Mrs. Charles K. Allen Dead.

Last Tuesday morning between 5 and 6 o'clock occurred the death of Mrs. Carrie A., wife of Mr. Charles K. Allen. Mrs. Allen has been in very feeble health for many months, having received a shock as the beginning of her illness. She has rallied somewhat from several slight attacks since and has been able recently to walk around the yard a little with assistance.

The last few days preceding her death she seemed quite a little better, which gave her family some encouragement. She retired Monday night apparently as well or better than she had been for some time. About 1 o'clock she awakened them and it is thought that she received another shock. She very soon lost consciousness and passed away very peacefully.

Mrs. Allen was a true Christian in every sense of the word. She endeared herself to her family and her friends by her gentle and loving manner. Mrs. Allen was very much of a home body and was always happy working for her home and those in it.

She has been very tenderly cared for by her husband and daughter, Mrs. Nathaniel Toothaker, these months of her illness. Mrs. Toothaker is the only child and it has been their good fortune to live together much of the time since Mrs. Toothaker's marriage. Besides her husband and daughter, Mrs. Allen leaves an aged mother, to all of whom much sympathy is extended. The funeral services will be held at the Union church Thursday at 1.30. Rev. E. H. Prescott of Rangeley officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter True and little son of Farmington, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. H. True returned home last Tuesday. Mr. True was among the lucky hunters, getting a nice fat deer and several birds.

About 3 o'clock every Tuesday morning the merry voice of Bill Johnson can be heard as he goes wending his way toward Rangeley with a big two horse load of garden truck.

Miss Grace Wing has finished work for Mrs. C. E. Dill and is stopping with her sister, Mrs. Alonzo Huntington.

LICK ONLY THE ENVELOPE.

Woman Gives a Man Hints on Proper Way to Apply Postage Stamps.

A man who had just purchased a lot of postage stamps at a branch office and was posting a lot of letters complained to the clerk in charge that there was not enough gum on them and that they would not adhere to the envelopes. "If you would lick the corner of the envelope as well as the stamp," replied the clerk, "you would find that they would adhere together firmly."

A woman standing by mailing letters remarked: "That is correct. It is not even necessary to lick the stamp. I never do, for I dislike the taste of the mucilage, and I merely moisten the corner of the envelope and never have any trouble in regard to the stamp adhering."

"Well," said the man, "I have been mailing letters in large numbers for many years, in fact ever since postage stamps came into use, but I never heard of this way of putting on stamps before. I really believe that the women know more than the men."

"Most women do, about many things," remarked the clerk, who was a woman.

Notice.

I have this day given my son, Phillip G. Wyman, his time during minority. I shall not pay any of his debts nor claim any of his earnings after this date.

TRAMP SANG "GAUDEAMUS"

A Knight of the Road's Passport Into a Company of College Men in the Country.

"You know the old Latin college song 'Gaudemus Igitur'?" said the recent graduate, to a New York Sun man. "Well, I suppose that it comes pretty near being a grip and pass word with university men the world over. Something that happened this month made me understand how it stands for a college man wherever you hear it."

"I was on my vacation up in New Hampshire. Tramping through a little mountain town I happened to meet three or four men of my own fraternity. I stopped with them that night, and in the evening we went to a roadhouse on the outskirts of town for a little saenger-fest."

"Of course, before we finished we sang 'Gaudemus'—you know it—'Let us rejoice, therefore, while we are young.' When we came to the last stanza, a voice joined in from the doorway."

"We turned around. There stood an old, dilapidated tramp. He came over to us without any hesitation, and said, in a fine German accent:

"'Verever you see a university man, you hear 'Gaudemus Igitur.' Heidelberg, '73. Shake.'"

"He was a Heidelberg man, too, I suppose, a degenerated gentleman, for he knew college ways and songs and he showed that he was a well educated man. He got all the beer he wanted out of us that night, and the price of beer besides, which shows that a college education sometimes pays"

FIELD WORK IN FORESTRY.

Missionaries of the Government Have Caused Important Advance in Knowledge of Trees.

In addition to its force engaged in forest-reserve work, the bureau of forestry has this summer 116 skilled men in the field. Of these 68, scattered in 26 states, are studying commercial trees, making working plans for woodlots and forests, and gathering data invaluable for the proper management of wooded areas. The remaining 48 experts, divided among ten other states, are studying means of replacing the forest on lands from which it has been denuded, making planting plans for tracts to be forested, and planting in the western forest reserves. The data they will gather will be worked over and condensed by the office force this winter, and put into shape for practical use. Reports from the field which are coming in daily show that the year is to be one of distinct achievement and that the work is progressing everywhere with important advance in American forestry. These experts, in covering their various territories, are zealous missionaries in the cause they serve, for wherever their work carries them the purpose of forestry, its methods, and its incalculable importance to the general welfare are understood, appreciated and applied as never before.

Ingenuity of Nihilists.

Incredible ingenuity is exercised by Russian nihilists in making, carrying and disguising bombs. A chatelain bag of a beautiful woman may be an infernal contrivance, which, on being hurled, may send death and destruction over a terrible radius. And a humble thing like a piece of coal may also be as deadly as the ordinary spherical bomb, and can be loaded with enough explosive to wreck a building of considerable size. Its smallness makes it handy to carry, and its exterior does not render it an easy object of suspicion.

"Lone Star" States.

In the course of conversation at a club the other evening, a man referred to "the Lone Star state."

"What state do you mean?" he was asked.

"Why, Texas, of course."

"Well," he was told, "do you know that there are no fewer than five independent sovereign states which use a lone star on their national flags to-day? They are Turkey, Chili, Cuba, Liberia and the Congro Free State."

Rapt in His Art.

Musician—I tell you, ladies, we artists cannot succeed unless we give up our very souls to our art. Why, last week I was so rapt in a composition that I was playing, that a thief stole the violin from under my chin and I never noticed it.

Engine and Passenger Car Were Burned.

Evidently "luck is agin" the Phillips & Rangeley railroad as they have again been visited by fire twice recently.

