A WORD IN PASSING.

THE Red God has come again. Look far up through the deep green arches of the Gorge, and you will see the first few skirmishers of the Autumn King standing as out-posts of the imperial hosts. One scarlet tree amidst the forest people flings wide its gorgeous arms against the deep leafy green. Its mere presence seems to proclaim in clarion tones, that the summer time has ended and the rule of the Red God has begun again. Autumn speaks in the changing verdure, the brisk winds, the sparkling green of the waters. Soon the social army will have begun to depart.

It has been a rather odd season. Seldom have we seen so large a colony of summer visitors as this year. And there has seldom been so few affairs of note. In a general way there was a great deal of entertaining. That must always be so. As usual it centered mostly about food. Dinners have been the hostess' mainstay. How good is Providence that makes it possible to satisfy the ordinary human by feeding him. He is well content if your chef is good and your conversation not too brilliant. Next to dining, the formal reception has been a much used and abused form of entertainment. The bachelor affairs were however, especially pleasant. Perhaps they might be considered the successes of the summer. In each instance the hosts were numbered among the really popular and interesting men who visit here.

The Kebo Valley club never justified itself more convincingly than it did this season. The dinner dances were a positive boon. The crowds that came in to dance after dinner overflowed the limits of the main room of the club, and the government will do well to consider the addition, next year, of a ball room sufficiently large to accommodate several hundred guests. The club has never been conducted better, and that feeling is general. From other resorts the reports come constantly that golf had lost its hold and bade fair to die out, but at Kebo the sport has been quite as popular as in other years. From the official figures there has been no falling off in the number of players. Tennis has fought its way back into popular esteem. The club courts have been in constant demand and the tournament features afforded first-class sport. It has been a great disappointment that the swimming pool was not finished in time to be used this season. There is no doubt that had it been, the pool would have been a most popular spot for morning gatherings. The yachting season, while filled with events, lacked interest owing to the majority of the boats in the 30 footer class, being completely out-matched by the Scott and Sears boats. The proposal to build next year a uniform class of 35 footer will obviate the possibility of one or two boats dividing all the honors.

The yacht Emerald with Mr. William Iselin on board came Monday from a cruise to the eastward. Adrian Iselin left a few days ago in the yacht Cherokee for Newport.

Mr. George W. Childs Drexel has left on the yacht Alcedo for Camden.

Messrs. A. C. Gurnee and Charles How left Tuesday on a fishing trip through Canada.

Society was as gay Saturday as at any time during the month. The Kebo Valley club was the particular center of life. The regular dinner dance was unusually large for so late in the season. Three parties were given and at the ball which followed there was a large number of guests that quite overtaxed the capacity of the dancing room. Those who entertained Saturday night at Kebo were Mrs. M. Taylor Pyne, G. Willett Van Nest and John Hone.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison I. Drummond have returned from their yachting trip. Mrs. Drummond's sister, Mrs. H. Clay Pierce is with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri have given a series of elaborate dinners at Corfield in the past week in honor of their guest Count Coster of Florence at which the prominent cottagers have been guests.

Tuesday was replete with entertainments. Miss Whitwell, assisted by Mrs. Frederick Whitwell, Jr., gave a reception at Clovercroft. Countess Laugier-Villars and Mrs. Bridgham gave a sailing party on the Mascot to about forty. Lunch was served on board and a delightful afternoon spent. Judge and Mrs. Abraham R. Lawrence entertained at dinner Tuesday evening. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. Horace Gallatin, Mrs. Gouverneur Morris, Mrs. Merritt, Miss Bend, Miss Ruth Lawrence, Prince del Drago, John How, Louis Von Gaertner, J. B. Henderson, Jr. Others who entertained the same day were Mrs. C. B. Wadsworth and Mrs. Geo. Draper.

Miss Scull and Miss Lewis, who have been at the Parker cottage, left last week for a trip to Quebec before returning to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, who have recently returned from South Africa, are guests at the Malvern.

Mr. A. C. Gurnee entertained Mr. Horace Whitwell, Mr. Thomas Leaming, Mr. C. De R. Moore, Mr. Stevens Hecksher and Mr. Livingston at lunch Monday at Beaudesert.

Miss Cameron and Miss Isabel Cameron, of New York, who have been at the Newport during August, left this week for Rosebank, L. I.

Lieut. Gen. J. M. Schofield and Generals John R. Brooke and McCook returned Wednesday afternoon from Pangor where they attended the banquet given by Gen. George Varney to the survivors of the Second Maine regiment.

Dr. Alfred R. Allen of Philadelphia, who has been at the Belmont, has gone to Campobello but will probably return here later.

Wednesday's newcomers at the Louisburg were Mr. and Mrs. L. Norman, L. Aubrey Norman, Brookline, Mass.; Mrs. H. A. Boyd, Miss Helen Pitman, New Brunswick, N. J.; Edwin A. Alderman, New Orleans; S. Rowland, Montclair; J. W. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Camp, New York. Mrs. C. C. Harrison of Philadelphia comes Thursday to the St. Sauveur and President Harrison will come later on.

