OCEAN VIEW HOTEL.

YOUNG MEN GUESTS PLAN FOR TENNIS MATCHES.

Mr. W. D. Crafts' Efforts to Giv Bailey Island a First Class House Showing Results.

There is always life shown at the Ocean View as early as anywhere in the Bay and at present the house is preparing to witness some interesting tennis matches, arrangements for the layout of a new court having been made, and probably by the time this paper reaches the readers some games will have been played.

Among the recent, arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Avery of New York, who will be recalled as a very lively and pleasant young couple, who spent a part of their wedding trip here last season. Mrs. Avery is a fine planist and both she and her husband are lovers of out of door sports, with the sky and sea of Bailey Island as surroundings. They left New York by steamer North Star Saturday afternoon when the thermometer stood at 100, and though a heavy electric storm was encountered off Nantucket both came through without ill effect. There were about 368 passen gers on board.

Another bridal couple on their honeymoon trip in Casco Bay are registered at the Ocean View for a week Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Rowe of Berlin N. H. Mr. Rowe was somewhat ac quainted with the island and knew the hotel from a prior visit.

Mrs. Viola Bonavita of New York who has been spending a few days about the island is now registered here for the season. Mrs. Bonavita is a well known and popular guest of this house having been here for several summers before.

Miss Clara Strauss of New York is among the latest guests to arrive, having left New York Tuesday evening and arrived here Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Berford of Portland and J. A. Clark and friend of New York were registered for dinner Sunday.

ROBINHOOD INN.

MANY GUESTS ARE ENJOYING THE BEAUTIFUL SURROUND-INGS HERE.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Huntington and her niece, Miss Sarah W. Huntington, arrived the 29th. They are residents of Asheville, N. C., though formerly of Connecticut and it is certain that they must consider Bailey Island a beautiful spot, as their own home Asheville in the "Land of the Sky" in the North Carolina mountains is one of the leading watering places of the East.

Mrs. Frederick Loomis of Montreal with her four children, Marjorie, Roberta, Dan and Arthur and maid, who enjoyed a pleasant stay here last year are again established at the Inn, occupying rooms in the Spruce Lodge, Miss Marie T. Widmayer of New York, wha has been a season guest each year since Miss Massey opened the Robinhood is again registered with us and is heartily welcomed back.

Mr. Bradford Massey of Philadel-phia is spending his vacation here this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cramer, who will be at the Inn during the month of August, are society leaders of New York and East Orange, N. J. Mr. Cramer is a nephew of General Grant.

EVERYTHING LOOKING FINE AT THIS SEASON HERE.

Guests Are Already Talking of Field Day to Be Held Later.

The guests at Hill Crest are talking of the pleasure and success of the 1905 field day and planning to co operate to make this year's celebra-tion a two days affair. It seems likely the best date for the occasion will be in early August.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bicknell and family of Dorchester, Mass., includ-ing their daughter, Dorothy M., and son, Lawrence A., are registered for the season. Mr. Bicknell believes it is a great benefit for the children to keep them away from the city and has made Chebeague his summer home for some years. Previously to coming here this year the family were at Hill, N. H., on a farm from May 20 to the middle of June. Mr. Bicknell finds time to attend to his business in Boston by going ur Thursdays and returning Saturdays and will consequently spend the greater part of the summer here himself.

Mrs. C. L. Ball, Miss Dorothy and Master John Ball of Halifax, N. S. are at the house to remain until the last of July. They are a very pleas-ant family to meet.

Mrs. R. B. Robinson and daughters Dorothy and Helen F. Robinson were due to arrive early this week from Newton, Mass. They intend to main until the last of August. re Mrs Robinson was here last season the middle of August. from

It is little short of astonishing to see Some lady visitors, going through a how little water is required to float penitentiary under the escort of the superintendent, came to a room in loaded with perhaps a thousand bales which three women were sewing. of cotton slipping along contentedly. "Dear me!" whispered one of the where a boy could wade across the visitors, "what vicious-looking creatures! Pray, what are they here Not long ago, however, the Chattafor?"