The first instance was up on the Eustis railroad last week when one of their passenger cars was burned. The car was standing on the track and at about 5.30 in the morning Dunham, who is brakeman on the train, fixed the fire, put out his lantern and apparently left everything all right. Mr. Charles Allen, the conductor, was also there and noticed that he put the lantern out. They went to breakfast, about a quarter of a mile distant, and when they returned the car was in flames. The fire caught in the opposite end of the car from where the stove was and as the car had not been painted recently it could not have been caused from spontaneous combustion. They have very little idea of how the fire originated.

Last Friday evening at about 10.30 one of the engines standing in the yard at Phillips near their office was discovered to be in flames. Mr. Harry Kilgore, who is watchman, was around the shops when the fire broke out. He had been in the engine shortly before and found everything all right. There was a rifle in the cab and a box of cartridges and these presumably made the fire worse than it would have been. They certainly made things hum for a few moments. A good stream of water from the hydrant soon had the flames subdued but not before the interior of the cab was badly damaged. The fire in the engine had been banked and it is thought that it may have kicked back, the way it has been known to do, thus driving the sparks up through the cracks in the floor. As there were oily clothes in the engine and the wind blowing quite hard, it would take but a short time to kindle quite a blaze.

The engine was No. 8 and was one of the new ones recently purchased for the Eustis railroad. The loss is estimated at $2,500 and is fully covered by insurance.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Rev. W. H. Fultz of Portland preached at the Union church. The text chosen was Isa. xlii, 12. "I will make a man more precious than fine gold; even a man than the golden wedge of Christ."

The purpose of God concerning man has been from the beginning that grand and glorious things should be his and should be manifested in and by him. He was created in the image of God, and the divine purpose was that he should be God like. If this purpose has not been fulfilled is it because that purpose has been changed? Let each consider how it is with himself. Are we as pure, as free from sin, as grand in our innocence as when our mothers born us? If not is it because God has changed his purpose of purity and greatness of beauty and grandeur concerning us? Your own consciousness will tell you that not God, but yourselves have made the carrying out of the purpose in all its fullness impossible. We have chosen to leave the path that led Godward and have in a great measure the image of God.

We have grown in stature of body and in mental stature, but the high spiritual life has been repressed and dwarfed.

Israel was a people chosen of God. Again and again he promised them wonderful things. They were wayward, they were disobedient, and the fulfilling of the promises were long delayed. The nation lost the image of God and was full of wickedness.

Prophets were sent to them. God said by one of these "I will make a man more precious than gold." What did he mean by it?

Have you seen the gold as it is taken from the earth. It looks like nothing for which men would strive, or that they would greatly desire. You see, perhaps at the mine heaps of quartz. It is not glittering. There is none of the gleam of precious metal. You see scattered through it particles of a substance that you are told is gold.

Then the workmen take it. The quartz is crushed and ground into small fragments. The mass is washed and much of the worthless matter is carried away. Chemicals work upon it and the tiny particles of gold are brought together. The lump of gold is refined by fire, is at least wrought and burnished till it reflects the image of that that looks upon it, and then we can see the beauty and worth that was hidden in the unsightly quartz.

God works thus with us. The people of Israel had strayed from God. They were disobedient and wilful. The possibilities of the glory God intended for them were hidden.

Nations came upon them and crushed them. Disappointments and disaster came. But it was that the dross might be removed. It is worth while to spend labor and money upon the gold bearing quartz of the mine. It is worth while to lead a soul or a nation in ways that shall make their true worth appear. The prophets said that a man should be more precious than the golden wedge of Ophir. It is one of the things that are hidden. But we know that when the fle of Solomon was sent out to bring to him treasures which should enable him to go on with his work of building the costly houses which he erected treasures needed for the temple at Jerusalem, the most precious among the articles with which they returned was the gold of Ophir. And this treasure is taken to express the value that God sees in man.

Let us look upon the discipline, the trials, and the hard experiences that come to us as parts of the process by which God would purify us and bring to light the glorious worth that is hidden in each human being.

There is another thought. The burnished gold reflects the image of that which is near it. Our greatest glory is to reflect the likeness of God. He sent his Son, Jesus Christ to teach us what he himself is. If we look upon him, make it our purpose to see him as he is, and to know him, there shall be our crowning glory. Then shall it be said that a man has been made more precious than the golden wedge of Ophir.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

The C. E. meeting next Sunday evening will be led by Emma Timberlake. The subject is "How can we enlarge and improve our work." Matt. xxi, 17-22; Isa. liv. 2.

There was a large attendance at the C. E. meeting Sunday evening, which in the absence of Miss Timberlake the appointed leader was led by Miss Tothaker. Mr. Fultz spoke to the young people emphasizing the importance of carefulness in the deeds of the present moment.

Notice the thought for next Sunday's prayermeeting, "How can we enlarge and improve?" Here is one very profitable and sensible way—give a little time to preparation. If you are only to give a verse from the Bible one bearing on the topic and showing there has been personal thought put in the choosing of it will improve our meetings.

Let us emphasize the importance of preparation for each meeting and let us define preparation thus: Prepared to attend the meeting; prepared to help by giving some Bible verse, quotation, thoughts on the topic or some other way; prepared to do this sincerely; prepared to do this reverently.

Put these three things, reverence, sincerity and individual effort, into our meetings and you have them vastly enlarged and improved.

Something from the Endeavor News is partly promised for the next C. E. service. The management will be glad to receive suitable contributions or other C. E. information for the various issues of our little paper.

Saved From Terrible Death.

The family of Mrs. M. L. Bobbitt of Bargerton, Tenn saw her dying and were powerless to save her. The most skillful physicians and every remedy used, failed, while consumption was slowly but surely taking her life. In this terrible hour Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption turned despair into joy. The first bottle brought immediate relief and it's continued use completely cured her. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial. "I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine."—Mrs. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., Pres. Millbury, Mass., May 9, 1904.

Mr. R. C. A. Becker,

Dear Sir:—I take great pleasure in recommending your system of business practice to whomsoever it may concern.

After studying in your business room for seven months, you not only fitted me for a position, but awakened in me an ambition to succeed. Upon graduating, you had a position awaiting me, which I held four years.