Mrs. and Miss Nelson, who have been at the Belmont ever since the first of June, left Thursday noon on their return to their New York home.

The newcomers at the Lynam house include Mrs. Lendall Titcomb of Augusta, and her son, William C. Titcomb, Mrs. C. H. Poppenhausen, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Irwin, Chicago; Ewing Harvey and Wallace Harvey, Bath.

Prince del Drago entertained at dinner Wednesday night. Among his guests were Count Coster, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fleitman, Mrs. S. S. Marić, Mr. Von Gaertner and Mr. Wetzler.

The hotel registers continue to show a good list of arrivals and it can hardly be said yet that the tide has set for practically none of the cottage people have yet begun to contemplate a return to the cities. The arrivals at the Malvern include Major and Mrs. T. C. Daring, U. S. A., San Francisco; Mrs. W. F. Hooper, Miss Nellie Hooper, Fall River; Miss Ellen Manson, Miss Virginia Manson, Bath.

Mr. Aaron Ivins of Philadelphia, well known in the educational circles of that city, celebrated his 83rd birthday at the Rockaway hotel on Wednesday. Mr. Ivins is a patriarch among the summer visitors here. With his wife he has been a constant visitor to Bar Harbor for the past twenty-six years.

No hotel on the whole New England coast has met with the great success which the new Ricker hotel, The Samoset at Rockland Breakwater, Maine, has this season. Not only the hotel itself but the outside cottages have been filled and every available cot brought into use. As The Samoset is heated throughout with steam and lighted by electricity and its location protected from the cold northerly winds of fall by the dense growth of spruce, pine and oak and the hills and mountains of Camden, makes it the most desirable seashore resort on the Atlantic coast during September. On account of the large call for rooms during this month The Samoset will remain open until September 25th.

Miss Mabelle Monaghan, who is to give a song recital at the Casino next Thursday night, is a young Maine singer and has already done some very fine work. Her lovely voice gives promise of great things for the future. She has already filled many concert engagements throughout her native state and in Boston, and is a favorite wherever she has sung. Her voice is a colorature, of great range, very flexible and singularly magnetic. She is moreover possessed of an exceedingly attractive stage presence. Miss Monaghan has twice appeared in the concerts of the Maine Musical Festival, and made a big hit in one of these concerts last fall, when she sang the Bird Song (with flute obbligato) from David's "Pearl of Brazil." Of her singing on this occasion the Bangor Commercial said: "Miss Monaghan, whose high, clear and bird-like soprano is already familiar to Bangor people, sang on Saturday, afternoon and evening, and on each occasion her singing gave evidence that she is rapidly attaining that high position among soloists which her friends predicted for her at the outset of her career. Few sopranos of so high a range have the liquidity and sweetness of tone which this young Maine singer possesses, and it would seem that her future is particularly bright."

Mrs. Hasket Derby of Shore Acres will give a dance for her sons' young friends on Tuesday evening, September 9th.

The annual croquet tournament at the St. Sauveur hotel was finished Tuesday. The winners of the handsome cups given by Mrs. William W. Rutherford were Mrs. Howland Jones and Douglass Cochran who were the winners in the finals over Miss K. V. R. Berry and Mr. Rutherford.

President Hyde of Bowdoin is to occupy the pulpit at the Congregational church tomorrow morning.

Mrs. C. de M. Sajous entertained at lunch Thursday at the Newport house. The guests were Mrs. A. McD. McCook, Mrs. John R. Brooke, Mrs. J. L. Ketterlinus, Mrs. Rufus Shapley, Mrs. Bispham, Miss Anuear, Mrs. Von Gaertner, Mrs. Clara Mitchell, Mrs. J. C. Gerndt, Mrs. Wetzler, Miss Hilda Shapley.

On last Saturday Mr. Belknap of Washington, gave a luncheon at Kebo, decorations sweet peas. Covers were laid for 10. Mrs. Belknap's guests were Misses Hoy, Francis Roberts, Rhoda Emlen-Smith, Diane Morgan-Hill, May Adams, Helen Patten, Elizabeth Cochran and May Barney. Ping pong was played afterwards, the prizes being won by Miss Emlen-Smith, Miss Hoy and Miss Cochran.

The Poland Spring house, operated by Hiram Ricker & Sons, will remain open until October 15th. Tourists leaving Bar Harbor at 1 p. m. week days and Sundays and Bangor at 3.55 p. m. arrive at Danville Junction at 6.55 p. m. where carriages for the Poland Spring house meet the train. This being the fast express it is very popular with tourists between Bar Harbor, Bangor and Poland Spring.

