Maybe this is your first visit to Kennebunkport. Perhaps you've never been in this part of Maine before. In that case, of course, you don't know yet that the favorite shopping place for everybody hereabouts is at Owen, Moore & Co.'s in Portland. It isn't a place for buying and selling exclusively either—it's a sort of big permanent exhibition of things useful and otherwise, only, unlike most exhibitions there's a price marked on every article and it's yours if you want it. Take a trip into Portland some day and see this store. It's a good place to spend an hour or two, you're sure to see things that you've never seen before and you are more than likely to find something that you'll want to take home.

Mrs. John P. Moulton.

SACO, ME., Aug. 20, 1886.
My wife suffered terribly from rheumatism and neuralgia for 13 years; was prostrated most of the time; each acute attack being severe.
At last, 15 months ago, she took to her bed remaining there for over a year, suffering tortures indescribable. For months I did not sleep much but stood over her trying to relieve her terrible pains. At first large doses of morphine seemed to relieve her some, but at last even that in enormous doses had no effect whatever. Finally she commenced to take Dr. Cobb's Rheumatic Cure, and in twenty-four hours her pain left her never to return, and she was able to walk about the room. Next day she walked to the gate, next day she walked 100 rods, and in ten days she walked a mile without inconvenience and in a fortnight was entirely well and able to do her housework, and has remained in perfect health since; praise God for this wonderful remedy.

From all over the country come thousands of statements of the wonderful cures made by this medicine. This medicine is not a liniment. You cannot cure these blood diseases by applications to the skin. This remedy destroys the impurities from the blood and is a SURE CURE for Rheumatism and neuralgia. It is also one of the best tonics in the world, and strengthens the stom-

The Wave

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1890.

It is probable that "Jack" did not know, when he wrote a short time ago concerning St. Ann's church, of the evening service at 5 o'clock last Sunday afternoon. There are always unoccupied seats at these services, and usually the same clergyman officiates at the morning services.

When the gallery for the choir is completed and roofed over, it will add some forty more sittings in the nave, the organ at present occupying the space of one whole pew. In time the church can still be more enlarged should the attendance warrant it and the trustees get the money to do it with.

There but a few Sundays in a summer's season. The expenses are a large part of the collections at the services and the balance available for the progress of the work is consequently small and very slowly accumulated.

The substantial receipts in the past have been realized from the sales held at the Hall. This year the "Bazaar" is to be held at Arundel Hall in its own aid.

It is the purpose of the trustees of St. Ann's, however, in order to raise money enough to complete the tower, gallery, and get the bell in place, to hold a small sale at some cottage, or as will be later advertised, the second week in August. It is hoped that all interested in this work and the church will do all they can for this sale, in making things or in collecting things from their friends.

The tower and gallery are at present protected but imperfectly from the weather, with boards, and more or less damage is done at each fall of rain.

A lady has subscribed the cost of moving and hoisting into place in the tower the superb Belgium bell. The original donors of this bell have all united in getting it for the church. They are Dr. Henry G. Clark, Madame S. L. Clark, Messrs. Hartley Lord, Chas. C. Perkins, Chas. E. Perkins, J. A. Titcomb, the late Horatio Perkins, Mrs. Bancroft, Miss Shipley and others, and we may now add the Boston & Maine Railroad, who kindly offered all possible assistance in its removal from the station. The principal donors' names are recalled because it was given to the road some seven years ago.

A PLEASANT INFORMAL HOP AT MANNING COTTAGE.

On Monday evening Mrs. C. H. Manning, of Manchester, N. H., gave an informal party at her cottage on Water street, in honor of her son Robert, who is from the Riverview Military School. All the guests of the Nonantum House and many from the adjoining cottages were present.

The order of dances was as follows:

- 1—Waltz.
- 2—Polka.
- 3—Scottische.
- 4—Quadrille.
- 5—Waltz.
- 6—Polka.
- 7—Dance in the Barn.
- 8—Waltz.
- 9—Galop.
- 10—Polka.
- 11—Waltz.
- 12—Virginia Reel.

Ice cream and cake were served during intermission. The most of the music was by Mr. D. H. Heckman, violinist. The Misses Mackey played some very fine selections on the guitar and mandolin, and Miss Upham upon the guitar. Among the guests were the following:

Mrs. H. P. Clark, the Misses Mackey, Miss Marion Ward, Miss Upham, Miss Anna Reynolds, Mrs. Cummings, Miss Cummings, Miss Mary Cummings, Miss Benis, Miss M. E. Adams and Miss Mary A. Clark from Boston; Judge Cross, Allen Cross, Edward Cross and Judge Clough of Manchester, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Lane, the Misses Josephine and Bell Lane and Mr. Beach Lane of St. Louis; Mrs. Hastings, and Misses Ethel and Henrietta Hastings from North Carolina; Mrs. and Miss Beers from New York; Miss Hilda Nesmith from Lowell, Mass. A very happy evening was passed by all present, and when the party broke up at a late hour everybody expressed themselves very much delighted with the evening's enjoyment.

