DINSMORE'S

Do you know all liquid sarsaparillas and blood purifiers are unsafe to use? They contain a large proportion of alcohol which not only neutralizes to a considerable extent their medicinal qualities but is liable to create and develop an appetite for alcoholic stimulants. To the young they are particularly dangerous, and parents cannot be too careful to avoid them. The danger of arousing any latent tendency to alcoholism cannot be overestimated. G. E. Lane, M. D., a prominent Boston Physician, says: "In my opinion liquid sarsaparilla and other blood purifiers are unsafe to be given to children as they contain a large percentage of alcohol. Cases have come under my observation in which there is no doubt the appetite for stimulants was acquired by the use of these goods in childhood." Therefore it gives me great pleasure to use and recommend a strictly non-alcoholic sarsaparilla, Dinsmores Sarsaparilla Wafers. I regard them as the best and most convenient blood purifier in use."

G. W. Galvin, M. D., United States Hotel Boston, says: "I have always disapproved of liquid sarsaparillas, and consider them especially injurious to invalids and children because of their large percentage of alcohol."

Dinsmore's Sarsaparilla Wafers are compounded of pure Spanish Sarsaparilla combined with the best vegetable remedies known to medical science for purifying the blood, effectually eliminating disease and strengthening and building up the tired and languid system. Prepared only by DINSMORE BROS. & CO., Boston, Mass. Price 50 cents per box. Sold by Druggists, or mailed on receipt of price.

At the Opera House in the evening a large audience gathered to listen to the exercises, which consisted of music by the male quartette, prayer, reading of the roll of honor, upon which there are upwards of 90 names, and an interesting and able oration by Comrade Rev. J. H. Larrabee.

The graves of deceased soldiers in Dresden were decorated with appropriate exercises in the forenoon, by a detachment from the Richmond Post, at which the Dresden comrades are members.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

A Richmond Man Receives Severe Internal Injuries.

[Special to the Press.]

RICHMOND, May 31.—As the early train from Augusta was passing the Lincoln street crossing about half a mile above the village this morning at 7 o'clock, a Frenchman named Peter Folsom attempted to cross with his horse and cart. The train was running about twenty miles an hour and whistled as usual. There is a sharp curve at this point and Mr. Folsom, when he saw the cars hesitated for a moment and then made an effort to cross notwithstanding that Mr. S. Bates warned him of his danger by shouting. He was too late the locomotive struck the cart, desmantled it, throwing the body and hind wheels thirty feet to the right of the track, while the horse escaped. Folsom was hurled about a rod to one side and received severe internal injuries He was removed to his home and a physician summoned. Folsom is nearing forty years of age and a laborer.

DISCUSSING PROSPECTIVE NOMINEES.

Prominent Men Visit New York and Boom Their Favorites.

Maine Congressmen on the Effect of Mr. Blaine's Withdrawal.

What the World Man Says About the Letter.

NEW YORK, May 31.—For two days New York has been full of politicians and public men who are interested in the various candidacies for the Presidential nomination in the Republican party. They have been here chiefly to gain a knowledge of the situation in this State, and to present to the delegates in the East the advantageous points of their favorite sons. In the corridors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night three men were seen engaged in earnest conversation, each of whom is in New York for the purpose of nursing a Presidential boom for a favorite son. They were J. C. Clarkson of Iowa, Attorney General L. T. Michener of Indiana, and John P. Sanborn of Michigan, and are the intimate friends respectively of Senator Allison, General Harrison and General Alger. The largest man of the group was General Michener, who is a six footer, broad shouldered and generously proportioned. He is one of the rising men of his State and credited with being the ablest politician of the day among the younger generation there. Mr. Sanborn, Michigan, is low in stature but stoutly built. He was collector at Port Huron under General Grant. Mr. Clarkson, who is the editor of the "Iowa State Register," is of medium height, with plump figure and well rounded face. It was remarked as they stood there that if these three men, with the forces behind them, could agree upon a Presidential candidate they might change the whole complection of things in the Republican National Convention. Their hearts are so set upon their individual preferences, however, that it is only their heads that are likely to come together in conference.

Not far away another group was made up of Joseph H. Manley of Maine, Congressman C. A. Boutelle of Maine, and S. B. Elkins. Mr. Manley, who has been over to Washington, said that his principle mission had been to secure speakers for the Maine campaign, which closes in September. Among others who will go into the State to make speeches are Senators Spooner of Wisconsin, and Manderson of Nebraska, and ex-Congressman McKinley of Ohio. Upon the matter of Presidential politics all three of the gentlemen in this group were as close mouthed as the sphinx.

George M. Pullman of Chicago, who is at the Victoria, and ex-Congressman John H. Calkins, who is at the Gilsey House, are said to be furthering the nomination of Judge Gresham. Mr. Calkins was the Republican candidate for governor in his State, and was defeated by Governor Gray. He is not a delegate to Chicago. Another candidacy which is receiving some attention in New York is that of Governor Hoyt of Pennsylvania. His name is to be presented to the National Convention by Senator Spooner, who is here in connection with the custom house investigation, and has taken special care to speak of the merits of his favorite. The Hoyt men have been a number of other prominent politicians in New York, including Senator Hawley and Samuel Fessenden of Connecticut, Chris Magee of Pennsylvania, Postmaster Leory Smith of Philadelphia, ex-Collector Rodney W. Daniels of Buffalo, and ex-Senator Warner Miller. They have all been discussing the situation, and endeavoring to come to some conclusion as to what ought to be done or what will be done at Chicago.

Mr. Manley's Opinion.

Mr. Joseph H. Manley said that he was not much surprised at Mr. Blaine's letter to Mr. Reid. It simply supplemented his Florence letter. Mr. Manley did not know what course the Maine delegation would take under the circumstances. There had been no conference among them since they were elected by their respective conventions. Now they would probably meet and have a full consultation as to what was the wisest course to pursue. He thought it was safe to say, however, that the Maine delegates would be animated by a desire to act in the most cordial harmony with the body of the friends of Blaine's friends. He thought great deference would be paid to the opinions of the representatives of the doubtful States.

News From Paris.

The New York World's European correspondent cables as follows from London: "Mr. Blaine did not realize when he first arrived in Paris that there was any need for his making any further declaration than the one written by him at Florence. For nearly two months he had seen none of the American newspapers except odd numbers found at Italian hotels. He had been out of the range of letters and telegrams and took it for granted that his first letter was accepted in the same good faith that it was written. When he reached Paris he found a great many letters and telegrams relating to the political situation in America from his political friends. Many of them urged him merely to remain silent in the election. He was told that his nomination was certain unless he should make a still further declaration upon the subject. Mr. Blaine was inclined to be incredulous, but he soon became convinced that the situation was such as he described. And so he wrote a second letter, this time to a political friend. I have no authority to quote Mr. Blaine in relation to this subject, but I am sure that he will violate no confidence in giving some of the reasons, which are well known to all of his friends who have had any opportunity for talking with him during the year.

