TOURIST REGISTER.

THIS POPULAR FEATURE WILL COMMENCE IN THE NEXT ISSUE OF THIS PUBLICATION.

Watch for it if You Want to Find Where Your Friends are Spending the Summer.

Commencing with our next issue, July 11th, the ever popular feature of publishing the hotel and boarding house register of Casco Bay, for the season of 1907, will be inaugurated. This list will contain as usual the names of all the regular tourists, not transients, who are at the hotels or boarding houses at the time the list was taken for publication. The "Breeze" register has proven itself very valuable to excursionists to Casco Bay in locating their friends who are known to be stopping at some leading boarding house or hotel in the bay. By turning to this register they may be located at once if they are summering here. This feature has for many years been greatly appreciated by the many readers and their friends. Only the hotels and boarding houses using the columns of the "Breeze" are to be included in this list. If you want to know where your friends are spending the summer, watch the register.

FOURTH AT PEAKS.

THIS POPULAR ISLAND WILL ENTERTAIN MANY EXCURSIONISTS ON THE NATIONAL HOLIDAY.

Casco Bay Steamboat Co. are Planning an Elaborate Program of Events.

The glorious 4th is to be celebrated in a most extensive manner on this island and the plans of the Casco Bay Steamboat Co. are certainly the most extensive ever undertaken for a national holiday. From sunrise until long after sunset, there will be attractions going on that will without much doubt bring a throng of excursionists to the island. Among the chief features of the day will be two balloon ascensions by Prof. Lawrence Davis, ball games, boat races and field sports of all kinds are in order during the hours of the afternoon, and with the many contestants entered the races are sure to be of great interest. The ever popular Gem theater will give its usual performances during the day, and these are certain to attract an audience, that is only limited to the capacity of the playhouse. The day's festivities will be brought to a close by a fine display of fireworks, which will be given on the water front. The Casco Bay Steamboat Co. will give continuous service all day long, and if the weather is fair a multitude of people will avail themselves of a delightful program of sports.

SERIOUS BLAZE.

THE LITTLEFIELD PROPERTY AT DEER POINT GT. CHEBEAGUE DESTROYED BY FIRE FRIDAY LAST.

One of the Tenants Was Able to Save The Greater Part of their Furniture.

Great Chebeague Island at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon last was visited by one of the largest and most disastrous fires that has occurred here for a long time. The large two tenement house at Deer Point near Jenk's Landing, which was owned by Ammi Littlefield, and occupied by Royal Ross and William Ricker, was totally destroyed by fire, with the most of the furniture. It is believed the fire caught about the chimney, and the structure was soon a mass of flames. At the time the fire started Mrs. Ricker was at Portland, while the only one at home was Mrs. Ross, who was fortunate enough to save a small part of her furniture with the kind assistance of neighbors nearby. The house was valued at about $2,000, and the furnishings lost by both families at about $3,000 more, making the total loss about $5,000, which was partly covered by insurance. There were no means of extinguishing the flames from destroying the entire building, as it had made good headway before it was discovered.

BAILEY ISLAND.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS AT THE BEAUTIFUL RESORT OF THE OUTER BREAKERS.

Every Cottage Taken and Building Still Active.

The fishing schooner "Eva and Mildred," Capt. Charles York, was reported at the Boston market last week. The crew secured a cargo of 56 swordfish and as the price paid was higher than usual, each man took $42.50.

They are to spend the summer in their cottage here which is situated on the land known as the Pasture. Bailey's Island has no greater admirers among the summer colony than the Smiths, all of whom have been here for many years past.

Miss Gertrude M. Partridge of Dorchester, Mass., arrived at the Seaside cottage on Monday morning, coming direct from Old Orchard, where she had been the guest of friends. Miss Partridge is a china decorator of great promise, and during her sojourn here last season she exhibited on two occasions some of her choice specimens of handwork. The young lady received merited praise for the collection shown and each instant disposed of the greater part of her exhibit.

Contractor Charles S. Thomas is rapidly completing the fine large eight room cottage that he has under construction for Miss Ida H. Waugh of Philadelphia, Pa. The site is one of the most desirable to be found on the island.

Several of the many friends here of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lyman Brown of Denver, Colo., have during the past week received cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Bernice, to Mr. John Cochran Keene on Saturday, June twenty-second, one thousand nine hundred seven at Denver, Colo. Mrs. Keene was well and favorably known here, having spent two summers with her mother, Mrs. Grace M. Brown, the well known authoress and writer. On the east shore and particularly at Thunder Cove, the sight was beautiful, the white spray ascending at times to a height of twenty feet, then dashing against the rocks making a sound like that of a roaring cannon. Many tourists made several trips during the day, and with their cameras made fine pictures of the surf.

THE PRESENT WEEK WILL SEE A LARGE NUMBER OF TOURISTS REGISTERED HERE.

Many Delightful Parties Are To Be Given the National Holiday.

Within the next ten days there will be a big influx of summer visitors and by the end of another fortnight everything will be gayety.

Prominent among the week's arrivals here are J. P. O'Leary and family of Banf, Alberta, British Columbia, who have come for an extended stay. Mr. O'Leary is head constructor of Canadian Pacific hotels. A large hotel has recently been erected at Winnipeg at a cost of a million dollars.

The first hop of the season took place Wednesday evening, the house orchestra furnishing music for the occasion. Quite a party of young people of the city attended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hawes of Boston, Mass., arrived on Monday and are guests at this popular hostelry.

Brockton, Mass., is represented by F. G. Walker and Mrs. Walker who are here for their first season.

Mr. James Britton and wife, also H. E. Sherwood of Philadelphia, are among the week's arrivals.

Newcomers are: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pressey of Washington, D. C., who are here for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. F. H. Ayer of Nashua, N. H., arrived on Thursday to spend the month of July.

On Sunday evening the guests here were treated to a most enjoyable concert. The several members of the orchestra in solo and ensemble numbers gave the program as follows:

Selection—Red Mill, Herbert Trio—Le Cygne, Saint Saens Violin Solo—Salut D'Amour, Elgar Trio—Serenade Badene, E. Marie Trio—My Irish Rose.

