Review, Aug. 26th;

Mrs. Mary O. Littlefield died Aug. 25th at her home, No. 68 Union street, aged 88 years, 3 months and 6 days. She had been a semi-invalid for some time, having suffered two shocks and died very suddenly while seated on the veranda. She was born in Castine, the daughter of the late John and Mary (Binney) Springfield. When a young woman she married Mr. Jeremiah B. Littlefield, a native of Penobscot, who died Aug. 10, 1886, aged 63 years. She was a devoted member of the Methodist church for many years and one of the early members of the W. C. T. U. She was unusually fond of flowers, devoting much

Passers on the Avenue

Who have Passed on to the Great Beyond.

A recent auto ride on Northport avenue evoked memories of those who had passed up and down this thoroughfare within the recollection of the writer in the past thirty odd years. "Daddy," Hodgdon, the term indicating the regard in which this kindly old man was held by his neighbors, and all who knew him, walked to and from the city when past eighty years of age. His home was in the little house at the corner of Northport avenue and the Perkins road, now owned and occupied by Mrs. W. H. Clifford. It may be of interest to note here that this house originally stood opposite where the Hinds house now stands, the road then passing in front of it, and in rear of the present houses on that side of the avenue.

Jonathan Elwell, who lived alone in the two story house just below Brown's corner in Northport, made his trips to and from the city on horseback, stopping at the Read house for dinner. Mrs. Preston, a noted litigant, was often seen with her "testimonies" and "evidences," prepared for a coming term of court to use in her suits to obtain possession of the Cunningham property in Northport—a valuable woodlot. At one time she had Mr. Dunton, the well known writing teacher of Camden, in court to testify as to the genuineness of a signature; but when shown the signatures without knowing the contents of the documents to which they were attached his decision was adverse to her cause. Mrs. Preston first married Jonathan Elwell, from whom she was divorced; later marrying Judge Preston, who was deceased at the time of which I write. For twenty years she was at law with her first husband and finally succeeded in having several pieces of real estate in Belfast and Northport set off to her. Her home was with her daughter, Mrs. Emma J. Marshall, on a piece of this property on Northport avenue adjoining the Hinds place. The house, which stood some distance back from the avenue, the road leading to it bordered with trees set out by Mrs. Preston, was built by Mrs. Marshall's second husband, one of the leading steel engravers of this country, whose portraits of Lincoln are highly prized. The portrait of Garfield in Memorial hall was engraved by Marshall.

Nearly lived George W. Buckmore, in early life a stage driver "down east," who drove his horse "Chub" up and down the avenue until a paralytic shock confined him to the house and resulted in his death. His house and that of Mrs. Marshall were burned to the ground later and their sites are still vacant.

Daniel G. Hinds drove his old gray mare until her term of usefulness ended and he then bought a well known roadster and became so imbued with the sporting spirit that he challenged a neighbor and they went out to the trotting park for a match race, the result of which I do not recall. Mr. Hinds was greatly respected by all who knew him, a man of whom it was said that his word was as good as his bond. His house was built the same year as the James P. White house at "the foot of the square," now the summer home of Hon. James P. Tallaferra of Jacksonville, Florida. Mr. White having more shingles than he needed sold Mr. Hinds enough for his house and it was 50 years before it needed re-shingling.

Howard Murphy made frequent trips to the city with Murphy's root beer, then in great demand, as this was before the many kinds of soft drinks came on the market, and on Saturdays he supplied a large number of customers with hulled corn and milk. He also sold Graham meal, made from wheat grown by himself and ground in the mill at Liberty. For twenty consecutive years Mrs. Murphy's butter took the first premium at the State fairs, and she then withdrew from the contest. Later Mr. Murphy took the butter to an International dairy fair in New York State, and was awarded premiums amounting to two or three hundred dollars and then sold the butter for a fancy price.

Who does not remember E. C. Freeman, who drove the Camden and Belfast stage, and whose coming was heralded by the cracking of his whip and shouting to his horses? His was truly an "accommodation stage." He did errands for everybody and knew every man, woman and child along his route. He had served a term in the legislature and had entertaining reminiscences of life in Augusta, and was an entertaining talker with a rich fund of native wit. It is recalled that he kept this market supplied with blueberries from their first coming until winter was near at hand.

"Jack" (A. J.) Harriman for many years had a practical monopoly of the transportation of passengers, goods and chattels between Belfast and Northport, and did not long survive the advent of the "ten cent teams." To get from Belfast to the North Shore in those days was something of a journey. Starting from Swift & Paul's in Masonic Temple Jack would drive to the steamboat wharf for a trunk to carry to the campground, then go up to Congress street for a cooking stove, which he would have to disconnect and load on. On reaching Brown's corner he drove out that road a piece to the postoffice, then back to the main road and on to the North Shore and the Campground. The other day the steamer of the Maine Transportation Co. went from the Windsor Hotel to the North Shore in five minutes!

Capt. Cunningham (initials not recalled) who had a large farm in East Northport, which included a valuable woodlot, used to start from his home in the morning with a load of logs for Gurney's mill and stop for a chat with every one he met or at the houses along the way. At one time when Daniel Hinds was cutting up his winter's wood, and did not want to be interrupted, he piled over several cords of wood behind which he could work unseen from the road. When Capt. Cunningham came along to have his usual chat he saw this barricade and recognized at once its object. So he pulled up his team and called out: "Here, come out of that! I know what you did that for." Capt. Cunningham's house was burned some years later and he went to Massachusetts to live.