Mr. James J. Healey, a prominent New York builder, is staying at the Ocean Bluff Hotel.

The Saturday evening concerts at the Grove Hill Hotel are proving very interesting occasions.

Boating parties are plenty lately.
Fishes are running right for moonlight trips up river.

Mr. W. H. Parker, a well known insurance man from New York, is at the Ocean Bluff Hotel.

Mr. Chas. H. Guild, a prominent wealthy citizen of Newton, Mass., is at the Ocean Bluff Hotel.

Mr. Joseph Ranco, one of the Old Indians, is making some very canoes for D. H. Heckman.

Miss Ella M. Chamberlain, a popular singing soloist of Cambridgeport, Mass., is at the Riverside House.

Mr. A. G. Wetherbee, a prominent citizen of Philadelphia, is at the Ocean Bluff Hotel, accompanied by his wife.

Mr. Harrison of Philadelphia, and his charming daughter, Miss Agnes, among the recent visitors at the Seaside House.

There are about twenty young ladies the Nonantum House. They are all expert canoeists and enjoy many a day hour on the river.

A large hayrack party came over the Goose Rocks yesterday, singing to see the launching. They all home disappointed.

Mr. Theo. P. Jenkins and wife of New York, who are on a driving tour through New England, stopped at the Ocean Bluff Hotel Sunday.

Mrs. A. G. Robinson of Brooklyn, a very excellent musician, is at the Seaside House. Her music has delighted the guests exceedingly during stay.

There was a very pleasant and exciting drive party at the Sea side Cottage last evening. It is too late for us to enter into full particulars of this pleasant affair.

The family of Mr. Leonard Ware, a prominent oil merchant of Boston, are at the Grove Hill for the season. Mr.
Ware runs down from Boston occasionally for a day or two.

The parting at Kennebunk Monday day have been very pathetic, if we judge by the traces of weeping which the two young men bore on their return.

College fraternity men at this resort all do well to have some cards sent with their fraternity letters on them. Mr. J. J. Walsh at the Parker House does good work in this line.

Amor has it that Vice President Arthur and wife are to visit the Marble House at York. We should be pleased to welcome them at Kennebunkport during their stay in Maine.

The young ladies at Blowing Cave yesterday afternoon felt rather blue when those boys left them so suddenly on the approach of some other cavels. That was a mean trick, yes.

City, seashore, and suburbs. Bosesting historical matter. Beautifully illustrated.

It was a Daisy trick that was played on that young man. He was pinned fast but bent his bonds and escaped.
And even the trunks in the hall laughed! And he made a base hit at the bat.

Mr. Ellis H. K. Brooks of New York, Yale '86, is at the Bickford House for the season. Mr. Brooks is a clever artist and has many fine sketches of the scenery about here. He is also quite an able poet.

An experience of twenty years, under the teaching of some of the best workmen in the land, is an assurance that Frost will do all repairing in his line to the entire satisfaction of his patrons, Kennebunk.

There will be a costume illustrated lecture on Bulgaria at the Congregational vestry Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock, by Stoyan K. Tetralaky, who is a genuine Bulgarian, and cannot fail to interest his audience.

The guests at the Sea Grove Cottage enjoyed a very pleasant charade party in the large parlor of that place last Friday evening. The charades were excellent and much interest was manifested. A very pleasant little party.

Mrs. Caroline G. Parker, a well known New York newspaper woman, for many years critic on the New York Tribune, is at the Grove Hill Hotel. Mrs. Parker is an extensive traveler and a woman of remarkable versatility.

Mr. F. H. Kimball, a prominent architect of New York, is at the Ocean Bluff Hotel enjoying a pleasant vacation. Mr. Kimball is the designer of the Casino theater in New York and many other prominent buildings in that city.

ing at York Beach, drove over to Ocean Bluff yesterday to dinner.

Mr. Souren A. Melson, an Armenian who is at present living in South Berwick, Maine, and is a senior in Berwick Academy, will be at the Parker House to-morrow with a very nice line of Turkish fabrics. Mr. Melson is selling these goods to defray the expense of his education, and is deserving of patronage.

Mr. Esleeck, the smart, active, business, never-know-his-age young man; the dignified, popular, jolly, just-the-kind-you-like young man, the soul of happiness and bubble of mirth at the Grove Hill House for three weeks, returned to Holyoke, Mass., on Monday, to resume his business duties as treasurer of the Beebe & Holbrook Paper Co.

Miss Ida M. L. Young, pianist, and soloist with the Grove Hill House orchestra this season, is a charming soprano singer, having a clear and sweet voice under excellent cultivation. She is a thorough musician and has taught music in the Great Falls public school for the past three years.
Miss Young is deservedly popular at Kennebunk Beach.

