FREE SURGICAL HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN,
Supported by the MURDOCK LIQUID FOOD Co., Gainsborough Street, corner of Huntington Avenue, Boston.
114 BEDS. EVERY BED FREE.

The object of this institution and it is the largest in the United States, is to relieve and cure in the simplest, safest and quickest way the numerous surgical ailments to which women are subject.

The method sought for the accomplishment of this object is based on the fact that every surgical operation of any magnitude whatever, involves loss of blood and a shock to the nervous system, and the additionally well demonstrated fact, that in proportion to the rapidity of regeneration of the blood and toning up of the nervous system, in just such proportion is convalescence hastened. In pursuance therewith each patient, for several days prior to and immediately after the operation, is placed upon a diet of the most condensed and at the same time the most easily assimilable nutriment which scientific experimentation has been able to produce, made from common food products, also one tablespoonful of Murdock's Liquid Food before each meal and on retiring; and where patients are constipated, as most are after their operations, one or two Liquid Fruit Laxative Tablets at bedtime. Each adult's suppository contains ½ oz. Murdock's Liquid Food.

THIS IS CONFIRMED BY THE RECORDS OF THE 1,278
patients who were discharged (with only 17 deaths), as they gained in health, vitality and weight. In some instances those remaining in the Hospital, including operations, gained

25 pounds in 6 weeks,
45 " " 16 "
35 " " 81 "

This last case had 5 operations, as can be seen by our Hospital reports, which also show that our operations included between 50 and 60 different kinds, and every kind known in surgery, as no case is rejected that need an operation.

Average length of time of all patients remaining in the Hospital, 3½ days, or 26 days after operation; and one lady remained 14 months, and then left restored to health, after 8 operations.

Murdock's Liquid Food is adapted to all ages, in health or disease, as it will make new blood faster than all foods or preparations known, it is not a medicine or drink, even if it is a liquid, which it necessarily must be, as it is free of all insoluble matter, also drugs, minerals, salts and acids.

Any person suffering from any general disease will find that they are improving by the use of one twelve-ounce bottle of Liquid Food, and if so will continue; and if in doubt, abandon it, and you will soon be convinced of its value.

We do not depend on any testimonials for the value of our Liquid Food, as that would have no practical value, as no analysis can find all the properties in any preparation, but when made can not tell of what the preparations are made from, or if they are raw or cooked. Natural mineral waters and manufactured products prove this fact.

A practical test, as we have sustained by our Free Hospitals for 5 years, covering all classes of disease and operations, increasing the number of beds monthly, which now number between 100 and 200, every one free—and restoring to health by 1278 operations, with only 17 deaths, shows no testimonials can be obtained from any source better than the restored health of patients from our Hospital. We are also indorsed by essays and discussions before the National Medical Societies of Great Britain and the United States, and no essay was ever read before any of them except on Murdock's Liquid Food.

Facts are always more convincing than Opinions.

Physicians are invited to visit our Hospital and to bring or send us Patients.

Remember, if you wish to restore your baby to health or preserve its health, never change its food, but add to each meal three or more drops of Murdock's Liquid Food, which will cure the first or needed vitality.

Infants that are not regular, one of our Suppositories daily will give relief. They can be sent by mail if not kept by your druggist, 35 cents a dozen. Adult Suppositories, $1.20 a dozen.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
EPPS'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

FAIRFIELD'S ONE HUNDRED YEARS.

Her Enterprising Citizens Celebrate the Event in Memorable Style.

Hon. H. M. Heath Eloquently Depicts a Century's Advance.

The Town's Industries Illustrated in a Grand Parade.

FAIRFIELD, Oct. 5.—The town has been crowded today, the centennial celebration being a great successs. The procession formed at 9 o'clock, headed by the Waterville City Band. E. P. Mayo was chief marshal and in the long line which followed him were exhibits of the different business enterprises of this busy town. Hon. S. A. Nye, president of the Fairfield Board of Trade, drove a prancing four-in-hand, and following him were ten teams loaded with the products of his great lumber manufactory. The teams carrying the lumber exhibits of N. Totman & Sons, A. H. & C. E. Durgen, E. Totman & Co., and Lawrence & Phillips, came next in order. The Kennebec Framing and Lumber Company and the Somerset Fibre Company's mills also made noticeable displays. Otten, the Waterville baker, pleased the small boys and many of their elders by cooking dainties for the crowd on a portable oven, while the miniature office of the Fairfield Journal was turning out flyers by the hundred, and Mr. Hatch's shoemaker's shop on wheels did a rushing business. The cavalcade was fifteen minutes in passing a given point. At 12.15 a halt was made at the Baptist church where the literary exercises were held. The venerable sons of the town were escorted to the platform and E. P. Mayo, Esq., chairman of the committee of arrangements, called the assembly to order. Hon. Herbert M. Heath, of Augusta, the orator of the day, was then introduced. In the course of his address, he said:

MR. HEATH'S ADDRESS.

If some good citizen of this ancient town, who was laid away among his fathers a hundred years ago, could come out of his grave today, what would he thtnk of the sights about him? The telegraph wires flashing across a continent would seem too high for a wire fence. The iron horse spouting fire and steam would remind him of the fabled monsters of the deep and perchance send him back to his grave in terror. If he saw a neighbor speaking at the wall and pretending to talk with a friend in Waterville, his first impulse would be to rouse up Old Cotton Mather and have the necromancer tried for witch-craft. He would think you daft if you assured him that after dark you intended to illuminate the town with lightning manufactured expressly for the occasion. The only sewing machine he saw was the one he married. But as for sewing machines driven by lightning he would as soon not to tax his credulity too much. The old gentleman would amble off to his grave satisfied that the whole world had become crazy. If the next century is equally inventive, who can foresee the advance of civilization? We are surprised at nothing. If Edison should announces tomorrow that he had discovered a process for raising the dead, the world would gravely say, "We knew he was a wonderful stock company to develop the invention.

Mr. Mulhall, the famous English statistician, has recently estimated the wealth of the nations of the world. Above the wealth of all the Russias, beyond the accumulations of the Germans, more than the savings of prudent France, above the massive wealth of the British Empire with her centuries of trade and commerce, above and beyond them all stands the United States of America. As a nation we are today the richest upon the globe. These are not figures born of the enthusiasm of a Fourth of July orator wrestling with the American eagle, and soaring to heights that would frighten even that proud bird. They are not the froth of the champagne of an after-dinner speech, when politicians speak of millions with the assurance of common individuals humbly speaking of hundreds. It is the reluctant testimony of a loyal subject of America's ancient and natural enemy. Whether great fortunes are an unmixed good is a problem. Vast wealth locked up in land and made inalienable by a system of land tenure, conceived to support aristocracy, has dwarfed the growth of English manhood. That landless peasantry leave two hundred millions, and Jay Gould be master of a hundred millionsare facts that furnish food for sober reflection. But time is the great distributer. Such fortunes are crumble as surely as the ice beneath the rays of the up-climbing sun. It cannot be denied that there is a wider diffusion of wealth as the years roll on. The rich men are growing richer and the poor poorer is the idle vaporing of the demagogue who loves the laboring man for the ballot he controls. I cannot subscribe to the recent declaration of a Maine statesman that every village in Maine has its millionaire. We have rich men, but, better still, in no State in the Union will there be found so small a percentage of the extremely poor. We run little to either extreme. The great mass of our people are neither rich nor poor; they are content to say, "Blessed is enough." Man needs no more.

This piled up wealth is the product of a century's labor. The massive factories, the iron arteries of trade, the white-winged ships upon the sea, all are the exact of human sweat. The alchemist who has turned the rude products of the earth into gold is the laborer telling in the heat and burden of the day. Force, it is, that labor receives less than its just share of the wealth it creates. Labor fashions garments it cannot wear, builds houses that it cannot enter, carriages that it cannot ride in, and raises crops it can not eat. Under the factory system labor must be disappointed at the division of profits. Labor is a perishable article; it is continued by silence, but it cannot be laid up. The contract is theoretically mutual, but a starving stomach disturbs the element of free consent. But a century has seen a great advance in wages.

