ORRINGTON'S CENTENNIAL

Marked by the Presence of the Centennarian of the Town.

BANGOR, June 28.—The centennial of the incorporation of the town of Orrington, the oldest in the county, was celebrated today with elaborate ceremonies. An immense crowd was present, including absent sons, daughters, the descendants of early settlers and citizens of Orrington and the surrounding towns. The day was fine, and everything passed off in the best manner. The presence of Mrs. Ryder, the oldest woman in the town, if not in New England, was the marked feature of the day. Mrs. Ryder, who is 104 years and 6 months old, was introduced amid great applause. An historical address by Col. J. W. Porter, an address by Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, of Bangor, and an oration by Rev. Mark Trafton, D. D., of Boston, were listened to with close attention, as were the poems by Miss H. G. Rowe, of Bangor, and Miss Rebecca R. Pierce, of Orrington, and historical sketches of early families by various gentlemen. A fine dinner was served, guns were fired, and there was a game of base ball, with fire works in the evening. The Bangor band furnished the music.

Orrington sent 242 men to put down the rebellion, one half of the number liable to service, and one-eighth of the entire population. No liquor has been sold in the town for 58 years.

His Augusta Friends Make an Anniversary Memorable.

[Special to the Press.]

AUGUSTA, June 28.—Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Burleigh were surprised tonight, on the occasion of their 25th marriage anniversary, by about fifty persons, consisting of heads of departments and clerks at the State House, with their ladies. A very pleasant evening was spent with the next governor and his wife. Hon. N. A. Luce, in behalf of the company presented an elegant silver water service.

Adds Another to Her Splendid Series of Victories.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., June 28.—The regatta of the Eastern Yacht Club today was the most successful ever held in these waters. Wind and weather made a great racing day. The start was made at 11.30. The yachts all went off prettily. The interest centered in the Volunteer, Puritan, Xara and Baboon. The race between the Volunteer and Puritan was somewhat exciting the first two hours. Then the Volunteer passed her competitor and held such a lead that the race was practically settled. The Xara and Baboon kept up a close contest for the race was very exciting.

GENERAL NEWS.

The city of Nashua was gaily decorated yesterday in honor of the parade of the French societies in convention there. The procession was long and imposing.

The New York Herald has a story to the effect that Senator Sherman is angry with Gen. Alger, alleging that Alger bought up South ern delegates to the Chicago convention in order to defeat him.

The official canvass of the Oregon congressional election shows that Hermann, Republican, had a plurality of 7408.

The French copper syndicate for two years past, has bought seven-eighths of the output of Japan.

Captain Warren, of the Gloucester schooner Alice C. Jordan, has made affidavit denying the charge made against him of cutting the nets of Canadian fishermen.

The second big raft will be launched at Joggins, N. S., next week.

College Notes.

At the annual meeting of the Colby Base Ball Association the following officers were elected: Beecher Putnam, president and manager; G. N. Hurd, vice president; C. W. Averill, secretary; Frank Nye, 1st director; J. E. Burke, 2d director; George Gorham, 3d director; A. J. Roberts, captain of the college team; G. N. Hurd, captain of the reserves; E. T. Wyman, scorer; A. T. Watson, sub-scorer.

For several years there has been in the treasury of Bates the sum of $800, which was given toward the ennowment of a chair for a woman professor. During the past year pledges of money enough to bring this sum up to $2,825 have been received, and it is thought the endowment will soon be completed.

Disappearance of the Mackerel.

[Belfast Age.]

It is something singular that no mackerel have appeared in Penobscot bay for the past three years. What the cause is, no one can tell. Some say it is the absence of pogies; some say the steamboats have frighted them away. But why did the codfish and haddock disappear? Twenty years ago a boat could be filled with these fish in a few hours, near what is now called the monument; now only a few tommy cods or small pollock, and an occasional cunner is fished up about the wharves. Well, the most we can say about it is that times have changed, and fishes have changed with the times. But the luscious salmon still remains; lobsters still are quite plentiful, and the jucy clam is still abundant about our shores. Let us be thankful that so much is left to us, make up our chowders, and be happy yet.

A TALK WITH MR. MANLEY.

He Says Mr. Blaine's Friends Controlled the Convention

And Sought to Prevent the Nomination of Their Leader.

What Senator Sherman Says of the Great Assembly.

[Special to the Press.]

AUGUSTA, June 28.—The Maine delegates to the Chicago convention returned home this morning. They left Chicago Monday night, having been furnished by the Wagner Company with the special car "Scotland," which accompanied them through to Boston. Your reporter called upon Mr. Manley, one of the delegates-at-large, and from him obtained the following account of the convention, which will be of interest. Mr. Manley said: "The Maine delegation had a very difficult task to perform. We were present at the convention to prevent, not to secure Mr. Blaine's nomination. Mr. Blaine had by letter urged his friends from Maine to see to it that his Paris letter was strictly observed. There was only one condition under which Mr. Blaine could have consented to accept a nomination, and that was by the withdrawal of all the other candidates. This, of course, was a possibility, but never a probability. The Maine delegation acted in perfect harmony, and, the friends of all the candidates concurred in saying, wisely. Under the situation in which they were placed, they thought it the part of good politics and good taste not to cast their vote unitedly for any candidate. because at the last three National conventions Mr. Blaine had received support from the friends of all the candidates in this convention, and for Maine now to take a positive stand for any one candidate would be unjust to the others. The Maine delegation determined to pursue this course from the beginning to the end, and it was rather a novel sight to hear members of the Maine delegation pleading with other delegates not to cast a vote for Mr. Blaine under any circumstances. There was not a time during the convention but that Mr. Blaine could have been nominated, receiving 600 out of the 830 votes, if his personal friends had given the word, but they all knew that Mr. Blaine could not accept the nomination under such circumstances, and so pursued the course which they believe meets with the approval of all Republicans.

"Mr. Boutelle, the chairman of the Maine delegation, won great honors in the convention. His speech seconding the nomination of Gen Harrison was warmly commended as the best speech made during the convention. It has been my pleasure," Mr. Manley said "to have attended the last four national conventions, and I have never seen a convention which more thoroughly controlled itself, which was more deliberate and more thoroughly imbued with an earnest desire to make the best selection of candidates than the Chicago convention. The convention was thoroughly under the control of Mr. Blaine's friends, and they united with all the other delegates in proceeding slowly and cautiously with the claims of every candidate, analyzing carefully the situation, and placing in nomination those men who they believed were absolutely sure to lead the party to victory. This was done without any reference to personal friendship, but with a view to the political situation. It was conceded upon all hands that the great battle was to be fought in the four doubtful States of Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Indiana, and the great object of the convention was to get these States to settle upon candidates, believing that it was the wisest political wisdom to pay deference to the opinions of the Republicans of these States, where the battle is ready to be fought. It was this desire which culminated in the nominations of Gen. Harrison and Mr. Morton, and it was the universal opinion at Chicago that the convention had made the strongest nominations that possibly could be made. Gen. Harrison is especially strong and popular in the West, and his candidacy will grow in strength from now until election. The nomination of Mr. Morton makes the ticket strong and popular in the East, where he is widely known as one of the most able and successful business men of the great Empire State. The ticket satisfies every element in the party and promptly unites it throughout the union.

"That we are to have a vigorous campaign goes without saying. It will be a campaign which will arouse all the enthusiasm and the enactusiasm of all the Republicans. It will be entered upon with a full knowledge of the great task we have to perform, and with a keen realization of the strength of the opposition, but with a firm belief that by united action we can win. The platform is the most decisive, emphatic and outspoken that was ever adopted by a national convention. There can be no mistaking its utterances; it declares squarely and broadly for the protection of home industries and home labor, and it provides an effectual and perfect remedy for the increasing surplus of the Treasury. It is a singular fact that the efforts of the Democratic party in Congress to reform, or rectect, not to trying to see how we can reduce the surplus, but to an effort to destroy the great industrial interests of this country through which has grown our prosperity comes.

"The selection of Gen. Harrison, who is as the manager of the campaign, is a notice to the people of this country that our campaign is to be managed with vim and vigor. Gen. Dudley is one of the ablest political organizers in America, a man of the highest character and of great abilities, of untiring energy, popular in manners, and beloved by all who know him. I believe no such wood as fail, and the Republicans can enter upon this campaign under his leadership with no misgivings."

In reply to a question as to when Mr. Blaine would return, Mr. Manley said: "Mr. Blaine will sail on the 19th of July, and reach New York on the 25th or 26th. He will enter at once upon the work of the campaign, and his voice will be heard for the success of the party to which he has devoted the best years of his life. Preparations are already being made to give him upon his arrival in New York a grand ovation and reception, and I predict that his trip from New York to his own home in this city will be a series of ovations such as have never been accorded to any other American citizen."

Mr. Manley said that at Chicago he made arrangements for a large number of speakers to take part in the Maine campaign, and the work in this State will be commenced at an early day, and prosecuted with more earnestness than ever before.

Senator Sherman's Views.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Senator Sherman was asked what he thought of the make-up of the Chicago convention and its conclusions. He replied that he did not know that it was proper for him to make any comments on that subject, inasmuch as his name had been presented before the convention, discussed and balloted upon, but that he was now a free American citizen again, and that, viewed in that light, he could not see anything improper about his making some observation. He began by saying that the convention was a very marked and able body, and was the master of itself, from its organization to adjournment; that it was not easily stampeded, and proceeded with great deliberation from beginning to the end. "I think the platform," said the Senator, "is the best statement of principles by a political party that I ever read. It is clear, conclusive, and there is no evasion or avoidance in it. It is a mild announcement of the objects and aims of the Republican party.

