Farewell to Winter.

BY LEAH LEE.

We want to see the green grass spring,

Haste, haste away cold winter,

Among the pebbles of the brook,

The rippling waters gush,

In gorgeous beauty blush :

The birch and willow tassel out,

And maple keys come forth,

And the ruddy farmer sally

To meet the rosy dawn, And whistling, drive his team afield,

Across the dewy lawn.

Yet we'd not be ungrateful

To winter, old and hoary:

For hollidays and sleigh-rides,

But thank him for long evenings,

And the merry chime of bells,

For the snow balls and the skatings,

And the coasting down the hills;

And for "the treasures of the snow."

Like childhoods spotless innocence,

Too heaveulike to endure;

That deck the forest green,

With jewels bright as ever glowed,

Yes, here's enough to make the heart

"Something strange

So beautiful and pure,

For the iridescent crystals,

In crown of king or queen.

O'erflow with gratitude-

All God has made is beautiful. For all His works are good.

Cheered with glad song and story;

And the winter snows hie homeward To their caverus in the north :

You've tarried now too long ;

And hear the wild bird's song :

And on it's mossy banks the flowers,