"He has been a candidate before the national convention upon three separate occasions, and he now feels that he should, in justice to his Republican associates, remain outside of the list of candidates this year and give some of the other party leaders a chance. This withdrawal was also in the interest of harmony. Republicans who became mugwumps under fear of Blaine were to be given an opportunity to come back into the party and make good their declaration that Blaine was not the strongest candidate of his party. More than this, Mr. Blaine is thoroughly indisposed to go through the extreme burden and fatigue of another canvass. He did not care to go through such a struggle as he has endured in the past, with even a Presidency at the end of it. So, when he penned his letter in Florence, he merely put into official form his determination when he left for Europe. After this letter was written it was not possible for him to take any backward step. Men who had become candidates after his letter could properly have charged him with acting in bad faith. To have changed after that would have given all his enemies unusual opportunities to charge that his letter was a trick unworthy of a gentleman of honor. He was then confronted with the news of the tide sweeping in his direction in spite of his Florence letter.

"Mr. Blaine is very much pleased with the great demonstration in his favor, but, while he has felt the full force of the compliment paid him by the many delegates elected for him, and the natural inclination of an old political combatant upon the eve of the battle to go in again, he has never for one moment changed his mind concerning his course. I feel equally confident that there could be no situation in America which could influence Mr. Blaine to change the decision so absolutely declared in his second letter.

"Mr. Blaine is in good health and spirits. His recent cold in Paris kept him in his rooms only a day or so, and he was out riding again yesterday. It can be further said concerning Mr. Blaine that he does not intend to use his influence in the interest of any particular candidate. Concerning every Republican candidate he speaks in terms of cordial praise. He will return to America in time for the early campaign in Maine, and will by speech and personal effort try to secure the election of the Chicago nominee."

Maine's Congressional Delegation.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The members of the Maine Congressional delegation, while accepting Mr. Blaine's Paris letter as ending all hopes of his candidacy, have not yet settled upon a second choice.

Senator Frye, who left for Maine this morning, said that the letter places Mr. Blaine entirely out of the presidential race, and his friends must now cast their futunes with some other candidate. While not committing himself to any candidate, Senator Frye is of the opinion that Gresham is one of the strongest men named, and his nomination would be satisfactory to him.

Senator Hale, who has returned from New York, says that the Gresham sentiment seems to be growing there. He has ma done second choice, however, believing all the time that Mr. Blaine would yield to the wishes of his friends and accept the nomination. In his opinion none of the candidates mentioned up to the present time possess the element of strength that Blaine would have had, but that Sherman, Allison, Gresham or Depew the Republican party is reasonably certain of success.

Mr. Reed declines to express any opinion, but says Blaine is no longer a possibility or a factor in the race.

Mr. Dingley said: "The letter seems to be a decisive declaration that Mr. Blaine cannot accept a nomination even if tendered by the Republican National Convention, because they believe him to be their strongest candidate. If this be the case, I regret it exceedingly, because I think Blaine is stronger than any other man, especially in the doubtful States. The delegates favorable to Blaine will naturally takes diverse views of the best candidate to nominate. I am sure Mr. Blaine will not indicate any preference. He wants that candidate that is the strongest."

"Will Mr. Blaine participate in the campaign?"

"Undoubtedly. Mr. Blaine always labors as earnestly for the success of the party when he is not a candidate as when he is. He is a Republican from principle, and never sulks in his tent. He expects to be at home in the course of six or eight weeks, and he will assuredly be ready to labor to the extent of his strength for the success of the nominees."

"Do you think the Republicans will elect their nominees?"

"I believe they will, but I should feel much more certain of it with Blaine as the nominee than with any one else. Yet, if the Chicago convention shall avoid everything tending to division and cordially unite on either of half a dozen Republican statesmen whom I might name, I believe we shall succeed. The contest will be close and severe, but I feel confident that, if all our advantages are utilized and a square issue made between the Mills free trade scheme and protection, we shall win. The delegates who go to Chicago have a very responsible duty to discharge."

Mr. Milliken said: "I do not see how Mr. Blaine's letter changes the situation. His Florence letter stated what he declared to his friends before his departure for Europe, namely, that he could not consent to enter into a contest for the nomination. His last letter simply confirms and gives one reason for his decision which did not then exist, and that is, that his friends having entered the list because of his Florence letter, he deems it improper that he should now appear as a candidate against them. This is a chivalric view of the case, just such as Mr. Blaine's most intimate friends were sure he would take, but there is nothing in his letter which precludes his accepting the nomination if tendered to him, with substantial unanimity. Indeed, to say he would not obey the behest of his party, if it should call upon him to lead it, would show an indifference to its success, which so good a Republican as Mr. Blaine could not entertain."

Mr. Boutelle expressed his views as follows: "After a careful consideration of Mr. Blaine's Paris letter, and a full recognition of the writer's purpose to eliminate himself from the presidential canvass, I know that that it has practically altered the situation as it has existed since the publication of the Florence letter of Jan. 26th. The letter expressed even more distinctly than the second one, Mr. Blaine's personal desire to be entirely withdrawn from the field of choice. So far as Mr. Blaine could influence his control of the matter of the nomination of candidacy, he did it by that letter. The continued popular demonstration and the election of delegates in his favor in spite of that expression of his personal wishes, and the movement, unmistakably indicates the profound conviction among the mass of the party, that Mr. Blaine's candidacy would most surely promote the success of the party to power, and an uncontrollable feeling that the interests of the great organization are superior to the personal wishes or disinclination of any individual, however distinguished. The recent letter bears internal evidence of having been influenced by persistent representatives to Mr. Blaine, through the press and otherwise, that the friends of other candidates were regarding the continued popular movement in his favor, as in one sense an injustice to them, and a reflection upon the sincerity of his former letter. But however much honor this last letter may reflect upon Mr. Blaine's sensitive chivalry toward the other leaders of the Republican party, it does not change the fact that the great majority of the party believes that he can bring more strength to its standard than any other candidate, and there is nothing in the logic of the situation to cause a belief that this additional manifestation of his great leader's magnanimity can possibly lessen the enthusiastic desire to make him the standard bearer. Neither do I see any reason to anticipate that it will cause any substantial change in the attitude of the friends of Mr. Blaine who have been from the first, as they are now, ready to unite cordially in the support of any one of the tried and trusted leaders of the Republican party upon whom its choice and confidence can be concentrated."

Governor Marble's Views.

AUGUSTA, May 31.—Governor Marble said last night: "Having known Mr. Blaine long and well, his Paris letter is just what I have been expecting and been looking for. My choice for President is the man who will carry New York, and I believe the convention will nominate that man. This man is, in my judgment, Chauncey M. Depew, a natural leader, of irrepressible life, and immensely popular with his party. Above all, his personal popularity and his business position will give a vote in the great political State of New York which no other perhaps no other Republican candidate could command. He will be a hard, if not an impossible man to beat in New York.

