following petition concerning the tax on stock of the Belfast & Moosehead Railroad comes from the city of Belfast:

"That the amount apportioned to said city under the provisions of Sec. 11, Chap. 6, of the Revised Statutes, as amended by Chap. 75 of the public laws of 1887, concerning a tax on railroads, was not in equity what it should have been for the year 1887, owing to the low relative valuation placed upon the capital stock of the Belfast & Moosehead Railroad Company, that the matter was brought to the attention of the Governor and Council in March, 1888, and corrected by them so far as applicable to that year; but owing to the fact that the railroad tax for 1887 had been already apportioned, an additional amount could not be determined. They therefore pray for the passage of a resolve authorizing the payment to said city of the amount to which it is entitled under the corrected valuation of said stock."

NOTES.

The time for the reception of petitions and bills for private and special legislation is limited to Thursday, Jan. 31.

Hon. J. H. Manley of the House announces that he is absolutely opposed to Mr. Looney's ballot bill and will take strong grounds against it.

The House adjourned Friday until 4 P. M. on Monday. Over half the members went home or were out of town during the interval.

When the lady with the woman's suffrage petition called at the Governor's last Saturday, Mrs. Burleigh refused to sign, but Vallie, a young lady, the Governor's daughter, without hesitation affixed her signature to the paper.

The ladies are deep in the mysteries of dress making preparatory for the grand 4th of February ball, and the dress makers are having a busy season.

A course of evening parties opened at the Augusta House last evening.

The Gettysburg executive committee have decided to ask the legislature for $8800 to complete the Gettysburg battlefield memorials.

A House resolve provides that Jason Ware, of Montville, shall be granted a pension of $8 per month till such a time as he shall receive a government pension.

A House bill provides for the collecting of vital statistics.

Joseph Nicholas, representative of the Penobscot tribe of Indians, is spending two weeks at the Capital.

A. J. Cameron, who did some binding for the State at the time of the count-out, has again presented his bill for alleged work performed. It amounts to $1,336.92, with $113.39 interest. He presents it at every session and expects, no doubt, when a democratic legislature (?) sits to secure the payment of the bill.

An order has passed the Senate "That Reuben T. Carver be permitted to take lobsters less than one and one-half inches in length, to be placed in Carver's Pond, Vinalhaven, for propagating purposes."

The following Belfast ladies petition against all legislation tending to grant suffrage to women: Georgiana P. Johnson, Charlotte W. Colburn, Mrs. C. B. Hall, Miss S. M. Colburn, Mrs. W. T. Colburn, Mrs. L. R. Marshall, Mrs. Annie M. Quimby, Miss Annie P. Field, Mrs. Emily E. Pierce, Miss E. Lena Pierce, Mrs. A. L. Hazeltine, Mrs. A. T. Field, Miss A. F. Southworth, Mrs. M. L. Mansfield, Miss L. A. Palmer, Mrs. Mary H. Howes, Mrs. G. W. Thomas, Mrs. G. E. Pattershall, Mrs. M. D. Venzie, Miss Ella S. Burgess, Miss Alice Cushing, Camden.

An order was introduced into the Senate on Tuesday by Mr. Libby, of Portland, for the appointment of a joint committee to consider the removal of the State House, and make recommendations. Mr. Heath offered a motion that the order be tabled until Wednesday, which was lost by a vote of 16 to 19, the yeas and nays being taken Messrs. Libby, Nickels and Simpson were appointed on the committee. Mr. Libby, of course, favors Portland. Mr. Nickels in an interview gave his preference for Portland and Mr. Simpson for Bangor. A. W. McCrillis.

The South Belfast Dramatic Club will play the drama, "After Ten Years, or the Maniac Wife," at the Reed hall, Lincolnville Centre, Monday evening, Feb. 4th. If stormy postponed to Feb. 7th. The play will be followed by a dance.

The large number of empty flour barrels hauled about our streets go to the potato establishment of Mr. Geo. W. Graham, who pays from fifteen to eighteen cents each for them. Mr. Gorham also receives empty barrels from Bangor. All his shipments thus far have been in barrels.

Attention is called to the notice on the third page of a Free High School at Thorndike station district, taught by Mr. Ross C. Higgins. The school will begin February 11, and continue ten weeks. Good board and rooms can be obtained and every effort will be made to make the school successful.

