HOTELS AND SCENERY

OF KENNEBUNKPORT AND KENNEBUNK
BEACH,

With a Complete Hotel Directory.

For the benefit of those who come to our shores for the season, as well as for the sojourners for a few days, it has been deemed advisable to mention a few of the principal places of interest and amusement at these growing and attractive summer resorts. Leaving the R. R. station and crossing the bridge one enters at once into the heart of Kennebunkport village with its wide streets, broad, spreading trees and its large, old-fashioned houses built by sea captains and ship owners in the palmy days of the West India trade. The tourist can well afford to spend a day in looking over the many quaint articles of interest in this delightful, old-fashioned sort of a place.
They will notice the front yard fences of antique design, doubtless copied from foreign patterns that the builders may have seen in some trans-Atlantic town. The weathercocks of odd design, the old-fashioned knockers that have done duty since the days when great ships sailed out of this, then busy, seaport town. All these will come in for their share of his attention, and should he enter these quaint but comfortable abodes he would see queer old articles such as would set the anti-quarian's heart beating with joy.

Right in the center of the village is located the Parker House. This elegant house, combining convenient and sumptuously furnished rooms with great architectural beauty make it a most desirable summer house for those needing rest and recreation from the busy mill of life. The grounds are finely laid out and ornamented with beautiful flowers and plants. Tall trees shed down their grateful shade, while between their branches steals the invigorating air heavy with saline odors from the ocean.

Leaving the Port village, where the Norton House, a favorite resort for transients as well as regular boarders, is located, and moving toward Cape Arundel we come first, after passing the Nonantum House, which is one of the most comfortable and best managed houses at the beach, to the Highland House. This place is very appropriately named, the house being situated on a cliff overlooking the river and ocean and commanding a fine view inland. The house is designed for the comfort of the guests, as well as their amusement, as a glance at its broad piazzas and green lawns will show.

Moving on past the boat houses and Indian tents we come to the Riverside House and the Arundel. The former is located close to the river bank and on a spot of much beauty. The grounds are well kept and shady, and all in all, the house is a most attractive one. The Arundel is a mansion of imposing appearance and beauty.
While sufficiently retired, it yet gives its guests a magnificent view of the sea, calm in repose or terrific in storm as the case may be.

Passing on we come to the Glen House. All that has been said of any other house may well be said of this,
for an inviting summer house it is unrivalled. Just beyond and past the Bickford House, finely located so as to command a magnificent ocean view and one of the best patronized hotels at the beach, is the Cliff House and Glen Cottage which, under the efficient management of Mr. B. F. Eldridge, has acquired a justly famous reputation. To those who know anything of the house no words of praise are necessary. Slightly in rear of this, on rising ground, is the celebrated Ocean Bluff Hotel. This is the largest hotel in Kennebunkport, and for years has been noted as a famous rendezvous for Southern and Western people. The view from the house is indescribably grand. But a stone's throw away the waters leap and lash themselves against the "stern and rock bound coast," throwing up a vast cloud of misty spray. Every room commands an ocean view. One thing may be said of the Bluff—it is never hot there. So near the sea and so elevated is the location that no matter how torrid the day may be it is always cold here.
Crossing the river is a ferry, the only house that at first presents itself is the Seaside, kept by Mr. I. P. Gooch, one

The Wave

We have reached that stage of beach life where the guests have nearly deserted the hotels and favorite promenades, games and other enjoyments, and now we take up our editorial quill to make a profound bow and wish all who have been in the many splendidly equipped hotels prosperity in their further researches for pleasure, or in their severe routines. The old place is not what it was. If you who have thronged the halls, piazzas and beach could see it in its deserted state, you would come to the conclusion that we are justified in allowing a strain of sadness to impel us to write words with a tinge of sadness.

