FOR THE SENTINEL.

Mr. Editor:—Every day brings fresh proof that the professions of the federalists respecting a union of parties, are hollow and unsubstantial. The result of the late election, holden for a representative to Congress in the fourth eastern district, is in itself, most convincing. In that district which is decidedly republican, at a republican caucus numerously attended, a candidate was selected whose election was frustrated by two concurring causes. The present representative chose to appeal to the decision of the people, and the federalists thought proper to vote for two candidates of their own. If these gentlemen had offered to unite their suffrages with ours, in favor of any respectable republican, we would most cordially have met them half way in this mode of conciliation. But no—they must, from their own ranks, select two candidates, who, however amiable in private life, can never be expected to receive the support of any man who loves his country. These were Jacob McGaw of Bangor, and John Cooper, of Machias. The conduct of the latter during the late war is so well known, that it is only necessary to mention his name. The feelings and sentiments of the former may be gathered from the subjoined petition for a town meeting, which during the late war was presented to the Selectmen of Bangor.

To the Selectmen of the town of Bangor:

"Whereas we the subscribers have witnessed and felt with deep sensibility and concern, the injuries and breaches made upon the Constitution of the United States and laws too grievous to be borne, made, by those whose duty it is to govern the Union with honest moderation and profitable justice; and whereas after waiting seven years with a hope that the evils we have felt from the general government would come to an end and seen the vanity of supplicating them for relief we despair—and rest our hopes ONLY ON THE GOVERNMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS, to which we naturally owe allegiance.

"We feel desirous that the people of the town of Bangor should assemble in town meeting for the purpose of memorializing the legislature of this State, on the subject of the iniquitous, oppressive and unconstitutional laws passed by Congress, and praying them to adopt measures to RELIEVE US AGAINST THEIR OPERATION.—Wherefore we request you to issue your warrant, whereby the inhabitants of the town of Bangor may be notified on Monday next at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at such place as you may think proper to appoint, to act on the following proposition:—To memorialize in the form of Petition, Resolution, or otherwise, the general court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, expressing to them the opinion of said inhabitants as respect to the administration of the general government of the United States and requesting them to take measures such as their wisdom shall seem, to afford said inhabitants and the other citizens of the Commonwealth relief from the operation of some of the unnecessary and iniquitous laws passed by the Congress of the United States."

SAMUEL E. DUTTON,

JACOB MCGAW,

JOHN BARKER and others.

Bangor, February 15, 1814.

As Mr. McGaw has not yet sung his palinody, we have a right still to impute to him the same sentiments, and while he is so actuated, I ask what are we to think of him & of his supporters. If the federalists have any sincerity in their professions, let them unite in the support of one of the majority. But they have not.—All their talk about union and conciliation may be reduced to this.—That the republicans must be their dupes and vote for one of their faction in order to evince good feeling—My good feelings will go no farther than to allow them the privilege of recantation—While they adhere to the doctrines which they so strenuously supported during the war and which put our country in jeopardy, not a man of them shall receive any support from an OLD REPUBLICAN.

THE MISSOURI QUESTION.

The decision of the House of Representatives on the Resolution for the admission into the Union, with the constitution which she has presented, is, we find, heartily approved throughout the middle and eastern states. It was on all hands understood, that, when Congress passed the act of last session, assuring the admission, provided the constitution which she was authorized to form should be republican, and not repugnant to that of the United States; the points of republicanism and conformity were reserved for the determination of the same body. It was expected that this supreme guardian and interpretation of the Federal system would, not only from a sense of the indispensableness of the duty, but from the peculiar temper and principles manifested by the people of Missouri, rigidly scrutinize their work, and display a particular solicitude, as well that no new community should enter into our high confederacy with the air of dictating terms, as that the general law of the land should suffer no infringement, however small, which might be averted by a regular exercise of Federal power.

In proportion to the satisfaction of the people, with the conduct of the House of Representatives on this occasion, is their disgust at that of the Senate. The incompatibility between the Constitution of Missouri and that of the United States, is established by as perfect and plain a syllogism as ever was presented to the human understanding. The Constitution of the United States provides, that the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States. Free negroes and mulattoes are, undeniably, citizens of some of the States. But the Constitution of Missouri provides that free negroes and mulattoes shall not have even ingress into her territory: Therefore, the Constitution of Missouri is repugnant to that of the United States.

