Charges Against American Fishermen.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 11.—There is great excitement at Arichat, and on the neighboring coast of Cape Breton, over reported dastardly outrages by the crews of some American fishing vessels. Robert Wilson, a local fisherman, states that he set his nets a short distance off the Little Anse shore, and that, while looking after them, he saw a number of men from the Gloucester schooner Alice C. Gordon deliberately cut through them. The act was committed so that the Americans could continue their own seining without experiencing any hindrance. Over 20 nets belonging to Cape Breton fishermen are said to have been treated in a similar manner by Americans within the past few days.

HOW SINCLAIR WAS MURDERED.

The Coroner's Jurors Find that Sellon Stabbed Him.

Rumor that Sellon Says He Did it in Self Defence.

What Hayes Told the Jury of the Terrible Affair.

BANGOR, June 11.—The mystery in the case of the murder of Jerry G. Sinclair has been cleared up so far as fixing the responsibility for the crime by the coroner's jury is concerned. Coroner Whitney summoned his jury early this morning, and commenced the inquest. The following prominent citizens composed the jury: Silas D. Jones, Charles E. Williams, Charles W. Coffin, Edward Conners, Charles E. Getchell and Job Collet. Hugh R. Chaplin, Esq., has been representing the government at the inquest. They assembled at the City Marshal's office at 9 o'clock, went to the embalming rooms and examined the remains, and then to the depot and visited the car in which the awful tragedy occurred. The jury then held its session at the aldermen's room in the city building. Five witnesses were examined with closed doors. Superintendent Dame, of the Postal Service of Boston, testified relative to the condition of the car and the marks of blood. Baggagemaster Whitehouse told the circumstances of being called by Hayes to get some liquor for Sinclair, "who had hurt himself," and Drs. Young and Sanger testified to the result of the examination of the body after death.

The most important witness, however, was Hayes, the postal clerk, who was in the car with Sellon and Sinclair, and his testimony consumed most of the afternoon. According to his story, as reported, there was ill-feeling between the deceased and Sellon, and the latter called the former hard names, at which Sinclair went to the end of the car where Sellon was, and clinched him, throwing him back upon the sorting table. During the struggle Sellon grabbed up the knife, which was a long, thin, sharp blade, which he used for cutting twine on bundles, and stabbed Sinclair, claiming to have done it in self-defence.

Having heard the evidence of the witnesses named, the jury returned a verdict at about six o'clock tonight, in which they find "that from the evidence before us, this said Jerry G. Sinclair came to his death on the evening of the 9th day of June, at Bangor, on board the United States mail car, No. 561, from the effects of a stab in the breast, made by a sharp instrument in the hands of A. G. Sellon." It is currently reported, and generally believed to be true, that Sellon has made a confession of the whole matter, admitting striking the blow, but pleading self-defence as an excuse. The officials, however, positively refuse to say anything in regard to the matter. Sellon will be examined in the Municipal Court today, when the whole facts will probably appear. Sinclair's remains were sent to Ossipee, N. H., tonight.

The Finding Foreshadowed.

BANGOR, June 11.—The murder of Jerry Sinclair in the mail car in this city Saturday evening is still the exciting topic here. The rumor that Hayes had made a full confession implicating Sellon, connot be verified today. The government attorneys, when asked if this was true in Bangor at noon replied that they had nothing to say. They are keeping very quiet about the affair and will not let the reporters speak to the prisoners.

But from outside sources a good deal has been learned today and it is thought that Hayes has told the story correctly. Hayes is reported to have said that a sudden quarrel came up between Sinclair and Sellon about the handling of some mail, when Waterville was reached, and both men were exceedingly angry. Hard names were called by each man and blows followed. That this was the case the scratches on the face of the dead man and upon Sellon's face would seem to indicate. They were quarreling in front of the letter rack and sorting table. Suddenly in a fit of ungovernable rage Sellon seized a large knife which is used by the head clerk in cutting twine around packages of letters and made a plunge at Sinclair, burying it deep in his breast. Blood spurted from the wound in a stream and the unfortunate man was unconscious in a few moments. They took him over to the mail bags and laid him down. After the train started Sellon threw the knife away and this afternoon it had not been found. Hayes stood in the middle of the car by the side of a paper sack during the quarrel. He witnessed the stabbing plainly, but it occurred so suddenly that he was powerless to act. This is believed in Bangor to be the story which Hayes will tell in court.

The conductor of the train, just after the cars started, opened the door of the car used for mails to see if any stranger had attempted to steal a ride without a ticket. His horror he saw, lying on a pile of pouches, the body of Sinclair, who is spoken of as being well liked by all who knew him. He called the attention of the other clerks to the prostrate body, and asked what the matter was with Jerry. One of them answered: "Oh, nothing but a hemorrhage I guess." The conductor at once stepped to the body and said: "Why, he is seriously ill," and at the same time pulled the bell cord which stopped the train. He then had the body put into a vehicle and taken to the hotel where Sinclair boarded.

It is also said that Sellon confessed this morning to the city marshal that he committed the deed in self-defence. He said Sinclair had been drinking and that when the quarrel arose, he walked the whole length of the car and attacked him. He stabbed him in self-defence. He says that Sinclair weighed over 200 while he weighed only 130, and he was afraid of him. Sellon is much broken down by the affair.