A Memorial service for Canon Leffingwell will be held at St. Saviours on Wednesday morning, September 10th at 10 o'clock. Bishop Lawrence will preach, Bishop Codman will have charge of the services. All the clergy of the diocese of Maine, who will be here at that time to attend a meeting of the board of missions, will be present at the service.

George A. Burbank of Boston is a recent arrival at the St. Sauveur.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Holbrook of Newton, Mass., are guests at the Belmont.

MISS MABELLE MONAGHAN.

Count and Countess de Laugier-Villars gave a sailing party on the Mascot Tuesday afternoon. Among those who were on board were Mrs. W. S. Merrit, Miss Bend, Miss Ruth Lawrence, Prince Del Drago, Mr. John How, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston, Mr. J. Johnston Livingston.

Her guests were Mrs. Winthrop, Mrs. Vail, Mrs. Philip Livingston, Mrs. Endicott, Mrs. Swan, Mrs. de Forest Lord, Mrs. Drayton, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Dimock, Mrs. Chas. Ewing Green, Mrs. Philip Minis, Mrs. Musgrave, Mrs. Howland Russell.

The last Malvern dinner dance came off Wednesday night. Judged from the number of guests and the gayety which prevailed it was anything but the closing affair at the end of the summer. The red ball room has seldom seen a livelier crowd and the large number of dinners that were given earlier in the evening had all the marks of mid-August. Among the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. De Grasse Fox, Miss Sylvia Fox, Mrs. Wm. H. Erhart, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Fox entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Hone, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leaming, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cassatt, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fry, Captain Thomas J. #### TWO VILLAGES.

Above the river on the hill,
Lieth a village, white and still,
While all around the forest trees
Shiver and whisper with the breeze;
Over it sailing shadows go
Of soaring hawk and screaming crow,
And mountain grasses, low and sweet,
Grow in the middle of the street.

Beside the river, 'neath the hill,
Another village lieth still;
There I see on a cloudy night,
The twinkling stars of household bright,
Fires that gleam from the smithy's door,
Mists that curl from the river's shore,
But in the road no grasses grow,
No wheels that hasten to and fro.

In that village upon the hill
Never a sound of smith or mill;
Houses thatched with grass or flowers
Bloom and fade with changing hours;
Doors of marble always shut,
Closing entrance to hall or hut;
Silent at rest, they lie in sleep,
Never again to sew or reap;
Never to dream, to mourn or sigh;
Done in their task here, quiet they lie.

In that village 'neath the hill,
When the night is starry and still,
Many a weary soul in prayer
Looks to that other village there,
And weeping, sighing, longs to go
Up to that home from this below;
Longs to rest from this world of strife,
Through the Redeemer to be with wife,
May to that prayer this answer fall,
"Patience, that village shall hold you all."

SPORTS OF THE WEEK.

THE mixed doubles tournament at Kebo was the tennis event of the week. It was especially interesting owing to the presence of Miss Marion Jones, the woman tennis champion of the United States who played with George Bodman. The other entries included Miss Hoy and C. B. Hoy, Miss Dorothy Whitney and K. Auchincloss, Miss Auchincloss and P. Pearson, Miss Cochran and C. Cushman, Miss McLane and J. W. Alsop, Miss Sally Lawrence and M. T. Pyne, Jr. Miss Julia Lawrence and J. de K. Alsop, Miss Marion Lawrence and Amos Pinchot, Miss Tolfree and Sumner Gerard. Miss Jones and her partner ran up to the finals and without any difficulty took the final match in straight sets from Pinchot and Miss Lawrence. In the preliminaries Miss J. Lawrence and DeKoven Alsop defeated Miss Hoy and Mr. Hoy; Miss Auchincloss and P. Pearson defeated Miss Dorothy Whitney and Howland Auchincloss; Miss McLane and J. W. Alsop defeated Percy Pyne and partner by default; Miss S. Lawrence and M. T. Pyne defeated Miss Cochran and Mr. Cushman; Miss Marion Jones and G. Bodman defeated Miss Hollins and F. Sears. Second round—Miss M. Lawrence and Mr. Pinchot defeated Miss J. Lawrence and DeKoven Bowen; Miss McLane and J. W. Alsop defeated Miss Auchincloss and Mr. Pearson; Miss Jones and Mr. Bodman defeated Miss Sally Lawrence and M. T. Pyne; Miss Tolfree and Sumner Gerard defeated Miss F. Lawrence and J. Montgomery Sears. The semi-finals brought forth some very fine tennis. Miss M. Lawrence and Mr. Pinchot succeeded in lowering the colors of Miss McLane and Mr. Alsop, while the frequent cup winner, Sumner Gerard, and his partner, Miss Tolfree, were obliged to yield to Miss Jones and Mr. Bodman. In the finals Miss Jones and Mr. Bodman were again victorious and defeated Miss Lawrence and Mr. Pinchot.