Once more we are compelled to write that word, the most trying of all others, farewell. Of course it has its many significations, and although we feel that there are but few pages between the history of the present and that of the future, our hearts sink within us when we receive the final grasp of friendship or write the last columns to you who have so kindly assisted by your patronage and influence. This lovely of loveliest spots must remain with us in memory alone. The pleasant strolls, the enjoyable drives, and the excellent sails will pass through the winter months with you, and grow more vivid in the spring. We hope that the influence will be so powerful that you cannot get away from its pleadings, but be obliged to walk the beautiful shores and behold the haughty King of day sink with his most profound bow behind the distant hills. There is no resort so attractive and beautiful as our "Port." Not like our sister shores, noisy and disagreeable, but quiet, secluded, and healthful. Our society has been of the brightest type and although every night has not been the scene of a full dress hop you have left the various hotels pleased with the proprietors and their corps of workers, and thankful that the god of foolishness has not so far ruled over you as to compel your hearts to forget the health giving and fascinating out door sports for the debilitating every evening hop. We are assured that next summer will find you all here with many of your friends who have never seen the place of all places. Tell them of the fine hotels and management accommodations, tell them of all the privileges afforded and when you have expressed all of your ideas not one half has been presented to them.

Kennebunkport has had an unusually successful season, whatever may have been the condition of affairs elsewhere. And not only have the people come here in large numbers, but they have been the highest classes. We hope to see them all again next year.

THE WAVE desires to express its thanks to all who have so kindly assisted the editor in his endeavors to present the people of Kennebunkport and Kennebunk Beach a bright, merry and readable paper.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

BROUGHT TO A MOST SUCCESSFUL CLOSE.

The Winners of the Cups and the Presentation of the Boat Race Prizes.

Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Bolles next met. Mr. Bolles took the first set by good placing and volleying. On the second set Mr. Cunningham played better tennis than in his previous matches but he was beaten.

Mr. Cater and Mr. Small then took the field. This match was not distinguished by any fine playing. Mr. Cater won the match easily.

The match between Mr. Nichols and Mr. Talcott excited great interest. The players being so evenly matched. Mr. Nichols took the first set after a sharp struggle. Mr. Talcott by pretty placing won the second set. On the third set Mr. Nichols distinguished himself by his steadiness in play. In the last part of the set Mr. Talcott went to pieces and Mr. Nichols took the set quite handily.

The match between Mr. Bolles and Mr. Cater was a walk-over for the latter on account of Mr. Bolles not feeling well. The match was taken by Mr. Cater winning two sets in succession.

Mr. Cater and Mr. Nichols were now to play and see who should be the owner of the silver cup.

In the first set Mr. Nichols was beaten 6-2, Mr. Cater taking it by beautiful playing. Mr. Nichols rallied and took the second set 6-2, Mr. Nichols placing receiving loud applause. Mr. Nichols seemed to go to pieces on the third set and Mr. Cater won by the score of 6-1.

The score was now Mr. Cater 2 sets, Mr. Nichols 1 set.

The last set was very exciting the players doing good work in placing and volleying. There was great applause when the referee said 6-4, Mr. Cater wins the set and tournament.

This is the first tournament that Mr. Cater has won and we predict that if he keeps on playing he will get near the top of the ladder. After the tournament was over Mr. Cater was given the silver cup, Mr. Henry Woods making a neat speech.

Mr. Henry Woods, the secretary of the Arundel association, deserves great credit for the business like way in which he managed the tournament. In such a thing as this if it is allowed to drag it turns out a poor affair. We hope that next year Mr. Woods will be the manager of the tournament and if so it will be a success as this one was.

Cunningham and Bolles.
Bolles wins 6-3, 6-4.
Cater and Small.
Cater wins 6-2, 6-4.

THIRD ROUND.

Nichols and Talcott.
Nichols wins 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.
Bolles and Cater.
Cater wins 6-2, 6-2.

FINALS.

Nichols and Cater.
Cater wins 6-1, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3.

Dude.

How deceptive are appearances! While the scribe was making a tour of hotels he heard a commonplace hand-organ and saw what seemed to him a common monkey. The view was a false one. This monkey was a talented musician and dairy maid. He played the guitar, the violin, the cymbals, and made butter. When he commenced to play the guitar we thought he like other dudes would languidly sing "I see my love at the window," but although a monkey he knew enough to keep his mouth shut and let the people have a good opinion of him. Affections, anger, etiquette, and grace were the striking characteristics of this wonderful seed of the human race.

