For Ladies only.

Mme. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething, is the prescription of one of the best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and has been used for thirty years with never failing safety and success by millions of mothers for their children during the teething period, from the infant a few weeks old to the child of five or seven years. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to take; it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; relieves wind, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes, and we believe it the best and surest remedy in the world in all cases of dysentery and diarrhœa in children, whether it arises from teething or from any other cause. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the diseases or pains attendant upon teething, do not permit your prejudices, nor those of any one else, to prevent your using this medicine, which will relieve your child as sure as night follows day. Be sure and call for Mme. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind on any consideration whatever. Price 25c. a bottle. Sold by druggists throughout the world.

Polish the Youngsters' Teeth

With SOZODONT, an article that can be put into their mouths will be garnished with sound and handsome ones. The fragrance of SOZODONT is delightful and children love it. Its purity is everything important to the mouth-being entirely free from acid that the teeth should be well taken care of. Bad teeth are no fit masticators of the food, and breed dyspepsia. Make your children's mouths healthy therefore, with SOZODONT, a preparation of supreme excellence and purity. Use it without delay.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade all over the country as Mosely's Drug Store and their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The result is simply enormous as this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

An Opinion. She—"It must have been an awful storm to blow away the lighthouse." Cholly—"Terrible, my dear; but it could only have been through carelessness that there was a lighthouse in such an exposed place.

Epoch.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of Kidneys, Liver, or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle at R. H. Moody's Drugstore.

Philosophy.

Why should we fret or stretch our heels
For that which does not avail our reach,
Why should we strain our narrow sight
Toward that we may not ever attain?
Why should we rack the cranium of space,
Unless we are determined to find
Where the spring go for those who seek
Long for the beautiful, and go through
The same market day we look today?
Why should we fill our business spring
For any side flow, as it is, Bright gleams
Of golden sun the flock our way,
And kindly deal out the make-out path
Leagues ahead, ever lasting bloom,
Pale cowslip folks will open wide
Their starry eyes, and hide us cheer,
Every day, and flimage white, will sing
Their sweet notes, and tender tones
Into deep fallin on heart will speak
For to-day, should seek to find
The sunlight and the darkening clouds.
That bow over our daily path
Let us go thinks for all we have
Of truth of beauty in our lives,
Holding faith the smaller things,
Let us go and the greater lights
Fall in beyond our mortal gaze.

HELEN S. PACKARD.

The Crow Bounty.

"Caw, caw!" cried the army of crows in Tom Brown's cornfield. The sound reached the ears of his wife as she sat at her mending. She was home with her thoughts, and the cheerful face was clouded. She could hide her husband's sad from the world, but not from herself.

They were the only help in our cornfield this season, and such workmen will bring no money to market or food nor clothing. It is five years to-day since we were married, and I was in hopes our wood not go away. I dread his home-coming, for he is not the same mirth-hearted man the I plighted my vows to in my dear old home. I would not have believed drink could change one in so short a time; everything seems to be going to pieces."

The street in the middle of the many sheds is the black-smith shop, and also an office which is connected by telephone with the main office of the Mount Waldo Granite Company, who operate the extensive business, employing upwards of 200 men. At the upper end is a tower some 80 ft. in height, firmly braced, over which is stretched a heavy wire, extending over another tower about 40 ft. high and so constructed on the mountain where the granite is quarried and, suspended from this wire the huge blocks are lowered by means of machinery to the truck below. These blocks of granite are moved about and transported much easier than one would suppose, by the men who have had long experience in such rough work. The increased demand for granite paving blocks, gives employment to some 40 men and large quantities are now await shipment to New York, Philadelphia and Washington. This branch is operated by the New York and Maine Paving Company, and the little blocks as they pass from the hands of the workmen in the sheds, are piled in numbers till they reach up in the thousands and are ready for transportation to the great cities, remind us of the progress of the times, and as we look at the stone-setters at their elegant city residence and the massive foundation and ornamentation of some factory, or public building one will hardly realize the amount of work involved in the taking and cutting and transportation of the massive blocks of granite from the distant mountain side.

The granite quarry at Mosquito Mountain is now operated by Hayward Perkins, Esq., of Ellsworth and large opportunities of paying labor are now on hand awaiting shipments. Mr. Perkins is building a new wharf which will be of great convenience there. Industrial Journal.

Maine Matters.

NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.

THE SEASON AT BAR HARBOR.

If we have good weather, Bar Harbor will have the busiest season she has yet seen. This is not a rash proposition. People from the cities, who have visited Bar Harbor this spring, say that the exodus to this quarter will be greater than ever before. Our hotel men, with one or two exceptions, have already leased nearly all their houses. The cottage people and steamboat companies are making preparations for the largest season's work they have yet done. Twas former years we have had so many callers here at this early date, and the fact that our Secretary of State, James G. Blaine, will occupy his cottage here during the summer, is a great card for Bar Harbor. The numerous "polished aristocrats who will flock hither as by fealty to him, are sure to be well supplied; and it is highly probable that others of the cabinet officers will follow his example, and here cottages here before the summer has fairly begun. The Casino, which will be open to all about the first of July, will prove a great attraction. The proprietors of that place will do everything in their power to make it a popular resort for the gay and fashionable crowd, and this will indeed be the case if the liberality looked upon Bar Harbor as rather slow, to come here. And there is still another thing in our favor; the neighboring resorts on the Bay are looking for a very gay season, and this means many a dollar in the pockets of Bar Harbor citizens, for no one can be within a few miles of this town and not visit it many times during the summer. Bar Harbor Record.

SOMETIMES MONEY COMES BACK.

It is said there is a silver lining to every cloud, and while the going West of so much Maine money is a matter of regret, it is a real pleasure to know that in some instances more money comes back that goes out. Those who went into Sioux Falls, Dak., investment scheme made "big money." One man, a well known resident of this city, took out more than $20,000 in, and now is estimated to have more than Two hundred thousand dollars invested there. Others have made very large fortunes, and still have large investments in the growing city. To judge by present indications Sioux Falls will be made a Maine city in the near future, putting money there having become the popular investment of the day. It is said that at least five hundred thousand dollars of Maine money will be invested within the next few weeks in great packing houses to be erected there. Sioux Falls, it is claimed, will be within a few years the great packing center of the West. Portland Express.

THE MEGANTIC RAILROAD.

A correspondent of the Boston Herald who recently made a trip over this road, a branch of the Canadian Pacific, says: The magnificent scenery of this road may be imagined when it is remembered that it runs from the Atlantic ocean to the Pacific. No one can realize the enormous outlay of money necessary to build such a railroad through the wilds of Maine until he has been over the road and notes the difficulties in the way. The mountainous, wild, rugged outlines of the country makes it an arduous undertaking to lay a track for any railroad, but, at the same time, opens up one of the most romantic and picturesque spots in the country to the tourist and sight-seer.

AMONG THE GRANITE CUTTERS.

Mr. T. J. Lyons, the special agent of the Maine Labor Bureau, has been visiting the granite quarries as well as the fishing towns. While in town Saturday he says: "I found re-turned from visiting quarries in the towns of Great George and South Thomaston, among which are Spruce Head, Clark's Island, Long Cove, Atlantic, State Point, Jameson's, Brown and Wade's. No one but a practical man or observer can have any idea or conception of the gigantic strides this industry is making and has made within the past few years. In this county not less than 15,000 men are engaged, with a pay roll of about $8000 per month. Besides there are hundreds who find employment working about the boarding houses."

REGIMENTAL REUNIONS.

President Gilbert N. Harris and Secretary C. A. F. Emery presided at a meeting of the 1st Maine Cavalry association of Massachusetts, held at the Sherman house, Boston, June 3. About 40 members were represented. It was voted to hold a reunion of the regiment in Boston some time in September, and a committee of 15 was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

The Thirteenth Maine Regiment Association will have a reunion at Peaks Island, Portland Harbor, Thursday, June 20th. Dinner at Peaks Island House.

Examining and Cramming.

Every teacher knows by experience that, when he has to take his place in the examination curriculum, he has to submit to the system, and he does his best to practice the examining "art."

And when, as every teacher nowadays must, he tries to acquire the crammer's art—omnes eodem cogimur. Teachers, examiners, crammers, and students, all have to take their place in the vast examining machine, which, like the Prussian military system, grinds out a uniform pattern. The huge examining mill grinds continually, and grinds very fast—unlike the mills of the gods—but the grain it casts aside; it is designed to grind out the husk.

I do not say that we can do without examinations; nor do I object to all examinations, under any condition. My complaint is confined to the incessant frequency of examinations, the growth of the practice into a highly artificial system, the creation of a profession of examinations, and its correlative, the profession, of cramming, the wholesale, mechanical and hurried way in which the examinations are held and the suspicion of teaching to examining. In sum, I complain that the trick, the easily acquired and cheaply purchasable trick of answering printed questions, should now so largely take the place of solid knowledge and be officially held out as the end of study. [Frederic Harrison, in the Popular Science Monthly.

When the King of Italy met the Emperor of Germany, they were in a bad fix regarding an interchange of ideas in their own languages. The King cannot speak German and the Emperor cannot speak Italian, but both speak French, and in that language they conversed. This has given the Parisian wits a great deal of solid satisfaction.

Women of the World.

WHAT EVE'S DAUGHTERS ARE DOING AND THINKING AND WEARING.

[Prepared for the Journal.]

Yes, 'twas twenty years ago,
All the garden was aglow—
Ruddy hollyhocks, red roses,
Marigold and salvia posies,
Stately sunflowers, humble pansies,
"Heartsease, true as little Fan's is"
Quoth my lover, speaking low.
In the orchard trilled a robin;
Ah me! how my heart was throbbin'
Those long, happy years ago.