The superintendent of railway service in New England, George O. Dame, told a reporter last night, on the train from Boston to Bangor, that he had known for some time that there was considerable feeling between Sinclair and Sellon, but that he thought Hayes and Sinclair were the best of friends. He stated that there would be some very important developments at the inquest, but he refused to state the nature of them, although he gave a young man within hearing to understand that both Sellon and Hayes were under a cloud of suspicion. He said that Sinclair received $1000, Hayes $1250 and Sellon $1300 a year, the latter being in charge of the car. Mr. Dame remarked that same time ago Sellon and the murdered man did not get along very well together, and that he had intimated to Sellon that, if the feeling went so far as to be hurtful to the service, he would remove Sinclair and give him some other "run." Sellon did not care to have him do this, fearing that it might create a prejudice against himself which would result in his removal.

Sinclair was what is designated as the third clerk, and he was the last of the three to enter the car before it started on the trip to Boston, while the head and second clerk always went to the car and began work some before it started. Sinclair was expected to remain in the Bangor post office until the registered pouches had been arranged and slips signed by the postmaster in that place. Then he brought the registered pouches to the car with him and they were near him when the deed was committed, as some of the russet colored leather of the bags was stained with his blood.

Found Drowned.

ROCKLAND, June 11.—A boat containing five men was upset near Vinalhaven yesterday and four of the party were drowned. The party consisted of John Smith, aged 36; Harry Smith, aged 25, brothers; William J. Bishop, aged 22; Edward Fellows, aged 26, and George Grant, aged 25. Grant was saved. The drowned men were Vinalhaven stone cutters and industrious men. They were natives of Lancashire county, England. John Smith and Fellows were married, the wife of the former being in Vinalhaven. The wife of the latter is in England. Grant was rescued by the schooner Harvester, Captain Roberts, after clinging to the boat for an hour.

For Stealing a Yacht.

BIDDEFORD, June 11.—George Gleason and Fred Jones, who were arrested at Salem Saturday for stealing a yacht from Lower Biddeford, were arraigned in the municipal court in Biddeford this morning. They pleaded guilty and were bound over to the September term of the Supreme Court. They belong in New Bedford and are wanted in Saco and Rockport, Mass., for breaking and entering.

The Hearing Postponed.

BANGOR, June 11.—The hearing in the Stain-Cromwell matter before Judge Peters, appointed for today to take action on the new motion of L. A. Barker, counsel for Stain, was adjourned to next Thursday forenoon at 12 o'clock on account of the necessary absence of Attorney General Baker. This will probably be the last hearing before the final hearing July 9th.

Broke His Leg.

BRUNSWICK, June 11.—William Seco, aged 18 years, broke his leg while playing ball this afternoon.

Too Much Rain.

LAKE LYNDEN, Mich., June 11.—The rain storm which began here Saturday, kept up its fury until 11 o'clock last night. Had the storm continued a few hours longer it would have been difficult to estimate the loss. Houses in the town have been shifted from their foundations, and some actually fell over. Sidewalks were torn up and carried into the lake. The cellars of all the business houses are filled with water, and the contents ruined. Bridges over the various rivers in the vicinity were torn away and carried into the lake. The streets in many places are impassable, and railroad tracks are washed out in some places, but construction trains are out with large forces of men, and trains on the different roads will be running regularly tomorrow.

FREDERICK AND HIS PEOPLE.

Herr Von Puttkamer's Resignation as Regarded in Berlin.

BERLIN, June 11.—The fall of Herr von Puttkamer, vice president of the Prussian Ministerial Council and Prussian Minister of the Interior, has caused immense jubilation in the Radical camp. Herr Richter, in the "Freisinnige," ascribes his downfall directly to his speech in the Landtag, and closes an exultant article with the exclamation, "Long live the Kaiser! May God preserve his strength! If He does so, many other things in Prussia and Russia will improve also." The satisfaction which the Government party derive from the Kaiser's yielding to Prince Bismarck's representation, that it would never do by vetoing the Quinquennial Parliament bill to furnish the Radical opposition a pretext to boast that the Kaiser had sided with it against his own Cabinet and the Conservative majority is dampened by the prospect of an Imperial rescript. The Cologne Gazette and other government organs daily urge the Emperor against doing anything likely to cause further resignations.

Herr Puttkamer never had the full sympathy of the Emperor, and the latter's decision to part with him betokens his determination to impart to his reign the stamp of his own independent convictions. Herr von Puttkamer's letter of justification treated the matter as a personal one. It was not submitted to the cabinet. The Kaiser's reply intimated that Her von Puttmaker had failed to convince him.

The Emperor's journey to Potsdam was idealized by the loyalty of the people, and has been treated by the Berlin press in the spirit of the Arthurian legend. The finer weather of the past two days has enabled him to spend much time outdoors to his great benefit, as it is certain his removal to Potsdam caused a slight relapse. His appetite is still enfeebled by the heat and his lassitude, and the doctors are trying to assist it. Dr. Leyden has again joined in the consultations. Dr. Hovell returns at the Emperor's special request as soon as his private affairs will permit. The Emperor has decided that no summer fetes or other festivities shall be stopped on account of his condition or the death of his father.

England's Dread of Invasion.

LONDON, June 11.—In the Commons today, Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, stated that the calculation made of the transports necessary to enable 100,000 men to land in England and seize London by surprise took into consideration only the conditions that such a feat was possible and that the whole army could disembark simultaneously, and when landed, would be capable of rapid movement. The estimate that ships with a gross tonnage of 480,000 would be required for transporting the invading force, he said, was on the assumption that it would be equal to three army corps, comprising cavalry and artillery.

Mr. Hanbury asked whether the naval and military departments had consulted on the subject.

Lord Hamilton replied that data had been obtained thirteen years ago as the result of a joint conference, and promised to produce these data of the transport department, which satisfied him that the tonnage referred to did not overestimate the preparation necessary for landing such a force. Such an invading force from the continent, he continued, implied a distribution of the invaders in ports hundreds of miles apart, with a successful voyage of not less than a week, instead of a few hours, and made without opposition from a hostile fleet.