Selection—Red Feather, De Koven Trio—Dixieland.

Mr. Rowe has been most fortunate in securing such able musicians to constitute the house orchestra for the season. All are most proficient in playing their various instruments, violin, cello and piano. Mrs. Robert Ely, violinist and leader, is one of rare musical attainments, playing her violin as only such an artist could.

Several social affairs have been arranged to take place during the week. A whist party and the regular weekly hop on Saturday evening are pleasantly anticipated by the young people here.

There have been many bookings made for over the Fourth. Several parties of Bostonians will arrive Wednesday for a short stay.

Mrs. Spottswood closed her theatrical season at Providence, R. I., on Saturday and joined her husband at Peaks the following day. Mr. Spottswood is a member of the company playing this season at the Gem.

trip to Gurnet Bridge daily will be given.

The late boat for Hope, Chebeague and Harpswell is already receiving good patronage and will be a great convenience to the traveling public. Special evening trips to the Gem Theatre from the lower landings will doubtless be arranged. The company has new wharves at the lower bay points, those at South Harpswell and Chebeague having just been finished.

THE LOBSTER'S SHELL.

A New One Is Grown Before the Old One Is Cast Off.

Odd as it may sound to say so, the lobster grows before, not after, he casts his old hard shell—that is to say, he makes new cells and tissues, which are not at once filled out, but which are intended to swell to their full dimensions as soon as he has got rid of his binding and confining external skeleton. When the critical moment at last arrives a new soft shell grows entire within the older and harder one, and the animal then withdraws himself, leg by leg, claw by claw and swimmeret by swimmeret, out of the enveloping coat of mail which covers him. The shedding of the old coat is complete and absolute. Not a fragment remains. Even the apparently internal hard portions are cast off with the rest, for the entire covering forms one continuous piece, the interior portions being really, so to speak, folds of the skin inserted inward.

An entirely new skeleton had already grown within the old one, but exceedingly soft and flexible in texture, and the body becomes so almost fluid or jellylike—not in structure, but in power of compression and extension—that even the big claws are drawn out through the narrower apertures of the joints in a perfectly marvelous manner. After a longer or shorter period of muscular protraction the soft lobster at last disengages itself entirely from the dead shell and emerges upon the world a new and defenseless fleshy creature. The whole cask skeleton, ruptured in any part, but disengaged by lifting up the body piece where it joins the tail, looks exactly like an entire dead lobster.

How to Tell Pure Maple Sugar.

Unadulterated maple sugar is about the color of coffee. In cakes it is likely to be hard, but in balls it is soft and can be dug out with a silver case knife. The adulterated article is dark and always hard, whether in ball or cake. It is more difficult to detect adulterated sirup, but the latter will never crystallize under several months' exposure. If crystals form in the can within a few weeks after it has been received the consumer may be assured that the product has been adulterated with cane or beet sugar. When sugar was made years ago over an open fire it was a deep brown, but since the evaporator came into use it is light and free from the twang that formerly characterized it.

MRS. ALINE DEPASSE.

Mrs. Aline DePasse, 776 E. 165th St., New York, N. Y., writes:
"It gives me pleasure to testify to the curative qualities of Peruna and Manalin. I was afflicted for over seven years with catarrh of the head, throat and digestive organs. I consulted many physicians, but they did me no good.
"One day I happened to read some testimonials in your Peruna Almanac. I decided to try Peruna and Manalin. I bought a bottle of each, and after taking them for a week I noticed a change for the better. So I kept it up, and after using twelve bottles I was perfectly cured.
"I also gave the medicine to my children and they had the same beneficial result. I would never be without these remedies in the house.
"I highly recommend Peruna and Manalin to all my friends, and in fact to everybody."
Miss Mildred Grey, 110 Weimar St., Appleton, Wis., writes:
"It gives me pleasure to recommend Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I had this disease for a number of years, and could not enjoy a mouthful of food that I ate. It was indeed a great relief when I hit upon Peruna, and obtained decided results from the first. I took six bottles before I felt entirely cured of my trouble, but I had an aggravated case."

Pure White Lead is the Natural Paint Pigment

Numerous compounds are being offered to take the place of white lead as a paint, but no real substitute for it has yet been found. Pure White Lead has a peculiar property of amalgamating with the wood upon which it is used—added to this it has an elasticity which permits the paint to follow the natural expansion and contraction of the wood. Pure White Lead (with its full natural tenacity and elasticity, unimpaired by adulterants), alone fulfills all the requirements of the ideal paint. Every keg which bears the Dutch Boy trade mark is positively guaranteed to be absolutely Pure White Lead made by the Old Dutch Process.

Peaks Island

At no time of year does one have a greater desire to flee away to the country or seashore than in the "good old summer time." The trees laden with their wealth of foliage, or the flowering beauty and fragrance of the garden with its many tiny shoots of green in strongest contrast to the brown earth or pebbled shore. All most strongly appeal to city dwellers with an almost irresistible power, which together with the companionship of family or friends what wonder is it that with rest and recreation the summer life is so beneficial to man, woman and child.

During the past week the tide of travel has set strongly in this direction and the bright June weather has served to open wide the doors of many cottages, camps and more pretentious summer residences scattered here and there about the island.

Mr. and Mrs. Jabez True and family are occupying their cottage again this season.
The Charles Phinneys, also the John D. Keefe families have recently joined the cottage colony, and are to remain through the summer. Among others, opening their cottages the past week are Mr. J. C. W. Pevey and family of Winter street, also the V. H. Sargent family of Cumberland avenue, Portland.

