Foley Presented Gold Badge By State Troopers

Raymond Foley, of 53 Talbot avenue, retired State Police sergeant of Thomaston Troop D was presented a gold sergeant's badge at a luncheon in his honor attended by his former fellow troopers at the Knox Hotel Wednesday noon at Thomaston.

Foley retired June 30 after serving 23 years with the state police. Presents were awarded to Sgt. Robert McKinney and Sgt. George Buzzell, both formerly attached to Troop D but since transferred to other stations.

The luncheon followed a regular meeting of the troop in the small auditorium at the Maine State Prison.

The badge was presented by Troop Commander Lt. Edward Doyle at the luncheon which was attended by about 25 troopers, officers and friends.

N. E. T. & T. Boosts Taylor To Post In Head Office

Stanley J. Taylor, manager of the Belfast-Rockland District of the Telephone Company the past two years, has been promoted to a managerial position in the New England office of the company at Boston. He will take up his new duties on Monday.

No successor to the Rockland post has been named as yet.

Mr. Taylor has been designated as sales and servicing manager of railroad, transit and gas company accounts in New England.

In his time in Rockland, he has taken part in many civic enterprises, including a directorship in the Chamber of Commerce and as chairman of the fund campaign of Red Cross, for the county the past winter and spring. Also, he has been communications head of the Knox County Civil Defense establishment.

Mr. Taylor recalls vividly his introduction to Rockland for he arrived in the city a day or two before Hurricane Carol hit the area two years ago. He hadn't more than got his lines untangled when Edna struck. After that, anything which came his way has just been routine.

Flames Raze Munroe Farm Buildings In Lincolnville Beach

At the left of the group is the owner of the farm, William Munroe, as he talks to Camden and Lincolnville firefighters. At the right is Munroe's 12 year old son, James, who entered the burning barn to save two of the three calves housed there. Munroe watched helplessly during the long minutes of the early afternoon as the buildings, one by one, burned to the ground.

Raging flames devoured three buildings Thursday afternoon, on the farm of William Munroe in Lincolnville as 65 firefighters from two companies fought the blaze from spreading to the home of the owner of the destroyed farm structures.

In less than one-half hour the flames, reaching 100 feet into the air, sending off smoke seen for miles around, completely consumed a large dairy barn containing 60 tons of hay, a smaller barn containing farm tools, dairy equipment and a harrow, and a storage shed. None of the buildings were connected. Replacement cost was estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000, by Camden Fire Chief Allen Payson.

Flames and sparks reached 50 feet to the roof of a shed garage adjoining the rear of the 'L' shaped, two story wooden frame home of the dairy farm operator, William Munroe.

Munroe's 30 head of dairy cattle were out to pasture across Route 1 in another field at the time. Three small calves were removed from the huge flame ravaged barn by Munroe's 12 year old son, James, and an unidentified man.

Neighbors crowded the area and joined the Munroe household in emptying the house of all its furniture as the flames threatened the structure. The furniture was taken back into the house by the same neighbors after danger had passed.

The Camden Fire Department answered the alarm that was received by phone from Munroe's wife, Laura, with three engines, a Firemen continued to pour streams of water into the blazing pile of hay centered in the remains of the big barn long after the barn itself was destroyed. A wet solution was used to drench the smoldering hay and a bulldozer employed to break down the height of the pile. At the left of the photo, the skeleton remain of the 32 foot silo is seen amid the smoke and streams of water. The smaller barn was located directly behind the Camden firemen as seen at the right of the photo. Behind the small barn, hidden by smoke, are the remains of the small shed also destroyed. Smoke billowing from the Lincolnville blaze was seen as far south as Owls Head.

Neighbors of William Munroe pitched in to remove furniture from the flame threatened home during the height of the Thursday afternoon blaze. The furniture was almost entirely removed to the back lawn including kitchen appliances, rugs and linoleums. After the danger had passed the furniture was placed back in the house by the same neighbors. None of the household belongings were damaged by the fire.

Mid-Coast Association Calls For Route 1 Improvements As Soon As Practicable In Wednesday Session Held At Thomaston

The urgent voice of the Maine coastal business man resident was heard Wednesday night when a resolve calling for Route 1 improvement from Brunswick to Calais at the "earliest practicable date" was voted unanimously at the annual business meeting of the Mid-Coast Route 1 Association held Wednesday night at Watts Hall in Thomaston.

Among the larger than expected attendance were delegations from as far north as Calais in Washington County, Hancock, Waldo, Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc and Cumberland Counties. The total in attendance approached 70.

A motion, received from the floor from Ralph Bartlett of Rockland, strong advocate of Route 1 improvement and an organizer of the Mid-Coast Route 1 Association, was reworded in an amendment received from E. Carl Moran of Rockland and passed unanimously in a hand vote from the group.

The resolve would act as a recommendation from the group to the Maine State Highway Commission to which it will be forwarded.

Frederic H. Bird

It called for the improvement of Route 1 from Brunswick eastward to the end as a primary interest of the association, and that an adequate and safe highway be the result at the earliest practicable date consistent both with the importance of the road and the ability to pay.

A second item allowed that the State Highway Commission is in the best position to determine the method of financing by which the objectives may be obtained.

