

The Wave

A Rainy Day at the Seaside.
(Written for THE WAVE during the storm of last week.)

Occasionally a day overtakes us at the seaside when outside recreations and amusements must be given up and indoor occupations resorted to, in order to pass the time as agreeably as possible until the opposing elements are again favorable for the al fresco existence we enjoy on the shores of the "mighty deep."

Such an occasion presented itself yesterday. A storm of no light character visited us; in fact it was "grand, gloomy," but not peculiar to the locality. It was a "sight to be seen" to those of us who reside far inland, and one we would not like to miss, as making a variety of experiences, and showing us the grand and awful side of the wondrous waters, so changed in appearance from the vast expanse in all its varied hues, tints and colors it exhibits, when the brilliant sun lights up the dancing waves, or its declining beams commingle gold, crimson and purple, moving, and shading now deeper now lighter, until admiration reaches its highest point. The scene is perfect—is beauty completed. If lovely in all these conditions, there are still other phases which render the ocean so beautiful, and one of the great objects in nature, which affords us delight to view, which has so many resources to awaken enthusiasm, call forth awe and gratitude that such wondrous sights are accorded to us in this "lower sphere." The August moon now in its graceful crescent, as if timid in its youth and retiring in disposition, will take courage and become used to admiration and notice—will gradually grow more confident, and by degrees exhibit her loveliness more and more, until in full splendor she will confer that charm, add that tinge of romance and sentiment, of which she alone is mistress.

I must confess myself diverging from the manner in which my pen set out; it has wandered off, and here I rebuke it, and remind it of its wandering propensities. All day yesterday the mass of waters surged and roared, and flung themselves on the rocks with terrific force, the winds swept fiercely in all directions—seemingly—the skies were forbidding, and rain poured down with force and fury. Most of the guests congregated in the parlor, talked of the weather—that never failing or exhausted topic by sea or land—some were engaged with worsted work, others in the intricacies of knitting; some read, many watched the seething, foaming surf. Each one tried to bear the enforced confinement with fortitude. The children were more affected by the enforced confinement; they missed their usual sports; no resources in the house could supply the attractions of beach and grove. Yet a rainy day passes, even slowly, and is numbered "in the dark bosom of the past." This refractory pen is running off again; having omitted to mention the brave and daring individual who sought the embraces of the briny deep—when the surf was at its height—and seemed to thoroughly enjoy the wild sport. How he braved the powerful, mighty waves! He hardly gave the appearance of a "mere man" struggling with a force which—when Neptune arrays himself in war paint and feathers to show us, now and then, what he can do, and what puny little creatures we are—but some superior creation who dared invade the dangerous realm, and "held his own there."

Possibly this adventurous being is wonderfully endowed with an occult mysterious existence, aquatic or earthy, at will, a kind of amphibious or Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, the instantaneous changes occurring upon touching the "sounding sea," and presto! just like other ordinary mortals when terra-firma is the choice.

After a long rainy day, when old Sol resumes his brilliant offices how very bright his beams, how blue the sky in contrast with former gloom! How fresh and new these charming features of nature, to the denizens of a world that notwithstanding clouds and storm, is lovely and beautiful.

An Interesting Game in Process at the Ocean Bluff.

The tennis tournament began Wednesday at 10.30 a. m. and proved very interesting. The seats on the balcony veranda of Arundel hall overlooking the court was filled with interesting spectators who gave well deserved plaudits to the many brilliant plays.

The first set between Talcott brothers and Messrs. Taylor was closely contested but handsomely won by the former as appear by the score.

Messrs. Hastings and Mookie won handsomely from Butnam and Nichols. The Parker House representation next encountered Messrs. Taylor and Carter, whom they defeated very handsomely, as indicated by the score. This match was rather surprising in its result and led many to expect that the Parker House would take away the final trophies.

Messrs. R. and H. Brown next met Messrs. Hastings and Mookie and won the set as was quite generally expected.

The succeeding match between Messrs. Howe and Talmage and the Messrs. Talcott excited much interest, largely on account of the youth of one of the players, who may certainly be said to play the best game for his pounds and inches that can be seen at the Port. The result was in favor of the Messrs. Talcott, but none the less highly creditable to their opponents.

Messrs. Terry and Cunningham next met Messrs. J. and G. Taylor and this match was decidedly one of the most interesting of the tournament.