Coasting on the streets, although dangerous to those engaged in it as well as to others, may be overlooked under some circumstances, but when it comes to riding double runners on the sidewalks, as was done on Miller street Monday night, when people were on their way home from church, it is time the law was enforced.

The first of a course of free lectures will be given this evening at 7.30 o'clock in Pierce's Parlors Theatre. The lecture tonight will be given by Mr. J. R. Dunton, subject "Peebles, Sand and Mud — All are Joints." The second lecture in the course will be given next Thursday evening by Mr. A. J. Brown. His subject will be Geology.

We have received, with the compliments of M. V. Sutton, the order of dances for the grand ball of Boston Typographical Union at the Music Hall the evening of Jan. 25th. It has 32 pages, with fancy ragged gold covers, tied with silk cord tassels and pencils. Each leaf has a different tint and each page is printed in two or three colors with variegated border. The composition was done by James W. Cameron, co-president of the Union, and the printing by A. W. Bliss & Co., the Mill street firm.

Mr. Charles Harris, of this city, gave a very interesting course of lectures the Bristol Scientific Association Tuesday evening on the collection and preservation of specimens in natural history. Mr. Harris combined himself almost exclusively to the specimens of California. He told of the hunts of the pioneers, the wild cattle, the grizzly bears, and the Indians, giving a brief history of each of these characteristics. His account was illustrated by several excellent charts and specimens of birds and animals. The lecture occupied a length of time and concluded with a musical entertainment.

[illegible] MUSICAL SOCIETY. The first [illegible] of the season was given in the Congregational church last Thursday evening. As the room was not large, the sale of tickets was limited, and every effort was made to avoid disturbance. The following was the programme:

The Message Waltzes ..... Gillmore
Chorus, "Ye Mariners of England" ..... Guglielmo
Quartette, "Gondoliera" ..... Mrs. Clara Kathleen Rogers, Mrs. Hattie Dow Wilson, Mr. Frank Rogers, Mr. Charles Dow Wilson

Duet, "Lucia" ..... Mrs. L. Slosson, Mr. Charles Slosson
Song, Selected ..... Miss Kilbreth
Violin Obligato, Mr. Charles Dow Wilson
Piano Duet, "Marche Militaire" ..... Bergh
Mrs. Crockett, Mrs. Herrick
Violin Solo, Mr. Charles Dow Wilson
Piano Solo, "Fairy Spring" ..... Hoffman
Mrs. Knight, Miss Emma Knight
Quartette, "Serenade" ..... Bishop
Mrs. Crockett, Mrs. Herrick, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Wilson

[illegible] WILLIAM TUCKERY, Capt. William Buchanan, of the Belfast line of steamers, has taken the Tuckery schooner at Belfast for a coasting vessel. Capt. Buchanan's brother, Capt. Robert Buchanan, was to have had the vessel, but he became engaged in the coal business in Boston. The Tuckery is a fine vessel, and will be a good one for Capt. Buchanan. Capt. Buchanan is a native of Belfast and has been in the coasting business for years. He is a good sailor and a gentlemanly fellow. He will be pleased to see his friends on board the Tuckery at any time they may be in Boston.

Rev. Prof. L. A. Robinson, Baptist minister of Belfast, here Saturday evening with good results and good business every night. The giving of coupons was made too far for the audiences and the consequence of two nights every night gave good attendance. A 20-days test of spices the Professor and DYE BOOK, but the discovery of the Professor (so he says) is the point and those in the place did not agree in which one as they expected. Bateman, who is clerk in Dodge's store, and rather like the Professor, was seen to be a good deal of a sport. Farmers are busy in getting in their cord wood, being favored with good sleighing. The annual meeting of the Agricultural Society took place at the town hall Saturday; a committee was chosen to find and engage the part.