In 1777 the town council of Newburyport ordained that the wages of a day laborer should not exceed four shillings, a carpenter five shillings, and a mason six shillings a day. These prices were higher than the going rates. In 1788 the unskilled laborer received as the price of his daily toil the munificent sum of two shillings. When his advanced to fifteen shillings a week a cry went up that it was extravagant. Imagine an able bodied man of today working for two dollars and a half a week. Nor were prices correspondingly low. Corn was three shillings a bushel, wheat stood at eighth and sixpence, and salt pork at ten pence a pound. He endured life at these starvation wages only by the strictest economy. Upon his table was nothing but the roughest and coarsest food. Fresh meat once a week was the exception and not the rule. Sugar was a luxury only within the means of the rich. Tea and coffee, today the poor man's blessings, were luxuries strangers to his table. Today there is no country so remote that it does not contribute to the humblest table. His fleur is of the finest. Broad fields, ingenious machinery, cheap freights, Yankee invention have cheapened its productian, until wheat grown upon the plains of Dakota gives life and muscle to the arm of the Eastern workman; and the surplus travels to feed the millions of crowded Europe. Beef from the rolling prairies, mutton from the valleys of Montana, fish from the rushing waters of the Columbia, sugar from the lowlands of Louisiana—countries then unknown, but today the bulwarks against famine or distress. I would that the vast difference in houses, homes and food could be pictured in all its force; but neither tongue nor pen can do it. Every invention that has cheapened goods has let a new ray of light into the homes of the poor. The working men of America live better than the mechanics of any nation upon earth. Surely, they ought. Citizens of the richest nation, themselves the producers of wealth, their share should be liberal.

N. W. Brainard, Esq., then read an historical sketch of Fairfield, presenting the history of the town in an interesting manner.

ON MAINE FAIR GROUNDS.

The Trotting Which Amused the Crowds Yesterday.

SACO, OCT. 5.—Three thousand people, including many from Dover, Rochester, Portland, Lewiston and Waterville, attended today's trots at the York County fair. There were five starters in the 2.40 class, and they kept well together in each heat, the last three horses coming in in such a manner that fourth money had to be divided equally among them. Guilford Boy, of Rochester, won in three straight heats. The three minute class was anybody's race until the finish, five heats being trotted. First money was won by Black Billy, owned by Horace Dennett of Saco. The summary follow:

During the afternoon C. H. Nelson, of Waterville, trotted Dictator Chief an exhibition heat covering half a mile in 1.13¼, and a full mile in 2.34. The entries for the free-for-all tomorrow include Dictator Chief, Screwdriver, Mattie B., Maud R. and Jack Spratt.

The Closing Day At Farmington.

FARMINGTON, Oct. 5.—The closing day of the Franklin County Agricultural Society's show and fair had a large attendance. The exhibition hall was well filled with articles to please the ladies, while the fruit exhibit was the largest and best in the annals of the society, there being eight hundred plates shown. Despite the fact that the rain this morning made a heavy track, some good races and fast time were witnessed.

The first race was for three-year-olds, half mile heats, and was won by J. A. Ellsworth's black mare Myrtle L, best time, 1.37½. The second contest was for green horses, half mile heats, and was won by Butler Brothers' chestnut mare, Daisy Mills; best time, 1.34. The 2.40 class, purse $100, mile heats, best three in five resulted as follows:

C. L. Robbins, Phillips, ns. blk. g. Honest Mack.....2 2 1 1 1

The Fair at Norway.

NORWAY, Sept. 5.—A very successful fair closed today. Chas. Bonner won in the 2.50 class in 2.38; Star Gazer the sweepstakes in 2.33¼. S. B. Locke was elected vice president of the association, and the other officers were re-elected.

CARELESS WITH DYNAMITE.

A Second Explosion Near Augusta Averted Just in Time.

[Special to the Press.]

AUGUSTA, Oct. 5.—The carelessnes with which dynamite is handled by the workmen who are building the electric light line between this city and Togus had another illustration yesterday, although it did not result in any harm. A gentleman was driving in a carriage at the point where the blasting is in progress when he noticed a dynamite cartridge laying in the road. An ox team was just coming up and one of the big heavy wheels was about to strike it. The gentleman stopped to the driver and he had his team just in season to avert a disastrous explosion which would have occurred had the wheel struck the cartridge.

MAINE.

Franklin County Court.

FARMINGTON, Oct. 5.—The juries were discharged this evening, and court will adjourn in the morning, having been in session ten days, in which nine cases were tried, six resulting in verdicts for the defendants, two for the plaintiffs, and one in a disagreement. Five divorces were granted.

Timid Burglars in Monroe.

BANGOR, Oct. 5.—The store of L. H. Nealy, in Monroe, was broken into last night, but only a small sum of money was taken, the burglars being frightened off by Mr. Nealy. Later they broke open the door of the postoffice, but did not enter.

A Feud on the Border.

EASTPORT, Oct. 5.—At Welchpool, Campobello, N. B., opposite Eastport, George A. Batson keeps a liquor store. Wm. J. Best keeps another about a mile away. A long standing feud exists between them, arising partly from politics. This afternoon Best rode to Batson's store. Batson's younger brother, Medley, aged 25, was in attendance. Best took a drink of whiskey and went out. Young Batson, to prevent him from returning, immediately locked the door, when Best drew a revolver and fired through the glass door, striking Batson in the nose. Dr. Grady afterwards extracted the bullet from under the left ear. The wound is not fatal. Best fled to Eastport after firing several shots in the air.

Robbed on a Passenger Train.

READING, Pa., Oct. 5.—A daring robbery was perpetrated on a passenger train of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad last night. The train had just left Kutztown, when four masked men seized Daniel Geist, a wealthy farmer, who was seated in a car in which there were a number of other passengers, bound him with a rope, rifled his pockets and then jumped from the train and escaped. The family expected to find a large amount of money on their visit, but they only secured $18.

The Southern Scourge.

JACKSONVILLE, Dr. Neal Mitcheil, president of the Board of Health, issues the following official bulletin, for the 24 hours ending at 6 p. m.: New cases, 52; deaths, 6; total cases, 877. Of the new cases 15 are white and 37 colored.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 5.—A special to the Age from Decatur, says the weather has suddenly turned very warm and the situation is by no means alarming. Seven new cases reported today, and one death.

The New International.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—M. DeBlowitz sends a communication from Paris to the London Times today in connection with a letter he has received from New York relating to the New International society, whose head officers are in New York. It affirms that the branches of this association are in existence all over the United States and Europe, and that the new society is much more lusty, thirsty and far-reaching than the old society of that name. A sub-committee of the society for the management of its European affairs is said to have headquarters in London, and it is only observient to the New York head center in such matters as are of sufficient importance to demand the close attention of the supreme leaders.

The new society numbers hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of adherents all of whom are under the strictest dicipline and are sworn to absolute obedience. The German Socialist societies are only partially under the leadership of the New York "New International."

New York, Oct. 5.—Alexander Jonas, the editor of the New Yorker Volks Zeitung, the Socialist organ in New York, denies the truth of DeBlowitz's story and adds, "The Socialistic party does not need any new organization, for the one which exists serves their purpose. As for the bloodthirsty idea, that is all moonshine and a hoax. I have no knowledge of any such movement and if there was anything of the kind on foot I would be one of the first to hear of it. It is a invention on the part of the London Times correspondent and he made his story out of whole cloth or else he has been hoaxed by some one."

Foreign Notes.

Crimes are getting so numerous in Havana now that people are afraid to go upon the streets after dark. The press is calling upon the government to take active measures to protect the public.

The rains in Mexico have completely ceased and all the waters are receding. The official figures to date state that the losses throughout the country by the cyclones and and floods exceeds three million dollars.

Advices from Suakim, Egypt, state that the rebels made an attack on that place Thursday night but were repulsed by the heavy fire of the British troops.

The chief of the London police force has decided to employ bloodhounds in his efforts to discover the perpetrator of the Whitechapel murder. The police place confidence in the story of George M. Dodge, a seaman, who states that in August last he met a Malay cook named Alaka, who told him he had been robbed of all he had by a woman of the town and threatened that unless he found the woman and recovered his property he would kill and mutilate every Whitechapel woman he met.

Public interest in the Dominion in the question of annexation is rapidly spreading. Two students, who were in financial difficulty, shot each other dead, by mutual agreement, yesterday.