Mrs. Edward McCleary has had as recent guests her sister, Mrs. E. McCleary and sons of Somerville, Mass.
The newest fad in summer houses has resulted in the erection of particularly novel, comfortable and pretty structures styled as bungalows, and it is said that in New England there are probably more examples of this form of a summer home than in any other part of the country. Several attractive bungalows have been built since last season at Peaks. That of Dr. Wm. Louis Merrill, the well known dentist of Portland, is perhaps one of the most pretentious and an example of what may be done for the making of a charming summer retreat. It was designed by its owner and is constructed of an interesting blend of wood and stone. A veranda whence an extended view of the bay may be had, is one of the important features of the exterior and directly behind the veranda is the spacious living room, after the style of bungalows in general the world over. Mr. Alfred Butman of Waltham, Mass., also has an attractive bungalow which was built since last season and has been leased by Massachusetts parties for the summer.

It is somewhat early in the season for social functions to any large extent to have as yet occurred. A number of the cottagers are busily engaged in making preparations for entertaining guests over the Fourth. Mrs. V. M. Borthly entertained on Monday members of the Gilt Edge Whist club to which she belongs. The ladies came down on the steamer Pilgrim at 10:30 spending the entire day. The attractive cottage presented a gala day appearance. A large American flag was thrown to the breeze from the pinnacle and the spacious veranda had been made to look most inviting with coxey chairs, a hammock and all the other accessories that go to make up a sort of outdoors living room. At noon an appetizing lunch was served, the tables being arranged about the veranda and wild flowers of various kinds formed the decorations. Later whist was enjoyed and many high scores made. The afternoon passed all too quickly and the ladies were loth to leave, so enjoyable had this outing been to all. As preparations were made for a return to the city in the late afternoon boat, many expressions of pleasure and congratulations were extended to the hostess for the very enjoyable day spent at Gilt Edge cottage and the hospitality dispensed. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lord, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Selden, Mrs. Cobb, Mrs. Clark, Miss Anderson, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Ballard, Mrs. Kimball, Mrs. Dow, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Nutt, Mrs. Miller, Miss Emma Lord, Miss Marie Bosworth, Miss True, Son New Gloucester, was a special guest for the occasion.
Casco Howard of Boston, the talented child actor, accompanied by his mother are spending their eighth season here. Casco, a lad of ten years began his stage career at the age of three appearing at the Gem theatre with the summer company in 1906, and taking the part of the son of Napoleon in the play known as "King of Rome," in which he made a great impression. Casco inherits a decided taste for stage life, his father, Thomas Charles Howard, of Boston, being an actor of considerable repute. The past winter Casco has spent in Boston appearing at times in child roles at the Boston and Globe theatres in the following plays, "The Sign of the Cross," "County Chairman," "Ben Hur," and with E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe in "Joan of Arc," and "Merchant of Venice." The child is most prepossessing in looks, and manner. He has big brown eyes that look at you in the most appealing sort of way, and this added to his sweet, sunny nature, have won for him hosts of friends. He spends much time playing on the beach and like all boys enjoys out-of-door sports of all kinds. He delights in writing stories for a pastime and last winter wrote several, two of which "The Mysterious Cave," and "Life on the Prairie" in which some thrilling adventures of a cowboy are vividly depicted, are later to appear in the "Youth's Companion." The child has a strong imagination, which is most unusual for one so young in years. It is probable that he will appear in a child role with the present company, playing at the Gem this season, who later contemplate putting on one of the strongest plays that has ever yet been staged at the Gem.

One of the most attractive of new cottages in process of erection is that of Mr. A. E. Harlow of Lewiston, a well known confectioner of that city. The situation is ideal and from the veranda a most extended view of the bay may be seen. The cottage will be completed within ten days and Mr. Harlow will bring his family here July 10 to remain until September.
Mr. G. Waldron Smith has just completed two new cottages which are ready for occupancy. Another in process of erection will be in readiness soon after the Fourth and has been leased by party for the remainder of the season.
The first motor boat of any special significance to enter the harbor was that of the Atlantic racer "Vitesse" of Latin title, signifying "Speed." This boat was made by the Atlantic Motor Company of Amesbury, Mass. The length from stem to stern measurement was 23 feet and width 4 feet 4 inches, and having a torpedo stern with three seats for carrying six people. The deck was a deep red color, the finishings of natural wood. The owners of the boat, Messrs. George Johnson of Boston and S. A. Gordhow of Salem, Mass., made the trip down from Amesbury (a distance of seventy miles) in seven hours. They arrived at Peak's Saturday evening late in a driving rain storm, and spent Sunday as guests at the Peak's Island House, leaving on Monday for a cruise to Bar Harbor. The motor boat was 12 horsepower and having three cylinders, and cost $750. No such fast sailing craft has ever been seen in Casco Bay at any previous time and when the "Vitesse" started off for her down east cruise she fairly shot out into the bay at such a marvellous pace as to astonish the large crowd of lookers that had assembled on the wharf to witness her departure.
The new motor boat "Tourist," owned by Oscar Randall was put into commission for the season on Monday. It is an exceedingly pretty little craft, and will doubtless be popular with pleasure parties for sails around the bay. Mr. George Randall's large sloop the "Lottie W." has also been put into commission.
Hospitality will be dealt out to a considerable degree by many of the cottagers who are to entertain guests for the Fourth. Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith will have as their guest, Hon. Frank A. Brooks of Rumford Falls.
Those recently joining the summer colony here are Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Robinson of Natick, Mass. Their cottage is one of the most attractive of the many cottages at Oceanside.
The "Rockmore" has been opened for the season by its owner, Mrs. Mary Gordon of Everett, Mass., who arrived Saturday accompanied by her daughter, Miss Marian Gordon.
One notes with interest the increase of tourists coming to Maine each season, from Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia and other large cities in the west. Chicago is represented by the Mark Owen family who are passing their third season here. Their cottage, known as the "Rockledge" is prettily situated near Haddock Cove. Mr. Owen is manager and owner of the Chicago transfer company of that city.
Glenheim cottage, overlooking Whitehead and owned by the A. A. Lawsons of Boston, was opened on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson coming down from Boston on that day. They will remain until September.

Tit for Tat.

Young Stevens was on his way north to spend the week end with his parents, and felt in a particularly jovial mood.

