CAMP MARBLE.

Arrangements for the Muster of the Maine Soldiers.

[Special to the Press.]

AUGUSTA, Aug 10.—Preparations for the muster are being made as rapidly as possible. Gen. H. M. Mitchell has been in the city to-day on business connected with the encampment and visited the plain on camp ground.

Governor's day will be Friday when His Excellency will review the Brigade. The camp is laid out on the westerly side of the field on a color line about eight hundred feet long. Brigade headquarters will be laid out six hundred feet east of the color liue.

On the right of the brigade headquarters, the large marque for the accommodation of guests of the Governor and Brigade Headquarters will be pitched. Still further to the right will be three tents to be occupied by the Governor and his staff. The men are at work laying the tent floors.

The routine of camp work will be announced on Monday morning.

Capt. A. K. Paul, of Portland, quartermaster of the brigade, has been here since Wednesday laying out the camp and making the necessary arrangements to make the camp a success. The plan is to have all the arrangements made, tent floors laid, etc., so that the men can pitch their tents at once on their arrival.

THE TREASURERSHIP.

Report of the Committee of Examination.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 10.—The committee appointed by the Governor and Council to examine the accounts of the State Treasurer and the Commissioner of the treasury for the current year have made their examination of the accounts of the Hon. Edwin C. Burleigh, ex-State treasurer, from December 31st, 1887, to the close of business on July 14, 1888, at which time his resignation took effect. The committee have carefully examined the books in the office of the State treasurer and find them correctly cast and every item properly vouched.

The amount of cash on hand at the close of business July 14, 1888, was $177,800.27, made up as follows: $170,472.93 on deposit in sound and reliable banks in this State and in the Suffolk National Bank, Boston, and $7,327.34 in the safe in the treasurer's office, all of which was turned over by the retiring treasurer to the commissioner, under and in accordance with the provisions of section 65 of chapter 2 of the Revised Statutes, and the vouchers therefor filed in the office of the Secretary of the State. This sum is the exact amount shown by the books to have been in Mr. Burleigh's hands at the time his resignation took effect.

The committee destroyed coupons and bonds as follows, as required by law:

Coupons paid	$64,410
Conversions into registered bonds	528,000
Registered bonds reissued	101,000
State bonds purchased	5,800

THE SHOW AT BANGOR.

Celebrated Canadian Horses Which Will be on Exhibition.

BANGOR, Aug. 10.—A dispatch received here from Hon. Chas. H. Lugin, Secretary of the Board of Agriculture of New Brunswick says that the provincial Government will allow the famous stallion, Harry Wilkes and ten or twelve other imported Percheron and Clydesdale horses to be exhibited in Bangor August 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st at the Eastern Maine State Fair. These horses have never before been allowed to leave the Provinces. Trotting entries for the fair close tomorrow night and now seem unprecedentedly large. The directors think that they will be the largest ever known for races in New England. There is great activity here preparing for the fair and arrangements are already being made for the reception of Gov. Marble and staff and other distinguished guests who have been invited to be present.

There are plenty of candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in New Hampshire. Here are a few of them: David H. Goodell of Antrim, Woodbury Melcher of Laconia, Gen. A. S. Twitchell of Gorham, John B. Smith of Hillsboro Bridge, John C. Linehan of Penacook, Hiram A. Tuttle of Pittsfield, Jeremiah Winchester of Portsmouth, Edwin Wallace of Rochester, John Kimball of Concord, David Cross of Manchester, Dexter Richards of Newport, Geo. L. Balcom of Claremont and John A. Spalding of Nashua.

A Fairly Old Inhabitant.

[Boston Transcript.]

Colonel George D. Perkins, the Norwich centenarian who celebrated his one-hundredth birthday on Sunday, was a witness in the Beecher trial. The first question asked him by Mr. Evarts was, "How long have you lived in Norwich, Colonel Perkins? The erect, active old gentleman, who looked about sixty, replied briskly, "Eighty-six years." Mr. Evarts gasped, but managed to ask, "Where did you live before you moved to Norwich, Colonel Perkins?"

CHAUTAUQUANS IN THE MOUNTAINS.

Members of the Assembly Above the Clouds.

Bright Prospects for the Success of Future Gatherings.

The Assembly Record and the Fryeburg Railroad.

[Special to the Press.]

MARTHA'S GROVE, Fryeburg, Aug. 10.—The last meeting of the assembly in the auditorium was the concert under the direction of Professor Morse. The following participated: Professor Wilson F. Morse, director; Mrs. W. F. Morse, accompanist; Miss Lillian S. Cummings, soprano; Professor Willis E. Bacheller, tener; Miss Susie M Jewett, pianist; Miss Bertha A. Morse, pianist; Miss Gertrude M. Hayes, pianist; the Morse Philharmonic Orchestra, the Hayes Quartette, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, soprano, Mrs. B. W. Hayes, alto, Mr. B. W. Hayes, tenor, Mr. J. P. Hayes, basso; the C.L. S. C. Chorus and Juvenile Class.

There has been no finer day this season for mountain views, and about one hundred Chautauquans and others went this morning by special train to Fabyan's and Mount Washington. Another party have climbed Kearsarge. Tomorrow morning the final good-byes will be said.

The assembly has been a success in every way this year and its future looks brighter than ever. Many improvements have been made and more are projected.

Two advance movements have been the completion of the Fryeburg Horse railroad and the publication of the Assembly Record. The railroad has carried 3500 passengers during the meetings. This has been a special benefit to the village people. The 10 numbers of the Record furnish a complete report of the various meetings. Its heading, designed by J. S. Barrows, of Fryeburg, gives the mountain view as seen from Martha's Grove. Mr. Wormwood has been much commended for issuing the first daily in Oxford county.

The Chautauqua movement at Martha's Grove, aside from its own progress, is also encouraged by the prospect of an increase in the business of the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad, under the lease to Maine Central. There are few places that boast such natural attractions as Fryeburg. The mountains and beautiful foliage are often mentioned by the speakers who visit all the assemblies.

THE FOG HAS GONE,

And Gaiety Reigns Again Among Bar Harbor Sojourners.

BAR HARBOR, Aug. 10.—The fog has gone and gaiety started afresh. David Dudley Field, assisted by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Dudley Field, gave a reception at the Malvern, from 5 to 7 today. An oriental cast was given to the decorations, which extended to the grounds, where booths, wreathed and festooned with flowers were erected. The stairways and halls were banked with palms and tropical plants. Despite his 83 years, Mr. Field was one of the most active and graceful dancers on the floor. Among the prominent people present were Hon. Roswell P. Flower, Dr. Battershall and Mrs. Whitney.

Gen. Samuel Lawrence of Medford took out a sailing party of thirty odd his yacht Isis, to Bulls Harbor today, where an elegant lunch was served at the Swiss Chalet.

Count de Foresta, of the Italian Legation, arrived today.

There will be a reception at Mossley Hall tomorrow.

TEN LIVES LOST.

Bodies Still Buried Beneath the Ruins in Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 10.—The loss of life by last night's fire was very great. In the excitement of the conflagration, hundreds of citizens rushed into threatened buildings and endeavored to save the goods. It seems there was criminal carelessness in erecting the four story structures, because they collapsed solely from heat. One building fell in when 50 persons were inside. The following remains have been recovered and identified:

James H. McMillin.
Henry Welch.
James Smith. (Colored.)
Edward Howe.

Another colored man was recovered, but not identified. Two more bodies were discovered beneath the ruins but cannot be reached for some time. It is believed that Ed Kruezer is also buried and six or seven others. The total loss of life is estimated at 10. Four are badly wounded. J. P. McMillan was killed while trying to save his books. He was a prominent citizen.