I again asked your advice this month and I thank you for the four positions which you offered me, and for the position I now hold with the People's Coal Company, Worcester, Mass.

the Pythian sisterhood of this place, for on that date they entertained the members of North Jay sisterhood, eighteen strong. The sisters from down the line came up on the regular train Friday night and remained until Saturday, returning to North Jay on the morning train. On the arrival of the 8 p. m.
train in Kingfield the visiting sisters were escorted to the Eureka lodge hall, where a bountiful chicken supper was on the tables, piping hot awaiting their arrival. Full justice was done to the toothsome supper provided by the good Kingfield sisters and later on the following excellent literary and musical program was enjoyed by those present:

Instrumental Music, Mrs. Horace Winter
Reading, Mrs. E. S. Larrabee
Singing, Quartet
Mrs. Butts, Mrs. Young, Miss Walker,
Mrs. Wilkins.

Reading, Mrs. Nathaniel Meads
Solo, Mrs. J. W. Jordan
Solo, banjo accompaniment,
Mrs. Herbert Walker

During the evening the local lodge worked two degrees for the benefit of the visitors.

The Kingfield sisters entertained the visitors at their homes and when the train was boarded in the morning the farewells were evidently tinged with regret that the sisters from Jay could remain in town for no longer period.

Following were the committees in charge of the affair: Supper, Mrs. Chas.
Dolbier, Mrs. Will McMullen, Mrs. Chas.
Thurston, Mrs. C. O. Wilkins,
Miss Annie McMullen; entertainment,
Mrs. Carroll Butts, Mrs. Horace Winter,
Mrs. Young.

An incipient blaze in the Larrabee block Sunday night came near causing a serious conflagration. Eugene Perry left a lamp burning in his store directly under the parlor of E. G. Larrabee, which blazed up, unnoticed, a lively blaze resulting. This was about the witching hour of midnight and as good luck would have it Hershall Boynton happened to be strolling by from a visit to his—but never mind. Mr. Boynton was passing and noticing the fire quickly sounded the alarm and summoned
Mr. Larrabee to the scene. The latter gentleman came around with a pail of water and soon the fire was under subjection.

The Kingfield Fire department have the weekly practice drills, coming out at sound of the alarm on Friday afternoons.

provements later on.

slaughter house on the east side, near Stanley avenue.

Hunnell & Norton are booming being made at the electric light plant

Word was received in town Monday of the death in New Portland Sunday of Mr. Geo. Cross, grandfather of Dr. H. S.
Viles of this place. Mr. Cross was found dead in bed Sunday morning, heart failure supposed being the cause of death. Mr. Cross was about 70 years of age and was well known both here and in New Portland. Saturday he attended the fair at North New Portland.

Sewall Vose, tax collector, reports the taxes in town practically all paid and heartily endorses the discount and interest method. This system of giving a discount if the taxes are paid before a certain date and then, if they are not paid, charging interest after that date, seems to work to a charm.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

Rev. R. E. Horne spoke last Sunday
on "Led by the spirit of God."

We can tell of the presence of the Holy Spirit no more easily than we can describe or know the presence of the wind. The winds of God sweep over all our lives and are variously manifested, sometimes in stillness, sometimes in peace, sometimes with power, sometimes with terror. I should sooner try to resist the power of tornado or cyclone than to resist the wind of God, for God in his strong will often overthrows the plans and policies of strongest men, who are moved only by the Time—spirit.

The mightiest orators go bitter disappointments, the stateliest monarchs to shame and despair. The spirit of God, because of the inertia of men and the conservatism of masses, is often obliged to drag men rather than lead them and so we might say of many, they are dragged by the spirit of God to progress and to righteousness.

But those who are led by the Spirit will often be buffeted by the flesh for men love to smite the Spirit to the dust, then raise up monuments to honor the dead and in deep prostration bowing, smite the Spirit of their own day.
Those who are led by the Spirit are modest, loving and unselfish. They are not boasting their deeds or their attainments. They are not exalting their wills or their ways. They are loving even their enemies, and winning the world by this mighty power. They are thinking of others, working for others and loving others and by this noble unselfishness winning the love of others and such a monument of memory as time cannot efface or bring to naught.

The leaves are blown by the winds and soaked by the tempests and hide away in the hollows of the earth but later their beauty springs up and glows on the petals of the beautiful rose or the modest violet. So our lives may pass away and their beauty return to the world to glow in other lives that have been made stronger by our struggles.

Forget thyself, but not thy duty
And life is crowned with richest beauty;
Forget thyself, but not thy master
So truth shall come to fruition faster.
Stand thou with God and fear no evil—
A ghost of God knows ne'er a devil,
But love and sacrifice are sure
To do such works as shall endure,
Through time and through eternity
In hearts of roused humanity.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read Wherever the English Language Is Spoken.

The tickets are now made up and the most interesting Presidential campaign the United States has known since 1860 has begun. And it is the most important, too.

Which will it be, Parker and Davis or Roosevelt and Fairbanks? Nobody knows yet but The Thrice-A-Week World will tell you promptly, fully and truthfully every movement of a hot and thrilling campaign. The real newspaper now prints facts rather than hopes, and it has always been the effort of The Thrice-a-Week World to tell the thing that has happened exactly as it happened. Thus you can judge for yourself and form your opinion.

There is also a great war going on in the East, where The World has a brilliant staff of correspondents in the field, and their reports are found regularly in the columns of The Thrice-a-Week World.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and MAINE WOODS and MAINE WOODSMAN together
one year for $2.25.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Children's Spring Tonic.

After a long winter the children's blood flows sluggishly, the bowels are irregular and the channels of the body clogged. This is the chance for which disease has been lying in wait. No time should be lost in cleansing the blood and regulating the stomach with a good spring medicine. For children's ailments nothing equals Dr. True's Worm Elixir.
A few doses will expel worms, if any, and tone up the whole system. A better spring medicine cannot be found. Twenty thousand bottles were sold in March alone. Price 35 cts., at all druggists.