The most distinguished wedding known in the annals of Detroit took place at St. Paul's church Thursday evening, when Baron Barthold Hoyningen Huene, first lieutenant of the regiment of Chevalier Gardes of Her Majesty, the Empress of all the Russias, was married to Miss Anne Lothrop, the eldest daughter of Hon. George Van Ness Lothrop, ex-Minister to Russia.

AN UNITED STATES PROTECTORATE

Proposed to Secure the Freedom of the Nicaragua Canal.

The Lack of a Quorum Prevents Business in the House.

What the Majority Report Says of the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Several private bills having been disposed of in the committee of the whole, Mr. McRae, of Arkansas, called up the Senate bill to incorporate the Maritime Canal Company, of Nicaragua, and this time the measure was taken up for consideration.

Mr. Culberson, of Texas, offered an amendment not to involve the United States in any pecuniary obligation whatever other than in respect to the payment of tolls.

Mr. Phelan, of Tennessee, offered amendments providing that the canal shall be under control and protection of the United States in order that representatives of the North and South American people may be guarded against any infringement or aggression on the part of foreign nations; also that tolls shall be equal on the same class of tonnage for vessels of all nations, except as provided in article 54 of the concessions and decrees of the Republic of Nigaragua to the Nicaragua Canal Association, of New York; also that the United States government binds itself to protect all the rights of citizens, acquired under said concessions and decrees and guarantees the neutrality of said canal and its operation under the terms of said concessions and decrees, subject to the consent and approval, by treaty or otherwise, of the countries through which the canal may be constructed.

Mr. Culberson opposed Mr. Phelan's amendments. If they were adopted, the government would have to keep a standing army in Nicaragua to protect the rights of the corporation.

Mr. Phelan replied that the gentleman radically misapprehended the terms of the amendments. The amendments were drawn for the purpose of preventing the result which the gentleman was apprehensive might ensue and had been drawn in careful conformity with the utterances of the State Department, from President Grant's administration to the present time.

Mr. Fuller, of Iowa, said that the bill was a piece of gigantic legislation so important that it should not be considered on Friday when it was expected that only ordinary private bills would be called up and at a time when there were only about 60 members present. He did not intend to permit the bill to go through without a quorum.

Mr. Phelan, in order not to imperil the passage of the bill, withdrew his amendments and Mr. Culberson's amendment was agreed to. The bill being in committee of the whole, the question was then on reporting the bill favorably to the house. The vote resulted 33 to 6, and Mr. Fuller made the point of no quorum. The committee then rose.

Mr. Burnes, of Missouri, offered a concurrent resolution, which was agreed to, for the appointment of a select joint committee of three Senators and three representatives to investigate the work done on the Washington aqueduct tunnel.

The House, at 5 o'clock, took a recess until 8 o'clock.

The House at its evening session passed 17 private pension bills, and at 10.30 adjourned until Monday.

The Majority's Report.

The report of the majority of the Senate finance committee on the tariff bill opens with the statement that the demand for a careful and thorough revision of our revenue laws is imperative. This revision is necessary to reduce the national revenues, which are now excessive; to remedy the defects, anomalies and incongruities which have been from time to time discovered in the tariff schedules, or which have been created by erroneous decisions of the treasury department; to secure the proper readjustment and equalization of tariff rates rendered necessary by modified business conditions and improvements in methods of production, radical changes in prices, or by new elements or sources of competition and to give relief and protection to many industries which are now suffering on account of the inadequate rates levied on competing products.

The public demand, the report says, for a reduction of revenue is more urgent on account of the business depression in the national treasury or in the national banks of volumes of money in excess of the amount required to pay the current demands upon the treasury and to meet maturing obligations of the government. The existence of this immense surplus furnishes occasion for constant anxiety and apprehension of possible embarrassment to the public. The failure to prevent this dangerous accumulation, inciting as it does extravagant expenditures and constituting an ever-present menace to the prosperity of all our people, cannot be too severely condemned, but it is a failure for which the executive department of the government alone is responsible.

This accumulation could and should have been profitably avoided, and the possibility of business disaster averted, by a prompt return of the money collected from the people, to the channels of trade, through the purchase of United States bonds that could at all times have been obtained for prices which, to the government, would have been equal to investment, it otherwise unprofitable funds, at a rate of interest of no less than 2 per cent per annum. It is probably true that the $60,000,000 deposited in national banks cannot now be withdrawn without peril to the business interests of the respective communities where the banks are located, and that this sum must remain for an indefinite period a loan to the favored institutions without interest.

This is an unfortunate situation, however, as must have been foreseen when the deposits were made and should not be aggravated by an attempt to use the deposits, nor should it furnish an excuse for the failure to promptly dispose of the much larger sum remaining in the treasury in the manner indicated. To amend the provisions of law which enforce the collection of excessive revenue and to remedy the defects which we have here enumerated, are within the scope of legislative relief, and Congress may properly be held responsible for any evils resulting from a continuance of existing conditions. It may, however, be fairly said that responsibility for delay in the adoption of the legislative remedies, rests upon the party in control of the House of Representatives, which, by the constitution, has power to originate revenue bills.

The participation of the Senate in any effort to cure existing evils by proper legislation has not been possible, from the fact that the bill under consideration is the first that has reached the Senate in much more than two years, giving them jurisdiction over the subject.

Criticising the inaction of "those whose anxiety for reform has been manifested by repeated declarations," the report says: It would have been easy at any time when Congress has been in session since the 3d of March, 1885, and its sessions have covered at least 20 months of that period, to have secured the enactment of the two houses upon a measure which would have reduced the revenue and amended the administrative features of our customs law in a satisfactory manner.

It has been the evident purpose of those who have controlled the policy of the party in power, to delay action, to magnify causes for uneasiness, and to multiply and intensify evils, until the people of the country should imperatively demand relief, and then to assume the evils and embarrassments from which we are suffering are the necessary incidents of the protective system and that relief can only be found in the emasculation, or destruction of that system.

The known attachment of the great mass of the wage earners of the country to a system which has been productive to them of unexampled prosperity, prevented the adoption of a policy of open attack, and made it necessary that some plausible reason should be found for the stealthy accomplishment of their destructive designs.

The majority say that after a thorough examination of the Mills bill they have become satisfied of its inadequacy as a remedial measure, in view "of the condition which confronts us," and in some general criticisms of the bill reaches these conclusions: Its adoption would probably result in an increase instead of a reduction of customs revenues. It provides no remedy for undervaluation, but, on the contrary, it invites and gives immunity to unlimited fraud by the substitution of ad valorem for specific duties.

It does not remedy any of the inequalities or anomalies, or cure any of the defects of existing law. While it perpetuates existing infirmities, it creates by its obscurity of purpose and phraseology and by its faulty construction, doubts and ambiguities which must multiply indefinitely the confusion now existing. It does not preserve the classification of dutiable articles in schedules, and it is impossible to say in many instances to what clause of existing law the amendments proposed by the bill were intended to apply, or what their effect would be, and the results which would flow from its failure, as a corrective measure, would be much less disastrous to the material interests of the country than those which must surely follow the adoption of its vicious affirmative propositions.

Second District—T. R. Simonton, of Camden.
Third District—Albert W. Cushman, of Ellsworth.
Fourth District—Lambert Sands, of Sebec.

We observe that a newly marrried Aroostook pair return thanks for their many elegant presents in a card signed by them and published in the local newspaper. This is real gratitude.

McQuade, the boodle Alderman, has been released on bail and gone into the pork business. Col. Fellows found the courts too full of business to try him. If the Colonel doesn't take care the boodlers will be publicly calling him their friend.

The minority report on the Senate bill declares that the tariff is the nursing mother of trusts. If that be so which has the Sugar trust the most to fear from, the Senate bill which cuts down the duty on sugar one half, or the Mills bill, which only slightly reduces it? Somebody should get President Havemeyer's opinion on this point.

The minority of the Senate Finance Committee complain that they were excluded from the consultations in regard to the Senate tariff bill. Whether they were or not we do not know. But if they were it was only following the example of the majority of the House Ways and Means Committee when they were assisting Mr. J. S. Moore to concoct the Mills bill.

Mr. Blaine has conclusively answered the charge of inconsistency made against him in connection with the lumber tariff, but no Democratic paper will on that account withdraw it. The same charge was made during the Maine campaign and answered from the records, but that did not prevent the Maine Democratic press reiterating it. Falsehood is a part of the Democratic campaign.

