The Jerusalem artichoke is used in France for making brandy as well as alcohol.

Sweden exported 20,000 tons of butter to England last year and ate 12,000 tons of margarine at home.

Last year's output of coal in South Wales was 41,305,000 tons, an increase of 2,000,000 tons over 1901.

In round numbers, the frozen rabbits imported last year from Australia and New Zealand totaled 11,500,000.

Five centuries ago the English ate four meals a day—at seven, ten, four, eight. The dinner hour in England and France has been gradually advanced from ten a. m. to nearly ten p. m.

Several notable persons have fallen victims to the new ordinance at Washington forbidding automobiles speeding. Lieut. Robert S. Clark, of the Ninth infantry, the stepson of Bishop Potter and the wealthiest man in the army, was the first punished. He paid the court ten dollars for running his machine at a 24-mile-an-hour gait. Frank Joy, a broker, was caught and fined ten dollars, and a millionaire from the west, who appeared as John Smith in the police records, paid five dollars for five minutes of joy at the rate of 20 miles an hour.

A Chicagoan just returned from abroad, while touring in Wales, came upon a pretty little village whose portentous dimensions are ridiculously out of proportion to the size of the place. The Chicago man has many attempts to pronounce the name, but never succeeded in getting half way through. It is as follows: Lanfairpwllgoglegyrchyrdrobevill-Llantysilio-goch. "However," says the Chicagoan, "the natives do not usually pronounce it in full. They call it Llanfairpwllwyngyll for short. The British government charges ten cents extra on telegrams bearing the complete name.

Souvenir hunters have made so free with trifles found on tables and stands in the white house that some action became necessary. One party of young women visitors recently made away with about everything movable except the furniture. They carried off pens, pencils, pads of paper, blotters and the tops of every ink bottle in sight. They would have taken the ink bottles, but they were filled. Since then the waiting room has always been kept prepared for souvenir hunters. One of the tables on which writing materials were kept has been removed and the other has nothing on it but an ink bottle and a few plain cards. When a caller wants to fill out a card he is given a pen by an attendant, who takes it again as soon as he is through.

MASSAGED HIS HEA. T.

English Physician Squeezes Patient's Heart and Sets It Going Again When Stopped.

At a recent clinic in England the operator actually started a man's heart working after its functions had ceased by massaging the vital organ with his hands. It was at a meeting of the Society of Anaesthetics in England the other day that Dr. E. A. Starling reported this occurrence, says the Philadelphia North American.

The case was one of appendicitis. The patient was a man of 65 years of age. Ether and nitrous oxide were the anaesthetics employed to render him unconscious. It is always considered a risky matter to use the knife exclusively upon a person over 60, and in this instance the operators were well prepared for emergencies. Therefore, when, after the operation had proceeded for some minutes, the subject's pulse began to slacken and his breath to come very faintly there was no flurry among the surgeons or nurses assisting. At first they tried artificial respiration, drawing the tongue in and out to induce resumption of the natural functions. But the lungs failed to respond, and finally both pulse and respiration ceased.

Then the surgeon, W. Arbuthnot Lane, pushed his hand up through the abdominal wound and grasped the motionless heart, through the diaphragm. He squeezed it and felt it start pulsating, though no radical pulse could be felt. Artificial respiration and other restoratives were continued, and in about 12 minutes natural respiration reappeared and the pulse became perceptible at the wrist.

After that the surgeon wielded his knife as before the interruption, and proceeded to complete his work in businesslike fashion. He did not use an anaesthetic while performing the final work.

There was no complication in the case, and the old man made what the doctors call "a good recovery." Commenting on the success of the experiment in this case the Journal of the American Medical Association says:

"This rough-and-ready method and its success in this case are suggestive of important possibilities, and demonstrates that cutting operations in these cases are not essential and can be avoided.

"The previous failures followed extensive exposures of the heart either by rib resection or incision through the diaphragm, as recommended by Maudslair (in two cases). This of itself introduces a serious complication, and Lane's success was probably mainly due to his avoidance of this. The case, as the Lancet remarks, justifies us in saying that, if during laparotomy the patient's heart stops, the case should never be abandoned as hopeless until manual compression of the heart through the diaphragm has been performed."