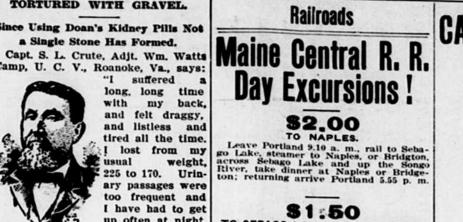

"Because they have no other home.

with a bucket of water to pour into the "I wish to inform you that the Cuticurs river," the captain replied. Presently Remedies have put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As at infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot bethe deckhand returned, and the stale water from the cooler was emptied overboard. Instantly, to the amazegan to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed and badly swollen, with terrible burning and it-bing. When I think of his suffering it nearly breaks my heart, His screams could be heard down stairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep. One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a triai. I tell ycu the Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improve-ment, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Steinman, 7 Summer Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

Merely a Woman's Question.

The late Senator Hoar of Massachusetts was sitting with his wife on the porch of his house in Worcester when wo express wagons drove up and the men unloaded five enormous boxes on the sidewalk.

"What on earth is that, Mr. Hoar?" asked Mrs. Hoar.

The Senator went out and peered at the boxes. Then he answered proudly: "My dear, these boxes contain the staircase from an ancestral home of the Hoar family in England. I bought it when I was in England."

"Indeed?" replied Mrs. Hcar, not a whit impressed. "And what do you intend to do with it, may I ask?"

The Senator was flabbergasted. last he said with great dignity: "Mrs. Hoar, that is merely a woman's ques-tion."-Saturday Evening Post.

Jordan Water for Sale.

A company has been started at Berlin, called the Jordan Water Market, with the object of selling Jordan water for purposes of baptism. The prospectus, which is issued mainly to pastors and sextons, describes the labor and expense to which the company is put in order to despatch caravant to and from the banks of the River Jordan. The price per bottle of water is 15 marks, and every pastor who sells a bottle of it is entitled to four marks discount. General indignation is felt at the company of pastors and others who have started the business, and efforts are being made to stop the traffic.-London Tribune.

PLAINT OF THE LITTLE MOTHER.

Lived Her Gospel and Was Not a Preacher by Word.

The world is so prone to judge from appearances. We so seldom look under the surface of things. We have so little time we form our opinions by what catches our eye and pass judgment on that basis. If we see a man or woman going to church, if we hear prayers uttered in loud tones, if one cries out from the housetops his good deeds we give him all credit and say to ourselves:

"So-and-So is a good Christian; he sets us an example which it would be well for us to follow."

And we humbly cry "Mea Culpa" and resolve to mend our ways. A little story told by Dr. Dawson a famous London Evangelist, rather puts to shame Pharisaic criticisms, and in its beauty and simplicity teaches a lesson which it would be well to take to heart, says the New York Herald.

"In the course of my ministrations," said the Doctor, "through the slums of London I came upon a sad case, that of a woman, the mother of five children, the eldest of whom was a girl of nine or ten

"The mother at the time the family first came under my notice was dying of consumption. The father, a hard working man, was barely able to not go to church and why I did not pray? You know I was so tired, Maggie, so tired, I just couldn't.' "'Never you mind, Mary,' the other child replied. 'When you see Jesus just show him your hands, Mary, and meet Him and He asks me why I did

Diamonds Smashed in Gold Ores.

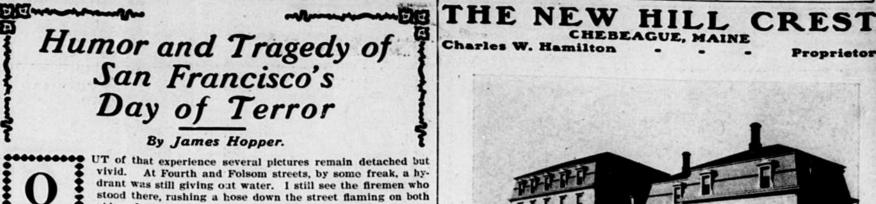

He will understand."