The usual golfing events occurred Saturday at Kebo. In the weekly handicap match the honors of first position went to F. J. O. Alsop of New York and S. W. Bates of Boston, who tied, although the tie will be played off later. Not all of the players returned cards, but the scores of those who did are as follows:

How to pronounce the name of the brothers Doherty, the tennis players, is a matter that has puzzled a good many people during the past few days. The common pronunciation among a certain class of people is phonetic. They call it "Do-her-ty," with the accent on the last syllable, the "o" being drawn out. This is altogether wrong, said the philologist who was asked about it. The name is nothing but the good old Irish name Dougherty, corrupted not only in pronunciation but in spelling. It is frequently called "Dockerty," but, correctly pronounced, it has a strong guttural sound. In the case of one well known politician the name appears as "Dockery." When they first encounter the name Dougherty Americans find as much difficulty in pronouncing it as they did when the battle of Manila and subsequently the song "Hock der Kaiser" made the name Coughlan famous. They both have the same guttural sound when properly pronounced, and are Celtic. The variations which such names give rise to in this country not only in pronunciation but in spelling are somewhat weird. You encounter names like Riley, Murphy, Dun, Kief, Carryl, Cavana and Niel, all good Irish names woefully misspelled. An extraordinary instance is the double-barreled name Bourke Cockran. A notable instance of two names properly spelled and pronounced is in the case of Mrs. Burke Roche. A man calling himself Morphey once sent to the office of the Ulster King at Arms, at Dublin, asking for his coat-of-arms. Sir Bernard Burke, the immortal author of "the British Bible," answered: "I know the good old Irish name Murphy, and can send you the coat-of-arms if you prove your right thereto, but "Morphey" is a new one on me," or words to that effect. The celebrated Paul Morphy, however, one of the greatest chess players who ever lived, was a New Orleans creole. A still more remarkable combination was that of the negro jockey Isaac Murphy.

SEAL HARBOR.

THE new Congregational church at Seal Harbor was dedicated on Saturday and Sunday. The building is a very pretty little structure of stone and wood, capable of seating nearly 250 comfortably, and is finished in the natural wood inside, which gives it a very handsome effect. The dedication exercises commenced on Saturday evening and were finished Saturday night when the church was formerly dedicated. Saturday night a brief service was held, including addresses by visiting pastors and the celebration of the Lord's Supper. Sunday morning the dedication exercises proper began, the sermon being delivered by Rev. Edward Caldwell Moore, D. D., of Cambridge, Mass., who spoke earnestly and eloquently. In the evening the final dedication was carried out, features being the act of dedication and brief addresses by Rev. Francis G. Peabody, D. D. of Cambridge, Mass.; Rev. Amory H. Bradford, D. D., of Montclair, N. J., and Rev. William Adams Brown, D. D., of Union Theological seminary, New York. The music was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. David Mannes of New York, both of whom are accomplished musicians, and included such works as St. Saen's Deluge, Handel's Pastoral sympathy from the Messiah. Borowski's Adoration, Air by Bach, and Schumann's Traumerel. The church has been built almost entirely through the efforts of the residents of the place with a number of the summer guests. The building committee consists of W. S. Smallidge, president; Charles H. Clement, B. W. Candage, George N. Jordan, Prof. Wm. Adams Brown, Rev. A. P. MacDonald. Rev. Mr. MacDonald is pastor of the church. About two thousand dollars is still needed for carrying on the work.

Hotel guests have been arriving at this busy little resort all the week, and the season has not as yet suffered any serious decline, both the hotels reporting a very good summer. Bayard, Philadelphia; Mrs. Theodore Packard, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stevenson, Franklin E. Curson, Mrs. J. S. Kite, Philadelphia; D. G. Lyon, Cambridge, Mass.; W. C. Peet, E. C. HOT SPRINGS, VIRGINIA.

THE most delightful social event of the week was the opening of the new golf club house. It is a very pretty building, surrounded by a wide piazza, and the west end of this was converted into a reception room Monday afternoon by an artistic arrangement of rugs, palms and flowering plants. Tea was poured by Mrs. M. E. Ingalls and Mrs. Frederic Sterry, at separate tables, and they were assisted in serving the guests by a dozen young girls in white. There was music by the orchestra. The club house is splendidly arranged for the comfort of members, and besides having lockers, lounging rooms for men and for women, and rooms for ping pong and cards, there is a buffet, and also a squash-tennis court. During the afternoon golfers returned from the handicap, and there was general surprise when it was learned that a boy of sixteen Ernest Farintosh, had defeated nineteen men, and carried off the first prize, a silver cup. His score was 71-2 leaving net 69. Among those at the reception were: Senator and Mrs. J. B. Foraker, Miss Foraker and sister, Mrs. King Wainwright, Mrs. Perin, Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Wescott, Mrs. John F. Rodgers, Mrs. Henry W. Fuller and Miss Lucile Fuller, Washington; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gill, Baltimore; Mr. William Whaley and daughter, Norfolk; Dr. Carl N. Brandt, New York; Mr. William Paul Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Prescott Hunt and Miss Marie Rozet Chicago; Miss Hays, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Clark, Pittsburg; Mr. and Mrs. John C. Winston, Germantown; Senator and Mrs. William C. Sproul, Chester, Pa.; Mrs. Robert C. H. Brock, Phila.; Mrs. Julius Walsh, Miss Josephine Walsh, Mr. Henry K. Lackland, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. John Branch, Mr. and Mrs. Decatur Axtel, Richmond; Mrs. Rebecca Lowe and members of her house-party; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Wiborg, Cincinnati.