"In comparison with the Democratic platform it stands in about as striking a contrast as the acts of the Republican party for the last thirty years stand with those of the Democratic party. There are a few things about the convention that are worthy comment. The exclusion of the regular delegation from Virginia was an act of injustice. Mahone and his delegates represented nine-tenths of the Republicans of Virginia, including more than 30,000 Confederate soldiers in the white counties of that State. They had gradually obtained control of the large majority of the white counties which are now represented by several members of Congress, and all but one of whom are friends of Mahone. If the convention had understood the real facts in Virginia it would not have rejected the Mahone delegates. The quarrel between Messrs. Wise and Mahone was very unfortunate. Both men are of high temper, of excellent character and good Republicans.

"The convention met with another difficulty," continued Senator Sherman, "by being under the shadow of a candidacy of Mr. Blaine, but which was not announced. He has a great following in the Republican party and would have been nominated without dissent. He would have conducted a campaign to reverse the election of Grover Cleveland. For reasons known to him he declined to be a candidate, yet his followers made him a candidate from the beginning of of the convention.

"This rejection of Mahone, every attempt to organize, and every ballot was affected by his suppressed candidacy. If he had been openly named as a candidate and taken the chances life the rest of us, it would have appeared that he could not have been nominated—not on account of opposition to him, but for prudential reasons.

"His followers insisted that every candidate should successively encounter the field, expecting each would fail to get the requisite majority of all the votes, so that no one would be left to object to the nomination of Mr. Blaine. They were not willing to submit him to this test. The votes of his followers were, whether by intent or not, carefully distributed, some to vote for him on each ballot, and others to vote so as to prevent an agreement, and thus to create irritation and bad blood. Hereafter in future conventions no vote should be counted except for persons openly and frankly announced as candidates. The theory of the nominations made was that the doubtful States were to furnish the candidates, and upon this theory the persons living in Republican States were discriminated against, and the New York delegation practicallo dictated both nominations, and did not consider the vote for any person not a resident of those States.

"To this theory the convention unwillingly yielded. I sincerely hope that the election will show that it is the correct theory. Both Harrison and Morton are gentlemen of high character, good Republicans, and ought to be elected; but whether the theory of their selection was a correct one will be best judged by the results. I have known Gen. Harrison intimately for six years. We sat side by side and I know him to be an able, consistent, and thorough Republican, and, I believe, very popular in New York. It goes without saying that I will do all that I can to secure their election. They have been fairly nominated and are entitled to the support of every honorable man who participated in the convention, and every Republican who is in favor of the principles of protection against free trade, and an honest vote against cheating and forgery. The campaign will undoubtedly be conducted upon high grounds."

LEO ON LIBERTY.

The Church not the Enemy of Democracy.

ROME, June 28.—The Pope's encyclical on liberty says: "Human liberty in individuals, as in societies or governments, implies the necessity of conforming to the supreme national law which emenates from God. The church is not the enemy of honest, legitimate liberty, but it is the enemy of license. The church is not an enemy of Democracy, and rejects no form of government."

Foreign Notes.

The Berlin correspondent of the London Standard telegraphs that Emperor William, with an imposing suite, will embark on the imperial yacht on July 13 or 14, and proceed direct to St. Petersburg, where he will remain several days. During his stay magnificent fetes will be given in his honor.

THE STATE.

ANDROSCOGGIN COUNTY.

The wedding of Rev. Samuel A. Blaisdell and Miss Mary G. Hall of Auburn occurred at the Court street Free Baptist church Wednesday morning. The pastor of the church, Rev. T. H. Stacy officiated. Miss Emma Brann of Auburn acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Davis, of Bates College, as groomsman. Rev. Mr. Blaisdell is pastor of the Free Baptist church in South Parsonsfield, Mass., and is a graduate of Bates College. The bride has, for some time past, been a teacher in the Auburn city schools, and more recently has taught the Spring street grammar school.

The Bates Manufacturing Company of Lewiston has declared a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent, payable July 2d.

The Lewiston Journal tells the story of Miss Jennie Armstrong, who, 18 years ago, left Lewiston a pale, emaciated girl, who weighed only 95 pounds, and whom everybody said would die with consumption within a year, now comes home from Italy a plump, healthy woman, with a great reputation as a singer and a professional name Mlle. Avigliana.

F. W. Dana, president of the Lewiston & Auburn Horse Railroad, and a committee of associates have been empowered by the railroad commissioners to construct a steam railroad from Auburn to East Auburn. A narrow gauge road will be built at once.

FRANKLIN COUNTY.

The people of Strong village will celebrate the Fourth of July.

HANCOCK COUNTY.

The Sullivan Land Company are carrying out some original ideas in regard to their new resort opposite Bar Harbor. A magnificent new cafe is to be erected in the form of a Swiss chalet, which it is claimed will, when completed, one of the most luxuriously appointed cafes on the eastern coast. To complete the realism, waitresses attired in the national Swiss peasant costume are to be in attendance.

KENNEBEC COUNTY.

The case of Loren P. Judkins against the Maine Central railroad for damages sustained by being knocked from a brake in Waterville yard, has just been settled by the Law Court in favor of the road. In the trial Judkins got a verdict, and the road carried it to the Law Court on a motion to set aside the verdict.

LINCOLN COUNTY.

Llewellyn Quimby, the confessed murderer of the late William Kenniston of Boothbay, is still incarcerated in the county jail at Wiscasset, awaiting trial at the next term of the Supreme Court, to be held in Wiscasset. Quimby gets through the day very quietly, passing his time either in reading or looking out of his cell window. The jail sits on a high piece of ground, and affords an excellent view of the town. He is very quiet, and has very little to say to the other inmates of the jail, all of whom are in for petty offences compared with his terrible crime. He never refers to his deed, and makes no talk concerning himself to any one. He has not expressed the slightest sorrow or regret at killing Kenniston. W. W. Wiscasset lawyer has been engaged to defend him.

PISCATAQUIS COUNTY.

A sad accident occurred on Saturday last, a short distance above West Cove, Greenville, at Camp No. 2. One man was thrown a hundred feet by a blast, into the water and instantly killed. His companion received severe injuries about the head and face. They were both New Brunswick men.

Notes.

The Dusters of Saco would like to play some strong club of Portland next Saturday at Portland, and give them a return game the next Saturday at Saco. Address Fred Burns, Saco, Me.

The South Portland base ball nine will play the Presumpscots at the Portland grounds Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Each nine is composed of good ball players, and an excellent exhibition may be expected.

The League games at Detroit, Philadelphia and Indianapolis, and Association game at Kansas City postponed on account of rain.

The Bostons yesterday released Sutton and Burdock.

It is expected that by the middle of next month a base ball league will be formed and a schedule of games arranged, Bath, Brunswick, Gardiner, Augusta and Lewiston taking part in the race for the pennant. The Globe Newsboys are to make another trip into the State the latter part of next month.

Political Notes.

A Young Men's Cleveland Club has been formed in Bangor for the campaign.

The Republicans of Ellsworth will have a grand flag raising Saturday.

Benjamin Bunker's Democrat speaks thus this week: "When is the shouting for the Democratic nominations to commence? There is a painful silence just now. Perhaps there are some of the waiters who can uncork a few bottles of enthusiasm."

C. E. Allon, Democratic candidate for Congress in the second district, is to commence his canvass with a speech in Richmond Monday evening.

Mr. Howard Owen, of Augusta, has in his possession an inkstand which was used in the famous "log cabin" campaign of 1840.

Saco Republicans have raised a handsome flag across Main and near the head of Pleasant street. The flag bears the names of Harrison and Morton at the top and Thomas B. Reed across the bottom. A big flag will be sent away to receive the pictures of the party's candidates and will be raised in about a week, with speeches and a band concert.

It is reported that after the grand reception in New York and a visit to Augusta, Mr. Blaine will make a tour of the country, going to Portland, Oregon, and speaking in the large cities.

IN MEMORY OF JUDGE WORDING.

Ricker Classical Institute's Elegant New Building Dedicated.

Mrs. Wording's Benevolence and the Life Which Prompted It.

Distinguished Alumni Meet in the Halls of Bowdoin.

[Special to the Press.]

HOULTON, June 28.—This has been a memorable day in Houlton. The beautiful edifice, erected for Ricker Classical Institute by Mrs. Catherine L. Wording in memory of her deceased husband, the late Judge W. E. Wording, was dedicated with appropriate services. Judge Wording, who died in Fargo, Dakota, Jan. 22, 1886, was a native of Castine, where he was born in 1812. Desirous of obtaining a collegiate education, with no relative or rich patron to aid him, he made his way to Waterville College, overcame bravely the obstacles which he encountered through a lack of pecuniary means, and was graduated with honor in 1836. For a while after his graduation he was engaged in teaching; then he entered upon the practice of law; for successive terms he was judge of probate for the county of Racine, Wis., after that he was made United States tax commissioner in South Carolina. Since then his home has been in Wisconsin. His life was one of unspotted integrity, and when he died no stain rested upon the name which he had so long worthily borne.