The train in which he was traveling had stopped at a small village. As a farmer who was sauntering up and down the platform came opposite Stevens' compartment he was asked by the youth if he knew that the Duke of Devonshire was in the train.

Immediately the man showed great interest and said:
"No! Is he?"

"I think he is not," answered Stevens. "I only asked if you knew that he was."

The former said nothing, but continued his walk on the platform. As he came opposite the window again he remarked that their town had been experiencing some excitement.

"What's the matter?" asked Stevens. "The authorities wouldn't let some folks bury a woman," replied the farmer.

"What was the reason for refusing?" "She wasn't dead," was the laconic reply.

And then he strolled away, leaving young Stevens biting his lip.—Judge's Library.

It Pays to be Honest.

The general manager of a traction system of a Western city recently received the following communication, together with a five-cent piece:

"I beg to advise you that a week or two ago I rode home on Car 1999, of your main street line. The car was very crowded, and the conductor or through no fault of his own, failed to reach me. When I left the car he was too far to the front to enable me to get to him. I therefore now remit you the amount of my fare, and beg to say that I would have done so sooner had it not been that I was out of town."

This unusual occurrence was reported by the general manager to the board of directors, with the result that by their instruction, an annual pass was sent to the honest patron, together with a letter couched in complimentary terms. The recipient may have recounted his experience to his neighbors, for in a little while the manager received a letter from another patron, reading:

"In view of the fact that yesterday I neglected to pay my fare on your line I herewith enclose a five-cent piece kindly forward pass to address below."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Cliff Island

With the many attractions that Casco Bay possesses, the question of where to pass the summer vacation can be easily answered for those who wish to summer by the sea, and the smaller islands away from the large contingent of summer tourists offer much in the way of rest and pleasure combined in the woods and shore. Here the lover of nature finds companionship, "tongues in trees, sermons in stones."

On Saturday this island presented the appearance of a midsummer gala day, with two picnics, namely, that of the Free Street First Baptist Sunday school, and daughters of Ivy Rebekah Lodge of Portland. The picnickers almost took possession of the island. Various sports were in order throughout the day. Members of Ivy Lodge had a clam bake on the bluff not far from the steamboat landing, and the husbands who had been especially invited for this occasion, did the duties of cooking and serving the dinner, to the general satisfaction of all.

Both picnic parties returned to the city on the late afternoon boat, after an enjoyable day.

Some extensive additions have been made to several of the cottages, while others have had piazzas and other improvements since last season. The Johnson cottage has been entirely re-furnished throughout and some necessary repairs made, also painted in attractive colors.

Dr. Sayward and family of Northampton, Mass., are occupying one of the Johnson cottages for the season. The Misses Bennett of Boston, Mass., are other lessees of a Johnson cottage.

Quite a representation of Pennsylvania people are already located here. Miss Mary Coffin of Phoenixville, Pa., with friends, is occupying the Stone cottage for the season.

Others arriving the past week include Mrs. Elizabeth Hudson and daughter, Miss A. W. Hudson of Phoenixville, Pa., who are enjoying cottage life here.

Among those who have recently joined the summer colony are Mr. and Mrs. George M. Fish of Auburn, Mass., occupying their cottage for a second season. The Fish cottage commands a fine view of the water, and for location is one of the best on the island.

Among Bostonians summering at this attractive resort are Mr. James Black and family, having taken a cottage for the season.

It is a little too early in the season for any social functions, but a number of the cottagers are making preparations to entertain guests over the Fourth.

The Aucosco House has already a fair booking for the season. The house under the new management of Mr. F. M. Prescott of Malden, Mass., promises to rival many of the larger houses. Recent arrivals include Levi Gleason, and Chas. F. Clark; also J. L. Hudson, A. L. Hudson, and Joseph Shannon, all of Portland.

Miss Emma Holst, also Miss Peables and friend of Morgantown, W. Va., are registered at this hotel, arriving on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Manson of Gardiner, Me., arrived the first of the week for a stay at the Aucosco.

Rev. H. R. Husle, a prominent divine of New York City, is spending a second season here.

At the John Dyer mansion, Gunville, Aus, consulting engineer, New York City, is a recent guest. Mr. Aus contemplates spending some weeks here.

The "Casco" cottage will be occupied this season by Bostonians, namely, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Parker and family. They were to arrive on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Black of Malden, Mass., arrived on Wednesday, joining the summer colony. They will occupy their attractive cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Cobb and their young daughter, Dorothy, together with Miss Sadie Griffin, arrived Saturday last at their summer home here on the island. They have been spending the winter in Portland, and the change will be enjoyable to them.

Noah's Remarkable Wife.

A clergyman happened to tell his son one Saturday afternoon what lesson he would read in church the next morning. The boy got hold of his father's Bible, found the lesson place and glued together the connecting pages.

In consequence the clergyman read to his flock the following day that "when Noah was 120 years old he took unto himself a wife, who was"—here he turned the page—"140 cubits long, 40 cubits wide, built of gopher wood, and covered with pitch in and out."

After reading the passage the clergyman read it again to verify it. Then, pushing back his spectacles, he looked gravely at his congregation and said: "My friends, this is the first time I ever read that in the Bible, but I accept it as evidence of the assertion that we are fearfully and wonderfully made."—Human Life.

IMPROVEMENT OF RANGES.

Plan of the Forest Service to Re-seed the Worn Out Grazing Lands.

Overcrowding of the grazing lands of the public domain of the West before the creation of the national forests brought many of the ranges into very poor condition, and many stockmen have requested advice on possible methods of increasing the forage. The bureau of plant industry of the Department of Agriculture and the forest service have just joined in co-operative work in investigating the best means to develop an increased forage crop in the overgrazed national forest.

Frederick V. Coville, of the bureau of plant industry, has been placed in charge of the work of making these investigations and will report to the Forester in the matter. The fields in which these investigations will immediately begin are located as follows: Imnaha National Forest, Oregon; Sawtooth National Forest, Idaho, and Pike's Peak National Forest, Colorado. The work in each forest will be in charge of a special inspector or special agent reporting to Mr. Coville.