Judge and Mrs. William H. Jackson of Cincinnati, arrived Tuesday morning. They are regular patrons of the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. B. Legaré of Washington, have had a cottage here all summer. Mrs. Legaré is still in mourning for her father, the late Judge W. S. Cox. They have their own saddle horses and traps here.

WINTER HARBOR.

WINTER Harbor has a distinguished guest this week, in the person of Rev. Edward Everett Hale, who will preach on Sunday, September 14, at Channing chapel. Mr. E. H. Clement of Boston Evening Transcript, Mrs. Clement and daughter, Eleanor, left on Monday, after a two weeks stay at this place. Mr. Clement is an artist of merit and uses up his vacation time in sketching, finding many places about here interesting to him. He has great fondness for out door life. Mr. Clement is the present "Listener" in the Evening Transcript. He was present at the democratic rally here Saturday evening.

On Friday last, some forty summer residents and visitors were guests of the Flints, on the steamer Hiawatha, Capt. H. E. Tracy, for a cruise over Frenchmans bay, and made an ideal day into a rare good time, returning to Winter Harbor just in time for the sunset gun—eight hours well spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus F. Greely and Miss Marion Greely are at Grindstone Inn.

The Ladies club has had its usual successful summer. The regular "Wednesdays" of whist have been largely attended and the Saturday evenings of "Bridge" much enjoyed. There have been many whist teas, one of the most delightful being given Thursday by Mrs. Charles B. McMichael of Philadelphia. There were five or six tables and among the number present were Mrs. Rufus E. Shapley, Miss Hastings, Mrs. Stanton,

Mrs. Morris Longstreth, Mrs. Otis Norcross, Miss Steedman, Miss Morrill, Mrs. I. L. Ketterlinus, Mrs. Horton, Miss Crafts, Miss Larkin, Miss Plympton, Miss Torrey and Miss Wilkins.

The Rev. Leverett Bradley of St. Luke and the Epiphany, Philadelphia, will preach at St. Saviours church next Sunday morning.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

The next quarterly meeting of the Board of Missions of the Diocese of Maine and also of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Board of Missions, will be held here next Tuesday and Wednesday. The schedule of the meetings and services is as follows:

September 9, Business meeting of the Board of Missions at St. Saviour's rectory at 7.30 p. m. Address by Miss Emery before the Woman's Auxiliary in the choir room of St. Saviour's church at 7.30 p. m.

September 10, Celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.30 a. m. Corporate celebration of the Holy Communion for the Woman's Auxiliary at 8.15 a. m. Matins at 9.30 a. m. Memorial services for the late Rev. Canon Leffingwell at 10.00 a. m. Business meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary in the choir room immediately after the Memorial service.

At the Memorial service, the Right Reverend, the Bishop of the Diocese, is to be celebrant, and the Right Reverend, the Bishop of Massachusetts, the preacher. The idea of having the Memorial service so late in the season is to give the brethren of the clergy of the diocese a fitting opportunity, at their meeting of the board of missions, to honor the memory of Canon Leffingwell in the church he served so long and faithfully. The delegates who are coming to attend the meeting of the board of missions and the woman's auxiliary are to be entertained at the St. Sauveur.

Vol. 7. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1902. No. 10.

SEPTEMBER has come but the social army shows no disposition to strike camp and move cityward. The most perfect conditions of weather have had the effect of keeping here many who would have gone a fortnight ago. The social calendar for the next two weeks is a good and sufficient indicator of the probable length of the season. There are many affairs to come, and it will be well towards October before the breakup of the summer colony will be general. The autumn days that seem more beautiful and invigorating here than anywhere else are gradually winning over many converts to a long stay, and the cottage element generally have their establishments until November. The week has been gay, yet without that crowding that made the previous fortnight a hurly-burly of excitement. There have been many large formal dinners, and many receptions by persons discharging their social debts. The Kebo Valley club seems to be more popular than at any time during the season. The links and tennis courts make it appear as though mid-August were still here.

PALACE BUILDERS OF NEW YORK.

It is amazing how many great and beautiful palaces are being added this summer to the great number already built in New York's fashionable quarters. The palace builders are all shrewd men in their business, but how few of them apparently take warning from the fate of the tenants of present palaces.