Now, that so simple and glaring a truth as this, which must strike the eyes of all who do not purposely close them against it, should be treated by the Senate as if it were ambiguous and intricate, in order that Missouri may ride at once over every obstacle, is what cannot be reconciled, to the ideas entertained by the country, of the character and duties of that branch of the legislature. The amendment with which the Senate have accompanied their assent to the Resolution for admission, is as obviously futile, as the breach of the Federal Constitution which they allow, is palpable and ominous. It breathes the spirit of subterfuge, which is not less unworthy of such an assembly, than the spirit—which need not be designated—that prompted the tacking of Maine to Missouri, at the last session.

We rely upon the House of Representatives for a persevering defence of the spirit, provisions, and general authority of the Federal constitution. The majority who have already acted so well, will remember that no constitution can defend itself; that it must be defended by the wisdom and fortitude of men; that their favour with the people is likely to be best secured, in the end, by proof of inaccessibility to blandishment or threat; that the respect of even their immediate antagonists can be preserved—as was seen at the last session—only by an inflexible adherence to their rights and obligations as these are explained to them by their own judgments and conscience.

"Resources of Maine.—It has been remarked that owing to the low price of Beef and other provisions in the country, much less than the usual number of Beef Cattle, Sheep, &c. intended for the supply of other markets, have been driven out of the State this season. The remark is probably correct. Yet not less than 1244 neat cattle, principally oxen and cows; 1767 sheep; 1017 hogs at

These, have passed through this village on their way to a market at Brighton and other places west.—These cattle were collected from the various parts of Maine. It is probable that many have gone out of the state this way on other roads, but more probable that the largest portion of the whole number driven out of the state have found a market in the British provinces of Canada, by the road recently opened from Kennebec river in the county of Somerset; and in the province of New-Brunswick, by Eastport, Lubec and Robinson in the county of Washington.

EASTPORT:
SATURDAY, JAN. 6, 1821.

THE MAIL, due on Thursday, has not yet arrived. We are confident its failure cannot be attributed to the want of exertion on the part of the Contractor in this quarter.

The Sheriff of this County has removed from Lubec to Machias. Letters on business directed to him at that place, will be duly attended to.

Genl. Joshua Wingate, Jr. in the 3d Congressional District, has declined being considered a candidate at the ensuing election.

The election for a Representative to Congress from this District, which is composed of the counties of Hancock, Washington and Penobscot, takes place the 22d inst. Neither of the gentlemen, voted for at the late trial, have as yet withdrawn. Our paper is open to a fair and honorable discussion of the merits of the several candidates.

No advices from Europe since our last.

Colder still.—Monday night last was one of the coldest we ever have experienced—and at 8 o'clock, Tuesday morning, the Thermometer on the high ground in this vicinity, stood at 26 deg.—and near the river in the village, at 30 3-4 deg. below 0.
Bangor paper, Dec. 28.

The following extract of a letter from a highly respectable source has been received in this city. Accounts from Havana also confirm its contents.

South Pat.
Liverpool, Oct. 26.—“My object in writing, is to say, that I yesterday received a letter from Samuel Williams, Esq. of London, in which he uses these words:—“My correspondent in Madrid confirms the report of the Ratification of the Treaty & Cession of the Floridas, to the United States. This is important, especially to the southern states. There can be no doubt of the fact.”

WASHINGTON, December 14, 1820.

Commodore SAMUEL TUCKER from Maine, and Col. LEVERETT from New-York, having charge of the votes for President and Vice President from those States, respectively, arrived at this city to day at noon, and were immediately introduced to the President of the Senate by Mr. Hill, for the purpose of fulfilling the business with which they had been entrusted.

The editor of the Hallowell Advocate in alluding to the late decision of the House of Representatives on the Missouri question, observes, “We do not see how Congress could have done otherwise than they have.—Some newspapers of the South have spoken with much animation against this decision, and have even declared that Missouri will never again submit to be governed as a territory unless at the point of the bayonet. We pay little regard to such gasconading predictions. If Missouri is now so refractory a child that she cannot submit to the laws of the American family, it is well that she should be kept in her minority until she has received a few more lessons of submission, and if she should have infantile folly to resist, she should be silenced at once by the strong arm of parental authority.—But resistance will not be made; the inhabitants of Missouri are neither so unprincipled nor so idiotic.”

No paper from the Provinces since our last.

Washington Academy.

MR. FOLSON.—The cause of useful learning is one, in which every good citizen feels a deep interest; and no opportunity of subserving its advancement escapes his attention. With no other feelings than those of a sincere desire of promoting the good of the community, did I come forward in your late paper, on the subject of “Washington Academy.” If I accidentally committed an error as to orthography, I feel sure of the candor of those, whose minds are more expanded, liberal, and better furnished with classical learning, than is that of your correspondent.