HOAR MADE THE MOTION

To Consider the Fisheries Treaty With Open Doors.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The executive journal, covering everything connected with the fisheries treaty from the time it reached the Senate to be printed in the Record, shows that Senator Hoar made the motion, credited to Senator Sherman, which was adopted, that the consideration of the treaty be with open doors. Senators Sherman, Dawes and Teller voted in favor of the Riddleberger resolution after it had been adversely reported from the committee on foreign relations. The resolution was lost, 41 to 3.

Mr. Fuller's Confirmation.

The Senate committee on judiciary today further considered the nomination of Mr. Fuller to be Chief Justice, but did not reach a conclusion. There seemed to be no doubt that the committee would report favorably on the nomination. The delay is said to be due rather to fear that the committee will be accused of haste and want of thoroughness if it neglects to examine and weigh all that is laid before it. There are many special matters, which have been charged against Fuller's nomination. A Chicago man has been writing persistently, asking for delay to give him time to put certain things in shape for presentation to the committee and he has been accorded the time.

Notes.

Among the bills reported from the committee in the Senate was the House bill for the payment of the passage of the Marquis of Lafayette and his family from France to the United States in 1824. The report was accepted.

The estimated reduction of the public debt during May amounts to four million dollars. Twelve million dollars were paid for pensions.

Mr. O'Neill, of Missouri, presented the conference report on his bill to create a Department of Labor, in the House to-day, and the bill passed in substantially the shape as it came from the Senate. The House then proceeded to consider the report of the committee of the whole on the legislative appropriation bill, increasing the clerical force of the civil service commission, which was adopted.

The Senate yesterday passed the bill to establish a Department of Labor, and the bill to quiet the titles of settlers on Desmoines river lands in Dakota.

The Methodists.

NEW YORK, May 31.—When the Methodist Conference was called to order today, there were not more than 15 or 20 delegates in their places. A large number of them have gone home. Dr. Kynett moved that the Bishops be requested to appoint any commissions not already provided for, which was so ordered. A report, providing for the union of the Methodists of all nationalities was adopted. The report of the committee on the Dalles Mission case was adopted.

During the afternoon session it was developed that a quorum was not present. An attempt to have a call of the house made led to some excitement, during which Dr. Bell, who tried to secure an adjournment was greeted with cries of "Go hire a hall" and similar remarks.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

UNDER THE FIVE MINUTES RULE.

Five Lines of the Tariff Bill Receive Consideration.

Maine Congressmen Make an Unavailing Effort

To Repulse the Democratic Assault on the Lumber Industry.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The House today resumed consideration of the Mills bill in committee of the whole.

Chairman Springer announced that the bill would be considered for amendments under the five minutes rule.

Mr. Adams of Illinois offered an amendment to make the bill take effect Jan. 2d next, instead of July 1st. Mr. Adams said the House should have a regard for the immense vested interests of the country, and afford them an opportunity to prepare for the changes proposed. He meant the amendment to apply only to the first section, or the free list.

Mr. Breckenridge of Arkansas maintained that ample notice had been served on all persons interested, and the greatest consideration had been shown the interests affected.

Mr. Adams attacked the committee for placing brick on the free list, and pointed out the probable effects of Canadian competition on the Chicago brickmakers. Without the change of date proposed by him, the industry would be seriously interfered with in the middle of the season.

Mr. Kelley spoke for the Southern lumber interest, as he said no one on the Democratic side cared to do it. He pleaded with the House not to impoverish the poor people of Tennessee and South Carolina, and decrease the value of their splendid timber lands by making lumber free.

Mr. Weaver of Iowa protested against any action that would fasten a lumber trust upon the farmer and rob the consumer.

Mr. Reed of Maine said the gentleman from the prairie State (Mr. Weaver) had gotten himself into a state of mind over trusts. Figures would show there was no possibility of decreasing the cost of Canada lumber by making it free. The tariff would go into the pockets of the Canadian lumbermen, and the only effect of the reduction would be to injure the American industry, without lowering prices. He asked why planed lumber should be protected and not sawed lumber.

Mr. Weaver declared that the lumber trust was the most unconscionable trust ever in existence; that it absolutely limited production, and controlled the price of lumber. Its operation was a criminal proceeding. It was for this trust that the appeal was made by the other side.

Mr. Morrow of California said that even if there was a lumber trust, which he did not admit, the effect of this legislation would be to transfer it across the line into Canada, where it would not be touched by our laws. He urged, in behalf of the vast carrying trade engaged in the lumber traffic, that the date of the operation of the free list be made Jan. 2d next.

Mr. Wilson of Minnesota, said that if the statement was true that placing lumber on the free list would not reduce the price, he failed to see how the carrying trade would be affected. The immense millponds would spring up in the lumber trade than anywhere else, while the wages of labor were not reduced. The lumber tariff was a legalized robbery.

Dr. Parker of New York, offered a amendment proposing November 30th, 1889 for the date given in the section, and adressing the lumber and timber clauses, said their first effect would be to reduce the price of lumber until our producers were ruined and industry destroyed, when prices would go up again.

Mr. Mills read a newspaper statement of an interview with a Chicago lumber man to to the effect that he was protected by the tariff in his business, whose wages were regulated by the laws of supply and demand. Dr. Parker's amendment was rejected, 89 to 135.

Mr. Boutelle proposed to make the date in the Adams amendment 1890 instead of 1889. He said the result of the lumber tariff was shown in the fact that a lumberman on the side of the line received from 25 to 40 per cent. better wages than on the Canadian side.

Mr. Lind, of Minnesotta, did not believe the removal of the tariff would cheapen lumber or affect trusts, and said that the tariff caused the cutting of timber to be confined to American soil. Any law that tended to hasten the destruction of our forests was not wise.

Mr. Boutelle maintained that the modern lumberman was the strongest conservator of forests. There was more lumber in Maine today than ten or twenty years ago. Mr. Boutelle's amendment was rejected.

Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, had read an extract from a speech delivered by Mr. Blaine, in 1886, in which he said it never had been the policy of the American government to tax breadstuffs or lumber, representing the needs of working men for lumber. This was received with applause by the Democratic side.

Mr. McKinley, of Ohio, asked if Mr. Blaine's remarks had not been directed to internal taxation, and not to imposts.

Mr. Breckenridge said he did not know which, but the speech was directed against a tax on lumber.

Mr. McKinley replied it was directed against a tax on American lumber, and not on foreign lumber. (Republican applause.)

Mr. Milliken, of Maine, said that sugar and rice paid double revenue duty, yet no one proposed to cut them.

Mr. Outhwaite, of Ohio, presented statistics to show that the cutter of Maine got $1.70 per annum and the capitalist $285 upon every $100 invested in lumber.

Mr. Reed of Maine, said Mr. Outhwaite had forgotten to apply to the figures the logic of his own good sense. Any man's good sense must tell him such profits were preposterous, yet the Democrats had no better sense than to applaud such statements.