FRANKFORT. Mrs. J. D. Kingsbury died last week of lung fever. Mr. Kingsbury has been ill for some time, and his wife was with him. Mr. Kingsbury's son, who was in the army, died a few years ago. Mr. Kingsbury's son, who was in the army, died a few years ago. No body in Frankfort was more generally respected. For many years she has been a leading member of the Congregational church, a faithful teacher in the Sunday School and a devoted Christian. In her death a gloom is thrown over the whole community, and many join with the only daughter, Miss Addie Ames, in mourning her loss. Her funeral was held at the family residence last Sunday afternoon and was conducted by the Rev. A. A. Lewis, of Brewer. There were also present Jar Jordan, Rev. Mr. Evans, of Bangor, and Rev. Mr. Crockett, of Winterport. A quartette from Winterport sang the funeral hymns. The floral offerings were very elaborate. The spacious residence was filled with members of the church, Sunday School and sympathizing friends.

VINALHAVEN. Last week's storm was very severe here, especially at Ames's harbor where some damage was done. The inhabitants say the like of it never was so rough. The sea stocked down a part of Kittridge & Sawyer's lime wharf, and completely destroyed Sam Hopkins's wharf. The lobster car of Whitney Roberts went adrift and smashed to pieces and some lobsters were lost. Other fishermen lost gear, &c. The shipping cargo of H. Sanborn broke adrift, but was secured before it reached the shore. Capt. Rangers has hauled up for the winter his fishing schr. Esperanza. Sch. Harvester arrived last week from Boston with goods for the Rockwell Granite Company. The ellico ball at Odd Fellows lower hall on Friday last was a great success. Job Tolman is painting a nice sign for C. B. Smith's market. Irwin Smith, recently mentioned as ill, is no better. Dr. J. L. Estabrook, of Rockland, visited him last week. Maude, daughter of Rev. W. H. Littlefield, died on Saturday morning. She was sick only one week. The family have the sympathy of the community. Miss Littlefield was 21 years old and a sister of Attorney General Littlefield, of Rockland.... Mr. and Mrs. George Carver, who have been in Boston for three weeks have returned home. ...Fred Calderwood closed his school in District No. 9 on Friday, and went to Rockland on business.... Officers have been selected for the Canton of Patriarch Militants about to be started here, as follows: Fred Hinckley, Capt.; Wilber Clark, Lieut.; George Griffith, Ensign. A name has not yet been fixed for the new body.. The Vinalhaven G. U. N. U. has voted to donate the remainder of the money raised to pay the expense of the delegate to Augusta, in regard to the Lowe right-ly payment law, to the library and reading room.... W. V. Lane, of Camden, will come here Feb. 1st and open his photographic rooms.... J. W. Austin, of Rockland, will be in his dental rooms here this week.... The officers of Atlantic Royal Arch Chapter, will be installed this (Thursday) evening by W. S. Vinal, Past High Priest. The ceremony is public to all Masons and their wives. Ice cream and cake will be served, followed by games, &c. The following are the officers: F. V. Crocker, H. P.; Alexander Davidson, K.; J. H. Sanborn, S.; Fred A. Grindle, C. of H.; O. C. Lane, P. S.; F. H. Webster, R. A. C.; Gilbert Small, M. 3 V.; J. W. Gray, M. 2 V.; J. H. Hamilton, M. 1 V.; T. G. Libby, Treas.; W. S. Carver, Sec'y; Rufus Arey, Sentinel.... Alexander McDonald was before Justice Kittridge on Saturday for drunkenness, and fined $10 and costs which he paid.

UNION. The annual session of Knox District Lodge, I. O. G. T., will be held with Rural Lodge, on Wednesday, Feb. 12th. It is hoped that all lodges in the district will be well represented, and thus aid in making the meeting one of interest.... The following officers of Cooper Post, G. A. R., were publicly installed Jan. 12th: Post Commander, H. A. Hawes; S. V. C., Woodbury Carroll; J. V. C., J. F. Creighton; Surg., L. R. Morse; Chap., A. J. Young; Q. M., H. Sleeper; Adjt., Emerson Creighton; O. D., J. L. Bradford; O. G., B. F. Walter ... Mr. Willard L. Messer, a pensioner of the rebellion and a member of Cooper post, G. A. R., died January 23.