All of these mentioned have gone to their reward, but a few well known passers on the avenue are still living. For many years "Sam" (S. B.) Herrick, a most worthy and industrious citizen, now retired, lived in the old Read house and walked to and from his daily labors in the Mathews Bros. mill. "Fred" Walls—this was before he became the Hon. Fred S. Walls, sheriff, State Senator and Commander of the Maine G. A. R.—spent the summers at Northport campground and drove his famous roadster, "Major," up and down the avenue. He is gratefully remembered as ever ready to give the wayfarer a lift. A good mate for "Major" was Dr. Lombard's "Jerry," of whose tricks a column might be written, and who made a time record between Belfast and the North Shore only exceeded by the auto of today.

WATER FOR COWS.

All animals require plenty of good, pure water. This is especially true of the milking cow, as water constitutes more than three-fourths of the volume of milk. The water supply, therefore, demands the dairyman's most careful attention. Stale or impure water is distasteful to the cow and she will not drink enough for maximum milk production. Such water may also carry disease germs which might make the milk unsafe for human consumption or be dangerous to the cow herself. During the winter, when cows are stabled the greater part of the time, and unless arrangements have been made to keep water before them all the time, they should be watered two or three times a day. If possible, the water should be 15 or 20 degrees above the freezing point, and should be supplied at practically the same temperature every day. When water well above freezing temperature is stored in tanks and piped direct to the cow, there is probably little occasion for facilities to warm it; but when it stands in a tank on which ice often forms, it usually pays well to warm it slightly. This can be done by a tank heater, by live steam, or by hot water from a boiler. If a boiler is used for running a separator or for heating water to wash and sterilize utensils, steam from it can readily and cheaply be used to warm the water. —Farmers' Bulletin 743.

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it."

PARIS STYLE HINTS.

New Fall Colors and Combinations. Some French Creations. Brocades and Bead Embroideries.

[Correspondence of The Journal.]
NEW YORK, Aug. 21, 1916. Writing from Paris, where notwithstanding war conditions, there will be a showing of new modes this month, my correspondent sends a number of interesting style items. Colors especially are an important feature, purple shades leading. The very dark brown that has been in for several seasons is gaining new prominence in fashionable combinations with beige, plum and aubergine. Costumes of plum colored materials are embroidered in beige, in gray and in blue, and navy blue is embroidered in combinations of all these shades.

Coat Dresses and Furs.
Long coats and coat dresses are notable in the new showing for Fall, and the odd collars and capes that made their appearance in "Summer Furs" this year are to be repeated for cooler temperatures. Gray mole is to be very much worn, with broadtail and all the natural pelts, including sable, while Australian opossum that came into prominence some seasons back and lapsed into complete oblivion is revived for the gray contrast that promises to be the smart note in accessories. Rabbit—no longer in masquerade—is frankly brought out in capes, bands and other trimmings for sumptuous warm wraps and coats.

Sashes and Girdles.
The narrow shoe-string girdle of the summer is repeated, and tied in a number of new ways. Sashes tied under the left arm are a feature of girlish frocks. Brocade ribbon, especially velvet flowered brocades on a satin ground, are notably important. Such sashes usually have the ends trimmed with tiny overlapping ruffles, fringes or metal laces, to keep them flat and allow the full beauty of the design to manifest itself.

Whole dresses built of ribbon combined with lace or net are very notable. Skirts in evening gowns are a bit longer, yet one does not see much of the "long all round" type that has been prophesied for the coming season. Lucile comes pretty near this length in most of her formal gowns, and it is well to bear this tendency in mind in planning ahead. Certainly skirts can not go higher than the Summer's showing, so they must come down, to change. Fullness remains, and the liking for cross trimmings, but all flares are out and hoops a dead issue in the world of fashion.

Fall Brides.
Bridal outfits for Fall will be carefully selected but comprise few pieces if Lady Duff Gordon's advice is followed. She argues with reason that styles change so fast that a woman would better reserve some of her expenditure until after the wedding and fill in with up-to-date articles as needed. It is a great mistake to suppose that fashionable women hesitate to wear repeatedly a dress that suits them, rather than to constantly change for the mere sake of novelty. In street attire especially, modish women with plenty of means are apt to be conservative. Not everyone will agree that the bridal gown should be worn only once, and laid away in lavender with its accessories, but aside from this most people will consider the advice sensible.

The Campaign Song.

[The Christian Science Monitor]
In other days no presidential campaign was complete without its campaign ditties. They were held to be as essential to the proper conduct of the contest as the campaign biography and the campaign torchlight procession. The civil war ushered in so many popular songs and airs adaptable to campaign necessities that the campaign song of the regulation make went practically out of favor. "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too" had a vogue in William Henry Harrison's time that carried the song well into the anti-slavery period. The candidacy of Lincoln proved an inspiration for campaign song writers. There was one with the refrain:

Hurrah for our cause,
Of all causes the best,
Hurrah for old Abe,
Honest Abe of the West.