Mr. Dingley of Maine asked how the other side justified themselves for maintaining a duty of 25 per cent. on crude material and raw sugar, while trying to remove the lowest duty in the whole list, that on manufactured lumber. Nothing protected the forest as much as a duty on lumber, for it encouraged the farmer to care for the wood lands.

Mr. Bayne of Pennsylvania held that the bill had been drawn on sectional lines, and was infinitely worse than the Morrison bill.

Mr. McMillan denied the charge, and said the committee on ways and means had in view only the good of the whole country. He did not envy a man so shrivel-souled that he could see only through sectional spectacles. He asked whether the Maine lumber men did not import Candian labor to cut timber.

Mr. Milliken—No.

Mr. McMillan—You say what is not correct. You are misinformed.

Mr. Boutelle—Why does the Canadian laborer come over here? What influences him?

Mr. McMillan—Climatic influences. [Derisive laughter.]

Mr. Boutelle wanted to inform the gentleman (Mr. McMillan) that if Canadians did come over the line it was because they got better wages.

Mr. Anderson of Iowa—Why then don't Maine depopulate Canada?

Mr. Boutelle—She is doing so, as fast as law allows.

Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, maintained the tariff should be fair to all section. It was not right to protect sugar with a 68 per cent duty, and rice almost as much, while cutting off the lower duties on the products of other sections. The debate was continued in the same line.

Mr. McKinley of Ohio, recurred to the subject of Mr. Blaine's speech, and said he had looked up the debate and could state positively that Mr. Blaine's remarks had referred only to an internal law.

Mr. Breckenridge of Kentuckey, argued the same principal held good in the case of any tax upon production.

Mr. Reed, of Maine, said the gentleman from Kentucky, afforded the Democratic party the opportunity to do what they had always grudgingly done, give Mr. Blaine a generous meed of applause. It clearly was by inadvertence, or accident, that the gentleman had used the point made by Mr. Blaine to fit one case, (that of a revenue tax, to stop another hole, the customs tax. No doubt the gentleman would sincerely regret his inadvertance.

Mr. Mills asked that debate on the section be closed. Objection was made, and it was moved that the committee rise. This prevailed, the Republicans solidly opposing, and the committee rose having passed over the first five lines of the bill.

Notes.

Among the bills reported from the committee in the Senate was the House bill for the payment of the passage of the Marquis of Lafayette and his family from France to the United States in 1824. The report was accepted.

The estimated reduction of the public debt during May amounts to four million dollars. Twelve million dollars were paid for pensions.

Mr. O'Neill, of Missouri, presented the conference report on his bill to create a Department of Labor, in the House to-day, and the bill passed in substantially the shape as it came from the Senate. The House then proceeded to consider the report of the committee of the whole on the legislative appropriation bill, increasing the clerical force of the civil service commission, which was adopted.

The Senate yesterday passed the bill to establish a Department of Labor, and the bill to quiet the titles of settlers on Desmoines river lands in Dakota.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

A Republican State Convention will be held in

CITY HALL,

Portland, Tuesday, June 12, 1888,

At 11 o'clock, A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, to be supported at the September election, and transacting any other business that may properly come before it.

The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate, and for each seventy-five votes cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1884 an additional delegate, and for a fraction of forty votes in excess of seventy-five votes, a further additional delegate. Vacancies in the delegation of any city, town or plantation, can only be filled by residents of the county in which the vacancy exists.

The State committee will be in session in the reception room of the hall at 9 o'clock on the morning of the convention, for the purpose of receiving the credentials of delegates.

All electors of Maine, without regard to past political differences, who believe in protecting the industries of this State and its agricultural products; who believe in protecting the laborer and the wage-earner in every right; who believe "in choosing a policy which inspires labor with hope and crowns it with dignity, which gives safety to capital and protects its increase, which secures political power to every citizen, comfort and culture to every home"; giving free popular education to the people; in favor of free suffrage and an honest counting of ballots; who approve the prohibition of the liquor traffic and the promotion of the cause of temperance; in an economical, just and efficient administration of public affairs; a faithfully administered civil service; and who uphold all judicious measures for the encouragement of American ship building, are cordially invited to unite with the Republicans in the selection of delegates to this convention.

Per order Republican State Committee.

J. H. MANLEY, Chairman.

LUIS H. WING, Secretary.

The Gresham men are expecting large accessions of strength by reason of Mr. Blaine's second letter. They hope to get a part at least of the New York delegation, and some from the Pennsylvania delegation. The Vermont delegation, which was for Blaine, is like the Maine delegation, inclined to support Mr. Depew.

Of the Maine delegates to the Chicago convention, Mr. W. B. Tobey says his choice after Mr. Blaine is Mr. Depew; Mr. George A. Wilson is for Depew or Gresham; Mr. Charles H. Prescott has no choice except to get the strongest candidate; the Hon. J. H. Manley thinks the Maine delegation should vote for Senator Frye; Gen. R. B. Shepherd is for Depew and Harrison; Mr. Charles A. Brown is for Mr. Depew; while Mr. Boutelle has no other choice but Blaine.

Gen. Sheridan's lamp of life is flickering. Occasionally it flames up so brightly as to give hope that it may yet burn for many years to come. But the struggle is an unequal one. His disease is one that affects the most vital of the vital organs, and each new struggle against its assaults weakens him to resist the succeeding attacks which are almost certain to come. His death is probably only a question of a short time. With him gone the only one of the leading Generals of the war left will be Gen. Sherman.

The serious illness of John Bright comes after a long period of feebleness both of mind and body; for that his intellect is not what it once was is no doubt true. And most of the English people understand this. For in spite of Mr. Bright's course against Gladstone, and in spite of his recent uniform support of the traditional enemies of Liberal principles, the Liberals yet maintain for him their old regard. He is the only secessionist Liberal whose name is never received at Liberal meetings with hisses and groans.

Judge Gresham is evidently developing considerable strength, and his following at Chicago is probably destined to be second only to that of Sherman. Mr. Gresham has attractive points. He was a gallant soldier, he was a capable executive officer in President Arthur's cabinet, he is a just and fearless judge. The strength of his candidacy is somewhat impaired by the fact that he is not endorsed by his own State, and because of doubts as to his acceptability to the States of New York and New Jersey, which the Republicans must carry in order to win in the next Presidential contest.

Mr. Blaine's second letter is generally accepted as placing him beyond the possibility of a nomination by the Chicago convention. There is occasionally a suggestion, however, that he may be "drafted" and compelled to accept, but such suggestions evidently are the offspring of keen disappointment, and mature reflection will doubtless lead to their abandonment. Mr. Blaine has said clearly that he could not accept if he were nominated, and given his reasons. They are reasons that the Republican convention has no power to remove. They will exist, no matter how unanimous his nomination may be.

Concerning Mr. Depew, it is to be said that he has never yet consented to accept a nomination and is as yet in no sense a candidate. The Albany Journal says a large majority of the New York delegates are inclined to present his name, and if he will consent it will be done, with the probability that the delegation will support him as a unit. There is no doubt that there is a strong sentiment for him among New York Republicans, and nothing but his refusal up to the present time to allow himself to be considered an aggressive candidate has restrained that sentiment from making itself heard.