A baseball game between the Ocean Bluff Juniors and the Wentworth House team was played Monday afternoon on Gooch's grounds. Only six innings were played, as the battery work of the Perkins brothers of the Bluff team was too much for the Wentworth boys, and the base running of the Bluff boys grew rather monotonous for those over the river.
The score was by no means close; Ocean Bluffs, 16; Wentworths, 1.

Capt. J. M. Phillips of Taunton, Mass., was in town yesterday making arrangements for the building of the largest four-masted schooner ever constructed here. She will be built at the yard of Mr. David Clark and will register over 2000 tons. Captain Phillips and his partners own four large vessels named Tecumseh, Massasoit, King Phillip, and Pocahontas. They are always launched with imposing ceremonies, a painted bottle of wine and a full-blooded Indian playing prominent parts. Captain Phillips is a genial gentleman, fond of telling stories, and a bright, keen business man.

The absence, this summer, of Miss Garrard is being very much felt in the dearth of amusements of the theatrical sort. As everyone acknowledged the signal ability with which Miss Garrard selected her plays and her assistants, it was left to her to provide this the most popular evening amusement; but her absence ought not to deter others having the same tastes and ability from furnishing this most desirable form of entertainment to the summer visitors who always show their appreciation by filling the Hall whenever an opportunity is given them. It is hoped that with the talent known to be at hand some energetic person will come forward and fill Miss Garrard's place in organizing to give several plays.

The Bickford House has been kept in an unabating whirl of excitement since the season opened, with the round of backboard parties, glee concerts and progressive heart parties which its congenial guests have inaugurated. Mrs. Marks and Dr. G.
Fred'k Brooks of New York tendered the guests and adjoining cottagers a most enjoyable progressive heart party on Saturday evening. The prizes which were procured at a jewelry store in the village of Kennebunk, were both appropriate and beautiful. The event was given by Mrs. Marks as a complement to the guests, prior to her departure for Berlin. The ten prizes which were vigorously striven for, were as follows: First lady's prize; Miss Helen Gilmore; second lady's Miss E. E. Cattell; third lady's prize, Mrs. L. D. Holmes. The booby prizes were won with less effort on the part of Mrs. Marks and Miss B. E.
Hooker. The first gentleman's prize went fairly to M. A. J. Adams, jr.; the second to Mr. L. D. Holmes; and the third to Mr. Ellis H. K. Brooks.
The booby prizes found their winners in the following gentlemen: First, L. P. Adams; second, L. B. Adams.

THE BOAT HOUSE
OPENING EXERCISES
SATURDAY.
Next Saturday at 10.30 a. m. there will be an opening reception in the boat house, given by the ladies of the house committee. At 12 m. the house will be thrown open for the inspection of all who are interested. The club has met with unexpected success, has added one hundred to its membership during this month, and the house is nearly paid for by certificates of indebtedness bearing interest and payable within the next few years. The club is composed not only of young people but largely of men well known for their success in their business life.
Before the boat house had been opened a week one-fourth of all the available room under the building, for sheltering boats, was occupied. The building is forty-five by seventy-five feet, with gable facing the river, with seventy-five feet float room on the river. There are balconies on both floors; the upper one sixteen feet deep, commanding a view of the shore from the piers, past Wells, York and York Nubble, of the river itself inland and the foot hills of Mount Washington, so that seashore and country are united in a view unsurpassed on our Maine coast. The lower part of the building is well filled with lockers for members of the club, racks for oars, rests for canoes, a spacious carpenter shop for repairs, and a broad stairway to the second floor. The second floor is designed for an assembly room. It will contain also a ladies' parlor, and a committee room.

On Saturday the keys of the house will be delivered to the commodore by the building committee. There will be an orchestra in attendance, and some light refreshments served.
Every member will receive two tickets for guests. Friends of the club will bring flowers, evergreen and flags for decorating, on Friday morning.

FOR THE
RIVER SPORTS.

The amusement committee of the River Boat and Canoe Club have fixed the following dates:

August 8, at 11 a. m., Boys' Sports on the Beach.

August 11, at 8.30 Carnival—meet at Dr. Clark's and return to Boat House.

August 14, 15, 16, at 11, 11.30, and 12 o'clock, Boat Races on the Upper Course.

The Tennis Tournament at Arundel Hall follows the next week. The committee consists of Messrs. Senat, Hastings, Dr. Clark, McMaster, Taft, Dexter, Buttrick, Platt, Forrest, H. P.
Clark and Porter.

As the lighting of the river, prizes, band, and other items occasion considerable expense, the usual subscription will be taken up, and any member of the committee will receive contributions.

"JACK"
GRINDS OUT
HIS USUAL GRIST.