Well, the tale's been often told,
Two things—pure love and pure gold—
Do not wane with passing fashion.
Life is cold without love's passion.
Pick me that blue pansy yonder—
"Thoughts for pansies," say you? fonder
Grow our thoughts as we grow old.
Happy as the rough path steepens
And our feet lag. True love deepens
Just because the tale's retold!

After years of deliberation Russia has recently decided to permit the practice of medicine by women properly qualified. There are strict reservations, however, one of which stipulates that female physicians shall not attend on or treat adults of the opposite sex.

A number of society ladies in Detroit, Michigan, have formed a club for the study of the art of conversation. None of them are young and all are tolerably well educated. Voice culture, elocution, and general information as to topics are included in their enterprise.

Emily Faithful is coming to America.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, the eccentric authoress, is one of the most devoted and loving of mothers, although her own unbounded admiration for her two beautiful boys has inflicted upon them a vast amount of posing before the public in costumes more or less ornamental, though uncomfortable. In her Washington home Mrs. Burnett naturally receives many callers. The little lads are always dressed in some aesthetically fantastic fashion, and when the callers' things at a sign from her that they may be doing, they instantly fall into the well-drilled "company attitude," like soldiers on duty. One leans against her maternal shoulder; the other occupies an exact spot in the background, neither too near nor far to give effectiveness to the picture, one foot crossed, an Oscar Wilde in miniature. Mrs. Burnett, who is now in Europe, is about leaving Venice for London, where she will remain all summer.

One of the best violoncello players in the world is a royal one—Queen Marguerite, of Italy.

Mrs. James A. Garfield is worth fully $500,000. Like Mrs. James G. Blaine she was a country school teacher in her youth; and like Mrs. U. S. Grant has often done the family washing when the children were little, and has cooked the husband's dinner with her own hands. The Cleveland property has been sold, and the Mentor farm, which was originally purchased only for a summer retreat, will be the permanent home of the Garfield family.

Verily, the avenues of labor are broadening. Warren, Ohio, has a female butcher; Cleveland, O., has two female barbers; Boston two female real estate agents; Philadelphia a female dentist; California a female stage-driver; New York several girl boot-blacks and newspaper venders; and there are scores of female farmers in the country.

Since the sad loss of her once wonderful voice Elelka Gerster has not only retired from the stage, but from the world, with the avowed intention of never returning to either. She lives in a secluded home on the summit of a lonely mountain near the city of Bologna. Her days are passed in personally superintending the education of her children, in reading, and in the cultivation of her garden, which she has a passion. She declares herself not only resigned, but happy.

Mrs. Rose Terry Cook lives at Pittsfield, Mass., where she has a pretty but unpretentious home.

"He doubles
His troubles
Who borrows
To-morrow's."

Miss Juliet Corson, of cooking-school fame, is a hopeless invalid, confined permanently to her room. When able to sit up she writes with a portable desk fastened to the arm of her chair.

Mrs. Mackay, of bonanza fame, who has dazzled all Europe with her splendor, and whose recent magnificent entertainment to the Prince of Wales was the sensation of the season, wears a dress which has on it more than fifty thousand dollars worth of real pearls.

Female clergymen (or clergywomen perhaps we should say) though properly ordained, have not the legal authority for solemnizing marriages. Hence their incomes will never be so large as those of their brother preachers.

The engagement is announced in Paris of General Boulanger's second daughter to the son of the Comtesse de Bark, who is a sister-in-law of the ex-king of Naples.

Mrs. Mary J. Holmes, the American novelwriter, is in Italy gathering points for a new story.

Miss Abagail Dodge—"Gail Hamilton" writes her peppery articles on old envelopes, the backs of letters, and odd scraps of wrapping paper, and always uses stub pens, frequently dipped in gall.

Archbishop Whately's daughter, Miss Mary, who lately died in Egypt, had out of her own private income, established a school for Moslem girls at Cairo.

SOMETHING WHICH REQUIRES THE HOME-KEEPER'S IMMEDIATE ATTENTION.

Now, is the very "nick of time" in which a vigorous campaign should be entered upon against a common, but most destructive foe, moths. Rugs, carpets, winter clothes and cloth-covered furniture should be thoroughly shaken, aired, and exposed to the sun's hottest rays, to rid them of moths, present and prospective. Too much pains cannot be taken to destroy every tiny egg, and to nip in the bud every newly-hatched larva—for upon the thoroughness with which that is done in these early days of June depends immunity for the rest of the year and the safety of your choicest clothing. Camphor, tobacco, benzine and other powerful odorants are only partial repellants, and if the pests are already at work in garments put away, only serve to drive them deeper into the fabric. Liber tobacco juice, and benzine is bodily infested with moths, or if any particular article is supposed to be a prey to their ravages, use a great deal of gasoline or benzine. Pour it into the cracks of the floor, and saturate with it the walls of closets and presses. You may pour it around the edges of the carpet and saturate your sofa with it, if need be, without the slightest injury to the fabric, but to the surest destruction of the moths. Benzine spray will murder the insect at any stage of its existence, and is the only known substance that will destroy the egg. But be very careful about its inflammability, and don't venture with a light anywhere near it, or closet that has been freshly sprayed. A great deal of unnecessary expenditure in the way of cedar wardrobes, cedar chests, etc., has been urged upon the public, as the result of powerful moth and fear mongering. But it has been fully proved that after a thorough treatment of furs and winter clothing early in June, they may be safely put away for the rest of the season with no other protection than thickness of stiff paper. There is no need to go around half the winter smelling like a drug store from the stuff in which your garments have been packed. A good plan is to buy from your merchant or tailor a few large paste-board boxes. They will cost but a few cents each. Fold your woollshaken, well-aired clothes and pack them away in these boxes, afterwards gumming a strip of wrapping paper around the edges of the covers, so as to leave no crack. You need not even tie them with strings, but stack them up, one above another, on the floor of some dark closet or unused room. The best will be safe all the time with careful use. Others employ linen pillow-cases, or the common paper flour-sacks, either of which answer the purpose equally well, providing the preliminary work has been sufficient.

He was a gallant youth, who, with the pair of gloves his best girl won from him at a wager, sent these lines:

"A wager I've won—she for sunshine, I for rain,
And I should hint sharp practice if I dared
For was she not beforehand sure to gain
Who made the sunshine we together shared?

SUITABLE TO THE SEASON: STRAWBERRIES AND WHIPPED CREAM.

Make some puff paste. Roll it out a little more than a quarter thick; and with a fluted cutter, stamp it to the desired shape, either round or oval. Then, with the point of a small knife make a short incision in the paste all around the top, about an inch from the edge, which, when baked will form the lid. Put it into a brisk oven, and don't open the door for a few minutes. When nearly done, brush the paste over with the white of an egg, then sprinkle on powdered sugar, put it back, open the door, and "set" the glaze. Remove the interior or soft crumbs, and at the moment of serving fill it with a pint of strawberries, which should be broken up with sufficient sugar to sweeten them nicely. Spread over the top some spoonsful of whipped cream and serve.

Even better than this are the good old-fashioned strawberry short-cakes of our grandmother's days; and this is the way they were made: The very best and lightest biscuit dough you can possibly make, either with baking-powders or sour cream and soda,—should be rolled out about an inch thick; and baked in round cake tins. When done, split each cake carefully with a heated knife, butter both halves freely and spread fresh strawberries mashed with sugar between them. About four layers, alternate cake and berries, is sufficient. Cut like a pie or a round jelly-cake and serve hot, with the addition of sweet cream if desired. No confectioner's strawberry short-cake can equal this; and frosting or any other addition is a detriment. Raspberries, blackberries, and even ripe peaches or gooseberries may be used in the same manner; and when fruits are not in season, jams answer the purpose equally well.

When that dread disease, diphtheria, was raging in England a few years ago, Dr. Field, the celebrated physician who never lost a case—used nothing whatever for the cure of diphtheria but common flour of sulphur—a tea spoonful mixed with the finger in a wine glass of water, and given as a gargle. Sulphur destroys the fungus in man or beast. In extreme cases where the gargle could not be used, dry sulphur was blown down the throat through a quill, and sulphur was burned on a shovel where the fumes could be inhaled,—and in ten minutes the patient would be out of danger. This is worth remembering. Birds, especially parrots, sometimes have diphtheria from exposure to cold. Their throats swell, they cannot swallow, and would soon die. In such cases force open their beaks and blow a little sulphur down their throats through a quill.

A clever English girl has invented a new industry. She calls herself an auditor and accountant and looks after the household expenditures of large families, keeping careful accounts of every penny used in the domestic machinery. She finds plenty of employment among a few wealthy families whose expenditures are large, whose heads have no taste for such work.

Greatly to the surprise and consternation of her noble friends and relatives, the Baroness Gripenberg has set up a woman's rights paper in Finnish, called Hvase & Societly. Besides the well-worn woman question, it treats on prohibition and higher education.

Emerson expressed the truest christian charity in this sentence: "We should be as courteous to a human being as to a picture, which we are willing to give the advantage of a good light.

The other day a group of Washington ladies in familiar conversation drifted into the subject of wealth and as to how and constitutes real luxury. Each woman present was asked to name her heart's desire "if money grew on bushes and women were turned loose in the field." The ladies, by the way, were all of moderate means, of their notions of luxury would have no weight; and were all educated and well-bred, or their fancies would not be worth respecting. The first to speak declared the bath and understand the proper use of all dainty toilet appliances, and who could afford to have her mistress of the sewing wear-ness of dressing her own hair. That group of women spoke for most of the sex.

TIE LEAVES.

For many years dresses have not been so simply made as the most stylish that are seen this summer. And seldom were seen such beautiful goods, both in colors and designs, as are the new muslins, organdies and summer silks. Among favorite tints there are indefinite greens, such as that shown by the new willow leaves, or especially the soft, delicate sage, combined with pale heliotrope, faded rose, crushed strawberry or the grayish blue of old brocades. Looking at some muslins the other day in a great fashionable emporium, I found some ravishing French goods, pale mauve, trimmed, one with a Watteau-green ground and light clusters of roses tied together with pale mauve ribbon thrown over it in a figure. Another was lake-blue, sprinkled all over with golden and orange sprays of goldflowers, another was pale lavender, over which was scattered purple violets and yellow pansies, another, rather blue ground, was covered with crimson carnations.

