

D. J. CALLAHAN OF LEWISTON.

HE'S what you call a useful man—
 A man who never shirks.
 In School, in Church, in Board of Trade
 Consistently he works.
 For thirty years he's kept in touch
 With every civic need—
 Outspoken for his city's good
 Against the spoilsman's greed.
 In office—record, pure as snow,
 Both diligent and true,
 He's done the work that lay at hand
 And well, he's done it, too.
 In work for schools, as advocate
 We have no better man.
 A faithful public citizen
 Is D. J. Callahan.