Mr. Coville is well fitted to conduct these investigations in reseeded ranges, as he has had extensive experience in much other work along the same line. In 1898 he compiled a report on sheep grazing in the Cascade Mountains of Oregon for the forest service, and in 1904 in the service of the Public Lands Commission investigated and made a report on grazing under state lease laws. He is a director of the botanical experiment station of the Carnegie Institute at Tucson, Ariz., and is lending valuable service in the bureau plant industry of the Department of Agriculture.

The especial significance of this new departure lies in the fact that it shows the forest service is not only trying to prevent abuse from making the range worse, but is also taking active steps to make the range better. Obviously this is of large importance to the grazing industry. All grazing tends to change the character of the forage, generally for the worse, just as timber cutting tends to change the character of the forest for the worse by taking out the most valuable trees and leaving the poorer kinds to take their place.

One of the first results of over grazing is seen in the increase in the number of weeds which stock either refuse to eat or avoid as long as anything better can be found, and which therefore go to seed. If the natural grazing land of the West is to be made the most of, it must grow the kinds of forage which will give the range the highest value per acre to the stockman. It is, therefore, a fact of considerable interest to the stock industry that the matter is to be taken up scientifically, to find out in the light of full knowledge of the requirements and the feeding value of all kinds of plants what it will pay to try to introduce in the national forests.

In the management of grazing on some of the ranges the forest service has found it necessary to reduce greatly the number of stock in order to stop the damage from overgrazing of the land. That this damage has taken place is admitted by the stockmen themselves.

In attempting to increase the amount of forage by artificial seeding, if possible, the principal questions to be settled are whether it is practicable to seed these ranges or any portion of them with seed of either native or cultivated grasses or other forage plants, and what system of range management of both cattle and sheep will best permit the valuable native grasses to reseed themselves and thus increase the carrying capacity of the range. If the problems can be solved in the ranges where the investigations are about to begin, other experiments will naturally follow in practically all of the national forests which contain range lands.

It is, of course, not the purpose of the forest service to promote by these studies, or in any other way, the interests of the stockman as against the settler. When the bona fide homesteader is ready to take possession every right thinking person, whatever his private interest may be, must recognize that it is time for the stockman to get off. This is just as true of forest as of range. What the forest service is trying to do is to make every acre add all that it can to the general welfare. If it is worth most for farming, it should be farmed; if for grazing, grazed; if for timber growing and water conservation, it should be used accordingly. It is a simple principle, and plainly in the best interest of the west, yet it has been often misunderstood and misrepresented.

Children Need Exercise.

The school room is a menace to health of the child which at the present time we cannot escape. As the methods of preventive medicine develop and enforce themselves upon our municipal authorities, the ventilation and overcrowding of our schools, the defective methods of handling the children's wraps and the lack of medical supervision will be corrected. In the meantime we can do much to protect our children by caring for their general health in the manner indicated and by thoroughly cleaning and airing their school wraps and clothing each day. The hours of study outside the school in ambitious, clever children must be so regulated as to give the child an abundance of exercise in the open air. If there is any evidence that the school life is having a bad effect upon the health of the child the cause should be looked for, and, if necessary, he should be temporarily withdrawn from school.—National Congress of Mothers Magazine.

Millionaire in Love with Poverty.

On the island of Elba there lately died a man named Melani, who, though a millionaire, had for many years lived as a guest in a peasant's family. He had, it seems, completely lost his memory, and had certainly forgotten that he was so rich. He always lived as a poor man, passing his time in meditation and prayer, so that the fishers of the island regarded him as a saint. M. Melani bequeathed everything he had to his kind-hearted hosts, who, as can be easily understood, were surprised beyond measure when they heard how rich their former guest had been. At Pistoja, in Tuscany, M. Melani owned a magnificent mansion, which had been kept closed since 1856. On opening the house after the owner's death it was found that all the furniture and artistic objects had disappeared—nobody knows how or when. An only relative is opposing the will on the ground that deceased was of unsound mind.—Tit-Bits.

I Am From Siam.

Mr. John Barrett, the new director of the Bureau of the American Republics, tells a good story on himself. Some years ago, he was asked by a friend to make a speech at a big barbecue which was to be held at a distant town.

His friend was to have been the principal speaker, but owing to illness was unable to attend, so he sent Mr. Barrett instead. He telegraphed the chairman of the barbecue that "John Barrett, ex-minister to Siam, would deliver the address of the day."

The chairman, being acquainted with ministers of only one kind, was somewhat astonished that Mr. Barrett should be sent. When the time came for the speech he went to the front of the platform to introduce the speaker. After consulting the telegram again to be sure of the name he said:

"It gives me great pleasure to introduce the principal speaker of the day. The Reverend John Barrett, ex-minister to the benighted heathen of Siam, will now speak."—Youth's Companion.

How To "Pack In" a Deer

By "Nimrod."

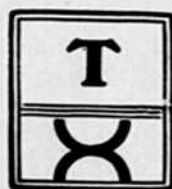

THE novice will have much trouble "packing in" his first deer, unless he has experienced men near him to show him how the trick is done. Carrying a deer into camp is no little task, especially if the hunter is several miles out, with a range of timbered mountains to cover. But if the deer is properly slung, it can be carried in with less than half the labor and trouble otherwise encountered.

As soon as the deer is shot its throat should be cut, for the protection of the meat. If it is a doe it is a good plan to remove the entire head, as this will lessen the weight. Then dress by removing everything except the heart and liver, though the latter should also be taken out if pierced by the bullet. The lungs of a deer are not very good, but if it is not far to camp they can be left in; but where the distance to camp is long, the lungs should be taken out, as they attract flies more than any other part of the meat. Begin skinning at the ankles, slitting back and cutting off the legs at the knee. This allows about eight or ten inches of loose skin for tying and slinging. If the hunter does not want to return immediately to camp, the deer should be hung up, after cleaning, and the spot marked in such a way as to be easily located. If the carcass is spread open when hung up, the flies will not bother it, even though the weather is warm. The "blow fly," which does the most mischief, will not enter a wide-open carcass, but if a small aperture is left into which he can crawl, he will creep in and deposit eggs that become working maggots within a few hours.