And another with a string of verses of this character:

Our Lincoln is the man,
Our Lincoln is the man,
With a sturdy mate
From the Pine Tree state,
Our Lincoln is the man,

This was in the contest with Douglas, when Hannibal Hamlin of Maine was the candidate for the Vice-Presidency on the Lincoln ticket.

In Grant's time the marching songs of the war were made to do service, and there was no noticeable revival of a taste for the old-fashioned campaign song in his second race, or in the Hayes-Tilden campaign. When the third-term movement went down, however, and the Ohio "Canal Boy" became the Republican nominee, somebody composed a song intended to meet the political situation as it was then apparent. Carl Schurz had broken with Grant and had taken out of the Republican party a great number of citizens of German extraction. This will serve to explain a reference in the following sample verse:

There were men for Grant and men for Blaine,
And Edmund's men and Sherman's,
And men who wanted somebody
To reconcile the Germans.
And when the Blaine men could not win,
On any fair or square field,
They rallied 'round Ohio's flag
And nominated Garfield.

Hurrah! Hurrah!
They rallied 'round Ohio's flag
And nominated Garfield.

In Cleveland's third campaign his followers indulged in a marching chant, the burden of which was:

Four years more,
Four years more,
Four years more of Grover, and that sufficed. "The Full Dinner Pail" of McKinley's first campaign did good service, but, strange to say, neither Roosevelt nor Taft—nor William Jennings Bryan—impelled the citizenry to burst forth into song. For that matter, we are unable to recall wherein the lyric muse took even passing notice of the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson four years ago, but it is possible, in view of the attention already received in this particular by Charles Evans Hughes, that this neglect will be compensated for in the campaign now approaching.

The Hughes campaign song is said to be literally "stuffed with melody," and is reported to be set to an air that constitutes one of the trickiest exercises a piccolo ever engaged in. All we can do here, however, is reproduce a verse and chorus of the exhilarating production:

The rank and file of our country
Stand firmly by Charles Evans Hughes,
So surely our leader we'll make him,
Sustaining its honor and views.

We know he's decisive, courageous,
And stands for the red, white and blue,
So then we shall know, to the White House he'll go,
And the stars of our nation renew.

CHORUS
For Charles Evans Hughes cast your ballots,
Republicans, Democrats too,
Progressives, and all vote together
Next November to carry him through.
We've chosen the man of the hour
Proclaimed North, South, East and West,
To the polls we shall go and our loyalty show
And let Charles Hughes, our choice, do the rest.

"All animals require plenty of good, pure water. This is especially true of the milking cow, as water constitutes more than three-fourths of the volume of milk," says a Farmer's Bulletin. We do not understand, however, that this is a reflection on the milkman!

The Boston Sunday Herald of Aug. 27th had an interesting account of a visit to Harriet Prescott Spofford at her home on Deer Island in the Merrimack river; but in writing of her literary work no mention is made of her first contribution to The Atlantic Monthly, when a High school girl in Newburyport. It was a story entitled "In a Cellar," and while its merits were at once recognized it was only after investigation that the editor was assured that the author was a school girl and the manuscript was accepted. This story won Miss Prescott instant recognition as a writer, and her many successful books, of which we believe "Sir Rohan's Ghost" to have been the first, followed. In the early days Newburyport built ships that sailed the Seven Seas and their commanders brought home from China and Japan, from India and Africa, from the South Sea islands, rich fabrics, heathen gods, carvings of wood and ivory, wonderful inlaid work, costly rugs and many other things, with which Miss Prescott was familiar in her girlhood and whose influence is manifested in the imagery and vocabulary of her writings in prose and verse. Mrs. Spofford at 81 years of age, is still busy with her pen; has one book in press and is writing another.

"Who's Who in New England" has this sketch of the Democratic candidate for the unexpired term of two years in the United States Senate of the late Hon. E. C. Burleigh:

SILLS, KENNETH CHARLES MORTON, EDUCATOR.

Born, Hallowell, N. S., Dec. 5, 1879; son Charles Morton and Elizabeth Head (Ketchum) Silles; came to United States, with parents, June, 1889; ed. Portland High School 1897-7; A. B. Bowdoin College 1901; A. M. Harvard 1902; post-graduate, Columbia, 1901-3; instructor in English and the classics, Bowdoin 1903-4; tutor in English, Columbia, 1904-5; adjunct prof. of Latin, 1906-7; Winkley prof. of Latin lang. and lit. since 1907; and dean since 1910, Bowdoin; Mem. Modern Lang. Assn., America; American Philo. Assn., Phi Beta Kappa, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Dante Soc. Club; Cumberland of Portland, Author: The First American and Other Poems. Address, Brunswick.

It would thus appear that Prof. Silles is well qualified for the duties of an educator. But what of his qualifications for the position to which he aspires? We believe that he has himself admitted that he has none. In the Senate he could only vote as his party caucus, dominated by men hostile to New England, dictates; just as Senator Johnson, obedient to its mandates, and the orders of President Wilson, has voted against the interests of his constituents on vital measures affecting their welfare. But those who placed Prof. Silles in nomination knew that he could not be elected and he will be "traded" for votes for Johnson. The nomination had been tendered to, and refused by prominent Democrats, before a political tenderfoot was found willing to accept it.