I notice by reading the various beach papers that are on file in The Wave office that everywhere there is the usual complaint of the scarcity of young men at the fashionable summer resorts.
Everywhere there is the same story.
Young ladies, buds and beauties, flirts, gay and heartless, are thick as leaves in the forest, but eligible young men are wanting.

Do you know why this is so?
It seems to me that it is because every year young men of brains see more and more clearly how utterly shallow and shoddy is the so called "society" at a fashionable watering place. There is but little fun for a bright young man to spend twenty or thirty dollars weekly for the privilege of mingling in the "set" with a lot of worn out and discarded belles and listening to their rapid conversation which seldom rises above the usual gossip and scandal on which so many women feed, but which is simply disgusting to an intelligent man.

The average young man prefers to go away with a select party well supplied with cigars and spirits, and camp out in some quiet nook free from the firesome chatter of scheming damsels and the snobbish ways of so called aristocratic society.

The song of the birds, the chirp of the cricket, the drowsy rustle of the leaves, or the dash of the waves on the shore are sweeter music to his ear than the buzz of scandal, the rustle of silks, the languid society gossip or the music of an ill-trained orchestra.

Now perhaps I am all wrong about this, but these are my ideas.

We have no cause to complain here at Kennebunkport, however, of the lack of young men. Although society here is very exclusive, still the natural attractions of the place are sufficient to attract eligible young men—young men of sense and discretion.

We are all right, but I pity the other places.

I notice that the girls who are engaged almost all leave off their engagement rings when they reach the seashore, or else shift them on to the other hand.

It makes flirtation easier.

I accidentally struck a choice bit of scandal the other day, and I will tell you about it. A couple of weeks ago a young and attractive married lady arrived at one of the leading hotels.
The same day a blonde gentleman arrived and registered at the same hotel.
A week passed, and it was noticed that the two parties were apparently old friends and were continually in each others company. At length a tall, slender, dark-eyed gentleman put in his appearance and seemed to enjoy himself while keeping this couple in sight most of the time. No one suspected that he was a private detective, but he was all the same. One day this week, after a few telegrams had passed between the detective and some unknown party, the lady's husband abruptly appeared on the scene. There was no exciting scene, but the lady and her husband took the afternoon train for home. The blonde gentleman and the tall slender one seemed to find no pleasure lingering by the sad sea waves after this, and each one "stole-ly" folded his tent and as silently stole away.

The whole affair was managed so quietly that few of the guests in the house knew about it.

But I dig.

One or two of the boys have quit smoking just to please their girls, so I hear.

I notice that some mongrel writer for the Eastern Star of Kennebunk, while speaking a good word for The Wave, gives me a savage thrust. Coming from the source it did, I do not feel like entering into any controversy with this would-be journalist.

I never lower myself if I know it.
I don't pay.

I notice that some of the boys are trying to drown trouble with drink.
They will find that trouble can swim.

A VERY PLEASANT HOP AT THE SEA GROVE COTTAGE.

The large barn at the Sea Grove Cottage was the scene of a very enjoyable hop on Monday evening. The barn was very beautifully and tastily decorated with evergreens in great variety.
One of the principal features of the decorations was an old fashioned rustic well sweep presided over by a young damsel who drew from its cool depths, lemonade, for the refreshment of the dancers. This was very unique. The order of dances was as follows:—

Plain Quadrille. Our Beach Friends Waltz.
Fancy Medley.
Lancers.
Caledonian.
Schottische.
Portland Fancy.

INTERMISSION.
Galop, Waltz, Polka.
Plain Quadrille.
Virginia Reel.
Waltz Redowa.
Waltz Quadrille.

Floor Directors—W. E. Daniels, W. H. Fiske Good Night

During the intermission refreshments, consisting of ice cream, sherbet and cake, were served. The music was very fine and was furnished by Prof. Bye and daughter, and Mr.
Blanchard of Kennebunk. The whole affair was very pleasant and its grand success is largely due to the interesting efforts of Mr. Barney, the genial proprietor of this house. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts, Miss Bertha Roberts and Miss Grace Twombly, Reading, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roberts, Malden, Mass.
Mrs. and Miss Davis, Salem, Mass., Miss Harris, New Jersey, Miss Hooker, Alston, Mass., Miss Alice Paul, Miss Ethel Hodgkins, Master Lem Hodgkins Miss Nellie A. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs.
Geo. H. Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. M. E.
Daniels, Georgie S. Monroe, Miss Mabel A. Daniels, and W. H. Fiske, all of Somerville, Mass.; Mr. Pitcher, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cassie, Boston; Judge Coleman, Miss Lulu Coleman and Master Robbie Coleman, New York Mr. Adams and Lady, Grove Hill, and Miss Mattie Huff, Kennebunkport.

FIRST PARSONAGE
AND MEETING-HOUSE
AT CAPE PORPOISE.