BEST DETERRENT OF CRIME.

Nothing is More Effective in Checking Lawlessness than Sure and Swift Punishment.

The most important duty of any police force is the control of the vagrant and criminal classes and the prevention of crimes against person and property. There are many other and important fields of usefulness, but unless the force is successful in dealing with crime it is a failure. As a deterrent of crime, nothing is probably more effective than swift and sure punishment, writes Andrew D. Avery, in the Cosmopolitan. In England a murder trial is completed within a few weeks, or months at the outside, after the apprehension of the accused, and from the first trial there is no appeal to a higher court of review or appeal. The wisdom of permitting no appeal in capital cases is a question which has been widely discussed and cannot be taken up here. Whether wise and humane or not, it is interesting to note that the police records show an astonishingly small number of murders in London, and I believe that the celerity with which the trials are conducted has much to do with the suppression of this most heinous of all crimes. According to the official report of the commissioner of the metropolitan police, there were reported to the London police only 24 murders in the calendar year 1901, and this out of a population of over 6,000,000.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Cragin, Phillips; Whitney, Rangeley; Dyer, Strong; Mitchell, Kingfield.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The opening services of the mission to be conducted here by Evangelist H. R. Gale, assisted by his musical director, L. E. Smith of Tremont Temple, Boston, were held at the Union church, Sunday. The church was well filled by attentive audiences both morning and evening. A chorus choir under the direction of Mr. Smith sang throughout the day. Several of the hymns, however, were given by Mr. Smith as solos, his careful enunciation and expressive rendering making them indeed, sermons in song. Master Prince Wheeler will act as organist throughout the mission.

Mr. Gale, who was heard at each service, speaks in a calm and candid way and with an evident sincerity and earnestness beyond question. He said that as the morning service had been given to him he would take that opportunity to speak concerning the purpose of the mission, the work which it hoped to accomplish and the methods to be used, that there might be no misunderstanding in regard to it.

It is rather unusual, he said, for him to be called to a place of this size, yet at this time the conditions indicate that here God wishes him to work. At first the desire that he should come had arisen in the minds of several, independently of any conversation together about it. When asked if he could come, he had been obliged to say at no date save a very early one. It was found that the early date could be used. In various ways it had been indicated that the time was favorable for the work of the mission and he had come to Phillips expecting that the work of the Lord shall be seen here. His work was not primarily to help men to escape hell, or gain heaven, though he believed most sincerely that the continued rejection of Jesus Christ would place men in hell, whatever that term represents. Yet he should speak but little upon that phase of truth. Jesus said that the purpose of his coming was that men might have life and that they might have it more abundantly. The purpose of this mission is to lead men to accept the life which is in Jesus Christ. Having that they need fear neither life nor death, for they are prepared for either.

Mr. Gale then read from Rev. iii, 20, "Behold I stand at the door and knock." Probably every evangelist and preacher has used this passage for a text. Often, perhaps usually, as an appeal to the unsaved. It is a beautiful text for such an appeal, for it is true. But as given in the Bible these are the words of Jesus to a church, the church of Laodicea. And it is today sadly true, that many a church, even as did the church of Laodicea are keeping Jesus outside and have not that abundant life that he came to give. If any church has for five years failed to know a spiritual awakening which has brought men to the Lord Jesus, there is some vital difficulty with that church. To such Jesus says, "I stand and knock." Until he has been allowed to come in, there can be no hope of revival in that church.

Many people say that they do not believe in evangelists. They believe that the work of the church should be carried on by the pastor and people. To my mind that is the ideal way. A working church to which is being continually added followers of Jesus Christ. But in many places this is not done, and God has sent, as his word tells us, some to be prophets, some apostles, some pastors and teachers, and some evangelists. Thus their work has the sanction of his approval.