As to the method of slinging and carrying: Tie the loose skin ends of the opposite legs together; that is, tie the right front leg and the left hind leg, the right hind leg and the left front one together. This makes what the hunter calls a "crossed sling." If the deer is a season's fawn or spike buck it may be carried on one shoulder, but if it weighs eighty or one hundred pounds, the better method is to sling it on both shoulders. To do this easily requires a little practice, as the deer must be laid down with the tied legs up; the hunter then gets down almost on his back and runs both arms through, drawing it up and slinging it on both shoulders. As shown in the accompanying photo, the hunter who has his deer thus slung has both hands free, and can thus make instant use of his rifle, should the occasion require. If carried on one shoulder, one hand is needed to steady the deer, thus giving only one hand for the rifle, and making it impossible to use the gun till after the load is dropped. To rest himself, the hunter simply lies down on his back, with the deer under him, choosing a hillside or slope for this.—From Recreation.

Return to Nature!

By Grover Cleveland.

HE wholesome sentiments which spring from country life are being overwhelmed by the ambitions and tendencies that flow out from our great cities. Few have the hardihood to withstand the swirl and rush of city life, or to remain indifferent to the promises of sudden wealth and the excitement of speculation in a metropolis, where immense fortunes are made and lost in a single day.

I believe that we must set ourselves against the fallacy that a city life is the easier and the most productive of happiness.

We are proud of our cities, of course. But we must not allow them wholly to shape our ideals and our ambitions. Nothing that the wealth of a city can buy will atone for the loss of that American sturdiness and independence which the farm and the small town have so frequently produced.

It is unquestionably true that nearness to nature has an elevating influence upon heart and character. Nature is a school of all the harder virtues. What, for instance, can impart a more effective lesson in patience than a day's fishing for the whimsical black bass?

As I have said on a previous occasion, the real worth and genuineness of the human heart are measured best by its readiness to submit to the influences of nature, and to appreciate the goodness of the Supreme Power who is its creator. This is the central point of my philosophy of life.

We need more of those old-fashioned, conscientious folk who adhere to the simple way of living, and who believe that every fortune should be earned honestly and fairly by the man who gets it.

The history of our country shows that the citizen who lives close to the soil and to the influences of nature is far more apt to shape his own political convictions, instead of being a mere obedient fraction of a political machine. He is certain to be more self-reliant and more stubborn in holding fast to his own idea of what is right.

No matter how wonderful the progress of the future may be, the standard virtues of independence, industry, honesty and patriotism can never be improved. As long as the world lasts they will be the basis of true national greatness and prosperity.

The Passing of the "Strenuous Life"

By E. J. Appleton.

DO you remember when the head of the nation first inspired us with the strenuous life? We heard, or read the word, and when the small boy asked us what it meant, we cleared our throat and told him not to bother us. When he wasn't looking we opened the dictionary and found out ourselves. Then we became rampant strenuous livers. We read and we talked—especially we talked—the strenuous existence; we got up devilishly early in the winter, pounded ourselves on the chest, took cold baths, ran around the block, and prepared ourselves to be President, too, some day.

But it didn't last. To be born strenuous is one thing. (It isn't your fault, and you can't legitimately take any credit for it.) To acquire strenuousness is a different thing; it takes lots of will power—especially when there's ice on the bathroom windows just before you plunge in. And to have strenuousness thrust at you, over you, upon you, is still another thing. It is a thing you can't talk yourself into liking for any length of time—unless you are an insurance solicitor with winning ways.

The novelty of the strenuous life wore off. You remember how. You got up later; you turned a little warm water into the cold for the bath; you walked one block in place of ten; and the woodpile grew lichen-covered from neglect.—The Bohemian.

Idleness The Parent of Crime

By Dr. Arnold Lorand, Eminent German Alienist.

CANNOT admit the condition of "dementia Americana," but there is something which we might term "dementia plutocratica." It is not exclusively American, although it may be more frequent here than in some other countries, because of the great number of rich men in the country. Idleness in the children of the rich, the lack of proper occupation, the gratification of every desire for whatever can be purchased, are powerful factors in producing criminality.

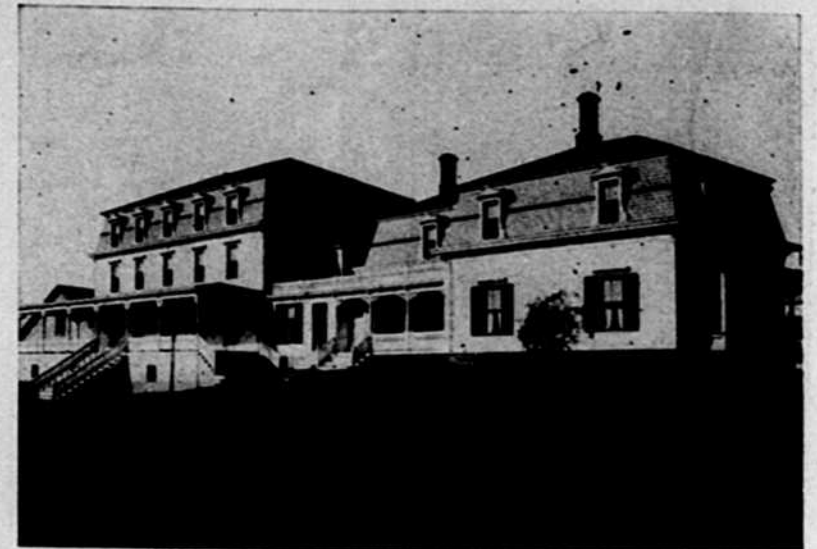

In the Thaw case we see the results of such factors working together with hereditary predisposition to nervous disease. Society is in no way benefited by putting such a man in jail. Solitude and lack of occupation would only make his mental condition worse. Let him, under work and discipline, with nourishing food, have a chance to regain his normal condition.