The Democrats of the Third Massachusetts district have nominated Mr. John F. Andrew for Congress. Mr. Andrew is a Mugwump and his nomination may be regarded as a sop to that political sect. Inasmuch as the third district is beyond all question Republican the Democrats in conceding this nomination to Mr. Andrew have not manifested a remarkable amount of self-abnegation.

The stories of hazing at Colby that have been in circulation lately, are according to the Waterville Sentinel, largely exaggerations. A freshman some time ago received a pressing invitation from the Sophomores to make a speech and complied. That is all the hazing there has been. No violence was offered, and nobody was hurt. The Professors say there have been fewer even of these foolish performances than usual and the students concur in that statement.

Postmaster General Dickinson's speeches may be edifying to the Democrats of the West, but the trouble is they get East, and here the Democrats don't like them so well. Telling the Western people that New England isn't much anyhow, that she buys nothing from the West, and that her people came pretty near being disloyal in the war isn't likely to make New England people feel like voting the Democratic ticket. There are signs that Democrats in this section of the country would not shed any tears if Mr. Cleveland should call Dickinson in.

The Rockland Opinion appears to have been wrought up to a very high pitch by the stories which the Democrats have invented of terrible Republican insults to President Hyde of Bowdoin College. "It is time," it says, "the Democrats of Bowdoin organized, as they have done." And then it advises them "to stand no more bulldozing." "The next man who tries it," it adds, "whether prof., student or Brunswick rough, should be put under the pump. And we believe the Democratic students there though in a minority, have got the muscle and the nerve to do it, and to clean out the whole Federal-Whig-Black-Republican shebang, too, if they are interfered with in executing such righteous." We beg our esteemed contemporary to calm itself. Let us have peace.

The Democrats are seeking to give the impression that the construction of a bill by the Republicans to reduce the surplus, is a virtual admission of the correctness of the Democratic position. Of course they know perfectly well that it is no such thing. The Republicans have always been anxious and ready to reduce the surplus. Their objection to the Mills bill has not been that it reduced the revenues of the government but that it reduced them in such a way as to work disaster to American industries and American labor. The Republicans have contended that the surplus could be reduced all that was necessary without striking any blows at our industries. They have now proved it by producing a bill which removes the surplus and at the same time preserves the protective principle. There is no free trade in the Republican measure; it is not a step in that direction; it is not an "insidious installment" to break down the protective tariff. It is a practical measure of revenue reform, thoroughly in accord with the protective principle, calculated to relieve the country from all the danger of a surplus, without disturbing business or affecting the wages of the wage earner or reducing his opportunities for obtaining employment.

It turned out just as the PRESS anticipated. Taking advantage of an ambiguity on the telegraphed synopsis of the Senate tariff bill the Democratic press has begun to raise the cry that the Republicans are pandering to the vice of opium smoking. The Providence Journal which is a now convert to Democracy and rather more zealous than the long standing members of that chhrch makes the charge in this language:

> The opium smoker as well as the tobacco smoker is cared for in the Senate tariff bill. Opium, crude or manufactured for smoking, is admitted free, while the tax of $10 per pound on the drug prepared for medicinal purposes, which was taken off by the Mills bill, is retained. It is to be hoped that some Senator will explain why the poor invalid, who has to take opium for the alleviation of pain, should be compelled to pay more than the man who buys it for stupefying indulgence. Perhaps the infant opium joint industry requires protection.

The Boston Globe makes the same charge in much the same way. The accusation is without foundation. Instead of admitting opium prepared for smoking free the Senate bill absolutely prohibits its importation. The Democratic papers have taken advantage of ambiguity in the telegraphed synopsis of the bill to set this falsehood afloat. It is of a piece with the free whiskey cry, and is even more dishonest than that was. If either bill panders to the opium smoking vice it is the Mills bill, for that imposes only a duty of $10 a pound on that drug when prepared for smoking.

The New York Sun notifies the office holders that they need not be afraid to go on the stump and speak a good word for Cleveland and the Democracy. The Sun is not exactly the spokesman of the President, yet we are inclined to think the office holders will be perfectly safe in accepting its assurance. The principal officers of the government, such as the Postmaster General and his first assistant, are off on stumping tours, apparently with the cordial approval of Cleveland himself, certainly without signs of disapproval on his part. The Postmaster of Brooklyn has been down in Connecticut instructing the people in the beauties of free trade and has not been flipped out, and numerous District Attorneys have found their voices and used them without incurring the fate of the District Attorney who soon after Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated was retired for addressing his fellow citizens on political issues. Mr. Cleveland has apparently been influenced by the exigencies of the campaign to modify his famous order to the officeholders, and now making stump speeches is not so much in conflict with that unobtrusive exercise of political rights permissible to officials as it was. The officeholder will however need be cautions as to the character of his speeches. In order to make them with impunity he must pitch them on the key of Postmaster Dickinson's harangues in the west. He must glorify Mr. Cleveland, and everything that he has said and done except his sayings and doings that relate to civil service reform. Great caution must be exercised not to touch on that point, for Cleveland has met with a change of heart, and it is painful for him to be reminded of his old opinions. But so long as the officeholder confines himself to speech or work designed to again elevate Mr. Cleveland to the Presidential chair, he need not fear that he will be bounced for pernicious activity. Rather should he fear lest he be removed for pernicious inactivity if he does not do these things. If he can't make a speech or skillfully pull wires then he can purchase redemption by a liberal contribution to the campaign fund. Mr. Cleveland expects every office holder to do his duty, and he has pretty clearly intimated by contributing $10,000 himself and setting his cabinet at work on the stump, what his notion of that duty is.

CONCERNING BOOKS.

BY E. CAVAZZA.

Poetry, Comedy and Duty, By C. C. Everett, LL. D. It is a sign of the progress of liberal thought that, in New England, a professor of theology should write of these three topics, separated by no greater barriers than a comma and a conjunction. Fifty years ago a writer of Professor Everett's authority concerning doctrine would have shied at the idea of poetry and balked outright before comedy, and arrived at his essay on duty by the path of polemics. Nothing finer has been said in praise of the quality of imagination than the eloquent recognition of it in the opening chapters of Professor Everett's essay on Poetry—nothing, it may with equal truth be added, which more clearly proves the eulogist also the possessor. It would be a satisfaction to quote at length from the volume; but this denied by the restrictions of space, it shall be attempted to give, at least, such an idea of the line of thought in this noble work as to lead readers to follow it for themselves in its original representation. Professor Everett defines clearly the important distinctions between imagination and fancy—the latter delightful indeed, but irresponsible, more or less disconnected from reality, while of the former he writes: "The world of imagination may be more natural than that of nature herself."

Imagination traces the path which science follows; its intuitions are materialized by analysis and experiment; it flies where reason can attain only with laborious steps. But it is indispensable that the imagination be first trained and enobled, for no fantastic visions that wander aside from the ways of Nature, will be accepted or fulfilled by her.

Those persons who are wont to complain that the daily task of collecting one's dues from the world which owes every man a living, is a prosaic and continual hindrance to the developement of imagination, which they conceive to be concerned only with art, literature or the intangible and unprofitable day dreams of the untrained fancy, will be cheered by Professor Everetts' assurance that the word poet "means maker, and every maker, the money-maker as truly as the maker of statues or of verses, is also a maker in the poetic sense of the word; that is, he is one who creates by the power of the imagination." It is, indeed, the pervading life of the imagination that is the inspiration and joy of every form of work, that saves it from being merely mechanical or instinctive toil, that raises the world from a hopeless realism to which the last day would be the only end and consolation. Professor Everett gracefully compares imagination to Cinderella, mistreated as a handmaid by her sisters science and business. Asking the test question, "To whom does the world rightfully belong?" he himself replies, "To the faculty that creates it for us, from whose hands we receive it." Science can accept or give nothing that may not be demonstrated; business wants the earth, but cannot lay hold of it until imagination "lends it to science to analyze, to study, to reason about; lends it to business to work with, or to play with, whichever word we choose to take." Then as Cinderella took from her pocket the other slipper and became transformed to the glory of a queen, imagination brings forth art and poetry, and shows herself complete mistress of the world.

From the simplest and humblest to the most unbounded ideals, from earth to heaven it is by the eye of imagination that we have vision.