SWANVILLE. Mr. Alonzo J. Knowlton has arrived home from Dunnigansetta, Me., where he has been teaching sixteen weeks in one school. Gilbert L. Morrill, of this town, preceded him in '87 and '88. The people fully appreciate the services of Swanville teachers, as Mr. Knowlton has been solicited to teach there next winter. At the close of the term Mr. Knowlton was presented with the poems of Longfellow and Pope. The locality is known as Egypt.... The friends of R. C. Mathes were surprised to receive a letter from him at Calgary, Georgia, last week. He is cutting and hewing.... The friends of Alfred Simmons, Iowa, North Scarsport, and they are numerous, all seem pleased and happy to know he is the recipient of $1,200 from the Government for services rendered when his country was in peril.... The socials of Comet Grange were held on the celebrating Monday evening by Rose, Simson, Osborne and Marden, with oysters, oranges and pickles.... Several spring hacks have arrived. Among them are one to each clerk of Capt. L. C. Nickerson and A. E. Nickerson.

MONROE. Mr. F. R. Dunham of Alfred, Maine, is visiting her uncle, Mrs. D. O. Rogers and her sister Mrs. L. R. Fuller.... It is very sickly about town. In some cases whole families are laid up with violent colds.... Mrs. Thomas Shorey passed from the life last Saturday night, after a brief illness. She was in her usual general health for many years.... The funeral services of Mr. Richard Gay of Waldo were held at the church Sunday, Rev. W. Rose officiating. The deceased was a member of the Methodist church of Monroe and Sunday and Sunday Mr. Rose preached a sermon from the sermon delivered by Rev. E. W. Wall, Acting Presiding Elder, over the dead and with result in good.... The Rev. Dr. Drisler's lectures at Prospect Hall, Belfast, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, at Unitarian church, Belfast, on Sunday afternoon, were very fine and interesting. The Sunday afternoon lecture was on the Mormons and their history, and concluded with a lamentable career of "Elder Ann Smith." It was a fine entertainment with the exception of Monday evening. Poor Mr. Dr. Young people are so stingy an attempt to get a good lecture and lecture in Monday for people to pay 10 cents for it. Dr. Drisler's lectures were worth that for one night. Rev. Mr. Rose's sermon was a pleasant card party to her friends Saturday evening. Mrs. Anne Jones is very lonely since the death of her husband, and has been filled with many anxious moments of late, but she has the sympathy of her neighbors in her sorrow.... Mr. Frank Jones and family have moved into the house with his father.... Apples still better in the city than in the country. Hancock Shipping Company are shipping to Boston. Rev. Mr. Rose's sermon was a good one, and better than many of the sermons we have had of late. Mr. Rose is a good preacher, but he should be more careful in his sermons, or his sermons will be read through them.

Benjamin L. Stanley, cashier of the Rockland, Maine, savings bank, and Miss Nettie A. Norris were married in marriage at the residence of the bride's father Saturday evening. The wedding was private. Rev. R. G. Harbutt performed the ceremony. The happy couple left by train Tuesday morning for their future home in Rockland, Mass.

The correspondent of the Rockland Free Press mentions the fact that if the business boom in Scarsport continues it will soon rank well with any town of its size on the bay and rivers as a shore place. We have often wondered that more good companies do not visit Scarsport, as several who have had the courage to visit it have netted more money than in some very much larger towns.

We clip the following from the Newcastle Morning Herald of Dec. 26th:

The Bangor case of the first specimens of the new Maine cent, which has excited the interest of numismatic fine past, takes her departure this morning for San Diego (Cal.), with a cargo of 2,000 cases from underbarrows. Capt. Tolman, who has made himself extremely popular during the time the fine craft has been in port, will navigate the vessel under sail. The numerous friends will wish him a speedy trip to port for which he is bound. The sails were bent yesterday, and should fair weather open all today the vessel will have left the land a long way in the rear on nightfall.

THE KENNEBUNKER IN SCARSPORT. In the Boston Journal of Saturday last Capt. J. H. Drew writes as follows of a visit to Scarsport:

The Journal was more me over from Belfast put up at the Scarsport House, a kind of hotel that might be called the Kennebunker of Maine. Men come to me a lot of things and their families, coming home from sea to enjoy a short vacation, or to take a long one if they can live on the fat of the land. Some of them have left the business of housekeeping, and live nearly all have nice residences. As I passed by one of the best I saw a sign "Apartments to Let." Some of the Kennebunkers, I suppose, would be glad to get a chance to rent one of these apartments. Well, I have prepared to "flatten out" in Rockland, and have taken the room in Sunday, Mr. Ross Cousins, the Kennebunker, and yesterday we got our household goods all "shipped." They knew a lot more about it than I did. Mrs. Drew and I spent Sunday and Monday in Scarsport. We found the people very kind and neighborly, and very much pleased with the prospect of having a shipper from Rockland come to live among them. The people are all in good health for many years.... The Methodists of Mr. Richard Gay of Waldo were dedicated the church Sunday, Mr. Rose officiating. The church was crowded. The Congregational church, Sunday and Mon

"Lougee's Vitalizing Compound the Conqueror."