THOUSANDS VISIT ST. MATTHEW'S

The Private Funeral Services of the Dead Commander.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—At a few minutes before 8 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Sheridan, accompanied by General and Mrs. Rucker, Colonel Sheridan and other members of the family, entered St. Matthew's church, where the remains of the dead General lie in state. At 8 o'clock, a special requiem mass was celebrated by Father Kervick. When the services were over the church was cleared and Mrs. Sheridan remained alone with the dead. As she left the church the guard resumed their places and visitors were again admitted. A steady stream of people poured in and went out of the church all day and included all classes.

The church will remain open as usual until 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The usual parochial mass will be celebrated at 7. General Schofield has accepted the offer of Secretary Whitney to place the Marine Band at his disposal for service in the obsequies, and he has assigned it to a position at the head of the foot batteries. It will be the only band in the procession. The President and Cabinet will accompany the funeral procession from the church to the cemetery.

MAINE.

Burglary at Buckfield.

[Special to the Press.]

BUCKFIELD, Aug. 10.—The safe at the depot of the Rumford Falls and Buckfield railroad was blown open last night and about $30 secured. The safe at the post office was tried and damaged but the burglars did not succeed in getting it open.

Seized by the Dream.

EASTPORT, Aug. 10.—Mr. William Danbury and Charles Black of Eastport were line fishing off Liberty Point, the extreme southern end of Campobello Island. The steam fishery cruiser Dream seized their boat and towed it to St. Andrews. Mr. Danbury is an old man seventy years of age, a hard working man who has followed the sea all his life and is possessed of little of this world's goods—in fact, this little twenty-five dollar boat represented the only property of which he was the owner, for sickness and death in his family the past year had made it a hard struggle to "make both ends meet."

The Old Orchard Meetings.

OLD ORCHARD, Aug. 10.—The Portland District Methodist campmeeting closed tonight.

The Campmeeting Association elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Rev. W. S. Jones, Woodfords.
Secretary—Rev. S. F. Weiherbee, Kennebunk.
Treasurer—Rev. T. P. Adams, South Portland.
Board of Managers—Rev. L. H. Bean, South Portland; Rev. Israel Luce, South Berwick; Rev. A. W. Pottle, Saco; Sylvester Moulton, Eliot; C. K. Ladd, Portland.

The association voted to hold its next annual campmeeting the last week of August, 1889.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Senators Pass the Bill to Regulate Commerce by Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The Senate today proceeded to the consideration of the fisheries treaty in open executive session. Senator Frye gave notice that on Monday next he would move to go into open executive session immediately after the morning business, and so from day to day next week until a conclusion was reached on the treaty.

Senator Stewart gave notice that, as soon as the fisheries treaty was disposed of, he would press a bill for the admission of the State of Washington.

Senator Call, who was to speak on the treaty, said he was not prepared today and suggested that the matter go over until Monday.

The Senate then passed, without discussion, objection or division, the bill to regulate commerce carried on by telegraph, being the bill introduced by Senator Spooner on the 26th January, 1888, and reported back from the committee on interstate commerce, with amendments, on the 18th of July, all of which have been published. The act to take effect and be in force November, 1888.

The Senate at 3.40 p. m. adjourned till Monday at 11 a. m.

The Official Crop Report.

The Department of Agriculture reports a small advance in the condition of corn from 93.10 last month to 95.05. Rains have been generally seasonable, though excessive in some districts and deficient in others. In Kansas, the Carolinas, Delaware and New York the condition is reduced by local drought.

An Irish Welcome.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Judge A. L. Morrison, in behalf of the Irish-American Anti-Free Trade League of the United States, presented an address of welcome to Mr. Blaine today, as follows:

Leader and Champion:

In the name of the Irish-American Anti-Free Trade League, composed of thirty clubs in the city of York, and numerous clubs in adjoining States, and in concert with our fellow citizens throughout the Union, we tender you a generous and heartfelt Irish welcome. Against him (hundred thousand welcomes) back again to the great people who love you so well, for the friends and enemies you have made. Your friends are the friends of America; your enemies her enemies. You have just cause to be proud of both. In the grandeur of your supreme self-denial, you have set aside the greatest honor the world could bestow upon you. Reluctantly, very reluctantly, we bowed to your decision to decline leading the opponents of English free trade to what we are firmly convinced will be a glorious and decisive victory, but we rejoice in the knowledge of the fact that your incomparable ability will be exercised to the utmost to secure the election of our standard bearers, Benjamin Harrison and Levi P. Morton, and we hereby invite you to address the members of our League and their friends at any time during the campaign which may suit your convenience.

Humbly thanking the God of our fathers for having preserved you and yours from all the perils of the great deep, and assuring you that language utterly fails to express our admiration and affection for you, we once more repeat our heart's fondest welcome home.

On behalf of the League.

[Signed,] P. H. MCNAMEE, President.
A. L. MORRISON, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Blaine replied that he felt very grateful for the honor, and would send a reply in the near future.

Foreign Notes.

The reply of the French Minister of Foreign Affairs to the Italian note announcing the occupation of Massowah by Italy, protests against the abolition of capitulations without negotiation or agreement with the powers, and hints that France will pursue the same tactics in future if it suits her interests.

Berlin advices from the flooded districts report a great number of deaths. Fourteen persons are missing in the Laubon district alone.

O'Kelly was convicted and sentenced to four months imprisonment without labor yesterday.

The Turkish government has borrowed £1,500,000 from local banks.

The election in the West Derby division at Liverpool yesterday resulted in the return of Henry Cross, conservative in place of Lord Claude Hamilton, conservative, resigned.

SUPREME COURT JUDGES.

The United States Judges Get $10,000 a Year, But Do Not Save Anything.

[N. Y. Graphic.]

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States receives 10,500 per annum. The eight Associate Justices receive $10,000 each. This is in full for services rendered. They are the poorest paid of any officials of the government, for out of their annual income they are compelled to pay all travelling expenses. They have to go on an extensive circuit every year, and pay not only their fare, but all incidental expenses in sustaining the dignity of their judicial position.

If Associate Justice Field was not independent of his salary, it is said, he could not actually afford to hold the position. The expense of crossing and recrossing the Continent with his family and the cost of travelling on his Pacific coast circuit reduces his salary more than one half every year.

Justice Miller was figuring up a short time ago that if he had devoted the years he had been on the bench to private practice he would now be counted among the millionaires in the law profession.

"The fact," said the Judge, "that after deducting the expenses annually incurred in travelling over my circuit, which embraces the States of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado, I have just about enough left to pay the expenses of living in Washington during the sessions of the court. It is one of the anomalies of Congressional legislation that the Clerk of the Supreme Court annually makes fully twice the amount of any member of the court. Our position compels us to refuse all courtesies from coporations, though it may readily be inferred there would be no limit if we would accept them.

Dovetailing Grief and Happiness.

[Waterville Sentinel.]

The following story comes from North Vassalboro and shows that some don't let death interfere with happiness. One of the citizens died on Tuesday July 24th, leaving a sorrowing widow to mourn his loss. On Wednesday, the 25th, she had filed her intention of marriage in the town clerk's office. Thursday she followed the remains of her deceased husband to the grave. On the succeeding Monday she was living happily with husband No. 2, and on Wednesday the 1st instant, the loving couple started on their wedding pilgrimage.

Maxwell and Lundgraff, the condemned prisoners in the Missouri penitentiary were executed yesterday morning.

MR. BLAINE'S WELCOME.

Received in New York with a Flattering Ovation,

And Repeated Assurances of the Regard of His Countrymen.

Reception Exercises on Board the Steamer Starin.