"Religion," says Professor Everett, "is poetry believed in, just as the outward world is poetry believed in; and when poetry is true, it is truer than anything beside. The conception of each is reached in the same way, and demands a like faith. Thus the imagination, first the explorer and then the poet of the race, becomes at last its seer, its prophet and its priest. The senses give us only a confused series of sensations. The understanding gives us only lifeless fragments. The imagination gives us the universe in its wholeness, and transforms it into the living garments of Divinity."

The conclusion may be summed up thus: The imagination should be trained and stimulated to its utmost powers of usefulness and pleasure, in order that men shall be able to discover and accept new truths. At first these will appear as poetic visions, then will seem prosaic because no longer novel, finally will become the material of a constantly enriched art. It is the half-comprehended which is prosaic; the unknown and the known are poetry.

Professor Everett's judgment of the disputed maxim, Art for Art's sake, is exceedingly sound and sympathetic, deciding that in its principle, the motto is a good one, while the moralist may occasionally have cause to quarrel with some of its results. It is certain that a moral purpose is apt to overstrain art, and is usually in its right place as an inspiration to the character of the artist instead of a direct conscious purpose of his work.

Professor Everett's definition of tragedy, its causes, its limitations and its art, is fine enough for an ancient Grecian. He proves also his right to treat of comedy by more than a few witty and humorous touches, and an excellent restraint in citation of examples. After searching the hidden springs of mirth, the curious inconsistent emotions that fly back and forth until the tension relieves itself in a burst of laughter, Professor Everett closes with a delicious little myth, all his own, of those superstitious days when the primal ape was making a rapid transit to the dignity of man.

There was an ambition, he says, such as has not since then existed upon the earth. It was a time of trial. How the foremost individuals of one generation must have differed from those of the last, or even from the less cultivated of their own. Think of the burdens of polite society.

But finally one of the more elegant of the anthropoids gave an odd cry, our fabulist relates, at some awkwardness of his friends, and finding it a relief, adopted the cry as a habit. The other models of refinement pined and died, crushed by a series of shocks to their sensibilities, while the laugher grew fat.

His children inherited the habit which began with him, and with it inherited his cheerful strength; and thus, while other families dwindled and passed away, the descendants of the man who laughed alone endured, to form the race of man who laughs.

There is much wisdom within this excellent fooling; and who can say how many serious persons, unable to repress a laugh at the Professor's clever little apologue will form the good habit of audible smiling, and so confirm their strength and that of their sons and their son's sons. If the capacity to laugh differentiates the man from the ape, there is also no more delicate test of the human individual than observation of the causes of his laughter. Two men may agree on politics, art and letters, their friends may be mutual, their interests similar; and one day the hearing of a coarse jest will separate them far and forever—in the laugh of him whose mind responded to the stupid appeal, the better man has recognized the dirge of their friendship. Or, to suppose a pleasanter case, imagine the oasis in a desert of dullness when, a refined and brilliant mot having been uttered, its speaker sees an answering flesh in the eye, hears an appreciative laugh of a man who thus proves himself, in an instant, a brother in Momus.

In his essay upon Duty, Professor Everett compares and reconciles the old and new ethics, so called, by a superbly vigorous idealisation of the utilitarian theory. Nothing less than a careful reading of his noble thesis will give a just idea of his apology for the useful, and the fearless logic by which he proves that utility and the ideal are to be compassed by the delight of imagination, an independent criticism of comedy, and the obedience of duty. "The path of duty," he concludes, "is indeed the path of life, but happy is he who can press, sometimes laughing and sometimes singing, upon his way." How They Lived in Hampton. By Edward Everett Hale, D.D. Author of Back to Back, Workingmen's Homes, In His Name, Ten Times One Is Ten, The Man Without a Country, etc., etc.

Lord Tennyson's verse satisfactorily answers the question why Mr. Hale (it is true the name of the laureate's poem was Sir Galahad) should have the strength of ten: but the elasticity of time that seems granted him so that his days are longer and fuller of good works than the twenty-hour hours of the rest of mortals, is yet a problem unsolved. He has time and energy and good will to attend to everything and everybody. He gives his practical attention to each problem as it arises; and without meddling in the affairs of others, is full of available advice and help. After the publication, in Harper's Magazine, of Mr. Hale's story Back to Back, which outlined a plan of equitable management as regards the interests of capital and labor in the manufacture of woolens, the owners of three separate mills invited him to take charge of their property on the basis proposed in his story. Probably his parish and his publishers would have had more than a word to say against that departure. And Mr. Hale, who is fond of staking out new claims in Utopia, has built a village around its central woolen mill; and has recorded in his own graphic way the success of the management of the little community of Hampton. The operatives shared in the profits and helped bear the losses of the mill, on a percentage previously agreed upon. Meanwhile the social interests of the village were not neglected; and the prosperity of Hampton is described with such verisimilitude of detail that nothing seems easier than that Capital and Labor should clasp hands. Whether the plan would work in actual life as well as on paper, is not to be said with certainty. But surely Professor Everett, whose praise of imagination was referred to in these columns, would encourage Mr. Hale to believe that his generous imagination indicates the future path of reality, even though it cannot make the way wholly smooth and unobstructed. (Boston: J, Stilman Smith & Co.)

Romances, Lyrics and Sonnets from the Poetic Works of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Messrs. Houghton and Mifflin publish this exquisite little volume in white and gold and sage-green binding; as the title indicates, it contains favorite poems from the works of Mrs. Browning, and the name of the publishing house is of itself assurance that the selections are made with fine taste and judgment. A collection of Idyls and Romances from the poems of Robert Browning is published in uniform style. (Portand: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

Books and Men, is the somewhat comprehensive title of a very neatly bound volume of rather clever essays by Miss Agnes Repplier. They give evidence of much study and acquaintance with literature—perhaps as yet the essayist is at the stage of culture that likes to talk about writers and books by name. When she trusts to her own bright observation of things, Miss Repplier is at her best; for example, in the witty and sensible defence of Miss Edgeworth's "dear little Rosamond," against the self-conscious and conceited young heroes and heroines of a certain class of juvenile books. When it is a question of the finest literary sensitiveness, Miss Repplier is hardly ready to criticise. For a time, she would better take on trust that when Matthew Arnold set apart certain lines of Shakspeare as purely Greek and others as purely Celtic, he knew very well why. In the examples quoted, the Greek and the Celtic qualities are very distinct, easier perhaps to perceive than to define for another's perception, but unmistakeable in their relative traits of the classic and the romantic. Meanwhile Miss Repplier's essays offer much that is clever, agreeable and interesting, with promise of still better when she has assimilated with sentiment and experience her very respectable acquirements from books. (Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; Portland: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

The Guardians is the title of a new novel by the authors of that original and dramatic story, A Question of Identity. The novel reader will find that the recent story fulfils expectations founded upon its predecessor; without an elaborate plot, it has enough movement and character to hold interest to the end. It has life and picturesqueness, and some very clever portraits of varied types. (Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; Portland: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

The McVeys, by Joseph Kirkland, is in the line of his remarkable sketch of Zury; and, indeed, it carries onward the story of some of the characters that figured in the former story. The scene is laid in Illinois, in the days of its early settlement, when the Pacific Railroad was crossing the State, Abraham Lincoln was pleading at its courthouses, and life presented the strong contrasts of pioneer society. It is a wholesome, unconventional, manly book that will occupy a place of its own in American literature. (Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

Molly Bishop's Family. By Catherine Owen. This helpful and cheerful little volume is at heart a treatise on the care of babies, on home-keeping and house-keeping but its bibs and cradles and recipes for choice cookery are told of in the form of an interesting story of the life of as sensible and sweet a woman as one need ask to find in or outside a book. It is true that at times Mrs. Owen leaves a situation almost unexploited as regards its sentiment or its pathos, while her teaspoonful and her ounces are given their entire capacity and weight. As an idealized manual of housewifery, however, Molly Bishop's Family is wholly to be praised for good intent and good execution.