A REMARKABLE STORY.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 15, 1887.

LOUGEE MEDICINE CO., Lynn, Mass.

GENTLEMEN: For the past five years I have been afflicted with Scrofulous Humor, which appeared in the formed unsightly eruptions on the face, and effected my general health so badly that I was obliged to leave my place of employment, and in fact give up labor altogether for the last two years. I was under the care successively, of at least a dozen skilful physicians, but their efforts gave me no permanent benefit. Various patent medicines were also tried, but to no effect. In May last, a friend called my attention to Dr. E. W. Lougee's Vitalizing Compound. I began to take it at once, but it was not until I had used nearly two bottles that any good results were noticeable. From that time, however, I began to gain, and have continued to improve ever since. The blotches that so disfigured my face have now largely disappeared, my strength has returned in a great measure, and my weakened nervous system is restored. In fact, I have so greatly improved in every sense, by means of the Vitalizing Compound, that I shall continue to use it in the fullest confidence that it will completely restore me to health.

Consolation.

I pon the sand down at old ocean's feet
I lie and watch the waves break on the shore.
What is the wisdom in the sea's dull roar
That gives the heart a patience calm and sweet?

I cannot tell. I only know my soul
When it is racked by doubt, oppressed by sin,
Finds a strange comfort where white waves cast in.

My little hopes like them shall find their goal,

And shall I grieve when their sad fate they share,
And, silver tinged with foam, lie on the sand
Forever powerless? Nay! Within God's hand
Their spent force breaks and leaves its treasures there.

Literary News and Notes.

Worthington & Co. are to publish "The History and Antiquity of Free Masonry."

Mrs. Oliphant's new novel is called "My Neighbor on the Green." It will be published by Macmillans.

Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote's new novel, "The Last Assemble Ball," will begin in the March number of the Century.

It is said that of the 10,000 copies of the new edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica issued, 20,000 copies came to this country.

Mrs. E. Cavazza, of Portland, the fine writer and literary critic, has a poem in the last number of the Literary World—"At the Tomb of a Poet."

Emilie Christian Curtis, the author of a short essay in Harper's Magazine for February, on "The Training of Children's Voices in Public Schools," is the daughter of George Ticknor Curtis.

Mrs. Margaret Deland, author of "John Ward, Preacher," spent last summer at that delightful retreat for authors, Kennebunkport. It is here that Mr. J. T. Trowbridge has a charming seaside cottage.

People who are curious as to the home life of authors will be gratified to know that a number of papers upon American authors are about to be republished in Germany by Gesell & Co. from the columns of the Critic.

Mr. E. E. Medlure, the author of the article on "Dakota," in Harper's Magazine for February, has his home in Pierre, one of the Dakotan towns with a future. He is the Commissioner of Immigration for the Territory.

Prof. C. F. Richardson, whose "History of American Literature," has just been completed by the publication of the second volume, is a native of Hallowell, and is about thirty years of age. He is Professor of English Literature in Dartmouth College.

Ticknor & Co. are about to publish "Great Captains," by Colonel Theodore A. Dodge, U. S. A., the contents being six lectures which the author delivered at Boston recently with great success. Colonel Dodge can be doubly recommended, for he is an accomplished soldier and a pleasing writer.

A Maine author who is winning fame by a recently published profound treatise on "The Law of Equivalents" is Mr. Edward Payson of Deering, a son of the eminent divine, Dr. Edward Payson. Mr. Payson published a novel some ten or a dozen years ago entitled "Dr. Tom," which was not, however, a great success.

The Saturday Review says of Mr. E. W. Howe's novel, "A Man Story," that it is a remarkable book, and advises its readers not to be discouraged by the first chapters. American humor is often subtle and disguised, and those who will pursue the story cannot help perceiving its original power and the fresh, vigorous conceptions of its author.