Lincolntonville is not a large town—the census of 1910 gives it a population of only 1020—but the Lincolnville Club is one of the most successful of the many like associations of Maine-born men and women who have their homes in Massachusetts. If not the original promoter of the Lincolnville Club Mr. J. S. Crehore of Peabody, Mass., has been prominent in the organization and has been ably assisted by his wife, to whom The Journal has been indebted in the past for reports of the annual banquets and entertainments. These meetings have been held annually without a break, with increasing interest and attendance, and we regret that no report of this year's meeting reached us. While there is no more loyal son of the Pine Tree State than Mr. Crehore among the many who have found homes beyond her borders, and every summer he comes to his birthplace and early home in Lincolnville, he has a proper pride in the town of Peabody, his present place of residence. The population of Peabody in 1915 was 18,625, and the valuation $15,120,500—the valuation having increased 69 per cent in the last ten years. The report of the selectmen says: "With a few notable exceptions the town has been free from serious crimes. One factor that has undoubtedly contributed in a material degree to the peace and quiet of the community has been the absence of the open saloon from our midst for 18 consecutive years. This is a noteworthy fact in the life of a large manufacturing community, and shows that public opinion on the license question has been kept on an enlightened plane." The town reports from which we have quoted make a book of over 250 pages, in which every detail of the town affairs is set forth, and it is a most creditable showing in every respect.

"COL. FAY OF THE BOSTON GLOBE."

Without personal acquaintance or previous knowledge of the nature and extent of his newspaper work we have been deeply interested in the tributes of his Portland contemporaries to the memory of the late "Col. Fay of the Boston Globe." We have known many newspaper men in the past of whom identically the same things could be said as are said of the one just departed. "He knew no loyalty which was superior to that due his newspaper." "He cared little for either the money or the recompense. It was his work and he did it to the very best of his ability." To quote further from an editorial in the Portland Press: "He was the confidant of more sorrows, the supporter of more griefs, the comforter of more sufferers, than any man we have ever known. He sought no public recognition for his manifold charity and benevolence. He looked for no reward excepting that which he may have found in his own conscience. Every neighbor he lacked a meal; every child who lacked parental care; every stray and homeless animal who needed a friend found one in Frederic Fay." In this connection the Press says: "We believe that modern conditions are failing to produce many men of just this type, and of these characteristics." Yet this was the type and these were the characteristics of the great majority of the old-time newspaper men, editors and reporters. Their identities were merged in their respective newspapers. Bennett of the New York Herald, Greeley of the Tribune, Raymond of the Times, and many others that might be mentioned, were more or less in the public eye, but the brilliant men who worked under them were unknown outside of newspaper circles; their names rarely appeared in print, and when departing on their last assignment they left no record of their loyal service save that buried without distinguishing mark in newspaper files. These men did not seek, but rather shunned, publicity. They dreamed neither of wealth nor fame. They were notoriously improvident. Much or little, their earnings were spent with a free hand, and rivalry in the news field, differences of political or religious opinion, did not affect the brotherly spirit that then prevailed among newspaper men in general.

Yellow journalism and the great changes in the mechanical, editorial and news departments no doubt call for a different class of men from those who served the public and moulded opinion in the olden days. For example, there was a time, before the telegraph came into general use, when the exchange editor was the most important man on the paper, and there were two or three who were recognized in newspaper circles as pre-eminent. One was on the Baltimore Sun, and another on the New Orleans Picayune, but we doubt if any one can recall their names today.

As one who, by the testimony of those who knew him, personified in his life and in the duties of his calling the best traditions of journalism we offer this tribute to the memory of Frederic R. Fay.

Did you ever examine a squash blossom in the light of a flower? The other morning a blossom from a Hubbard squash vine was picked and placed in a vase on a breakfast table that is always graced with flowers in their season. The idea was a joke on the family, though a latent admiration prompted the picking. The joke, however, was on the picker, for when the household assembled they one and all extolled the beauty of the blossom. Indeed, with its rich coloring and graceful outlines it would hold its own in a collection of famous lilies. It was like a golden cup or chalice daintily etched and embossed. So it is with many of the flowers commonly regarded as weeds. The despised dandelion which in spring dots our lawns—golden stars in a green firmament—is more beautiful than many of the flowers cultivated in gardens. The "white-weed" which has invaded the farmers' fields, otherwise known as daisy and marguerite, finds some favor for decorative purposes and has been the subject of successful flower pieces by our local artist Mr. Sanborn; but it is generally frowned upon and classed as a troublesome weed. Every nature-lover familiar with the flora of the fields and woods can readily supply a list of plants and blossoms that will vie with those grown in gardens.

James Gordon Bennett, who recently sold his palatial steam yacht, is in New York, and there is something doing—or soon will be. He has discontinued "for the time being" his Evening Telegram, because an up-to-date evening paper at one cent does not pay, and has reduced the price of the week-day editions of the New York Herald to one cent at a time when an advance in price had been practically agreed upon among the 1-cent morning newspapers. Julius Chambers says, in the Brooklyn Eagle: "The editor of a 1-cent newspaper personally told me he 'had a notion to quit and go back to California when Mr. Pulitzer announced a reduction of The World to 1 cent.' The late Mr. Pulitzer said to a mutual friend: 'This man Hearst has cost me half a million dollars a year!'" So, there you are.