The Messrs. Taylor took the first set 6-5, but were annihilated in the second set to the tune of 0-6. The deciding set was marked by brilliant rallies, many fine strokes by all, especially Mr. Terry eliciting well earned applause.

The third set and match were finally taken by the Messrs. Taylor, 6-4, leaving it, however, a close question as to which was the better side.

In the second round Messrs. Bowles and Small, the successful gentlemen from the Parker House in the previous round, encountered the Brown brothers, and although doing some good work, made on the whole less of a fight than was anticipated, losing in two sets 6-1, 6-4.

The Brothers Talcott now met the Brothers A. and W. Taylor whom they defeated very neatly, 6-2 and 6-4. The parties losing, though not demoralized, hardly played up to their best form. This concluded the second round and brought the tournament to the concluding match between Talcott brothers and Brown brothers. The latter won this match and tournament in three straight sets 6-2, 6-0, and 6-2, beating their opponents with extreme ease, and manifestly outplaying them at all points.

It is but fair to say, however, that the Messrs. Talcott must have been tired with the work of the previous match and undeniably their play was far below their real form.

The prize cups of solid silver, handsomely engraved, were very pretty and well worth a hard contest for.

SCORE-DOUBLE.

The Ocean Bluff Hotel is full. Hop at Arundel Hall to-night. Irving Blake's Cambridge teams are much admired. The Grove Hill House is having the best season since it was built. Mr. Libby, the owner of the Parker House, was in town Wednesday. Mrs. Caroline Margaret James is summering at the Arundel House. Mr. Herbert P. Jefferson and wife are registered at the Ocean Bluff Hotel. A large party from Amesbury, Mass., have lately arrived at the Riverside House. Mrs. J. M. Barker of Worcester is visiting at the Bancroft Cottage, Ocean Bluff. There was a very interesting musicale at the Arundel hall Wednesday evening. Mr. Henry E. Milliken, editor of the Seaboard News, is a guest at the seaside. There will be a hop at the Grove Hill House to-night. A delightful evening is expected. There is nothing better than Jeffrey's hands for a drive. He is doing fishing business. The prizes for all races will be presented to-night in Arundel hall, probably about 9 o'clock. The Garrard of the Glen House gave a backboard ride Tuesday evening, which was very much enjoyed. Prof. A. H. Currier and wife of Berlin, and Mrs. B. B. Breed of Lynn are visiting at Dr. Pinkham's cottage. Mrs. Stanley T. Pullen, formerly of the Portland Daily Press, is enjoying ocean breezes at the Ocean Bluff Hotel. His Clough, who is sojourning at the Grove Hill House, is an excellent fisherman and often gratifies the guests of the popular hotel. That tall good-looking fellow at the Grove Hill House is as witty as he is handsome, and keeps the guests in a merry mood whenever they have the pleasure of his agreeable society. Mrs. Doan of the Cliff House gave a riding party Tuesday evening. Among those present were Mr. Brown, Mr. Terry, the Misses Fisk, Miss Doan, Mr. Terry and the Messrs. Doan. It was a delightful affair. Mr. Robert Carnahan and Mr. Lewis Nevins started Thursday on a trip to the Isle of Shoals. They have started off for a good time and their friends hardly know when to expect them back. They wish them a safe voyage and a speedy return. Old Orchard is to have a big reputationally next week addressed by Jas. E. Blaine, and Sept. 4, a prohibitionary address by Frances E. Willard, president of the National W. C. T. U., and Gen. Fisk, temperance candidate for the presidency. Mr. Henry H. Mathews, manager of the Parker House, is winning golden opinions from all the guests for the excellence and dispatch in which things are run. Mr. Mathews thoroughly understands his business and his connection with the Parker House has given it a high reputation.

The Grove Hill House has been having some jolly times lately. A pretty entertainment of shadow pictures, with music interspersed, was given Wednesday evening, and Friday evening reading, singing and playing was enjoyed, and a grand auction held to close with. It was a very pleasant occasion.

The Kennebunkport Base Ball nine went to York Beach on Monday and played the boys there. They came home without their laurels, the score being 15 to 6 in favor of York Beach. The Kennebunkport boys, nevertheless, played a good game. Only two hits were made of the York pitcher. Mr. Brown's pitching for the Port team was a strong feature of the game; the principal feature, however, being the fine batting of the Harborites who were evidently in good practice. The team made their trip on the Josie M., having a delightful time.