Another little volume, written for the aid of puzzled mistresses of the house, is Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick's Housekeeping Made Easy. The daughter of Marion Harland has an inherited right to be heard on domestic matters, and Mrs. Herrick, fresh from the myriad bothers that beset the housekeeper, can sympathize with the grievances that probably appear small and needless to the experienced ruler of domestic things. The contents of the volume originally appeared in Harper's Bazar, and treat of a variety of topics in a manner as interesting as helpful to the novice in the art of home-making. The gentle and womanly dedication of the book to her husband "whose faith in her was her incentive and whose appreciatiou is her constant stimulus," is a page which wives and husbands equally will do well to read. (New York: Harper & Brothers; Portland: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

Lajla, a Tale of Finmark, translated from the Norwegian of Prof. J. A. Friis by Ingerid Markhus, is a distinct and lovely addition to the knowledge of foreign countries and peoples that is to be gained from modern novels. The little heroine first appears to the reader, lashed into her cradle sled, packed warmly with moss, and drawn by reindeer. Northern lights, snowy plains and wolf-haunted forests, the simple life and curious customs of the Finnish people, make up a picture unique as to landscape and figures. The style is charming in its frank simplicity and takes the reader into the heart of an honest and primitive society that he will always remember with affection. Lajla is as refreshing as a cruise in a yacht along the shores of Norway and Finland; in it one breathes an air wholly untainted by artificiality. (New York and London: G. P. Putnam's Sons; Portland: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

Mexico, Picturesque, Political, Progressive, is the title of a joint work by Mrs. Mary E. Blake and Miss Margaret F. Sullivan. Of these chapters, already published in the form of letters to the Boston Journal and Catholic World (New York) Mrs. Blake contributes the picturesque and descriptive portion, while Miss Sullivan records the political and civic progress of Mexico The latter portion is of much value; but the general reader will linger with enjoyment on the brilliant, graphic and sympathetic descriptions of the scenery and life of Mexico. Its literary development will surprise many readers. One secret of the pervading charm of the book is that its authors are evidently model travellers, ready to enjoy everything—which is a virtue; and able to impart the cause and manner of their enjoyment—which is an art. (Boston: Lee & Shepard; Portland: Loring, Short & Harmon.)

In Castle and Cabin, or Talks in Ireland in 1887. By George Pellew, A. M. LL B. of of the Suffolk Bar. During a tour of four months in Ireland, Mr. Pellew conversed with persons of every class of society in order to hear the various opinions and experiences that might help to make more clear for American readers the problem of Irish Home Rule. He draws few conclusions, wisely allowing the large and manysided mass of collected evidence to speak for itself; although in the final chapter he recommends certain measures, the change of the systems of juries, incorporations, and the promotion of works of public improvement, by means of railway loans, purchase of boats and nets, and the spread of instruction and schools. Mr. Pellew has worked hard to present a wholly impartial and representative report of the state of public feeling in Ireland, and the conditions of its government.

WE WOULD INFORM HOLDERS OF

PORTLAND 6s

Maturing Nov. 1, 1888,

that we are now prepared to furnish long City of Portland 6 per cent bonds in their place (while the limited supply which we have on hand lasts) or we will take them now in exchange for other securities which we are offering and which will yield a better net rate of interest. We would also remind holders of which have now only ONE YEAR more to run to the importance of availing themselves of the premium which can now be realized upon them, as a few months hence they will command no premium at all. We think it is also important to convert the

State of Maine 6s, due 1889,

United States 4 1-2 Per Cent Bonds,

which now have less than THREE YEARS to run, in order to obtain the present high premium which must gradually and surely become less as they approach maturity. We are offering some excellent securities which we can recommend to holders of above bonds, or in exchange for any other securities soon to mature, and we shall be happy to communicate or confer with them regarding such exchange.

SWAN & BARRETT,

TO THE HOLDERS OF

United States 4 1-2 Per Cent Bonds,

DUE 1891.

We beg to call your attention to the fact that the above mentioned United States Bonds at the present price yield only

Two and One-quarter Per Cent

(2 1-4) interest, and that as they approach maturity the price will decline until the whole premium will be wiped out.

We therefore advise the holders of these Bonds to sell or exchange them for other securities. We have on hand a desirable list of City, County, Railroad and Water Bonds, suitable for Trust Funds, and would be pleased to have the holders of the above mentioned Bonds communicate with us.

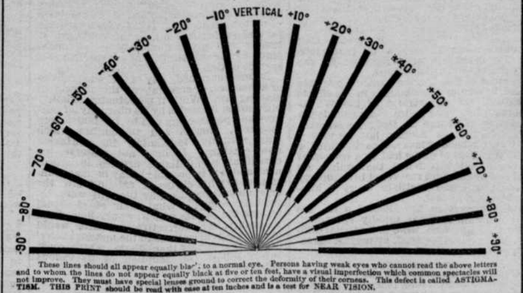
Spectacles and Eye Glasses!



These lines should all appear equally bla'; to a normal eye. Persons having weak eyes who cannot read the above letters and to whom the lines do not appear equally black at five or ten feet, have a visual imperfection which common spectacles will not improve. They must have special lenses ground to correct the deformity of their cornea. This defect is called ASTIGMATISM. THIS PRINT should be read with ease at ten inches and is a test for NEAR VISION.

We have a large assortment and are prepared to adjust the same upon scientific principles. We use NACHET'S TRIAL CASE, together with the OPTHALMOSCOPIC TEST LENSE, combining the best methods known for detecting all optical defects of the eye and determining the lenses needed for their correction.

WIT AND WISDOM.

"I see that Smith is still in your house. Is he a tenant-at-will?"

"Not at all. He's a tenant-at-won't. I've been trying to get him out for the last six months, but he doesn't go."

SCIENCE in the Household teaches us that poor and adulterated Flavoring Extracts, while costing a trifle less, increase the doctor's bill, and make nature's greatest gift, a healthy stomach, a curse. Burnett's Extracts are pure.

Vantynne—Can't you pay me that $50 you borrowed Saturday?

Brown—Oh, thunder! Don't dun a fellow in company.

Vantynne—What matter, when you owe them all?

Brown—Yes, but thank heaven they are not all like you! They don't expect to get it.

Will positively cure sick headache and prevent its return, Carter's Little Liver Pills. This is not talk, but truth. One pill a dose. See advertisement. Small pill. Small dose. Small price.

"Speaking about clubs," remarked Mr. Cumso, who had just been elected a member of the Manhattan, "they are the sign posts of civilization. You never hear of savages forming themselves into societies for mutual improvement and pleasure."

"O, nonsense!" replied Mrs. Cumso. "I've heard of Indian clubs ever since I could walk."

Salvation Oil cures toothache, sprains, strains, bruises, chilblains, and all flesh wounds. 25 cts.

You need not neglect your business when troubled with a cough or cold, if you only use the reliable remedy by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup at once.

"It's terrible!" exclaimed an old lady, upon reading of a premature burial; "and I know that when I die I'll be worrying all the time I'm in the grave for fear I have been buried alive."

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailment caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

New Yorker—I suppose a horse can be kept very cheaply in Texas?

Texan—That all depends on circumstances, stranger. A neighbor of mine had to pay pretty high for keepin' a hoss."

"How so?"

"It cost him his life, and he didn't keep the hoss long, either. It was my hoss he was tryin' o keep."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

"No, Bella," said Miss Afterthought's male parent, with a decisive bang of the piano lid, "you shall not sing the Lullaby or any other song from 'Erminie' this evening."

"Oh, do let her!" pleaded Mrs. Afterthought. "I do so love a popular malady."

I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for over ten years; had it very bad, could hardly breathe. Some nights I could not sleep—had to walk the floor. I purchased Ely's Cream Balm and am using it freely; it is working a cure surely. I have advised several friends to use it, and with happy results in every case. It is the one medicine above all others made to cure catarrh, and it is worth its weight in gold. I thank God I have found a remedy I can use with safety and that does all that is claimed for it. It is curing my deafness.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

A Marked Improvement.

Old Lady (to village postmistress)—Hev ye got anythin' fer me, Miss Bullard?

Postmistress—Here's a postal from your daughter 'Mandy. How she do improve in spellin' sence she's be'n goin' to that boardin'-school.