There are scores of these palace owners who are absolute strangers in New York and have or seem to have no way of getting acquainted with anybody whatsoever. There are millionaires' families who stare drearily out of the windows, bored to death in their isolation and wishing they were back in the little western town where they used to have lots of fun. There are other millionaires' families who give entertainments in the vast rooms of their palaces at which you would find their clerks, a few non-descripts, male and female, and no others—these standing or strolling awkwardly about, trying to forget that they are miserable in reflecting on the cost of the pictures and decorations.

Great as is the fatuity of building a palace, when one cannot live in it comfortably or "cut a wide swath" socially by means of it, there is a still greater fatuity—that of clinging to the palace and refusing to go back to the simple, normal, enjoyable life one is fitted for, after one has discovered that there is nothing in palaces for him. Yet rarely indeed does a family shake off the palace delusion. Year after year it roosts solemnly in ridiculous state, friendless, homeless, forlorn. And all it gets in return is the satisfaction of occasionally hearing some passer-by inquire "Whose magnificent home is that?"

PUBLIC CONCERN IN THE COAL STRIKE.

Last week, the fifteenth of the strike, was marked by quiet in the coal regions but increasing unrest among the consuming public. The requirement of the Pennsylvania law that no one shall be permitted to do the responsible work of a miner (blasting, etc.) unless he has had at least two years' experience as a helper and has passed a satisfactory examination before a State board makes it impossible for the companies to open mines with the ordinary class of strike-breakers. The prolonged failure of the companies to secure a return of any of the old miners and the rapidly rising price of coal have greatly intensified the popular demand upon the operators that they should consent to arbitration. When Mr. Pierpont Morgan returned home from Europe last week, widespread hope was aroused that he would interfere as he did in 1900 to force his associates to accept a settlement; but Mr. Morgan himself has said no word to support this hope, though the statements of his friends, and especially of Bishop Potter, make certain his disposition to recognize the right of labor to organize. To one of the many demands made upon the operators to arbitrate—a private letter urging the application of Christian principles—President Baer, of the Reading, replied:

The rights and interests of the laboring man will be protected and cared for, not by the labor agitators, but by the Christian men to whom God in his infinite wisdom has given the control of the property interests of the country.

Three months ago such a letter as this would have been generally applauded by the conservative press, as an evidence of the sense of stewardship felt by the heads of the coal companies; but coming now in the presence of a coal famine, President Baer's letter, followed as it was by President Truesdale's sanction of its position, has called forth the following comment from the New York Tribune:

We are glad to see that President Truesdale, by the grace of God lord of the Lackawanna coal-mines, stands firmly for the doctrine of divine right enunciated by President Baer, and abates not one jot or tittle of the claim that he and his fellow-rulers are responsible to God alone for their conduct. The old doctrine that a man may do what he will with his own worked well enough when the life of the community was not dependent on what he did own, but some way or other it does not fit the case when a whole community is under one control. It did not seriously matter if one mine was shut down and its product cut off. The community could allow the owner to say it was his, and his use of it did not concern them. But when all the coal-mines are subject to one will, the way that will works is of profound concern to those dependent on it. The mines are at law unquestionably private property. Nobody can go into court and get relief because the mines do not produce the coal he needs. But there is a moral trust—even kings now admit that, even though they rule by divine right, they hold a trust for their people. Prerogative and title to property rest with the operators, but the people must have coal, and if the operators forget the moral obligations attached to their property-holding they will force the substitution of legal for moral obligation in some form or other.

When the New York Tribune gives such expression to the common-law principle that the rights of property are subsidiary to the right of the State to protect the public welfare, it is time for the operators to consider the possibility of compulsory arbitration—compulsory through public sentiment if not through public law.

BOOKS AND BOOKMAKERS.

An interview with Alexander T. Crane, how was for eighteen months Edgar Allen Poe's office boy, was published recently in The Sunday World-Herald of Omaha. Mr. Crane is in his seventy-third year, and lives in Harrison County, Iowa. He says that Poe was the "gentlest, truest, tenderest, and knightliest" man he ever knew, and he was his "boyish idol," just as his memory is the pride and glory" of his declining years. When Mr. Crane was sixteen years old he secured the place of office boy and mailing clerk of The Broadway Journal, of which Poe was editor. He says that "Poe was a quiet man about the office, but was uniformly kind and courteous to every one, and with congenial company he would grow cheerful and even playful." The poet came to the office at 9 in the morning and stayed until 3 or 4 in the afternoon, working during that time steadily and methodically. Mr. Crane once wrote a poem while working for Poe, which he submitted to him, and which the poet advised him to send to the editor of The Youth's Cabinet, who published it. The old man is very indignant when he recalls how biographers detracted and defamed his idol. He says that Poe was a gentleman in every sense of the word, that "he was honest, generous, kind and true," and that, although he tried to drown his sorrow in the cup "he could never have been anything but a gentle, tender, lovable man, a thousand times to be pitied, but never to be condemned." Mr. Crane does not agree with Poe's biographers that the poet sold the manuscript of his "Raven" for $10 to buy medicine and food for his wife, because Poe came into the office of The Broadway Journal one day in winter with the actor, Murdock, and called all the employes to his desk to hear the great elocutionist read his first poem, and in the next issue of The Journal "The Raven" was given the place of honor. It is curious, by the way, that The World-Herald writes "Allen" for "Allan" in every instance.