This is the sort of a battle Mr. Bennett is entering upon and I will bet my right hand he enjoys it. He will make fur fly!

His activities have been dormant for thirty years, but he has "awakened!" He is the stuff! That's what the people say—who know him.

What do the Farmers of Maine think of this? Potatoes were on the Free List in the Underwood tariff bill when it was presented to the Senate. Gronna of North Dakota moved to amend by fixing the duty at 15 cents per bushel. Senator Johnson of Maine voted against the amendment and in favor of putting potatoes on the Free list. See Congressional Record, page 3417, August 15.

A decided feature of the Republican Rally in Westbrook last Friday evening was the address of Arthur Gray, known as one of Westbrook's strongest Democrats for years. Mr. Gray addressed the members of the club as one of the young Republicans present. He stated that he was not a Republican as a result of being a sorehead, but that he had been convinced that the Republican cause was the right one. He not only enrolled as a member of the club but is included in the list of honorary vice presidents. There are many Democrats who are not making public professions who will record their protests against free trade and "watchful waiting" at the polls Sept. 11th.

FREEDOM ACADEMY CELEBRATES 80TH ANNIVERSARY.

Friday, August 25th, hundreds of the sons and daughters of Old Freedom Academy gathered on the hill to help celebrate the 80th year of its foundation, and never in its history had so many of the Alumni been together at one time. The day started in with an Anniversary parade led by the Alumni band and followed by nearly forty decorated floats and automobiles carrying the numerous classes.

From an artistic standpoint the parade was the finest ever seen in these parts and well up to the limit of parades in larger cities. Miss Doris Bartlett as the Queen of the Carnival, perched high on a large float, surrounded by Uncle Sam, Columbia and numerous attendants, was a thing of beauty to look upon, and the auto of Miss Winifred Dodge, decorated in true Japanese effect with lanterns, umbrellas, and carrying six Japanese maids, was also received with applause. And this fine parade was all done without the outlay of money, all giving of their time and talent to make it the success that it was.

The parade was followed by literary exercises in the church, where Rev. Claude Nutter, Rev. Harry Daniels, and Rev. Wm. Holt all spoke words of praise for the old academy. The local village orchestra furnished fine music for the exercises. Dinner was served to a large crowd at the Grange hall.

At 2 p. m. the school base ball team crossed bats with the Alumni team and were defeated by the Alumni by a score of 5 to 4.

The anniversary closed with a grand ball in the Grange hall at night when the hall was thronged and Tozier's fine orchestra kept the feet moving until early morning. The school buildings, church and grange hall were finely decorated as were many houses on the line of march and Freedom Academy starts on its 81st year with as good prospects as at any time in its history.

The Academy opens on Tuesday, Sept. 5th, with a good corps of teachers and a large entering class is scheduled for this year.

The cyclone passed down through the valley by his home, breaking off branches of the willow trees, scattering them over the road and fields, and blew down the board fence of the pasture of T. D. Nickerson at Maple Terrace Farm. The storm lasted for more than four hours but was severe here only about half an hour.

RECENT DEATHS.

Mrs. Sarah Gage Shaw, one of the older and highly respected residents of Burnham, died Aug. 18th at her home in that town after a long period of ill health. She had been confined to the bed several weeks and her death was not unexpected. Mrs. Shaw was born in Plymouth, Me., April 5, 1845, and was accordingly past 71 years of age. Early in life she married W. L. Shaw and they lived for several years in Troy, Maine, moving from there to the large farm in South Pittsfield, near Burnham village, about 42 years ago, and later buying the village home which they had since occupied and where Mrs. Shaw's death occurred July 18, 1900. Mrs. Shaw was interested in the affairs of the town and whatever pertained to making it better. She was a charter member of the Willing Workers, in which she took much interest and gave much assistance when her health permitted. She leaves to mourn their loss one son, Fred P. Shaw, who with his wife and daughter, Miss Fern Shaw, reside at the home place and who gave her tender care during her illness. Beside the son and family she leaves two nieces, Mrs. Laura Howard of Bangor, who had been in the home a week or more assisting in her care, and a niece who resides in the West. Funeral services were held from her late residence Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. W. Lowell, pastor of the M. E. church at Clinton, officiating. There were many beautiful flowers, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. The bearers were G. E. Gilman, H. I. Libby, J. A. Cail and L. E. Gerald. Interment was made in the family lot in the village cemetery. Among the out-of-town relatives and friends to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaw of Pittsfield, Mrs. F. L. Fletcher and daughter, Miss Helen Fletcher of Waterville.

George F. Knowlton, aged 78 years, an expert machinist, died Aug. 22nd at his home in Bath after a brief illness, aged 77 years, 11 months and 16 days. He had been a respected citizen of Bath for 26 years, coming there from Belfast. He was a native of Liberty and learned the machinist trade in Camden, where he worked for many years. He was an expert mechanic and started in Bath at the Hyde shops on Water street, and afterwards went to the B. I. W. shops. He was a veteran of the Civil War, member of the 4th Maine, Co. I. He was for a time in Libby prison and was three times wounded in battle. He retired 12 years ago and had resided in Liberty up to two years ago, when he returned to Bath to live with his son, Clarence F. Knowlton, 433 Middle street. He was a member of the G. A. R., and of the Masonic Lodge in Camden. He is survived by four sons, Charles of Camden, Clarence F. and Harry of Bath and Ernest of Augusta; one daughter, Mrs. Edmund Andrews of Vinalhaven; three sisters, Mrs. Angie Cotton of Medford, Mrs. Samuel Devey and Lodge, Alonzo Brown of Liberty, and 11 grandchildren. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon from the residence of his son Clarence.