"An engineering problem of a very interesting, though difficult nature, is shown in the case of the Klerksdorp Gold Mines," says the London Times. "At a recent meeting of the shareholders of the company owning these mines, the chairman declared, in tones of considerable emotion, that a question of the greatest perplexity had been encountered by the management, and that was the presence of diamonds in the gold ore, which, with a few occasional exceptions, were smashed to pieces in the battery and were thus utterly irrecoverable. The irony of the circumstances, in themselves sufficiently harrowing, was heightened by the fact that it was the very large liamonds, which, by reason of their excessive size, were certain to encounter the destructive action of the steel stamps and be smashed to pieces. It was announced that if any plan could be formed on any mechanical device introduced by which the diamonds might be saved without effecting the due production of the gold, the inventor might be assured of receiving 'an extremely handsome reward.' The position is clearly an anomalous one; but, it might be said, supposing the presence of the gold and diamonds to be in the quantities implied, is not by any means hopeless, in view of the engineering talent attached to mining enterprises."

How Senator Tillman Lost an Eye.

Although his brothers were old enough to serve in the Confederate rmy, Benjamin R. Tillman was a sides; I can see their chief standing at the corner, his white helmet rosy with the flame, his long slicker dripping, his  mouth pouring out a volley of jolly oaths, and then these - ----men, the hose upon their shoulders, their helmets tilted toward the terrific heat, rushing in between the roaring walls. The whole city, mind you, is burning beyond them. They have one hose, one stream of water; they are four. It was something big, the very futility of their effort, of their immense determination to do, with their whole world crashing to ruins about them, their single duty-to fight to the last the hopeless fight.

On Valencia street, at the corner of Eighteenth, a four-story wooden hotel collapsed, and now seems but one story high. Upon the ruins four policemen and 50 volunteers are working. I see them, a rope ncosed about a fallen partition, tugging in concert. A hundred men are buried in those ruins. The fire is only a few blocks away. They tug, their yellow faces distorted with the effort, beads of cold perspiration welling from their pores. At intervals they stop, all of them; they look toward the fire, their weary faces rosied with the glow, puckering in an expression of anxiety almost simian, and then with new courage they tug again.

At the end of the third day I was standing on the top of Russian Hill. The fire had then swept the city, but was still burning in the North Beach district. To the south, a little below me, was the Jones Street hill. A strange hallucination possessed me. I thought I heard strains of music: ... It was no hallucination. Up on the tip top of the Jones-Street hill, in the middle of the street, the only thing standing for miles, was a plano. A man was playing on it; I could see his hands rising and falling, his body swaying. In the wind his long black hair and a loosened red tie at his neck streamed. The wind bore the sounds away from me, but in a lull I finally heard the music. It was Saint-Saens's "Danse Macabre"-the death dance. His hands beat up and down, his body swayed, his hair streamed, and from the crest down over the devastated city, like a cascade, poured the notes with their sound of shaken dry bones .- Harper's Weekly.

S Preservation of Forests

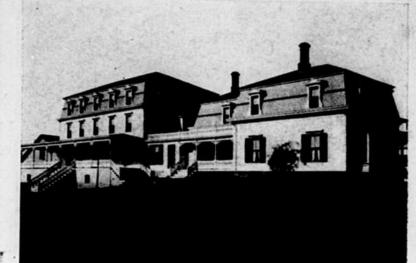

By John F. Lacey.

HE destruction of our forests has been going on at so great a rate as to alarm the public mind and prepare the people to accept some remedy.