Indiana is equal to the occasion. In Judge Gresham and General Harrison she has two candidates for the Presidency, and now, to be prepared for all emergencies, she brings forward a candidate for the Vice Presidency, in case neither Gresham nor Harrison should be chosen. This candidate is General Alvin P. Hovey, before the war a Democrat of the wing of the party opposed to President Pierce and Daniel W. Voorhees, in the war a distinguished soldier, and since the war a minister to Peru from 1866 to 1871. President Grant offered him the position of Secretary of War, but he preferred to retire to private life. But perhaps Gresham or Harrison might take second place with an Eastern man, in which case Indiana would be well provided with veterans for second place.

Mr. George William Curtis in his able and interesting address to the Civil Service Reform Association makes an earnest and convincing argument in favor of a single Presidential term, in the course of which he quotes the following paragraph from the inaugural address of Governor Cleveland, now President of the United States and now candidate for a second term:

> When we consider the patronage of this great office, the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public places once gained, and more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders with a zeal born of benefits received and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the President for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent action which must characterize a government of the people.

It is a curious fact that though all the Democratic papers agreed that the acceptance of a nomination by Mr. Blaine in the face of his Florence letter would be a scandalous thing, with hardly an exception they are booming for a second term the author of the above sentiments, and they are looking on with great complacency while he is using all the power which the vast patronage of the government gives him to accomplish his own re-nomination.

The Belfast Age has formulated a platform on the liquor question which meets its views and those of the Personal Liberty League of Belfast. It is as follows:

Resolved, That the prohibitory law should be repealed; that it is unsound in principle and subversive of the personal liberties of the people; and, after a trial of thirty years it has failed to accomplish the purpose intended, while the attempt to enforce it by a system of espionage has only tended to irritate communities and beget disrespect for all law.

Resolved, That restraint rather than prohibition is the true policy for promoting temperance reform. We therefore favor the substitution of a judicious license law, which, while it shall restrict the sale of intoxicating liquors to temperate and proper uses, shall, at the same time, divert a portion of the profits of sale into town treasuries, for the relief of tax payers, which profits, under the present prohibitory law, go wholly into the pockets of the liquor seller, thus offering a temptation to engage in the liquor traffic.

The declaration that the prohibitory law is subversive of the personal liberties of the people will strike the public as highly amusing. The Supreme Court of Maine and the Supreme Court of the United States have decided over and over again that the people of a State have a right to prohibit the sale of any article which they deem deleterious to the public health or the public morals. The sale of corrupt literature has been forbidden under this power; so has the sale of lottery tickets. Why does not the Age complain that prohibition of the sale of these things is subversive of the liberties of the people? It cannot be claimed certainly that they are more deleterious to the public morals than intoxicating liquors? But the Age gives away its whole case when it says the sale of liquor ought to be restricted by license. If it is subversive of the liberties of the people to forbid everybody to sell rum it must be still more subversive to say that some people may sell rum while others may not, for that is practically raising up a privileged class who shall enjoy certain rights which are denied to others. A strong argument can be made against a license law on the ground that it abridges the rights of part of the community by creating a monopoly, founded on the ability to pay money. It destroys equality. But against a prohibitory law which treats everybody alike, which prevents the rich from selling liquor as well as the poor no such objection can be raised. The only valid objection to a prohibitory law that can be offered is that it does not accomplish the object sought, namely, the restraint (for nobody expects it to accomplish complete suppression) of the sale of intoxicating liquors as well as some other measure would. If that can be shown then it constitutes a valid argument for a measure of a different kind. But this is not proved. The State of Maine once had a license law and it was repealed and the prohibitory law substituted for the very reason that it did not operate as an effective restraint on the liquor traffic.

CURRENT COMMENT.

WHERE THEY SIDE.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

Neal Dow says that the Prohibitionists side with the Democratic party on the tariff question. They also seem to be generally disposed to side with that party on the temperance question.

SHERIDAN YOUNG YET.

[N. Y. Mail and Express.]

Sheridan at 57 ought to be comparatively a young man—especially as there is a sort of rule that the soldier if he survive the perils of battle enjoys a somewhat longer life than the average of men. Gen. Joe Johnston, hale and hearty at 81, presents rather the rule than the exception as to the vigorous vitality of aged soldiers. Sherman now 68, has apparently all the vigor of early manhood. Gen. Lee and his soldier father presented the case of two generations connecting the present time with the revolutionary period.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY.

Some Considerations Interesting to Holders of Gas Stocks.

[Financial Article in N. Y. Sun, Monday.]

What encourages me more than anything else, however, to forecast a cheerful future for gas stocks is the growing consumption of gas. When Thomas A. Edison, in 1878, demonstrated the feasibility of incandescent electric lighting, there was a panic among holders of gas stocks all over the world. Many of them jumped to the conclusion that gas was going the way of sperm oil and candles, and when the Goelet boys saw the poles for the street arc lights going up in front of the old Broadway family mansion they tumbled overboard at 90 their inherited stock in the New York Gas Light Company, which, converted into consolidated stock, is selling, even in this era of depression, at the equivalent of 167. An English friend of mine, who by chanced to meet in London at that time, consulted me about parting with his London gas stocks, and was sensible enough, I am glad to say, to follow my advice to keep them. The result has been that he can now get 260 for shares which he was on the point of selling out at 175 or less. My argument with him was what it is now, that years would elapse before electric light for domestic use could be furnished anything like as cheaply as gas, and that in the meantime the consumption of gas for all sorts of purposes would so increase that it could, without serious loss, stand a very considerable reduction caused by the use of electricity. Experience has confirmed my general conclusion. The incandescent electric light yet costs four times as much as gas, quantity of light considered, and the multiplication of the large arc lights in streets and in shops has so fatigued people's eyes that they require more light, and therefore burn more gas than they ever did before. Hence, notwithstanding the displacement of a certain quantity of gas by electricity, the actual amount of gas consumed in this city is 40 per cent. greater than it was three years ago. Some of the increase, it is true, must be attributed to the increase of population, and some of it to the substitution of gas for for petroleum in parts of the city where petroleum had been used because of its relative cheapness. Now that gas is sold at $1.25, against $2.25 four years ago, many people burn gas where they formerly burned oil, and the change is still going on.

The use of gas as fuel is also another element of increasing consumption. Numbers of families, especially those living in apartment houses and other confined localities, cook with gas instead of coal. It costs more, to be sure, while it is burning, but it is burned so much less time, being lighted only at the moment it is needed and extinguished as soon as it has done its work, that the total expense is not much greater than that of coal, and the absence of unnecessary heat and dust and of the trouble of kindling is a great comfort. How extensive a market can be made for gas as a fuel is seen in the neighborhood of Pittsburgh and of Buffalo, where the immense supply of natural gas has been utilized instead of coal, not only for domestic purposes, but even for the manufacture of iron. Of course natural gas is incomparably cheaper than the artificial, but artificial gas, where it is not required to have illuminating power, can be produced at very low figures, and produced in combination with illuminating gas it can be furnished cheaply enough to stimulate immensely its consumption. Besides this, a considerable quantity is used for light manufacturing purposes and in driving engines of small power, which take the place of steam engines, being both safer and cheaper.