Judge Wording never forgot the struggles through which he passed in obtaining an education, especially in the preparatory part of his course. It was because of this, doubtless, that Mrs. Wording has erected this beautiful memorial for Ricker Classical Institute, one of the endowed preparatory schools connected with Colby University; "the mother," Judge Wording was wont to say, "to whom I owe all that I am."

Mrs. Wording's gift of $30,000 for the erection of this memorial was accepted by the trustees of Colby University at the commencement at Waterville in 1886, and a committee, consisting of Hon. Moses Giddings, Rev. J. Ricker, D. D., and Hon. E. F. Webb representing the University and Hon. A. A. Burleigh and Hon. C. P. Tenney, representing Houlton Academy, since called Ricker Classical Institute in recognition of Dr. Ricker's gifts and services, was appointed. The members of this committee have fulfilled the task assigned to them with rare good judgment, and Wording Hall erected under their supervision, is one of the most tasteful and convenient buildings for academic purposes in the State.

The architect of Wording Hall was Mr. John Calvin Stevens of Portland. The building is built of brick with free stone trimmings. On the first floor are two main school rooms, a library and reading room, mathematical room, class room, teachers' room, drawing room and principal's office. This story is 13 feet high. A broad and ample stairway leads to the second floor, where the chemical room, and other class rooms are located. On this floor, over the main school rooms, is a large assembly hall, with a seating capacity of 500. This hall is finished up into the roof, showing the trusswork of hard pine, and has a raised platform at one end, and a small gallery at the other end, entered from the third floor. The roof is high enough to admit of furnishing in the front end three large, well lighted rooms to be used for classes in painting, drawing and music, and also for a natural history collection. The building is finished throughout with natural woods. In the basement are the steam boiler for heating, coal cellars, water closets, etc.; also two large rooms for gymnastic exercises. But direct and indirect systems of ventilation are employed. All the study rooms are arranged with ample light coming from the left side. The exterior of the building is simple but well proportioned and exceedingly tasteful. The main entrance on Military street is through a low, broad arch, over which is a tablet with the following inscription:

Erected A. D., 1887,
by Catherine L. Wording,
in Memory of her Husband,
William E. Wording,
Who died Jan. 22, 1886.

On the right of this arch a tower, octagonal in form, grows out of the building, crowned with a belfry, the openings of which are so arranged that they can be closed in cold weather, and the room used as an astronomical observatory. On the east side is an entrance from High street through a brick porch, with granite steps and platform. The whole forms one of the best arranged school buildings in the State of Maine.

The services of dedication were held at 10 o'clock. The following was the programme:

Invocation.....Rev. Mr. Hart, of Houlton
Address of Welcome, in behalf of citizens...
.....Hon. Moses Goddings, Bangor
Response of Acceptance...Principal A. M. Thomas
Dedicatory Address...William Herbert Bradford, Lewiston; George Patten Brown, Denver, Col.; Charles Thomas Carruthers, Freeport; John Herbert Maxwell, Waterville; Albert Vose, Dr. Thomas Newton Benedition.....Rev. Dr. Joseph Ricker

Dr. Pepper in his address said:

We celebrate a glad and grateful event. Wording Hall stands complete in stately beauty, and we dedicate it to its high and holy purposes—to God and humanity. We take profound interest in this occasion because of our conviction of the great worth of the academy. This thought underlies our exultation and comes fitly to expression.

The worth of means lies wholly in their end. This building has no intrinsic value. It exists for the Institute. This Institute, like every other institution, is but an instrument, and exists for something beyond itself. Even the culture that it aims to give is worthless save as it issues in the genuine manhood and womanhood of those who receive it. Manhood, the perfection, of the spirit's life, is not a link in the chain of instrumentality, but that for which the chain is made. Building, academy, and culture, all are for the sake of manhood, and from manhood they receive their dignity and glory.

We meet as Christian educators, and so agree that only Christian manhood is genuine. Of this manhood the ideal stands realized in the Founder of Christianity. The school aims distinctively at the development of powers, and so it finds its aim in the developed manhood of Christ. We analyze our conscious life and his in two ways. In the one we have a higher and a lower nature, powers and activities that rise one above the other in rank as a kind of hierarchy. In the other we have powers and activities that are co-equal and co-ordinate. We speak of body, soul and spirit, of a life which is physical, and secular and moral and religious. We also say: "I know," "I feel," "I will." In the former language we note gradation, in the latter co-ordination. So do we analyze one and the same tree, now into branches, trunk and root; again into bark, and sap-wood and heart.

Christ is the school's ideal aim according to each view. In himself and in others he gave to the body its rights, and sought for it soundness and full development, so justifying and demanding physical culture. He was also in the best sense "a man of the world," profoundly in sympathy with all genuine secular interests, a promoter of "the life that now is," and so frowns upon an education that separates and segregates from the life of the times and from the march of human progress in business, or music, or art. But his life crowned itself in all holy, moral and religious fullness and beauty. It was rich in the activities that were of right supreme and regnant. Eminently unchristlian is the system of culture which ignores man's moral and religious nature, his kinship with God, and takes him along his course with eyes forever averted from the skies.

By the second analysis the standard for the schools is given in the development of Christ's powers of intelligence, sensibility and will. The school trains its pupil to clear, exact and systematic thought and expression, and instructs as it educates, else it would not give a product to correspond to the mind of him whose every casual remark was as a flash of lightning in the night's blackness, and whose sustained discourse as the shining of the sun in his strength.

But mere intellectualism is as cold, though as beautiful, as sunlight reflected from Arctic ice-fields. With head there must be heart; with light, heat; with thought, sensibility and sentiment. Nor will the emotional nature take care of itself but in order to attain that infinite richness of expression of which it is capable and which makes the heart of Christ the magnet of all hearts it must be cultivated with infinite skill and patience.

And as Christ was the mighty worker, his will intent, alert, efficient, alike in resistance and achievement, within or without, so must the schools train to manly and heroic action, to mastery, leadership, and conquest. Failure here is failure along the whole line, for through the will all the products of the other powers are brought to their distinct issue. A do-nothing is a nobody.

If such is the aim and such the value of our system of liberal culture, we must recognize all this as belonging to the academy—to this academy and this building—for the academy, founded by private beneficence, under definite religious control, is essential in the system. In New England for at least a thousand years to come no state system of university or preparatory school can displace our voluntary system, or even if it could, it would be a disaster. For only the smallest fraction of your youth can the public high school give its training. And even when it does its best, it lacks and must lack the elements that give the most potent charm and the greatest value to the culture of the ideal academy. It must forever lack the atmosphere of moral, religious and home life.

And so, with praise and prayer, we dedicate to its high Christian mission this goodly structure. We do it in the name of her, here present to-day, who has erected it in loyal love to Christ and to her husband, gone before her to the skies. It fitly bears his name and hers. This, her gift of faith, the Master will receive and bless. May it invite others to like good deeds and may the blessing of Almighty God ever rest alike upon her and upon this beloved academy.

Commencement at Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, June 28.—Commencement day at Brunswick opened clear and cool, but grew cloudy as the day advanced.

A prayer meeting of the alumni was held at 8.30 this morning in the Young Men's Christain Association rooms.

A meeting of the alumni was held at 9 o'clock in Adams Hall. The following officers were elected:

President—Frederick H. Gerrish, '66.
Vice President—Charles F. Libby, '64.
Secretary and Treasurer—George T. Little, '77.
Executive Committee—Alfred Mitchell, '59; Arthur T. Parker, '76; William H. Parker, '76; William H. Moulton, '74.

John L. Crosby, '53, of Bangor; Charles U. Bell, '68, Lawrence, Mass.; were nominated for vacancies in the board of overseers, such nomination being equivalent to an election.

A committee was appointed to arrange a new method of electing candidates for vacancies on the board of overseers. This committee consists of F. H. Gerrish, '66; T. I. Emery, '68, and James McKeen, '64.

At a meeting of the boards of trustees and overseers the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon Melville Weston Fuller of Chicago, and General Oliver Otis Howard. The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Rev. Everett S. Stackpole, Rev. J. E. Adams and Rev. E. Cummings. The degree of A. M. was conferred upon Franklin Simmons.

At 11 o'clock this forenoon, the procession of the alumni formed at King Chapel, and headed by the Salem Cadet Band, marched to Church Hill. The longiproroguing gallery attained men known widely and well, and included graduates as far back as the class of 1826, which was represented by Hon. James W. Bradbury. Among the other members of alumni were Hon. Melville W. Fuller, Judge Appleton, Rev. Egbert C. Smyth, Judge Goodenow and many others.

At 12.30 the graduating exercises occurred at the Congregational church. The following was the programme:

At a meeting of the boards, the degree of A. B., out of course, was conferred on Wilson R. Butler, '85; L. B. Folsom, '85, and Charles A. Byram, '86. The degree of A. M. was conferred on John Fuller Libby, Eben Winthrop Freeman, LL. B. on Eugene Thomas and N. Butler; M. D. on James Safford Morton, L. Bion Folsom, Oliver Richmond Cook, Harmon Nelson Dunham, Frank Nathaniel Whittier, Frank Irving Brown, Alfred Wilson Rogers, Frank William Alexander, William Morse Eames and John Andrews Peters, Jr. The Goodwin prize, awarded for the best written and spoken commencement part was awarded to Albert W. Tolman, salutatorian. After the exercises in the church were concluded, the procession marched to Memorial hall, where the annual dinner was served. Tae after dinner speeches were eloquent and of a high order. The speakers referred proudly to the growth and continued improvement of the methods employed in the institution, and the great success that has distinguished President Hyde's administration. The following were the speakers: Melville W. Fuller, '53; John Marshall Brown, Rev. S. H. Hayes, '43; Egbert C. Smyth, '48; W. P. Drew, '53; C. W. Bell, '63; A. F. Moulton, '73, and George C. Purington, '78.