RANGELEY Oct. 17, 1904.
Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Proctor were in Phillips the first of the week, and Mrs. Proctor made a trip to Farmington Monday.
John J. Wilbur is suffering with a dangerous wound on his hand made by an ax sometime last winter. It has been worse lately and has the appearance of blood poisoning.
Mrs. Gilman of Monmouth is visiting her daughter Mrs. Riley Hinkley.
Mrs. Ruel Wilcox is very sick.

Mr. Mrs. Wm. Haines have finished work at the Bliss farm and returned home last week.
The hulled corn supper at the Grange hall last Friday evening was well patronized and proved a success in every way. The hypnotic exhibition by G. M. Kempton was first class, and shows Mr. Kempton to be quite an expert in that line.
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Arnburg are boarding with Mrs. Ada Sprague on Pond street.

Mrs. Vesta Coulam spent Saturday and Sunday at Greenville with her mother Mrs. David Haley, Lyman Kempton and wife visited at G. L. Kempton's at West Phillips the first of the week.
The first of the week was warm and summer like, and everyone seemed to appreciate them after the cold weather and numerous snow squalls we have had for the past few weeks.

The Ladies, Aid met last week with Mrs. Geo. Kempton and this week the meeting will be held Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Lyman Huntton on Allen street.

W. S. Miller, wife and two children, and W. D. Grant and wife spent Saturday and Sunday at Dead River Camps. While there the little son of Mr. Miller met with quite an accident. A cartridge accidentally exploded, and the bullet entered the leg of the boy. The bullet was removed by Dr. Peabody, who pronounced it nothing but a flesh wound from which he would speedily recover.

BIG PROFIT IN BATHHOUSE
Average New York Seashore Resort Receives Nearly $2,000 a Day for Rooms Alone.
If you doubt that the nickel and quarter business doesn't pay, consider the money-making propensities of the average seashore bathhouse around New York, and make over your opinion. A representative bathing pavilion has 1,500 bath compartments. It costs 20 cents to rent one. On a medium hot summer's day some $800 are derived from renting these rooms, for the compartments are used in the course of the day by about 4,000 persons. Bathing suits rent for 25 cents each. There would be $,000 of them for such a pavilion, which means $1,000 a day if half of them are rented once; and it is fair to assume that three-fourths of the 4,000 bathers pay five cents for the use of a comb and brush—$150. A total of nearly $2,000, to say nothing of the proceeds from restaurant, bar, barber shop and indoor baths.

Italy's Emigrants.
In the past 30 years Italy has sent more than 2,000,000 persons to the United States, says the World's Work. A number of these have returned in the course of time, taking with them carefully hoarded savings. A very large majority have remained in the United States.

FARMINGTON NEWS.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodsman
FARMINGTON, Oct. 8, 1904.

Geo. Ernest Fales, now deceased, was honored in memory Friday at the Abbott school, of which Prof. George Dudley Church is the principal, by a flag raising, one of the prettiest affairs of its kind ever seen in town. The services of the day were memorial in character, the beautiful flag and staff being presented by the father and wife of Mr. Fales. Mr. Fales was a former member of the school and was always devoted to its best interests. His death occurred Jan. 7, 1904, aged 34 years.

The exercises of the afternoon were witnessed by a large number of the friends and former pupils of the school and were of a very interesting nature. The beginning was placing the staff in Mother Earth and the final unfurling of the colors. The program of dedication was not very lengthy, but was exceedingly impressive and very interesting. Prof. Church made a few introductory remarks, after which came the singing of America. Then in especially well chosen words Prof. Church introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Judge J. H. Thompson, who spoke at some length eloquently, regarding the man in whose memory this flag was dedicated and of the respect that should be accorded our flag by the youth of the nation. Judge Thompson said in closing: "It is in you, my boys, that she finds her strength. Now boys always love your country, honor your country's flag and never forget that your country can only be pure as you are pure. It can only be great as you add to its greatness. It can only be just as you practice justness and this can only be a land of the free and home of the brave as you show great courage in keeping yourselves free from the contaminating influences of vice and crime."

Then Prof. Church spoke in part as follows: "One year ago today Geo. Ernest Fales was married. He was a young merchant of but 34 years of age, yet he had been made a member of the Fales firm, North Market St., Boston, and by his faithfulness, conscientiousness and great amiability had won the respect and fellowship of business men. In less than three months he was taken with a fatal illness and on the 7th of January, 1904, in the full vigor of young manhood with a future full of hope and opportunity, he was called away.

"Today we dedicate this flag and staff to his memory at the wish of his stricken father and bereaved wife, knowing that it will bear a daily memorial to his great loyalty, both to Little Blue, his boyhood home for five years and to his country he so ardently loved. It is fitting that I should read to you at this time three letters, one from his Farmington chum, one from his father and the other from his wife." The letters then followed, at the conclusion of the reading of which followed the formal dedication of the staff and colors. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Richard H. Clapp and the flag was raised and unfurled by Judge Thompson, the exercises ending by singing the "Star Spangled Banner" by the assembled company.

The consolidated Farmington, High and Abbott Football team meet the Madison Football (High school) team on the fair grounds next Saturday afternoon. The boys have been putting in considerable practice work under the able direction of Coach McCarthy and will line up averaging about 140 pounds each in weight. The boys practice every day and the new men being worked in are coming up to their work wonderfully well. A warm game is confidently looked for next Saturday and it is expected a large crowd will be in attendance to witness the game.

Bert Hardy of Hardy & Tarbox has purchased a new Cadillac touring car. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy recently drove to Portland in another auto and returned in their new car. It was purchased through Mr. F. V. Cook, an agent for that make of cars.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rice and daughter, Miss Bertha Rice, started Wednesday on a trip to St. Louis, Chicago, Baltimore and Washington. Mrs. S. R. Rice, Mr. Rice's mother, will accompany the party as far as Nutley, Mass., where she will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Clifford.

Hon. J. C. Holman and Newell R. Knowlton, Esq., started for St. Louis, Monday, to take in the fair.

W. B. Small of Kingfield was in town Tuesday.

Messrs. Geo. McL. Presson, Jacob Wirth and Dr. W. F. Pillsbury are in the Dead River and Flagstaff region hunting this week.