Dakota has 805 public schools. They are supported by a direct tax upon the people, amounting to a trifle over $9 apiece, as was shown by Mr. E. McClure in Harper's Magazine for February, is larger than that devoted to the same purpose by any one of twenty-four States.

The Open Court Publishing Co., of Chicago, announces the appearance within the present month of an important contribution to Experimental Psychology, by the eminent French savant, Alfred Binet. The work is entitled "The Psychic Life of Micro-Organisms," and is published with the sanction of the author, who has written a preface especially for the American edition.

The Life of Lincoln in the February Century contains three chapters of especial interest. They describe the final removal of McClellan, the financial measures which the Chase finance had the sinews of war to the Government, and the personal relations between Seward and Lincoln. This last chapter describes one of the most interesting as well as amusing episodes of Lincoln's career.

Mr. Edward Atkinson of Boston will describe in the February century the three American methods of buildings "Slow Burning Construction" as a branch of fire insurance, suggesting the construction of buildings of brick, stone or iron, with wood fixtures, or of iron and wood, with wood walls so as to greatly decrease the fire loss. Mr. Atkinson says: "There are even now more cities than one in which a great conflagration exceeding that of either Boston or Chicago would, but the accident of a spark and a favorable wind."

"Tempted of the Devil, Passages in the Life of a Rationalist" is the title of a remarkable book which will shortly be published by Cupples & Hurd, Boston. It has been admirably translated from the German of August Ibsen by M. W. MacDowall, and is an extraordinary novel, of peculiar and thrilling interest from beginning to end. It is powerfully written, abounds with exciting explorations of the unknown lands of mysterious psychic force which the German master so often loved to penetrate. There is an intense dramatic element in the book, which fascinates the reader and draws him on in spite of himself, while the vivid and historically accurate manner in which is depicted the life of the theological student and country pastor are of value as a contribution to the history of the North German people in the last century. One must be overwhelmed with sense to such well-known philosophers as Spinoza, giving such an air of reality to the work that one can scarcely believe it to be mere fiction.

The Little High Chair.

There was an auction at one of the down-town auction houses recently. A pale, sad-faced woman in a plain calico gown, stood in a crowd. The lots moved and flowed, finally came to a lot of plain and somewhat worn furniture. It had belonged to the pale woman, and was being sold to satisfy the mortgage on it. One by one the articles were sold, the old bureau to one theorist, rocker to another, and a bedstead to a third. Finally the auctioneer lauded out a child's high chair. It was old and rickety, and as the auctioneer held it up every body laughed—except the pale-faced woman. A tear trickled down her cheek. The auctioneer saw it, and somehow a lump seemed to come up in his throat and his gruff voice grew soft. He recommended a little high chair at home and how it had once filled his life with sunshine. It was empty now. The baby laugh, the two little hands that were once held out to greet "papa" from that high chair were gone forever. He saw the pale-faced woman's pitcous looks and knew what it meant, knew that in her eyes the little rickety high chair was more precious than if it had been made of gold and studded with diamonds. In imagination he could see the little prattler, in imagination he could see the little feet which had rubbed the paint off the legs; could hear the crowing and laughing in glee—and now, the little high chair was empty. He knew there was an aching void in the pale-faced woman's heart; there was in his own. Somehow the days may come and go, but you never get over it. There is no one to dress in the morning, no one to put to bed at night. "Don't laugh," said the auctioneer, softly, as somebody facetiously offer ten cents; "many of you have little empty high-chairs at home which money would not tempt you to part with." Then he handed the clerk a bill out of his own pocket and remarked: "sold to the lady over there," and as the pale-faced woman walked out with the little high-chair clasped in her arms, and tears streaming down her cheeks the crowd stood back respectfully, and there was a suspicious moisture in the eyes of the man who had bid ten cents.—[Detroit Free Press.

A Disastrous Voyage.

THE CAPTAIN'S GRAPHIC STORY OF THE WRECK OF THE JOHN BRYCE.