Rev. John Eveleth graduated at Harvard College in 1689. He came to Cape Porpoise in 1719. By assistance from the town, he began to build his dwelling house in 1720, but it was not finished until 1727. In this dwelling house, church and town meetings were held. The population of the town was then about 300. Rev. Mr.
Eveleth being advanced in years, by his earnest request, the town dismissed him Aug. 2, 1729. The inhabitants were very unwilling he should leave them, as he was not only their minister and schoolmaster, but a good blacksmith and farmer, and the best fisherman in town. From this time his history is not known. He lived near Crow Hill.

Rev. Thomas Prentice was the next minister. He was settled June 2, 1739.
In 1734 he bought the first slave owned in town. He also introduced the first potatoes into town. He was dismissed Nov. 7, 1738. The town bought his house, barn and about 150 acres of land, paying him therefor £150. He went from Cape Porpoise to Charlestown, Mass.

Rev. John Hovey of Cambridge, Mass., was the third settled minister.
He was ordained in September, 1741, and bought of the town the property formerly owned by Rev. Mr. Prentice.
Mr. Hovey enlarged the dwelling-house and occupied it 27 years. He also owned a slave. He was dismissed Aug. 16, 1768, and died in 1774, aged 67 years. The property, with the exception of the out land, was then sold to John Millett and is now (1890) owned and occupied by one of his descendants.

The first meeting-house in town was 36 feet long, 28 feet wide, 18 feet posts and was built in 1727. It stood where the present Cape school-house now stands. This building was used as a meeting-house 36 years. "Two boys instigated by older persons, on the night of the 28th of April, 1763, set fire to the meeting-house, and it was entirely consumed."

The large meeting-house on "Bur-bank's hill" (then so called) was built in 1764. After standing 78 years it was taken down in 1842, and the present church edifice was erected, the same year, on the same site.

(Nearly all of the above was taken for The Wave by Andrew Walker, of Kennebunk, from Bradbury's History of Kennebunkport.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

The Methodist church raised each day last year for church purposes $55,761.

Bishop Paret, of Maryland, is organizing a relief fund for the widows and orphans of ministers.

The London school board have arranged for the formation of classes in laundry work in their schools, so that the girls may be taught washing and ironing.—Zion's Herald.

A. T. Abernethy, professor of modern languages in Rutherford College, North Carolina, is only eighteen years old. He is probably the youngest teacher in the country to bear the title of professor.

The Methodist Episcopal church has decided to build a college in Kansas City, Kas. Property worth about $1,000,000 has been acquired there and the educational committee of the church recently met to arrange for the erection of a suitable building.

The late Dr. Martin B. Anderson, president of the Rochester University for nearly half a century, left a will bequeathing his entire estate, after paying an annuity of $1,200 to an aged couple, to the University. The estate is valued at $40,000.

The observance of Children's Sunday becomes more general and more conspicuous. In some churches it is the rival of Easter and Christmas. But flowers and song should not hide the supreme purpose of winning the heart of every boy and girl to Christ.

Next year a decennial census will be taken in Great Britain, and it is proposed to have the enumerators record the religious persuasions of the people. The Dissenters in England are protesting against this, on the ground that, as few people desire to confess that they have no religious belief, non-church members generally will say that they belong to the Established church. This will give the Established church a better numerical showing than it deserves.

The Colored Methodist Episcopal church is a body organized just after the close of the war of colored members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. It has annual conferences and a General Conference, which meets every four years. The fifth quadrennial session of the latter was held recently in Little Rock, Ark., the Bishops presiding in turn. The Episcopal message reported the church as in a very prosperous condition. The business transacted by the conference was chiefly of a routine nature.

The women teachers of Germany, besides a great pension association, have had an insurance society of their own for the last six years. For a monthly fee of 25 cents a member can in case of sickness draw $2.50 a week for 13 weeks, and for the same period again after an interval of six weeks. Over $2,000 have been paid out. Women between eighteen and forty-five years old, who have a doctor's certificate of good health, are admitted. The society has a good surplus, and is thinking of reducing the fee, except when an unusual amount of sickness occurs.

In his recent address before the Harvard Medical School, Dr. David W. Cheever gave the graduating class some advice which all physicians might profitably heed. "Cultivate good manners," he said. "Be reticent. Always show a cheerful face. Never give up a case while the patient breathes. Stay at home; be ready in your office. Medicine is not a trade, it is the noblest profession; cling to that thought. The Golden Rule is the true code of ethics. Be gentlemen, and not rude, grasping bores; respect others' rights and you will be respected."

SCHOOLS IN GERMANY.

How Teachers are Trained, Sustained and Paid in the Vaterland.