The Question of the Hour Forcibly Presented,

In a Ringing Address to Workingmen Last Evening.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Mr. Blaine took a drive this afternoon through Central Park and vicinity, accompanied by Messrs. Quay, Clarkson and other members of the National Republican Committee. Returning from the drive, Mr. Blaine retired to his room in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and rested until the evening, none of the hundreds of people who thronged the hotel being admitted to disturb him. At 8 o'clock, the crowd in and around Madison Square mumbered many thousands. The people whiled away the time in shouting for Blaine, Harrison and Morton. The crowd represented all classes of society. On the stand were J. P. Archibald, Master Workman Magee and a number of other labor leaders, as well as the officers of the various Republican organizations here and from out of town. S. B. Elkins, Perry Carson, Walker Blaine and others were also conspicuous. At 8.30 Chairman Ford called the labor meeting to order from the grand stand, and after a few words of tribute to Mr. Blaine, sent Cappa's band to the hotel balcony, where they serenaded the distinguished statesman. The band played "Marching through Georgia," the crowd adding their voices. "Home, Sweet Home," was then rendered, and in a few moments a storm of applause arose as the hero of the occasion appeared. Mr. Blaine came from the hotel, leaning on the arm of Hon. Levi P. Morton, and was followed by ex-Senator Platt, Gen. R. A. Alger, Walker and Emmons Blaine, and the committee. The escort were aided through the crowd by the police to the stand. When Mr. Blaine appeared upon the stand, Mr. Ford again called the meeting to order, and David Heeley read an address, in behalf of the workingmen of New York, to Mr. Blaine. The address was a strong endorsement of protection. Mr. Blaine was then introduced, and, after the applause had subsided, said:

Mr. Chairman:

It would be egotism on my part to take this magnificent demonstration as personal to myself. It rather signifies the great popular interest in the question upon which I am supposed at least to have a consistent record and an earnest zeal. [Applause]. And you have before you a contest in which that great issue is to be settled by the American people, perhaps for an indefinite period, one way or the other. The year 1887 was prosperous and the President, at its close, proposed a substantial change in the industrial system which had brought about prosperity. Since that day there has been a confusion in the commerce and manufactures of the United States. [Applause]. The question before the American people is whether the President and his administration shall be sustained in that movement. Against him the Republicans having the best cause have nominated the best man. [Applause]. They have given to you for President a man of sound experience, a man of heroic record in the war a man of great purity of character, a man of real firmness and worth, and you have associated with him a man whom to New Yorkers I need not further describe than to say his name is Levi P. Morton, [applause], a man of most generous character, of the widest and most statesmanlike views on all public questions pending before the American people. Against this you have two gentlemen of whom I would not speak in terms other than those of entire personal respect. In the candidate for Vice President I have a friend of many years standing and am a personal admirer of Judge Thurman; but I beg you to observe that, at a critical period in this country, the Vice President, George M. Dallas, in casting his vote tied the Senate, and destroyed the protective tariff of 1842.

Today, the Senate of the United States has, or on March 4th next, will have 32 Senators from the solid South and unless you make a change, six Democratic Senators from the North, precisely one-half, and Mr. Thurman will be in a position to re-enact the vote of George M. Dallas in 1842. Therefore, however, available a man he may be, and however able he may be, the more available and more able he is, the worse will be his influence before the American people. [Applause.] Now, gentlemen, I know that in discussing the question of the protective tariff we are always pointing out what England is doing. I have lately been in England for some months and found in English public opinion a very great difference of opinion on almost all questions. They are on what you call the Irish question about divided on the forcible policy of Gladstone and that of Salisbury. They are divided, even, upon the continuance of the House of Lords, and they are not absolutely unanimous in support of monarchy. [Laughter and applause.] But from one end of the Kingdom to the other there is a unanimous chorus on the part of Tories and Whigs, Liberals, Conservatives and Radicals, and that is the Hon. Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, embodies in his person reform of the revehue, and free trade for the United States, which they like. [Applause.]

I have no objection to their right to his opinion and if I had, it would amount to nothing. Nor do I intend to speak disrespectfully of the English, for I have received at their hands a very graceful and very cordial hospitality which I would be a churl not to acknowledge before an American audience. But that does not effect the pending question. Shall the American people find their interests in one policy which the English want to change so as better to conform to their interests, and that, gentlemen, is the prime question before you in next November's election. I am glad this meeting is called in the name of laboring people because this question is, from first to last, a question of labor. [Loud applause.] If you will agree to live in as poor a house, eat as poor food, and receive as low wages as the people of England receive, we can produce as cheap goods as a Democratic administration wants to see. [Great applause.] But if you will better your condition, you want an industrial system under which protected interests will be maintained. The entire savings that the wage workers of England, Scotland and Ireland are drawing upon now are not near as great as those that lie in the savings banks of Massachusetts to the credit of the wage workers of that State and if you turn the administration of this Republic today into free trade channels you may not expect those great savings for you will put our laboring men throughout the country into competition with the laboring men of Great Britain, and in the course of five or ten years will make them as poor on this side of the water as they are on the other.

I will not in this campaign stop to argue the question on any other basis. I have no personality to indulge in. I have no sores to heal. [Loud cheers]. I would rather have your cordial and heartfelt and sympathetic welcome than any office you care to bestow on me. [Applause]. But in this canvas in which I shall take a greater or less part, I shall hold this question from beginning to end as the question that interests every man, woman and child in this country that depends on their daily labor and their daily bread. [Applause]. There is no need to make any laws to protect capital. Capital always takes care of itself, and gets its full share; but there are laws that can elevate the condition of the laboring man, and laws that can degrade him. The Republican party has stood for 25 years, and it will stand, I believe, with the blessing of God and the will of the American people, for 25 years more, upholding and maintaining the laboring man; for the government which takes care of the bone and sinew and working muscle of the land is taking care of the men who created wealth in this country, and who are, therefore, entitled to the patronage and protection of the government. [Applause].

Now, gentlemen, you represent a critical State; you represent the State of New York; your votes are to tell in that issue; your votes can be decisive upon that one issue. Do not be diverted from that one question by side issues. Do not be misled by petty squabbles on this or that small issue or on personal questions of abuse on the one hand or the other, but give your votes as independent laboring men give them for the interest of your own homes and your own firesides and thereby for the great interests of a great republic. [Immense cheering.] I never, Mr. Chairman, thought of that republic as I do tonight.

Mr. Blaine closed by saying that in no part of Europe is the condition of labor comparable to that which it holds in the United States. He subsequently gave a reception at his hotel.

ESCORTED TO LAND.

Enthusiastic Republicans Give Mr. Blaine a Rousing Reception.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, when the last stragglers were returning to their various quarters from the big Republican procession, the long expected steamer City of New York was sighted some miles off Fire Island making for Sandy Hook. The news soon reached the city and Gen. Jackson's headquarters were as if by magic overwhelmed by eager citizens, politicians and statesmen anxious to get whatever particulars were attainable. They came in all stages of negligee, some evidently having been in bed shortly before. The white plumes of the men who had marched for Harrison and Morton were conspicuous, and waved picturesquely amid the more sober civilians' dress.

They crowded around one of the aides, who held a piece of brown paper in his hand. He read in a loud voice: "The Inman steamer City of New York, with Hon. James G. Blaine on board, was sighted off Fire Island at 1.15 a. m." There was a great roar of applause. Men seemed crazy and waved their torches frantically to beat time to a rousing campaign song. These were the "young bloods," aroused by a spark.

The more dignified of the gathering discussed the situation in its bearing on the coming movements of Mr. Blaine, whether he would speak on the way to Maine, and when he would address the impatient New Yorkers.