These goods are made up in the plainest possible manner. Generally both skirt and bodice are entirely plaited, surplice fashion, in narrow, regular pleats. A sash of moire, or faille ribbon, not very wide, goes around the waist and is tied at one side in a loop with long ends. The sleeves are either puffed out in the upper part, with a bow at the elbow, and then plain down to the wrist, or else they are plaited down from the shoulder, and full loose and full in the pagoda style.

Silk dresses are also made quite plain, but often of two shades of color. Thus, a gown of striped silk pekin of two shades of green, is made in the new princess shape, with a close-fitting bodice and plaited skirt, both bodice and skirt remaining open in front to show an under skirt and under waist of cream colored surah, over which may be worn tiny wood violets of darkest purple, with green leaves. Both the bodice and skirt of surah are slightly draped across. Hand-some appliques of silk passementerie are placed upon the shoulders, back and sleeves of the silk bodice, the belt of the same goes across the waist and is finished at the side with long ends and tassels.

The best silk for summer wear is undoubtedly a good quality of surah, which is durable and light, does not wrinkle, and combines very well with other materials. Our best American mills are treating this specialty with particular care. There are many delightful novelties in the new foulards—the ground being white, with black figures on colors, or to colored figures on black. The colors are usually bird-shades, nearly faded looking, and the designs are rather fantastic, with large figures in irregular patterns of arrangement. The Japanese style is much in favor, and a great many figures are borrowed from it, especially in moss color, rose color, sea-weed color and black. Other styles are large white polka dots, or small black polka dots in the white ones, on a very brilliant red ground. These are mostly to be used for the foundation of the dresses.

As to colors, the combination of green and black is still extremely popular, especially in cloth and moire. Red remains very fashionable, but rather less is seen of the cupelhoot or poppy red, than of the host of derivative tints, such as old Roman red, Pompeii, brick, beef-blood, etc.

Many of the new bodices for costly evening toilets are cut off round at the waist, or very slightly coutinued, being finished off with a ruched sash or ribbon laid on flat. A large portion of the dress corsages are devoid of darts, being adapted to the figure of the deeply arched side seams and by the graceful curving of the seams, down which they are closely fastened by invisible hooks and eyes. Superb galoons and jewelled gimps are made great use of, these put on in straight rows or crossing each other in various styles.

Fichus and fancy shoulder capes are sent home by the modiste with airy summer dresses, whose fashions are left but slightly trimmed for this purpose. In honor of the centennial year there are large squares of deep-hemmed silk muslin, richly worked with the finger in fine frills. These are the "Martha Washington" handkerchiefs, which are lightly folded and crossed over the breast in the demure fashion of that respected lady's day. Other artistic corsage draperies are known as the Marie Antoinette fichu, the Recamier scarf, the Queen Mary and Sir Joshua Reynolds brothers, and other airy accessions of Spanish, Swiss and Italian styles.

I am happy to tell you that the ball dress "with no sleeves to speak of" and extremely low neck is now a thing of the past, and no respectable woman dreams of making such a spectacle of herself as the best dressed women a few years ago. England's grouty old Queen may go on insisting on the usual show of feminine backs and bosoms, fat and lean, but, happily, there is no such criterion in this country.

Handkerchiefs are very small, and embroidered in colors to match the costume. Lace is again used on dressy handkerchiefs; and those of real Valenciennes are very popular.

EVE'S GREAT-GREAT-GRANDDAUGHTER.

Aid the Census Takers.

We have received from the Superintendent of the Census, Mr. R. P. Porter, a circular requesting us to state that he will forward to all physicians willing to use them, "Physician's Registers," in which it is desired that a record of births and deaths be kept from June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890. Physicians in all parts of the country are asked to co-operate with the census office in this important work. Those who do not receive registers can obtain them by sending their names and addresses to the census office at Washington. The office is obliged to ask this assistance of the profession for the reason that the United States has no system of registration of births, and no satisfactory system is in use in all the states. In another matter of greater importance the farmers of the country can give invaluable assistance. The enumerator in his house-to-house visits in census years is furnished with the fact that farmers keep no books, and their returns are hence not infrequently mere guesses. In the census year began June 1, 1889, and ending May 31, 1890, the farmers throughout the country are asked to keep account of all the products of their farms for the use of the enumerator.

Several of the Wellesley College Professors and teachers have planned a trip abroad. Mlle. See and Miss Wilcox will avail themselves of the privileges of the Sabbatical year. Miss Montague of the French department and Miss Pendleton of the mathematical department will spend next year in study at one of the English universities. Miss Hurll of the department of philosophy and Miss Middlekauff, the organist, are others who will leave Wellesley for Europe.

When Capt. and Mrs. Isaac R. Kelley arrived at their home in Dennisport, Mass., recently, after a perilous winter's voyage, Mrs. Kelley was presented with an elegant Mason & Hamlin parlor organ by the owners of the schooner William B. Herrick for her heroism in saving said vessel from being abandoned on account of accident, caused by running into a floating wreck on the night of Jan. 29, on the passage from Portland, Me., to Cardenas, Cuba.

It is stated upon the authority of the New York World that Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, nee Endicott, is much disgusted with the freedom which pertains to conversation in what are considered the most select circles of English society. Her Puritan blood cannot stand certain features of dinner gossip popular in London. Not long ago she left the table of a note[illegible] peeress because of some remark which was made.

Missionary letters to the Anti-Slavery society say the Mahdists have made western Abyssinia a desert. Whole flocks and herds have been destroyed, thousands of Christians thrown into slavery and thousands of others butchered. Hundreds of the inhabitants were taken to Mecca as slaves in violation of treaties.

The Large Dams.

The New York World contains a report of several of the large dams in this part of the country: In Massachusetts there is a reservoir dam of earth at Arlington which holds 77,000,000 gallons and another at Brockton with a capacity of 230,000,000 gallons, the dam being of earth and rubble, 1500 feet long. A dam of earth and masonry 1100 feet long and 50 feet high has been thrown across Stony Creek near Cambridge, and holds in check 65,000,000 gallons. Chicopee has a 150-foot dam resting on a bed of quicksand. The weight for above the village of Cochituate there are 16,000,000 gallons suspended behind an earth dam with rubble heart wall. The town of Fitchburg has an earth and rubble dam nearly 75 feet high impounding no less than 200,000,000 gallons and 200 feet above the village is an 80-foot earth and stone dam stretches across Haynes Creek, near Leominster, being 628 feet long and imprisoning 350,000,000 gallons; while another, on Morse Brook, restrains 100,000,000 more. Lynn is supplied by dams constructed to hold back 500,000,000 gallons. A dam 600 feet long was built at New Bedford in a swamp, the puddle centre being carried to bargun, thus forming a storage of 400,000,000 gallons. In 1867 the gate-house and 100 feet of the dam were carried away by the slipping of quicksand.

The city of Springfield has an impounding reservoir with an area of 445 acres, 250 feet above the level of the streets, and formed by two dams on Broad Brook and in a ravine. The Westfield dam stands 771 feet above the town, and forms a reservoir having a capacity of 184,000,000 gallons, the body of water being thirty feet deep and covering thirty acres. An earthen dam with stone heart wall at Winchester is 600 feet long. It stands 121 feet above the town, and impounds 260,000,000 gallons. The city of Worcester knows what dangerous reservoir storage dams are, for in 1876 the Lynde Brook dam gave way and caused a damage to property of $750,000, though, owing to a warning of twenty-four hours, no lives were lost. Since then a new dam has been built and strengthened with three lines of cast iron pipe laid in the rubble. Its impounding capacity is estimated at 96,000,000 gallons.

At Greenfield there is a stone dam 60 feet long, 35 feet high, 16 feet thick at the bottom and 10 at the top. It is built in a mountainous gorge and stands five miles from and 200 feet above the village, and its design is to impound or lease 12,000,000 gallons of imprisoned water, which comes from a mountainous drainage of eight square miles. This dam bears the same relation to Greenfield that the Conemaugh dam did to the destroyed town of Johnstown, Pa.

Portland, Me., obtains its water supply from Lake Sebago, and a dam at the source of the Presumpscot river holds the natural overflow back. Lake Sebago is fourteen miles long and six wide, and has a drainage basin of 500 square miles. At high water the surface of the lake is 267 feet above the city, and, though it fills two reservoirs of 30,000,000 gallons capacity, it is constantly overflowing. It should be the danger of this dam at the lake, it should be stated that on June 9, 1882, one of the receiving reservoirs burst, which in thirty minutes discharged six million gallons into the streets of the city, causing great damage to property, though there were no lives lost.

A National Flower.

The latest query is: What shall we select for a national flower. Others than doctors differ on this question. A correspondent of the Boston Record makes the following suggestions: "Ours is a very big country. Could not New England choose the mayflower, the apple blossom, the South adopt the orange blossom or the magnolia, the West the sunflower, or other flower characteristic of the prairie? Then, on any great carnival occasion, when people from all parts of the country are met, we can locate the homes of persons by the flowers they wear. Then let each party have an emblematic leaf too. Let us of New England lay our mayflower upon the oak leaf, the Southern men of Southern States and the Western States backing its favorite flower with the leaf of the forest tree peculiar to its own territory. Surely our country is quite large enough to allow us to indulge in some sentimentalism with regard to the flower dearest to us. England, Scotland and

The Crime of the Clan-na-Gael.