On board the steamship Alameda, which arrived at San Francisco, Jan. 19, from Australia, were the master and crew of the American ship John Bryce. Capt. Timothy Murphy thus narrates the story of the disastrous voyage:

"The ship John Bryce, of Thomaston, Me., sailed from Point Ludlow, Puget Sound, Oct. 6, last, with a cargo of lumber to Melbourne, Australia. She left Port Townsend, Nov. 9, in a heavy southeast gale. That night she was obliged to anchor in Port Angeles, where she lay seven days before a tug could be secured. From Dec. 2 to 7 there were fresh northeast winds. On the 7th the wind increased to a hurricane, which started the deck load and blew away sails. At 11 o'clock that night I have the ship to on the port tack, heading to the southeast. About 2 o'clock in the morning of the 8th I found the ship waterlogged. All the deck frames were carried away and the starboard bulwarks and standing rigging were all gone, and by 4 o'clock the ship was a complete wreck, all houses being carried away except a portion of the after cabin, and all the boats were gone but one. At 4 o'clock the gale began to moderate, and up to this time the sea made a clean breach over the ship. At 7 o'clock A. M. a great sea swept over the decks, drowning Martin Nelson, seaman, and severely injuring myself and one seaman. By 3 o'clock in the afternoon the sea had so moderated that we were able to launch the only boat, into which we got and pulled away with a westerly wind.

Ten days before we struck the hurricane the ship's boy gathered some rain water in a barrel, and put it in the wash room. All the water casks were burst. We started for the Cook's Group of Islands, bearing southeast about 500 miles. We steered this course nearly two days, making about four miles per hour, when the wind changed to the southeast and completely cut us off. Our course was then changed to the Samoan Islands, distant nearly 700 miles, where we arrived at Manua, the extreme east island of the group, after being seven days and nights in the boat. We reached the shore at noon on the 15th, where we were met by an English trader. He at once took us ashore and made every provision for our comfort. While there we were treated with extreme kindness by the natives, who divided everything they had with us. We were there eight days, when we were taken off by the cutter and carried by Capt. Young to Apia. Here we remained seven days, and sailed again for Tutuila in the same cutter.

On the 4th of January we were taken on board the steamship Alameda of the Oceanic Line, and sailed for San Francisco by way of Honolulu. The second and third officers and Ward remained behind at Apia at their own request, and were paid off by the United States consul.

The John Bryce was built in November, last, at Thomaston, Me., for Edward E. Orbigny by his father. She has been in grain, lumber, guano and other trades in the North Atlantic and North and South Pacific. Her lounge was her protector. Capt. Murphy has been six years aside and eight years master of the ship.

Fisherman's Luck.

None, I am no fisherman, no Izaak Walton, not at all. When I was a lad the catching of smelts in the winter season was quite fashionable business or sport. The fishermen cut holes through the ice, and with a roaring fire built out of driftwood from the shore, would haul the hungry little fish up just as fast as possible. Very useful hard. Mother made the smelts of fish. I made the sinkers after the most approved style, found it the same book of John Brennan the poet of the Nile could, but never of more than three at a time, and I was lucky if I got one—sometimes and then cold, cold as ice, and numb with cold, so very hot. When I was a boy, down the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where our ship loaded deals, as soon as work was over our crew would round the rail and haul in the codfish just as fast as they could haul in the smelts. The fishing was simply wonderful. I caught just one old halibut, and it nearly caught me by yanking me nearly overboard. Off the Cape of Good Hope, when lovely days, of wind, or drifting around Agulhas Bank, there is often splendid fishing, but while every one was as busy as they could be, on several occasions coming the beautiful red fish of these regions in, all I could catch was a shark. And on I had no luck at all. I was looking forward would bite or nibble at the Rennie-Jacob's book. But the first thing I knew "cast anchor" a great two-pounder was walked off with my sinker, hook and line. Sinker and line I did not miss the Rhododendron taking my tackle overboard. Not a word was said, but in breathless silence I limited blue pigeon wing among the fish and rubber boots in the forward part of the forecastle. Then I thought of the sentence, "There is a time to the tides of men," or something which, taken at its head, leads to. What do you call it? I felt so though there was some thing to live for; that the tide had turned, and I could only wait for coming three beautiful fish as fast as anybody talking to myself about "smelts belonging to the people." —Brooklyn Eagle.

As a result of investigation the Ford immigration committee has reported to the national House a bill prohibiting the admittance into the United States of idiots, paupers, those who have been convicted of infamous offence or misdemeanor involving moral turpitude, those affected with leprosy or contagious diseases, or those coming under contract to work in this country, except university professors or teachers of the sciences.