But back of the work of the evangelist, somewhere, there must be prayer, earnest persistent prayer. The speaking, the singing, all that we may do, will not avail without prayer. Everyone knows that no new life comes into the world save by the pain and agony of travail. Neither is there the birth of a soul into the kingdom of God without travail of soul.

Some object to revivals because, as they say, many are not steadfast and true to the cause they espouse. We can not deny that what they say is true. In the business world 90 per cent of those who engage in business fail to succeed. In every line of work there are failures. Yet these things are not accepted as reasons why men should attempt nothing. The percentage of those who fail in the Christian life is smaller than in any other endeavor.

Again it is said that a reaction always follows a revival. Reaction always follows action, but it is not reaction but no action that is to be feared. A terrible lethargy is upon many churches. This it is that is deadly, but none need fear the reaction of a true revival. If there be prejudice in any heart towards any work which may help men to Christ let it be put away.

Let us be earnest and true to our convictions. When the people of the church live true, consistent Christian Fibroid Tumors Cured.

A distressing case of Fibroid Tumor, which baffled the skill of Boston doctors. Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, Mass., in the following letter tells how she was cured, after everything else failed, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help!

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Note the result of Mrs. Pinkham's advice—although she advised Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, to take her medicine—which she knew would help her—her letter contained a mass of additional instructions as to treatment, all of which helped to bring about the happy result.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St., (Roxbury) Boston, Mass.

Mountains of gold could not purchase such testimony—or take the place of the health and happiness which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought to Mrs. Hayes.

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women; all ovarian troubles; tumors; inflammations; ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb; backache; irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation. Surely the volume and character of the testimonial letters we are daily printing in the newspapers can leave no room for doubt.

Mrs. Hayes at her above address will gladly answer any letters which sick women may write for fuller information about her illness. Her gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so genuine and heartfelt that she thinks no trouble is too great for her to take in return for her health and happiness.

Truly it is said that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing so many women, and no other medicine; don't forget this when some druggist wants to sell you something else.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

lives, day after day before men, it will not be hard to win them to Christ. An incident will illustrate my meaning. A beautiful and gifted woman sat with her husband in a gospel service. The request was made that all who were on the side of Christ should stand.

The lady stood, for she was a Christian. Those who wished to be numbered with the followers of Christ were asked to stand. She said to her husband as they left the church that she had hoped to see him take the stand for Christ. He said, "I will talk with you about it." On reaching home he told her that he had failed to see that her religion brought any desirable thing which he did not also possess into her life. He spoke of faults from which both were free, himself as well as his wife, of lines of conduct which both followed. He mentioned places at which he was seen, but his wife was there with him. And he said that honestly he could see no advantage derived from following Christ. The wife said that God helping her he should henceforward see that Christ did bring strength and blessing into her life. A new loyalty to Christ characterized her life and not many months after the husband declared himself a believer in Christ and his salvation.

I warn you of one thing. As you offer your prayers unto God there must be in your heart no bitterness toward anyone. Should there be you can offer no prayer that will reach the ear of God. You can do nothing to bring a soul unto the kingdom. Here followed one of those vivid word paintings which are often heard from Mr. Gale's lips. One felt the unsatisfied longing for peace that was in the hearts of those who refused to forgive him who had bitterly wronged them and felt also the entrance of peace when Christ triumphed in the heart and forgiveness had been accorded to the wrongdoer. Mr. Gale pleaded that no cherished resentment be allowed to hinder in the work of saving the souls of men.

In the evening Mr. Gale spoke especially to the people of the churches, emphasizing the fact that they were ambassadors of the kingdom of God. As such they dwell in the world, the needs and conditions of whose people they should learn. As ambassadors they should rightly represent the kingdom to which they belong, the character of which will be estimated according to their conduct. Ambassadors must also deliver the message entrusted to them, regardless of inclination, regardless of its nature, regardless of the apparent danger into which they may be brought. Whatever the circumstances in which they may be placed ambassadors may not, must not lower the flag of the country which they represent, but see that it is kept flying, announcing that for which they stand.

64TH ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

Franklin Co. Cattle Show Opens Most Auspiciously.