THE VANGUARD IN CHICAGO.

Representatives of Five Presidential Booms on the Ground.

The Latest Form of the Old Story About Mr. Blaine.

What Many Prominent Men Say of Many Candidates' Prospects.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Representatives of five distinct Presidential booms are in this city tonight and others are momentarily expected. The pictures of the candidates are being posted up in the hotels this evening. Alger's and Allison's agents were first on the ground but were reinforced early by Sherman's party. Tonight added a credited spokesman for Harrison and Judge Gresham is present in person. He resides at the Palmer House. More than one politician from abroad made his acquaintance. His local supporters came to the front today with an open meeting in one of the club rooms adjoining the Grand Pacific rotunda where a number of rousing speeches were made.

Its Latest Guise.

BALTIMORE, June 11.—A Sun special from Columbus tonight, says: "Your correspondent has it on authority that is scarcely questionable, that Gov. Foraker has a letter from Whitelaw Reid, advising him that Mr. Blaine will not refuse the nomination for President if the convention at Chicago offers it to him. Reid says he bases the statement on information contained in a private letter that he has just received from Mr. Blaine. He wishes Gov. Foraker to take second place on the ticket with Blaine.

Mr. Depew's Prospects.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Congressman S. V. White of Brooklyn, N. Y., was one of the political lookers-on at the Grand Pacific tonight, and said that Chauncey M. Depew's name would be presented to the convention, and on the first ballot he will, no doubt, receive the full vote of the New Yorkers. Afterwards, he does not believe his friends will persist, and members of the New York delegation will scatter as many ways as there are candidates. Between 10 and 25 will go to Sherman.

Hoadly on Thurman.

NEW YORK, June 11.—A reporter called upon ex-Governor George Hoadly of Ohio, yesterday, and was intrepid enough to ask him how he was pleased with the nomination of Thurman.

"I've got nothing whatever to say about that subject," said Mr. Hoadly.

"Don't you intend to vote for him?"

"I am going to vote," said the ex-Governor impressively, "for the Presidential electors; they won't let me vote for the men themselves. I was opposed to Thurman's nomination from the start and did all I could to prevent it; and if I'd had a week longer to work I would have prevented it."

"Then you don't think his name lends strength to the ticket?"

"I've got nothing to say about that. I use white handkerchiefs, though, and don't go in for bandannas or snuff."

"At all events," concluded the Governor, "I shall vote the Democratic ticket, although I like the tail of it as little as some other people love the head."

Would Vote for Rusk.

CHICAGO, June 11.—John M. Thurston, chairman of the Nebraska delegation to the Republican convention, was at the Grand Pacific Hotel today. Said he: "My heart was broken when Blaine's last letter came out. I have always believed that the Republican party should put up its great men for candidates. Two-thirds of our delegation were for him. Now I do not think any member is pledged to any candidate. I would rather see Governor Rusk, of Wisconsin, nominated, though I do not suppose he will have support which will result in anything. Alger would run in Nebraska, because of the old soldier vote. Nebraska was settled mainly by soldiers after the war. We like the doctrine preached by Ingalls. It suits the West, but I suppose the East would not consider his candidacy. If Indiana came to the convention with a single candidate, I would be in favor of nominating him; but in a contest it would not be the best thing to take either man. Depew would not be an acceptable candidate to the West on account of his presidency of the New York Central." Judge Thurston says he will not be a candidate next year for the United States Senate, when a successor to Senator Manderson must be elected. The Republicans of Nebraska, he said, are in favor of a strong protective tariff platform.

Louisiana's Opinion.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Ex-Senator William Pitt Kellogg of Louisiana, who is one of the delegates at large from that State to the Republican National Convention at Chicago, is a guest at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. When asked about the Louisiana delegates, Senator Kellogg replied: "We are all at sea since Mr. Blaine's last letter came out. It is a condition of perplexity, doubt and anxiety all around, now that he is out of the way. I guess, after all, the best thing the other candidates can do is get out of the way, too, and let us nominate him by acclamation. There is no positive drift to any other man yet, so far as our delegation is concerned. If New York, New Jersey and Connecticut delegates will present a solid man and we will carry those States, he can get most of the votes of the Southern States. In Louisiana a few delegates are now for Sherman, but everywhere they are desirous to know what these three States want. If they can agree on any man he can have the nomination. I do not see how we can nominate Mr. Blaine after his last letter. Of course there will be some votes cast for him anyhow. If all the candidates should pull out and ask him to come in, that would bring him. But they are human beings and not likely to do that."

American or English.

HARRISBURG, June 11.—In the course of a conversation on the Democratic ticket and platform, Governor Beaver said: "Speaking from a purely political standpoint, it is an honest ticket upon a sincere platform and raises a direct issue upon the great political and industrial question of the present day, never heretofore distinctly raised. The Republican party will gladly and unconquerably accept the issue and go to the country unhesitatingly upon it. The result will, in my judgment, definitely settle for a generation whether an American or an English industrial policy shall prevail in the United States."

Promptly Denied.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The statement representing ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt and Senator Hiscock as having formed a combination to drive Mr. Depew out of the race as a Presidential candidate was generally regarded as having its origin a great deal more in imagination than in fact. The story was specific in this: That on Friday last at a conference at Mr. Depew's house Messrs. Platt and Hiscock informed Mr. Depew that they could not support him and furthermore demanded that he should announce his withdrawal. Mr. Depew is represented as saying to his visitors that they were at liberty to announce that he was not a candidate. This was not regarded as sufficient, and Hiscock and Platt were said to have insisted that Mr. Depew should write a positive letter of declination, which he peremptorily refused to do. The conference is reported to have broken up with the understanding that no definite decision would be reached until it should be learned at Chicago how the Republicans of the Northwest were disposed toward Mr. Depew.