By this time the news had got around the city streets and into the hotel lobbies, which seemed to spring into a blaze of light and a babel of sound. Everybody was glad that the long wait was over. There was some lamentations that the big Inman boat did not do as she ought, but every one admitted that spite of her freak, the procession had been a splendid success.

It was just 8.55 o'clock this morning that the Inman steamship City of New York, with Mr. Blaine aboard, came to a standstill opposite the quarantine station at Staten Island, and the Laura M. Starin, carrying the members of the Young Men's Republican Club, with their friends, drew alongside to receive the Maine statesman and his family aboard and give him a formal reception and welcome home. There was no formality, however, in the manner in which the crowd on board the Starin gave out their first note of welcome when they caught sight of the familiar form of Mr. Blaine as he stood on the upper promenade deck of the big ocean steamer with his wife and two daughters beside him, waiting to catch a glimpse of some of his old friends. Even at the disappointments and frustrations of the last three days were forgotten, and the pent-up enthusiasm broke forth in a great yell, which lasted for several minutes without interruption, while the fire crackers of the Chicago contingent boomed, and all steamboats with big whistles in the vicinity made the air vibrate with their tooting. There he was sure enough, looking in excellent health, a trifle pale, perhaps, and tired, but smiling and bowing to the enthusiastic crowd below, and every now and then recognizing a friend with a wave of his hand among those on the hurricane deck of the Starin.

It took about 15 minutes to make the arrangements for transferring Mr. Blaine and his family to the steamer Starin, and meanwhile all the cabin passengers of the City of New York, as well as a swarm of young looking steerage passengers, who crowded the rail on both decks, watched the proceedings with interest and curiosity. During all this time the shouting and cheering of the reception party continued, and cries of "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine!" and "No, no, no free trade!" occasionally broke in upon the general and indiscriminate yelling.

It was 9.45 when a gang plank was finally swung from the deck of the City of New York and Mr. Blaine, followed by the last stragglers of the whole affair sprang lightly aboard the steamship with the agility of a boy of 16, despite his 70 odd years and grasping Mr. Blaine's hands held him aboard the other boat. The passage took place amid tumultuous cheering, and the Maine man had no sooner reached the hurricane deck of the Starin than he was surrounded by his sons Walker and Emmons, Jr., and saluted in true family style, while Mrs. James G. came in for her share of the kisses. Mr. Blaine was then absorbed by his old cronies, William Walter Phelps, Whitelaw Reid, Murat Halstead and about a dozen others who secured places in the pilot house in advance. Mrs. Blaine and her two daughters, Hattie and Margaret, who completed the family party, were brought on board by Committeemen Hawes and Blanchard.

The committee had arranged that the address of welcome should be made in the after cabin on the main deck adjoining the ladies' saloon, and a line having been formed, Chairman Pool escorted the distinguished guest down stairs and through to President Edward S. Bartlett was waiting to receive him in the name of the club. Mr. Pool called for silence, and then introduced President Bartlett of the New York Republican Club, who spoke as follows:

The Address of Welcome.

Mr. Blaine: The Republican Club of the city of New York, and its invited guests, tender to you, sir, through me, as the president of the club, their warmest greetings and

FOR PRESIDENT,

BENJAMIN HARRISON,

OF INDIANA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

LEVI P. MORTON,

OF NEW YORK.

FOR GOVERNOR,

EDWIN C. BURLEIGH.

For Representatives to Congress,

First District—THOMAS B. REED.
Second District—NELSON DINGLEY, JR.
Third District—SETH L. MILLIKEN.
Fourth District—CHARLES A. BOUTELLE.

President Cleveland has so far vetoed the pension bills of upwards of two hundred old soldiers. The Portland Argus has found twelve of these vetoes which seem, from the President's statement of the case, to be justifiable; and asks with a very impressive air what the Press thinks of them. Well, they are good as far as they go; and perhaps a Democratic executive ought not to be expected to be right more than 12 out of 200 times.

The Argus's effort to belittle the great Republican gathering at Alfred on Thursday might as well not have been made. There were Democrats present, among them the Hon. William Emery, the Democratic candidate for Congress who got out of the woods early enough to see the crowd, and they know that the crowd was a big one, the biggest that has assembled in the town of Alfred on a political occasion for over thirty years. The chief effect of the Argus's misrepresentations will be therefore to convince its own party that it is untrustworthy. As for the other party that was convinced long ago.

The Hon. William H. Clifford, or some other stirring orator, should go immediately to Somerset county to try and wake up enough Democrats to hold a county convention. The recent attempt to get enough of them together to nominate a county ticket proved a dismal failure. Rumor has it that the free wool clause of the Mills bill has driven most of the Democratic farmers of the county out of the Democratic ranks, but possibly there may be enough left to nominate a county ticket. If Mr. Clifford should succeed in scaring up a few we feel sure that he will be restored at once to the high place in the affections of his party which he once held.

Senator McPherson is a Democrat from the State of New Jersey. "I went before the gentlemen of the ways and means committee," he says, "while their bill was being matured and told them that we could stand 5, and possibly 10 per cent. reduction on certain grades of pottery, in view of the provisions of the Senate undervaluations bill, but 20 per cent. was too much. In pottery 95 per cent. of the cost goes to labor alone. Such industries need protection, and should not be cut as others are, where the labor entering in is not more than 50 or even 40 per cent. of the cost of the finished product." But Mr. McPherson argued in vain. Mr. Mills probably felt that New Jersey could be carried for the Democrats in spite of this injustice and so Mr. McPherson's appeal was rejected though it came from a Democrat. In the light of McPherson's experience the recent suggestions of the Argus that Maine manufacturers had they appealed to the committee might have prevented some of the injustices which the bill inflicts upon them becomes absurd. If a Democrat from a doubtful State could accomplish nothing the fate of a Republican from a State certainly Republican can easily be imagined. He would undoubtedly have been unceremoniously kicked out of the committee room.

The Constitutionality of Protection.

The Hon. William L. Putnam in several speeches delivered since he has become a candidate for governor, has hinted, without directly expressing such an opinion, that protection was unconstitutional. Yesterday the Argus quoted the opinion of a United States court denying the right of the city of Topeka to contribute $100,000 to build a factory in that city, and deduced from that the opinion that members of Congress who vote for a protective tariff are robbers. But the Argus say the people have no remedy against the "robbers" except in the ballot. If however a protective tariff is unconstitutional, there is a clear remedy in the courts, and if a protective tariff is also robbery, as the Argus alleges, then not only law but equity is on the side of the advocates of a tariff for revenue only. Why not then appeal to the courts? Simply because the free traders know that they would be sustained neither in law nor in equity. They know that the authorities are against them.

The question of the constitutionality of a protective tariff is not a new one. It has been raised many times of late years. But it is a significant fact that for a good many years after the constitution was formed, though the subject of protection was frequently before Congress it was never seriously raised at all. With the men who made the constitution the constitutionality of protection was undoubted. When the tariff bill of 1789 was under discussion in the House of Representatives Mr. Madison, who had been one of the framers of the constitution, was a member of that body. Mr. Madison made an exhaustive argument in favor of that tariff bill which was a protective as well as a revenue measure. There had been no serious denial of the constitutional power of Congress to protect industries by a tariff and therefore Mr. Madison did not directly discuss that question. But he clearly indicated his opinion on that subject in the following paragraph which is taken from his speech:

There is another consideration. The States that are most advanced in population and ripe for manufactures ought to have their particular interests attended to in some degree. While these States retained the power of making regulations of trade, they had the power to protect and cherish such institutions. By adopting the present constitution they have thrown the exercise of this power into other hands. They must have done this with the expectation that their interests would not be neglected.