Tuesday morning the clerk of the weather was in perfect harmony with the officials of the Franklin County Agricultural society.

Ever since early morning the people have been coming to the show and many have brought their best stock for exhibition.

The Niles Brothers of Farmington have probably the choicest collection of cattle on the grounds.

E. D. H., the prominent Phillips breeder of registered Hereford stock, has fifteen head on exhibition.

Charleson & Furbush of Farmington show two pairs of 3-years-old steers. Eugene Luce has one pair of 3-years-old Herefords.

L. M. Mosher of Farmington exhibits two pairs 2-years-old Herefords that were prize winners at the Lewiston fair.

Chester P. Hamlin is probably the largest single exhibitor on the grounds. He exhibits 58 registered Shropshire and Lincolnshire sheep.

Chas. Davis of Farmington exhibits St. John, a registered Jersey bull, also two full blood heifers.

E. C. Winslow, the prominent breeder of registered Short Horns of this place, exhibits this year ten head of cows, bulls and calves.

Chas. W. Adams of East Wilton exhibits eleven head of registered Ayer-shire cows, bulls, calves, etc., headed by Lanniston Victor, 57594.

A. A. Oakes of Chesterville shows nine head of registered Guerneys, bulls, cows, calves, etc.

S. C. Wheeler of Chesterville shows a handsome registered Berkshire sow. A registered Chester boar is shown by M. F. Hardy of Farmington Falls.

Herman Corbett of Farmington shows this year Guerneys, Jerseys and Ayer-shires, also twelve head of registered Hampshire Down sheep.

The poultry exhibit this year is very good and is headed by Bradbury & Tarbox, the prominent Farmington poultry fanciers.

Chas. L. Davis exhibits three coops of poultry; S. C. Wheeler, Chesterville, three coops; Peter T. Dascomb, Wilton, two coops; Mrs. J. A. Holmes, Wilton, two coops; W. H. Pearson, Farmington, two coops; S. A. Derby, Temple, two coops; J. A. Jones, Farmington, two coops; S. F. Yeaton, Farmington, five coops; E. A. Ranger, Wilton, five coops.

In the inside circle agricultural implements are on exhibition. Several different kinds of gasoline engines are shown in full action and cream separators come in for their full share of notice.

The Midway is so extensive and varied this year as to deserve special mention and we shall do so in another column.

Up till 12 o'clock the cattle show is the greatest thing that ever happened in the annals of Farmington.

Wednesday Morning's Fair.

Wednesday morning, old Sol, who has been so kind to the fair officials up to date, refused to let his benign rays illuminate the fair grounds.

M. E. Titcomb of Farmington has an exhibit of the U. S. separators and Babcock's testers, which attract much attention.

The Poole piano is also on exhibition, and in one corner a man is testing eyes free of charge.

Here also a man is busily engaged in putting up packages of valuable jewelry, price only 25 cents.

Mrs. J. E. Collins has a fine exhibit of jellies and Mr. Collins shows a fine collection of fruit from the Granite View farm.

The up stairs exhibit is certainly a daisy! What a lot of good warm comforters and quilts that will come into play so well when the nights get frosty.

The art exhibit is unusually good this year, Miss Nellie Farmer being the leading exhibitor with a good sized collection of water colors and crayon drawings.

Hescock & Atwood of Phillips have a large exhibit on the upper floor of manufactured woollens, etc.

As the day advances the exhibitors keep coming with all kinds of useful, ornamental and fancy articles.

The Midway.

Never before in the history of fairs in Farmington has there been so extended and varied a Midway.

"Lady Pauline" advertises herself as a soothsayer and teller of fortunes.

A couple of young ladies on the midway are selling molasses kisses, etc. They are dressed in fetching costumes of orange and make a very striking appearance.

The man with the striking and lifting machines and all the con men dodgers are doing business rapidly.

The old fairgoers, Furbush & Blaisdell of Lewiston, are present, also the jingle boards are in full blast.

Then there is the worker in gold wire and the seller of aluminum souvenirs.