To Conscience Fund, $60.

Making restitution for some act of dishonesty committed years ago, a Fort Wayne man who recently became converted to Christianity has sent Mrs. Belle Hollenbe, a widow of this city, a check for $60, inclosing in it a self-explanatory letter.
Mrs. Hollenbe was astonished to receive the letter and check and could not believe that the paper was good, but she cashed it at the bank and found the check bona fide and obtained the money. The recipient of the money is the widow of Elmer Hollenbe, who was formerly in business here. The writer of the letter says he owned Mr. Hollenbe the money—Lafayette correspondence Indianapolis News.

Purchasers of Islands.

To buy an island, of course, one need not be a Power. Some of the Pacific Islands are in private hands. A Mr. Greig last year purchased Fanning Island over the head of a German syndicate. A group, of which Hull and Flint Islands are the largest, has been acquired by an English firm famous in the soap trade. Another trading concern was so fortunate as to obtain from the last Government a long lease of Paanofa Island at the remarkable annual rental of $50. This island is rich in guano phosphates, a coincidence which enables the company to make a profit of something like $50,000 a year.

In Danger.

Young Robert watched with absorbed interest his mother's vigorous application of the bath towel to his small body.
"Wipe me perfly dry, muvrah," he remarked cheerfully, "or I'll rust."—New York Times.

TWO TERRIBLE YEARS.

The Untold Agonies of Neglected Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. James French, 65 Weir Street, Taunton, Mass., says: "When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was so run down and miserable that I could hardly endure it. Terrible pains in the back attacked me frequently and the kidney secretions were much disordered. I was a nervous wreck and there seemed no hope. Doan's Kidney Pills brought my first relief and six boxes have so thoroughly cured my kidneys that there has been no return of my old trouble."

Didn't Know the Cipher.

The inability to read a cipher once cost a notable of France his head. When the Chevalier de Rohan was in the Bastille his friends, wishing to let him know that his accomplice had died without confessing, passed the following cipher, written on a shirt, into his dungeon: "Mg duhxessigu ghj yxuj; lm et ulge alj." The cipher was not a difficult one, being arranged by a complete transposition of the alphabet, but De Rohan did not have the clue, and he puzzled over the meaningless words in vain. A solution of the riddle meant the guillotine, but the puzzle was beyond him and he pleaded guilty because he could not decipher "Le prisonnier est mort; in n'a rien dit."

NO RELIEF FOR 15 YEARS.

All Sorts of Remedies Failed to Cure Eczema—Sufferer Tried Cuticura and is Entirely Cured.

"I have had eczema for over fifteen years, and have tried all sorts of remedies to relieve me, but without avail. I stated my case to one of my friends and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I bought them with the thought that they would be unsuccessful, as with the others. But after using them for a few weeks I noticed to my surprise that the irritation and peeling of the skin gradually decreased, and finally, after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment it disappeared entirely. I feel now like a new man, and I would gladly recommend these remedies to all who are afflicted with skin diseases. David Blum, Box A, Bedford Station, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1905."

A Record Year.

Though the first half of 1907 has not passed, its record of casualty already exceeds the total of 1906. There have been thirty-eight railroad accidents of more than ordinary magnitude, in which 273 persons have been killed and 925 injured.

Twenty-three steamers have been wrecked, involving the loss of 902 lives.

There have been thirteen mine accidents in which 355 persons have perished.

These casualties have been due to human negligence or ignorance in large part, but nature has been destructive also. Tidal waves have swept away 2240, earthquakes 5100, hurricanes 530, cyclones thus far seven.

The cloud has a silver lining, however. The total of gifts and bequests in all forms of philanthropy in less than six months of 1907 is larger than the total for the twelve months of 1906, being $108,961,589, as compared with $106,281,083. And never have there been five months during the last twenty-five years in which the total embezzlement and various forms of defalcation has been as small as in the first five months of 1907.—Chicago Tribune.

Just Callers.

"You don't have many visitors out here," said Citman, "do you?"
"Oh! yes," replied Subbuss, "coming and going nearly every day."

COFFEE COMPLEXION

Many Ladies Have Poor Complexions From Coffee.

"Coffee caused dark colored blotches on my face and body. I had been drinking it for a long while and these blotches gradually appeared, until finally they became permanent and were about as dark as coffee itself."

"I formerly had as fine a complexion as one could ask for."

"When I became convinced that coffee was the cause of my trouble, I changed and took to using Postum Food Coffee, and as I made it well, according to directions, I liked it very much, and have since that time used it in place of coffee."

"I am thankful to say I am not nervous any more, as I was when I was drinking coffee, and my complexion is now as fair and good as it was years ago. It is very plain that coffee caused the trouble."

Most bad complexions are caused by some disturbance of the stomach and coffee is the greatest disturber of digestion known. Almost any woman can have a fair complexion if she will leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee and nutritious, healthy food in proper quantity. Postum furnishes certain elements from the natural grains from the field that Nature uses to rebuild the nervous system and when that is in good condition, one can depend upon a good complexion as well as a good healthy body. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," a pkgs.

Cundy's Harbor

Welcome Sebascodigan! How pretty the little craft does look as she rounds White Point, and makes her landing each day. It does seem so good to know we have such a convenience and pleasure and hope the patronage will sufficiently prove our appreciation in and for the steamer. We fully understand there are existing conditions detrimental to a great financial success this season, but it will only be a short time when changes will come that will materially promote unlimited prosperity. In the meantime let us, each and all, aid the Harpswell Steamboat Co. in every way possible, by word or deed, that the courage needed will never flag. It means much now to have a regular line of steamboat service and will mean a great deal more later as property increases in value and our little village takes on a new dress of activity parallel with adjoining resorts. Again we say, "Welcome!"

Targets for Anglers.