He should not be engaged in a higher employment than that of verbal criticism. A pursuit, requiring greater intellectual powers, would be inappropriate to his capacity. Were “vegetation for character” an ingredient in the composition of his mind, I should, perhaps, feel more disturbed by his remarks; and if I were convinced of the integrity of his character and the correctness of his manners, there would be a greater cause for alarm at his censures. It should be expected, by those who undertake to reform public abuses, that they will experience the malevolence of those, who are either interested in their continuance, or whose minds are too narrow and contracted to perceive the necessity of their correction. It is, however, consoling to reflect, that men, who feel seriously interested in the cause of virtue, and who possess liberal and enlightened minds, will view, with far different feelings, my humble efforts to subserve the good of the community. By such the graces of the composition will be less regarded than the subject, of my remarks.

It is, Mr. Editor, an invaluable privilege, which the people enjoy, of calling, before the “tribunal of public opinion,” those who are intrusted with their interests. And it is a matter of unspeakable gratulation, that no body of men, in this happy country, can wholly screen themselves from public investigation, behind the ramparts of corporate powers. It is, indeed, a wise provision, that corporations designed for the promotion of learning and piety, are endowed with privileges, which protect them, in a great degree, from the idle and capricious interference of unjudicious individuals. Were this not the case, the ends, for the acquisition of which they are created, would be perpetually liable to interruption. Hence the ample powers, which our wise legislators have uniformly granted to all corporations, connected with science. But do all the powers and privileges, which they enjoy, lessen their responsibility to act for the good of that public, with whose important interests they are intrusted? Are they, on account of their independent situation, authorised to disregard the object, for the attainment of which, this situation was conferred? So far from evincing this disposition, high-minded and honorable men, such as generally compose corporations, feel a weight of obligation, which stimulates them to obviate almost every difficulty in the way of accomplishing the ends designed. This would seem to be the natural course of men, who are duly sensible of their duty, and who are actuated by conscientious motives. Such men, indeed, should alone be intrusted with the management of institutions, for public beneficence.

I am not ignorant of the respectability of those, who compose the board of trustees of Washington Academy; and I have not endeavored to depreciate whatever merit they may possess. With their private characters I have no concern. As guardians of the dearest interests of the community—as the protectors and fosterers of the “Piety, Religion and Morality” of youths, it is not only mine, but it is the business of every citizen in a calm and temperate manner, to investigate their conduct. And if, after a fair and impartial examination, they should be found to have acted inconsistently with their trust, no halo of glory, or eminence of character, which they now enjoy, will protect them from public odium.

More than one half of the number of the original trustees have paid the debt of nature. Among this number are seen names of men, who adorned their stations in life by a full share of virtue. It was by the aid and through the influence of those men, that the institution was granted and honorably endowed. If twenty eight years ago, there seemed to be a necessity for an Academy, in this country, could there have been a period since, when that necessity was lessened? Waving all conjectures and “surmises” why the successors of the original trustees have not pursued the objects of the institution, no one can doubt, that, at this time, there is a necessity for an Academy in this country—that the trustees ought to put the institution in operation, if in their power to do it—and that, if it be out of their power the conclusion is almost irresistible, that there has been an unfortunate disposal of the funds, of which they had the control. If this be the fact, let them come forward and say so. A generous public will pardon the error. But so long as they keep their transactions from the public eye, it cannot be a matter of astonishment, that unfavorable conjectures and suspicions should be excited.

It is impossible for me to discover, (I will, therefore, leave it for the “keen vision” of your correspondent,) the impropriety of bringing a subject of so much importance to every citizen of this country, before the public. The institution was designed for the benefit of the public; it is their property, and those, who are intrusted with its concerns, are their servants. They have, therefore, a right, and it is their duty, to require of them an account of their conduct.

In the investigation of this subject there is, indeed, no call for the aid of the passions, or a necessity of exciting unnecessary suspicions. It was not my intention, in making my former remarks, to depart from a mode of conduct, dictated strictly by a regard to these views. It is a little strange that what was then said should have excited, in any one, so much of bitterness and rancor, as is evinced by your correspondent. Regardless, however, of the reproaches of low and servile minds, it will be recompense enough for all their vulgar abuse if I shall succeed in awaking the public to a concern for the welfare of the rising generation.