We almost excluded in our description of the Midway the numerous ten-cent teams that are so plenty this year between the village and the fair grounds.

UP-TO-DATE ADVERTISING.

In these days live merchants are looking for profit. They are placing their advertisements where, in their best judgement, they will do them the most good.

That would be considered a senseless performance now.

We want advertisements from people who want to get their money's worth out of their advertising.

We want advertisements from people who intend to give their advertisements some care and attention.

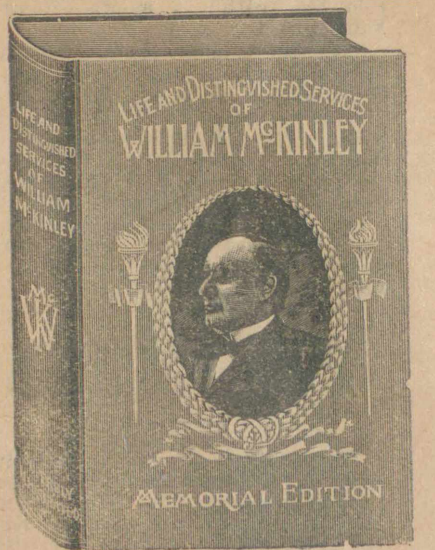

We want advertisements from business people who realize that they have something to say to the more than ten thousand readers of MAINE WOODSMAN, if they would make their business all that it should be.

To such people, the MAINE WOODSMAN advertising columns present it a rare bargain.

The MAINE WOODSMAN has the readers—more than ten thousand of them—without which all advertising would be a failure—money thrown away.

But IT PAYS to advertise in MAINE WOODSMAN. If in doubt try it.

Classified advertisements only one cent a word.

POSTAL CARD DELUGE.

The thousands of postal cards received every month by the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation of Rondout, N. Y., requesting a trial bottle of their FAVORITE REMEDY reach such huge proportions that it has been very justly called a postal deluge.

Think of the substantial reward each sender of a postal card receives—a trial bottle of DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, the greatest known cure for diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Liver, Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation.

If in return for the price of a postal card (one cent) you receive a medicine free, that will relieve your suffering. It is only fair to believe that a continued use of the same medicine, for a reasonable length of time will surely cure you.

Women who suffer from what is known as "female weaknesses" find, upon investigation, that their troubles are really diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder. To ascertain this, allow some urine to remain in a glass for twenty-four hours; if there is a sediment and smoky appearance; if you have pains in the back; if you are obliged to frequently urinate during the night, and if burning pains accompany its passage; you should seek at once Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, the most brilliant jewel in the world of medicine.

AMOK IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Fanatical Outbursts of the More Tribesmen in the Different Groups of Islands.

In Sulu and in Mindanao amoks by Mohametan fanatics among Moro tribesmen are common. These fellows gave the Spaniards formerly a good deal of trouble. They are now giving the American successors of the Spaniards an idea of what amok running means. The Manila Times thus handles some recent fanatical outbursts of this kind in that quarter: From time to time reports have come in from the southern possessions stating that some Moros have "run amok." While many people will recognize the expression, there are few who know its real significance as pertaining to the Moros. In 1900 reports frequently came from the Twenty-third infantry, the Twenty-eighth and Fortieth volunteer regiments of Moros "running amok." Since the departure of these regiments for the states reports from their successors, the Seventeenth infantry and Fifteenth cavalry, have frequently referred to the same class of Moros. An army officer, recently from the Sulu archipelago, gives the following significance to the expression: According to the Mahometan religion, a subject, no matter how tired he may be of life, cannot reach his happy hunting ground should he commit suicide. These fanatics have a more graceful manner of forcing death upon themselves than more civilized people. For example: A Sulu Moro, through falling hopelessly in debt, being taken in slavery, after a time sometimes becomes despondent and decides to shuffle off the mortal coil. Having reached this frame of mind, he tells his troubles to the priest of his datto or chieftan, who, if he believes the subject is in earnest, refers the case to the next higher authority with his approval. Thus the case goes on through "official channels" until it reaches the member of the court of the sultan who decides such matters. Should this dignitary approve of the supplication, the subject is given a religious ceremony and swears to "die fighting." His eyebrows and parts of his head are then shaved clean, and under certain conditions he is given a white turban. His sword, or other weapon, which must have the keen edge of a razor, is then examined, and if found satisfactory he starts out on the prescribed mission of blood letting. A great factor in the happiness in the future world is his horse that he will receive after death. Its size will be large or small, according to whether he slays many or few, and its color light or dark, depending upon the color of his victims. He, of course, desires a large white horse. Thus it may be seen that he is a dangerous character, particularly to Americans and Europeans, though Chinese, being of lighter skin than himself, often become his victims. He prefers the lighter blood, but does not hesitate to deal the death blow to other human beings, even to his fellow-tribesmen, if this coveted blood is not to be had, figuring, no doubt, that in the world to come he will be better off with a small dark horse than with no steed at all. During the last year five Moros have run amok in Jolo, the chief town of Sulu. Thanks to the alertness of the American soldiers, but one person has been injured by these fiends, and his recovery is assured.