One of the essays read at the graduating exercises of the Belfast high school referred to the evils arising from the immigration of the pauper and criminal classes of the Old World, and stated that 91 per cent. of the population of Chicago is of foreign birth. The essayist spoke of the Anarchist riots in that city, which are still fresh in the public mind, and just now attention is again directed to Chicago by reason of the foul murder committed by direction of a secret society—the Clan-na-Gael. The victim was a Dr. Cronin. He had in his possession evidence to convict Clan-na-Gael officials of misappropriating large funds, and was not to be deterred from his purpose of exposing the offenders. Money that was freely given by Irishmen in America for the cause of home rule in Ireland, he said, ought not to be used for wheat speculation and personal enrichment. Finally at a meeting held with closed doors these officials voted to "remove" Dr. Cronin, and soon after he was enticed from his home on the plea that his services were needed by a person seriously ill. Quick to respond to such a call, he went to his death. In an unsuspecting moment, when bending over his supposed patient, the blow was struck. The poor man's body was then carted over the country and at last dumped into a basin, where, after long search, it was found.

"Assassination by committee" the New York Herald captions a strong editorial on this latest Chicago horror. It says: "It seems hardly possible that in a country like America such a deed under such circumstances could be done. In another land we should say, as in Spain or Italy for example, it might be possible, but here never. Still here is the place where the crime was committed. Our horror is natural, but this is a case in which horror should give way to public indignation."

The headquarters of the Clan-na-Gael are in Chicago, and its membership includes many of the police force. The detection and punishment of the criminals is thus made difficult. Again the Herald says:

At every step in the trial so far the invincible hand of this secret society is felt. Evidence is dragged from unwilling and perjured witnesses. Characters of the detective system of Chicago to the throat. It wields an immense political power. Some of the very men who are engaged in the exposure are indebted to this organization for their positions. Pressure will be brought to bear on every one connected with the case, from the judge on the bench to the twelve citizens in the jury box. Heaven, earth and hell will be moved to stay the hands of justice, every inch of the road to conviction will be blocked by obstacles, and if it is possible to save these rascals from the clutch of their deserved doom it will be done.

Will it be possible? That is the question. Has Chicago the pluck, the moral courage to hang criminals who hold the balance of political power?

This is an emergency of grave importance to the whole country. That organization should be slain into kindling wood. It is a blot on our civilization, a shame to every right minded citizen. It should be hunted without mercy and scourged from the continent.

The Schiller-Bateman Controversy.

TO THE EDITOR OF JOURNAL: The explanation of the Argus, copied into the Age, is too thin. I participate to several of Byron's short poems not to be found in any of his "collected works." The same of nearly all great poets. Even Tom Moore's "These Evening Belles," one of the most famous and beautiful poems in the English language, is not in the edition of his poems in my library. Ed and Alfred Bowring is one of the most eminent of English literary men. It is not likely that he would have translated a poem as one of Schiller's unless he had good reasons for its authorship. Possibly the editors of the Argus and Age have some superior source of information. They seem to have dropped me and pitched into poor Bowring. Why didn't they do this in the first place instead of assuming that I was the author of the lines? As the Bar Harbor Record has well said, they had better gracefully acknowledge the corn" and let the soldier continue. Yours etc.,

J. C. BATEMAN.

NORTH SEARSMONT, Me., June 15, 1889.

Through the accidental omission of quotation marks from a verse appended to a letter from Bar Harbor, written by Prof. J. C. Bateman for the Journal, the Portland Argus, supposing it to be original, made a brutal and entirely unwarranted attack upon Prof. Bateman, whom it styled a half-idiot and a half-baked poet. Prof. Bateman had promptly written to this office calling attention to the omission of the quotation marks and stating that the lines were by Schiller. The Argus then denied that Schiller wrote the verse, but the Portland Press at once furnished the proof. The Journal, as in duty bound, came to the defence of a contributor who had been unjustly assailed, and shared in the broad smile which illuminated the Maine press, with two exceptions, at the Argus' onslaught on the muse of Schiller. During the fray the editor of the Belfast Age attached himself to the coat-tail of the Argus man, with a view no doubt to getting a little cheap notoriety, and sharing in the literary lustre of his Portland contemporary. His position also afforded him an excellent vantage ground from which to make faces at the Journal, although it sadly handicapped the assistant editor of the Argus, who is a good fellow and too good a newspaper man to have got into so sad a plight. But the affair did not terminate quite as the Age expected, and when the Argus man went to grass in the first round he naturally landed on his coat tail attachment and left that young man flatter than a Cleveland editorial in the Belfast Age. The verdict of a coroner's jury would be "served him right."

We notice that Joe Howard continues to write for the leading news-papers of the country, which pay him from $40,000 to $50,000 a year, apparently oblivious of the fact that an Islesboro ducie is on his track with blood in its eye and a sprint gun in its hand. The situation reminds us of the remark of the Western cowboy to a tenderfoot who was armed with a pepper-box revolver: "Look here, young fellar, if you shoot me with that thing and I find it out I'll kick you like blazes." Wait until Joe finds it out.

We have noted the fact that the Augusta, Ga. Chronicle, one of the ablest Democratic papers in the South, has cut loose from the free trade Democracy. In a recent editorial the Chronicle says: "We do claim that so great was the influence of President Cleveland, if he had advocated a protective tariff and a repeal of the internal revenue laws, the Democratic party would have endorsed his position. And we further claim that he would have been triumphantly re-elected upon this platform."

While the Journal continues to furnish all the news each week, the space in the Age not filled with cold victuals from the Journal's table of the week before is devoted to criticisms of the fly-speck order, in the composition of which egotism and bad manners are alike conspicuous. As a return for neighborly courtesies the demonstrations of the Belfast Age are certainly unique.

Writing of the Armour packing house in Kansas City a correspondent of the Atlanta Journal says: "Everything that goes in comes out of value even to hoofs, horns and hair. Nothing is lost except the occasional squeal of a pig, and they say they save that in Chicago."

In a letter to his Washington correspondent W. E. ("Richelieu") Robinson, in 1849, Horace Greeley said: "Next to marrying a very cross old maid for a fortune, getting an office to live by is the poorest business I can think of."

It is thought that the British Valkyrie will not venture to meet the American Volunteer, but will come over on a cup-hunt among the smaller fry of yachts. In this case no doubt discretion is the better part of valor.

There has been a break in the price of coffee, owing to an excessive supply, but the saccharine accompaniment maintains its altitude, although we "trust" it may come down before the preserving season.

Senator W. E. Chandler, of New Hampshire, has had a walkover in the contest for the U. S. Senatorship, as everybody outside of Democratic newspaper offices expected he would.

The bumptious editor of the Belfast Age styles the Journal a "one-horse Republican paper." But that is immeasurably above a one-jackass Democratic paper, like the Age.

Latest from Boston: "Sullivan is drunk again."

Monday was Bunker Hill Day.

Odd Fellows Block.

The accompanying cut represents the latest addition to the business blocks of Belfast, of which a detailed description was given in the Journal of April 18th. The stores of George W. Burkett and A. A. Howes & Co. are equal to any similar establishments in the State, and when lighted at night by arc and incandescent lights present a brilliant appearance. Every room in this large block is now occupied and efforts are being made to complete the fresco ing and finishing up the Odd Fellows Hall for dedication some time in July.

The English papers agree that the Samoan Conference has been a triumph for the United States and that the result is due to Mr. Blaine's inexorable attitude. The Berlin correspondent of the London Times says: "There can be no doubt that Americans have emerged from this conference with flying colors, and that Germany has had to content herself with the prospect of much less political predominance on the islands than she claimed at Washington two years ago. This result, it would appear, is much more due to the firm and inexorable attitude of Mr. Blaine than to any politic leanings of England toward the Power which it is her highest aim to conciliate." Editorially the Times says:

It cannot be denied that the action of Germany in Samoa lies on many occasions been high-handed, impolitic and inconsistent alike with treaty obligations and the interests of other powers. It is, perhaps, as well, therefore, that in this particular case Prince Bismarck should have been made to feel, even where the interests of the United States are concerned the American Government is very little affected by many of those considerations which necessarily restrain the action of those European Governments with which it is more accustomed to deal. It is not less plain that even Germany would be compelled to think twice, or thrice, before provoking collision with America over such a question as that of Samoa; and we cannot but recognize, therefore, that the influence of the United States has been so moderately and yet so effectually exerted.

MAINE GOSSIP. Eddie Ware, aged 10 years, and a little son of Greenie Pull, aged 12 years, were drowned at Augusta Monday afternoon while swimming in the Kennebec. The bodies were recovered by a diver. One of the boys got beyond his depth and the other tried to save him.....Ex-Treasurer Isaac Lee, of Bath, and the Rich and Willis Ice Co. of Washington, D. Frye has gone to the Restigouche River, in Quebec, to try the salmon fishing.....The yearly meeting of New England Friends was opened at Portland Friday. John G. Whittier was present. A public temperance meeting was held in the evening. Late Sunday afternoon a young man named South went rowing in the Penobscot at Bangor in a small boat, taking with him four little girls. The boat capsized and the oldest girl, Bessie Babcock, aged fourteen years, was drowned. The others barely escaped. The body of the drowned girl was recovered two hours later.....Chebuer's Ball, one of the finest buildings in Auburn, caught fire at 12:30 Sunday morning in the roof and was two 70 per cent. The people are leaving in droves.....The steamer Pomona, from New York for Montego Bay, has been lost; all hands saved.....Postmaster John H. Locke, of Portsmouth, N. H., died Saturday. Decoration Day was observed by eating strawberries on Memorial Day.....Woodruff, one of the fellows arrested for participation in the murder of Dr. Cronin, has made a new confession, in which he implicates other men not heretofore named in the murder.....A dispatch from Port au Prince contradicts the report that Hippolyte has been victorious..... A severe thunder storm on Saturday afternoon did considerable damage throughout the country. Boston awaited with only a brisk shower.....Indictments have been returned at Memphis against about 200 judges and clerks in the last election.....John G. Gilbert, the veteran actor, died in Boston Monday afternoon.....A destructive hail storm occurred in West Virginia and a cyclone in Indiana Sunday evening.....The village of Uniontown, Kan., was washed away by a flood a day or two ago. At least six persons were drowned and much property destroyed.