Teachers must take at least a three years' course in a normal school after completing what would be about our high school course, must be seventeen years old before entering this normal school, and therefore about twenty before beginning to teach, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal. On finishing this normal course they have to pass a thorough state's examination by a board entirely unconnected with the normal school, and after passing this examination they are given a school provisionally for two years. At the end of this time they pass a second examination, in which is considered their record for the two years past as to conduct and fitness for teaching. On receiving this certificate they must be at least twenty-two years old, and now enter their life work. There is no way of entering the profession except through these normal schools, and the demand and supply can be so regulated that every graduate is sure of a place, and is sure of keeping that place as long as he is fit for it. If the graduate has some particular vacancy in view, and the directors of that district wish him, he is assigned there; if not, then he and two others are sent to a place where there is a vacancy, and the directors have the privilege of choosing among the three. Once installed he can be removed only on complaint of the inspector and directors before the superior board, and on full proof of bad character or neglect of duty. The question of competency is settled by his certificate. He is supposed to get married about this time—a duty seldom neglected—and the district furnishes him a comfortable house of about six rooms, with a garden. Oftentimes this house is joined on the school building or consists of rooms above. If there are several teachers in the school, then each is provided with a house. The school hours are from eight to eleven and one to four, six days in the week, with Wednesday and Saturday afternoons free. The longest vacation is four weeks in summer, about ten days each at Christmas and Easter, and Sunday holidays, making about two months' vacation in all during the year. Children are compelled to attend school from the age of six to fourteen, boys until fifteen, so that every child, with a very few exceptions, gets from eight to nine years of schooling, ten months in the year, in a school under government inspection, and that must come up to a given standard, which is a high one. A great deal can be learned in this time from thoroughly-trained teachers, and this is probably just about double the amount of actual schooling that the average country boy and girl of America get, to say nothing of the hosts in the cities that get none.

In these folk schools the boys and girls are placed together, which is not the case in any other class of schools here. The teachers do not attempt every thing from the alphabet to astronomy, but confine themselves to reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling and composition, geography, history, Bible and drawing. Recitations are one hour each, except for the youngest scholars. Grammar is taught in the form of language lessons, in connection with reading, not as a lot of dry rules that mean nothing to the scholar, or a system of parsing that is simply slow torture to a child, but by the reading of a story or poem, talks about it, explanations of the meaning, searching out synonymous words, correction of bad forms of speech, and weaving in of grammar so unconsciously that the pupil learns it as a matter of course with no thought of hardship. In our most advanced city schools, no better teaching of the mother tongue will be found than in these humble, peasant schools of Germany, and a most admirable drill is here given in that very important branch. The Bible is taught one hour each day, and if every young German does not know his Bible thoroughly, it is not for lack of the opportunity. Men only are employed as teachers, for the reason that the state does not wish to give so much care and expense to the preparation of teachers who do not expect to make a life-work of it, and who, in the nature of things, would teach but a few years as a rule. Boys and girls just out of the common school themselves, and scarcely ahead of their oldest pupils, students working their way through college, and young men studying for a profession, find no opportunity here to try their hand at teaching for a few months or years. This may be hard on poor but ambitious youths, but is a decided blessing for the pupils. In all villages and towns under 10,000 inhabitants the wages of teachers are, on an average, as follows: For the first ten years they get all told about $400 a year, the actual cash salary being about $375, to which are to be reckoned the house, garden, fuel, etc. After ten years of service and each five years thereafter they receive an addition of $25 a year until they have been thirty years in service, when the maximum of $325 a year is reached. In the larger cities the pay is increased according to the proportional greater expense of living. This is not large pay, but there is no time lost while out of work or during long vacations, the cost of living is small, and the teacher is much better off than most of his neighbors, ranking next to the pastor in importance and public esteem. At sixty years of age he can retire if he chooses with a pension for the rest of his life equal to three-fourths of the salary he is then receiving, and as he has generally been able to lay by a handsome sum, his old age is comfortable and happy.

A little girl who is given to imitate her elders in words and ways, drew herself up in a dignified manner at breakfast recently, and said to her elder brothers and sisters: "Children, if you please, we will suspend with that perdiculous noise."

Chipinone—"Who is that lordly looking man on the other side of the aisle?" Ukerdek—"That is a newspaper man." "Why does he put on so much style and seem so haughty?" "He is a young one, and is riding on his first railroad pass."—Inter Ocean.

According to an interviewer, Carlyle surpassed himself when first introduced to F. W. Joachim. Shaking hands with the great violinist the sage observed that he "hadn't a great opinion of musicians—they seemed such a vain, wind-baggy sort of people."

Seven of the supposed-to-be sharp-shoot and wisest lawyers in the country have made wills, passed away, and the said wills have been broken all to flinders by heirs and other lawyers. An ignorant Missouri farmer wrote his will in four lines on a slate, and it stood three lawsuits and ten lawyers.

The most expensive thermometer in this country is in use at the Johns Hopkins University. It is known as Prof. Rowland's thermometer, and is valued at $10,000. It is an absolutely perfect instrument, and the graduations on the glass are so fine that it is necessary to use a microscope to read them.