COME TO STAY!

DR. NICHOLLS,

The Celebrated Specialist, of London, England,

The past two years Principal Physician in charge of the Ohio Medical Institute, Columbus, Ohio, wishes to inform the Citizens of this city and vicinity, that he has permanently located here for the treatment of Chronic Diseases and all Diseases Peculiar to Females.

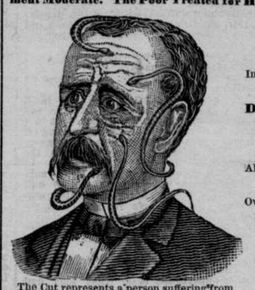
Office and Consulting Rooms, No. 3 and 4 Brown's Block, 537 Congress St., Portland, Me. Separate Entrance and Waiting Rooms for Ladies. Connected by Telephone No. 441.

In presenting this notice to the public, I respectfully ask those into whose hands it may fall to give it their careful consideration. Having enjoyed a large and extended practice in Chronic Diseases for many years, I am confident that I am able to perform all I profess to, and that the remedies I apply are calculated to produce the most satisfactory results. I cordially invite all who may be suffering, no matter what the disorders, to call upon me and I will most cheerfully tell them if they have any disease, and weere it is located, and the organ or part affected, free of charge. Charges for Treatment Moderate. The Poor Treated for Half Price.

CATARRH.



The Cut represents a person suffering from Catarrhal Neuralgia.

In its worst forms, and all diseases that are caused by Catarrh, such as

Deafness, Weak Eyes, Hacking Cough, Sore Throat, Pain in Head, Bronchitis, Constant Clearing of Throat,

All of which leads to hasty consumption, are positively cured by Dr. Nicholls.

Over one-half of the persons troubled with Catarrh have an offensive breath, which is very disagreeable and sickening to those with whom they come in close contact. Dr. Nicholls removes the bad breath in three treatments.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.

Constant disposition to clear the throat, hacking cough, dimness of sight, pain over the eyes, pain in one or both Temples, roaring in the ears, pain in the back of the head, nose stopped up, sick stomach, dizziness, poor digestion, no appetite for breakfast, you feel a general depression imagining you have dyspepsia, liver trouble, lung disease, and you are treated by your physician for various diseases, yet youget no better, and are advised to change climate, and in the matter of a very short time you are a confirmed invalid, and nine out of ten cases run into a confirmed case of consumption. Now, reader, why is this? We will tell you: Catarrh is an ulcer formed in the posterior nerves just above the uvula, the passage between the nose and the throat; the ulcer continues to eat and discharge a poisonous flow of pus, running down the throat into the stomach and lungs. This, my friend, is what causes the constant clearing in the throat. Can you wonder why you do not have good health with all this poisonous matter constantly running into your stomach? The remedy is applied directly to the ulcer, cleanses and heals in a few applications. The treatment is very simple and harmless.

Diseases of Women, Female Weakness, Debility and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear

Successfully treated, and a permanent Cure guaranteed in each case. Dr. Nicholls will guarantee a Permanent Cure each and every case he may undertake of the following diseases, and if your case is not curable he will frankly tell you so: Deafness, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Epilepsy, Cancer, Goitre (Big Neck), Diseases of the Throat, Lungs and Liver, Nervous and General Debility, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bowels, Heart Diseases, Falling of the Womb, Prolapsus Uteri, Barrenness, Bronchitis, Constipation, Asthma, Night Sweats, Piles, Fistula, Fissure, and all diseases of the lower Bowels. All so private, special and nervous diseases of the Urinary and Sexual organs.

REMARKABLE CURES perfected in old cases which have been neglected or unskillfully treated. No experiments or failures. Parties treated by mail and express, but where possible personal consultation is preferred. Curable cases guaranteed. Address with postage.

Cases and correspondence confidential. Treatment sent C. O. D. to any part of the United States.

Free Examination of the Urine.—Each person applying for medical treatment should send or bring from 2 to 4 ounces of Urine, which will receive a careful and microscopal examination.

Consultation free. Office hours, 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. mar10d1aw8&wtf

TO THE HOLDERS OF

United States 4 1-2 Per Cent Bonds,

DUE 1891.

We beg to call your attention to the fact that the above mentioned United States Bonds at the present price yield only

Two and One-quarter Per Cent

(2 1-4) interest, and that as they approach maturity the price will decline until the whole premium will be wiped out.

We therefore advise the holders of these Bonds to sell or exchange them for other securities. We have on hand a desirable list of City, County, Railroad and Water Bonds, suitable for Trust Funds, and would be pleased to have the holders of the above mentioned Bonds communicate with us.

in order to obtain the present high premium which must gradually and surely become less as they approach maturity. We are offering some excellent securities which we can recommend to holders of above bonds, or in exchange for any other securities soon to mature, and we shall be happy to communicate or confer with them regarding such exchange.

WIT AND WISDOM.

"How admirably everything in nature is adapted to the purpose for which it is intended!" remarked the new minister, as, during a pause in the conversation, he watched the swallows skimming through the air.

"Wonderful!" coincided Mrs. Marryair; "One's own fingers, for instance, are just the right size and shape for wearing jewelry!"

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation and disordered stomach.

And Coaker goes into a trance.

Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make them a perfect little pill. They please those who use them. Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Perfection."

Clara (exhibiting photograph)—How do you like it?

Hattie—It's perfectly lovely.

Clara—You think it a good likeness?

Hattie—Oh, no; it doesn't look a particle like you, you know; but I wouldn't mind that, Clara; you are not likely to have such luck again if you sat a thousand times.

Advice to Mothers.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub, awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Sardinian Lost Her Propeller.

The Allan steamer Sardinian, Captain Ritchie, with English mails and 1000 passengers, from Liverpool, May 17th, for Montreal, was towed into Halifax, Wednesday, with propeller off, by steamer Norseman, from Liverpool for Boston, with 400 passengers. All went well with the Sardinian until the morning of Thursday, 24th, when her propeller, with all attachments, suddenly snapped off. The engines ran wild for some time, but were got under control without further damage. The Sardinian proceeded under sail. On the morning of the 26th, the Elbe, for New York, hove in sight, and letters and despatches were forwarded by her. That evening the Norseman hove in sight, took the Sardinian in tow, and headed for Halifax, then distant 700 miles, arriving in four days. No agreement was made for towage, and that will be settled by the courts. The Sardinian's passengers and mails were forwarded by special train Wednesday night. The Norseman coaled and sailed for Boston. The Allan steamer Circassian, which was towed into Halifax a month ago, is still in port awaiting a new shaft.

The Boston City.