Consul-General at Halifax.

On Saturday last President Harrison appointed Hon. Wakefield G. Frye of this city to be Consul General at Halifax, Nova Scotia. Mr. Frye held this position under the Arthur Administration, but was succeeded by the present incumbent, Michael H. Phelan, of St. Louis, soon after Cleveland's inauguration. Mr. Phelan is a native of Nova Scotia and a Roman Catholic. Mr. Frye made an excellent official and his return to Halifax was asked for by about all of the Maine Legislature, U. S. Senators and Representatives, and leading Republicans all over the State. He has reason to be proud of the support he received, and the congratulations on his appointment are not confined to Maine. We quote a few of the press comments:

Maine people will be glad to learn that Wakefield G. Frye has been reappointed consul general at Halifax. Mr. Frye, who is a Belfast man, held this important post previous to his removal by the last administration, and he certainly well fitted for its duties. [Portland Advertiser.

The appointment of Wakefield G. Frye, of Belfast, as consul general of the United States at Halifax, is the restoration of an able and faithful official who was removed without cause by President Cleveland. Mr. Frye carries with him to Halifax the experience and prestige of a highly successful administration of the office under President Arthur, and the good wishes of a host of friends in Maine. [Portland Press.

The reinstatement of Consul General Frye in his old position at Halifax will be cordially approved by every New England fishermen and other individuals who are interested in seeing that the office is held in prudent and energetic hands. [Boston Journal.

The restoration of Hon. Wakefield G. Frye to the consulate at Halifax from which he was removed by President Cleveland because he was a Republican is in accordance with the policy of the Administration to do justice to meritorious and competent officials who were punished by the Democrats solely for their Republicanism. It is a policy which while peculiarly gratifying to loyal Republicans will commend itself to fair minded men of all parties. [Portland Evening Express.

Graduating Exercises of the Belfast High School.

The graduating exercises of the Belfast High School, class of 1889, took place at the Belfast Opera House Saturday evening last. The hall was well filled with friends of the class and citizens interested in our schools. Lace drapery depended from the arch over the stage, on which was the class motto, "Finis Coronat Opus," wrought in pansies. Large clusters of flowers were on either wing of the stage. The graduating class was composed of sixteen—fourteen young ladies and two young gentlemen. The misses, becomingly attired in white, sat in double rows, flanked by the young men. At the right of the stage were the school committee and teachers of the High School. F. W. Chase, principal of the school, acted as master of ceremonies. Music was furnished by P. A. Sanborn and R. P. Chase, violins, and Miss Mary Farmer, piano. The exercises were enlivened by excellent vocal music by Mrs. George W. Chase, Mrs. John H. Quimby, Miss Charlotte W. Colburn, George Green, A. C. Knight, F. W. Chase and F. L. Payson. The exercises of the evening began by selections from the orchestra, after which prayer was offered by Rev. G. B. Chadwick. Miss Helen Jane Condon played a march on the piano. The salutatory and essay, "Influence of the Novel," were by Harriet Ellen Robbins. After addressing the committee, teachers and schoolmates she spoke of the influence of novel reading, and denounced the novels of Rider Haggard as loathsome and worthless. Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Quimby sang a duet, which was received with applause. Essay, "Scientific Aspect of Immigration," by Robert Allen French. He handled the subject well. He spoke of the evils from immigration of the pauper and criminal elements of the old country, and cited the riots of Chicago. He said that 91 per cent. of the population of Chicago was of foreign birth. Edith Marion Black played a solo on the piano. Essay, "Charles Dickens as a Novelist," by Margaret Patterson Crosby. She said that Dickens preached better sermons through his books than many clergymen from the pulpit. He wrote against some existing evils. The books cited were Nicholas Nickolby, Bleak House, and Oliver Twist. Miss Charlotte W. Colburn sang a solo, receiving generous applause. The class history and prophecy was by Harry Austin Knowlton. In his prophecy he departed from the usual course and depicted hard futures for his classmates. Misses Susie A. Knowlton played a piano duet. Essay, "Industrial Education in Public Schools" by Elizabeth Adah Kelley. Miss Kelley handled the subject in an excellent manner, taking the ground that education should be of a practical kind. Pupils should be taught what is demanded in everyday life; should have manual training and mechanical knowledge. Music, quartette, by Messrs. Green, Knight, Chase and Payson. The valedictory and essay "The Marble Waiteth," was by Caroline Williams Field. The lesson drawn was that we are what we make ourselves. All the parts were well taken and the pupils acquitted themselves finely. Most of the young ladies had their parts committed. R. W. Rogers, Esq., of the school board, addressed the class in some timely remarks and awarded the diplomas. The class ode by Bertha Boardman Emery was sung, after which Rev. F. L. Payson pronounced the benediction. The class held a reception at the close, in the restaurant. The following are the names of the graduates:

Helen Jane Condon, Harriet Ellen Robbins, Edith Marion Black, Margaret Patterson Crosby, Melinda Emoline Shute, Ethel Winslow Knowlton, Elizabeth Adah Kelley, Caroline Williams Field, Alice Wadsworth, Maud Fernald, Bertha Boardman Emery, Mabel Netta Wise, Isabella Harris, Gertrude Doering Stearns, Robert Allen French, and Harry Austin Knowlton.

Electric Light Hearing.

On Thursday evening last the municipal officers of Belfast had a hearing on the petition of the of Easton Electric Company, of New York, to erect poles and to string wires in our city. Mr. O'Connor, who has had the matter in charge here, was not present. An affidavit was produced showing that he was detained in New York. The Easton company was represented by W. P. Thompson and W. H. Fogler, Esqrs., while the Hon. W. H. McLellan appeared for the Belfast Electric Light Company. A certified copy of the incorporation of the Easton company was exhibited. Mr. McLellan said that the city had no right to grant permission to a foreign company to erect poles. He based his opinion upon a decision rendered by the supreme Court of Massachusetts. A New York company erected poles in the city of Boston. The city was indicted and the full court sustained the verdict. He argued at length, his theme being that a foreign company could not have a permit.

Col. Fogler said that by the law of comity all companies had rights under the general law, which is recognized by the United States Courts, unless it is in conflict with the statutes or well settled policy of a particular State. He referred to the Massachusetts case cited by Mr. McLellan and said there was a statute of Massachusetts that interfered with the law of comity, but no such statute existed in Maine. It was the well settled policy of Maine to allow such companies to do business in Maine, and he cited several cases.

Mr. Lellan thought the particular statute of Massachusetts and Maine identical.

The municipal officers voted to grant the Easton Company permission to erect poles, &c., if operations were begun on or before the first day of August next.

Vinalhaven's Celebration.

On Tuesday next Vinalhaven will celebrate the 50th anniversary of its existence as a town. At a meeting held last week to make arrangements L. W. Smith was made chairman, W. S. Carver, secretary, and the following committees were appointed:

Wills Filed.

The following is an abstract of the wills filed at the June term of the Probate Court in this city:

David Pierce, late of Lincolnville, gives to his wife, Mary S. Pierce, all his estate, both real and personal. W. H. Hall, of Belfast, is named executor.

Nathaniel Simmons, late of Belfast, gives to his son John M. Simmons, one undivided half of the homestead farm in Belfast, and to his children Margaret Jackson, Nathaniel Simmons, Jr., Allen J. Simmons, Sarah E. Jackson, Mary A. Woodbury, and Nahum L. Simmons, $10 each. To his youngest daughter, Mary L. Woodbury, he gives some household goods. All the residue of the estate he gives to his son John M. Simmons, who is appointed executor.

Rufus B. Ritter, late of Unity, gives to his eldest daughter, Isabelle W. Kelley, $100. To his youngest daughter, Maud E. Gates, he gives $100. The remainder of the property is given to his wife Julia Ann Bither who is appointed executor.

Henry A. Starrett, late of Belfast, gives to his wife, Ellen Mary Starrett, absolutely, all his estate, both real and personal. Hiram E. Pierce and Frank H. Vaughn are named executors.

Biddy to the Front.

If a person was asked to name the leading farm product of Waldo county, doubtless he would say the hay crop, but he would be mistaken. The hen and her product leads all other industries in money value. There are now in cold storage in the egg coolers in this county 1,800 dozens of eggs, as follows: W. E. Marsh, Belfast, has 50,000 dozens; Charles Lancaster, Belfast, 35,000 dozens; Edwin Mitchell, Belfast, 20,000 dozens; I. H. Jackson, Morrill, 35,000 dozens; Mr. Chase, of Brooks, 25,000 dozens; and Mr. Snow, of Stockton, 15,000 dozens. For these the dealers have paid the farmers at the rate of thirteen cents per dozen, or for the whole number $23,400. Many traders throughout the country ship eggs themselves. It is estimated that the number consumed at home, and shipped outside the large dealers, is eight times the amount now in the coolers, or 1,440,000 dozens, or 17,280,000 single eggs. Eggs on the average will cost eighteen cents per dozen, and this will amount in the aggregate to $259,200 per year for the crop in Waldo county.

In the country towns eggs are currency. Traders will sell goods and little or no money pass hands. Great is the hen.

Meadow King.

Mr. W. A. Overlock speaks very highly of the Meadow King Mower. [Maine Farmer.

The Formal Opening of Crosby Inn.