RIVERSIDE HOUSE!

EAGLE ROCK HOUSE,

Owen Wentworth & Co., Proprietors, Kennebunk Beach, Maine.
This new and attractive house is situated on a hill, commanding one of the finest views of the ocean and surrounding country to be found on this coast. It is within five minutes walk of Post Office, Station, Beach, Bath Houses, Cove and several Hotels. The facilities for boating, fishing and bathing are unsurpassed.
JOSEPH D. WELLS, Manager.

You have been spending the summer in or around Portland. You have enjoyed the delightful air, the pure water, the invigorating breezes, the cool nights and the charming scenery of what is at this season of the year, the most beautiful place in America. You are about leaving for home and we take it for granted that you want to carry back some souvenir of your vacation or some little gift for those members of the family who didn't come. Maybe you are satisfied with a clam shell, or a smooth pebble or a complete set of menu cards as relics of this summer's outing. Possibly a few photographs will do for mementoes of your trip to Maine. If, however, you prefer to take back something for a souvenir that will not only remind you of Portland but be a substantial source of satisfaction to yourself or your friends, come to our store before you go and look through its twenty-six departments. If you don't find the thing that was "exactly what you wanted?" if you fail to find anything in our collection that you think the stay-at-homes would care for—you still have the clam shells, etc.—and your visit to us will not have been time wasted, because you cannot spend two or three hours looking at the rare things we have to show without being interested and entertained.

Remember our establishment is not a "Dry Goods Store;" it is more like a Bazaar filled with all manner of useful, and useless, and beautiful things.

If we were to enumerate even the special novelties which the store is crowded with now, this whole column wouldn't hold the list, and you could get no idea of our stock if we were to attempt description and quote prices. The only way is to go all over the store and down in the basement, see everything and notice the prices marked in plain figures, then make your selection and have it sent to the hotel, the railway station or home by express. Any article too heavy or bulky to carry can be sent anywhere in the United States or Canada by express and we guarantee its safe delivery.

To-morrow we shall say a word or two about our Infants' Outfits department and the new goods which are arriving then.

Wavelets:

Farewell!

Blaine will be at Old Orchard Sept. 5th.

A good season this year! Come again next.

The Parker House has been very successful this summer.

The Ocean Bluff Hotel has had the best season in its history.

Miss Frances E. Willard and Gen. Clinton B. Fiske will speak at Old Orchard next Tuesday.

A few more buckboard rides, another day or two, and a few more boating trips, and then good-by is said.

Miss Baldwin, daughter of the Hon. A. C. Baldwin, accompanied by her friend Miss Parrot, has arrived at Dr. Dow's cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiel H. Trowbridge of New Haven, who are summering at the Beach, are spending a few days with Pres. Clark and family.

Mr. Charles F. Goodridge, a member of the wholesale grocery firm of C. E. Moody & Co., Cambridge, Mass., has spent August at the Grove Hill House, with his family.

Mr. C. A. Cutter and family of Winchester, Mass., have been at the Grove Hill House through August and are so delighted with the charms of Kennebunk Beach and the entertainment at the Grove Hill, that they will remain in the middle of September.

Mr. Paul has established the reputation of a first-class hotel in the Grove Hill, and is really deserving the excellent season he has enjoyed. Next summer his house will not be large enough to hold those who would like entertainment there, if it increases in popularity as it has the past season.

The Ocean Bluff Hotel has had a big season—full all summer—and still many of the merry-makers stay. Nov. Messrs. Stimpson & Devnell open their beautiful Carleton House, Jacksonville, Fla., where they are sure to have a good season and meet many of the Kennebunkport patrons. The proprietors of the Ocean Bluff know how to run a first-class hotel and they have done much to make Kennebunkport popular.

The Lion, A. G. Riddle, who has been stopping at the Granite State for the season with his family, returns to Washington, D. C., to-day. Mr. Riddle was elected to congress from Ohio at the time of Lincoln's first term, and rode to Washington with Lincoln when he went to be inaugurated president. After serving in congress Mr. Riddle was appointed attorney of the District of Columbia, which position he holds under the commissioners of the District. The commissioners are one democrat, one republican and one army officer.

