THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES

The flag of the United States of America is a symbol of hardships, blood, sweat, tears and above all freedom.

During the first of the Revolutionary War a number of local flags were used. At Concord in 1775 a flag was used with the Latin words "Conquer or die" on it. At Bunker Hill the Pine Tree Flag of New England was used. On January 2, 1776, Washington raised over the American camp at Cambridge the first ensign of the united colonies known as the Grand Union Flag of 1776. On its blue field were combined the crosses of St. Andrew and St. George, symbolizing the union of Scotland and England, and it bore thirteen alternate red and white stripes.

After the adoption of the Declaration of Independence in 1776, it was felt that a national emblem of the union should be chosen. On June 14, 1777, the following resolution was adopted in Congress:

Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States shall be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be thirteen white stars on a blue field.

This resolution was borne and the Betsy Ross Flag was made up.

The gallant Paul Jones was the first of the naval heroes to make the United States banner a symbol of glory. Placed in command of the Ranger on the same day the flag was adopted by Congress, he sailed for Portsmouth, N. H., on the Fourth of July.

Vermont and Kentucky were admitted to the Union so Congress passed a bill that changed the flag so that it had fifteen stars and fifteen stripes.

On April 4, 1818, Congress passed the following act:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted, etc., that from and after the fourth day of July next the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the union have twenty stars, white in a blue field.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted that, on the admission of every new State into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and that such addition shall take effect on the Fourth of July next succeeding such admission.

At that time the character of the flag was fixed once for all, and stars have been added from time to time until the number is now forty-eight. The thirteen red and white stripes—the two outer ones red—symbolize the original states that won American independence.

Until 1896, different arrangements of the stars were used, but in that year Secretary of War Daniel Lamont ordered their arrangement in six rows. In 1912 President Taft issued an executive order authorizing the stars to be placed in six rows of eight stars each.

A WALK

Have you ever taken a walk on a fall night when there isn't any moon, but millions of stars in the sky and the wind blowing gently? Well, I have.

One evening after dark I took our dog, Laddie, and started up across the field. Laddie is part Airdale and part German-Shepard. He loves to chase cattle so they will run. That night the cattle were in the field, but it was dark and I couldn't see them. Suddenly, I heard them running and I knew Laddie was having a grand time chasing the cattle. I called to him about four times before he would come to me and after that I had to keep calling him to make sure he wasn't chasing the cattle.

I walked, with Laddie following me, across the field, under a fence, and up the hill toward an old white birch tree. This tree is a favorite among the members of our family. Only part of the tree stands and there is a rock in the crotch on which to stand. I climbed up into the tree and Laddie lay down beneath it.

From here I could see for miles in all directions. To the north I could see the outline of the trees against the horizon and the sparkling of the water that winds around the islands. To the South I couldn't see much more than blackness.

To the East I could see the light of houses and the light in the sky that came from a city about eighteen miles away. I could watch the lights of the cars rise over the top of the hill, go down the slope of the hill to the flat and start up another hill.

Far away I could hear the distant lovely tooting of a train. After a while I soon saw the one light of the train winding its way along the railroad tracks.

The sky was a mass of millions of tiny twinkling stars. After looking into the sky for a while I soon picked out the big dipper and also the little one.

The wind was blowing gently and I could hear the autumn leaves blowing and seeking a place on the ground on which to lie.

It seemed as though I were on top of the world looking down upon it, as if I had the world in the palm of my hand and didn't realize it.

It is so wonderful of God to give us this whole world in which to live and seek happiness. We should all be very proud of this and make the best out of life that we possibly can.

MY BROTHER

Big blue eyes and a cute little nose,
Rosy cheeks and tiny toes,
A giggle here and a giggle there,
He's soft and sweet with silky hair.

He climbs up high and falls down,
Gets up quickly without a frown,
Now who this is I haven't told,
It's my baby brother just two years old.

SPRINGTIME

Springtime is here again,
The grass is getting green,
The leaves are on the trees once more,
And the robins can be seen.

The lilac trees are budding,
And the apple trees are, too,
The birds are singing gaily,
And the skies are bright and blue.

The ice has melted from the brooks,
As they go rippling through,
It seems so nice and warm outside,
I like spring best, don't you?

ALWAYS

I shop around from store to store,
And quickly dart from rack to rack,
And Brother, do I get sore!
When the dress I always want to buy,
I find on some other woman's back!

I almost never meet a soul I know,
When I'm neatly groomed and dressed
just so,
But while strolling in my oldest dress,
One shoe untied, my hair a mess,
I'm sure as anything to meet,
My newest beau along the street.