EVERY NIGHT I SCRATCHED

Until the skin was raw. Body covered with scales like spots of mortar. Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary change your CUTICURA REMEDIES performed on me. About the 1st of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, and thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to form like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came off in layers, accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night the scales, being formed meanwhile, were scratched off again. Vain did I consult all the doctors in the country, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and purchased them from my druggist, and obtained almost immediate relief. I began to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, and have been healthy cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began taking the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in four or five weeks was entirely cured. My disease was eczema and psoriasis. I recommended the CUTICURA REMEDIES to all in my vicinity, and I know of a great many who have taken them, and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babies with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express in words the thanks to you for what the CUTICURA REMEDIES have been to me. My body was covered with scales, and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as nice and clear as a baby's.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

All who are in want of an overcoat would do well to call at McNeill's. He has the finest lot in the city from which to select.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's Winter Trips to California.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's series of nine winter tours to California provide comforts and luxuries otherwise unattainable. Their parties move across the country in magnificent vestibuled trains, with dining-cars and every other first-class appointment. The train is literally a "hotel on wheels." Independent tickets are sold permitting the holder to exercise his own preferences as to place and time of sojourn and the date of his return. He can travel eastward by any of five different routes, and in any of seventeen different parties, or independently in any train, the return tickets being good until next July. The first and second parties leave Boston November 8 and December 6. Send to W. Raymond, 296 Washington street, opposite School street, Boston, for a descriptive circular. 1t

Young men desiring a nice suit or overcoat can save money and get perfect fitting garments by calling on McNeill, the Clothier.

She Was Cured by Drs. Smith and McMullen.

Little Mary, daughter of William Bruce, is seven years of age, and was taken last January with spasms. The spasms came on at first whenever she fell asleep. During the night she would be seized with violent convulsions. The arms and legs would straighten out and become stiff and rigid. Then they would contract and be drawn tight to the body. Her eyes were wide open during a spasm and turned upwards and outwards, presenting a most frightful appearance. As often as every hour during the night, or whenever she fell asleep, her poor little body was warped and twisted into all manner of shapes by these terrible convulsions. Her mouth was filled with saliva, which caused a constant drooling, that kept the clothing over her breast saturated from morning till night. After she had suffered in this manner for a period of six weeks she lost the use of her right arm. One week later her left arm and both legs became paralyzed and were powerless. She could neither move hand or foot and was as helpless as an infant. She lay as helpless as though she were dead. The most skillful physicians were summoned, but were powerless to even give her temporary relief. She remained in this most pitiable condition until the fifth day of August, when her father carried her to Drs. Smith and McMullen, the magnetic physicians, at the United States Hotel, who gave her a careful examination, and undertook to cure her. She received twenty magnetic treatments and was cured. She has had no sign of a spasm for some time and has perfect control of all of her limbs. In short, she is well and happy. Her parents are delighted and grateful, too, for what the Doctors did for little Mary. Any person reading this statement who may think it is not true, are invited to call on Drs. Smith and McMullen, at the United States Hotel, and they will give the exact post-office address of William Bruce. The Doctors are regularly educated physicians and surgeons. If there is a doubt of it in any person's mind call on them and be convinced. They may be consulted free of charge at their parlors at the United States Hotel, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. daily. If you are sick go and see them. It will cost you nothing to go and talk it over with them. oct4dtf

In Brief, And To The Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Greene's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember:—No happiness without health. But Greene's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

PERSONAL.

Mayor Chapman will return from New York Saturday.

Rumor has it that President Hyde has written a set of articles on Bowdoin for the Atlantic Monthly, which will soon be published.

Judge Haskell, who has been holding court at Houlton, has his span with him, and drove overland from that place to Machias, where court opened this week.

A consolidation of the Athol, Mass., Electric Lighting and Power Company and of the Athol Gas Company was effected Thursday. F. A. Sawyer of Portland, was elected president and general manager.

At Thursday's session of the Americanist Congress in Berlin, Professor Morse of Salem, Mass., read a paper on "The Anthropology of the Ancient and Modern Pueblo Indians."

Mr. John W. Connellan, of Portland, has been appointed postal clerk on the Knox & Lincoln railroad, between Bath and Portland, in place of Mr. R. N. Marsh, removed.

Professor Albion W. Small of Colby University, will take charge of English and American Constitutional History in the historic department in Johns Hopkins University.

Hon. Herbert M. Heath of Augusta, was entertained by the York Club at its rooms in Biddeford last night and delivered an informal talk upon the political issues of the day.

Harvey L. Sawyer, formerly of Auburn, who was under bonds for embezzlement from the firm of M. A. Jewell & Co., of Portand, was recently killed by an accident in Philadelphia, being caught in the belting in a factory where he was employed.

James J. Wiggin, an old and esteemed citizen of Saco, died yesterday at the age of 75 years and 3 months. Mr. Wiggin for many years kept a livery stable in Saco. He leaves a wife, son and daughter. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Clifford W. Dyer, of the firm of Sawyer & Dyer, died of inflammation of the bowels yesterday at his home in Cape Elizabeth. He was a fine man. He leaves a widow and one child. He was a member of the order of Knights of Pythias.

Mr. O. A. Lewis, who has occupied the pulpit of the Central Congregational church in Eastport, for the past four months, closed his engagement there last Sunday and has returned to his studies at the Boston University. Mr. Lewis has filled the place very acceptably to the members of the church.

Capt. George Hearn, of the firm of George Hearn & Co., hardware dealers, 135 Congress street, died yesterday morning at his residence, 135 Congress street. Capt. Hearn was widely known among the shipowners of this city and at one time he owned the brig Eudorus. He was between 75 and 80 years of age.

Veterans' Gettysburg Excursion.

There was a meeting of the committee of the 17th Maine Regiment Association in County Treasurer Webb's office yesterday afternoon to discuss the matter of the Gettysburg excursion. Secretary Webb reported that ten additional names have been booked, making the number 150 that will go from this city and vicinity.

The 17th Maine Regiment Association has been presented with an elegant silk division flag by the honorary members, and the flag will be on exhibition today in the window of J. A. Merrill's store, Middle street.

The advance committee to make hotel arrangements and so forth for the excursionists left for Gettysburg yesterday.

At the dedication of the 17th Maine monument, in the Wheatfield at Gettysburg, on the morning of October 10th, the exercises will be opened by prayer by the chaplain, after which Colonel Moore, president of the association, will make introductory remarks. The oration will be delivered by Col. Wm. Hobson, of Boston. Col. George W. Verrill will read a poem. There will be singing by a quartette from Gettysburg. It is not intended to have the exercises last over an hour.

THE MEAGHER GUARDS.

The Excursion to the Island and the Departure for Home.

The Meagher Guards, and their hosts, the Montgomery Guards, fell into line yesterday morning on Union street, about 11 o'clock, and headed by Reeves's Band marched to Custom House wharf, where they took the Forest Queen for Long Island. The stall down was enlivened with fine music by the band, and the military and their guests enjoyed the sweet strains, together with the fine sceneryof Casco Bay.

At Long Island, Fletcher & Littlefield furnished a splendid bake, and they have reason to be proud of it, for they had good critics in the Rhode Islanders who knew as much about clams, if not more, than Portlanders. Reeves's Band played for two solid hours to the delectation of their listeners. The Meaghers' gave their skirmish drill in fine shape, having taken blank cartridges to the island with them for the purpose. There were games of base ball, target shooting and a general good time.

At 4.15 p. m. the two commands reached the city, and marched up Pearl and Middle streets to the Falmouth, where they left their guests, and thence to the United States Hotel, where the Meagher Guards were quartered. Then the Montgomerys returned to their armory.

The honoraries of the Meagher Guards assembled in the parlor of the Falmouth Hotel and subscribed a handsome purse for the purchase of an elegant gold watch, which will be presented to Capt. Hackett of the Guards, tonight, at the armory in Providence.

After supper the line was reformed, and the companies marched to the Boston boat, where the Guards left for home amidst the cheers of the Montgomerys and music by the band. A brilliant display of colored fire was made along the route to the boat.

City Editor Day, of the Providence Journal, telegraphs that paper:

"The Montgomerys, active and veteran, exerted themselves untiringly in the reception and entertainment of their guests. The weather was all that could be desired," and speaking of the parade, he says: "The general appearance of the column was admirable and soldierly, the Portland companies arrayed in their full dress uniforms, and marching with steadiness and uniform alignment, while music by the American Band, as usual, was greatly admired; and the Meaghers commanded critical inspection by their dignified and martial bearing, and the precision and accuracy of their marching evolutions and performance of the manual in motion. They were generously applauded at frequent intervals, and sustained their high reputation as a well-disciplined and well-drilled organization."

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE MERRY WAR.