In the final item, the association provided for any future consideration of the present or relocated Route 1 as an interstate highway available for federal road aid.

The third item urged that the State Highway Commission consider as a long range policy the designation of such a road or a re-located road in the general area an interstate highway in view of existing and future laws and conditions.

In two major items of business the association heard the report of the publicity committee and the nominating committee.

Elected president was Frederick Bird of Rockland, a former member of the governor's council, who succeeds David Nichols of Lincolnville, a present member of the council.

Other officers were: Adam Walsh of Brunswick, vice president; Elford Stover of Bath, secretary-treasurer; Clarence Race of Edgemoor, highway committee chairman.

George Varney, of Kittery, former legislator and now attorney for the Maine Turnpike Authority, was main speaker of the evening and told the audience that to borrow money from the federal government for turnpike construction would be shifting the burden for payment from the people who use the turnpike to the general taxpayers of the state.

He urged construction of turnpike extensions by bond issues as has been the case in the past with the financial burden paid on those using the road. A federal loan would be paid out of the taxpayer's pocket, Varney explained.

Varney urged allocation of the federal aid funds for those sections of the state "not suited" for turnpike road construction such as the coastal area.

He said the State Highway Department presently is making an earth surface study of the area between Augusta and Bangor. He said he personally believes that construction of such an extension between those two cities would be a reality within five years.

Should such a turnpike extension be constructed through federal highway aid funds the road would be toll free and payment would be made from gasoline and truck and auto registration taxes. Bond

PARADY AND WHITE SENTENCED TO PRISON, NILES WITHDRAWS PLEA ON INFORMATION AND WAITS TRIAL

Harold F. Niles, Jr., 27 year old Rockland man, one of three defendants facing criminal charges, took a last minute reversal of his plea on a felony charge at a special information arraignment held Friday morning before Justice Francis Sullivan of Portland in Knox Superior Court.

Two other defendants, one a companion of Niles on the night of his alleged crimes, followed through with the decision to waive indictments and received sentences on the charges immediately.

Percy J. Parady, Jr., 20, of Brewer, pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery and automobile larceny. He was sentenced to two to four years at hard labor on each of the charges in Thomaston State Prison. The sentences will run concurrently.

Henry S. White, 32, of Portland pleaded guilty to taking indecent liberties with a 12-year-old Rockland girl at the Special arraignment and received a two year sentence at hard labor to be carried out at the Thomaston prison.

All three men petitioned the Knox County Clerk of Courts earlier this week that they wished to waive the indictment and receive sentences immediately on informations.

At the special Friday morning arraignment, Parady and White followed through with their petitions but Niles pleaded not guilty to a charge of automobile larceny. He pleaded guilty to an assault and battery charge but when questioned by Justice Sullivan, a plea of not guilty was entered by the Superior Court Justice for Niles on the charge.

Niles told Justice Sullivan he did not realize the car had been stolen when he entered it. He said he was not sure that he was guilty of the assault and battery charge even though he had asked for the arraignment and immediate sentence on the charge.

Justice Sullivan advised Niles to obtain a lawyer and await trial in Knox County Superior Court in Oct.

Niles and Parady were arrested by Rockland Police after a chase over Route 1 from Rockland to Thomaston on Aug. 12. They were charged with larceny of the automobile from Mrs. Dorothy Robinson of 734 Main street and assault and battery against Alton Brann, 37, of 580 Main street.

Another charge of assault with intent to maim Brann against Parady will probably be filed, Attorney Curtis Payson reported. A similar charge against Niles is still pending.

White was charged with taking indecent liberties against the juvenile Aug. 2 at Rockport.

Niles was held Friday in the same bail as levied in Municipal Court, $2000 on each of the charges.

MAN SERVICING PARKED CAR ON ROUTE 131 SERIOUSLY INJURED AS APPLETON DRIVER CRASHES IT

Thrown 27 feet into the bushes when he was struck by a car on Route 131 in Warren Thursday morning, Earl Miller, 58, of 15 Camden street was in satisfactory condition at the Knox County General Hospital suffering from a right leg fracture and possible internal injuries.

Miller was hit while pouring oil into a car parked at the right of the road and operated by a neighbor, Mrs. Ann Cole, 22, of 21 Camden street.

Trooper Harvey Childs said Miller was struck by a car driven by Benjamin L. Cullinan, 72, of Appleton, a mailman operating a 1934 Ford pickup truck.

Childs said the pickup truck sideswiped the parked 1949 Plymouth sedan occupied by Mrs. Cole and her year old baby as he came by and struck Miller who was standing on the driver's side of the Cole car. The impact threw Miller off the road and into a field. Childs said the injured man had been standing with the hood of the Cole vehicle raised and pouring oil from a can into the motor.

Mrs. Cole and Miller were headed for Union to pick blueberries when they stopped the car. Cullinan was also headed for Union when he came upon the parked vehicles.

Cullinan told the state trooper he did not see the car until he had struck it and Miller. The car was parked just over the crest of a hill. Childs said the parked car was visible for 250 feet from the direction Cullinan was approaching.

Damage to the right side of the parked vehicle which was scraped along its entire length was estimated at $200 by Childs. Minor damage to the right side of the Cullinan car as reported.