This evening at the Tontine Hotel there were reunions of the classes of '78, '85 and '88. Yesterday noon there was a meeting of the class '63 in the modern language room. The class of '53 held the regular quintennial reunion last evening. There were present Hon. J. L. Crosley, Rev. J. E. Adams, Hon. M. W. Fuller, Judge H. C. Goodenow, Hon. Thaddeus Simonton, Mr. Wm. P. Drew and Rev. E. C. Cummings. During the evening they were visited by the class of '48, which had been holding a reunion at the same time.

What's the matter with the Pacific coast? That's all right. The Republican majority in Oregon is over 7000.

Dr. Burchard is not enthusiastic for the Republican ticket and inclines to support Cleveland. That is a very bad omen for Cleveland.

Yes, Harrison had a grandfather. He was President of the United States. He had a great-grandfather, too, who was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

"It is very positively asserted," says the Argus, "that Candidate Harrison was a member of the Know-Nothing order." By whom is it so asserted? Is it by the Portland Argus? If so a mass of corroborative evidence is needed.

The Democratic National committee has promptly elected "Seven Mule" Barnum to the chairmanship. Evidently the Free-traders are not going to drive off the Protection Democrats this year nor do they intend to deprive the party of Mr. Barnum's well known expertness at trick playing,

Warner Miller will undoubtedly be the next Republican candidate for governor of New York. Chauncey Depew introduced him in that capacity to the Republicans of Buffalo the other night, and the Albany Journal says it is the general desire of Republicans throughout the State that he be selected.

A Boston Globe correspondent alleges that he has discovered signs of a serious bolt on the part of Maine Republicans against their candidate for governor, and he predicts that the Democrats are going to make large gains in this State in September. In September the Globe will be explaining how it happened that the great bolt did not materialize and how the Hon. William L. Putnam happened to be left.

It will be a good move, and it is now suggested by the Traveller to be put into immediate use, to have, wherever practicable, at all ratification meetings of Benjamin Harrison, some citizens take part who in 1840 voted for his grandfather, William Henry Harrison, in the great campaign against Van Buren and the low tariff. What with a political record among the old citizens and a reinforcement from the new and young voters coming into action, there is likely to be a campaign that will sweep this country of Democracy as old Tippecanoe swept it 48 years ago.—Boston Traveller.

This is an excellent idea. The only trouble will be to keep the old fellows still long enough for the speakers to be heard. That enthusiasm of 1840 was of such an unusual and astounding strength that even after forty-eight years it bubbles out in a way that puts to shame the comparatively tame enthusiasts of this day.

The best informed travellers in England think Stanley will ultimately come out all right, though he may be in some temporary troubles. In a recent discussion before the Royal Geographical Society Sir Francis De Winton, whom the president described as in a position to speak more authoritatively than any other man, declared his belief that Stanley is all right. He thought it probable that he may have met with some resistance during last November, but did not judge that it could have been serious. The speaker also expressed the opinion that the white Pacha, who had been seen by the natives fighting his way through the country, was Stanley. One of the best known of the English war correspondents confirms this opinion, and expresses his conviction that Stanley intended, after reaching Emin Bey, to advance northward to Khartoum. Should Stanley, approaching through the equatorial wilderness, reach the city that the English army could not occupy with the Nile for their pathway, the achievement would be as unique as it would be daring and brilliant.

Nova Scotia Wants Cleveland.

The nomination of Benjamin Harrison has no enthusiasm in Nova Scotia. Indeed there is strong evidence that Nova Scotia is opposed to Mr. Harrison. The Halifax Chronicle, one of the most important newspapers of that region, says: "We sincerely hope that Mr. Cleveland will be re-elected. * * * It is in the interest of the Canadian people that Mr. Cleveland be re-elected, and he will have the sympathy of an overwhelming majority of our people." Well, there is abundant reason why the people of Nova Scotia should take this view of the situation. Did not Mr. Cleveland's commission negotiate a treaty which abandoned the rights of American fishermen in Nova Scotian ports, and practically conceded all the claims that the Dominion government had made for Nova Scotia fishermen? And did not President Cleveland commend this treaty to the favorable consideration of the Senate and the country? If the Nova Scotians have a spark of gratitude in thier composition they ought certainly to shout for Mr. Cleveland. He deserves all the moral support that they can give him. But the Democracy of this country who have undertaken to keep Mr. Cleveland in the White House for four years longer and to protect and foster British interests will, we imagine, be displeased with the effusiveness of the Nova Scotians in his behalf. Whatever secret influence they might exert would no doubt be acceptable. But an open "boom" for him like this of the Chronicle's, is calculated to expose their scheme and therefore defeat its accomplishment. Grover Cleveland no doubt will make an excellent President for the Dominion, but it is bad politics on the part of our Nova Scotia neighbors to shout for him so lustily that they can be heard on this side of the border.

Broken Promises.

The Democratic platform points with pride to Grover Cleveland's administration. Why? Simply because it is the custom for parties to point with pride to administrations for which they are responsible, with little regard as to whether there be anything in them to justify such reference. Certainly there has been nothing in Mr. Cleveland's administration to grow enthusiastic about, except it be that it has done less mischief than it might. So far as it has succeeded it has succeeded by following Republican precedents. Its record is chiefly distinguished for its broken promises to the civil service reformers, whom it beguiled into the Democratic camp by means of loud professions of devotion to their cause on the part of its head. The country in the face of Mr. Cleveland ante-election promises, has seen a clean sweep of the office holders, not for the benefit of the service, but simply to make places for clamorous Democratic henchmen. One of the most important branches of the public service—the railway mail service—has been demoralized so badly as to call out repeated protests from all parts of the country, and no branch of the service has been improved. There has been a complete surrender to the spoilsmen, and what is worse, for months past the President has been using the offices to compass his own nomination. Having painted vividly in his inaugural address the evils of a second term, and spoken words on the subject which were tantamount to—and were so construed by the country—a promise on his part not to seek or to accept a renomination, we find Mr. Cleveland not only accepting without any protest whatever the thing he practically said he would not accept, and could not accept without detriment to the country, but also using the patronage of the government to bring about the tender of it. There is nothing in such a record as that to excite admiration. Had Mr. Blaine accepted a nomination from the Republican convention in the face of his letters the Democratic papers would never have tired of denouncing him for duplicity. But Mr. Cleveland's acceptance in the face of his public utterance on the evils of a second term calls forth no rebuke. On the contrary they point with pride to a record in which this duplicity forms a prominent feature and recommend the man who has made it for re-election. Strewn all along the pathway of Mr. Cleveland's administration are broken promises. But the Democracy have turned their eyes from them and concentrated their gaze upon Mr. Cleveland's free trade message which they consider the very high water mark of statesmanship and which in their eyes cures all his defects, now that he has turned over to them without reserve the offices.

The impression among Republicans is that the ticket is all right, and that this is going to be a great year for America.

Effects of Mental Overwork.

[Lancet.]

Some interesting, though not novel, observations on the symptoms of mental fatigue were discussed at a recent meeting of the Anthropological Society. The result of these investigations goes to prove that weariness of mind, the result of work, like other forms of exhaustion, is recognizable under the two different though related aspects of irritability and incapacity. Further careful inquiry into the same subject would probably show that here, as elsewhere, the former of these conditions is introductory to the latter, and is the natural sequel of that stage of apparently successful overaction which is seen when an organ still fully capable is unduly stimulated.

The observations referred to were culled from a series of reports by school-teachers, and included details of their own sensations as well as of the children under their care. The signs of mental irritability were apparent in sleeplessness and nervous laughter; of fatigue, in sleepiness and incapacity for task work. Lolling, yawning, and a languid manner told that the will was flagging. Headache suggested overstrain in study combined with defective ventilation, and perhaps a too sparing diet; while some curious facts bearing on the causation of color-blindness and somnambulism were also noted. Thus, in one case the blue color perception was for a time obliterated, and the sufferer from this defect found herself painting ivy leaves a bright orange; while in another a student, having retired to rest on the eve of an examination, awoke at his desk to find that he had been busily engaged in drawing humorous cartoons relating to a former conversation. Here we have an instance of cerebral irritation due to overwork, which suggests a somewhat close connection between dreaming and somnambulism, and affords a clue to the physiology of the latter condition.

Overwork, both mentally and bodily, is at once the most general and the least regarded form of illness to which we are liable in the present age. Do what we may, it is next to impossible to escape from it; but there is, at all events, a certain satisfaction in being able to recognize its features. We must not forget, however, that it is also to a considerable extent a preventable evil, and it is certainly a matter for satisfaction that this fact is not ignored by the reforming party in the Legislature. Its treatment in individual cases requires chiefly that due attention be paid to the two great essentials of timely rest and wholesome diet. Work, however irksome, may, it is generally allowed, be undertaken on a very liberal scale, if only it is not too continuous, but is broken by timely and adequate intervals of rest. The value of a plain and liberal dietary is hardly less, and we may take it as a maxim for the times that, so long as appetite and sleep are unimpaired, there is no dangerous degree of overwork, and conversely, that a failure in either of these respects should be regarded as a warning signal, to which attention should be paid by relieving the strain of exertion.