Kennebunkport can vie with Bar Harbor in the beauty of its turnouts; in its scenery and natural advantages it is far ahead of the down east resort, but in the excellence of its roads Kennebunkport must take a back seat. We need good roads, and those who have the interest of our resort at heart should work hard for the accomplishment of this matter. No prettier drives, so far as nature's charms are concerned, can be found than those about Kennebunk, the Port, our famous beaches, about Ocean Bluff and along our rockbound coast.

Village and Seashore Property for Sale. The pleasantly located and beautiful homestead of the late Capt. Bradford Oakes, together with four other houses in the Port village, are for sale to wind up the affairs of his estate. His late residence is on the corner of Main and Beach streets and only about 600 feet west from the R. R. station. The house and ell are two stories, containing twelve rooms; the front gable is supported by four high, massive pillars, has a piazza, the underpinning and steps are of hammered granite, the grounds are ample, dry and thickly set with well developed shade trees. The adjoining cottage and stable will be sold separate or with the homestead if desired. This is a rare chance to purchase a very fine seashore summer or permanent residence. Further particulars can be learned of Enoch Cousens, one of the executors.

The Aldine. Kennebunkport guests often ask: "Which is the best hotel at Old Orchard?" This is not an easy question to answer as there are almost as many different ideas as there are hotels. But if the Kennebunkport tourists will try the beautiful Aldine, we are sure they will be perfectly satisfied with their choice and what more can one wish? The Aldine is situated directly on the beach, just far enough down from the station to be away from the noise and bustle, and yet convenient to all parts of the town. It has the reputation of having the very finest class of guests, and all the appointments are such as guarantee the continuance of their select patronage. Mr. Haines himself is a thorough hotel man, and sees that nothing shall be left undone to make the Aldine a perfect little palace. It accommodates 150 guests.

EAGLE ROCK HOUSE, Owen Wentworth & Co., Proprietors, Kennebunk Beach, Maine. This new and attractive house is situated on a hill, commanding one of the finest views of the ocean and surrounding country to be found on this coast. It is within five minutes walk of Post Office, Station, Beach, Bath Houses, Cove and several Hotels. The facilities for boating, fishing and bathing are unsurpassed. JOSEPH D. WELLS, Manager.

PAPER BRACELETS.

Novelties in Ball Programmes and Menus for the Coming Season.

Novelties every year. This refers more to the stationer's trade than to any other in the world, not even excepting the milliner's art or the modiste's profession. Upon novelties alone do the stationers flourish. This year the styles vary more than ever from the efforts of former years.

Here are a few of them: A novel ball programme consists of a neat, thin cardboard band, one and one-half inches in width, edged with gold, which encircles the wrist like a bracelet, and is easily closed and unclosed by means of the thin silken cord which suspends the pencil. "Dances" is inscribed on the overlapping flap, the date and residence below, and the dances in rotation all around, with space left for the gentleman to write his name or initials. These novel "bracelet programmes" can be had in white, pale blue or pink, and stamped to order at short notice.

This is another. It is a menu. It is also a bracelet, and is fastened by a dainty-colored ribbon bow after the menu is stamped or written and passes over the folded table napkin. These are in white or delicate-tinted card and are pretty and novel. They can be stamped with a crust, if required, close to the bow, where "Menu" is written in gold.

And here are other novelties in the same line. There are some French menus, with pen-and-ink sketches, which are uncommon and consist of sets of six, issued fresh every month. Among the subjects are scenes at race meetings, visitors to art galleries, fashionably attired female figures stepping out of a large broken egg in various positions, others caught in the rain, etc., all artistically and quaintly drawn. Two slits are cut in the paper and the menus are slipped in, so that they can be used as often as they are not carried off by the guests, which is so frequently done.

This does not finish the new menus by any means. A series of spring menus, beautifully colored with butterflies, daisies and violets; another of Watteau figures, each one a picture; an old English one in imitation of discolored edged parchment, with narrow double ribbons run down the side holding the seal, and "Ye Lyste of ye Dysches of ye Refectory" illuminated above in old characters; others to fold up, representing a natural-looking slice of toast, etc., are all popular designs.

Any one who can not be suited with this must be hard to please indeed. — N. Y. Mail and Express.

ABOUT WHIRLWINDS.

A Theory That They Are Caused by the Rising of Heated Air from the Ground.