Miss Edith M. Gushee of Appleton died Aug. 15th at the Trull hospital in Biddeford, Maine, at the age of 37 years. Her remains were brought to her home for burial. Miss Gushee was born in Appleton in 1879, and as a child attended the local schools, graduating at the Central Normal school in 1905. She taught in the public schools of Maine and later in the towns of Blandford, Russell and Revere, Mass. She was a conscientious and enthusiastic teacher, and was deeply interested in her profession. While teaching in Russell, Mass., Miss Gushee joined the First Congregational Church of Westfield. She was a member of Golden Rod Lodge, No. 31, of Appleton and was lately instrumental in organizing in her native town a campfire of girls, of which she was guardian. She leaves to mourn their loss, her mother, Mrs. Frances M. Gushee, one sister, Miss Fannie M. Gushee, and a brother, Walter E. Gushee of Ludlow, Mass.

The many friends of "Al" Martz were grieved to learn of his death, Aug. 19th, in Somerville, Mass. Mr. Martz was a former resident of Camden. For many years he was connected with the theatrical business as the head of a high-class minstrel company. He was a man of the most genial personality and he made friends everywhere. His health gave out several years ago, but he improved afterward and all were hopeful that he still had many years before him. The funeral services were held in Somerville and the body was brought to Camden Aug. 23rd for burial. The deceased was 65 years of age. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

Thomas E. Barton died Aug. 19th at his home in Vinalhaven, after a long period of invalidism. Early in life Mr.

Barton married Harriet Conway and lived at Wharf's Quarry, where he raised a large family. Mr. Barton was a fisherman, but several years ago sold his homestead and came to the village to live with his daughter, Mrs. J. Fred Perry. He is survived by his daughter, and three sons, Edward of Islesboro, Rufus of Belfast and William of Vinalhaven. Funeral services were held Aug. 23rd. Interment was at Bay View cemetery.

Timothy H. Mills, 70, a retired sea captain, died Aug. 23rd at his home in Vt. He leaves his wife, who was Miss Lydia Hall of Vinalhaven, Me., before her marriage 47 years ago; a daughter, Mrs. L. E. Hutchinson, and a son, Chas. E. Mills of Barre. Mr. Mills was born in Vinalhaven, the son of Captain Jonas Mills and Sophia (Arcy) Mills, the former an old-time sea captain, well known along the Maine coast. As a youth he shipped as mate with his father, later becoming captain of a vessel himself. Mr. Mills belonged to the Masons, Odd Fellows and N. E. O. P.

H. J. Cole, a prominent business man of Rockport, Me., for many years, died Aug. 22d, after a short illness. He was born in Waldo, Aug. 29, 1841. Mr. Cole was a Past Master of St. Paul's Lodge F. & A. M., and was a member of the local Masonic Chapter and Camden Commandery, K. T. He is survived by his wife and a son, Fred A. Cole of Rockport, N. Y.

THE CORINNA CENTENNIAL.

CORINNA, Me., Aug. 22. Upward of 5,000 persons attended the centennial celebration in this town today. Cities and towns all over Eastern and Central Maine were represented by hundreds of automobiles. The weather was perfect and the celebration successful. The day's program opened this morning with a baby parade, followed by a trades and floral parade, some 40 floats being in line. An automobile parade followed at 11 o'clock.

In the afternoon literary exercises were held on the grounds of the Stewart Memorial Library, the features being an address by Rev. Clinton Simonton, an address by Rev. Godfrey J. Gilbert and a history of the town by J. Howard Winchester. Music was furnished by the Bangor band.

Another feature of the afternoon was the ball game between the Fay & Scott team of Dexter and Corinna A. C., which resulted in a victory for Corinna, the score being 1 to 0. This evening several hundred couples attended the centennial concert and ball in Stewart Library hall. Belmont A. Smith was chairman of the executive committee for the celebration.

Autoists Jailed and Bailed.

OLD TOWN, Me., Aug. 22. J. J. Cronin of Waterville was before the Municipal Court this morning on the charge of careless handling of an automobile and held for the criminal term of the Supreme Court under $2000 bonds. It is charged that Cronin's car struck and seriously injured Humphrey Dubois, colored, of Old Town, at Great Works Saturday night. Dubois is in the Bangor Hospital with a fractured skull, but it is believed has a chance to recover.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 22. The most severe sentence yet imposed in the Bangor Municipal Court for operating an automobile while intoxicated was upon Otis McGuire, a prosperous farmer of Glenburn, who was sent to jail for three months after a hearing before Judge B. W. Blanchard. This morning witnesses testified that McGuire was seen driving "all over the road," and finally brought up in a ditch, and was found sound asleep in his car on the outskirts of the city. McGuire entered an appeal.

Literary News and Notes.

Holman Day is following his usual custom of spending the hot months yachting along the New England coast, which furnishes some of the scenes in his new novel, "Blow the Man Down." In fact, the story gets its peculiar title from a chanty of the Maine coast.