Colored Society in Washington.

[New York Herald.

More than 50 colored men hold good paying positions in the classified service in the executive departments at Washington. These people do the same work and draw the same pay that white clerks do in their respective grades. The salaries drawn by these 50 clerks range from $900 to $1,600 a year. In the third auditor's office, one young colored man is paid $1,600, two are paid $1,400 each, and two more $1,200 each. The colored men are esteemed good workers. These clerks form no inconsiderable part of the more exclusive Washington colored society. Associated with them are a number of colored lawyers, physicians, college professors and retired shop keepers. Doctors Purvis and Shadd, the two surgeons in charge of the Freedman's hospital and their wives are among the more prominent members of this social set, which includes also the families of the Wormley, the celebrated hotel proprietor; ex-Congressman Lynch, of Mississippi; ex-Senator and Register of the Treasury, Blanche K. Bruce, James F. Cook for many years tax collector for the District; Fred Douglass and others. Probably a hundred members of the little coterie are financially well to do. Mr. Cook, for instance, is possessed of a fortune estimated at $300,000; the Wormleys are worth as much more. Fred Douglass pays taxes on $200,000 worth of good city property, and the others value their possessions at from $65,000 to $50,000 a piece. They live in many cases in fashionable neighborhoods. Their houses are well furnished and the children receive at the Howard University, and less pretentious institutions of learning, educational advantages as good as those to be obtained by their white brethren. The ladies entertain their friends with a dignity and good breeding that would shame many of their white neighbors. Altogether the rich colored residents of Washington enjoy life quite as well perhaps as any who live within its precincts. The aggregate wealth of the colored Washingtonians is estimated at not less than $5,000,000. Many of these persons bought homes a quarter of a century ago in the northwestern part of the city, which was then a dreary waste of common. Of late years this has become a fashionable quarter of Washington, and the advance in property has been so great as to make hundreds of the colored property owners moderately wealthy. In most cases, however, their intellectual development has not kept pace with their material prosperity. Their new found wealth, which, if they were whites, would open every door in Washington to them, gives them no social advantages among the more exclusive of their own race. In this respect the cultivated colored citizen teaches his white brother a useful lesson in social reform. His associates must be men of equal moral and intellectual cultivation with himself, and money will not compensate for these deficiencies, as it seems to in all the more advanced white centres of fashion.

IDOLATRY IN NEW YORK.

The Home of Joss, the Chinese Deity of the Atlantic Seaboard.

[New York Times.]

It didn't matter whether a Chinaman went to Sunday school the other morning, or whether he finished his week's washing and aroused the latent energy of his customer by the insinuation, "No tickee, no washee." He went all the same to Pell street and knocked upon Joss in his new quarters. Joss had recently removed from 18 Mott street and held his first reception yesterday. "Take sup tea," remarked one of his devotees to a reporter. The latter drank the sacred beverage, and was in entire accord with venerable Joss. He is a good old fellow, and showed his yellow teeth benignly from behind his bower of paper flowers. His followers say he deserves a "bully housee." He has certainly got it.

Some time ago it was decided to pull down 18 Mott street, and there was consternation among the Lung-Gee-Tong. Joss, their beloved Joss, would be soon without a home. But, after much skirmishing with the Italian settlers of Pell street, the devout found an old warehouse and at once rented it. Then they proceeded to make it worthy of its tenant. Paint and scrubbing brushes did wonders. Even the lofts they did not intend to occupy the Chinamen cleansed and made as lilies of the field. In order to get as near the zenith of the heavens as they could, they chose the top floor as an abode for the object of their adoration. Tom Lee, the progressive, decided there was no reason why this room should not be the rendezvous for the elect, and by a vote of the Lung-Gee-Tong it became so. The abode of Joss was to be a clubroom, lodge of the Aburn-Mazda-Jehova, F. A. M., as well as the meeting place of what would correspond in English to the Ancient Order of Free and Enlightened Laundrymen. This resolved upon, the Chinaman went to work with a will, and the rooms which were opened yesterday were the result.

The house of Joss is reached by a narrow but neatly oil-clothed flight of stairs. The temple is what might be termed rococo in decoration, there being colors numbering more than the raindrop ever thought of. Oil cloth covers the floor, and from the ceiling hang elaborately-carved lanterns, prayer sheets, offerings of indestructible nature, one of them being, it is said, a bag of chewing gum. Ranged around the walls are teak stools, also beautifully carved, and separated from each other by small tables, resembling pedestals, also profusely decorated. The windows are half hidden with lace curtains, and the south wind blows directly across the temple into the spreading nostrils of the mighty Joss. It is the holy of holies, which gives the keynote to the room. It is the same old Joss of 18 Mott-street, the only difference being in his visiting cards' new address. But before him are arranged the utensils of his worship. Upon silver standards are the emblems of his power, conspicuously ugly being the dragon. Big bouquets of paper flowers, which are upheld by silver holders, and pink candles, half burned, stand on either side. Small receptacles between the insignia of power hold prayer sticks and bits of paper which are sacred to the devil, mainly because when strewn they cause his Satanic Majesty so much bother in picking them up that he loses sight of his original object. These implements of worship are upon a richly carved table, covered with an embroidered cloth. Reporters who have been more inquisitive and tried to ascertain the material of which Joss is composed have returned to their subsequent duties broken alike in body and mind. He is simply announced by the believers as a Chinese puzzle. At the rear of the temple is a kitchen where worshipers of a charitable turn of mind deposit chickens for Joss. The fowls are not of the boarding house variety, the high priest being old and his teeth having been only recently filled. All day yesterday a pot of tea and cups stood on a table to the left of Joss, and all those who came were served. From the roof of the building floated a crimson silk flag, bearing the rising sun and the legend "Abura-Mazda-Jehova," the sacred name of the temple and of the Masonic order. From sunrise until midnight there was a constant stream of Chinamen going to and from the temple, but no more were in at once than could be comfortably seated.

The new quarters of Joss is the meeting place of all Chinamen along the Atlantic seaboard, Joss being the only deity of his peculiar qualities east of San Francisco. He was brought, together with his environments, all the way from the Celestial Empire at a considerable expense. The lodge of Chinese Freemasons, who are as exclusive of the uninitiated as their Caucasian brethren, meets every Sunday night and worships Joss with a deal of insense and snapping of fingers. The company which controls the laundry business in this State, also meets there and apportions out districts for the shops. It never permits competition among its members. It may be noticed that no two Chinese laundry shops are close together. There is always a sufficient population about each to keep it going on a good paying basis. Every week this company meets in the Joss house and transacts business, adjusts differences, and maps out new districts. Whenever a laundryman dies a meeting is held to determine the shipment of his body to China, for it would never do for a reputable man to lie dead away from his ancestors. The Sixth Precinct includes what is known as the Chinese quarter, and the police believe they have about 750 Chinamen within their jurisdiction. Capt. McCullagh says they are exceedingly quiet, and are so peaceable in comparison with other nationalities in his guardianship that he wishes he had more of them.

CITY ADVERTISEMENTS.

CITY OF PORTLAND.

PROPOSALS FOR COAL.

THE Committee on Public Buildings will receive sealed proposals until Friday, June 29, 1888, at 4 o'clock p. m., for seven hundred and fifty tons of best quality Lehigh coal, broken, and two hundred and fifty tons of best quality Lehigh coal, egg size, 2240 pounds to the ton, to be delivered and put in and trimmed in the bins at such of the public buildings and school houses of the city, and at such times as may be designated. The coal to be in all respects of the best quality, and in the best order, and to be well screened on the wharf before delivery, and weighed and inspected by such weigher and inspector as the committee may designate.

Separate bids will be received at the same time for five hundred tons of Cumberland coal, suitable for steam purposes, to be delivered as above.

The committee reserve the right to reject any or all bids. Address CHAS. J. CHAPMAN,

Paine's Celery Compound

CURES Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Nervous Weakness, Stomach and Liver Diseases, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all affections of the Kidneys.

WEAK NERVES
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nerve Tonic which never fails. Containing Celery and Coca, those wonderful nerve stimulants, it speedily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood. It drives out the lactic acid, which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonics, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worse cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION
PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularity surely follows its use.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WARM WEATHER

Is at hand and families will soon flock from the city to their summer homes. We wish to announce that our system of delivery enables them to buy their supplies of us as well as when living in town. At most of the inland and seashore resorts it is difficult to supply the table with choice fresh goods from the local trader. Even if procurable the prices are generally so high that those purchasing their supplies of us are well repaid. All goods will be neatly and securely packed and delivered, freight paid at your nearest railroad station or steamboat landing. We guarantee the goods to reach you in perfect order, and anything proving unsatisfactory can be returned at our expense and money will be refunded.

TO THE HOLDERS OF
United States 4 1-2 Per Cent Bonds,
DUE 1891.