The interests of irrigation and navigation have called attention to the necessity of preserving the sources of our water courses by retaining or restoring the forests from which they flow. Fortunately many millions of acres of wooded lands are still held by the national government, and about $5,000,600 acres of these lands have been set apart in 83 permanent national forest reserves. The primary purpose of these reservations is to conserve the streams and provide means of irrigation and also, in some degree, to influence the rainfall. They are well scattered in the far west, and are generally upon land which is of litt

They are nd not reserved from his use. The ripened trees needed. There has been much local opposition ns, but time and observation have greatly chang e experimental stage has passed and they can established fact, and the question naturally aris y be utilized for the preservation of the remain and be used as sources of propagation and su ese lands should be so used. The writer of this article has for many years endeavored to secure legislation to this end. Wyoming has shown her sympathy with the movement by declaring a permanently closed season in the part of the forests reserves adjacent to the Yellowstone National Park .- The Outing Magazine.

earn sufficient to supply the meagre wants of the family, and they were often in dire straits.

'The bulk of the work devolved on the oldest girl, Mary by name. Never have I seen the title of 'Little Mother' more appropriately earned. She not only had the invalid to care for, but the younger children as well, and Mary was often a very tired little girl.

"Mary's duties were soon lightened to a certain extent by her mother's and lying down with his books beside death, but made heavier in another by the added responsibility of the little family. The burden of the children and the house was very heavy after the mother had gone. While she lived Mary had always felt there was some one to direct and guide her, but now she was forced to rely. upon herself entirely.

'Mary's health none too strong at any time soon began to fail under the great responsibility which had fallen on her shoulders. The care of the children, the cooking, the washing and ironing, the sweeping and little woman's strength. Day by day she failed, fewer and fewer became the outings which the lusty baby enjoyed. The little fellow soon became man." too heavy for the thin, weak arms of the 'little mother,' and it was but sel- their children; every benefit is for dom she could muster courage and the child. The older people fully realenergy enough to carry him down the steep stairs and out into the unprepossessing streets, which were his only breathing-ground.

"The day came when even the slightest exertion was impossible for poor Mary and she was forced to depend upon the kind services of neighbors as poor as she was herself. Mary failed rapidly. She was soon confined to her bed, and then I procured the services of one of my 'helpers,' who took up Mary's work where the 'little mother,' in sheer helplessness, had laid atives, boarding schools or homes are it down.

3 schoolboy of 15 when the great struggle began. He knew that at 16 he must join the Confederate forces, and his brothers wrote back from the field entreating him to get as much education as possible, because the war might last so long that he would never again be able to go to school.

Even at night young Tillman would continue his studies, frequently carrying a lighted pine knot into the woods it. He was a lank, tall, silent boy, dictatorial and brusque, but a natural student. The heat of the pine torch injured his left eye and a plunge in cold water brought on a tumor that destroyed it. It was the almost two years' illness following this mishap that prevented the youth from serving in arms against the Union .- Pearson's Magazine.

Rich Men's Sons Generally Are Worthless By Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch. Com

Commen

Gum

From my personal observation and acquaintance, I am convinced that 95 percent of all rich men's sons are practically worthless. Among this great majority are some who * observe ordinary decency and even conform to the appearance of elementary virtues, but even their good qualities are of a negative sort. Often they receive praise, not for good they have accomplishd, but for evil they have refrained from.

The money-getting faculty, the desirability of which may be debatable, is only one of the qualities that do not seem to descend from father to son. It was the great grief of the late Marshall Field's life that his son proved worthless, and that he had to leave his vast interests in the hands of others. George M. Pullman declared in his will that his two sons were no credit to him. So he cut them off with annuities of $3000. I am not familiar enough with the Rockefeller family to be positive about it, but I imagine that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is no exception to the rule.

It is rarely that any good quality descends to the sons of the rich. Such youths go to college, not to learn, but to make a display of wealth and to amuse themselves. Such persons cannot exercise charity. When they try it they make it a hateful thing. Charity of that particular kind is mischievous. What is needed is philanthropy-all too scarce. It will continue to be so, I fear, so long as the means of giving are so generally accumulated in the hands of the rich and their degenerate children.

A Word to Husbands Common By Senator Albert J. Beverige.