Mr. Hisoock returned to Washington on Saturday night and Mr. Depew was at his country house at Peekskill yesterday, so that neither could be asked as to the truth or falsity of the assertions. Mr. Platt was found at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday and promptly responded: "I have not seen the statement you speak of, but I have heard about it. It is bosh and nonsense all the way through. I was not at any conference on Friday at Mr. Depew's house and have never denied, asked or suggested his withdrawal. The story is so absurd that a denial of it seems unnecessary and superfluous."

Mr. Platt added that the additional statement that the friends of Mr. Depew and ex-Senator Miller were calling their adherents to New York for a conference to be held tomorrow for the purpose of counteracting the Platt-Hiscock scheme of forcing Mr. Depew off the track was news to him. Inquiry in other quarters failed to substantiate it.

Support for the Home Rulers.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—A meeting of Americans who sympathize with the Irish patriots in their struggle to obtain home rule, was held this afternoon in the common council chamber. Resolutions were adopted greeting Gladstone and Parnell, and bidding them renewed courage in their struggle for home rule, declaring that at no time has American sympathy ever wavered in its support of a people struggling for the right to govern themselves, and we pronounce the statement that the Irish home rule movement has lost that sympathy to be as absurd as it is untrue. Irrespective of creed or nationality, race or religion, we lift up our voices in approval of the course of the English Liberal and Irish representatives in this gallant struggle for constitutional liberty in Ireland, and will gladly hail the day when that country shall have a parliament of her own. We tender not only our own sympathy, but our contributions, to make the cause of home rule successful, pledging ourselves to continued support so long as there remains necessity for so doing. The secretary was directed to forward a telegram to Messrs. Gladstone and Parnell, and $5,500 was raised by subscription in a few minutes in aid of the cause.

GENERAL WASHINGTON NEWS.

Senator Gray in Defence of the Negotiators' Treaty.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the fisheries treaty in open executive session today, and was addressed by Senator Gray in support of its ratification. The questions with which the treaty dealt were not new. The fishery case, in the northeastern waters of British America had not been made by the present administration, or by the present generation of men. It had been made seventy years ago, and had continued through many administrations and through three generations, vexing the diplomacy and jeopardizing the peace of the two greatest nations of the earth. It was not, as had been said by Senator Frye, to be belittled by being localized. If it were belittled, it would not be by him (Senator Gray), nor by the senators on the Democratic side of the chamber. The interests, happiness and honor of the country were involved, and it could not be made to turn on the selfish wishes or the interests or the pecuniary advantage of a small number of capitalists who might reap or lose a profit by the use or non-use of great governmental powers which ought not ever to be invoked except for the protection and advantage of all the people. Party divisions and party distinctions should fade out and be obliterated at the shore line. If he knew himself no partisan considerations could influence his judgment as to the merits of the treaty. Every treaty came before the Senate with an enormous weight of presumption in its favor. It would be a dark day in the history of the country when senators could, in advance of discussion and without evidence, denounce a treaty with all such presumptions in its favor, as cowardly and humiliating.

Senator Gray delivered an exhaustive and powerful plea for the fishery treaty. He reviewed the fishery legislation since the foundation of the Government and argued that the present treaty was patriotic; that it secured every right of the American fishermen and left the tariff on fish where it ought to be left, as a subject to be dealt with by the legislative branch of Congress. In conclusion he said, the Democratic party today was on the American side of this question; the Secretary of State; the negotiators of the treaty were on the American side of the question; and those who defended it in the Senate were on the American side, and the American people would recognize the courage and self sacrificing devotion to their highest interests with which that brave, honest, straightforward, sagacious man (the Secretary of State) had sought to serve them. If, in obedience to a party caucus which sat with closed doors, and kept veiled in secrecy the real motives of the opposition, the treaty should be defeated by a large majority, an appeal would be made to the sober judgment of sixty millions of people, and the brave and honest fishermen themselves would be applied to, whose rights and interests were secured and maintained by the treaty.

At the close of Senator Gray's speech Senator Hoar obtained the floor but further consideration of the fisheries treaty was, on motion of Senator Sherman, postponed until Monday, June 25, and the Senate adjourned.

Rayner Receives Attention.

Rayner of Maryland and Reed of Maine have fought out to a finish their difference. Rayner charged in the House that the Republican party, since its birth, had been the party of combinations, and trusts, and monopolies. Reed replied that he had listened to orations of this kind often before. He had heard gentlemen on the other side, in the most agonized tones, comment upon the running of conventions by federal officeholders before the St. Louis convention. [laughter.] He had heard gentlemen on the other side, in a great state of excitement over the national banks, and he had lived to see a Democratic administration put $6,000,000 of American money into the coffers of the national banks, which were "sucking the life-blood of the country." [Renewed laughter.] The gentleman from Maryland (Rayner) now asserted that half a dozen trusts, combinations or "combines" were threatening the whole prosperity of the country. A flying squadron of the ways and means committee had been sent out to investigate these alleged trusts, and they proposed the destruction of the industries of the United States in order to root out a parasite. Was it not time to look the facts in the face? Was it worth while to continuously lie to the community?

"Time" being called, the gentleman on the other side had nothing more to say on the question.

Senator Frye's Subsidy Clause.