The Ladies Department of Shaw's Business College, will open for the admission of students on Monday, Sept. 4, 1888. During the vacation, the rooms devoted to this department have been thoroughly renovated and refurnished with new furniture throughout.

Miss S. I. Spear will continue in charge, assisted by the other instructors of the college, and no pains will be spared to advance those who enter. This college is the first in New England to acknowledge the demands of the public for improved facilities in this direction, and is the only one where separate apartments and instructors are furnished its lady pupils. As evidence that these efforts have been appreciated, the lady attendance increased nearly one hundred per cent. during the past season.

Village and Seashore Property for Sale. The pleasantly located and beautiful homestead of the late Capt. Bradford Oakes, together with four other houses in the Port village, are for sale to wind up the affairs of his estate. His late residence is on the corner of Main and Beach streets and only about 600 feet west from the R. R. station. The house and all are two stories, containing twelve rooms; the front gable is supported by four high, massive pillars, has a piazza, the underpinning and steps are of hammered granite, the grounds are ample, dry and thickly set with well developed shade trees. The adjoining cottage and stable will be sold separate or with the homestead if desired. This is a rare chance to purchase a very fine seashore summer or permanent residence. Further particulars can be learned of Enoch Cousins, one of the executors.

FOUND.

An Ideal Resort—Kennebunkport Invaded by the Fashionable World of Pleasure Seekers—As Other See Us.

The fashionable world has found out where Kennebunkport is and soon the place will be as well known as Old Orchard or Bar Harbor, for it combines more natural charms in the same space than any other resort on the New England coast. A great many rich people from New York, Philadelphia, and the South and West, have made this their summer home for years, but now society has found out the place and there will soon be a boom in this vicinity.

Kennebunkport itself is a quiet, old-fashioned village. The resident portion of the town is made up of these large, solid looking residences, built by retired sea captains, giving the place a very stately appearance. The large shade trees through the village add much to the beauty.

Ocean Bluff, the extreme end of Cape Arundel, is a very romantic spot. Here are the grand primitive attractions of forest and shore, the beauty of native wildness, in which is planted a regular village of beautiful summer residences. You can bathe in a surf that equals Old Orchard and in ten minutes be in a large forest, gunning; or again transplant yourself on one of the most beautiful rivers in the state, which is all day filled with boats and yachts gliding back and forth; or once more find yourself among the rocky cliffs and pleasant coves. Many of the summer residences have been erected at a cost of from $20,000 to $40,000, and the grounds elaborately laid out. J. T. Trowbridge, the author, has built a unique red cottage directly opposite the famous spending rock and blowing cave. The nine turnouts here remind one strongly of Bar Harbor. From Ocean Bluff are a long stretch of smooth, hard, sandy beaches, separated by bold promontories, rocky cliffs and long peninsulas. They are known as Crescent Beach, Kennebunk Beach, Wentworth's, Gooch's, Hart's and Parsons' Beaches, and farther on can be seen the famous York and Wells Beaches. There is fine fishing from the U. S. government pier and good deep sea or river fishing.

The well known Ocean Bluff Hotel is the largest public house, accommodating 300 people. Two large wings will be added before another season. Kennebunk Beach is growing very popular now, and the three or four hotels here do a rushing business. The Grove Hill House occupies about the highest elevation in the vicinity. This is a new hotel, fitted up in the most modern style, with an elevator, lit throughout with electric lights and having every convenience. From its tower can be seen one of the finest views in the country, taking in the two towns, Kennebunk and the Port, the beaches and the headlands, the fields profuse with berries and wild flowers, and the inviting groves and forests, the rocky cliffs and the pleasant coves, while in the background can be seen the Maine and New Hampshire hills, including the White Mountains, the historic Mount Agamencious and York Nubble.