The complimentary supper tendered Mr. Geo. H. Bemis, proprietor of the Inn, was given on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Belfast Hotel Company. The company included nearly all of the stockholders, and their ladies, with a limited number of their friends. Three tables extending the length of the dining hall were spread, seating about 120 guests, and extra tables were laid in the private dining room, and also in the reception and reading room, and one in the corridor, giving seating room for about 175 persons. It was Mr. Bemis' wish that only sufficient plates should be laid to fill the dining room proper, but the committee found it impossible to restrict the guests to that number, and even as it was, many to whom they wished to extend invitations they were obliged to omit. The tables were handsomely laid, and with the new linen, dishes and silver, presented a fine appearance. At each plate was the following bill of fare:

Crosby Inn.
Complimentary Supper
tendered to
Mr. Geo. H. Bemis,
Under the auspices of the Belfast Hotel Company.
June 18th, 1889.

MENU.

Strawberries, Hot Rolls, Chicken Salad, Cold Turkey, Lobster Salad, Roast Beef, Roast Chicken, Boiled Ham, Boiled Tongue, Mashed Potatoes, Vanilla and Strawberry Ice Cream, Lemon Sherbet, Assorted Cake, Tea, Coffee and Chocolate.

At nine o'clock the doors were opened, and the guests seated. Col. Chenery called the company to order, and Rev. J. A. Savage was invited to say grace. A hitch in the program, owing to a misunderstanding, for which no blame can be attached to any one, occurred at the tables. It was the intention for Col. Chenery, after the supper, and before the guests left the tables, to make some brief remarks, giving an account of the inception and completion of the project, whereby the Hotel came to be built, to be followed by several other gentlemen in short speeches. As it was not generally understood that any remarks were to be made, nearly all the seats were vacated as the guests finished their supper, and consequently that feature of the entertainment was not carried out. During the supper Sanborn's Orchestra, arranged in the corridor, furnished music. Immediately after the supper, the following program, arranged by the Belfast Musical Society, was rendered:

Piano Duett—Il Trovatore,
Mrs. Andrews and Quimby.
Song—Estudiantina, Miss Milliken.
Vocal Solo—Music by the Banjo Club.
Song—Many a Mile Away, Miss Colburn.
Vocal Duett—By the Banks of that Bright River.
Mrs. Chase and Quimby.
Piano Solo—Cotton Pickers Dance,
Mrs. Knight.
Vocal Duett—Vieni al mio cor,
Misses Colburn and Milliken.

The dining hall being now cleared it was thrown open and the company adjourned there, where an informal hop was given occupying about an hour, Sanborn's Orchestra furnishing the music. The party broke up about midnight.

It is due to Mr. Bemis, and also to the participants on this occasion, to make some explanation regarding the supper. Mr. Bemis was very unwilling to attempt to cater for more than he could seat in the dining hall. He said that he could not do himself or the guests justice if he had tables excluding over so large a space as he was obliged to. But it was found to be impossible to limit the number to that one room, and the committee told him he must take care of what came, and to do the best he could under the circumstances, which he did. Another obstacle met him on the morning of the day on which the supper was to be given. He had sent his orders to Boston for poultry, meats, berries and fruit, to be filled Monday and arrive here on the boat Tuesday morning. Monday, the 17th inst., was a holiday in Boston, the markets were closed, and Tuesday not one article ordered was received by Mr. Bemis. At that late moment he was unable to procure what he could no longer, and under the circumstances he did all that was possible. He was not satisfied with the result, but the circumstances seem to have been beyond his control and unavoidable.

The party enjoyed a pleasant evening and left with a general feeling of good will, and proud that Belfast has so good a hotel as the Crosby Inn.

Northport Camp Ground and Vicinity.

Mr. Kelley now goes the rounds daily and supplies the cottagers with excellent milk.

Wm. Brackett and wife, of Jackson, have engaged W. Knowlton's cottage for their stay this season.

Mrs. Mary Terry, of Bangor, has leased the Marston cottage for the season, and will open it for a boarding house.

Capt. Woodbury, of Schr. J. A. Garfield, has engaged Capt. Young, of Bangor, to take his vessel on one trip, with her from Bangor, while he remains with his family in his cottage on the campground.

Your reporter wrote the name "Tamerlane" last week, but it got printed "Jamesiane," and probably looked like that to the compositor. I don't think Mr. James Lane does not complain, however, and Tamerlane says that every lane has its turn.

The water works, if introduced here, as now seems probable, will be an additional attraction to the camp ground, and the yearly cost to each cottage, if they will all pull in, will be no severe tax; then, with a few good sewers, the sanitary condition of the premises will be all that can be desired.

The main route between Belfast and Camden has been let to Mr. Wm. Perry, of Camden, but Mr. Freeman, the popular driver, will continue on the road on the same, and after July 1st will run the accommodation stage by the way of South Shore and directly through the campground each way.

McCabe drove through the grounds Sunday with his dashing greys to the buckboard of the Crosby Inn, having a load of the boarders for a drive down the shore road to Temple Heights, returning in the evening. This rig looks very Bar-Harborish. There is no more romantic drive in the whole country.

There were many visitors on and about the grounds last Sunday. Besides the local travel the following parties, all from Camden, rode up in carriages and took dinner and supper at the Ocean House: F. O. Clark and lady, E. W. Osborn and lady, F. Thomas and lady, W. L. Conant and lady, Mrs. S. Prince and lady. A party also came up in carriages from Rockland early on Sunday morning to enjoy the drive, and made their headquarters at the Laurel House, returning on Monday morning. They were much pleased with their excursion and will come again. They are registered as follows: Walter Fernald, Asa Turner, Wm. Burtis, L. Ezra Philbrook, Calvin Fiske, Allen Small, Addie Turner. These people are all in business at Rockland, and cannot well get a day off excepting Sunday. They are delighted with Northport and Belfast.

The Situation in the Flooded Region.

It is now thought that the loss of life at Johnstown will not exceed four thousand.

Buffalo Bill's performance in Paris last week in behalf of the Johnstown sufferers netted $2000.

It is said that the sufferers at Johnstown are well supplied with clothing, and that they will need money soon to purchase furniture.

The State of Pennsylvania took charge of matters in Conemaugh Valley June 12, and Johnstown and other adjacent towns were put under martial law.

THORNDIKE. Hoeing is the order with the farmers now. The late rains put them back with their work. Quite a number of farmers think of beginning haying next Monday, which will be about a week earlier than usual.....Wm. H. Sayward, who has been out of health for two or three years, died last Sunday morning. Mr. Sayward was a highly respected citizen. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss.....Miss Nora Palmer came home from her school in Brooks last Friday sick with the mumps. She is teaching in the Foxes district.... J. P. writes of the death of Mr. Sayward. Harvest Moon Grange has lost a worthy and much loved overseer and the family an affectionate father and devoted husband. Any eulogy for him would be superfluous; his life was a noble one to copy. All who knew held him in high regard, and those who knew him best loved him most. He had been a great sufferer for three months and especially during the last five weeks. He was one of nature's noblemen. "An honest man, the noblest work of God." Though the poor common words of sympathy might seem but solemn mockery, yet all his neighbors and especially the members of his Grange would extend their deep and heartfelt sympathy, and feel that they, too, as well as the afflicted family, have sustained an irreparable loss. The funeral services were held at the house Sunday; sermon by Rev. Mr. Wright, of Unity charge, and Harvest Moon Grange, Lorrimer, from Knox. Harvest Moon Grange followed as mourners, and the overseer's gavel and badge were on the casket. A very large procession followed to the grave. There was good singing at the house, also singing and prayer at the grave.

SANDY POINT. Death has once more entered our community and taken a loved one from our midst. Susan, wife of Mr. O. C. Wardwell, died on Friday afternoon at the age of thirty nine. She had been out of health for a number of years, and for the past five weeks a great sufferer. She leaves one son and a little daughter, her husband and sisters have the sympathy of the entire community in this their great bereavement. Mr. Wardwell wishes to thank his neighbors and friends for their manifold kindness during her last sickness. Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the house conducted by Rev. D. A. Evans.....Children's day was observed last Sunday. The church was quite prettily decorated, and an interesting sermon preached by Rev. D. A. Evans. In the evening a concert was held.....Mrs. Fannie M. Shute went to Bangor Monday to remain two weeks.....Mrs. Abbie Nickerson came from Boston last week to spend the summer. Her cottage will soon be completed.....Mr. Daniel Daly, of Natick, Mass., is at Mr. Jewett Ginns. Mr. Allston Ginns, Jr., and child of Winterport, have also been making a visit at Mr. Ginns.....Quite a large walk is being laid from the Hersey Retreat to their cottage.....Miss Nellie Doull of Portland is visiting at Mrs. A. W. Coates.....Mr. S. Bradford and child of So. Thomaston are visiting at her father's, Mr. Levi Staples'.....Mr. C. F. Black, who has been in the employ of the Metropolitan Tea Co. in Boston, is at home for a two months vacation .....Miss Cora Snow of Medford is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Frank Perkins.

HALLEDALE. Mr. Walter Sherman of Boston and his sister Mrs. Stevens of Dover N. H. visited their aunt, Mrs. Plummer last week.....Mrs. Hannah Bowden went back to her old home in Lincoln to reside with her son, H. M. Vose.....Mrs. Isaac Colby, of Lawrence, Mass., is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilkerson.....Mr. Foster and wife visited his brother John in Rockport last week.....Mr. Herrick of Rockland was at work here last week one day cutting an inscription upon the monument of the late Mrs. Bryant.....Mrs. Etta Raynes returned from Islesboro last Saturday.....Rev. John Whitney of Camden preached here last Sunday, his text being from John 17:21. Rev. Mr. Bennett preached at the Vose school house in the afternoon.....It is expected Rev. D. Brackett will preach here June 23rd.....Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Poland have gone to Pittsfield to visit their son.....Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Myrick of Belfast are visiting their son Fred.....Farmers are quite busy hoeing. Some have finished and will begin haying "a little easy" the last of this week.....Died, in Halldale, March 28, Viola Pickle, aged 3 years 6 months and 8 months. It did a good work while here, but alas how short its stay. Some believe it will be resurrected but the prospect looks not very encouraging at present.