The accident is still under investigation by the state police.

THAT "EARTHY" TASTE IN THE WATER

If it's not one thing it's another for those individuals who have to be superintendents of public water supplies, and all over the great section of the nation in which Rockland is fortunate enough to be located telephones are ringing as people ask the Water Company or Water District officials—"What is that earthy taste to the water lately?"

It is nothing out of the ordinary and is perfectly harmless though it does impart the "earthy" taste to the public drinking water supplies and it plays no favorites.

The villain is a microscopic organism, called algae, invisible to the naked eye, which thrives in this particular season and imparts this particular taste. It is wholly harmless to animals and humans but in their efforts to satisfy patrons water companies everywhere have been treating their lakes and reservoirs with scientific amounts of copper sulphate on which this particular variety of algae does not thrive, and patrons may rest assured that in a short time the "earthy" taste will not be present in the water.

These minute plants are present in all water at all times, and it is well known that this particular one of the hundreds of varieties of algae will appear during the heated periods of July and August, hence water supplies everywhere treat their reservoirs to keep it at a minimum.

We stress once more this "earthy" taste comes from no particular pond but from all ponds, and is entirely harmless.

PENSIONS FOR WOMEN AT 62

There's a great rush on these days among women, aged 62 to 65, to get pensions. This doesn't mean all women can get pensions but wives of men retired under Social Security pensions, widows of men who were covered by old age insurance and working women covered by old age insurance can now draw benefits at 62 years of age. If a man is retired and his wife is 62 they can get more pension money but application must be filed with the nearest Social Security office, in this case, Augusta.

A vital series of articles is being written for this paper by Social Security Manager George M. Fields of Augusta which should be read by every person interested in the present changes in Social Security regulations and we suggest they be clipped out and saved for future reference.

FOR THE ENJOYMENT OF THE MANY

A dollar spent to bring comfort and genuine enjoyment to our summer visitors is a dollar well spent. When that same small expenditure can bring comfort and pleasure to our inhabitants as well, the money is doubly well spent.

We have reference to the replacing of the wooden benches that run for a couple of hundred feet at the rear of the Stanley Garage property on Main street, giving a view of the Public Landing, Rockland Harbor and the magnificence of Penobscot Bay, a view possibly without peer on the coast of Maine. Hundreds daily avail themselves of the beauty of this, thanks to the courtesy of Mr. Stanley.

The original seats in this location were erected by Mr. Stanley some years ago at his own expense. They were so popular and brought so much enjoyment to so many people, especially the elderly and those without motor transportation of their own, that through the co-operation of Mr. Stanley the city, under the sponsorship of former City Manager Farnsworth new and more commodious benches were erected.

Now through frost action and the wear and tear of time the benches have become wholly uncomfortable and unsatisfactory. We urgently suggest, with the approval of Mr. Stanley, that these rickety old benches be replaced by new benches, possibly two rows this time, to the enjoyment of our summer population and home folks as well.

INFLUENCE OF THE LITTLE LEAGUERS

We cannot stress too highly the value we place on the Little League activities in this Knox-Lincoln area. The system has been profoundly beneficial to the youngsters, and to the oldsters connected with it as well.

At a time when juvenile delinquency is rampant in many sections we feel the influence of the Little League has been a mighty force working toward the building of better and happier youth. Association in clean, competitive sport with each other over the months when time could hang heavy on their hands, and the daily contact with serious minded adults who are keenly interested in the boys themselves, as well as the sport, is bound to be a healthful influence on the youngsters.

The Courier-Gazette and members of the staff have been glad to co-operate in this Little League movement, and will be pleased to co-operate in years to come to further this worthwhile community effort.

One night in late October,
When I was far from sober,
Returning with my load with manly pride,
My feet began to stutter,
So I lay down in the gutter.
And a pig came near and lay down by my side.
A lady passing by was heard to say:
"You can tell a man who boozes,
By the company he chooses."
And the pig got up and slowly walked away.

The same two teams will meet again Sunday at Rockport with the contest starting at 2:30.

DR. SCHOLL'S REPRESENTATIVE
AT HASKELL & CORTHELL STORE

Haskell & Cortell of Camden announce that a representative of Dr. William M. Scholl, world-renowned foot authority, will hold a foot relief demonstration in Camden Aug. 20.

This information will come as good news to the foot-suffering public of our community and those who have constant difficulty finding comfortable footwear in their correct size and width. Dr. Scholl's representative will arrive in a special foot comfort mobile unit, bringing with him more than 2800 pairs of Dr. Scholl's shoes for men, women and children. This stock, together with Dr. Scholl's remedies, appliances and arch supports will be transferred to Haskell and Cortell's store, offering the type of complete foot relief facilities normally available only in the nation's major metropolitan areas.

Three Hundred Fight Waldoboro Woods Fire

A 40-acre woods fire was brought under control Thursday after Waldoboro firemen completed a fire break with three bulldozers in a seven hour battle at the Baines property in South Waldoboro, a little over one mile east of Route 220.

The fire, along a three mile front, burned in a swamp area as 300 fire fighters from Waldoboro and Friendship manning Indian tanks battled the blaze.