Here is an assertion not only of the constitutional power of Congress to foster manufactures but also of the duty of Congress to do it. Under the confederation each State had had the power to protect its own manufactures; but when the confederation was abandoned this power was turned over to Congress, and in the opinion of Mr. Madison not only could Congress use it, but also was bound to use it. Nobody in that Congress composed as it was of men who helped frame the constitution denied this proposition of Mr. Madison. Again in 1828 when some opposition was being made to protection on the ground of unconstitutionality Mr. Madison declared, after reiterating the above argument, that "a further evidence of the constitutional power of Congress to protect and foster manufactures by regulation of trade, (an evidence that ought itself to settle the question) is the uniform and practical sanctum given to that power for nearly forty years."

Alexander Hamilton was a member of Washington's Cabinet. Mr. Hamilton declared that a protective tariff was "necessary for the support of the government and for the encouragement of manufactures." Obviously Alexander Hamilton had not discovered that protection was unconstitutional.

Thomas Jefferson was a member of Washington's Cabinet and was quite as familiar with the constitution as the modern American free trade doctrinaries. Mr. Jefferson in 1818, commenting upon a pamphlet in which direct protection to home manufactures was advocated used this language:

I have read with great satisfaction the eloquent pamphlet you were so kind as to send me, and sympathize with every line of it.

And then he proceeds at length to argue in favor of the policy of fostering manufactures. Evidently Mr. Jefferson had not learned that protection was unconstitutional.

In 1830 President Andrew Jackson, whom the Democrats are still voting for, said in his message to Congress:

The power to impose duties on imports originally belonged to the several States. The right to adjust those duties, with a view to the encouragement of domestic branches of industry, is so completely identical with that power that it is difficult to suppose the existence of one without the other. The States have delegated their whole authority over imports to the general Government; without limitation or instruction, saving the very inconsiderable reservation relating to their inspection laws. This authority having then passed from the States, the right to exercise it for the purpose of protection does not exist in them, and consequently, if it be not possessed by the general Government it must be extinct. Our political system would thus present the anomaly of a people stripped of the right to foster their own industries and to counteract the most selfish and destructive policy which might be adopted by foreign nations. This surely cannot be; this indispensable power, thus surrendered by the States, must be within the scope of the authority expressly delegated to Congress. In this conclusion I am confirmed as well by the opinions of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, who have each repeatedly recommended the exercise of this right under the constitution, as by the uniform practice of Congress, the continued acquiescence of the States and the general understanding of the people.

So much on the constitutionality of protection. The list of eminent men that assert its constitutionality might be greatly lengthened, but this will suffice for the present. It puts the Democratic orator of today who declares protection unconstitutional at odds with George Washington, James Madison, Alexander Hamilon, Thomas Jefferson, James Monroe and Andrew Jackson.

But, says the Argus substantially, if the decision of the United States Court in the case of Topeka is not tantamount to a declaration that protection is unconstitutional it is tantamount to a declaration that it is robbery. Of course if a protective tariff is robbery men who have helped enact such a tariff are robbers. Now observe how rich the country has been in robbers. The tariff bill passed by the first Congress in 1789 in its preamble declares that "it is necessary for the support of the government, for the discharge of the debts of the United States and for the encouragement and protection of manufactures, that duties be laid upon imported goods, wares and merchandise." Among the gentlemen who voted for this bill was James Madison, Richard Henry Lee, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Elbridge Gerry, Roger Sherman and Abraham Baldwin. All these men are consigned to the category of robbers by the Argus. George Washington signed the bill and made it a law which entitles him to be called the prince of robbers. Then there is Thomas Jefferson, whom the Democracy have been wont to revere. He too, was a robber. John C. Calhoun, to whom President Cleveland paid so gushing a tribute some time ago, he too, at one time favored protection, and he endorsed it as beneficial to the farmer as well as to the manufacturer. "The farmer," he said, "will find a ready market for his surplus products, and what is of almost as great consequence a certain and cheap supply for all his wants." And then there is Andrew Jackson. He deserves a place way up in the Argus's list of robbers. What a galaxy of robbers this is—many of them Democratic robbers too—men whom the Democracy have held up for years as models of statesmanship; men whom the Argus has again and again glorified—all corsigned now to the category of robbers.

CURRENT COMMENT.

WHAT AILED THE DEMOCRACY.
[Springfield Union.]

The epitaph of free trade Democracy will be "Died in the Wool."

COLD COMFORT.
[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.]

The Democratic party is welcome to all the comfort it can get from the imaginary support of it by Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs of Brooklyn. Dr. Storrs says he favors the Republican ticket on the simple ground of patriotism. Let the Democratic heart rejoice on all there is left for it after that.

HARRISON'S SPEECHES.
[Boston Transcript.]

The attempt made in certain quarters to have it appear that Gengral Harrison's speeches to visiting delegations are unprofitable to the party, grow out of a conviction, beyond a doubt, that they are helping its candidacy. The wish that they might hurt it is father to the pretended thought that they are doing so. Many of them admirably illustrate the fact that General Harrison is a man of broad statesmanship and that he has profited well by his public experiences.

PROSPERITY THE DEMOCRATS PROMISE.
[Philadelphia North American.]

The Democratic party confidently that the theories of the Democrats promise can be judged by the time when they controlled the government under President Buchanan. In those four years the national debt increased from $31,972,537 to $64,842,287. Mills closed up, laborers found employment with difficulty and wages were lower than ever since. In 1858 the Buchanan government had to borrow $38,717,300; in 1859 it had to borrow $28,287,500, and in 1860 it had to borrow $20,776,800. As a result the Treasury was bankrupt and the country impoverished as a result of Democratic financiering. The fiscal policy that brought these results is before the country again, and a new generation of voters is to give its verdict upon it.

Collapse of the Boom at San Diego.

Our Eastern country has been flooded with exaggerated accounts of the lands, business opportunities and golden chances for money-making at San Diego, writes a correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. The climate has been represented as ethereal, transforming old age and decreptitude back into vigorous young manhood. Here they claim the wasted consumptive casts aside his shattered body and renews his lost strength and vitality. In short, the "bay'n' climate" was made a panacea for all the ills to which human flesh is heir, and was the "boomer's" chief stock in trade.

The candid observer must acknowledge that the fictitious and speculative "boom" has collapsed. The horde of harpies, sharpies and adventurers which infested the city seven or eight months ago have, like the Arab, "quietly folded their tents and stolen away" with their ill-gotten gains. The numerous traps and pitfalls to catch the credulous and unwary are gone forever. The fever of excitement has abated and given way to a large volume of legitimate trade, business and commerce. The craze for "town lots" anywhere within a radius of five miles of the city is over, and such property can readily be had by the acre for the price asked per lot several months ago. The "town addition" business was another favorite imposition which belongs to the not unforgotten past.

The myriad of visionary cities of fanciful names and grandly fantastical improvements, which existed only on highly colored lithographic maps, have reverted to the original bare quarter sections (one hundred and sixty acres) of land. Today the plow, manned by some enterprising farmer, rushes ruthlessly across Phanton avenue to the Hotel Deceptions, thence at right angles to the University of Unreality, then on to the Chimera Opera-house and back to the station of the Void and Imposture Railroad. The inclosure within, which (during the boom) was destined to become the great city of "Santa Significancia," will soon be bearing the cereal products which prosper here; and so the late famous "sun-kissed city of Santa Vacancia," "Nihility Villa," "Santa Malaria," "Tierra Perfecta," "San Diablo," "Santa Mythia," "San Larino," and on until the stock of Spanish saints and saintesses were exhausted. "Momona" was a name given in prodigious frequency, calculated to catch the sentimental admirers of the Indian romance. These tracts, which were the sites of great cities in the near future, are being sold by the acreage (town lot stakes included) for forty to sixty dollars per acre, a good sized town and prospective improvements, with thirty-five or forty cords of town lot stakes, for three or four thousand dollars. The stakes are in great demand as kindling. And so the country is being rapidly developed into its original and legitimate purpose, viz.: Agricultural pursuits. The unhealthy and speculative activity in the sale of San Diego property has also subsided, and although values intrinsically are much greater to-day, owing to the constant growth and improvement, prices generally have decreased very materially.

