The Scenic Railway.

This is one of the chief attractions at Old Orchard and is well worth going miles to see. The trolley lines run directly by Seaside Park where it is located and it is only a step from the railroad station. There are several cars, each seat holding two people. The passengers are carried over hill and dale, through tunnels containing wonderful and realistic scenes from the heavens above and the waters beneath. This place of amusement is open every day, Sunday included, from 1 to 11 p.m., the evening effect being simply magnificent with its red, white and green lights blazing from all parts of this wonderful construction. Do not leave Maine without seeing it.

Hop at The Casino.

The first dance of the season was Portland furnished music. The merry party was chaperoned by Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Stanwood, Mrs. Burnham and Mrs. Howe. Among those present were: Misses. #### Prosperity and Adversity.

The conditions and surroundings of life are largely what we make them. This is the case, first of Prosperity and adversity are often the results of conduct.

Industry, skill, discretion, and principle underlie the one, idleness extravagance, self-indulgence and folly the other. As a general thing, the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary ing a big hit with his shore dinners we reap that which we have sown. But when it is not so, where circumstances over which we have no control come in the form of trials or joys, even these are greatly of the prettiest of the beach. modified by the spirit in which they are received.

Who has not seen poverty, or sickness, or bereavement, borne so heroically and cheerfully that the afflicted one seemed rather an object of envy than of compassion? On the other hand, who has not seen one with every outward advantage that earth has to bestow, rendering himself and others miserable by fretful complaints too petty to deserve a moment's notice?

The faithful endeavor to do right, and to bear quietly what must be borne, is of itself a faithful source Recently another has fallen beneath of happiness and serenity; while a the axe which for many years has murmuring and discontented spirit may poison the richest blessings Summer street. and turn them into bitter evils .-Exchange.