THE CALENDAR

The calendar lasts the whole year 'round,
Never making a single sound.
The days are numbered one by one,
After thirty or more a month is done.
Saturdays and Sundays are red and holidays, too.
Sometimes the rest are printed in blue,
Pages are torn all through the year,
After twelve are gone it brings a new year.

A Mid-Summer Nights Scream

Every night when I settle down in my bed,
And pull the covers up over my head,
And prepare to enjoy a mid-summer
night's snooze,
Comes the yowling of tomcats.
I wish I knew whose.

To close the window would mean a suffering hot night,
To leave the thing open is a "worse than death" plight.
For upon the fence and all through the
yards,
And spitting, and yowling like wand'ring
bards.

Skips an army of strays, with anger untold—
Against the whole world as they lash
back so bold.
And I who'd been planning to dream of my Lin,
Must battle the alley and all thats within,
Oh, the anguish that wings from a poor
girl's heart—
When alley cats prowl and sleep must depart.

FRESHMEN RECEPTION

Freshmen Reception was held in the town hall on September 18th.

That morning the Freshmen came to school dressed unusually. The girls wore burlap bags cut at the bottom and with a drawstring at the top. For blouses they wore men's white shirts and men's white undershirts over them. They also wore long black stockings and no shoes. When they got to school the Sophomores fixed their hair in many different ways and smeared them with lipstick.

The boys wore short pants with long-sleeved silk blouses, and white stockings. Their shoes were odd women's; they also wore women's hats and they were smeared with lipstick. Both boys and girls had to carry their books all day in a water pail.

Thirteen

At noon the Sophomores marched them down to the village and back. That night the Sophomores all gathered in the town hall to initiate the Freshmen. There they took their parts as good sports.

After the program a dance was held with music furnished by the school's phonograph.

SPELLING MATCH

On November 14, 1947, the annual Central Maine League spelling match was held at Carmel Town Hall. The contestants were from Newport, Carmel, Corinna, Hartland, Hermon, and East Corinth, with four spellers representing each school. Carmel was represented by Janice Emery, Angie Temple, Ruth Brown and Beverly Buck.

Hartland won the contest. For individual awards a student from East Corinth won first place, one from Hartland won second place and one from Hermon won third place.

The match was well attended and after the spelling was over hot spiced cider and doughnuts were served by Mrs. Joseph Devitt and Miss Ruth Wishart.

The workshop, supervised by Dana P. Stevenson, has again been included in the Carmel High School curriculum.

The workshop is financed by the town and by sale of articles made by the students. This year workshop was offered to all freshmen and sophomore boys and all junior high students.

In addition to the machines already purchased by Mr Stevenson, he has purchased a magnetic jig-saw.

As soon as funds are available a thickness planer will be purchased. We would like also to have another lathe or two.

This year we have made several magazine cases for Miss Moore's room. Many of the students have made one or more table lamps, magazine racks, corner shelves, and now some of the boys are making tool chests.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The Carmel High School Bobcats have enjoyed another successful year of basketball. Of 19 games during the regular season, Carmel won 15, losing one game to Hartland, Orono, and Bangor J. V. Tied with Hartland for first place in the Central Maine League, Carmel bowed to Hartland in the play-off. Three days later Carmel rallied to defeat Hartland in the C. M. L. Tournament. In the final round Carmel overcame Corinna for the third time this year to annex the tournament trophy for the second successive year.

At the Eastern Maine Tournament the Bobcats triumphed over the Harrington H. S. quintet and then succumbed to the same team it had three times conquered this year, Corinna Academy.

May I take this opportunity to express to the basketball team, and particularly to Captain James Newcomb, my sincere appreciation of the cooperation I have received this year. It has been a pleasure to work with these boys and to them must go all credit for their fine achievements.

JOSEPH J. DEVITT, Coach

USE OUR
"PRE-ESTABLISHED CREDIT" PLAN

It's the Modern Way to Buy

FARM EQUIPMENT OR NEW CAR

1. THE APPLICATION—

A prospective buyer, wishing to finance the purchase of a Car or Farm Machinery through our plan, obtains from the Bank an application. He simply applies for the maximum amount he will need, after his down-payment and trade-in allowance. He need not know in advance the make of car, the exact price, or the name of the dealer. In the application he may choose the insurance agent or company with whom he wishes to place his fire, theft, and collision insurance.

Low Interest Rates

2. THE PURCHASE LETTER OF CREDIT—

When the application is approved, the Bank mails the prospective buyer a letter stating that his application has been approved. With it the buyer can shop for his car or machinery.

3. THE PURCHASE CHECK—

After the purchaser has decided on his car he goes to the bank and signs the necessary papers, after which he receives a check payable to the dealers.