Courtship in Australia.

[Twilight Hour.]

Among the aboriginal blacks of Australia courtship, as the precursor of marriage, is unknown. When a young warrior is desirious of procuring a wife he generally obtains one, giving, in exchange for her a sister or some female relation of his own; but if there should be no eligible damsel disengaged in the tribe to which he belongs then he hovers around the encampment of some other blacks until he gets an opportunity of seeing one of their "leubras," whom he has seen and admired when attending one of the feasts. His mode of paying his addresses is simple and efficacious. With a blow of his war club he stuns the object of his "affections," and as she recovers her senses brings her home to his own gunyah in triumph.

Another method with the wife-stealer is to ascertain the campfire beside which the girl whom he covets sleeps. When he gains the knowledge he requires he creeps close to the camp on some dark, windy night and, stretching out his spear, insert its barbed point among her thick, flowing locks; turning it slowly round, some of her hair becomes entangled with it; then, with a sudden jerk, she is aroused from her slumber, and as her eyes open she feels the point of another weapon against her throat. She neither faints nor screams. She knows well that the slightest attempt at escape or alarm will cause her instant death, so like a sensible woman, she makes a virtue of necessity, and rising silently she follows her captor, to begin a life of toil, from which she is not released till death.

PERSONAL AND PECULIAR.

Levi P. Morton years ago failed in the dry goods business. When he got ahead he invited his creditors to a dinner and gave each a check for the amount of the indebtedness. When Ireland was appealing to America for food, Levi P. Morten fitted out, at his own expense, the ship Constellation with meat and bread, and sent it to starving Ireland. This is the kind of a man the Republican party has nominated for Vice President.

A St. Louis girl has inherited from her father a beautiful supply of red hair. She intends to profit by it, and entertain her friends in a novel manner. All the ladies and gentlemen of her acquaintance whose heads can show the desired tinge will be invited to her house. Pages with auburn hair will attend. Table linen and service will be the popular color. Carriages drawn by white horses will be at the service of the guests.

The following from the New Orleans States of Aug. 2 illustrates one of the Alabama methods of securing an unanimity which keeps the Democratic majority compact and comfortable: Birmingham, Ala., went in for the luxury of a political riot, last night, when rotten eggs and pistols figured prominently. The riot was brought on by an attempt of the Republicans to hold a meeting—a proceeding of which the Democrats did not approve, and which they were successful in preventing. The civilization of Birmingham does not reach the height of tolerating opposing opinion.

The United States Senate has furnished several recruits for the flannel shirt brigade. Senator Platt has been wearing an ordinary blue and white fine-striped flannel shirt. He always wears it or its mate when he goes fishing, and had the courage recently when the wilting days began to come to wear it in the Senate. His appearance caused a thrill in the Senate, but he looked so supremely cool and comfortable that he made converts of Senators Beck and Blackburn, who now usually loll around in flannel shirts. But the sensation came when the good Senator Edmunds, the autocrat of the Senate and the greatest stickler for senatorial dignity, walked modestly into the room the other morning with a flannel shirt. He appeared a little hesitating about it, as though he realized the breach of dignity he committed in appearing in the sacred Senate Chamber without a boiled shirt, but everybody forgave him, and many more will imitate him. But a flannel shirt in the United States Senate!

A Conversation with Sheridan.

As everybody else is narrating his reminiscences of Gen. Sheridan, I will also contribute mine:

After the battle of Cedar Creek, President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton agreed that Sheridan should receive some special recognition for that great exploit. They promoted him to be a major-general in the regular army, and when the commission was made out the President decided that it should be sent to the general, who still lay near Cedar Creek, by an unusual messenger. I was selected for this agreeable duty.

From Washington to Harper's Ferry I went by rail, but there it was necessary to have an escort. Starting early in the morning and riding all day with no other interruptions than were caused by the occasional appearance of Mosby's cavalry here and there on our flank, it was about 10 at night when we reached the general's stopping place. He had gone to bed, but was waked up to receive the important document. The speeches on the occasion were brief, but they were to the purpose. Sheridan was not displeased with the transaction.

The next morning the general took me on foot through his camp, and as we went among the regiments and brigades and greeted old acquaintances on every hand, I was everywhere struck with the manifestations of personal attachment to Sheridan. I had not seen anything like it in either of our great armies. Grant, Sherman, Thomas all moved among their troops with every sign of respect and confidence on the part of the men; but in Sheridan's camp it was quite different. They seemed to regard him more as a boy regards the father he believes in, relies on and loves than as soldiers are wont to regard their commander. Finally, as we were completing our morning's tour and had got nearly back to headquarters, I said to him: "General, how is this? These men seem to a special affection for you, more than I have ever seen displayed toward any other officer. What is the reason?"

"Well," said he, "I think I can tell you. I always fight in the front rank myself. I was long ago convinced that it would not do for a commanding general to stay in the rear of his troops and carry on a battle with paper orders, as they do in the Army of the Potomac. These men all know that where their general's colors are there they will be, too, and that is the reason they like me."

"One thing more, general," I said. "Are you afraid, or don't you care? What is the real truth about it?"

"The man who says he isn't afraid under fire," he answered, "is a liar. I am damned afraid, and, if I followed my own impulse, I should turn and get out. It is all a question of the power of the mind over the body."

Young Thubs is a good business man, but outside of business he is not such a good manager. He had a beautiful typewriter, one of the perfected kind, aged 19 years, better than new, with laughing blue eyes. Having fallen in love with it, he one day sat down beside it and told it that he wanted to dictate a letter of love to his sweetheart. It went to work mechanically.

"My dearest angel, I love you deeply, devotedly; no other being could ever inspire in my heart such a fervent and lasting affection and I take this method of laying at your feet my life, my love, my honor and my fortune. Will you accept these? Answer immediately. Your sincere lover, B. THUBS."

"There it is," said the typewriter. "To whom is it addressed?"

"To your own dear self," said Thubs with a voice that would make a lemonade shaker.

"And you want a reply?"

"Yes, my precious one."

"Well, you shall have it in the same manner; take this seat at the instrument. Ready?"

"Mr. Thubs:—

"DEAR SIR—Yours of this instant received contents noted. In reply I beg to state that your offer is exceedingly kind and worthy, but there is a bar, which would prevent its acceptance."

"Stop," said Thubs. "Why should there be a bar between us?"

"Well, you write on——"

"My marriage last Thursday night with Mr. J. Squiggs renders——"

But Mr. Thubs' distant footsteps were echoing down the corridors of no time at all, and in the next morning's paper was—

SKIN, SCALP AND BLOOD

Diseases Cured by Cuticura Remedies when Hot Springs, Doctors and all other Medicines fail.

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about CUTICURA, and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The CUTICURA REMEDIES are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

SCROFULA 7 YEARS CURED.

I have been troubled with scrofula seven years, when first started on the top of my head, giving me infinite trouble, with constant itching, casting off of dry scales, and a watery liquid exuded from under the scales. I treated it for seven years unsuccessfully, and was unable to check it until I found your CUTICURA REMEDIES. One box CUTICURA, one cake CUTICURA SOAP, and one bottle CUTICURA RESOLVENT completely cured me, my skin becoming perfectly clear and smooth.