In the "Naturalist in Nicaragua," Mr. Belt has the following on the origin of whirlwinds and cyclones: "I am confident that a study of the smaller eddies of air is the proper way to approach the difficult question of the origin of cyclones." The movements of these small whirling masses may be observed from the outside, and their progress traced from the incipient stage to that of dissolution. In the beginning of a whirlwind there is a movement near the surface of the ground of light particles of dust toward a center attended or occasioned by a rotary motion of the air. This quickly rises into a whirling column from fifty to a hundred feet or more in height. On the dry, hot plains of Central and South America, and of Australia, this phenomenon is of frequent occurrence, and is not usual in our temperate latitudes in summer. The whirling columns, according to Mr. Belt, differ in diameter from a few feet to many miles, and his opinion is that "there is a complete gradation from the little dust eddies, through larger whirlwinds and tornadoes, to the awful typhoons and cyclones of China and the West Indies."

In the small whirlwinds which occur over the land, there is no evidence of the condensation of vapor occurring in dry air. But where the atmosphere is charged with humidity, as over tropical seas, the condensation is great. The notion, therefore, that whirlwinds and tornadoes originate in sudden condensation Mr. Belt thinks not well founded, the phenomenon being an accident rather than a cause of the movement. Nor is the theory a satisfactory one that the meeting of conflicting currents of air and consequent condensation give rise to the phenomenon. Attention is directed to the fact that many terrible whirlwinds are dry, and run their course without producing rain or cloud. They originate at or very near the surface of the ground, where the air becomes intensely heated. "The quivering of the air over hot ground foreshadows the whirlwind as mirage does the simoon, and sultry heat and oppressive calm do the hurricane." In the stratum of heated air next the ground resides the energy which produces the whirlwind. That this, in many instances, is prevented from rising has been proved by numerous observations. At last the upward tendency becomes so strong that it breaks through the overlying heavier air, and there occurs an upward discharge, followed by all the phenomena of whirlwinds.

Near Parker House.

the of pioneer hotel keepers of this vicinity. The beach for a mile in length is owned by the proprietor of the Seaside House and affords excellent bathing facilities.

Following the beach we near the Bass Rock House, a fine large hotel which in the fifth year of its existence can look back with pride to its record and to the number of guests that have patronized it. Half a gun shot away is the Granite State House, well known as a favorite resort for many others than New Hampshire people. Located as it is directly on the beach, the location is a most desirable one for those wishing to be near the water. Still farther on is Cove Cottage, which for genuine comfort is second to none on the beach. Under its present management it had a very prosperous season last year and will undoubtedly do so this season.

Up the beach a little is the well known Sea View house. This house always has a long season beginning early in June and not ending until far into September. Up the Kennebunk road from the beach is the new Eagle Rock House which is admitted to be one of the strongest built and most desirably located houses at the beach. This is its second year and it is rapidly filling up and bids fair to have a most successful season. On up the road and situated about five minutes walk from the beach is the Beach House of Owen Wentworth. Mr. Wentworth began taking boarders in 1865 and his success since then speaks well for the care he must have given them.

But in this journey the tourist has skipped the finest fitted up hotel at the beach and one whose location is second to none. We refer to the Grove Hill House. Located about three minutes walk from the beach, on a high elevation, with beautiful sloping lawns and green terraces, the house stands out in bold relief. Steam elevator, electric lights, a mineral spring and every modern convenience for the comfort of the guests is destined to make the Grove Hill House stand second to none on the coast. When the visitor has been these rounds he has by no means seen all there is to be seen at Kennebunkport and Kennebunk Beach.

There is Blowing Cave, Spouting Rock, Aquarium, the piers and numerous romantic little nooks along the coast which will well repay the tourist for visiting. All are places of great natural beauty, but they need to be seen to be appreciated and will have to be written up later.

The English have stopped all work at the mines since they conquered Burma.

—Several mail routes in Outer Mongolia have had to be altered on account of the appearance of swarms of rats, whose burrows are very dangerous to the mounted couriers, and whose ravages have destroyed all forage for the horses. The pastures have suffered severely from the vermin during the past two years, and last season nearly every blade of grass was eaten up in the infested districts.

AN UNKNOWN KNIGHT.

He Had Only His Muscle to Help a Lady, and Knew How to Use It.