On the Anise-Seed Trail

By H. S. CANFIELD.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

IN THE smoking room of the Cohasset Country club Willie Delay sat with one leg thrown carelessly on a table. He flicked the boot on it with a hunting crop and puffed a Turkish cigarette that burned with a smell like the smell of decayed weeds and punk. Willie in talk was horsey. With him were Reggie Van Duyck, who was doggy, and Algy Remsen who was foxy.

"That new hunter of mine," said Willie, "is a wonder. Short barrel, big chest, clean legs, stiff well set out, muscled like Sandow. I'm thinking that he'll come close to seven feet in the clear."

"Saw the pack awhile ago," said Reggie. "Looks well—aw. But the little gyp with the fan over her eyes is too keen—aw. Needs more work and whip and less coddling—aw. That man Brown isn't any good—aw."

"He's good on making the bag," said Algy. "Saw him mixing the seed this morning. He's got some sort of preparation he puts in—won't give away the secret—that makes it smell like an old dog fox in spring. Offered him five pound to tell, doncherknow."

Dick Manton came up to the group. "You mean that you offered him $25," he suggested.

"That is what I said," Algy responded slowly. "Five pound."

"If you're going to talk American dollars in English currency," said Manton, "you want to talk them correctly. The English do not know any such sum as 'five pound.' What you offered the whipper-in was 'fi'-pun.'"

"Aw!" said Algy. Manton walked away. Willie took his leg down and leaned forward. His smooth, narrow face had purpose in it. "He's getting a dreadful cad," he said. "Don't know how he got into the club. He's only a lawyer-fellow, you know, and he cawn't ride, I'm suah. Wonder why he joined?"

"To be near Marian Granger," said Reggie.

"To be near Maid Marian," said Algy.

Willie was silent for a moment, then said: "Well, we're all epris with her, aren't we? The thing must be settled somehow, and we've got to get rid of this chap Manton. Tell you what I'll do." He flicked his leg lazily. "I'll ride you for her. In the hunt to-morrow the fellow nearest in at the death to have a clear field for six months, the two others to drop out."

"Agreed," said Reggie and Algy in a breath.

"As for Manton, he can't ride, but I heard to-day he'd bought a horse and a suit of pinks. The horse was sold to him by Jock Ormsby. You'd never think it, but it's that devil, Mephisto! The grooms call him the 'Gravemaker,' you know. He's got the temper of Satan and has hurt three men in a year. Buying that horse shows how little Manton knows. If he tries to ride to-morrow all three of us will have to race the Gravemaker and get him going. He ought to spill Manton at the first jump and cure him of the Country club and Maid Marian at the same time."

They snickered in concert. Willie took an absinthe, Reggie took a vermouth cocktail, Algy took a creme de menthe.

The Cohasset Country club was made up of the sons and daughters of the rich men of a Massachusetts city. Its objects were social converse and riding after a pack of hounds trailing the scent of a bag of anise-seed which had been dragged over the country in the early morning by a couple of lads. The course lay over fairly stiff land, containing a ploughed field or two, a brook and some fences of hedgeplant. One of these fences had a ditch ten feet wide running along it and was a source of secret terror to every member of the club. The Cohasset was an expensive and exclusive organization, and it made merry after the fashion of all country clubs. Late that night, between a waltz and a two-step, Willie, in a burst of confidence, told Marian Granger of the agreement reached by himself and friends, saying nothing of Manton. The girl, very handsome and self-contained, looked at him with wide eyes. "Indeed!" was all she said.

"Yes," Willie went on his tongue loosened by several absinthes. "I shall be your most devoted for six months at least. You haven't seen my new hunter. Van Duyck and Remsen are not in it."

A smile of amusement came into her fine eyes. "You are certain to win?" she asked.

"Sure," he replied.

"Excuse me, then," she said. "Here is Mr. Manton. I promised this dance to him."

Swinging slowly in her partner's arms, she told him of the wager—told it lightly, but he could see a shadow of resentment in her face. He was a young fellow of not many words and positive manners. He started on a hunt for Willie and found the three of them in the buffet. He had made up his mind to spare the girl annoyance from this trio, "puppies" he termed them wrathfully, and was willing to risk a good deal to achieve his object. He stated his business briefly.

"Miss Manton has told me of your bet, or wager, or trial of skill—whatever you choose to call it. Its nature would be unchanged by any name. I, too, am a worshipper of hers and I want to be counted in."

Willie looked at him in astonishment. "You?" he said. "Why, can you ride?"

"That's not to the purpose," Manton answered, warmly, "I'll stand by the agreement. I'll do better than that: If I'm beaten I'll quit the club?"

Willie looked at his friends. "Certainly," he said, coolly, sipping his green drink. "You're counted in."

There were more than two dozen hunters held by grooms on the green turf in front of the club next morning. The men and the women all in pink sat about the porch, while the bounds lay on to the bag trail. It was the custom to give them three fields' start. The dogs tore away with the huntsmen and whippers-in riding hard. They topped the first fence in style, swept over a stubble, rose to the next leap and disappeared. The members swarmed down the steps and mounted. Manton was a poor rider and eyed his new purchase with some misgiving. This was a great black horse, trim and powerful, with a good deal of mane and his tail unbanged. His nostrils lined with pink were flaring and his eyes rolling wickedly showed a great deal of white. The groom with him hung to his bit and had a pale face. The horse struck once at the groom with a forefoot, but missed him. The groom swore in fear. Manton had taken a dozen lessons in a riding school, slipped his boot into the stirrup and swung up cleverly enough. Once up, however, it seemed a long way to the ground, and he did not expect to return there, except in a half somersault. The Master of the Hounds gave the halloo, while Manton was still tightly gripping the saddle with his knees and the bridle with his fingers. The great party leaped forward instantly spreading out like a fan as it went, each rider choosing a taking off place for the first fence. Hard-held, the black horse reared straight upright and Manton was glad to loosen the rein. Then the Gravemaker bounded out and was away.

Manton believed the horse to be vicious, but knew him to be a trained hunter of high speed and power and was too wise to attempt to check him or rein him in as they neared the leap. Instead, he dug in his knees while the reins went slack and Gravemaker took it like a bird, landing lightly on the farther side and immediately reaching into his stride. Manton found himself not only seated, but firmly seated. There had been no shock and, so far as he could see, no danger of falling.