Bennett & Moulton's company appeared last evening to the usual crowded audience in Strauss's opera of "The Merry War," which, like all Strauss's music, is particularly bright and catchy. The "Merry War" is a merry war indeed for no blood is shed throughout its stirring action. Misses Marie Greenwood and Irene Murphy took the two principal female parts in excellent fashion. Armand assumed the leading role with much spirit, and the other parts were well taken by Miss Russell, Mr. Molten and the minor characters. Orchestra and chorus were both good.

This afternoon the "Bohemian Girl" will be given and tonight "Robert Macaire" will close the season.

THE STOCKBRIDGE COURSE.

Even now good seats can be secured for the Stockbridge course of entertainments by application at the music store. Yesterday fine photographs of the Bostonians were placed in the windows. This morning, at 7 o'clock, numbers will be given out for the sale at 9 o'clock of tickets for the two extra operas "Don Pasquale" and "Bohemian Girl," which will be given Saturday, Oct. 20th, out of the course.

RENTZ-SANTLEY.

Tuesday evening the Rentz-Santley specialty and burlesque company will appear at Portland Theatre in the latest London sensation "Konrad Korsair." The sale of seats will begin today. The company introduces a host of pretty women, witty comedians, and elegant costumes and stage effects.

THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION COURSE.

The opening entertainment of the Young Men's Christian Association course by the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club next Friday evening is one of the great attractions of the season. The artists on this combination are world renowned, and soloists of the highest talent. Mr. Willis Nowell, leader and soloist has gained great distinction in Europe and America, winning the gold medal and crown of the Academy of Arts and Sciences of Italy. Mr. Nowell is the fortunate owner of two of the finest violins in America, both of the famous Stradivai make, and known as "Nero" and "Elijah" the former made in 1715, having been owned at one time by the Czar of Russia. Herr Palm, Herr Stoelzer and Mons. Adolph Burose have held engagements with the leading orchestras of this and other countries. Herr Philip Roth is an eminent violincello virtuoso and composer, and without question one of the greatest violincellists living. Miss Elsa Clark Cushing is one of the few American singers, who is especially endowed with all the qualities that constitute a thorough musician.

This entertainment alone ought to insure the sale of every reserved seat and establish the success of the entire course.

STETSON'S OPERA COMPANY.

"Ruddygore" and "The Mikado" will be sung by the Stetson Opera Company at the Portland Theatre on Friday and Saturday evenings, Oct. 12th and 13th with a Saturday matinee. Thy Misses Helen Lamont, Alice Carle, Mabella Baker, and Messrs. Brocolini, Gilbert, Burnham and Fay, all Portland favorites, are in the cast. The chorus of over thirty voices is composed of the best talent obtainable. The company carry a full orchestra of twelve pieces, and all the scenery and costumes for the proper production of the two operas. "Ruddygore" will be given on Friday evening and Saturday matinee, the engagement closing with "The Mikado" on Saturday night.

NOTES.

The demand for Annie Pixley's photographs has been exceedingly large the past few years. Last week a Broadway dealer purchased 17,000 from Mora and will bull the market. He expects to sell them all within a month or two. She will appear at Portland Theatre Oct. 19th and 20th.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Mr. F. A. Smith, of the firm of F. A. Smith & Co., was very agreeably surprised yesterday, on his return from Boston, to find that some of his business friends in New York, Boston and Portland had placed in his private office, as a memento of the thirtieth anniversary of his business life in Portland, an elegant roll-top desk, office chair, and large double ink-well, surmounted by a piece of bronze statuary, unique paper weight and other pieces of desk furniture. Neatly attached to the inside of the desk is a beautifully engraved silver plate, bearing the date, Oct. 1st, 1888, and the names of the donors. Within the desk was found the following letter:

F. A. Smith, Esq.:

Dear Sir:—We present this desk and equipments as a token of regard. You have, for many years, been a representative business man on Commercial street, with whom it has been our pleasure to form most agreeable relations by our intercourse on matters of business. Your genial nature and kindly attention, during our acquaintance, to all the interests presented for your consideration, cause us, a few among your many friends, to pause for the moment, and putting aside all thought of mercantile affairs, to remind you that this slight remembrance, far more than its intrinsic value shows, represents what money cannot purchase, our friendship and esteem. Please, therefore, accept the gift as an addition to your private office, and as you use it may many pleasant thoughts mingle with your business cares, taking you back over a series of successful years, and mirroring to you a host of friends, among whom we are glad to claim a place.

With best wishes for your future, we remain.

Very truly,

YOUR FRIENDS.

RAILWAY MATTERS.

MAINE CENTRAL TRAINS.

The winter arrangement of trains on the Maine Central Railroad will take effect about the 21st of October. There are no special changes from last winter in view unless it is concluded to continue running passenger train No 3 from Portland to Bangor over the back route, returning in the afternoon, as the Flying Yankee. But this has not been decided on as yet and the continuation of this train will largely depend on whether the amount of business will warrant it. On the Portland and Ogdensburg the winter train service is to be increased, two through trains being run to Fabyan's and one to Bartlett daily. In other seasons there has been but one through train and one to Bartlett.

BOSTON & MAINE.

The gross earnings of the entire Boston and Maine system for the first ten months of the fiscal year have increased over $700,000 compared with the same period of 1886-7.

BANGOR'S ROAD.

A dispatch from Bangor says: "The matter of the proposed purchase of the Bangor and Piscataquis railroad by Hon. Frank Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., is creating a great deal of interest among the business men in that city and others who are interested in the road. The road at present is principally owned and controlled by the city, and the latest reports show it to be in better condition and earning more money than at any previous time. On account of its being the connecting line between the Canadian Pacific at Greenville and the Maine Central at Oldtown, at a few miles above this city, the Maine Central in whose interest Mr. Jones is understood to be acting, are willing to add it to their system. Prominent citizens believe, however, that because of its connection with the Canadian Pacific the business of the road will be increased and that the offers thus far made for the road are much less than its real value. The merchants are also interested in making Bangor a billing point. The Board of Aldermen are divided on the matter, and at a meeting yesterday afternoon a motion was carried to rescind the action of the board on Tuesday evening to submit the question of accepting the proposition of Mr. Jones to a vote of the people. It was moved to hold a public meeting one week from next Tuesday night, to enable prominent citizens to express their views on the matter. The question of sale will probably be decided by a vote of the Board of Aldermen and the Common Council.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The Boys' Branch of the Y. M. C. A. will hold their first meeting this Saturday afternoon, in the Association hall, at 2 o'clock. A short entertainment and interesting talks will be given at that time.

The second weekly meeting of the Boys Branch will be held Saturday, Oct. 13th, at 2 p. m.

The Bailey Praying Band

are holding a series of meetings in the Free Church, at Morrill's Corner. Services for Sunday will be as follows: General services at 10.30 a. m., and 2.30 and 6.30 p. m. Mr. C. M. Bailey will be present this evening and will also be present during every service on Sunday and will conduct the meeting. The Bailey Praying Band have just closed a very successful series of meetings at the Friends' Church at Pride's Bridge and came to the Free Church at Morrill's by the very urgent request of many friends. Very interesting meetings are expected on Sunday.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DEERING.

The Pleasant street whist club met at Mr. Cyrus B. Varney's residence at Morrill's corner Thursday evening, and enjoyed a very pleasant time. Four tables were occupied and the game was very interesting.

CAPE ELIZABETH.

Mr. Albert Stephenson, who has owned considerable valuable property on the Shore Road, has sold his last piece, the Walden estate, to Geo. S. Hunt, Esq., who, it is said will build two fine cottages on the same next season.

Mr. Albus Angell who has been quite dangerously sick, has recovered sufficiently to resume his duties as keeper of Breakwater Light.

Mr. Levi O. Verrill, of Cape Elizabeth, has been appointed temporarily to a position of weigher in the Portland post office.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

is carefully prepared from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsissewa, Juniper Berries, and other well known and valuable vegetable remedies, by a peculiar combination, proportion and process, giving to Hood's Sarsaparilla curative power not possessed by other medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best blood purifier. It cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, all Humors, Dyspepsia Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, General Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver complaints, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, strengthens the nerves, and builds up the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has met peculiar and unparalleled success at home. Such is its popularity in Lowell, Mass., where it is made, that whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time, and Lowell druggists sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other sarsaparillas or blood purifiers. It is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.