They came slowly along Lafayette place, New York—a tired, bony horse, drawing a wagon with an old body with the paint worn off the wagon filled with kindling wood. On the wagon seat sat a boy about fifteen years old. He had no overcoat, a felt hat with the brim more bent and dented than the most extremely-fashionable hat you ever saw. The old, tired horse drew up close to the curb, and seemed to be glad of the opportunity to rest. The boy on the wagon seat jumped down and soon was shoveling the wood into a barrel, which he delivered in a neighboring basement. He presently returned with his empty barrel, whistling. As he threw his barrel into the wagon a lady started to cross the street over the snow, but when she reached the middle of the street she found a broad, deep puddle of soft slush. She stood perfectly still and apparently very much puzzled.

The boy took in the situation at a glance; he ran to the back of the wagon, got his shovel, and, with a bright smile to the lady, began shoveling the slush up on to the snowbank. He made a clean path to the stones, and then, without giving the lady an opportunity to say a word, sprang on to the seat of his wagon, threw the shovel into the bottom of the wagon, gathered up his reins, and, with a cheery "Get up!" drove away. Now, did not that act prove that boy a gentleman? The picture of Sir Walter Raleigh spreading his mantle at the feet of Queen Elizabeth came into mind, but at once the thought came, "Why, this boy is a greater knight than Sir Walter Raleigh, for he knew that it was the Queen at whose feet he laid the elegant cloak, and this boy did not have the faintest idea who the lady was that he served so nobly, and did not permit her even the opportunity of thanking him, but acted throughout as if there was nothing else to be done." He had only his muscle to help a lady, and he laid it at her service. It takes more than handsome clothes, a pair of kid gloves and fashionable hat to make a gentleman. —Christian Union.

HOW GLASS IS MADE.

Remarkable Improvements Invented by American Genius.

The making of glass is one of the occupations which has not yet been made to a large extent a matter of machinery. The finer qualities of glass, and, in fact, nearly all kinds of dishes and bottles, except those made of American "pressed glass," are still made by hand; and the heat in the works is so extreme that the workmen are generally very short-lived. In the French glass works, where hand methods are still almost exclusively employed, a glass-blower does not expect to live and be able to continue his work more than six or eight years.

He is constantly hard at work over a furnace heated to a terrible temperature, dipping the end of his blowing iron into the molten glass, blowing it into a great bubble, adding other bubbles, and skillfully shaping the mass until the tumbler, or the article he is making, whatever it may be, is formed. His tasks are divided into long and trying periods, called "journeys," occupied in making up each "foundling," or filling of the furnaces.

A visit to a French glass-working establishment reveals a number of pale, stooping, emaciated men, who look as if they were, and who often are, consumptive. Each dainty article of their manufacture has cost a part of a man's life. To compensate these men for the sacrifice they make—for the steady baking, burning, suffocating which they endure, and for the shortening of their lives that their employment means—the French glass-workers are paid very high wages for that country.

"We are selling our lives," they say, "and you must pay dear if you want them."

Moreover, a great deal of skill is required to make a good glass-blower. He is often paid as much as five dollars a day, and sometimes more. Lately no little dismay has been caused among the French glass-blowers by reports that a means of making glasses and other articles by machinery had been invented, and that hand-workers would not be much longer needed. The American system of shaping glass by mechanical pressure has also been cutting into French industry. The distress of the French glass-blowers at the prospect of losing some part of their means of livelihood impresses one French journalist as very remarkable, in view of the murderous character of the occupation. He can only compare the men to the wife of Sganarelle, in Moliere's comedy, who, having been offered protection against her husband's beatings, became very angry, and asked:

"Well, what if I prefer to be beaten?" The glass-workers are, so to speak, offered a means of escaping from being roasted alive, but instead of accepting it they say in effect: "Well, what if we prefer to be roasted alive?"

As glass-blowing is their trade, they can scarcely be blamed for objecting to a system which threatens to deprive them of their means of livelihood. Setting aside the process of making pressed glass, there has been little change in the methods of manufacture. One of the largest of our American glass manufacturers lately said that the process of glass making is very little altered since the Syrians practised it twenty-five hundred years ago. The most remarkable improvements are both of American invention. They are two in number: one is that of pressing glass into shape by machinery, already spoken of, and the other is the sand-blast, by means of which glass may be cut or worked into certain shapes, or engraved upon, by the sand being steadily blown into a blast upon the portions to be removed. The sand-blast works with great difficulty upon soft, or elastic, or tough, or stringy substances, so that if a piece of lace be put on a pane of glass exposed to a sand-blast, the pattern will be cut on the glass without injuring the lace.—Youth's Companion.