"Good jump!" a gay voice called near him and looking cautiously to his right he saw Miss Granger, 30 yards away, even with him and riding like a professional, hands well down and head tilted back, a smile on her lips. He called to her and their horses rose simultaneously at the next fence, going over with a foot to spare. Another fence was cleared and then a ploughed field was struck. In this heavy going Miss Granger dropped back; her mount was lighter and she was more experienced, but Manton had no judgment and the big black pounded on. He took the fence at the farther side without slackening. Indeed, his hunting blood was up and he was having such fun that he forgot to be vicious. The brook came next. Then more fences. Glancing around Manton saw Willie Delay to his left, riding his new horse, whose chest was flecked with foam. Beyond him was Reggy Van Duyck and a hundred yards to his right was Algy Remsen boring in toward him. He suspected no design in their presence, but was suddenly conscious that they had drawn in upon him, riding now not five yards apart, and that the pace had increased to a hurricane drive. The Gravemaker was fully extended now and his great limbs were spurning the ground. Two fields ahead of them were the dogs with bellies to the ground, streaming along with noses up and tails rigid.

Fifty yards further a hedge ran athwart their path—a high stiff hedge of briar and rail and on the hither side a long deep gash in the earth, the ten foot ditch, with the barrier beyond. Manton noted it and felt a little sickish. He saw Willie's face and his cheeks were nearly as green as the absinthe. The others he did not note.

Five seconds passed and then the mighty muscles under him bunched and gathered for the effort. Next moment he felt that he was sailing to the clouds. The ditch and the hedge shot under him like a ribbon. Then he knew that he was over. Looking back he saw Willie rising from the soil, where he had been thrown in the new hunter's fall. The horses of the two other men had refused the leap.

He was in at the death of the anise-seed bag three minutes later and the huntsman, a smug-faced Englishman from the fox shires, handed him the brush with a grin. It was a brush kept for such hunt. Miss Granger rode up a little later and Manton handed the brush to her.

"I should have told you last night," he said, "that I was a party to that wager."

"You became a party after I had told you of it?" she asked.

"Yes."

She pondered a moment and saw the motives that had swayed him and she gave him her hand coolly, but frankly.

"I am glad," she said.

ADVERTISING.

In these days live merchants are looking for profit. They are placing their advertisements where, in their best judgement, they will do them the most good. Time was, we are told, when the store keeper used to give the newspaper man an advertisement, "just to help out the paper."

That would be considered a senseless performance now.

We want advertisements from people who want to get their money's worth out of their advertising.

We want advertisements from people who intend to give their advertisements some care and attention.

We want advertisements from business people who realize that they have something to say to the more than ten thousand readers of MAINE WOODSMAN, if they would make their business all that it should be.

To such people, the MAINE WOODSMAN advertising columns present indeed a rare bargain. The MAINE WOODSMAN has the readers—more than ten thousand of them—without which all advertising would be a failure—money thrown away.

But IT PAYS to advertise in MAINE WOODSMAN. If in doubt try it.

Classified advertisements only one cent a word.

PORTLAND, Oct. 12, 1904

To the Editor of Maine Woodsman:

I was presiding at my district camp meeting at the time that the report of the West Phillips reunion appeared and the paper was mislaid and I did not see it until today. I have read it with interest and presume it was written by the ex-president. I want to assure him and all those present that if my absence was in any measure regretted by them it was also deeply regretted by myself. It was a great self denial to stay away. The last of June and the first of July I was in Calais to fill a lecture appointment and to preach on the occasion of the reopening of the church where I had a very pleasant pastorate a few years since. Our camp meeting this year extended over two Sundays and this in addition to special engagements at various Sunday school conventions, in addition to my regular work, rendered it impracticable to attend.

If life and health are spared I hope to attend the reunion next year and hope to meet those that I met once before, Rev. N. C. Brackett, Jennie B., etc. etc. That former occasion lingers in my memory as one of the pleasantest of my life.

Another thing that I am looking forward to with great pleasure is the Allen camp meeting. My term of service as presiding elder will expire next spring and I can select my camp meetings according to my sweet will.

I still read with great interest the personals and local items in your valuable paper. There are congratulations in my heart to all the prosperous people of Franklin county and to those who have made their homes elsewhere and there are condolences as well for all those who suffer and are sad. No skies are brighter than those that bend over the goodly land, no air is purer than that which sweeps down from Mounts Blue, Abram and Saddleback; no water is more sparkling than that which flows in the Sandy river and no hearts truer than those that beat under the homespun or the broadcloth jackets of the good old county.

Mr. Smith Saved Over $100.

Two years ago, Mr. Grant Smith, Erie, Pa., painted three frame houses, and the woodwork of a brick house.

The painter estimated $116.50 for the paint, lead-and-oil.

He bought Devoe $97.40 and returned $11.60. Saved $31.10 on the paint.

Don't know the cost of the work. By the rule, the saving of labor would be from $60 to $90.

On all, from $90 to $120.

This is the tale, as it comes from Messrs W. F. Nick & Son, Devoe agents there for 40 years

STRONG NEWS.

Special correspondence to Maine Woodman.
STRONG, Oct. 17, 1904.

Married in Portsmouth, N. H. Oct. 15 by the Rev. Geo. Leighton, Miss Theo Carr of Strong and Mr. Geo. Richardson of Brunswick. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson are in town for a few days, visiting the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Carr and other friends. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson will make their future home in Brunswick, however, where they go after their visit in this place.

The town was saddened Sunday by the announcement of the death of Marshall D. Moores, son and only child of Mr. and Mrs. David Moores. The exact time of Mr. Moores' death was 3 20 o'clock, Sunday morning. Mr. Moores, or "Marshall" as he was more familiarly known by his numerous friends, has been afflicted for some time past with tuberculosis, which the best of medical skill could not stay in its progress. Final dissolution was apparently without pain to the deceased. Mr. Moores had a high school training, which was of great assistance in his chosen work of drug clerk for several prominent pharmacists in Strong, Farmington Rangeley and Keene, N. H.