A farmer in the vicinity of St. Louis, Mich., sent his wife to market and he went into the fields to plow. About noon the good wife returned and explained to her husband that it was Sunday. Neither had remembered the day of the week until Mrs. Goff found St. Louis people going to church.

Every time General Butler is asked for his opinion regarding the proper investment for an enterprising young man, he says that "rent-paying real estate" is the safest investment in the world. He always adds that no man who expects to accumulate property can afford to be mean about money matters.

The Young Man (rapturously)—"And now, Flossie, it only remains for you to name the happy day. Please make it soon, very soon, darling." The Young Woman (in the kitchen a few moments later)—"Bridget, would it interfere with any of your engagements if I should be married three weeks from next Wednesday evening?"

Lottery tickets seem to be very plentiful in Louisiana just now. The Southwestern Christian Advocate tells of a brother who got things so mixed for admission to a love-feast. Professed Christians are coming to be among the strongest supporters of the lottery, says a local paper.

A few days ago three families of Finlanders settled on farms in the northern part of Beadle County, South Dakota. In one of the families there are nineteen children, in another seventeen and in the third nine, the parents of the last family having been married but ten years. These families will soon be joined by four others, all relatives, numbering forty-six persons, making a total of ninety-seven persons in nine families.

A minister had traveled some distance to preach, and at the conclusion of the morning service waited for some one to invite him to dine; but the congregation dispersed without noticing him. When the house was nearly empty, the minister stepped up to a gentleman and said: "Brother, will you go home to dinner with me to-day?" "Where do you live?" "About eighteen miles from here." "No; but you must dine with me," answered the gentleman, with a flushed face, which invitation the clergyman gravely accepted.—Argonaut.

The president of the British Pharmaceutical Conference is credited with having adopted and recommended the following for the happy dispatch of poultry. A large, wide-mouthed, stoppered bottle is kept charged with an ounce of chloroform. When a chicken has received sentence of death it is held firmly under the left arm and its head slipped into the mouth of the bottle. A few deep inspirations follow, and the bird, without a struggle, becomes unconscious. Then, holding it by the legs, its neck is dislocated by a quick stretch.—Our Dumb Animals.

An intelligent dog in West Chester plays hide-and-seek with his owner, a little girl named Amy. She taught it to play, and they both, it is said, find much fun in playing it. Amy will tell the dog to remain in a certain place until she hides. She then calls and the dog starts on the search, finding Amy every time, no matter where she hides. Then the dog will wag his tail, show his teeth as though laughing, and lie away to the place originally designated for him by Amy, while Amy hides again, only to be found in an instant afterward by the dog.

A gentleman who lives not a thousand miles from New York City has recently been absent from home several months on business. Not long ago his wife received a letter from him, which she began to read aloud at the breakfast table. But she was somewhat interrupted by a young son and heir, who apparently found other things more interesting than the letter. "My child," she said in a tone of maternal rebuke, "don't you want to hear this nice letter from papa?" "Papa, papa," was the puzzled reply, "O, yes, you mean the man who used to live at our house."

The New Hypnotic, Paraldehyde. In his published experience with the use of paraldehyde, Dr. Clouston, of Edinburgh, expressed a decided preference for it as compared with any pure hypnotic, the fact being that very often the patient is asleep in five minutes after the drug is given. It is very rare that it produces disagreeable effects, there being no interference with the appetite for food the next morning, nor disturbance of the stomach or bowels, and in some cases it restores to the brain the habit of sleep, with the additional advantage that it may be discontinued without leaving a drug habit. Dr. Clouston found its administration to be of no use, but rather injurious, when resorted to in the daytime. The dose varies largely according to the case, but too small doses have a tendency to excite the patient. In very many cases of confirmed insomnia, melancholia, and in acute mania, three or even four drams are required for producing the desired effect, and in cases of mania Dr. Clouston often adds a dram of one of the bromides to the evening dose of paraldehyde.—London Lancet.

"Well, Abner, I hear you don't go down to old Joe Greer's house any more."

"You did?"

"Yes; how did it happen? You and Tilly used to be pretty thick."

"Is that so? How'd ye know it?"

"Could see it? Say, what's the trouble?"

"Oh, nothin' much. Y' see ole Joe an' me hasn't hitched very close, or late; seems ter think more o' Tilly than me. Well, I wuz down thar las' Sat'dy night sittin' long well nuff, sittin' close to Tilly by the fire-place, when ole Joe sez: 'Abner, you twis' this knob this a-way 'n hit goes back that a-way, then you twis' the outside knob that a-way 'n hit goes back this a-way.'"

"That wuz all he sed?"

"It kind o' struck me ez if he wuz a-hintin' at suthin, so I took 'n turned the knob this a-way 'n it went that a-way. 'n I let go o' the outside knob 'n it went back this a-way, 'n I found myself outside goin' down the steps. Don't want no folks goin' rou'n' say'n ole Joe Greer ordered me outen his house, fer he hasn't chawed enough bacon ter do it. Pend on it, that waz all the words he sed."—A. W. Bellaw, in Light.