We beg to call your attention to the fact that the above mentioned United States Bonds at the present price yield only
Two and One-quarter Per Cent
(2 1-4) interest, and that as they approach maturity the price will decline until the whole premium will be wiped out.
We therefore advise the holders of these Bonds to sell or exchange them for other securities. We have on hand a desirable list of City, County, Railroad and Water Bonds, suitable for Trust Funds, and would be pleased to have the holders of the above mentioned Bonds communicate with us.

State of Maine 6s, due 1889,
[which have now only ONE YEAR more to run] to the importance of availing of the premium which can now be realized upon them, as a few months hence they will command no premium at all. We think it is also important to convert the United States 4 1-2 Per Cent Bonds,
[which now have but little over THREE YEARS to run]
in order to obtain the present high premium which must gradually and surely become less as they approach maturity. We are offering some excellent securities which we can recommend to holders of above bonds, or in exchange for any other securities soon to mature, and we shall be happy to communicate or confer with them regarding such exchange.

Are You Familiar with the Plans — OF THE —
Union Mutual
LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, OF PORTLAND, ME!

DO you realize that this old and sterling company is a HOME INSTITUTION, chartered in 1848 under the laws of Maine?

ARE you aware that this Company has paid to policy-holders or their representatives more than TWENTY-THREE MILLION DOLLARS?

IT has to-day more than SIX MILLION DOLLARS IN ASSETS, and over THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN SURPLUS calculated by the most conservative standards known to the law.

IT pays its losses promptly. Its policies after three years are free from all limitations as to Residence, Travel, Suicide and Occupation. Military and Naval service excepted.

IT has liberal plans. Its affairs are carefully managed by its Board of Directors and Officers, whose integrity and ability are unquestioned.

THE wise provisions of the Maine Non-Forfeiture Law apply only to the policies issued by this Company, and under it extended insurance is provided for in case of lapse after the payment of three or more annual premiums in cash.

THE NEW MAINE LAW CONVERTIBLE POLICY of the UNION MUTUAL contains every desirable feature in a PERFECT LIFE INSURANCE POLICY.

If you will send your address to the Home Office, or to any of its agents, we shall be glad to furnish full information in regard to the Company and its plans.

THE UNION MUTUAL appeals to residents of Maine for their especial patronage, because it is a HOME COMPANY, and because of its age, experience, strong, financial condition, large surplus, equitable and attractive plans and conservative management.

WIT AND WISDOM.

Minister's Wife—I am so glad that you are going to Europe for the summer, Jasper. I think it was so noble of the church to give you this trip. Of course I would like to go too, but that is out of the question.

Minister—Oh yes.

Wife—But is your sermon for to-day?

Minister—"The poor ye have always with you."

Prompt relief in sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose. Small price. Small dose. Small pill.

Taking no chances:

Father—Young Mr. Sampson came to me to-day and said you had promised to be his wife if I would consent.

Clara—Yes, papa.

Father—But you are already engaged to Mr. Babbit.

Clara—Yes papa (with drooping eyes and a beautiful blush), but I wanted to be on the safe side.

At His Post Day and Night, The vigilant imp, indigestion, goads us with his many-lashed scourge. Each lash is a diabolic sympton. No comfort in eating, misery afterwards, little or broken rest at night, visitations of the nightmare during fitful intervals of sleep, an uprising unrefreshed and without appetite, sleepiness and yawning during the day, nervousness and irritability of temper, even monomania in extreme cases. Hard to bear, all this. Necessary? No! A thousand times no, so long as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the nation's specific for indigestion, scute or chronic, is procurable. The commencement of a course of this medicine is the commencement of a cure. Prompt relief first, absolute eradication subsequently. The truth of this statement, backed up by irrefragable testimony, is well known to the American people. So are others, viz.: that the Bitters averts and cures fever and ague and bilious remittant, and removes nervousness, biliousness, constipation, and kidney and bladder troubles.

A little five-year-old went to the Sunday school for the first time. He was very much elated over what he had learned.

"Tell me what you heard to-day," said his mother.

"It was about Lot's wife," he said, becoming dramatic; "And the angel of the Lord said to Lot's wife, skate for your life, and don't you look back; but she did tick back, and turned a somersault."

Are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging. Try them.

Sentimental jail visitor—Of what were you accused?

Interesting bird—Stealing a watch, sir. I proved an alibi with nine witnesses and had 11 witnesses for character, but they gave me four years all the same.

S. J. N. (amazed)—I don't see why you were not acquitted.

I. B.—Well, sir, there was one weak point in my defence.

S. J. V.—And that was——

I. B.—They found the watch in my pocket.

Advice to Mothers.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it prodnces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub, awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

A WARNING.

The modes of death's approach are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from diseases of the Throat and Lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception, receives vast numbers of Tubercle Germs into the system, and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop, at first slowly, and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat, and if allowed to continue their ravages they extend to the lungs, producing Consumption, and to the head, causing Catarrh. Now all this is dangerous, and if allowed to proceed will, in time, cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous, and may lose you your life. As soon as you feel that something is wrong with your Throat, Lungs or Nostrils, obtain a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief. nov8-d1y-cT

At a meeting of the directors of the Portland & Rochester Railroad, held yesterday, a dividend of $3 a share was declared, payable on and after July 14th.

Bergmann's automatic exposition, No. 227 Middle street, is attracting many visitors. It will be open only two days longer, and all should see it before it closes.

New plank sidewalks are being built at South Portland, from Preble to High street, also on Sawyer street, from Preble to Meeting House hill.

The annual excursion of the Second Parish church and Sunday school will occur tomorrow, going to Lake Sebago, according to the advertisement in another column.

There will be a special meeting of Trefdale Association Saturday evening, June 30, at the cottage of Mr. John Evans, at Trefethen's Landing. A full attendance is desired.

Forest City Lodge, No. 16, A. O. U. W., is adding new members at every meeting, having initated four members in the last month, and have one application in the hands of the investigating committee.

At Owen, Moore & Co.'s may be seen the two sets of cups won by the Dirigo Club in the junior and senior four oared races at Worcester last week; also the handsome silk banners accompanying them.

Yesterday 8,000 pounds of mackerel were received at this port. Small fishing boats landed 10,000 pounds of cod, and the schooner Fannie Queen brought 30,000 pounds offshore cod and haddock.

The freight scow belonging to Jas. Jones of Peak's Island, was capsized in the harbor yesterday. She was loaded with twenty-five tons of ice, which was too heavy a load for the heavy wind that was blowing at the time.

A two-horse jigger team, loaded with flour, became frightened at the cars at the Union depot yesterday, and ran away. Several barrels of flour were thrown off and broken open, and a carryall was run into and the axle broken. Nobody was hurt.

Ground was broken for L. P. Hawkins' new shoe factory at Deering, on Ocean street, yesterday. The factory, when completed, will employ one hundred hands. It is possible that Massachusetts parties will erect a shoe factory in the town.

The Biddeford Journal says that a union of the electric light companies of Biddeford and Saco, in both of which Hon. George P. Wescott, of Portland, holds a controlling interest, is among the possibilities, and the talk is that the companies may be eventually merged in the Portland company.

Yesterday a man named Thomas Morgan had his foot caught in the gearing of the hoisting apparatus on board the dredge Bay View, at work in the Back Bay, and badly jammed, so much so that it is feared that his leg will have to be amputated. Rich's ambulance was called, and the injured man taken to the Maine General Hospital.

Yesterday morning after breakfast St. John Commandery were driven about the city, and enjoyed themselves in various ways. They visited Mr. A. S. Hinds' laboratory and enjoyed a collation. They formed and marched to the station, accompanied by a committee of Portland Commandery, taking the 1 o'clock train for home.

A petition will be presented to the City Government next Monday for the widening of Congress street, between Carter street and the Maine Central station, ten feet, to accommodate the great rush of teams on Congress street. It is claimed the street from Carter street to the station should be macadamized.

Portland Turnverein.

The entry book of the Portland Turnverein will positively be closed Saturday, June 30th, after which no entries will be received. The designs for the medals are very novel and striking. They are 17 in number, four of gold and 13 of silver. Each one bears, in raised letters, "P. T." in the form of a monogram, and are suitably inscribed.

Across Lake Sebago.

Beginning July 2d, the steamer Hawthorne of the Sebago Lake route, will make trips daily across the lake, leaving Lake Station on the arrival of the 12.50 p. m. train from this city. The boat will return the next morning, leaving Harrison in season to connect with the noon train for Portland. A trip over the Sebago Lake route is a delightful sail, of more than ordinary interest.

PERSONAL.

Rev. H. P. Winter, of Wilton, is in town.

Prof. Howard Clifford, of New Orleans University, is spending his vacation at his home in Monmouth.

Rev. Theodore Gerrish has been granted a two months vacation by Pine street church with salary.

Hon. E. E. Parkhurst, of Maysville Center, has tendered his resignation of the office of trustee of the Maine State College at Orono.

News of the death of Mr. Daniel Cony at Winchester, Mass., on Monday has been received. Mr. Cony formerly of Augusta, was the brother of Gov. Cony and son of Gen. Cony, the Adjutant General of Maine. The deceased was in his 70th year and has been a great sufferer for many years.