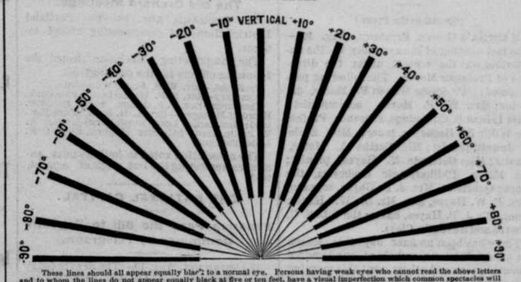
Spectacles and Eye Glasses!



These lines should all appear equally black to a normal eye. Persons having weak eyes who cannot read the above letters and to whom the lines do not appear equally black at five or ten feet, have a visual imperfection which common spectacles will not improve. They must have special lenses ground to correct the deformity of their corneas. This defect is called ASTIGMATISM. THIS PRINT should be read with eyes at ten inches and is a test for NEAR VISION.

We have a large assortment and are prepared to adjust the same upon scientific principles. We use NACHET'S TRIAL CASE, together with the OPTHALMOSCOPIC TEST LENSE, combining the best methods known for detecting all optical defects of the eye and determining the lenses needed for their correction.

TO THE HOLDERS OF

United States 4 1-2 Per Cent Bonds,

DUE 1891.

We beg to call your attention to the fact that the above mentioned United States Bonds at the present price yield only

Two and One-quarter Per Cent

(2 1-4) interest, and that as they approach maturity the price will decline until the whole premium will be wiped out.

We therefore advise the holders of these Bonds to sell or exchange them for other securities. We have on hand a desirable list of City, County, Railroad and Water Bonds, suitable for Trust Funds, and would be pleased to have the holders of the above mentioned Bonds communicate with us.

THE PRESS.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUG. 11.

WIT AND WISDOM.

"This is about the slimmest dinner I ever sat down to," he said, as he surveyed the table; "but I suppose I ought to make allowances."

"Yes, John," replied his wife, "if you would make certain allowances, you would have no occasion to quarrel with your food."

There are many forms of nervous debility in men that yield to the use of Carter's Iron Pills. Those who are troubled with nervous weakness, night sweats, etc., should try them.

"And who is this young woman at your hotel you rave so much about? Is she the belle of the establishment?"

"No, not the bell, precisely, but the annunciator."

"The annunciator?"

"Yes; she announces when the meals are ready. That's why I think so much of her."

ALL good Grocers sell and recommend Burnett's Flavoring Extracts. Housekeepers should ask and insist upon having these goods, and send back the nauseous mess sent home under the name of extracts.

Young woman (to dealer)—I want to buy a cane for a young gentleman, but I hardly know what kind of a head to select.

Dealer—Yes, miss; what size hat does he wear?

Young woman—Charley—er—the young gentleman wears a number five, I think.

Dealer—Then you had better select one without any varnish on it.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Nerve Pills, aided by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

"I have been run over many and many a time by wagons, buggies, horses and carriages," said a little son of Rev. T. C. Boykin, looking from the window at a passing carriage, behind which streamed a cloud of dust.

"What do you mean?" asked the father."

"Why, didn't you say I was made out of dust?"

Hay Fever sufferers ought to know of its efficacy. Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me as a preventive to Hay Fever. Have been using it since the 9th of August and have found it a specific for that much dreaded disease. For ten years I have been a great sufferer from August 9th till frost, and have tried many alleged remedies, but Ely's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found.—F. B. Ainsworth, Publisher, Indianapolis, Ind.

"I know I've got a vein of poetry in me, sir,' confidentially asserted the young man to the editor, "and all I want is a chance to bring it out. What would you suggest, sir?"

"I think you had better see a doctor and have it lanced."

Drunkenness Growing Less.

It is a notorious fact that the great tendency among the people to stimulate is having a reaction. Lately an article called Moxie Nerve Food has appeared upon the markets, which is sold in all the drug stores, hotels, and drinking saloons in the country; that gives all the nerves require of a stimulant, without reaction or harm, and old drinkers like it better. The profit is about the same as on whiskey. It is taken by all classes of the people, from the clergyman to the tramp, for its remarkable, harmless support to the nervous system. Nervous, weakly women say they can do double work on six cents worth per day. It cures nervousness in a few days, and does not lose its effect from long use more than other vegetable foods. It contains no alcohol.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

KANSAS CITY INVESTMENTS.

KAW CITY LAND CO.

Of Kansas City, Mo.

Office 113 DEVONSHIRE ST., Boston.

Incorporated under the laws of Missouri to buy, sell and improve lands in and about Kansas City.

Kansas City is the most rapidly growing and prosperous city on the continent, and as a field for safe and profitable real estate investment it is unequaled. The history of the few land companies which have selected it as a field for operations is one of enormous profits rapidly accumulated. As this Company enters the field under more favorable auspices than any of its predecessors, the projectors anticipate at least an equally prosperous existence. A limited amount of the capital stock is now offered to the public, and as it will be sold on the "ground floor" it offers a most favorable opportunity for investment. The Company controls a large tract of land unequalled by any in Kansas City for immediate development, and at a price so low as to insure very large profits. The Prospectus is full of information, will repay a careful perusal, and will be furnished upon application. Correspondence solicited.

DON'T SCOLD

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—ought't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he won't stay in-doors, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of the physician could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continue its use, and am well."—Rev. S. H. TROYER, New Albany, Ind.

A WARNING.

The modes of death's approach are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from diseases of the Throat and Lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception, receives vast numbers of Tubercle Germs into the system, and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop, at first slowly, and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat, and if allowed to continue their ravages they extend to the lungs, producing Consumption, and to the head, causing Catarrh. Now all this is dangerous, and if allowed to proceed will, in time, cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous, and may lose you your life. As soon as you feel that something is wrong with your Throat, Lungs or Nostrils, obtain a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief. nov8-d1y-eT

A 13-year-old Portland lad, who is visiting in Brunswick, entered A. T. Campbell's store in that village, by breaking a window, and stole a gold watch, two chains, and three Masonic pins and a watch charm. The goods were recovered. He was a cool little fellow, for after he entered the store he put up papers over the window, and lighted the gas and then selected the jewelry he wanted. Mr. Campbell will not prosecute him.

KENNEBEC COUNTY.

The Fairfield Electric Light company will petition the next legislature for the right to use electricity instead of horse power.

Next Wednesday the venerable Rev. J. T. Hawes of Litchfield will celebrate his 90th birthday.

KNOX COUNTY.

A very pleasant wedding occurred on Wednesday, at the residence of John Fogler, Esq., at South Hope, when Mr. Fogler's daughter, Mrs. Martha F. Leach, was married to Mr. Mortimer N. Vogler of Salem, North Carolina. Among the guests were Mrs. Dr. Williams, Mr. Prentiss M. Fogler, Register of Deeds of Kennebec county, and family, and Mr. Lyman Fogler of the State Treasurer's office of Augusta, and Mr. E. R. Bowler and wife of Rockland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. V. Norcross of Union. The Fogler family is one of the German families by which Waldoboro and vicinity was settled over a hundred years ago, and originally the name was written Vogler. It is well known that a large number of the colony from Germany, which came here soon after, went South, and settled in North and South Carolina. Mr. Vogler is descended from one of these families.

PENOBSCOT COUNTY.

The Burr families held a reunion in Bangor, Thursday.