The post office appropriation bill, reported to the Senate today, contains a subsidy clause submitted by Mr. Frye, providing for an appropriation of one million dollars to promote more efficient mail service between the United States and Central and South America and the West Indies. It authorizes the Postmaster General to contract for a period of not less than five or more than ten years with American built and registered steamships for transportation of United States mails to ports in said countries at a compensation of $1 per mile between terminal points on the outward trip. There is a probability that this amendment will become a law although the amount may be somewhat reduced by the House. Postmaster General Dickinson favors such appropriation and will carry out its provisions if it becomes a law.

In the House.

In the House today, under the call of States, bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Mr. Herbert of Alabama, providing for an assistant Secretary of the Navy.

By Mr. Dougherty of Florida, a resolution instructing the committee on ways and means to report to the House, a bill, first repealing all laws providing for internal revenue taxation and removing all of said tax, except that now collected upon spirits, distilled in whole or in part from grain and upon malt liquors; second, providing for the levy and collection of graduated tax upon all incomes of persons, corporations, associations and trusts of $5000 and upwards, per annum, the proceeds to be devoted exclusively to the payment of pensions; third, providing that all articles or products manufactured or produced in the United States, shall enter the ports of the United States free of all import duty.

By Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, to increase the efficiency of the medical corps of the navy.

The House proceeded to the consideration of District business. The first bill called up was that to increase the police force of the District of Columbia. Messrs. Grosvenor and Woodburn of Nevada addressed the House. Mr. Woodburn made a bitter personal attack upon Mr. Cox of New York, taking for his text extracts from Mr. Cox's tariff speech, in which he characterized Nevada as a "rotten borough," and ridiculed its representatives in the House. Mr. Woodburn made an odious comparison between Nevada and New York city, and slurred Mr. Cox's name. Mr. Cox replied. The bill then passed, as did also the bill to provide for police matrons in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Spinola of New York asked unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the joint resolution appropriating $25,000 for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Mr. Breckenridge of Arkansas objected, on the ground that war celebrations in any portion of the country were conducive to no good.

The House then adjourned.

For Generals' Widows.

The House committee on invalid pensions today ordered favorable reports on the Senate bill granting pension to the widows of Major Generals Kilpatrick, Casy, Mower and Ord. The committee amended each bill, however, by reducing the amount of the pension from $100 to $75 per month.

Useless Talk.

A thinly attended caucus of the Democratic representatives talked three hours tonight upon the tariff bill, to devise means for expediting action. Nothing definite was accomplished.

Maine Postal Changes.

A post office has been established at Jemtland, Aroostook county, with Jacob Hedman postmaster.

A post office has been established at West Madison, Somerset county, and George W. Hall, J., commissioned postmaster, the office to be supplied by special from North Madison, two months.

Special service is discontinued to Trevitt, from North Boothbay; and to Sunset from Deer Isle.

Notes.

The Senate committee on judiciary today further considered the nomination of Melville W. Fuller, to be Chief Justice, without result. The meeting continued nearly half an hour after the Senate had assembled, and the case was then postponed for two weeks.

Delegates Who Thought They Wanted Burleigh See the Light.

The night before a great convention is always a time of excitement, of apparent confusion though real order, of energetic work at critical points, backed by cool planning by leaders more or less skilled according to their aptitude and experience. Last night was no exception to the general rule except in that the excitement was far more intense than usual, the work more active, while the leaders pitted against each other were the ablest and most astute in the Republican party of Maine. Three candidates were in the field, and the arguments pro and con were correspondingly numerous. The Falmouth Hotel was the centre of the contest, and in its lobbies, its parlors and corridors were gathered the old men of the party who have led it for a quarter of a century, the younger leaders who are looking forward to the next quarter of a century, and hundreds of the delegates who for the first time found themselves in the turmoils of the night before convention. To mention the prominent men there would be to call the roll of the prominent Republicans of Maine. Mr. Cleaves, Mr. Marble and Mr. Burleigh were all there, with their headquarters in the parlors on the second floor of the hotel. Prominent in these headquarters were the old guard leaders who rallied about Governor Marble, George D. Bisbee, of Buckfield, Mark F. Wentworth of Kittery, General Charles Hamlin, of Bangor; Col. Francis E. Heath, of Waterville; S. I. Abbott, of Waterville; Senator Herbert M. Heath, of Augusta; Mayor J. W. Wakefield, of Bath; Dr. A. C. Hamlin, of Bangor; Dr. A. R. G. Smith, of Whitefield; Hon. C. A. Packard; Hon. Amos Allen, of Alfred; J. F. Sprague, Esq., of Monson; ex-Senator George E. Weeks, of Augusta; Hon. E. E. Rand, Councillor Hunt, Hon. Fred Atwood, of Winterport; Hon. I. C. Libby, of Burnham, and many others.

In Mr. Cleaves's headquarters near by there were passing to and fro equally prominent Republican leaders of this city and the State. There were S. R. Small, Lyman M. Cousens, W. W. Latham, Albion Little, H. G. Briggs, Judge George Gould, Col. Fred N. Dow, James F. Hawkes, Wm. H. Looney, and other members of the Portland and Young Men's clubs; ex-Governor Frederick Robie, Hon. Fred Richards, Judge Wiswell, of Ellsworth; Senator C. C. Burrill, of Ellsworth; Hon. C. E. Littlefield, of Rockland; Hon. T. R. Simonton, of Camden; Hon. E. C. Goodenow and Representative Clark, of Calais; L. T. Carleton, of Winthrop; Judge Emmons, of Saco; William Mason, of Limerick; Andrew Hawes, of Deering; F. M. Higgins, of Limerick; H. A. Shorey, of Bridgton, and many other prominent men of the party.