Bartlett, the scene of Farmer and Fisherman, is a little town on the coast of Maine, somewhere between Kittery and Eastport, and Stillman Gott, half farmer, half fisherman, lives there. There never was a more devoted friend, a better man than is Stil Gott, who loves his neighbors. And then Gott is highly intelligent, a most able story teller, and with an abundance of good, sound common sense. In Bartlett live Edward Locke and Eleanor Day, two young people who love one another. A life on the farm does not please Edward, and he goes to Boston to seek his fortune. It looks as if Eleanor had plighted her faith to Edward. Then there comes to Bartlett, Henry Davenport, the son of a rich New Yorker, and Eleanor consents to marry him. In time, however, she sees how unhappy she will be with Davenport, and finally becomes Edward's wife.

William Allen White has contributed the leading article to McClure's September number. He writes on "Cuban Reciprocity, a Moral Issue," and he says what he thinks of beet roots and insurgents and the Administration policy. This is Mr. White's first magazine article in six months, his health having been run down soon after he and Mr. Thomas Platt "had had their says" about each other last winter.

In her latest collection of stories Mrs. Craigie—John Oliver Hobbs—is maintaining her reputation for cleverness, for the three stories and two one-act plays which make up her "Tales of Temperament" are what might be called exceedingly "smart." Glancing through the book casually there is scarcely a page which does not contain some clever thought tersely worded, which, divorced from the rest of the matter of which it forms a part, becomes a truth epigrammatically expressed. Mrs. Craigie knows a certain class of society well, and with consummate tact writes only of that class which she does know. In "A Repentance" alone she seems to have struck an unfamiliar key, and here, it is interesting to note, there is a dearth of her usual sparkling wit. On the other hand, however, the story carries with it a conviction which is not felt in all of her other work.

Bishop Potter's book containing the Right Reverend gentleman's observations during his recent journey through the Far East should be interesting as well as instructive. The Bishop has always drawn a sharp distinction between his impressions and his judgments, and "The East of Today and Tomorrow" is certain to contain much valuable information, graphic pictures, and keen, thoughtful prophecies.

The two novels that have been most warmly praised during the last fortnight in London, are Mr. Morley Roberts' "Immortal Youth" and Mr. Burgin's "Wilful Woman." In each case, as it seems to me, the praise has been rightly placed. Mr. Roberts has written a book, the brightness and cleverness of which ought to make it the book of the year, and Mr. Burgin has shown a degree and kind of humor which much surpasses anything of the kind which we have yet had from him.

Miss Marie Corelli represented literature at the Abbey during the coronation ceremonies. That is to say she was the only author who obtained admittance to the sacred precincts on that occasion. It is suggested that her admission was due to the fact that she was the favorite novelist of the late Queen Victoria. If it be true, it is confidently asserted to be, that the king never reads a novel, he does not know who Miss Corelli is, but if he had been told that she was the favorite writer of his mother, he would probably have given her admission to the Abbey for that reason alone. Kings and queens are not, as a rule, pre-eminent as critics of literature. Even Carmen Sylva, who is popularly supposed to be a lady of culture, is said to read her own books, but possibly this is a libel.

THE autumn will find horsemen and horsewomen the most prominent members of society, and this evidence of a more general interest in racing and cross-country riding is not the result entirely of the successful season on the Saratoga and other tracks. In regard to the horse himself, a curious change of heart is observed this year. Last autumn was a season of horse shows; even the smallest resort had one and it was diligently attended. Owing to the success of these exhibitions, as many, and even more, with additional features, are to be given in the same towns this September; but the interest of society in them has waned. A prominent cross-country rider is authority for the opinion that professional horse owners, taking their cue from the success of last year's shows, have entered so many animals in this year's that the amateur stablemen have lost their enthusiasm. On Long Island, in Westchester, and about Tuxedo, early morning runs of the hounds take place daily. The Hempstead season opens formally at the Rockaway Hunt with the horse show and the Meadow Brook club will run a pack every Sunday. The movement from the seashore resorts to the mountains with the opening of the hunting season is under way, and the effect is noticeable everywhere except on the Maine coast. The White Mountains are proving particularly attractive, and places like Jefferson will be crowded until October.

Tuxedo has had a quiet summer. There have been some small entertainments for young people. The club house has remained open all summer. Now the autumn and winter residents are coming back. Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lorillard will pass part of the autumn at Tuxedo.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kent are still abroad. Mr. and Mrs. George Rutledge Gibson and Miss Gibson have returned from Bar Harbor.