The British steamer Boston City, Capt. Davies, of the Furness Line, which sailed from here nearly two weeks ago, arrived at Liverpool Tuesday night, and while docking she collided with Foxen pier head, breaking the stem of the steamer, and twisting the thick iron plates from her starboard side. The fore compartment was full of water and all the pumps were brought into play. It is feared that much of the cargo will be destroyed. Nearly all of the cargo was shipped at this port, and consisted largely of grain.

The spectators may be assured of a finely conducted ceremony, and for that matter of a treat in the military line, as it is an unusual thing for an inspection to be open to the general public.

Professor Lee's Benefit.

The Portland friends of Professor G. R. Lee turned out in goodly numbers last night in tendering him a benefit at his Athletic Academy. A programme, mostly of an athletic nature, was well caaried out. The club swinging of Professor Lee and the juggling of Joseph King were perhaps the most appreciated numbers. It is hoped the receipts will be worthy of Professor Lee's popularity.

The ecclesiastical council which was called for the purpose of ordaining and installing the Rev. W. F. Livingston as pastor of the Congregational church of Fryeburg assembled in the church at 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning. It was composed of the pastors and delegates of all the Congregational churches in this vicinity. There were also present Rev. D. B. Sewall, of York, a former pastor of this society, Rev. F. A. Wilson, of Billirica, Mass., a former principal of Fryeburg Academy, Rev. L. H. Hallock, of Williston Church, Portland. The Council organized with the choice of Rev. Mr. Doris, of North Conway, N. H., as moderator, and Rev. Mr. Skinner, of Waterford, as scribe. The examinatiyn of the candidate proved satisfactory to the council and was so reported by the scribe at the services of ordination and installation which were held at 2 o'clock, p. m.

The programme of this service was as follows:

The charges to the people and pastor were kindly and sympathetically given. The music was well rendered by the choir of the church assisted by Miss Webster of Williston church as soprano vocalist and Miss Minnie Howe, organist. Miss Webster also favored the people with a solo, "I Will Not Forsake Thee." The father of the pastor elect was present and made the ordaining prayer. A reception was tendered the new pastor at the vestry of the church last evening.

Happy Results of Keen Observation.

[Belfast Journal.]

One morning last week Mr. A. A. Howes and Mr. John H. Quimby were in Capt. Bramhall's market in this city, to buy salmon for dinner. Mr. Howes produced a penny from his pocket and said: "John, I will odd and even with you on the date of this cent to see who will pay for both dinners." "All right," said Mr. Quimby, "I'll take it odd." The date was an uneven number and Mr. Hawes paid for both dinners—salmon at forty cents per pound. Mr. Quimby's long connection with the Belfast Savings Bank has demonstrated to him that more cents bear uneven dates than those of even years. After he went to the bank that morning he took out of the money drawer twenty-five coppers, and fifteen of them bore dates of uneven years.

Cat's Eyes and the Tide.

[Rockland Courier Gazette.]

"It is low tide," said a Rockland captain as he picked up the office cat and looking into her eyes found the curtain of the eye almost entirely closed. "When its high tide," he continued, "you will find this curtain drawn wide open. It's a sure sign."

CHAUNCEY DEPEW AND CRESHAM

presenting to the convention the name of William B. Allison, we bring forward a man who can command more of the independent votes than any other man in the country. He will be a favorite of men of all parties. Entering the House of Representatives, he was eleven years later tranferred to the Senate. If you would read his history, you should read the history of the country during its most critical existence. No man in either party has a cleaner record than William B. Allison. In all matters of public importance he met with the satisfaction of the public. He does not represent the West as against the East; he does not represent the North as against the South, but he represents the whole Republican party." [Applause.]

Mr. Rines of Mississippi, seconded the nomination of Mr. Allison, declaring that he was the man to lead the party to victory.

Then came New York's turn, and Dr. King presented the name of the man who was unquestionably the favorite of the convention. The speech was applauded throughout, and at its close there was a long continued shout. Beginning, Dr. King said, "Well may one feel proud of being called upon to represent the party that gave freedom to the slaves and placed our country high among the nations of the world. Let us nominate a man worthy of our honor. Let us nominate a man who shall go forth conquering and a conqueror. One who will lead us on to victory. I will nominate a man who will carry the State of New York and ensure us victory next fall, and his name is Chauncey M. Depew."

Mr. Looney of Maine, in behalf of the delegates of that State, seconded the nomination.

Mr. Chapman of Ohio, when the turn of his State came, succeeded admirably in creating enthusiasm for Senator John Sherman, that wouldn't have existed had it not been for his speech. "The Republican party," he said, "demand a leader who believes in the Republican party. Mr. President I have come to present the name of a patriot, who in response to the call of President Lincoln for 75,000 men, went to the front as a soldier. And later when duty called him, he took his place on the floors of Congress, one of the truest and tried statesmen of the war period." The leading points of Mr. Sherman's career were set forth freely and forcibly, and the final announcement of the name of Ohio's choice was greeted with loud cheers.

Mr. Robinson of Massachusetts, in behalf of the delegates of that State, seconded the nomination.

After the nominations had been made the convention sang the following song, which was composed by one of the members:

CLEVELAND AND REFORM.

O, prithee to behold the great Apostle of Reform,
And now behind his banners the Democracy doth swarm;
For that's the way, you'll understand, they keep their toe-ses warm,
With Cleveland and Reform.

Chorus:—"Hooray, Hooray, for Stephen Grover C., Hooray, Hooray, he'll find a place for me."
Thus the anthem rises from the great Democracy,
To Cleveland and Reform.

From the Golden Gate at Frisco to the foaming Fundy Bay,
Comes the hungry, happy murmur as the faithful draw their pay.
And the Cod-fish gally giggles—but the Mugwumps, where are they?
Ask Cleveland and Reform.

Chorus:—"Hooray," etc.

George William Curtis, Schurz & Co., do sadly sit and sigh,
To see the great Apostle and his proselytes pass by.
And each doth tell the other that the green thing in his eye,
Is "Cleveland and Reform."

Chorus:—"Hooray," etc.

There's a very modest mansion, much renowned in mystic lore,
Where a salt and briny river sends its ripples to the shore,
And the legend on the sign that Fate has nailed above the door,
Is "Cleveland and Reform."

Chorus:—Hurrah, Hurrah, we'll sing the jubilee,
Hurrah, Hurrah, farewell to Grover C.
Salt River with its mossy banks is softly calling thee,
O Cleveland and Reform.

Mr. C. A. True of Washington Territory reported in behalf of the committee, the following resolutions, which were adopted, there being tumultuous applause when the last paragraph was read:

THE PLATFORM.