The funeral occurred Tuesday after-Ripans Tablets are the best dyspepsia medicine ever made. A hundred millions of them have been sold in the United States in a single year. Constipation, heartburn, sick headache, dizziness, bad breath, sore throat and every illness arising from a disordered stomach are relieved or cured by Ripans Tablets. One will generally give relief within twenty minutes. The five cent package is enough for ordinary occasions. All druggists sell them.

noon, from his late home on School street and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The town schools closed for a time in his honor. Rev. O. W. Peterson was the officiating pastor. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. Moores have the sympathy of the entire community in their hour of sorrow.

The singing was by a choir, consisting of M. A. Will, C. B. Conant, Mrs. F. L. Dyer and Mrs. C. B. Richardson. The music as rendered by this quartet, was beautiful indeed. The pall bearers were: Messrs. W. R. Vining, W. L. Guild, Diah Sweet and Fred Look.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones returned from Spider Lake, P. Q., where they have been this summer in the employ of the Megantic Fish and Game Club, Club House, Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are in excellent health and report a very pleasant summer. Mr. Benj Jones has accepted a position in Lewiston, in the clerical department of a wood working firm in that city.

Mr. Fred Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clark of South Strong, who has been employed for some time past in Portland, left Saturday for Los Angeles, Calif., where he will spend the winter for his health. Mr. Clark is one of our most enterprising and progressive young men and all hope to have him return in the spring entirely recovered in health.

The Conly Comedy Co., that has been playing in town for the past week, closed a very successful engagement Monday evening. They go from here to Rangeley. The gentleman comprising the company have made many friends while here in town. They certainly, for reason of the good clean, up to the moment, show they give deserve full houses wherever they exhibit. Friday evening they introduced a nail driving contest, with five lady "starters." All made the hammers fly briskly, but Mrs. Kempton proved herself especially capable and carried off the prize, a handsome silver sugar bowl and one dozen silver spoons. Mrs. Jackman was close second however and the rest of the ladies were not far behind.

The story is told that one of our young men one evening recently, while arriving home from a call on the young lady of his choice, because so absorbed in his thoughts that he failed to notice the family clothesline, strung loosely between the piazza posts of his domicile. The result was a headlong fall through the front door, the noise and confusion covering slight chuckles of merriment heard from within, which might have explained the matter of how the clothesline came there more satisfactorily.

The New Portland fair, held annually in New Portland, was largely attended from here last Saturday. One person estimated the number of teams present at about 400, which is an unusually large attendance for this fair.

Misses. Cora and Emma Allen returned from Spider Lake, Can., where they have been employed this summer. They are now at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Allen, Dyer Hill.

Mr. Benj. Jones was home from Lewiston over Sunday. Many friends were glad to greet Mr. Jones after his long absence at Spider Lake, where he has been in the employ of the Megantic Fish and Game Club.

Mrs. Anna Bangs and daughter, Miss Stella Bangs have returned from a trip to Lewiston and Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Walker visited Mr. and Mrs. Louis Partridge of South Strong, Sunday.

Mr. George M. Luce of Farmington and Miss C. Irene Richards of Strong were united in wedlock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Moores of West Farmington Saturday afternoon, Oct. 15. It was a quiet wedding with but few intimate friends present. Mr. Luce is an enterprising young farmer well and favorably known in Farmington and where he has spent several summers. Miss Richards is one of Strong's popular young ladies. She is the second daughter of John W. and Eleanor Dodge Richards of Freeman Center. For several terms Miss Richards has taught school with marked degree of success and by her genial disposition won not only the hearts of her pupils but parents as well, leaving many warm friends wherever she has been. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. E. Saunders of Kingfield. All join in wishing the young couple a peaceful, prosperous and happy journey through life.

Sheriff Worthley says the report printed in a Lewiston Journal of recent date regarding his trip or partial trip to Lewiston with the prisoner Knowles was not wholly correct. Mr. Worthley says that in company with five others, including Knowles, he got off the train at Leeds Junction to stretch his legs, understanding that the train was to back up and take water and then return, stopping at the platform to take the gentleman on. Instead of stopping the train passed rapidly by and as it did so Knowles successfully "jumped" it, the rest of the crowd remaining on the platform. So with all respect to the Journal the joke does not seem to be so badly on Mr. Worthley after all.

Three more pictures have been received to adorn the High and Grammar schoolrooms. Two will be placed in the High school and the other in the Grammar room.

Recesses, noons and nights the High school boys are to be seen busily engaged practicing football.

Prof. Charles W. Cunningham of the High school through these columns invites the parents and friends to visit the school and witness its work.

Rev. O. W. Peterson was in town from Brunswick Tuesday to attend the funeral of Marshall D. Moores.

The medicine comedy company that has been showing here the past week, arranged a guessing contest, it being required to estimate the number of beans in a certain carton in their possession. The prize to be given to the nearest correct guess was a pig. Prof. Cunningham of the High school made a nearly correct guess and easily caught the pig which was turned loose on the stage. The prize was a good one and the professor is well pleased with his trophy.

Messrs. F. H. Hazelton, George Mallett, Wm. Beck and Grant Hendricks of La Fontaine, Ind., are in town Tuesday en route to Bigelow and Carrabassett on a hunting trip.

Messrs. H. Spiller and J. Powers of Rangeley were in town Oct. 15.

J. B. Morrison of Phillips was in town recently.

Geo. M. Currier of Farmington was in town recently on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Heath of Salem were visitors in town Tuesday.

P. D. Stubbs, Esq., left Monday for St. Louis, where he will attend the World's fair.

Mr. Geo. Hitchcock, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Porter, returned to his home in Keene, N. H., recently.

Mr. H. J. Bates is improving in health daily.
Mr. Mitchell True left Tuesday morning for Fort Fairfield, where he will visit friends.

Mrs. Ellen Poor and Miss Mary Milliken spent Friday and Saturday at Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Worthley's.

Mrs. Mattie Gilkey and Mrs. Lucy Pratt of Farmington were in town and attended the funeral of M. D. Moores Tuesday.