MORRILL. Mr. Norman Pearson has been very sick the past week with brain fever but is now improving.....Mr. Thomas Barlow has been very sick of late, and as he is past 90 his recovery is doubtful.....Rev. Rich Pearson was in town last week on a visit to his sick brother. Mr. Pearson is pastor of the church at Harmony, Me.....J. R. Means is doing good work at his horse rake factory. He is adding an improved hand and horse dump to his "piano" rake, which will make it one of the best in the market.....Rev. Geo. E. Tufts occupied the pulpit last Sunday at 2 P. M. The sermon was based on the International S. S. Lesson of last week.

News of Belfast and Vicinity.

The Belfast Business Directory for 1857-8, on the first page, will interest many readers.

The pay rolls of the shoe factory and Hall's stone yard in this city Saturday, amounted to $18,000.

A small cyclone struck here just before midnight on Thursday last. The wind swung around from southeast to northwest and blew with great violence for a short time, followed by a brief shower.

Mr. John S. Fernald, clerk in the Belfast postoffice, says the most unique envelope he ever saw was dropped into the office last week. It was made of birch bark, very neatly put together, and was addressed to a party in Bangor.

Dr. Kilgore and Mr. E. F. Hanson, of the Dana sarsaparilla firm of this city, went to Camden last week in regard to the post-office matter before mentioned in these columns. They found that their list of names, to whom circulars were sent, was very accurate. A government detective was in Camden last week investigating the matter.

ANOTHER CLOTHING ESTABLISHMENT. Mr. F. I. Dorr, formerly pressman with Mr. H. O. Dodge, but more recently with C. S. Marston in this city, has opened a shop of his own and will manufacture clothing. He has hired the rooms over Mr. Calvin Hervey's jewelry store on High street, and will make pants and vests, the cloth coming from Pittsfield. The garments will be cut here and sent out to be made.

Mr. L. C. Morse, of Liberty, drove to Burnham last week, where he met Fish Commissioner Stanley, and obtained from him 5,000 young land locked salmon. Mr. Morse drove home and put the fish into the Georges pond. The land-locked salmon is a gamy fish, grows to ten or twelve pounds, and if Mr. Morse's venture is successful in four or five years the fish can be taken. Mr. Morse put black bass into the pond several years ago, but now regrets that he did so.

COURT OF INSOLVENCY. The following matters were disposed of last week before the Court of Insolvency held in this city: The second meeting of creditors of Samuel A. Prescott, of Searsport, held and the preliminary oath taken. He also filed a petition for discharge. Albert W. Hasson, of Belfast, filed a petition for discharge. Willis N. Foy, of Liberty, filed a petition for a second meeting of creditors. Mrs. Christina F. Morison, of Belfast, filed a petition for discharge.

The Journal acknowledges the receipt of a slice of the bridal loaf from Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Frederick, of this city. A note from Mr. Frederick dated Niagara Falls, June 15th, states that they were pleasantly situated at the International Hotel, their parlors overlooking the grounds and falls. Alluding to the scene Mr. Frederick says: "Prospect Park and the falls by moonlight may be excelled for beauty and romance, but I do not believe they can be." Mr. and Mrs. Frederick left Niagara Monday for Chicago.

A NEW MOUSE TRAP. One morning recently Mr. Eben Sanborn, of this city, on entering his shop found a pint dipper on the floor bottom up, and on picking it up a mouse ran from beneath it. The dipper the night before was partially filled with water and sat on the frame of the grindstone some two feet above the floor. The mouse evidently had climbed up to get a drink of water, and overtipping the dipper had fallen with it to the floor. Very curiously the dipper had fallen over the mouse and held him a prisoner until Mr. Sanborn liberated him in the morning.

MEMORIAL HALL. Mr. John C. Spofford, of the firm of Brigham & Spofford, architects, Boston, was in Belfast Friday and met the officers of the Memorial Hall Association. Mr. Spofford has been engaged to submit a plan and specifications for the proposed building, which will be here this week. Mr. Spofford is an architect of note, having designed the extensions to both the Massachusetts and Maine State Houses. There is reason to believe that the Memorial Hall building will be the finest in the city. There will be a meeting of the corporators at the Aldermen's room on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock.

NORTH CHURCH EXTENSION. Some changes have been made in the plans of the North Church extension. The tower on the main building will not be removed, and a second and shorter tower will be built at the corner where the main tower was to have been erected. There will be eight memorial windows in the main building, and none in the extension as has been reported. Several of the society would put in memorial windows if there were room for more. The following will put them in: Rev. G. W. Field, of Bangor, in memory of his mother; Mrs. Cutter for her husband, the Rev. Edward Cutter; Ralph C. Johnson, of Washington, D. C., for his mother; the L. R. Palmer ladies, in memory of their parents; the Sibley brothers for their mother; the society for Deering Beaman; Miss Agnes Craig, of Boston, for her father and mother, and Mrs. James Gammons, of this city, for her daughter.

STEAMER NOTES. Friday afternoon was quite lively at the steamboat wharf. The Electa had not started for the other side of the bay before the Castine arrived and had to wait a few minutes to get into the former's berth. Then the Katahdin and Rockland hove in sight. As the latter only stops long enough to land and receive passengers, Capt. Pierce of the Katahdin slacked speed to give her precedence, but as the Rockland slowed down also the Katahdin let on steam and made the landing, the Rockland hauling alongside. It is quite the usual thing now to have all three of the boats at one time, and agent Pote thinks it is better than a gymnasium for getting up muscle.....The steamer Mt. Desert, of the Boston & Bangor line, began making daily trips between Rockland and Bar Harbor, Monday, June 17th.....The steamer Florence will run this summer as a passenger and excursion boat, plying between Islesford, Bar Harbor and Frenchman's Bay landings.....Steamer Katahdin made her first Sunday trip of the season Sunday last.....The Castine makes the run across the bay in one hour and Capt. Decker expects to make it in fifty minutes when his machinery gets in good working trim.....On the last day trip of the Penobscot Capt. Ingraham says that at one time during the day it looked as if the boat were running into a bed of rocks over which the sea was breaking. The rocks were whales and the monsters were resting on the water apparently unconscious of the nearness of the boat.....For the time table to steamer Castine on the Belfast, Castine, Islesboro Brooksville route see advertisement in third page. The Castine runs

SEARSMONT, Mr. Chas. L. Brown has moved in to the village.....Prof. H. E. Cobb is at home for the summer vacation..... Chas. Clement and Jas. E. Burgess are at home from Rockport.....The Sunday School concert at the M. E. Church passed off very pleasantly. Nearly $30 was raised toward purchasing a library.

JACKSON, Mr. George Crediford, of the Bangor Theological Seminary, delivered a fine sermon at the Congregational Church last Sunday a. m. He will speak here during the summer each Sunday morning.....C. M. Littlefield has sold a three-year-old colt. Mrs. Laura L. Page and a household family are moving to a garden rake becoming quite numerous in the vicinity.....Mr. H. G. Hicker, who was reported ill last week, is able to be out.....There was a slight frost on the night of the 29th ult., but we have not yet had our summer many days.....There was a slight frost observable on new growths Tuesday morning. No damage to crops is reported.

WALDO CENTRE, Mr. Samuel Kingsbury has sold his farm to Mr. Edward C. Parson of Waldo. Mr. Parson will take possession next fall. Mr. Kingsbury owns a house in the city of Belfast and will move himself and family there.....Capt. Fred A. Carter, the oldest person in town, is still steadily passed 1st skipping out the door last Monday. The family records say he was born in 1781. The reason says he was born at the time of Shiloh's battle. He does not remember.....Mr. Albert Carney, son of Nathaniel and Charlotte Carney, is quite out of health.....Mr. Sumner Carney is preparing to build a house.....Mr. Basil Field sold his horse week before last and bought another. Everybody but Basil is said to be well pleased.

A Positive Cure for every Skin, Scalp and Blood Disease except Ichthyosis.

Psoriasis 8 years. Head, arms, and breast a solid scab. Back covered with sores. Best doctors and medicines fail. Cured by Cuticura Remedies at a cost of $5.75.

I have used the CUTICURA REMEDIES with the best results. I used two bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, three boxes of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, and am cured of a terrible skin and scalp disease known as psoriasis. I had it for eight years. It would get better and worse at times. Sometimes my head would be a solid scab, and was at the time I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My arms were covered with scabs from elbows to shoulders, my breast was almost one solid scab, and my back covered with sores varying in size from a penny to a dollar. I had doctored with all the best doctors with no relief, and used many different medicines without effect. My case was hereditary, and I began to think incurable, but it began to heal from the first application of CUTICURA. ARCHER RUSSELL, Dexter, Ohio.

Skin Disease 6 Years Cured.

I am thankful to say that I have used the CUTICURA REMEDIES for about eight months with great success, and consider myself entirely cured of salt rheum, from which I have suffered for six years. I tried a number of medicines and two of the best doctors in the country, but found nothing that would effect a cure until I used your remedies.

MISS A. MCCLAFLIN, Meredith, Mo.

The Worst Case of Scrofula Cured.

We have been selling your CUTICURA REMEDIES for years, and have the first complaint yet to receive from a purchaser. One of the worst cases of scrofula I ever saw was cured by the use of five bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP.

TAYLOR & TAYLOR, Druggists, Frankfort, Kan.

The Safest

AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the impure and poisonous state of the blood, which results in so many forms of disease, this medicine is unequaled. It stimulates the vital forces, when they flag, to healthful action, and thus makes it easy to subdue disease.

My little boy had a large, painful sore ulcer on his neck, and throat from which he suffered terribly. Three physicians attended him, but he continually grew worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the sores commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age.—William T. Dougherty, Hinton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged corruption. A physician was called, but the child continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is fully as well as it ever was, and its appetite is better than we have observed it for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.

"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla prescribed for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the most remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, M. D., Wiggs, Arkansas.

Anti-Apoplectine

PREVENTS APOPLEXY by keeping the nerves, blood, blood vessels and heart in a healthy condition.