In Mr. Burleigh's headquarters, conspicuous were Secretary of State Oromandel Smith, Deputy Secretary of State S. J. Chadbourne, and Clerk John B. Cotton of the Secretary of State's office, Adj

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

A Republican State Convention will be held in

CITY HALL,

Portland, Tuesday, June 12, 1888,

At 11 o'clock, A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, to be supported at the September election, and transacting any other business that may properly come before it.

The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate, and for each seventy-five votes cast for the Republican candidate for governor in 1884 an additional delegate, and for a fraction of forty votes in excess of seventy-five votes, a further additional delegate. Vacancies in the delegation of any city, town or plantation, can only be filled by residents of the county in which the vacancy exists.

The State committee will be in session in the reception room of the hall at 9 o'clock on the morning of the convention, for the purpose of receiving the credentials of delegates.

All electors of Maine, without regard to past political differences, who believe in protecting the industries of this State and its agricultural products; who believe in protecting the laborer and the wage-earner in every right; who believe "in choosing a policy which inspires labor with hope and crowns it with dignity, which gives safety to capital and protects its increase, which secures political power to every citizen, comfort and culture to every home" giving free popular education to the people; in favor of free suffrage and an honest counting of ballots; who approve the prohibition of the liquor traffic and the promotion of the cause of temperance; in an economical, just and efficient administration of public affairs; a faithfully administered civil service; and who uphold all judicious measures for the encouragement of American ship building, are cordially invited to unite with the Republicans in the selection of delegates to this convention.

Per order Republican State Committee.

Portland, Me.

Attorney General Garland and Secretary Whitney express their intention of not remaining in the Cabinet after the fourth of March next. The Republicans will relieve them of the necessity of writing resignations.

Ohio is prolific in Presidential timber. Major McKinley is now mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination. He has many strong points, but Sherman has the Ohio delegation behind him, and if the candidate is taken from that State Sherman will be the man.

There is a good deal of truth in the remark of a prominent Republican last night. "A lively convention," said he, "is a good omen. It ensures a full Republican vote. There is nothing so discouraging as a tame and lifeless convention."

The great gathering of delegates in the city to attend the Republican State Convention, and the activity and earnest manifested must be very painful to our Third Party Prohibitionist friends who are looking forward to the demise of the Republican party as the condition precedent of their success.

The murder of a postal clerk in a railroad car by a fellow clerk adds another tragedy to the already long list to the discredit of the State of Maine. The circumstances seem to indicate that this crime was committed in the heat of passion, the result of a dispute over a trivial matter. But the attempted concealment of the crime, and the denial of the guilty person are circumstances that tell against the criminal and very strongly against the theory of self-defence which he now sets up.

The Republicans cannot afford to make any mistake this year. The enemy are in unusually good fight trim. They have a candidate personally unexceptionable, and so grateful to the administration that he is likely to receive a good deal of assistance from that quarter. If the Republicans would roll up one of their old time majorities, if they would send good news to the Republicans of other States in September—they must select the strongest candidate available, the one that will poll the most votes. The personal ambition of any man should weigh very little with the convention. The success of the Republican party is of infinitely more importance than the success of any individual.

Judge Gresham's tariff opinions have been somewhat in dispute, and it has been urged against him that he has not been radical enough in his protection views. But Judge Kelley, than whom there is no more radical protectionist in the country, vouches for his soundness on this question and this ought to be sufficient on this point. But Judge Gresham himself publicly stated his opinions on this subject in a speech made in the last national campaign in behalf of Mr. Blaine's election. "Protection to our manufacturers and laborers," he said, "can and should be afforded by taxing only such imports as come into real competition, and admitting others free." "Revenue laws should be enacted with reference to our local conditions and wants. We should legislate in the interest of our own people rather than in the interest of mankind at large."

The Duty of the Convention.

Upon the Republican State Convention which meets here to-day devolves the duty of selecting a candidate for governor to be supported by the Republican party in the coming campaign. It has sometimes happened that the sentiment of the Republicans of Maine has been so overwhelmingly in favor of some particular person that the convention has had no more important duty to perform than to give official expression to this sentiment. Such, however, is not the case this year. There has been no great popular uprising in favor of any particular person. The three gentlemen whose names have been prominent in the canvass have each of them a strong and enthusiastic body of supporters, but no one of them can point to an overwhelming popular sentiment in his favor. On the convention therefore will devolve something far more important than the mere registering of the will of the Republicans of Maine. To it is committed the grave responsibibility of selecting from among the candidates named, and if need be from other gentlemen not yet named, the person who shall to the greatest extent combine the qualities needed in a candidate to lead the Republicans of Maine to victory in September.

And this leads us naturally to consider what qualities are needed in a candidate. A personal character above suspicion is one of the prime essentials. Ability sufficient for the proper discharge of the duties devolving upon the chief executive of the State is another. There is, however, no danger that the convention will overlook these points. There need be no fear that any one deficient in point of character and ability will receive the nomination. All the candidates so far mentioned are admitted to possess these requirements. But a man may not be deficient in these respects and still lack many of the essentials of a candidate of the Republican party for the chief State office this year. These things he may have, and there still exist reasons why he may not be a suitable candidate, or not so suitable a candidate as some other. The ability of a candidate to secure votes is a matter of great importance in practical politics. And other things being equal, it is the part of wisdom to select the man of the greatest ability in this direction. When objections exist against the candidacy of any man which appeal to the thoughtful men of his party and tend to cause them to look with disfavor upon his candidacy these objections ought to be calmly considered and given the weight that is fairly due them by the convention. They cannot be removed by slipping them by without notice. They still remain to be made use of by the common adversary. The fact that one of the candidates whose name is to be presented to the convention today is at present Treasurer of the State has been urged by many thoughtful Republicans as a serious objection to his nomination for the Governorship. This objection is one that the convention cannot afford to dismiss without consideration. It is one eminently proper for it to consider. It does not affect the character or the capacity of the candidate. But it affects his availability. It can be raised and discussed with perfect propriety and without engendering bad feelings. There may be objections to the other candidates. Let the delegates have all the facts and listen to all the arguments for and against each candidate. Then they can vote intelligently, and their decision, whatever it may be, will be accepted with much better grace by the opponents of the successful candidate. The greatest mistake the convention can make will be to refuse to listen attentively and give due weight to whatever may be said in favor of or against the several gentlemen who will be before it as candidates for the nomination.