PARROT TALKED BOSS.

Owner Believes the Bird Must Think to Study This Particular Effect.

Daniel J. Sully has a great fondness for parrots. He collects data in proof of the intelligence of these birds, says the New York Tribune.

"A cotton grower down south," Mr. Sully said the other day, "has sent me an amusing story about a green parrot that he owns. This parrot, it seems, began as soon as it was bought to learn to mimic the voices of the household of my friend.

"It mimicked the contralto voice of the mistress, the treble voice of the young son, the soprano voice of the daughter and the Irish voice of the cook; but the heavy and deep bass voice of the master it was quite unable to cope with. It would practice for hours at a time, but it could not produce from its throat the deep, hoarse sound that it desired.

"Therefore the family was astonished one day to hear the parrot mimicking the master's voice exactly. They sat in the dining room. Distinct and loud the sounds came from the hall to them, a thunderous and rolling bass voice saying:

"Bring me the evening paper."
 "Some one went out and looked at the parrot. Its head was hidden in its seed cup, and it was making its voice resonant by speaking from within the seed cup's hollow.

"And always, now, when it wants to speak in a bass voice, it puts its head in its seed cup. Isn't that proof of the almost human intelligence of the bird?"

A Purgative Pleasure.

If you ever took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness or constipation you know what a purgative pleasure is. These famous little pills cleanse the liver and rid the system of all bile without producing unpleasant effects. They do not gripe, sicken or weaken, but give tone and strength to the tissues and organs involved. W. H. Howell, of Houston, Texas, says: "No better pill can be used than Little Early Risers for constipation, sick headache, etc." Sold by Cragin, Phillips.

How It Might Be Done.

After the horse had bucked and compelled the rider to turn a double somersault in the air, the latter got up and looked reproachfully at the man who had induced him to buy.

"I told you," he said, "that I wanted a horse I could ride."

"Strange," replied the cowboy, "you kin ride that hoss all right if you go at it the right way."

"But what is the right way?"
 "Well, you'd better begin by tyin' yourself on."—Chicago Post.

The Genuine vs. Counterfeits.

The genuine is always better than a counterfeit, but the truth of this statement is never more forcibly realized or more thoroughly appreciated than when you compare the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve with the many counterfeits and worthless substitutes that are on the market. W. S. Ledbetter of Shreveport, La., says: "After using numerous other remedies without benefit, one box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me." For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles no remedy is equal to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Sold by Cragin, Phillips.

Heinz White Pickling Vinegar

is an absolutely pure white vinegar of great strength and delicacy of flavor; and is the very best obtainable for general pickling purposes. It has sufficient strength to neutralize the water in vegetables, with enough left to preserve them. The celebrated Heinz "57 varieties" Pickles are preserved with this vinegar and to it they owe their excellent keeping qualities and much of their flavor. It is also a very superior and healthful vinegar for table and general family use. For sale by