The Republican party had its birth as the party of conscience. Its corner-stone was freedom, and the spirit of patriotism and self scrifice which inspired its founders has been transmitted to and emulated by their successors. Its glorious history has never been equalled "by any party, in any country, in any periodof the world." Because its members have grounded themselves on principle, the party has always been fearless and aggressive in its policy. Its noble record has passed out of politics into history, and it now, strengthened by the past, turns to the future. The Democratic party, after its long exile, has returned to power, refreshed but not reformed, encouraged but not enlightened, attempting to employ in the present the ideas and methods of the past. Opposed to its leaders and its policies, we declare:

I—That the enormous surplus revenue of the country should be reduced, but that the principle to be observed in such reduction should be protection to American labor and capital. We believe we should legislate for America, first, and we denounce the partisan Mills bill as dangerous to the best interests of the county, and a miserable subterfuge for the final accomplishment of free trade.

II—That the spoils system—a Democratic heritage—is an unmixed evil; that it now flourishes with unwonted vigor, and the present chief executive has shown himself false to his promises and untrue to his declared convictions. The system is a fruitful source of national danger. We repudiate all connection with it, and hold ourselves the uncompromising champions of civil service reform.

III—That the saloon is working both the destruction of social morality and the corruption of our politics; it should be prescribed as a public enemy and driven out of existence, and the party to accomplish this result is the Republican party.

IV—That the American people can never repay the debt they owe the soldiers and sailors who fought to preserve the Republic, and we favor liberal pension laws for the benefit of the injured veterans, and the support of the widows and orphans of those who died in defense of their country.

V—That the public school system of the several States is a foundation stone of our Union, and to better preserve it we recommend an amendment to our constitution forbidding the application of any public funds or property for the benefit of any schools or institutions under sectarian control.

VI—That the unrestricted admission of hordes of foreigners of all classes is a menace to the security of our institutions, and laws should be passed to protect the rights of our citizens without inflicting hardship on any worthy foreigner.

VII—That we denounce the action of the Democratic Congress in refusing to admit into the Union the great territory of Dakota, which already has a population greater than that of many of the States, and we condemn their conduct in surrendering to the filibustering minority of the South in their efforts to prevent the passage of the direct tax refunding bill.

VIII—That the successful effort inaugurated against polygamy under Republican auspices should be continued until the last trace of the "twin relic" has disappeared.

IX—That all reasonable means should be employed to restore our merchant marine, increase our navy and protect our coasts by adequate armaments.

X—That we do not believe in trading for rights to which we are entitled by the laws of nations, and we call upon the Senate to reject the pending Fishery Treaty.

XI—That finally, we extend the greetings of this convention to the great leader of the party—the Hon. James G. Blaine; the wild opposition of one common enemy and his chivalric devotion to his friends have alike bound the party more strongly to him, and we greet him now—none the less a leader because he has wished that our victorious standard should be borne this year by other hands than his.

} Com. on Resolutions.

THE BALLOTING.

The convention then voted to proceed to the nomination of a candidate for President of the United States, and amid much excitement the call of States began. Alabama cast one vote for Hawley and one Depew; the Territory of Alaska cast one vote for Hawley, and then Arizona went for Gresham. Arkansas divided its vote between Hawley and Depew, and so it went, Depew ahead with Gresham and Hawley behind him. The ballot was interesting.

At its close, Mr. Goudy, chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation, announced that he was instructed to change the vote of the delegation to Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, and the change was so rendered.

Therewas a loud cheer, other States and Territories wheeled in for Reed, changing their votes from Depew and other candidates to Reed. By the time the end of the roll call was reached Mr. Reed's vote had rolled up to 30 and he was ahead of all but Depew, who retained 51 votes. There were besides 10 for Hawley, 23 for Gresham, 3 for Sherman, 4 for Allison and 2 for Harrison. Before the changes to Mr. Reed were made Depew led with 73 votes for Depew and 34 for Gresham, these being the two who were deserted for Mr. Reed. There was no choice, and amid great excitement the convention took a recess.

When the convention was called to order a delegate from Alabama produced a picture of Mr. Blaine and requested that it be placed above the chairman's table. It was so done, and there were signs of another stampede for a Maine man. But Mr. Looney, of the Maine delegation, protested that the convention was called with the understanding that there was to be an interesting contest over candidates. If Mr. Blaine or Mr. Reed were brought forward then the convention would of course go for the Maine man without much contest; so he moved that no Maine man be balloted for, and it was carried.

On the second ballot Massachusetts changed from Sherman to Depew, other States changed from Gresham, and Depew was nominated, receiving 91 votes, to 18 for Gresham, 10 for Hawley, 3 for Harrison, and one each for Allison and Sherman. The result was received with wild cheers.

For Vice President there was a very exciting time. Harrison and Gresham were the nominees, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Rhode Island and West Virginia were wild for Harrison, and the loudest cheers were for him, but Gresham had Maine, most of Massachusetts, Connecticut solid, most of New York, and the South and West almost unanimously. He beat Harrison 77 votes to 35 and was declared the nominee for Vice President.

This ended the convention.

ANDROSCOGGIN COUNTY.

Mrs. Sophia W. Rowell died at Livermore Falls on Monday aged 96 years and 2 months. She was the widow of the late Abijah Rowell and mother of John A. Rowell of Livermore Falls, Edwin W. Rowell of Lewiston, and Major E. Rowell, of Hallowell. Two of her grandsons, Geo. S. and W. W. Rowell, are connected with the Advertiser. She was born in Waltham, Mass., and came to Livermore more than 70 years ago, and has since lived there. She lived under every President of the United States and had distinct recollections of her early life. She remembered as a little girl the death of Washington and many other events in the early history of the country. Her mind was clear until the last. Her husband died about three years ago; they had lived together nearly 70 years. For about three-quarters of a century she was a constant member of the Baptist church. Her kindly disposition had endeared her to a large number of friends who will miss her now she has gone to her final home. It is permitted to few to see so many years and retain all their faculties to the last. It can truly be said that she died beloved and regretted not only by her immediate family circle but by all who had the pleasure of knowing her.

As the Flying Yankee slowed into the station at Waterville, Wednesday, the engineer looked over the side of the engine and saw that a big piece of the flange on one of the locomotive wheels had broken off. It was not known how it was broken or when. The most marvelous thing about it is that the locomotive was not derailed and an accident incurred.

A Centennarian of Mount Desert.

[Ellsworth American.]

A once famous dweller on Mount Desert Island, Me., was Mme. Milliken, who lived to be 100 years of age. Her home was on the north side of Pretty Marsh harbor. Here the madam and her husband, Samuel Milliken, (who was descended from a Scotch baronet, Sir Hugh Milliken of Aber deen, Scotland,) spent long, useful and happy lives. Mme. Milliken was a doctress, and there being no roads but only foot and bridle paths at that time on Mount Desert, she rode on horse back to all parts of the island, and sometimes to the main land, which could only be reached with a horse at low water. She also rowed and sailed to and from the neighboring islands, attending to her professional duties.

[Kennebec Democrat.]

In a town not many miles from this city, the congregation of a certain church gathered one beautiful Sabbath morning recently only to find that the only key to the church was in the possession of the sexton, which distinguished functionary could not be found. Messengers were sent in every direction, but no sexton—no key. At last an old man was found who reported that early dawn the sexton was seen digging worms.