No houses were endangered by the widespread blaze, Fire Chief Henry Hilton of Waldoboro said. Two Waldoboro men were cutting wood in the area previous to the fire, Hilton reported.

Thieves Get $100 In Waldoboro Garage Break

Thieves entered the Waldoboro Garage on New County road in Thomaston either Thursday night or early Friday morning making off with about $100 in small coins, Sheriff P. Willard Pease reported Friday.

The thief, or thieves, gained entrance by crawling under a fence that enclosed the area behind the garage and smashing a back door window to unsnap a lock.

Inside the garage, a door leading to the showroom was unlocked in the same manner as was the office door.

Desks in the office were rifled with their contents strewn about the floor. The money, stored in coin bags under cover, was discovered and taken by the intruder.

The break was discovered Friday morning by garage employee Bill Mahonen upon his arrival at work. The garage closes at 6 p. m. but a mechanic was at the garage until 9.30 p. m. Thursday working on a car, company officials reported.

An investigation of the break is continuing by the sheriff.

Used to fight the blaze were two 500 gallon tank trucks with water furnished from Meadow Brook.

It was possible that the fire started from a slash fire burning during the logging operations in the area, the Warren Fire Department reported.

In Simple Prose That Is Truest Poetry Captain Scott Tells Of The Day's Work

This is the famous Rockland steamer Pentag, lost without a trace in the "Portland storm." Captain Orris Ingraham of this city was master and she carried a load of Christmas merchandise for Rockland merchants. So great was the loss of life on the steamer Portland that the tragic fate of the Pentagot received little mention.

Deer Isle, Me., July 19.

Dear Steamboat Editor:—

The year is 1913. Let's take a walk down the entire length of Atlantic avenue in Boston, as far as the North End Park. As we are about to leave Foster's Wharf we see the Provincetown steamer "Dorothy Bradford" lying just astern of the City of Bangor. We look across to South Boston and see the red and black smokestacks of the Hamburg American, and North German Lloyd liners above the shed roofs of the New Haven Docks. The liner Bremen is backing out with puffing tugs pushing at both bow and stern. The side wheel steamer Monitor is coming up the Harbor, returning from her regular run to the penal institution on Deer Island. Looking across the harbor to East Boston we see the Governor Cobb in Simpson's Drydock for a charge of wheels.

The Narrow Gauge ferry, and the North and South ferry boats are leaving their slips, the smokestack of the Old Colony can be seen above the shed at the Hodge Boiler works.

We walk slowly down the avenue. They are washing down decks on the steamer Belfast at India Wharf. Herbert Fields, ticket agent, is in the office window selling a ticket to Rockland to a customer, while a line is waiting, hoping there might be state-room cancellations that they might get a reservation. Cy Higgins, jaggedmaster, is leaning on the counter of the baggage room, Capt. Eddie Rawley, Frank Brown, and George Sawyer, stand in the freight shed door.

We continue on. The Gov. Dingley is on the outer end of the south side of India Wharf in her regular berth on the St. John's Line. Astern of her is the Bay State of the Portland Division. Across on the north side of India we see the Bunker Hill of the Metropolitan Line passenger service. William Todd, her first officer, is on the hurricane deck. We look through the ticket office window at Central Wharf and see Harry Brooks, ticket agent, trying to convince the line of people in waiting that all staterooms are sold. Andrew Sides is in the office as he makes his tour of inspection of the passenger offices.

The steamer Prince George of the Yarmouth Line lies across the end of Central Wharf. Capt. McKinnon of the Prince George tries to cross Atlantic avenue as the four horse teams loaded with barrel sugar and bales of wool jam the entrance to the dock. Teams are waiting their turn along the avenue under the elevated trestle. Capt. Foss Strout of the Bay State, and Capt. Ernest Clark of the Gov. Dingley are in the office. The lighters Anderson and McGowan are puffing their way to the New Haven docks, having taken their cargo from the Metropolitan freight steamers.

We walk slowly on and stop for a few seconds at the Boston and Gloucester steamboat wharf to see the Capt. Ann loading passengers, and the Steamer City of Gloucester loading freight for Gloucester. We continue on to see the Plant Line steamers and those of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company at their docks. A large cattle boat is going up the harbor to the Hoosic Tunnel Docks. At Union Wharf the steamer James S. Whitney, a Metropolitan Line freight steamer is loading for New York. We turn back up the avenue after reaching White Spirit Wharf where the steamer Mohawk's cargo booms are swinging barrels of sardine oil into her hatches for Eastport and Lubec. We look across the harbor once more to East Boston to see the stern of two side wheelers at the Atlantic Works hauled out on Bill McKie's Railways.

As we continue up Atlantic avenue, the warm summer sunshine casts its beams on the unshaven faces of the happy go lucky hourly roundabouts that lined every doorway waiting a call to the freight sheds. You held your ears as the shuttle train passed overhead on its way from North to South Station. We see the hospital boat going down the harbor with Capt. George Barbour at the wheel. Capt. Barbour was formerly captain of those famous Barbour steamboats that were so prominent in our Maine waters. Tugs of the Boston Towboat Company are going in all directions about the harbor. The side wheel ferry Swampscott is leaving her berth for East Boston.