HEROISM OF A BOY.

Wonderful Courage Displayed Under Distressing Circumstances.

From a remote part of distant Australia—half the world away from us—a newspaper comes, bearing a strange name, the Capricornian. It devotes several columns to accounts of a boating accident and fatality which occurred at Rockhampton, Queensland. The head master of the Allentown State School and his assistant took two pupils out for a holiday excursion round the Koppol Islands. One of the boys was landed shortly after setting out; the other remained on the boat; his name is Walter Mooney. The boating party left on December 19, intending party to make a three weeks' cruise, camping out occasionally. With the new year the weather became squally and dangerous. One or two waves broke over the boat. Clayton, the assistant, got nervous, being very anxious about the little lad. "This won't do," he said, jibbed the sail, and the boat upset. In an instant all three were struggling in the water. Clayton then, showing coolness and courage, dived, cut the stays, and unshipped the mast. Then both Smith, the head master, and Clayton had to dive for the anchor. When all was got to rights, so far as could be, Walter Mooney was swept away by a wave, and had to be rescued. Now, however, it was found that the boat was sinking, and could carry only the boy. They lashed Mooney to the boat, hopeless of ever hearing of him again, bade farewell to each other, all three, and the two teachers swam off to the distant shore. Clayton's retriever dog accompanied them. It had instinctively caught up a piece of bacon in its mouth and kept up with them. Unfortunately all grew tired, and the dog tried to get on its master's back. Clayton thought to kill it, but Smith feared the blood might bring up the sharks. In that dangerous sea. At length, suddenly, Clayton and dog disappeared, and Smith reached the island only in time, as a large shark swam past. "Sensational as was Smith's escape from a watery grave," says the Capricornian, "it is eclipsed by that of the lad Mooney." It was not supposed that he could survive; the boat was water-logged, and the billows over and again broke over it in bitter brine. Drifting, drifting from 1:30 through the long afternoon under a blazing sun—drifting still, without food or drink, as the red sun sank over the invisible continent—drifting through the long watches of the dark night, parched with a fever of thirst, famished from a long fasting, drifting till the changing form of the Southern Cross told the turn of midnight was far past. Then the boat was carried to the shore on the impulse of the great waves. Now came the peril of perils. The place it approached was the most dangerous of the coast. Two rough reefs of rock ran out into the sea, leaving a chasm between them. To run on either rock was certain wreck and inevitable death. The heaving billow raised the boat in its irresistible grasp, and with one mighty rush, hurling it along, shot it right into the chasm and up on the sandy beach in safety—by God's providence. Now, Walter Mooney shook off the loose lashings, the insecure ties, struggled on shore, and fell down on the ground fast asleep, utterly worn out. Early in the morning he was awake, and was seen walking, in a dazed state, but with the steadfast purpose of speeding help to his castaway friends. By his means Smith was quickly rescued from the desert island, where he was found—hopeless of succor for a long period, and amazed at the boy's escape. Great credit is due and great credit is given to the young lad in all the papers. His steadiness in the boat when Clayton lost nerve, his courage in the wreck and his stout heart through all the weary day and night of danger, combined with his promptness of action on land, are all worthy of praise.—Dublin Freeman.

CARE OF THE HANDS.

Shirley Dare Explains How to Keep Them Smooth and White.

Soak ill-kept hands in hot bathing soap suds with half a teaspoonful of borax in the water, which acts wonderfully in removing grime. The hotter the water the sooner it will remove grime and old particles. I think the use of a stiff brush on the back of the hands, as well as the use of vaseline at night, fosters the growth of hair. Those who have used the rubber hand brushes will never want any thing else. Rubber clings to the surface with a sort of suction, and carries away every trace of grime with it. The common washing powders of different names quickly bleach the hands, but leave them harsh and dry unless rubbed with lemon juice or vinegar and water. A strong solution of oxalic acid should be kept to remove deep stains which result from cutting fruits or vegetables, though there are few which resist washing soda.

An English recipe for keeping hands smooth, which is two tablespoonsful of lemon juice, one of glycerine and the same of almond oil—colorless oil by the way, for experience lends reason to the idea that most oils and vaseline discolor and darken the hands. En passant, hot foot baths nightly, and purgatives with coarse bread, are the best regime to secure white hands.

Honey balsam is a nice preparation English ladies' maids compound to whiten and soften hands. It is made of eight tablespoonsful of pale strained honey heated gently, and two tablespoonsful of vegetable glycerine melted into it; when cold, two tablespoonsful of rectified spirit and three drams of pure citric acid are added, with a few drops of any rich essence to perfume. Dissolve the acid crystals in the spirit before pouring into the other mixture, and bottle at once.—Shirley Dare.