The shore line is connected with Kennebunk by two rivers, half a dozen different roads and a branch railroad. A trip that no tourist should fail of is a ride through Kennebunk. This village is situated on the Boston & Maine, and is more wide awake and enterprising than its neighbor. It is one of the handsomest towns in Maine. It has always been noted for its trees, which are its chief charm, and anyone who has traveled extensively through the state will say that no town in Maine can boast of more or handsomer trees than Kennebunk. An observer looking up Main street with any artistic eye whatever cannot help observing a wonderful symmetry among these grand and stately monarchs, with their branches stretching out and meeting far above the center of the street, forming a beautiful arch of green. It is this which first attracts the attention of the visitor and solicits his enthusiastic praise. And in their autumnal glory, hanging in clusters of yellow, red and brown, they add a new beauty and charm to all around. Such is the scene on every street. I found many of these trees to be of historic value. One group of six elms in front of Nathan Dane's house, opposite Ocean National Bank, are living in their 112th year, being planted on the very day of the battle of Lexington. Directly opposite the Unitarian church stands the "Centennial elm," planted in 1876, and on the lot at the right of Charles Parsons's summer residence stands a giant elm, measuring 18 feet round its trunk. What is most peculiar about this tree is that unlike most elms, its branches instead of growing up perpendicularly, extend out horizontally 65 feet on each side, making a total of 130 feet, and covering one-fifth of an acre. This tree is still in a flourishing condition. One can spend much time about here, rambling through the woodlands and meadows, searching for game, fishing from the rocks, the piers, or even from boats in the deep sea, yachting, bathing in the surf, driving on the beach, and rambling here and there, finding no end to this rugged and marvelous scenery. Some twenty large hotels afford excellent accommodations. The Ocean Bluff, Grove Hill, Parker, Norton, Mousam, Wentworth and Granite State are, perhaps, the best known. With all these varied charms, every one can find some enjoyment here. Many predict this to be the summer resort of Maine in years to come, but be this as it may, one thing is certain, that for its natural advantages and grand variety of scenery it stands unparalleled and alone.—Fred W. Adams in the Eastern Argus.

SIGNALS FOR THE FARM.

Simple Means of Communication Over an Area of a Mile or So.

A code of signals for use on the farm may be made very useful for communication between persons out of speaking distance. The writer has long used a loud whistle for making signals to his hired men and others about the farm, which have been found quite intelligible and useful after a little training. The common "mile whistles" sold under the claim that they can be heard a mile off are frauds and fit only for children's playthings; but a loud whistle can be made of a brass tube half an inch in diameter, plugged and cut with a file in the required manner. The best whistle, however, is made of the half shell of a common filbert or Barcelona nut sawn lengthwise or across the middle. This is placed between the third and fourth fingers inside the hand, at the space between the knuckle and the next joint, with the opening in the shell between the fingers. The hand is then closed so that an orifice is left between the fingers opening into the nutshell. Then by placing the bent joints of the fingers between the lips and blowing forcibly into the nutshell, a very shrill and loud whistle may be given that can be heard half a mile with ease, and further when a gentle wind is blowing in the direction the sound is to be sent.

It seems that this system of whistle signals or language is by no means a novelty, for a regular vocabulary, so to speak, of whistling sounds has been in use in an island of the Canary group. The inhabitants of this island (Gomera), which consists mostly of precipitous rocks and deep ravines through which rivers flow, make use of this code of whistle signals to communicate with each other across the rough country, which can only be traversed by long, circuitous routes, on account of the deep ravines. These people use both fingers and lips when whistling, and can carry on a conversation with neighbors a mile distant by the use of this peculiar language.

This useful addition to the faculty of speech may be made available in many ways by adopting a similar code or key of sounds to that which is used in telegraphy. Thus in our system three short, sharp whistles blown quickly mean that the man or men at work in a distant place are to come to the house or to quit work. One long whistle, gradually tapering off to a finish, means that the foreman must send a man to the barn; one short, sharp whistle, followed by the long, tapering one, calls the team home; two short whistles and the long one from the foreman calls the employer to the field to settle some difficulty; three short whistles and the long one call the foreman and announce meal times. Thus by the use of long and short sounds differently disposed all sorts of directions may be given and information conveyed. Each man employed is provided with a whistle, if he can not use his fingers in the usual way, which makes a loud, piercing sound, and a card of signals; but this is not of much use except at rare intervals.