"Many and varied," writes an American to the Onlooker, "have been the published descriptions of the late Mr. John Mackey's successful career, some sensational and some romantic, but very few of them true. One fact which has been generally overlooked is that he became first acquainted with his beautiful wife when she was only nine years old, his father having known Mrs. Mackey's father, who was a distinguished general officer, and served through three campaigns, and received from his country a sword of honor at the close of his military career. Business, as a means of money-making, cy's by no means the end and aim of Mr. Mackey's life. He loved work for work's sake, and if he appreciated success it was because of his wife, to whom he was so devoted. When he married her she was a widow with one child, now the the Princess Galatro di Colonna; and to her he took the place of father, and was always called by that name, while his two sons treated her as a loved sister. The story printed in a great London daily to the effect that she was an adopted child is utterly untrue. It was a fancy of Mr. Mackey's that every house in which his wife lived should be her own. This was the case with the beautiful house in which she lived once in Paris; and the great mansion in Carlton House Terrace is also hers, with all its splendid contents. By the bye, one picture which hangs on the wall of the great ballroom gives the lie to another story published last week. This is the portrait of Mrs. Mackey.

The Adirondack camps will remain open until October and later. Just now there are more people at Raquette Lake than there have been for years. The presence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt and Mr. and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes gives a vim to the season in the woods. Although there are no large entertainments, there are dinners and regattas and yacht racing and golf tournaments and other pastimes. Bishop Potter will be at his camp until the middle of September.

"Charles L. Fair was wild as a youth," said an old-time acquaintance of his the other day, "but after his marriage several years ago, he changed completely, settling down to a happy domestic life. Had Mr. Fair been a poor boy he would probably have been one of the greatest inventors of the age. He had a natural bent in that direction, and though, having plenty of money, he only dabbled in mechanics, he showed himself surprisingly adept at everything of that nature. He was a pioneer automobilist; ten years ago he owned a machine, which he kept stored in an old building in Alameda. "Mr. Fair was a very generous man, especially to inventors, having helped many a struggling genius toward getting the product of his brain before the public. He was a man who will be much missed, and whose death will cause profound regret not only in his old home, San Francisco, but in New York and Europe."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Huger Pratt, and Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding De Garmendia are at Homburg for the season. Mrs. Samuel Newhouse has been there for several weeks. She will come to New York late in the autumn. The amusements at Homburg have been at golf and tennis, and quite a number of concerts and a bazar.

Grand Duke Boris is at Newport.

WIT AND HUMOR.

One day David Col, the Flemish genre painter, was asked by a peasant to paint a portrait of his father. The young artist said that he would be delighted, and inquired when the father would be able to give him a sitting. The peasant replied, "Oh, he is dead."

"How would you have me paint his portrait?" asked the artist, somewhat amused at the peasant's naïveté.

"Look here, sir," said the peasant, "this picture on the easel—whom does it represent?"

"St. Anthony."

"You are sure it is St. Anthony?"

"Yes."

"Did he come here to sit?"

"Of course not."

"Then you see, you are quite able to make a dead man's portrait."

Col, who asked no better than to make money yielded, and, after making inquiries concerning the old man, set about painting the portrait. The peasant, seeing it for the first time, fell on his knees and cried bitterly.

"Why do you cry," asked the painter?"

"Because my father has grown so ugly."

"He looks as prosperous as a trust promoter. Is that his line?"

"Oh, no—quite the contrary."

"What do you mean by that?"

"He doesn't promote trust; he limits it. He's the credit man of a big wholesale house."

"Hello!" said Ascum to Littleton, whom he meets in the market. "After something nice?"

"Eh?" stammered Littleton, blushing guiltily.

"I just saw you looking at those peaches."

"Say, they were peaches, weren't they? Did you notice the one with the big brown eyes?"

"Here's an astonishing statement," she said, looking up from the newspaper.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Why, scientists have discovered that different expressions can be produced on the human face by the application of electrodes."

"All kinds of expressions?" he inquired.

"All kinds," she answered.

"Nice, genial expressions of happiness and pleasure?"

"I suppose so."

"Cherry expressions of forgiveness and good humor?"

"Presumably, but what makes you so interested?"

"Oh, nothing much," he answered, "but I'm going to bring some of those electrodes home the next time I'm late for dinner or the cook leaves without notice."

They were discussing the wayward youth who was endeavoring to break into literature.

"Is he a good writer?"

"Oh, fine."

"A man's friends always think that, but has his work ever brought him much of anything?"

"Well, rather. Why, say! only a few of his letters brought him three breach of promise suits in less than two years."

"I've come to pay my bill," said the patient. "One hundred and ten dollars, I believe."

"Yes, said Dr. Price-Price, "making a total of $112."

"I don't quite understand."
"That brings it up to date, including to-day.
