Consultant Reports:

M.Ney:

- DOE has created a Statewide Literacy Plan (Birth to Death), however limited funding is now impacting the roll-out. Roll-out will begin with a 5-webinar series to kick it off.
- Consultants will be instrumental in helping to facilitate bringing communities together to define their own literacy plans/needs
- B.Edmonds indicated that Digital Literacy should be included in all “literacy” efforts going forward and should not be distinguished between traditional literacy plans and efforts
- The Brownstone Book Fund will support 45 libraries in Maine with 100 children’s books going to each library (processing included)
- “Turning the Page” advocacy effort is now being overseen by local coordinators in every state to help keep the program going on a local level. M.Ney has completed training and she will undertake the effort to continue advancing this program in Maine.

S.Zurinski:

- Marvelous Marvel Invitational has over 126 participants with an active participation rate of nearly 70% -- it has been a great success.
- Attended Cosline meeting in O.C., Maryland – attended featured presentation on “Thinking about the Future” given by the Pennsylvania State Librarian.
- Cosline meeting also featured workshops on Maker Spaces and S.Zurinski is looking into creating bringing such a workshop to Maine at a future event.

V.Osborne

- Will host two training sessions in February 2013 via Adobe Connect
- Nells Leadership program will indicate how many Maine ‘spots’ are available for participants this week (11-26-12) and then applications can commence

Other Business:

- L.Lord mentioned that there is a local group of businesses and business people dedicated to raising considerable funding for early literacy efforts – she has meeting scheduled to discuss how MSL can be involved in future efforts.