The Advocate, An Autobiography and Series of Reminiscences, by John F. Lynch, published by George D. Loring of Portland, is now on sale. Mr. Lynch, in addition to his long practice of the law, is well remembered for his prominent part in the politics of Maine over a period of a great many years, and the reminiscences of this long public career, with a liberal interspersing of anecdotes and humorous stories, makes the book entertaining reading.

In the number and nature of its illustrations the September Popular Mechanics magazine is noteworthy. One of the many fine page illustrations shows a big photograph built for outdoor concerts and this is also featured in the cover design. Other interesting page views or groups of views depict the training of jungle beasts for the movies; motor-car horse ridden in parade; sea planes at British aeronautical base; naval militiamen on summer practice cruise; the Mexican situation; and other types of current events, and new designs in lamps. The European war pages, as usual, present many interesting phases of that struggle.

Now in her 81st year, and with her pen still active, Harriet Prescott Spofford has written A Little Book of Friends, wherein she recounts her acquaintance with such gifted women as Celia Thaxter, Gail Hamilton, Louise Chandler Moulton, Sarah Orne Jewett, Rose Terry Cooke and Annie Fields. The book will come in September from the press of Little, Brown & Co. Mr. Spofford was born in Calais, and Maine can also claim Kate Douglass Wiggin, for although she was born in Philadelphia both her parents were born in Calais, which was also the home of the noted journalist, author and diplomat, James Shepard Pike.

The Wide World for September, the magazine for men, contains many stories of adventure with numerous illustrations. The serial "From Job to Job Around the World," relates the experiences of two young Americans who starting from their homes with a few dollars worked their way around the world, living for weeks or months at a time in foreign lands. "Our Adventures at the China Islands" is a sailor's breezy yarn of what happened to his ship when she went to the China Islands, off the coast of South America, to load guano. What with the difficulties of navigation and the idiosyncrasies of the native laborers, the crew of the "County of Angleses" had a pretty lively time.—International News Co., 38 and 39 Duane street, New York.

In the September issue of the American magazine, Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank of New York, tells how he picked up the $25,000, a year positions. Another man who never believed in God tells how he found God working by his side in his own office. A man who thought he was never appreciated in his work writes about his experiences and what he has learned in humility. The fiction matches the articles for there are stories by well known writers as well as new ones. "The Haunted House," by Ellis Parker Butler, "Better See the Doctor," by Jack Lait, "The Pampered Fledgling," by Walter P. Eaton, and "The Winning Hand," complete the short stories. There is also a generous installment of "Between Two Worlds," the serial by Philip Currier. Among the other good things in the magazine are articles on golf by Jerome Travers, actors' salaries by Renold Wolf, the State article on New Hampshire by Winston Churchill, and the ideas of a writer who advocates changing your job after fifty. The interesting People department contains good stories about Admiral Dewey, a man who caught a 30,000 pound fish, and a circus bareback rider. The Family Money tells of some experiences in the art of saving your coins.

The September Woman's Home Companion makes the important announcement that beginning with the October issue there will be a series of full length novels published in two installments. Some famous writers have already sold their work to the magazine under this arrangement. The September issue contains some splendid articles as well as excellent fiction. Among the articles are "The Frank Struck Guy," "Fool," in which a stock speculator makes a confession; "The Stage-Struck Girl," an article by William A. Page, which warns girls against the stage; and "Making Things to Sell," by Mary C. Mitchell. Other features are "How Our Car Saves Us Money," "Unique Wedding Gifts," and "Of Interest to Spinsters."

The fiction includes "The Voice of the Clock," by Mary E. W. Freeman, "The Perfect Lover," "Welcome to Our City," and "The Mysterious Mr. E." The serial by Margaret Deland, and the two-part story by Katharine Holland Brown are also present. Among the regular departments are "Fashions," which is quite important this month; "The Tower Room," "Better Babies," "Cooking," "Art and Music," and "Bett articles." There are also things for younger readers. The picture section contains some interesting views of many things.

With the appearance of "Journeys of a Seafarer," fresh from the Gorman Press, Boston, Nathan Appleton Tefft, the well known Bangor newspaper man, makes his initial bow to the thoughtful in the great problem of letters, says the Bangor Commercial. And as typifying the triumph of the Scientific Spirit, and as illustrating the easy flow of lumbago stresses, the Commercial quotes the following verse:

From void it came to void it went—
No spirit of the firmament
Had burst the locks upon the sky;
And as the color queens
Were come again with other sheens—
With tubes of iridescent light,
To glorify the sombrous night.

Filled with helpful suggestions for writers, is the August number of "The Writer," the Boston magazine for literary makers, which is always packed with material of the highest interest. Pemberton continues his series of practical articles on "Preparation for Proof-reading." W. J. Lampton has an article "More Concerning Short Stories." Beulah Rector describes A Hack Writer's Work; and Florence M. Poast writes on "The Creative Faculty of Women in Art and Letters." Other headings are A Playwright's Contracts, Reputation in Writing, An Author's Financial Return, Increasing the Vocabulary, How to Mail Manuscripts; The Work of James Whitcomb Riley, The Atlantic Plagiarism, and The Youthfulness of Authors. Perhaps the most useful features of "The Writer" are The Directory of Periodicals, which gives the addresses of publishers, the many manuscripts, with authentic information regarding what they want, and the department, "The Manuscript Market," in which editors tell about their special manuscript needs, and prize offers for manuscripts are announced. Every one who writes needs to have "The Writer." The price of the magazine is ten cents a number, or one dollar a year, and the address is P. O. Box 1905, Boston.