The Cord of cord in the United States for 1888 was 2,000,000 cord batches or thirty-two inches feet long for every human woman and child in the country. One hundred years ago the United States did not more than supply her own demands for fuel; now she dominates the market of the world, and has expunged the name of Lubec from the list of the world's gateway entrepôts.

AN OLD VETERAN.

A Centenarian who is as Young as a Boy—The Secret of his Vigor Explained.

Colonel Nathaniel Warren, residing on Beacon Street, Boston, is 97 years old, and apparently in perfect health and vigor. He has a clear memory of the early times of the commonwealth, when the states were struggling for existence. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, in which he was severely wounded, and he takes an active interest in political and public affairs to-day as ever in his life before. The writer had an interesting conversation with him the other day, in the course of which the following facts were brought out:

"Do you not feel your age, weighing heavily upon you, Colonel?" asked the writer.

"Not in the least. I feel almost as young as a boy of 30 nothing, of course, but not so active.

"Have you always been active and healthy?

"No, indeed; when I was in middle life I was almost a physical wreck. Was thin, had no appetite, and had to hobble about on a stick."

"That seems remarkable. How did you secure your present vigor?

"My old friend Colonel Hunt, who we all thought was going to die, cured me."

"How?

"It seems he secured a preparation in New York, which grew on the Hyvood mountains, which was then a farm, but which is now the heart of New York City. He cured himself, and then urged his advice I tried the same means and was restored to perfect health. The medicine was so wonderful in its results, that Colonel Hunt determined to put it up for the benefit of the public, and it is the most popular medicine of the day, being nothing less than the celebrated Hunt's Remedy.

"Do you still take it, Colonel?"

"Yes I use it quite regularly. If I have the slightest symptom of a cold, cough or any other out of sorts in any way, I take a dose, and in a few hours I feel as fresh and right again. I am satisfied there are thousands of aged men and women who are suffering all the while, but who might be in health as good health and spirits as I am, for there certainly have better constitutions than I, and yet I have lived to be 97."

The facts above stated are given just as they occurred, and they furnish a very good suggestion to aid people of advanced years, who may be suffering, but who have the means of health within their reach.

TAKOMA CATARRH

The Greatest Remedy on Earth ever discovered for the Cure of Catarrh. A Child Can Use It. Thousands of persons testify to its wonderful effect. The applications are made to reach the diseased parts, 3 instantaneously, penetrating every cell and cavity of the head, commencing with the nostrils, subduing every portion of the mucous membrane to the healing action of the remedy employed.

So effective is the medication, the first application is productive of decided relief.

The diseased cavities are cleansed, the offensive smell and headache disappear, the distressing dinginess, the inflammation subsides, the secretions are made to heal, and finally a radical cure is the result.

TO THE PUBLIC. Notwithstanding it has been said and written during the past four years in praise of my celebrated plasters, by some of the citizens and prominent druggists throughout the country, and by thousands upon thousands of people in every walk of life, who have been restored to perfect health by their use, yet there is manifested less thousands who are still suffering from Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Cramps, Female Troubles, Lung and Bronchial Diseases, &c., that could be permanently cured by the use of one of these plasters, the expense of which would be a trifling, therefore it has probably occurred to many who think little upon the subject, that they might be relieved by the use of one of them, and at the office, or if not convenient to call, that upon a full description of their case, a suitable plaster would be sent with the enclosing 2 cts., on receipt of which I will prepare a special plaster for their benefit and forward by mail, and if it does not do the work it does return it and their money shall be refunded. I have on file at my office, and which I'm pointed to universally, testimonials, mail and personal, to 2,000 original letters written me by persons from nearly every section of the United States and Canada, recounting astonishing cures of diseases that have been pronounced incurable by other physicians, pleasure refer to the following well known and respectable gentlemen of Belfast, who have been in the use of Dr. D. P. Ordway's plasters for years: Hon. Wm. O. Poor, A. Sec. Dr. E. H. Moody, A. A. Moses & Co., Robert B. Dunton, Esq., and Frances Whitmore, Esq., Dr. J. A. Crocker, M. D., G. H. Mooring, M. D.