The Sanitary Farmer.

Afraid of the possibility of arsenical poisoning, he prefers the whitewashed wall to paper of any color. His cellar is light and dry, no mold discernible, nor any evidence of vegetable or animal decomposition, and is white-washed, also. He, or rather his wife, does not suffer the offal from kitchen to be thrown out of door or window, but is carried to the sty, which, with the barn and manure heap are on a considerably lower level than the house or well, fearing to jeopardize the integrity of the water. Disliking bad smells, and careful of his well, he avoids the pit for his outhouse, and provides a stout box, properly placed, and periodically removed and emptied of its contents, which is covered with dry earth, previously supplied in quantity sufficient for constant use. He finds the combination a good and economical fertilizer; and, looking to the comfort of the females of his family, has in an annex to his house a similar arrangement for them, unwilling to expose them to the vicissitudes of the weather. He is a sanitary farmer; his wife an able conjugal; she says soap and water are excellent disinfectants; that cleanliness is as good for man as it is desirable for beasts.—Louisville Home and Farm.

In presenting this notice to the public I respectfully ask those into whose hands it may fall, to give it their careful consideration. Having enjoyed a large and extended practice in Chronic Diseases for many years, I am confident that I am able to perform all I profess to, and that the remedies I apply are calculated to produce the most satisfactory results. I cordially invite all who may be suffering, no matter what the disorder, to call upon me and I will most cheerfully tell them if they have any disease, and where it is located, and the organ or part affected, free of charge.

CATARRH

In its worst forms, and all diseases that are caused by catarrh, such as Deafness, Weak Eyes, Hacking Cough, Sore Throat, Pain in Head, Bronchitis, Constant Clearing of Throat. All of which leads to hasty consumption, are positively cured by Dr. Nicholls.

Office and Consulting Rooms, Nos. 3 and 4 Brown's Block, No. 537 Congress St., Portland, Me. Connected by Telephone No. 441.

Over one-half of the persons troubled with Catarrh have an offensive breath, which is very disagreeable and sickening to those with whom they come into contact. Dr. Nicholls removes the bad breath in three treatments.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Constant disposition to clear the throat, hacking cough, dimness of sight, pain over the eyes, pain in one or both temples, roaring in the ears, pain in the back of the head, nose stopped up, sick stomach, dizziness, poor digestion, no appetite for breakfast, you feel a general depression, imagining you have dyspepsia, liver trouble, lung disease, and you are treated by your physician for various diseases, yet you get no better, and are advised to change climate, and in the matter of a very short time you are a confirmed invalid, and nine out of ten cases run into a confirmed case of consumption. Now, reader, why is this? We will tell you; Catarrh is an ulcer formed in the posterior nerves just above the uvula, the passage between the nose and the throat; the ulcer continues to eat and discharge a poisonous flow of pus, running down the throat into the stomach and lungs. This, my friend, is what causes the constant clearing of the throat. Can you wonder why you do not have good health with all this poisonous matter constantly running into your stomach? The remedy is applied directly to the ulcer, cleanses and heals in a few applications. The treatment is very simple and harmless.

Consultation Free.

During August Dr. Nicholls will be absent from his office every Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. John P. Moulton.

SACO, Me., Aug. 29, 1894.
My wife suffered terribly from rheumatism, neuralgia for 15 years; was prostrated most of the time; each nerve attack being severe. At last, 15 months ago, she took to her bed remaining there for over a year. Suffering tortures indescribable. For months I did not sleep, but stood over her trying to relieve her pains. At first large doses of morphine were to relieve her some, but at last even that proved noas doses had no effect whatever. Finally commenced to take Dr. Cobb's Rheumatic Cure, and in twenty-four hours her pain left her, and she returned, and she was able to walk about in room. Next day she walked to the gate, and day she walked 100 rods, and in ten days she walked a mile without inconvenience and in a fortnight was entirely well and able to do her housework, and has remained in perfect health since; praise God for this wonderful remedy.

From all over the country come thousands of statements of the wonderful cures made by this medicine. This medicine is not a stimulant, it cannot cure these blood diseases by application to the skin. This remedy destroys the impurities from the blood and is a sure cure in rheumatism and neuralgia. It is also one of the best tonics in the world, and strengthens the stomach, nerves and kidneys.