CURES PARALYSIS by giving strength and vigor to the nerves and muscles enfeebled by disease.

CURES HEART DISEASE. It is a "heart tonic," and by its action renders the formation of deposits upon the lining of the heart impossible. Relief is speedy and effective.

CURES RHEUMATISM, which is a blood poison, resulting from an excess of acid. The acid is wholly eliminated and the sufferer fully restored in a few days.

CURES DYSPEPSIA: by exciting the flow of gastric juice. It aids the digestion of food and effectually relieves all the unpleasant and painful symptoms.

CURES LIVER COMPLAINT. Regulates the flow of bile, relieves congestion and eradicates all symptoms of jaundice.

CURES KIDNEY AND BLADDER Difficulties by relieving all congestion and inflammation speedily and effectually.

CURES CHRONIC BRONCHITIS especially in the acute form by acting immediately upon the bronchial tubes and relieving all irritation and coughing.

Memorial Day.

MATTIE BAKER DUNN.

The earth is full of budding life;
The streams are glad, the robins sing,
The balmy air of May is rife
With scents of spring-time blossoming;
Yet 'mid life's sweet stir and heat,
When it is joy to breathe and be,
We hush our pulse's quickening beat
To keep thy day, O Memory!

The years roll fast from youth to age
And this day has its place in all,
A pause in life's too crowded page,
A rest to break the music's thrill—
For many a mourner unrevealed
Whose silent grief no eye may see,
For many a heart with wounds unhealed
Will keep thy day, O, Memory!

What matters it that years have fled,—
That the dear mound is far away?
The heart that loved us is not dead,
The soul has left the mouldering clay.
O, bound no more by Time and Space!
O, loved and lost! O, blest and free!
Come from your viewless, unknown place
And keep one day for Memory!

He lightly, spring-time sod, to-day,
O'er grave of hero and of saint,—
You hold the mask that's laid away,
The spirit mocks at your restraint.
We are the prisoners and bound,
And they, forevermore set free,
Triumphing o'er our grief, around
May keep this day for Memory!

Each passed away to his own place,
The Hymn of Life went forthing on,
But naught of glory or of grace
That earth has ever held, be gone;
No brave deed ever disappears,
No holden life unmarked may be,
Beyond the grave of time and years
They live in God's own Memory!

And this mysterious boundary Line
That marks the end of mortal strife,
Eternity's first way-side sign,—
But points the road from life to life.
May not our longing and our dread
Immortal premonitions be,
Heaven send, to tell us that our dead
Live not alone in Memory!

The barrier is but shadowy mist,
A loving voice may pierce it still,
O, this, my trembling lips have kissed,
Call to me from the heavenly hill!
O, rest, whose eager, longing feet,
In that old May-time walked with me,
Come back, to-night strong and sweet,
And keep one day for Memory!

The veil shuts down: yet while we grope
We know the answer to our cry,
We have a heritage of hope
Grown big with immortality.
A dream of glory and of grace,
Of glad, eternal years to be,
When heart to heart, and face to face,
We'll keep to-day for Memory!

Literary News and Notes.

Golden Days still maintains its lead as the favorite magazine for boys and girls. James Elverson, publisher, Philadelphia.

The Cosmopolitan under its new management is making rapid strides into popular favor, and now ranks among the best in number and quality.

A new portrait of John Burroughs appears in the Book Buyer for June, accompanied by a personal sketch of the author, by Mr. Hamilton W. Mabie.

The Home-Maker for June opens with an engraving from the Oak Hill portrait of Robert Livingston. The departments are well filled and interesting as usual.

Quiet Hours for May contains a portrait of Miss Mary E. Blanchard of Millstown, one of Maine's noted literary people. Miss B. is a native of Pembroke, and is widely known by her contributions to papers and magazines.

Capt. R. B. Forbes, who is now in his eighty-fifth year, is engaged compiling accounts of some of the principal events of his life for the last fifty years. They will be published in book form, and are designed for the instruction of seamen, who may learn wisdom from the misfortunes of others.

Wide Awake for June is a "trustory number." It opens with a reproduction of Henry Bacon's beautiful painting, "The End of a Long Day." Then come the stories—five of them, including a California tale by Bessie Benton Fremont. The new department, "Men and Things," is filled with readable matter.

We have received No. I of the Riverside Series, continuing the Ticknor Paper Series. It contains John Ward, Preacher, by Margaret Deland, and is the 421st number of this very successful novel. The price is 50 cents and the fact that the book comes from the press of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., who now hold the Ticknor copyrights, is a guarantee as to typographical excellence.

The Lincoln History in the July Century will contain chapters on "Lincoln Remembrance," "The Wade-Davis Manifesto," "Lincoln and Greeley's Peace Mission," Major John Hay, one of the authors of this history, was the medium of communication between Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Greeley at the time of the remarkable conference of Mr. Greeley with the pretended Confederate peace-commissioners at Niagara. Much of the correspondence relative to the matter now first sees the light in the pages of the July Century.

Belson J. Lossing, the eminent historian, recently wrote as follows to a friend: "I am, I believe, in sound health of body, mind and morals. I am happy to say that I am a Christianist. I see humanity progressing with marvelous strides toward a higher plane, and I believe in the preponderating goodness of human nature when properly developed. I walk wearily and feebly among the works of my hands, and accept as true his that at the creation that all was good and very good. Our country! What a glorious heritage we enjoy and will leave to posterity?"

The Johnstown flood is beyond question one of the greatest in the world's history. A graphic, accurate and profusely illustrated story of it will be eagerly sought for by the reading public. We are glad to announce that such a work is being prepared by W. Fetcher Johnson, Esq., and will be sold by canvassers through the well known publishing house of S. S. Scranton & Co., Hartford, Conn. The universal interest in this subject insures a large sale; any person wanting employment and quick cash returns, should apply to the publishers at once.

From an interview with Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, publisher in the Courier-Journal, it is seen that he takes a gloomy view of the prospects of literature. He says: "The question is, Will this country ever see another such group of remarkable men as Boston has produced? In history there are Prescott, Motley and Parkman; in theology, Theodore Parker and Dr. Bartol; in science, Agassiz and Pierce; in philosophy, Emerson; in poetry, Longfellow and Whittier, for the latter, if not an actual resident in Boston, must be regarded, nevertheless, as belonging to the Boston literary guild. There is Lowell, also. Charles Sumner might be mentioned in addition to those already named. For real intellectual force take the old Chestnut Street Club, or the Radical Club, as some choose to call it. Where will you find its equal? We have never had anything like it in this country since. Indeed, the literary outlook seems hardly encouraging. I sometimes feel that poetry will become a lost art with us."

A Colony of Sun-Worshippers Discovered.

The age of discovery is still in its infancy. Lieut. Schwatka arrived at Denning, New Mexico, June 6. His party has been successful beyond all expectations in their explorations, and especially in southern Chihuahua. Here living cliff and cave dwellers were found in great abundance, wild as any of the Mexican tribes from Ortiz' conquest. The aboriges they live in are exactly similar to the old, abandoned cliff dwellings of Arizona and New Mexico, about which there has been much speculation and so much money spent in investigating. It was almost impossible to get very near them, so wild and timid were they. Upon the approach of white people they fly to their caves or cliffs by notched sticks placed against the face of the cliffs if too steep, although they can ascend vertical stone faces if there are the slightest crevices for their fingers and toes. These cliff-dwellers are sun-worshippers, throwing their new-born children out in the full rays of the sun the first days of their lives, and showing many other forms of devotion to the great luminary. They are usually tall, lean and well formed, their skin being much nearer the color of the negro than the copper-colored Indian of the United States. Schwatka claims nothing has heretofore been known about these people, except by the half-Indian mountain Mexicans, and thinks his investigation will be of immense anthropological and archæological value. He estimates that the cave and cliff-dwellers are from 3,000 to 12,000 in numbers, armed only with bows, arrows and stone hatchets.

A newspaper asks: "Whither are we drifting?" and a Western contemporary replies that a strong aversion to profanity alone prevents their giving the required information.

The popular blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla, is having a tremendous sale this season. Nearly everybody takes it. Try it yourself.

The reason railroads are multiplying so in this country is because the cars are being coupled so constantly.

PEARS' is the purest and best Soap made.

Farming is one of the best occupations for a young man. Even cabbage culture will enable a struggling youth to get a head.

100 Ladies Wanted,

Dear Sirs:—For a number of years I have been afflicted with dyspepsia, and have employed the best physicians in town. I commenced to take The True "L. F." Atwood Medicine, and found immediate relief, and now consider myself cured. My son was taken sick with a distressing pain in the head. He began to lose his appetite, and grow weak, losing a great deal of flesh. He consulted two physicians and they called it catarrh, and prescribed for it, but did him no good. At last I happened to think of the True "L. F." Atwood Bitters, and procured a bottle immediately. He commenced to take it, and found relief at once, and is now well, and has gone to his work. I am convinced, beyond a doubt, that if the people who are suffering from any form of derangement of the stomach or liver would try it, they would soon be relieved from many sick days, and from large doctors' bills.

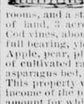
A Rare Chance!



A small farm for sale in Belfast city, on Waldo Avenue, a beautiful location, about 12 minutes walk from the business part of the city. A 15 story house with nine rooms, and a stable in good repair. About 50 acres of land, 3 acres of cultivated cranberries, Cape Cod variety, about 25 rods from the house, nearly in full bearing, yielding 200 to 300 bushels per year. Apple, pear, plum and cherry trees; also a fine lot of cultivated raspberries and blackberries, and an asparagus bed, in rows of feet, all in winter trim. This property will be sold at a bargain. The net income of the place will pay interest on double the amount for which the place will be sold. A fine chance for raising small fruit and early vegetables. My cause for selling is ameness and inability to take care of the place. For further particulars address McDONAL