Flags are usefully employed as signals when the house or barn can be seen from all parts of the farm. A pole with arms such as make up the old-fashioned "semaphore" telegraph may also be used when it can be seen or the persons are too far apart to hear a sound. A triangle made of a steel bar bent with the ends free, and struck with another piece of steel, can be heard more than a mile away. But this and the bell are not sufficiently various in sound for ordinary use. The whistle, on the other hand, may be made to vary quite sufficiently to afford all necessary means of communication over the area of an ordinary farm, and the signals may be so codified as to give intelligent meanings, as in the case of the islanders above referred to.

But it will be most convenient to condense as much as possible the code of signals. Thus the signal come to the house or barn when repeated quickly will mean there is something wrong and haste is required. This will answer for all emergencies. Each man, too, should have his signal, to which he only will answer in person when the men are together or scattered. Some such method of communication will be found very useful, and, as it will tend to save time in the work of the farm, and as time is money, it will be found a means of economy, and therefore worthy of adoption.—N. Y. Times.

Near Parker House.

the of pioneer hotel keepers of this vicinity. The beach for a mile in length is owned by the proprietor of the Seaside House and affords excellent bathing facilities.

Following the beach we near the Bass Rock House, a fine large hotel which in the fifth year of its existence can look back with pride to its record and to the number of guests that have patronized it. Half a gun shot away is the Granite State House, well known as a favorite resort for many others than New Hampshire people. Located as it is directly on the beach, the location is a most desirable one for those wishing to be near the water. Still farther on is Cove Cottage, which for genuine comfort is second to none on the beach. Under its present management it had a very prosperous season last year and will undoubtedly do so this season.

Up the beach a little is the well known Sea View house. This house always has a long season beginning early in June and not ending until far into September. Up the Kennebunk road from the beach is the new Eagle Rock House which is admitted to be one of the strongest built and most desirably located houses at the beach. This is its second year and it is rapidly filling up and bids fair to have a most successful season. On up the road and situated about five minutes walk from the beach is the Beach House of Owen Wentworth. Mr. Wentworth began taking boarders in 1865 and his success since then speaks well for the care he must have given them.

But in this journey the tourist has skipped the finest fitted up hotel at the beach and one whose location is second to none. We refer to the Grove Hill House. Located about three minutes walk from the beach, on a high elevation, with beautiful sloping lawns and green terraces, the house stands out in bold relief. Steam elevator, electric lights, a mineral spring and every modern convenience for the comfort of the guests is destined to make the Grove Hill House stand second to none on the coast. When the visitor has been these rounds he has by no means seen all there is to be seen at Kennebunkport and Kennebunk Beach.

There is Blowing Cave, Spouting Rock, Aquarium, the piers and numerous romantic little nooks along the coast which will well repay the tourist for visiting. All are places of great natural beauty, but they need to be seen to be appreciated and will have to be written up later.

PERFUMES OF COMMERCE.

How Pomades, Flower Waters and Handkerchief Extracts are Made.

The perfumes of commerce are in one of four generic forms, viz., pomades and perfumed oils, which are made by the process of absorption, or essences and essential oils, which are made by distillation. Every large establishment is provided with apparatus for all these processes. The first two classes—pomades and oils—are used simply as vehicles to absorb the perfume and retain it for transportation. Pomades are made from roses, jonquins, tuberose, jasmines and some other alien species of flowers. Before the season begins, each manufacturer provides himself with a large number of wooden frames set with plate glass. These frames are about two feet square and their wooden sides are, perhaps, five inches wide, so that when piled up edge to edge they form a series of close chambers five inches deep and two feet square. Over the plate glass, on both sides, is spread a thin coating of refined grease—a mixture of purified lard and tallow—which, when the boxes are piled one above another, forms the floor and ceiling of each separate chamber thus created. All is now ready for the flowers.