BANGOR'S BOAST.

A Story of an Old Contest of Portland's Fire Engines.

[Bangor Commercial.]

Of course, No. 3, like No. 6, entertained many visitors and accepted many invitations to go abroad. Once, after the Cascos and the Volunteers, both of Portland, had been here, they invited No. 3 to make a return visit. No. 3 started a subscription paper, headed by Geo. W. Pickering and added to by Messrs. Jewett, Stetson, Prentiss and others, until $700 was raised, and then an acceptance was sent. Money always came easily when the firemen asked for it, and so enough was secured to take along a band of 20 pieces, and when the time came 100 men besides the musicians, took the boat. Previous to the start, Fenno made an address, asking the men to pledge themselves to go as a temperance company, which they did, and not a man of them drank, although it is said one good old Bangor deacon was persuaded to try some red headed lemonade which contained a "stick" whereby he got "fuddled." Arriving in Portland a big dinner was had, a visit was made to the islands in the harbor, after which a big torchlight company surrounded No. 3 and escorted them about the city.

"Keep your wits about you, and your clothes on," said Capt. Fenno, to the men, as they were about to retire for the night. "If Portland gets up a blaze, we'll have a chance at her boys and every man must be on hand."

Sure enough, Portland had a rousing fire. It was in the City Hotel, and the Bangor boys were early on the spot with their machine, and got a station about 200 feet away, but not near water. Evidently something was in the wind, for soon it was announced a Portland tub was to give her water. The boys were in for it and they braced for the contest. They, too, had an "annex," and were pretty sure of victory, though they did not expect such an overwhelming one as came to them.

Plunk! plunk! plunk! came a stream, and with pulleys out, and a hundred strong fellows on them, and the brakes, the Bangor men set their stroke and soon No. 3 "sucked." The Portland engineer was surprised and soon put on his heavy tub, but again No. 3 got short of water. The crowd now clustered about the Bangor tub, and the Portland men, leaving the fire, rushed away for a big reserve engine built in Philadelphia, and added her. Now it was that No. 3 had three streams playing into her, the "annex" was thrown wide open, and every eastern man went his bigness. How the crowd yelled! The Portland men had left the fire, but way up on a ladder were the Bangor firemen sending a big stream into the flames, rapidly subduing them.

Now the crowd howled and cheered on the Portland men, but it was no go. Bangor had them, and fairly beat out the three best tubs Portland could produce. The spectators acknowledging this, applauded them for their victory, and the papers of the next day said Bangor had the best machine in the country. They came home, as may be supposed, full to the brim with joy, and one member said had it not been for the pledge, they would have been well filled with something a great deal stronger than joy ever was. It was probably the first and last time that engine company took a temperance trip, for those were days when the social glass could be found in about every household, and when every well equipped grocery store contained one or more hogsheads of W. I. rum.

When the Portland lads came east there was of course a fire, but in this case No. 3 put it out, although that company were entertaining the visitors. The fire was in Dole's shop, and he was a No. 3 man. To this day members of other companies smile, and say Dole was very accommodating when No. 3 wanted to show her prowess.

Probably Mr. Dole's shop took fire in a regular way, but in those days members of engine companies set lots of fires. Mr. Farnham, father of Col. Farnham, was marshal, and he at one time undertook to break up the practice. Then there was a fire every night, and one or the other engines would rush away before an alarm was even sounded. Marshal Farnham stationed two men in citizens' dress, on each side of the stream, ordering them to catch on to the drag ropes of the first engine out; one near the tongue or pole, and one near the head of the rope, and listen for any accusing remarks. The first fire was in an old barn on the East side. Without any alarm, No. 6, fully manned, came tearing out of the house, and her bell brought out No. 3, also having her crew. Two men on No. 6 talked; one said they were "too early," but the other answered that an inch of candle wouldn't burn over 10 minutes; and sure enough, the flames were just well under way, but had not attracted the attention of the neighbors when the tubs arrived. It was unquestionably one of 6's fires, but No. 3 put it out. One or two men were arrested, but the practice continued long afterwards.

THE PRESS.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 12.

WIT AND WISDOM.

She—I am very sorry indeed, Henry, that I cannot be your wife, but I will be your sister.

He—Not much you won't. I'm the only heir to my father's estate, and you bet I don't intend to cut it in two for a made-to-order sister.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Mrs. Squildig—I suppose, Mrs. Snaggs, that your daughter graduates this year. When do the commencement exercises begin?

Mrs. Snaggs—Yes, dear Jennie will be through college next week. Dr. Firstly will preach the tobaccalaureate sermon next Sunday.

To be free from sick headache, biliousness, constipation, etc., use Carter's Little Liver Pills. Strictly vegetable. They gently stimulate the liver and free the stomach from bile.

Woman—After you've eit that pie will you saw a little wood?

Tramp (eyeing the pie)—Yes, ma'am, if I'm alive!

You hardly realize that it is medicine, when taking Carter's Little Liver Pills: they are very small; no bad effects; all troubles from torpid liver are relieved by their use.