Mr. Haskell is the son of Mrs. Alice Haskell and of the late C. B. Haskell of Pittsfield. Both bride and groom have been former members of M. C. I. faculty and a host of friends extend congratulations. They will reside at Turner, where Mr. Haskell has accepted the position as principal of the Leavitt Institute.

Paul Merrill of Augusta was best man. The bride gave away the bride to her brother, Bertram E. Smith. The young couple left on the 9:38 train for their wedding tour and were given a rousing send off by their friends who had assembled at the railroad station.

BLANCHARD-NICHOLS. A very pretty home wedding took place at 12 o'clock, noon, Aug. 23d, at the residence of Capt. and Mrs. Charles M. Nichols, Searspoint, when their youngest daughter, Lewene Alexandria, was married to Capt. Scott Blanchard of Brooklyn, formerly of Searspoint. The house was profusely decorated by friends under the direction of Maurice Doliver, many seasonal flowers combined with ferns and evergreens transforming it into a power house of fragrance. In the parlor where the ceremony was performed, the color scheme was yellow and white, a beautiful setting for the bridal party. The bride wore a beautiful and most becoming gown of white with a veil reaching to the hem. She was a charming bride, and was attended by her sister, Miss Lona, gowned in pale yellow. The bride carried a fragrant bouquet of the maid of honor carried an arm bouquet. Little Marie Blanchard, the flower girl, was dainty in a sweet little frock and ribbons. The groom was attended by his nephew, William Blanchard of Brooklyn. The ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. Charles H. McElhiney of Skowhegan, formerly of Searspoint. An informal reception was held after the ceremony, the bride and groom receiving the congratulations and best wishes of many friends. A wedding breakfast was served, Eno catering, and the following friends of the bride assisting: Mrs. Frederick K. Sawyer, Mrs. Oliver C. Atwood, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carver, Misses Mabel Griffin, Harriet Erskine, Florence Colcord, the bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for a brief trip, after which they go to Brooklyn, where the groom recently bought an attractive home. The bride is one of Searspoint's most attractive young women and will be greatly missed. Capt. Blanchard, while a Searspoint man, has for a number of years been in Brooklyn, where he was for some time in the employ of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co. as commander of various steamers, but has for some time been engaged on shore as a member of a stevedore company doing business in Brooklyn. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Putnam of Baltimore, Dr. and Mrs. Francis O'Neill of Providence, Mrs. William Ford and daughters of Cambridge and many others who are spending the season in Searspoint.

An Open Letter to the Voters of Waldo County.

HAMILTON E. JENKINS

As I am a candidate on the Democratic ticket for Sheriff of Waldo County, I think it well to make a statement at this time that will answer the question that may be asked in sections, where I am not personally known, as to whom this Mr. Jenkins is, and what about him, for every voter desires to know all possible about the man he is called to support.

Briefly stated, here is my history. Born in Vinalhaven September 11, 1878, my parents moved to Monroe when I was but two years old, and I lived in that town thirty years, following the occupation of farming, and I think the people of Monroe and adjoining towns thoroughly understand my business methods, and my reputation for doing any work with which I am entrusted honestly and faithfully.

Some five years ago I came to Brooks and purchased a saw mill, where I now conduct business under the firm name of Jenkins Lumber Co.

What education I possess was obtained in the excellent schools of Monroe. When Mr. Edwin Jenkins was sheriff, I served as one of his deputies, and have also served as constable in Brooks. These are the only offices I have held as I have never been an office seeker.

I belong to but on secret society, and am a member of Golden Crown Lodge, No. 108, K. of P., and I am also a member of the Grand Lodge of this order.

There is one point I wish to make clear to every voter.

It has been brought to my attention that my opponents are endeavoring to make political capital out of their repeated assurances that "if Jenkins is elected he will not enforce all of the laws."

Now I am not making promises for the purposes of securing my election, but in answer to this unwarranted, indefensible and untrue statement that is being circulated, I am prepared to state that if I am elected Sheriff of Waldo County I shall enforce all the laws to the best of my ability, as required by the oath that I shall take, and from my fellow citizens who desire an honest, impartial enforcement of laws in this county, I respectfully solicit support at the polls.

HAMILTON E. JENKINS.

WHAT YOUR NERVES NEED

Whatever medication, whatever renewed strength and vigor can be imparted to the nerves must reach them through the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a new discovery in that they act on the nerves through the blood, enabling the blood to carry to the nerves the elements needed to build them up.

Neuralgia, sciatica, sick headache and a number of more severe nervous troubles are properly treated by building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and are often entirely cured in this way.

If you are nervous you can help yourself by refusing to worry, by taking proper rest, sleep and vacations, by avoiding excesses and by taking out of door exercise. For medicine take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the non-alcoholic tonic.

Sufferers from nervous disorders who have been taking treatment without benefit should investigate the tonic method. Write today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System." It will be sent free on request.

Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.