As these arrive each morning they are assorted and the petals carefully picked from the stems and pistils, which are thrown away as worthless. Over the bottom of each frame or chamber above described is spread a layer of petals and the frames piled one upon another, so that in each chamber the layer of flowers has above and beneath it the layer of white grease, which absorbs the perfume until the petals become limp and withered. They are then removed and replaced with fresh ones and this is repeated each morning until the pomade attains the required degree of perfumed strength. It is then carefully removed, packed in earthen jars, sealed, labeled and made ready for export.

Olive oils are used in a similar way, except that instead of being poured on the bottom of the frame, they are used to saturate pieces of coarse cotton cloth, which are then spread upon wet netting in tight frames three or four feet square. Thus prepared these frames are filled with petals as in the preceding process, the refined and odorless olive oil absorbs the aroma of the flowers and becomes like the pomade, a vehicle for the retention and transportation of the perfume. This latter process is especially applied to roses and acacias. To extract the odor from pomades or perfumed oils they have simply to be saturated with alcohol, which, with its stronger affinity, absorbs the perfume, leaving the grease or oil to be used for ordinary purposes.

It naturally requires a large quantity of flowers to make a comparatively small amount of perfume. The process of filling the pomade frames with fresh flowers goes on daily for several months before it attains the desired strength. It is by this method only that the delicate aroma of the choicest flowers can be extracted and preserved without change for transport to distant markets.

The process of distillation which yields essences and essential oils is altogether different. In this the flowers are thrown into large copper retorts with water, in which they are boiled, the perfume going over in vapor into condensing coils, as the ordinary distillation of high wines from grain. But the heat often changes the character of a perfume, and it is only the more robust and vigorous odors that will stand the test of fire without deterioration. The "flower waters" of the perfumers' shops are made by placing alcohol in the condensing tank, which condenses and absorbs the odoriferous vapor, until it becomes fragrant and sweet. Most of the popular handkerchief extracts are made by skillfully combining the odors of several different flowers, which form a harmony of perfumes, and often, by becoming the pet fragrance of society for a season, make the fortune of the lucky inventor. Thus "Jockey Club" and "Patchouilly" in their day had an extraordinary vogue, and filled the pockets of their inventors.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Times.

Some Curious Discoveries.

A well-known Paris scientist, Dr. Daubigny, has made some curious discoveries which show the connection between little and great things. To ascertain the qualities of an applicant cook he says it is sufficient to give her a plate to clean, a sauce to make and watch how she moves her hand in either act. If she moves it from left to right, or in the direction of the hands of a watch, you may trust her; if the other way she is certain to be stupid and incapable. The intelligence of people may also be gauged, the doctor further says, by asking them to make a circle on paper with a pencil and noting in which direction the hand is moved. The good students in a mathematical class draw circles from left to right. The inferiority of the softer sex, as well as the male dunces, is shown by their drawing from right to left. Asylum patients do the same. In a word, says the doctor, centrifugal movements are characteristic of intelligence and higher developments; centripetal are a mark of incomplete evolution.—Science Gossip.

FANCIES IN CLOCKS.

The Expensive Craze in Which Some Wealthy People Take Delight.

To own beautiful or curiously designed clocks is as strong a passion with some as the collecting of bric-a-brac is with others. Fortunes are expended in the purchase of clocks. A few Chicago individuals of wealth have time pieces in every available place from garret to basement.

Clocks are to be had at every price from $1 to several thousands. The average good clock ranges in price from $25 to $800. The kind most used at present is the plain French marble, without mantel-piece ornaments. They are about a foot and three inches across and a foot and a half high. They are very popular for gifts, and cost from $35 to $50. Ten unique designs are offered under $150. One novelty for $3 is exhibited in a State street shop. It is a bronze dog, with chain and collar of brass, to which a padlock is attached. It is a nickel-plated clock, with silver dial.