The teacher had just been explaining to the class the Christian teaching of forgiveness.

"Now, Bobby," she said, "suppose Johnny Blossom should hit you with a stone or with his fist; what would be the Christian way of treating him?"

"I'd tick him first and I 'spose I'd forgive him afterwards," replied Bobby.

ALL good grocers sell and recommend Burnett's Flavoring Extracts. Housekeepers should ask for and insist upon having these goods, and send back the nauseous mess sent home under the name of extracts.

Lady of the house—Have you a young man?

Applicant for position—No, mum. I don't believe in the young man principle. I have six that come regular, and I enjoy a much greater diversity of entertainment than if I confined myself to one exclusively.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

AN EXPLANATION.

What is this "nervous trouble" with which so many seem now to be afflicted? It you will remember a few years ago the word Malaria was comparatively unknown,—to-day it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word covers only the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in time past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and Malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called Biliousness, and all are caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the Liver which in performing its functions finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channel is compelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, Malaria, Bilious Fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its cures are marvelous

Last evening while Sherman Jordan, a switchman, was engaged at his work in the Boston & Maine yard in this city, in some way he was run over by shifting engine No. 9. He was a member of the 20th Maine Volunteers.

Of Interest to Delegates.

Lamson, the well known photographer, whose studio is opposite the Falmouth Hotel offers some interesting facts for the perusal of delegates to the Republican Convention, which they may find by reference to our advertising columns.

Broke His Leg.

Mr. J. T. Lewis, a carpenter for many years in this city, fell from the roof of the new waiting rooms now building on Custom House wharf yesterday and broke his leg. He was taken to his home, No. 23 Hampshire street, and a physician called.

Social Purity.

The second lecture of the course on Social Purity was given by Mrs. Drake in the chapel of State street church yesterday afternoon.

The subject for the afternoon was "Physical Culture." The lecturer began by referring to the inter-relations of body, mind and spirit, saying that the study of these inter-relations is modern. At one time in the ancient world the highest ideal was the warrior. A step in advance of this was a sound mind in a sound body. In the earlier ages of Christianity, some of its leaders insisted of relating spirit to mind and body, set off spirit against mind and body. As Christianity comes to be better understood it has changed ideals, and the demand now is for symmetrical development of body, mind and spirit. This makes the mother's work harder. She must watch and develop the weakest part. The form which civilization takes in America demands that we adjust ourselves to it. To do this we must understand our environment. What is the physical condition of our nation today? Those who come to us from other lands say we are a nation of invalids. The truth is, we endure a strain which would kill the Indian. Yet the fact remains that our civilization makes too much demand upon nerve power. We use up nervous energy faster than we can generate it. We are living beyond our means physically, and that means physical bankruptcy. How shall the nation be brought back to living within its means? The strain of business is intense and the effect of business ambition is to take men more and more away from home. The home life must be strengthened, and a spirit of contentment be cultivated to balance the spirit of ambition.

How shall women meet the demand of our civilization in its increased nervous strains? By saving force rather than wasting it. And the speaker here gave three suggestions. Select, simplify, systematize. Don't try to do everything. Simplify in diet, dress. Plan, do, succeed, and the effect will be harmony, tone and nervous strength.

How shall children be prepared to meet the demands of the age? Keep them children as long as possible. Make them understand the value of health, and that it is as really wrong to violate physical law as spiritual law.

Mrs. Drake referred to the fact that a highly cultivated nervous organism throws off the old diseases, while it falls a victim to new diseases related to the exhausted nervous condition of the nation, and after brief reference to Christian science and faith cure concluded by saying that one living in a spiritual atmosphere will often rise above disease.

The remaining lectures of the course will begin at four p. m. instead of three as heretofore, and single tickets can be obtained at the door each afternoon.

Rev. E. A. Cummings, residing at Maplewood, Mass., died early yesterday morning from the effects of a fall from a building upon which he was at work on Friday afternoon. He was about 60 years of age and for a number of years was pastor of several Baptist churches in Maine. For the past five years he has carried on an extensive real estate business and has built a large number of houses.

Hon. J. Manchester Haynes, committeeman for Maine, departed for Chicago yesterday to attend the meeting of the National Republican Committee, which occurs Thursday evening. He will be re-elected there being no other candidate.

Hon. C. A. Boutelle arrived at his home in Bangor yesterday with his family. His stay will be brief as he will depart at once for the Chicago Convention.

The Haydns.

The Haydn Association closed the season last evening with the "Creation," at Mechanic's Hall. The association will adjourn for awhile, resuming rehersals the latter part of September. There was a good audience in attendance and a fine rendering of the Creation was given, especially when the fact that it is given without an orchestra is taken into consideration.

The soloists were: Mrs. G. H. Fellows, Soprano, Mr. W. H. Stockbridge, Tenor, and Mr. J. B. Coyle, bass. Among the numbers deserving especial notice we may mention, in part first, the bass solo, "Rolling in foaming billows," the tenor solo "With verdure clad," and the chorus "The Heavens are telling." In part second, the soprano solo "On mighty pens," the tenor solo "In native worth" and the trio "On thee each living soul awaits" and the chorus "Achieved is the glorious work." In part third, the duet and chorus "Of stars the fairest," the duet Graceful consort," and the final chorus "Praise the Lord ye voices all." The solos were finely sung. The strong bass voice of Mr. Coyle, the sweet tenor voice of Mr. Stockbridge, and the clear, crisp voice of Mrs. Fellows, with her distinct enunciation, all appearing to good advantage. The choruses were sung with effect and nicely shaded under the efficient leadership of Mr. Kotzchmar, and the excellent piano accompaniment of Mr. Murray.