Mrs. Fengar, wife of Captain A. A. Fengar, of the revenue cutter Woodbury, is an accomplished violinist. She has in her possession a violin which is said to be more than two hundred years old. It is very small and differs very little in appearance from the ordinary violin yet its owner has refused $1,500 in cash for her treasure. The instrument is a genuine "Stradivarius" and was purchased in Germany by Capt. Fengar for his wife. The New York World says of her playing: "Madame Fengar took the audience by storm with one of De Beriot's airs. As an encore she played 'Home Sweet Home' with variations, showing herself a thorough master of the instrument."

FAT AND THIN PEOPLE

And Everybody Else Will Want the Next Sunday Globe—"How to Get Thin or Plump," "How to Swim," and a Complete Sylvanus Cobb Story for Next Sunday—Wants for the Million.

BOSTON, June 28.—Another large increase in the circulation of THE BOSTON SUNDAY GLOBE was recorded last Sunday, and the dealers all sold out early.

Another great programme for next Sunday: It includes medical advice as to how thin people can get fat, and how fat people can get thinner. The next SUNDAY GLOBE will also tell how to learn to swim, dive, float, smoke a cigar under water, etc., etc., written by Lundstrom, the champion swimmer of America.

The next SUNDAY GLOBE will also have a complete novel by Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., entitled "The Scarred Cheek; or The Fortunes of a Guitar Teacher," a thrilling and instructive romance. There will be other popular features.

Don't forget to order THE SUNDAY GLOBE of your dealer, and always remember, when you want to buy or sell anything, that the GLOBE prints 5000 wants every weak, and is the great "want" medium of New England.

Delightful Excursion.

The Harmony Syren Club made their first annual excursion to the Ocean House Wednesday afternoon. Had they consulted "old prob" himself they could not have selected a more charming day. Two of Ray's barges were provided and they were closely packed with an enthusiastic party. Arriving at the Ocean House they were met by the committee who had made all necessary arrangements. It is safe to say all were pleased for among all the superb views at the shore none is to be compared with the one from this place. Promptly at 7 o'clock dinner was served and an elegant banquet it was, every preparation had been made by the genial host, the party having the dining room to themselves. After a few remarks by the president the Club adjourned to the hall where arrangements had been made for music and dancing. Mr. Coe sang several selections, among them one composed expressly for the Club, which received hearty applause. Mr. James Judge read a selection in a very excellent manner, showing he was not wholly out of practice. Several other members favored the company, among the interesting features of the evening was the singing of Miss McDougall from Montreal. At half past ten the party started for home just as the moon was rising and a merry, good natured party it was. The committee, Messrs. Coe, Judge and Robeson deserve the greatest credit for the successful manner in which they carried out the programme. Special mention should be made of Landlord Dresser of the Ocean House for his untiring efforts for the comfort and pleasure of the Club. *

The Death of Deputy Warren.

Marshal Harmon has received a letter giving the particulars of the death of Joe Warren. Warren was a special deputy who had a warrant for the arrest of a criminal in the United States. He was also a Canadian officer with papers for the arrest of Malcolm Morrison, a Scotch Highlander, who was arrested by the Canadian authorities. Morrison was at Lake Megantic Village, on the Canadian side. Warren was in the same village. Warren saw Morrison on the street, walked up to him and said he wished a few moments conversation with him. Quicker than lightning Morrison drew a pistol, put it to Warren's head and blew his brains out. It will be seen therefore that it was while acting as a Canadian officer for the Canadian authorities, in a Canadian town, that Warren lost his life. He had been a Western cowboy.

Irish National League.

An enthusiastic meeting of Branch No. 657, of the Irish National League, was held on Tuesday evening, the 26th inst. The sale of anti-coercian certificates is progressing favorably. It was voted to transmit the sum of two hundred dollars received from their sale to the treasurer of the National League for the Irish parliamentary fund. In the meantime those who desire to aid the cause of Home Rule in a practical way should purchase one or more of these certificates. They may be had by applying to the officers or members of the League.

It was voted to adjourn until the fall, subject to the call of the president. Due notice of the next meeting will be given in the papers.

The Campaign of 1840.

The Express has in its possession a silk flag, the property of Mr. W. L. Card, and carried in the campaign of 1840. It has eleven stars in the field, surrounding one large star in the centre, and in the centre of the flag is a log cabin. From a flag pole in the roof waves a banner inscribed "Harrison and Reform." On the roof is a canoe (Tippecanoe), in front is a barrel labeled "Hard Cider," while scattered around is a plow and wheelbarrow.

Mr. J. L. Bradish of this city has in his possession a badge worn by the Young Men's Whig Club in the Harrison campaign of 1840. It is two inches wide and six long and made of white silk. On it is printed a picture of Bunker Hill Monument and the inscription: "Young Men's Whig Club."

Chestnut Street Church.

At the last monthly board meeting o Chestnut street Methodist Episcopal church, the treasurer reported that he had received from the treasurer of the Ladies' Circle the amount remaining due on the parsonage debt and had taken up the last note. The amount of the purchase was $5000. Also that the Ladies' Circle had subscribed and paid $1250 towards the church debt some years ago, when the entire debt was lifted, besides buying the elegant chandelier now in the church at a cost of $200, and that Chestnut street church is free of debt.

A vote of thanks was unanimously extended to the Ladies' Circle for its labors in behalf of the church, and the secretary was directed to send a copy of the same.

Burglaries.

Rev. H. C. Dunham's house in Farrington Place was entered by a sneak thief Monday noon and two purses, besides other valuable articles stolen. In each purse was a latch key to the front door. A purse not taken was afterwards hidden. Yesterday the house was again entered when the servant girl was at home. The hidden purse had been taken and the chamber ransacked. One of the latch keys that was stolen Monday was found in the lock of the front door, indicating that the thief made use of it to effect an entrance. The value of all that was taken from the house in the two visits amounts to about $50.

The house of Capt. Nathaniel Haskell on Munjoy street was entered by a burglar in the absence of the family some time Wednesday. Nothing of value was taken.

HIGH SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

Remarks by Chairman McAlpine and Mayor Chapman.

The High School class of '88 held its graduating exercises at City Hall yesterday afternoon in the presence of an audience that tested the capacity of the auditorium. Principal A. E. Chase presided and the platform was occupied by the class, His Honor the Mayor, Chairman McAlpine and the other members of the High School Committee, Superintendent Tash, and many of the teachers. The front of the platform was bordered with evergreen and field daisies and draped with yellow and white bunting, the class colors. From above festoons of bunting depended. Large vases filled with flowers were placed on the platform. The front of the desk bore a horse shoe of daisies. In the arch of the window, just back of the desk, was the inscription, "'88, E. N. V.," the initials of the class motto, white letters made of daisies on an evergreen ground.

After the exercises, published in yesterday's PRESS, were concluded, and they reflected great credit on the young ladies and gentlemen, Chairman S. A. McAlpine addressed the audience as follows:

MR. MCALPINE'S REMARKS.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The class of '88, of the Portland High School, has completed its work, as a class. We, whom you have chosen to specially direct, care for, and nurture the common schools, deeply conscious of the responsibility you have placed upon, and valuing highly the confidence you have reposed in us, take a just pride in presenting this class, as an example of the result secured by a well arranged system of popular education. We congratulate you, that, with proper effort and self-denial on the part of parents, a good education is within the reach of every child in this city. It may surprise some to know that the requirements for graduation, in the classical department of the Portland High school equal or exceed those of the best colleges at the beginning of this century. The English course is equally thorough and exhaustive. We congratulate you, also, upon your interest in the cause of education, shown by your attendance here.

Nothing is of greater importance to us, as a body politic, and to each of us, as citizens, than the common school system. Upon it, more than upon all else, depends the stability of our government, the prosperity of our country, the comfort and safety of each citizen. It is often said, that what costs the individual nothing directly is usually undervalued. The continued attendance of six thousand children in our public schools disproves the maxim, in so far as many seek to apply it here. But the maxim is misapplied. The major expense of our schools is paid in the time of our children, and the labor and self denial of parents, for the maintenance while attending school. This could not be without a healthful public sentiment. It will show a sad decay of patriotism, of public spirit, and of enlightened self-interest, if the people ever lose their interest and their faith in the common school system—a priceless heritage from our fathers, which must by us be transmitted, in full force and vigor, to those who follow.

"The youth are the hope of the State." Upon them will soon rest the burdens, the cares and the guidance of the world. They must be prepared to keep step with the "increasing purpose" of the age.

So nigh is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When duty whispers low—thou must,
The youth replies, I can.

How bright is our hope; how radiant is their promise; how great will be their opportunity; how grave is our responsibility.

We are apt to belittle our times and our duties. Let us not do so in this case.

"What times are better? To the sentinel
That hour is regal when he mounts on guard."

Well for us if we can so train the mind and shape the character of our youth, that, through them, the world will be better that we have lived in it.

Turning to the class, the speaker addressed them as follows, and presented the diplomas:

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Class of '88:

After long years of labor, you have attained an honor of which you may well be proud. You are now entitled to diplomas, certifying to your proficiency in the studies of the prescribed course in the Portland High School.

It gives me great pleasure to say that you have been a good class, and by your conduct and self-respect have won the respect and confidence of your teachers, and will leave with us all pleasant memories.

The knowledge you have acquired is of great worth, and the mental training gained by your studies will be invaluable. It will aid you to think and judge rightly in the many questions which will challenge your decision in the coming years. It fits you to become intelligent and good citizens, and this, I take it, is the main purpose and end of the public schools. To become valuable citizens is a laudable purpose, and to attain that end should be your ambition.