Having again returned to Foster's Wharf I felt much relaxed from my familiar walk down Atlantic avenue. Once again aboard my City of Bangor I went to my room on her port guard where I again changed to my uniform as first officer. I go forward on the freight deck. Freight is now coming on board to Kennebec River landings. As I passed the engine room door, Chief Engineer William Fox and First Assistant Charles Lewis, and Second Assistant Marshall Rogers were in the engine room. My third officer Sylvia O'Brien was directing freight trucks down both gangways. Capt. George Colby, Chief Officer Jimmy Hathorne, and 2nd Officer Harold Larrabee are at the head of the slip. Purser Mike Hennessy is in his office. Carl Seranton, ticket agent, is in the wharf ticket office. Silas Owen, baggage master, is looking over the counter of the baggage room. The our foot high counter just came to Silas chin. Thomas O'Keefe, the veteran day watchman, is directing traffic to keep the shed doors clear as single and double hitches of horses are backing into the doors. Harry Nevins, purchasing agent, goes on board, and Ed. Hickey, port steward, makes his rounds of inspection before sailing time.

Finally bang goes the toe plank as the forward gangplank is hauled on shore. Chains rattle as the slip is hoisted to a level position. The City of Bangor's gangways boiler head, and sheathing is piled with freight to the earlings, the last stateroom was sold out. Passengers line her rails. Finally two bells clang in her engine room. She strains her stern line to swing her bow clear of the dock, then two bells for stop and go ahead, the old walking beam settles down for its steady tread throughout the night, with the forward freight shutters in I go aft. I again stop at the engine room door to see Chief Fox in his easy chair. He looks over his glasses at the steam gauges, then he bows his head just enough to convince me that he is admiring the beautifully polished engine front, so highly polished that the opening and closing of the duck bills made dancing light beams on the forward bulkhead like tiny Tims at play from the bright light overhead. I continue on to the dining room for my supper. Then I go to the wheel house which was my usual custom. I looked out the front window of the pilot house to see the forward deck filled with passengers to the chain that separated them from the extreme forward end of the bow where the bow lookout stood for his lonely vigil throughout the night.

This is a true picture of the past, an unforgettable picture, but only steamboat men saw the beauty in this panorama.

ISLAND COMMUNITY MEDICAL SERVICES OPEN ANNUAL DRIVE

The Islands Community Medical Services Inc., of Vinalhaven, has opened its annual fund raising drive among the summer colonies of Vinalhaven and North Haven. A letter of appeal, explaining the financial problems of the organization has gone out this week over the signatures of Alec M. White, President, of Leadbetter's Island and New York and Mrs. Lucy Skoog, Chairman, of Vinalhaven.

During 1955-56 important progress has been made by the Islands Community Medical Services, Inc. We are encouraged by the steady growth of community acceptance of our Public Health Nursing program which is so ably conducted by Miss Marjorie Roscoe, PHN. Highlights of the year's accomplishments are tabulated below for your information. In addition to these activities the public health nurse co-operates with the local Community Health Councils throughout the year in their community health activities. She assisted the North Haven Community Health Council in setting up a blood-typing service to provide a "walking blood bank" similar to the one organized in Vinalhaven a few years ago. North Haven has reported more than 100 residents participated in the program.

Miss Roscoe assisted the Vinalhaven Community Health Council in getting up a system of yearly chest x-rays for the adult population. Dr. Earle, using the ICMS x-ray and darkroom equipment, is taking 50 chest x-rays per month at the Medical Center. As of June 4th, 512 Vinalhaven residents had signed up to participate in the program. A charge of $1.00 will be made.

Salk vaccine shots were given to:

Vinalhaven: 374, includes pregnant women and school and pre-school children. North Haven: 128, includes pregnant women and school and pre-school children. Matinicus: 28. Ninety-eight of eligible people were inoculated!

Organizationally, too, the ICMS has shown steady growth. Highlights can be briefly described as follows:

Last fall the trustees requested the Bingham Associates Fund to extend to them Consultation Service for the purpose of helping them to analyze their organization.

FARM AND GRANGE NEWS OF INTEREST IN KNOX AND LINCOLN COUNTIES

THE POULTRYMAN'S PROBLEMS TO BE SUBJECT OF POULTRY DAY AT UNIVERSITY OF MAINE 29th

Several hundred poultrymen are expected to turn out on Wednesday, August 29, for the annual Poultry Day at the University of Maine.

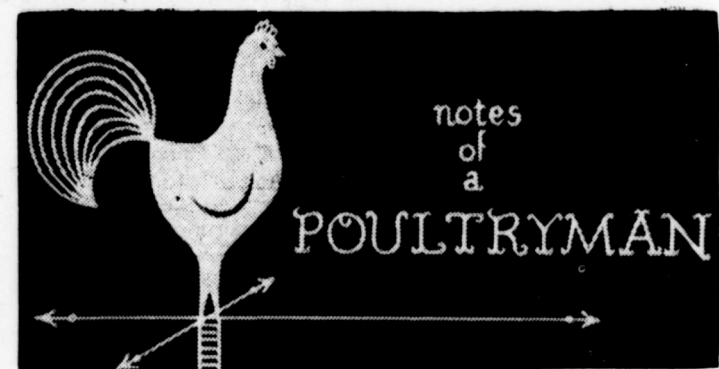

William Aho, Extension poultryman of the University of Connecticut, and Dr. Clyde D. Mueller, geneticist at Arbor Acres Farm, Glastonbury, Conn., will be featured speakers. Aho will discuss poultry feeds and feeding methods in his talk on "You've Got to Feed Them—But How?" Dr. Mueller will give the genetic view on "How Efficient Can We Get in Producing Poultry Meat?"