During the funeral of M. D. Moores Tuesday afternoon nearly all the stores in town were closed and the toothpick mill was closed for the afternoon. The floral tributes were especially beautiful, among them being a set piece from the boys in the mill, all comrades and friends of the deceased.

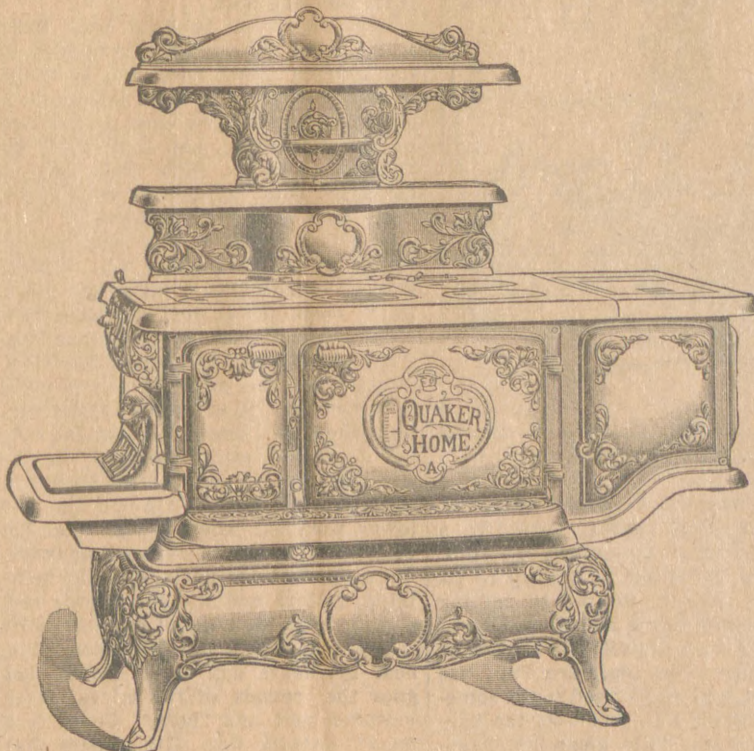

Bert Pratt of Phillips was present at the funeral of his friend, M. D. Moores Tuesday afternoon.

Farm Notes.

Will Berry of Madrid, son of Seymour Berry, owns the Charles Reed place on the road to Rangeley. This interval farm has for some years past been sadly neglected although the buildings are good and the land as a whole level and almost entirely free from stones. Last spring Mr. Berry begun the work of restoring the land to its old time condition. Here follows some account of it:

He broke up six acres to be sowed to oats; on five acres he applied Bowker's "Square Brand" phosphate at the rate of 800 pounds to the acre; on one acre he put 30 loads of barn manure. All the work was done by horses and the total yield of oats was 211 bushels. As the result of several trials it was found that a bag (two bushels) of the oats raised on the phosphate land were 10 pounds heavier than those which grew upon the manured land. Nor is this all—while the oats grown by the phosphate were almost entirely free from foul seed, those grown by the barn manure contained the usual mixture of weeds.

It is a conservative estimate to call the oats worth $105 and to this the reader may add what he chooses for the straw. If Mr. Berry paid retail price for his fertilizer it cost him about $12 per acre or $60 all told.

In addition to this it should be kept in mind that this land will be in hay next year and will probably yield a crop far in excess of that for several years past.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by W. A. D. Cragin, Phillips; E. H. Whitney, Rangeley; C. E. Dyer, Strong; L. L. Mitchell, Kingfield.

THE smartest cat in all the city of Scranton, Pa., the miners say, lives at the Cayuga mine, a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western property, at Providence, a suburb of Scranton. Toby is a medium sized Maltese, about three years old, and that he has not had his neck broken before this is a perpetual wonder to the 800 miners and colliery operatives at the Cayuga mine. The Cayuga is one of the deepest shafts in the Lackawanna coal fields, the lower working, where Toby makes his home, being more than 600 feet deep. It is a model mine in its equipment, and Toby, apparently, is trying to live up to its reputation as an up-to-date mining plant. Electric lights and electric hauling motors were installed in the mines three or four years ago, when Toby was a baby cat, and he got used to the somewhat terrifying appearance of the bug-shaped motors, with gleaming headlights, darting through the winding chambers 600 feet from the sunlight, dragging after them "trips" of ten or a dozen small coal cars, holding two tons of freshly mined coal. Toby rides on the motors from one end of the mines to the other. The northern end of the lower working is under Priceburg, three miles from the bottom of the shaft in Providence, and Toby makes the trip on one of the motors every day and sometimes twice a day.

According to the New York Tribune, Toby has his favorite motormen. His affection toward them apparently is somewhat graduated according as they save him choice bits of meat from their dinner pails. Toby will blink unconcernedly as some of his more "distant" acquaintances among the motormen whisk by, but when a real good and tried friend come bowling through the blackness Toby will brace himself, exactly time the speed of the motor and then—"Plump!" he will jump from alongside the track to a spot just behind the headlight.

The motormen used to hold their breath when Toby tried this leap, fearing that he might miss. But he never misses. Whether the train is going fast or slow Toby alights close to the legs of the motorman, and then holds on "tight" while the little train, with a deafening roar, plunges forward on its way. He's a sight with his eyes wide open and his tail waving, standing on the front of the motor. The miners from one end of the mine to the other know Toby, and it would go hard with the man or boy who hurt or teased him. Toby pays his way by keeping the lower working of the mine free from rats. A few mules still are used in the mines, and wherever there are mules and fodder there are rats. In some of the upper workings of the Cayuga there are rats a-plenty, but never a rat in the lower working, where Toby lives. He has been out of the mines once or twice, but he prefers the dark, with the rumbling motors and the soft words and petting from his hosts of grimy friends.

The fire boss in the Hampton mine, near by, has a dog named Covey that goes the rounds of the mines every morning with the "boss." Covey is a smart animal, too. His master has taught him to put out fires wherever they are discovered. If a miner in lighting a pipe drops a scrap of burning paper Covey flies at it and paws out the fire. With all his intelligence, however, he is no match for Toby, of the Cayuga mine.