A beautiful French clock, bought the other day as a wedding gift, was of white onyx in a fancy design. It cost $195. Pictured porcelain plaque clocks, that found such high favor as bridal presents for a time, are now pushed aside for plain and fancy creations in white onyx and bronze. The conceptions in bronze are innumerable, and there's almost as great variety in the prices of bronze clocks as in the style. One of the most artistic shown in the city is an ideal figure of "Genius" upon a pedestal. The diminutive black onyx dial, with figures of white onyx and polished brass hands, is set in the pedestal. The figure is that of a youth, a herald on the run. The horn he uses is the most unique part of the conception. It is a dragon-headed serpent, with wide-open mouth. It encircles the figure about the waist, coming up the back and forming an arch above the head. The tail of the reptile is grasped in the right hand. The price for this bit of art is $600. Another elegant bronze work represents two warriors. The clock in this instance is also set in the pedestal. Ajax is a favorite figure to stand guard above the pedestal-set mantel time-piece.

Antique bronze is mostly employed in library clocks. One very handsome specimen was recently sold for $300. They can be had from $175 to $500. The once-a-year clock, which is wound up only once in twelve months, is sometimes bought by lazy people. Their price is $110. Square rosewood and brass clocks, with the eight-bell Westminster chimes pealing each quarter of an hour, can be had for $300. Little brass and silver affairs, about four inches across and ten high, with side ornaments for a bracelet, cost from $200 to $300. Of "Grandfather's" clocks there is no end. They are used in halls, and cost from $200 to $3,000. Generally they don't run above $500.

Statuary in Italian marble is rather superseding bronze. Bronze is most susceptible of expressive results when the figures employed are of the Ethiopian type. The Caucasian race is not as available for artistic realizations in bronze. The best realizations in bronze are always in mythological or Ethiopian subjects. In the treatment of delicate feminine conceptions Italian marble is a far superior material. Refined artistic development now manifests itself in the selection of partially-draped Italian marble female figures instead of bronze Greek boys of manly stature and ancient fighting men. Bisques are still in demand, although not to as great extent as a year ago. Choice in bisques runs to dainty bits of suggestive femininity. The diminutive size prevents their offending prudish uncultivated Western ideas. A Venus, draped with a few drops of spray, resting languorously in a pink shell, that is only a foot long, can be placed in a drawing-room with impunity. It will win the encomium "Just too cute for any thing," when a three foot erect figure of the same sort would be declared "Just shameful, you know."

Window vases are seen in every handsomely appointed house. They cost from $150 to $200. Porcelain plaques, the subject of the picture being either pastoral or mythological, with frames of antique brass, are seen upon many walls. The head of Dr. Faustus is a favorite subject for porcelain painting. These pictures cost from $50 to $150.—Chicago News.

CATARRH

In its worst forms, and all diseases that are caused by catarrh, such as Deafness, Weak Eyes, Hacking Cough, Sore Throat, Pain in Head, Bronchitis, Constant Clearing of Throat.

All of which leads to hasty consumption, are positively cured by Dr. Nicholls.

Office and Consulting Rooms, Nos. 3 and 4 Brown's Block, No. 537 Congress St., Portland, Me. Connected by Telephone No. 441.

Over one-half of the persons troubled with Catarrh have an offensive breath, which is very disagreeable and sickening to those with whom they come into close contact. Dr. Nicholls removes the bad breath in three treatments.

This cut represents a person suffering from Catarrhal Neuralgia.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Constant disposition to clear the throat, hacking cough, dullness of sight, pain over the eyes, pain in the ears or both temples, roaring in the ears, pain in the back of the head, nose stopped up, sick stomach, dizziness, poor digestion, no appetite for breakfast, you feel a general depression, imagining you have dyspepsia liver trouble, lung disease, and you are treated by your physician for various diseases, yet you get no better, and are advised to change climate, and in the matter of a very short time you are a confirmed invalid, and nine out of ten cases run into a confirmed case of consumption. Now, reader, why is this? We will tell you; Catarrh is an ulcer formed in the posterior nares just above the uvula, the passage between the nose and the throat; the ulcer continues to eat and discharge a poisonous flow of pus, running down the throat into the stomach and lungs. This, my friend, is what causes the constant clearing of the throat. Can you wonder why you do not have good health with all this poisonous matter constantly running into your stomach? The remedy is applied directly to the ulcer, cleanses and heals in a few applications. The treatment is very simple and harmless.

Consultation Free.

During August Dr. Nicholls will be absent from his office every Friday and Saturday.