A gentleman who left Truro a few days since states that only two bodies, of the crew of sloop Venus, (wrecked at that place) had been found.—One of those had on a short jacket and pantaloons, (tied at the bottom, with ribbon) of fine blue broadcloth, and a handsome pair of half boots—the other was dressed in dark colored pantaloons, (patched with canvas) light cold, monkey jacket, cotton shirt, woolen stockings, (marked A. J. A.) and a tarpaulin hat—both apparently under 30 years. It is reported, that when the Venus passed Provincetown Point, on the 1st inst. in the afternoon, 8 persons were counted on deck—she anchored off the shore, and during the night cut away her mast; one of her cables was cut, and the other supposed to have parted.

Two whole pieces of broadcloth, worth about 100 dolls. we understand were picked up on the beach, back side of Cape Cod, on Tuesday last.

To the Honorable Justices of the Court of Sessions next to be holden at Machias, within and for the county of Washington, on the First Tuesday of Sept. 1820—

THE subscribers, Inhabitants of the county of Washington, beg permission to state that a County Road, running from the County Road near Isaac Crane's, in Orangetown, to the County Road running through Dennyville, and to meet said last mentioned Road near the house of Judge Lincoln, would be of peculiar importance. We therefore pray that such measure may be taken as will most effect an object of public utility.
(Signed by) W. M. CHALONER, and ten others.

THE OLIO.

TO SLANDERERS.

BY W. RAYNES.
"Whatever is right" says Pope—
The poet does not mean I hope,
Exactly, what he says;
How once it was, the Lord may know,
But 'tis not positively so
In these our modern days.

Wrong it must be for any man
To kill another if he can,
Or rob him of his purse;
Wrong, with malicious, hellish aim,
To stab a neighbor's moral fame—
A felony still worse.

Wrong, infamous reports to spread,
Haich'd from a lousy rascal's head,
With fumes of whiskey hot;
Lies which some scoundrels retail out,
For pimps and knaves to bear about—
The ravings of a sot.

Creators so mean, and vile as these,
No den of black assassins knows—
No savage wigwam owns;
There's not in Newgate's cells and holes,
Wretches so destitute of souls—
Such worthless flesh and bones.

Go—if "whatever is, is right,"
The devil will your deeds requite,
Ye chips of Satan's blocks;
But know that law's a rod in snook,
Know that a halter, too can choke,
And don't forget the stocks.

But you, my friends, who ward each dart,
And at my reputation's heart,
How much to you I owe!
More than I ever can repay,
Then take th' obligatory lay,
And let the other go.

There is a little fairy place
Beyond the mountain's ridge afar,
Time cannot from my heart efface,
Nor absence from my memory bar.

It is not that its scenery shines—
It is not that its plains are fair—
It is not that the "stream of pines"
On ocean's breast refuses there:

And tho' its vales are deep and wild—
And tho' its hills are rude and high—
Yet 'tis not those that have beguild
The tear that's starting in my eye:

For other vales as green are here,
And mountains here as proudly rise;
And a sweet stream as deep and clear,
To meet its kindred river flies.

Yet other charms that place invest
With a mysterious magic spell,
Which, until cold in death, my breast
Must ever feel, but never tell.

Excessive wealth is neither glory nor happiness. The cold and sordid wretch, who thinks only of himself: who draws his head within its shell and never puts it out, but for the purposes of lucre and ostentation—who looks upon his fellow creatures not only without sympathy, but with arrogance and insolence, as if they were made to be his vassals, and he was made to be their lord—as if they were formed for no other purpose than to pamper his avarice, or to contribute to his aggrandizement—such a man may be rich but trust me, that he can never be happy, nor virtuous, nor great. There is in fortune a golden mine, which is the appropriate region of virtue and intelligence. Be content with that, and if the horn of plenty overflow, let its droppings fall upon your fellow men; let them fall, like the droppings of honey in the wilderness, to cheer the faint and way-worn pilgrim. I wish you indeed to be distinguished; but wealth is not essential to distinction. Look at the illustrious patriots, philosophers and philanthropists, who in various ages have blessed the world; was it their wealth that made them great? Where was the wealth of Aristides, Socrates, of Epaminondas, of Fabricius, of Cincinnatus, and a countless host upon the rolls of fame? Their wealth was in the mind and the heart. These are the treasures by which they have been immortalized, and such alone are the treasures that are worth a serious struggle.

A Frenchman called in a tavern for Jacob—"there is no such person," said the landlord—"It is not any person I want here, but de beer make warm vid de poker."—"Well" answered the landlord—"That is flip;" "Ah! yes sare, you are in de right, I mean Phillip!" Chilon said, that "gold was tried with the touchstone, and men with gold."

Salon compared the people to the sea, and orators and counsellors to the winds, that the sea would be calm and smooth, if the winds did not trouble it.