Dr. Weed, the alleged robber of Peter Bennett, and Oliver Cromwell never come out of their cells to attend the jail meetings held on Sunday by the Bangor Y. M. C. A. Cromwell, it may be remembered, was a Baptist clergyman years ago, and probably thinks now that he can do his own preaching. Stain is a regular attendant at the jail meetings when well, but sickness has prevented him from being present for the past few Sundays. The congregation at the jail meetings is a curious one.

Another new building is needed at the Maine State College, and it will have to be built in the near future. This time it is not for recitation rooms, but to increase the accommodations for students and meet the rapid growth of the institution in numbers. This fall the capacity of Oak and Wingate Halls is already severely taxed, and it is feared that many students will be obliged to board outside the college buildings if the increase continues. Friends of the institution are very glad to see trouble of this kind, however. Besides the large freshman class nine new men have joined the sophomore class.

SOMERSET COUNTY.

The rear of the Kennebec drive has gone over the falls at Skowhegan. There are now about 75 men at work on the logs, but 40 of them will now be discharged. It will take twenty days yet to get the drive into the booms. It has been a long seige and quite expensive.

Two river drivers, Joseph Goulette of Skowhegan and John Spearing of Bangor were drowned in the Kennebec at Skowhegan this morning. They were breaking up a raft of logs that had jammed on the falls, and remained too long, so that when the logs started they could not retreat, but went with the logs over the falls and into the rapid water 13 feet below. Goulette was 31 years of age, and had a wife and two children. Spearing was about 30 years of age and unmarried. The bodies have not been recovered as yet.

Maine's Account.

[Lewiston Journal.]

"Why, gentlemen, everything that comes into Maine is taxed two or three times more than it was under the old revenue tariff. But the average tax of this tariff of today on the products of Maine is not so much as under the revenue tariff of 1846."—Candidate Putnam at Bangor.

By "tax" Mr. Putnam means "duty." The duty imposed by the tariff of 1846 on lumber was the same as now, from 10 to 20 per cent.; the duty on wool was 30 per cent., and under the present tariff is about 40 per cent.; the duty on farm products and lime was the same as now; the duty on cotton and woolen goods, of which we manufacture much more than we use, was 10 per cent. less than now, and the duty on boots and shoes the same. So much for Mr. Putnam's statement that the duties which protected Maine products were more under the tariff of 1846 than now.

But what the duties of 1846 were is of little consequence. What is of immediate interest is what are the duties that the Democrats on the one hand and the Republicans on the other propose now. Please compare these, Mr. Putnam, and then balance Maine's account.

The Mills (Democratic) bill proposes to "protect" Maine products by placing wool manufactured lumber of all kinds, all of Maine farm products except potatoes, bricks, bags and undressed granite on the free list; as well as by reducing duties on other articles. Lime is to have a duty of a little less than 5 cents per cask and Canadian fish preserved in ice and by artificial freezing are to come in free of duty. Iron materials for vessels for the foreign trade are to pay 40 per cent. duty, but another bill reported by the Democratic majority of the shipping committee proposes to admitfree of duty to American registry, complet ed foreign-built ships for this trade. On the other hand, while stripping Maine's products of protection, the Mills bill proposes to impose a duty of 68 per cent. on the sugar Maine wants to buy and 100 per cent. on our rice, when so small a proportion of our consumption is made in this country that the price here is the foreign cost plus the duty.

On the other hand the Republican protection bill, as indicated by the votes of Republicans in the House and as already formulated by the Senate, proposes to retain the present 40 per cent. duty on clothing wool, and the present duty of 20 per cent. on manufactured lumber and farm products, and the present duty on bricks, bags and undressed granite; to thoroughly protect our cotton and woolen industries; to make the duty on lime 10 cents per cask; to impose a duty on Canadian fish preserved by ice or an other preservative process; to admit free of duty the chief iron materials needed for the construction of iron vessels for the foreign trade; and to retain the present law requiring American registered vessels to be built in this country. And at the same time the Republican tariff bill will reduce the duty on rice and sugar to 41 per cent.—instead of the 68 and 100 per cent. of the Mills bill.

Now if Candidate Putnam, in his next speech, can spend time to discuss the two tariff measures on which the people of Maine will pronounce a verdict in September and November, the people will find it much more interesting and important than going back to the tariff of 1846.

A Canine of Culture.

[Brunswick Telegraph.]

An acquaintance owns a setter, (female) one of the most refined and delicate in her manners of any dog that we have ever seen and perfect in her action in the field. This spring the dog gave birth to a litter of pups, and she has trained them perfectly. The little rascals as soon as they could run would chase the lambs on the farm. The mother went for them, taking one after another by the neck and giving them a good shaking, and the little chaps soon learned that chasing lambs did not always end in fun for themselves. Then they attempted to chase young kittens and again the motherly discipline was applied. Their next field of exploration was the vines in the garden, and the mother drove or rather hauled them out of that in short order, so that a better behaved family cannot be found.

How often one hears a mother tell of the "cute" wickedness of her wonderful darling; that mother might well take a lesson in morals from that thoroughly bred, as she is instinctively refined, setter.

Comes Home with the Cows.

[Norway Advertiser.]

When F. H. Pike moved from Bolster's Mills to the James Bennett farm he brought a cat. This cat staid in the barn the greater part of the time during the winter with the cattle and became greatly attached to them. This summer when the cows are turned out to pasture kitty goes with them each morning, stays all day and returns with them at night.

Nutritious Baking Powders.

By PROF. DOREMUS, of Bellevue Medical College, N. Y.

It is a serious problem for the physiological chemist to discover the best method of supplying the human system, especially an exhausted one, with the requisite amount of phosphatic food for the organism to remain in health. The phosphatic salts are never wanting in the most nourishing varieties of food, whether vegetable or animal. They are closely allied to all the vital functions, are constantly being eliminated from the body, and must be replaced by a fresh supply. The testimony of thousands goes to show that under the prevalent conditions and habits of American life, there are few who are not greatly benefitted when they partake of these same phosphates as restorative agents. The sales of phosphatic preparations for medicinal use, or as a mild tonic, have assumed enormous proportions.

On April 22nd, 1856, Prof. E. N. Horsford secured his letters patent for the manufacture and use of an acid phosphate of lime to be incorporated with starch and bicarbonate of soda, and thus serve as a baking powder. This is the first instance in which, besides acting as an aerating agent, a baking powder was to add nutritive elements to the bread. Phosphatic powders are today the sole exemplification of this important principle. The natural phosphates removed from the grain in the process of bolting the flour are by Horsford's method restored through the baking powder. While the residues which all baking powders leave, except those which consist of salts which volatalize completely under the heat of the baking oven, are of a nature which makes it a matter of doubt whether they should be introduced into the system, in case of the phosphatic powders foreign to the flour, but composed of the same salts, practically, which form the ash of the cereal grains.—Scientific American.

In accordance with the plan we inaugurated when we began to close our store at six o'clock Saturdays, and offer special Saturday bargains, we shall sell to-day the following lots. The prices quoted give no idea of the size of the bargain, you'll have to see the goods to realize the value of our offer:

LOT 1.—Ladies' Fine Lisle Thread Vests, white, ecru and other colors, have been selling at $1.25, will be sold to-day at fifty cents.

LOT 2.—Ladies' Gauze Vests in white and unbleached, at 12 1-2 cents each; regular price, twenty-five.

LOT 3.—Infants' Long Black Hosiery, sizes 4½, 5, 5½, at 12½ cents. These Stockings are the celebrated "Robinson fast dye," and the price today is less than half what the goods have been selling for.

LOT 4.—Ladies' fine gage fancy Hosiery at twenty-five cents. There are but a few dozens of these and it will be necessary to come early for them.

In addition to the above lots we shall make the regular Saturday prices on Men's Neckwear.