Nine Maine men will also be featured on the all-day program. Commenting on the present situation and outlook for egg production will be Ralph Hunt, of Lincolnville, and Charles Kigel, of Warren. Hunt operates a large market egg farm and Kigel a hatching egg operation. Frank D. Reed, Extension poultry marketing specialist, will serve as moderator.

Dr. Harold L. Chute, animal pathologist at the University of Maine, will report on the "Current Trend in PPLO Testing and Eradication". Chester Bachellor, of Limington, will outline "An Organized Program for the Development of Maine's Poultry Industry." He'll discuss the poultry industry tax now being proposed. Bachellor is president of the Maine Poultry Improvement Association.

The nutritionist's viewpoint on "How Efficient Can We Get in Producing Poultry Meat?" will be the topic of Dr. Leonard Dan-sky, director of research for Samuel Lipman Sons Company, Augusta. Three members of the poultry department of the University of Maine will report on research work there. They're Drs. Richard Gerry and Cecil Howes and Raino Lanson. J. Robert Smyth, head of the University's poultry department, and Extension Poultry Specialist Harry C. Whelden, will preside at Poultry Day.

Sessions start at 10 a. m., Aug. 29 at the Louis Oakes Room of the University's Library and conclude at 3.30 p. m. A chicken barbecue will be served at noon.

By Henry Teague

Despite the rather dismal outlook for the poultry industry for fall and much of the winter, poultry buildings continue to go up. Actually, a low price period is the best time to build for the poultryman is then ready for better times which invariably follow a depression.

Many of the buildings that have been constructed this year are for the purpose of raising hatching eggs. Several of the big hatchery firms including Clements Chicks, Inc., of Wintertown and Nichols Farms, Inc., of Kingston, N. H., have been active in this territory seeking new breeder farms.

Some of the new buildings in process or finished recently include one for Irvin Smith of Owls Head, another for Arnold Robinson of Warren, and a big structure at West Rockport for Earl Tolman. Incidentally Mr. Tolman not only built his own building but also the other two mentioned. Earl now has a long list of both broiler and laying houses to his credit. Mr. Smith's house is to house the table egg birds while the Robinson and Tolman structures will be used in the Nichols program.

In Warren, Damon Gushue and Earl Gammon are busy getting their barns in shape to raise broilers. There are numerous other poultry building projects going on in the area, including additions to buildings as well as new structures.

One interesting development in Warren this year has been the Harlow Mank project on the Oyster River road. Mr. Mank bought the O'Brien farm and not only built over the barn for broilers but the house as well. Mr. Mank is raising 12,000 birds for Penobscot Poultry Co., I understand.

I took a trip through one of the busiest poultry sections I have seen the other day. Turning off Route 1 onto the old Waldoboro road I followed down by the farms of Russell McLeod and his son, Russell, Jr., as far as the Ivan Scott farm. I also dropped down to the Otto Bowden farm. And that does not name all the poultry farms on that road. Most of these farmers use the range system which every poultryman will agree produces the finest looking pullets. The McLeods are raising both sexlinks and white Leghorns and they were really quite a sight. Most of the birds on the other ranges were sexlinks. It was evident that the general plan in this particular area is to start birds in late winter or early spring as the great majority of birds were at that beautiful stage when they are dropping a few eggs at least.

notes of a

The tourist sticking to the main highways hardly realizes the enormous growth of the poultry industry in Maine. Literally millions of birds are raised on roadside farms. The networks of roads between Warren, Waldoboro and Union as well as the complicated system of highways and byways in the Bristol, New Harbor and Pemaquid areas are all populated with scores of poultry enterprises.

Many poultrymen have reached the hour of decision concerning their flocks of old hens. August is a month when it is time for early pullets to be housed for they are beginning to drop eggs. The big problem is caused by the amazingly cool summer. Old birds have really been shelling out eggs this summer and have been making a comfortable profit in spite of low prices.

With pullets eggs down in the 20's and mediums easing off, it is rough to sell a flock that is producing at a profit of $50 to $100 a week and even more. Another factor that complicates the problem is the price of fowl. But even at that sexlink owners are much happier than Leghorn owners, for Leghorns are really the unwanted birds in the meat market, due in large part to the surplus of broilers.

Surprising as it may seem to many, New England is a deficit area when it comes to eggs. Over a million cases of eggs come into the area every year and it will be some time yet before New England poultrymen can catch up with the demand. However, prices are not based on local deficits. There are plenty of eggs outside of the area which will quickly move in if the price here is higher than in other areas.

The truth of the matter seems to be that eggs definitely need more advertising of a sort to convince consumers that they should eat more. No one has to apologize for the quality of eggs as a food for eggs are a basic commodity. We cannot avoid eating a lot of eggs anyway, but there is room on the menu for more.