ELEGANT EXTRACT.

Sir John Suckling used to say, "I pity the poet who has to write for his bread. I pity the man who has fallen into the hands of a pettifogging attorney—I pity the man who is married to a scold unless he is deaf. I pity the woman who is married to a rakish spouse unless she is blind—I pity the man who is in debt and would pay if he could. I pity the man who can only boast of a long pedigree." Sir John says no further. But was I to add a pity to the list it would be this: I pity the Printer, who after he has earned his scanty stipend stands but one chance in three of getting it the first time he calls.

A writer of a modern book of travels, relating the particulars of his being cast away, thus concludes—"After having walked eleven hours without having traced the print of a human foot, to my great comfort and delight I saw a man hanging upon a gibbet—my pleasure at the cheering prospect was inexpressible, for it convinced me that I was in a civilized country."

The expense of the proceedings on her Majesty's trial, already amounts to upwards of seventy four thousand pounds sterling, ($326,888.83 cents) as appears from an official account laid before Parliament on the 17th of October, signed S. R. Lushington, Treasurer.

State of Alabama.—By a census of the state of Alabama, recently taken under the authority of that state, it appears that the population of the state amounts to 129,237 persons: of whom 43,744 are slaves. This is a large proportion, but is accounted for from Alabama being an extensively cotton-growing state.

Parliamentary Penitence.—A gentleman some years since, being obliged to ask pardon of the House of Commons upon his knees when he rose up, brushed the knees of his small clothes, saying, "I never was in so dirty a house in my life."

If you never ask advice, you will hardly go always right. If you ask of too many you will hardly know which way to go. If you obstinately oppose advice you will certainly go wrong.

At the Sign of the Bible

Just received a supply of those justly esteemed and highly approved Medicines, prepared by W. T. CONWAY, No. 1, Bumstead Place, Common-street, Boston—among which are the following Pills.

Dr. HUNTER'S.

PRIVACY must ever be a grand desideratum to those who are so unfortunate as to contract a Venereal taint; in whom a natural anxiety arises to rid themselves of so dangerous a complaint as easily as possible; yet bashfulness has often been the destruction of many, who otherwise might have been at this present day in health, and useful members of society. To prevent similar occurrences, the proprietor submits an easy, simple and secret method to cure the same, viz. "Dr. Hunter's Celebrated Pills." Price one dollar, or six boxes for five dollars—round which will be found a practical treatise on the complaint, describing fully the symptoms and method of cure. These Pills, together with Dr. Hunter's Injection Powder, are an effectual preventative and remedy, in all the various stages of the disease, however obstinate; recent infections are removed thereby frequently in three or four days, without confinement or restraint of diet, at the trifling expense of a few dollars, with perfect secrecy. Ask for "Dr. Hunter's Celebrated Pills"—none are genuine unless signed W. T. Conway.

The following letters are proofs of their singular and superior efficacy.

SIR—The two boxes of your Dr. Hunter's celebrated Pills, and one packet of Dr. Hunter's Injection Powder, came safe through the post office: and I have the pleasure to observe that the whole of the symptoms have ceased, although I had been afflicted near two years, and had been regularly attended: during which I became much debilitated—but am now, thanks to your most excellent medicine, restored to health. It is now only ten days since I began taking them. If any thing more is needful you will please send as before. Yours, most obliged, R. C. T. Plattsburg, Dec. 18, 1817.

SIR—Being afflicted with a venereal taint for three years, which had resisted every assistance, resigned as incurable, tormented with pains in every bone, swelling in many parts, distressing headache, loss of sleep, not able to put my heels to the ground, nor my coat over my shoulders, my head ached in this horrid situation—I was advised by a physician to apply to you for advice, which was done according to my letter, dated 19th Nov. last: I have taken five boxes of Dr. Hunter's celebrated Pills, you was pleased to send, and otherwise followed your friendly advice, and am now to all appearance well: my pains ceased after the second box—would thank you, if you think fit, to forward more pills, as before.

With the greatest esteem, in good health, thankfully, I am yours. Charleston, Dec. 21, 1816.

These PILLS are prepared and sold wholesale by the sole proprietor, W. T. Conway, chemist, No. 1, Bumstead-Place, Common-street, Boston—and retail by appointment, (to prevent mistakes!) at the Eastport Bookstore and at the Eastport Infirmary, & by most druggists, booksellers, & postmasters throughout the Union; where may be had all those justly esteemed and highly approved Medicines prepared by W. T. CONWAY.—A large discount to country physicians, traders, &c.