This for most of you, I presume, is the close of public or private school work. You now enter a greater and far more exacting school than any you have yet attended. Happy will it be for you, if you have so improved your minds that you can grasp its lessons and profit by its teachings. You will be ranked by an unvarying standard, and for the most part at your true worth. "There is no excellence without great labor." However perfect your ideal, and however high your aspirations, it will only be as you put your thought in act, that you will receive or deserve credit.

"The world which credits what is done,
Is deaf to all that might have been."

Slowly with the years, along with the acquisition of knowledge, you have been building what is of far more importance than all learning, and all else—character—for, "conduct is three-fourths of life," and, above all, character rules the world. Upon this, more than upon all else, whether of success or failure, whether of wealth or poverty, whether of prominence or obscurity, will depend your future stations and happiness. No better counsel can be given you, I think, than that, in whatever circumstances you are placed, you adhere, without compromise, to what you believe to be right, and preserve, at all hazards, your individual self respect. This, kept bright will win and command the respect and confidence of your associates and the world. It will determine your conduct. In prosperity it will be a balance and restraint; in adversity a guide and support in both, a safe counsellor. Bear always in your minds, and often recall Shakespeare's immortal lines, worthy to be worn as a jewell upon the heart of every true man and every true woman:

"This above all,—to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

Congratulating you upon this day, and wishing you each and all the fullest measure of success and happiness, it now becomes my duty and my pleasure to present you your diplomas.

The Mayor then awarded the Brown medals, in the following words:

MAYOR CHAPMAN'S REMARKS.

Again are we reminded that, in school life, the climax of interest is reached in the absorbing hour of graduation. Around this brief transition period,—the scene of warm congratulations as well as of regretful farewells,—cluster a myriad of thoughts linking vivid experiences of the past to hopeful anticipations of the future.

Into an occasion fraught with such exceeding interest enters now the sacred offering of memorial to impart additional significance and force.

Its mission to hallow the joy of festivity with sweet remembrance of the departed; to signalize the triumphs of existing merit with suitable tributes of esteem. And it does not fail of its purpose; for, with its coming, reverence and affection kindle at the thought of him in whose memory such honors were established; while no less does its presence bring the inspiration and glory of reward. Never does the school-heart throb with quicker and more responsive pulsations than when, amid enthusiastic applause, beloved schoolmates are accorded public recognition of that merit which the bestowal of the "Brown memorial" medals implies.

Therefore we honor the noble motive which instituted such memorial; we recognize the benefits of its service in practical operation, and extend our heartiest congratulations to the recipients of its honors, not for any intrinsic value which the prizes may possess, but for the story which they tell of resolute purposes; of patient application, of worthy achievement; and, because the evidence of well-doing in the past, the certain prophecy of greater development and success in the future.

The following were the fortunate recipients of the medals:

Grace E. Brown,	Fred P. Armstrong,
Carrie L. Clark,	Arthur N. Dennis,
Abbie L. Farrington,	Leon M. Fobes,
Mabel Hobbs,	Charles S. Rich,
Ella G. Webster,	Benj. G. Ward.

With the singing of the "School Days of Auld Lang Syne" the exercises concluded.

The graduating class had a supper and reception at the Falmouth Hotel in the evening:

RAILWAY MATTERS.

OGDENSBURG & LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

The report of the Ogdensburg & Lake Champlain for the year ending March 31, 1888, shows gross, $727,542; net, $266,665; fixed charges, $251,106; balance, $15,549. The E. L. Day suit to test the validity of the lease of the Lamoine Valley has been decided in favor of the lease, and the matter has been settled by the issue of $350,000 four per cent bonds of the Ogdensburg & Lake Champlain Company.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of real estate in this county have been recorded at the Registry of Deeds:

IN MEMORY OF JUDGE WORDING.

Lawrence, O. B. Clason of Gardiner, and W. H. Judkins of Lewiston were elected members for five years,

The board voted to build a new chemical laboratory, and appointed a committee to raise funds for a fire-proof library building to erect a new building for the Cobb Divinity School, to enlarge the recitation rooms and steam heating apparatus in Hathorn Hall, to secure apparatus for a gymnasium, and secure an instructor.

Twenty-five thousand dollars was appropriated to endow a chair of Greek and Latin to be called the Belcher professorship.

The honorary degree of A. M. was conferred on the class of 1885 in course, and on Rev. H. E. Foss, James H. Freeman and Miss E. L. Knowles out of course. The degree of Ph. D. was conferred upon Prof. I.C. Dennett of Boulder, Colorado.

The Sophomore prize was awarded to Herbert J. Piper, and the Junior prizes to C. P. Emerson and Miss E. I. Chipman.

At the commencement dinner President Cheney announced the donation of $5000 from I. M. Head of Iowa, for the erection of a chemical laboratory.

Class Day at Orono.

ORONO, June 28.—Class day exercises, with all the usual ceremonies connected with the closing day of commencement at the Maine State College occurred in the Town Hall this afternoon, before the largest audience of the week. Andrews's orchestra of Bangor furnished excellent music. The oration was delivered by N. E. Wilson, the history by S. F. Miller, the poem by E. H. Elwell, Jr., of Portland, the prophecy by F. S. Brick, the address to undergraduates by S. E. Rogers, and the farewell address by D. E. Campbell. The class ode was written by J. W. Hatch.

Senator Harrison a Civil Service Reformer.

[Extract from a speech in September, 1882.]

I want to assure you tonight that I am an advocate of civil service reform. My brief experience at Washington has led me often to utter the wish with an emphasis I do not often use, that I might be forever relieved of any connection with the distribution of public patronage. I covet for myself the free and unpurchased support of my fellow citizens, and long to be able to give my time and energy solely to those public affairs that legitimately relate to the honorable trust which you have committed to me.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

SACCARAPPA.

There was a general committee meeting Wednesday night, at Saccarappa, to complete arrangements for the 4th of July celebration which promises to be a grand affair. The programme arranged is as follows:

Biliousness

is more general at this season than any other. The bitter taste, offensive breath, coated tongue, sick headache, drowsiness, dizziness, and loss of appetite make the victim miserable, and disagreeable to others. Hood's Sarsaparilla combines the best anti-bilious remedies of the vegetable kingdom, in such proportion as to derive their best medicinal effects with the least disturbance to the whole system. This preparation is so well balanced in its actions upon the alimentary canal, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach, the bowels and the circulation of the blood, that it brings about a healthy action of the entire human organism, restores the appetite, and overcomes that tired feeling. Try it this season.

"I have taken not quite a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and must say it is one of the best medicines for giving an appetite and regulating the digestive organs, that I ever heard of. It did me a great deal of good." MRS. N. A. STANLEY, Canaseota, N. Y.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D.

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. The Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public. H. A. MOTT, Ph. D.

"The Royal Baking Powder is purest in quality and highest in strength of any baking powder of which I have knowledge. WM. MCMURTRIE, Ph.D.

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, besides affording the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a comparatively high degree of strength, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WE ARE AS BUSY AS BEES IN A HIVE,

But find time to say this much:

IF YOU WILL, YOU CAN SAVE

$ $ $ $ $ $

by helping us to reduce our line of Parlor Suits, Carpets AND Chamber Sets, Stoves AND Ranges.

YOU WANT THE GOODS, WE WANT THE ROOM. We want the cash or your promise to pay. We are taking stock, which necessitates the handling of the Furniture two or three times, which is an immense amount of work, particularly in our crowded Storehouses.

We find we have also a great many Odd Pieces of Furniture,

SOFAS, Easy Chairs ROCKERS, AND Reception Chairs,

as well as Odds and Ends of about everything we handle, that MUST BE GOT RID OF!

These goods are just as valuable to the buyer, but of less worth to us, as our stock MUST BE as complete as possible. We think this so necessary that to make it so we SHALL SELL FOR THE SAKE OF SELLING, and NOT FOR THE PROFIT.

Come this week if you want any of the above at the greatest bargains you ever knew.

STATE OF MAINE.

CUMBERLAND, SS.

Municipal Court, for the City of Portland, June 18, 1888.

D. W. Heseltine, of Deering, in the County of Cumberland and State of Maine, plaintiff, versus Charles A. Leach, whose residence is to plaintiff unknown, defendant, and the Portland Masonic Relief Association, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Maine, and having an office in said Portland, Trustee.

Action of assumpsit on account annexed to recover the sum of eighteen dollars ($18.00) alleged to be due from the defendant to the plaintiff, according to the declaration in the writ.

The writ is dated April 21, A. D. 1888, and made returnable June 18, A. D., 1888, of said Municipal Court.

Ad damnum twenty dollars ($20.00).

Edward F. Tompson, attorney for plaintiff.

Upon the foregoing the Court order: That the plaintiff cause the above named defendant to be notified of the pendancy of this suit by publishing two weeks, successively, in the Portland Daily Press, a newspaper printed in Portland, in the County of Cumberland, an abstract of the writ and declaration, and this order of court thereon, the last publication to be seven days at least before the sixteenth day of July, A.D. 1888, that he may then and there in said court appear and show cause, if any they have, why judgment should not be rendered against them, and execution rendered accordingly.

Attest: EDWIN L. DYER, Recorder.

Abstract of the writ and declaration, and order of court thereon.

Attest EDWIN L. DYER, Recorder.