Perhaps it is not a question of competing with fresh meat as much as with canned products and processed meats. In the supermarkets it is interesting to note that while can labels and processed meat packages are apt to be fancied up, the good old egg carton looks about the same.

And one last thought, consum-

Three kids at play on a summer day. Bobby Salo, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salo of Owls Head starts an early morning romp with his two favorite farm pets. The kids are twins born on the Salo farm a week ago. The breed of mother goat isn't known, other than that he is a breed raised in Australia. The old saying, "frisky as a goat" fits the twins perfectly as it took some minutes to capture them long enough for the picture. A moment later, they were off again with Bobby after them.

FRYEBURG, TURNER AND PALMYRA DAIRYMEN WIN GREEN PASTURES

Dairymen from Fryeburg, Turner, and Palmyra have been named state winners in the 1956 Maine Green Pastures Contest. They are Philip Andrews and Sons, of Fryeburg, Oxford County; Hugh C. Briggs and Son, of Turner, Androscoggin County; and James Smith, of Palmyra, Somerset County.

These three farms were not placed but were simply named state winners. The New England Green Pastures judging committee will place the state winners in one, two, three order and also place the six New England winners (one from each state) late this month.

The three Green Pastures winners in Maine in 1955 were judges for this year's contest. They traveled 1,400 miles in five days last week inspecting 14 top Green Pastures farms in 11 counties. Farms were judged in Androscoggin-Sagadahoc, Aroostook, Cumberland, Franklin, Kennebec, Knox-Lincoln, Oxford, Penobscot, Somerset, Waldo, and York counties. Judges were Carl Wood of Cornville; Harold Souther, of Livermore Falls; and Clement Smith, of Monmouth.

Ralph A. Corbett, Extension dairyman of the University of Maine, accompanied the judges and acted in an advisory capacity. Philip Andrews and Sons, of Fryeburg, had previously been state winners in the Green Pastures Contest. The Andrews are milking about 100 Holsteins. They have an excellent pen barn arrangement. Some 340 acres are in feed crops.

The Andrews have used about 50 tons of commercial fertilizer this year. They've topdressed 50 acres after the first crop was removed. They plan to feed grass silage this month if it's needed to supplement their pastures.

They turned their cows out to pasture for the first time on May 8. They began cutting grass silage June 19 and hay June 26. They have an excellent stand of silage corn that is maturing rapidly. During June, July, and early August they've been feeding grain at the rate of one pound to six pounds of milk.

Hugh Briggs and Son, of Turner, have 70 head of registered Holstein cows, with 300 acres of tillage in feed crops. They've used 42 tons of commercial ers should certainly try to buy the best eggs and poultry meat possible. They are perishable commodities and none too good. Don't buy seconds if you can afford to buy firsts. Seconds are really no bargain when it comes to poultry products.

JAEGER REPORTS ON FORAGE CROP COURSE IN CONNECTICUT

Gil Jaeger is shown studying a cow on the farm of Rudolph Moser in Ellington, Conn., which was described by the owner as being a Red Holstein.

County Agent Gil Jaeger spent four days of this week at the University of Connecticut attending a Forage Crops Refresher Course for New England county agricultural agents.

Gil reports a beautiful campus with many new buildings and acres and acres of beautiful lawns. The meetings started with a tour of the Connecticut Agronomy Research Farm. He was amazed at the alfalfa they are raising. Taking four crops a year helps in making for a good forage crops program. Gil reports. Lime tests show alfalfa responding to applications of two tons of lime per acre even when the soil pH was above 6.0 before liming, he said.

Noted too, were differences in handling the various crops. For instance, a nurse crop of oats should be cut when ripe for an alfalfa seeding, and cut when in boot stage for a Ladino seeding, according to their experiments. They also showed the need for split applications of potassium, and the response from phosphorus when banded in at the time of seeding, need for high fertilization of corn for silage, and, of course, many other items.

At the evening meeting, the group was addressed by the university's Dean Young. Then Kenneth Geyer, manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association talked to the group. He was generally very happy with the milk situation as he sees it for the future, but did feel that the New York pricing of milk was hurting us here in New England.

The first regular session was an address by Firman Bear, editor-in-chief of Soil Science magazine. He discussed soils and their relation to growing excellent crops—soils, fertilizers, weeds, crop varieties, and management.

Miller of Thomaston, were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Oliver and family Tuesday.

Rockport Ice House Machine Shop Burns

Flames consumed an unused ice house machinery shop on Lime-rock street on the Lily Pond in Rockport early Thursday evening, Rockport Fire Chief Robert Berry reported.

The blaze was noticed by Berry as he returned from work at Camden about 5 p. m. Not knowing what the fire was he went to the station, about a quarter of a mile from the burning building, and drove a tank truck to the site.

On the way he radioed the Camden station fireman who called his wife to sound the alarm.

The 15 by 20 foot building, a hoisting machinery shed housing a model A motor, a winch, and small tools, and owned by Maynard Graffam of Rockport, was completely destroyed at a loss of about $400, Berry said.

