-'My dear hearers, said a preacher, discoursing on the awful subject of death 'there's nothing that destroys so many lives as death. Some people are killed by accident and some in battle; some Publisher, Bookseller and Stationer are lost at sen, and some are devoured by wild beasts, but my dear hearers, it is a solemn truth, that nothing kills so many as death. Aye, death has been at work ever since sin entered the world and has destroyed millions on millions BRIDGTON CENTER, ---- MAINL of the human family.

- First class in philosophy stand up. Thibits, what is life?' 'Life consists of THE subscriber having fitted up the front money, a fast horse, and a fashionable wife.' 'What is poverty?' 'The reward of merit which genius receives from a discriminating public.' 'What is religion?' 'Doing unto others as begs leave to inform the citizens of you please, without allowing a return of the compliment.' 'What is fame?' 'A six line puff in a newspaper.'

- There is a grocer who is said to pared to sell them such as be so mean that he was seen to catch a fly off his counter, hold him up by the hind legs, and look in at the cracks of his feet to see if he hadn't been stealing some of his best sugar.

- 'Tis strange,' uttered a young man as he staggered home from a supper party, 'how evil communications corrupt good manners. I've been surrouned by tumblers all the evening, and now as cheap as the cheapest. I'm a tumbler myself.'

in an affray. Luckily the ball came against a bundle of unpaid accounts in his pocket. Gunpowder couldn't get through that.

- The editor of the Gardiner Journal makes mention of the fact that Dr. Warren of Bangor has a cat without a tail, and concludes by saying that he brought the tale to a close.