ET into the habit of happiness. It is positively amazing how we can turn every little incident into a sunbeam. One of the most worth-while families I know always joke at the table. It is as good as a vacation to take a meal with them. And, mark you, it is quite as easy to take the other course. But what a coward a man is who releases in his home all the pentup irritability, disappointment and gloom of the day! There is no sense of such a course. It does not make you less gloomy to fill your house with gloom. You ought not to do it even from the point of view of good health. If you eat your meal in a sour silence which almost curdles the cream and scares your wife half to death, you do not and cannot digest your food. Forget it then. If you have had a hard day say to yourself: "Well, that was a hard day! Now for some rest and fun." Get into the habit of being happy, I tell you. You can do it. Practice saying to yourself when you waken in the morning, "Everything is all right"-and keep on saying it. You will be surprised how nearly "all right" the mere saying of it at the beginning of the day will really make everything .- American Motherhood.

Need for Clean Men.

WELCOME

WELCOME

If one were to go to the president of the United States and ask him to name the country's greatest need, says the Delineator, he would reply in his quick, conclusive way, "Clean men." He knows.

Smart men there are by the thousands; rich men abound more than in any other age of the world; able men are found in every state and township, but even from a population of eighty millions the chief executive has difficulty in finding the man of exceptional character for a post which requires a square and flawless morality.

It is to his credit that he misses no opportunity to preach clean manhood. But neither presidents nor preachers nor teachers can do the work of fathers except in their own families. We do not mean to underestimate the marvelous influence of the mother. In most lands men who reach the success give their mothers the credit.

Ishing Will Power, Says Doctor. A simple method of abolishing vice and crime in New York and other large cities is announced by Prof. Alexander Haig the distinguished Engglish physician to the Metropolitan Hospital in London. The criminal classes, according to him, are recruited from the pauper classes, who, after they lose heart," become unemployable and degenerate into chronic loafers, beggars or thieves.

This thing of "losing heart." Dr. Haig says, is not a mere sentimental or emotional state of the mind, but is an actual physical degeneration of the heart, due to insufficient nourishment. Writing to the Medical Record of this city on the subject, he says:

"There is a problem of some interest in relation to a portion of our popula tion-I refer to the condition of the poorest classes and the chronically unemployed-for if people who are well provided with food occasionally suffer from heart failure, from defective nutrition, how much more must those suffer who for weeks and months in the winter are on the verge of starvation, though not actually starving!

Thirty-four years ago T. M. Alexander of Helena, Ark., was in Louisville and sent his wife a money order for $25 through the local postoffice. The sequel came today, when Postmaster Baker received a letter from Mr. Alexander saying that his wife had not received the money order to date and was beginning to get a little anxious. "I can see how Mrs. Alexander might be a little worried over the re mittance," said Dr. Baker today. "She has shown remarkable patience in the matter, and I shall do all in my power to get a line on the missing order."-Louisville Post.

Is It True That the Animals See Reflections

"I've half a mind to write to a paper in the New Hampshire village where I was born and reared," said a lover of animals the other day, "and ask the editor if a story I read in his last week's edition is a true story.

"It's about a wonderful cat that sits on the edge of the sidewalk with his back to the gutter and looks into a store window as if he didn't care for anything or anybody. When he sees by means of that window that WEST HARPSWELL the English sparrows are pecking close behind him, he turns as cats can turn, like the whift of a flashlight, and nails a bird or two.

"Now, I've messed with cats and dogs, and all kinds of living critters ever since I could walk; studied their ways and habits, and I never could make any of them pay the slightest attention to themselves in a mirror. I've held them up to the glass, thinking they might spit or growl or fight, and they weren't so much as interested. The joke was always on me.

"And you can't fool them on dummies, toys made in their own image and made perfectly-runabout rats and mice and imitations of that kint. They won't even paw over them and examine them. Accordingly, I am rather doubtful about that very clever New Hampshire cat."-Providence Journal.

Truth Triumphant.

There was a sort of cow on exhibition at the circus Monday, who also took part in the parade, whose horns were loose and she could "wiggle" them. Last winter this paper said Am Shadden had a cow that could wiggle her horns, and there were some people who scoffed at the idea. The cow at the circus proves that a cow can enjoy that rare accomplish-ment.-McMinnville Reporter.