Walter Carleton of Rockport, employed by Graffam, was cutting bolts from the motor with an acetylene torch and tank earlier, Berry said. A bolt or sparks evidently fell below the floor igniting sawdust, he said.

The acetylene or gasoline in the building eventually exploded sending flames shooting through the structure.

Also burned in the fire were about 100 lobster crates and part of the old ramp leading from the building. The blaze was fought by a pump truck and a portable pump feeding from the pond. The building has been unused in the ice house plant for several years.

The fire was the first in Rockport in five weeks, Berry reported.

issues maintenance, interest and principle are paid from toll fees.

He urged the gathering to look on the turnpike as an aid to their own communities. The turnpike serves a type of motorists who wants through passage, and not the type that stops to shop and visit. The second type uses roads such as Route 1, Varney continued.

He also warned any legislators in the audience of attempts by public utilities representatives to obtain the passage of laws that would require payment by the MTA of the relocation of utility facilities during the construction of a turnpike such as has not been the case in the past. "This would only be an added burden on the MTA," he said.

Also, the financing by the MTA of a turnpike patrol or the state police patrol on the turnpike would only be an added burden and long delay the 18 year goal of complete payment for the turnpike now set, Varney continued. "Besides, the state can borrow money much cheaper for such expenditures than the MTA could," he added.

Bartlett, speaking from the floor following Varney's talk urged the Association membership not to forget their original purpose of seeking the improvement of our own community road before any interstate highway program. He received a round of applause for the statement.

E. Carl Moran told the group that any misunderstandings of the highway program by people of the coastal area is the result of the lack of information forthcoming from the Maine Highway Commission. He urged the commission to open up their program goals.

A large delegation from Washington County through their spokesman, told the association they were vitally interested in the activities of the Association and offered their full co-operation.

One businessman from Calais warned the group that the serious problem facing Washington County residents is either Route 1 improvement and a guarantee of their summer business or the economic failure of the area that would result in a wholesale exodus of business from the County.

The general consensus of the gathering, evident in the unanimous vote of the resolve to the State Highway Commission, was that improvement in the antiquated Route 1 is urgent and must be undertaken in the very near future.

As one person attending the meeting worded it, "If toll roads are classed as pullman cars than Route 1 from Kittery to Calais is a handcar and we are still pushing it."

David Nichols, retiring president, said the association had received word from David Stevens, chairman of the Maine Highway Department, that the highway department would go along with the proposal of the association as to extending the interstate highway system in a proper application to federal authorities by Sept. 4. The meeting moved to Watts Hall from the Knox Hotel because of the large turnout.

that faces Route 1. Volunteers manning indian pumps filled from a small pond immediately in back of the farmstead, fought the flaming embers and grass fires.

Munroe said the buildings and some milking equipment lost in the fire were partly covered by insurance.

Two Camden firemen, Neil Peabody and Chief Payson, were treated on the scene for arm burns but were not seriously injured.

Central Maine Power Co. crews arrived from Thomaston in record time to restore an electrical line to the home and remove any live wires leading from the barn. The last Camden firemen left the smoldering ruins about 8 p. m. Thursday evening while Lincolnville firemen were still watching the black, smoking hay pile Friday morning.

A bulldozer owned by Maurice Pottle of Lincolnville was used Thursday evening to spread the huge smoldering pile of hay around while firemen covered the hay with a wet water drench.

While the Camden fire equipment was at the fire scene, the Rockport Company was covering at the Camden station and Rockland sent equipment to cover for Rockport.

Neighbors who rallied to the aid of the Munroes carried the furniture from the home and later returned it when the fire was conquered. They also started arrangements to loan milking equipment and other farm tools to keep Munroe in business.

HOW RESOURCEFUL ARE YOU?

Puppies are generally more resourceful than people! They never take fences seriously. They find a way to get over or under the obstacle.

People take fences seriously. They usually have more respect for their limitations than for their abilities. That's why so many of us live in a narrow, discouraging world without promise or hope.

And even as we speak thrilling words like freedom and opportunity and ideals, some of us wonder secretly just what these are and how they may be attained.

There are spiritual resources in life which can enable any man to achieve ideals. They are the simple, commonplace commodities of religion—things like prayer and faith—but they are the keys to all attainment.

God gave us these resources to use. And He gave us churches to teach us how to use them. Forget your fences—discover your resources in Church next Sunday.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

caped and fled to Bavaria in 1945.

Father Budavas is presently continuing work on additional manuscripts. The novel, "The Forbidden Miracle," published in 1955, was written in Rockland.

The Catholic priest was educated at the University of Vytautas in Kaunas, Lithuania, from which he graduated in 1933. He was ordained the same year.

He was imprisoned for a few weeks when the Russians conquered Lithuania in 1940 but released with his movements restricted. He fled Lithuania in 1944 before the returning Russian armies but was arrested on the German border and placed in the concentration camp from which he escaped with others. Making his way to Bavaria he was placed in an allied displaced persons camp where he taught literature and history in the camp high school.

He entered this country in 1947 on a "guest" basis and was assigned as Chaplain to the Lithuanian convent, Immaculate Conception, in Putnam, Conn. He was re-assigned to Rockland in 1951.

A poor man's friends seldom help him, and a rich man's friends want to be helped.