Not long ago several wood disks, one foot in diameter, painted white, and each provided with a line and a lead weight, were placed in the pool in Central Park, this city, by the Anglers' Club, for targets for fly and bait-casting. As a granitoid walk adjoins the eastern end of the pool, and the targets furthest from the casting platform are near this walk, thousands of park visitors worry the lives out of the policemen and park employees with questions relative to the purpose of the white disks. They have been asked if the strange things are early lily pads and everything under the sun an idle longer can imagine. One of the patrolmen told me the other day that his naturally sweet temper had been ruined since the appearance of "them things." But the most curious question of all was fired at me one day as I watched the anglers practicing.

"Are those tin cans used in fish breeding?" asked the visitor.

"What cans?" I queried, not grasping his meaning.

"Why, those tin cans in the lake?"

"Oh! No, those are targets."—Forest and Stream.

Second-Hand Battle Ships for Junk.

The tremendous improvements in naval architecture and armament were graphically illustrated a few days ago in England when the battleship Sans Pareil, built twenty years ago at a cost of $3,597,210, was sold for $132,000. With the vessel went two 110-ton guns, one 29-ton and twelve 6-inch breech-loading guns. The Conqueror, which cost $2,092,165, was knocked down for $84,000. The Undaunted, costing $1,280,275, went for $72,000. Three smaller vessels, representing an original investment of $500,000, brought $23,300. Owing to a ruling of the British Admiralty which necessitates the breaking up of these vessels in England, several third-class powers were robbed of the opportunity of picking up a navy at bargain prices.—New York World.

Just a hundred years ago the first evangelical missionary went from England to China. His name was Robert Morrison; he remained 34 years, translated the Bible into Chinese, wrote a Chinese grammar and a dictionary of 4595 pages.

A ton of water from the Dead Sea will yield 187 pounds of salt; that from the Atlantic ocean, 81 pounds, and from the Pacific, 79 pounds.

Duchess Paints a Sign.

The signboard of an inn at Rose-nath, on the Clyde, was painted some time ago by the Duchess of Argyll while away a period of tedious waiting. The Duchess is, of course, well known as an artist, and has for many years had a studio in Kensington Palace, where she spends many hours in painting and modeling. As a sculptor she has great ability, and her tutor, the late Sir Edgar Boehm, thought very highly of her skill.—London Reader.

SHORTAGE OF WILD MEN.

Showman Advertisers and Only One Candidate Responds.

If any colored person with leanings toward the stage desires to fill weak engagements he should communicate at once with James Wilson, at 1 Bleeker street, New York, and hear something to his advantage.

Mr. Wilson, who was a showman before the frankfurter invaded Coney Island, is greatly in need of a wild man. Yesterday he advertised for one—a colored one. He expected that his advertisement would bring such a rush of prospective wild men that he would have to have the police on hand to keep the street clear. Instead he had one lone caller. As the post of wild man has to be filled by today, the man was hired. His real name, the showman said, is a professional secret. On the stage his name will be Boo Boo.

There has never been such a shortage in the wild man market. Mr. Wilson sat in his combined office and flat last night, and bemoaned the fact. He had to take the solitary applicant for occupant of a cage at a near-by resort, because of his pressing need, but it is doubtful if he will last. In the first place he has one of his front teeth filled with gold, which no respectable wild man should have.

"I am up against it," said Mr. Wilson, shaking his head as he looked up from his desk filled with circulars from dentists on the treatment of the teeth. "Imagine me getting up and saying: 'This, ladies and gents, is Boo Boo, who was captured by sailors in the Philippines. He is positively wild, and every attempt to tame him has been without result. He was secured only after a fierce fight, in which he maimed 18 sailors. He tore them apart ladies and gentlemen, and even now he eats 'em alive.' And then to have the wild man grin up at your audience, and show a nicely filled gold tooth. I've been in this business 25 years, and never before have I had to put an ad in a paper for a wild man."

The gold tooth is not the only trouble with the colored man who applied for the job. During the interview with Wilson he developed a tendency to say "huh" on the slightest provocation. Now the showman is haunted by the fear that Boo Boo in the cage if anybody asks him if he is really wild may forget his part and say "huh."

Mr. Wilson explained that the make-up and car fare are furnished by himself. The first consists of a scant costume of feathers and much paint. All the wild man has to do is to look wild, rattle his chains at dramatic parts of the lecture, and try to bite children who come too near the bars of his cage. For this he will get $4 a Sunday. What he does the rest of the week is no concern of his employer, but he would prefer a man who gets covered with grime on week days and forgets to wash it off on Saturday nights.

"Colored people are so unreliable," said Mr. Wilson, shaking his head dolefully. "You're never sure they are going to show up, and it's no fun scurrying about at the last minute to find a wild man. I had such a nice wild man the first part of the season, but I never could be sure he'd show up. He was very black, and he must have worked in a tunnel or subway. He had fine bloodshot eyes, and then he was very forgetful about shaving. All of this made him a wild man worth having. I tell you, when I told the people how he was captured the way that con would say 'Gr-r-r' and rattle his chains was certainly inspiring. It was worth every cent of a dime, and recollect that money don't grow in your pockets like the hair on your head for—But there I go lecturing when I'm just talking to you. This business is getting on my nerves."

"I'm up against a wild man with a gold front tooth. I know that if I am a lecturing and that con shows that gold tooth to the audience I'll simply break down. I know I won't sleep to-night. I'll be dreaming of wild men saying 'Huh' when they aren't supposed to be able to talk. Things ain't like the old days."

And the showman sorrowfully turned to his desk and took up his investigations as to how best to conceal a gold tooth.—New York Times.

Fathers in the Home.

By ALTA.

The mothers generally receive all credit for the training of a child who makes himself a great name. "I'm what my mother made me," is an oft-quoted phrase which has much truth in it—and we like to hear it from the lips of great men. But it is just as true and oh, how sadly true, on the lips of the glutton, the drunkard, the criminal. Her neglect may have caused the boy to choose evil associates who dragged him down to the lower strata of society. Just here is where the father's good work in the home comes in. They understand better to what evils a boy will be exposed, they understand better, also, what kind of a young man should be accepted as his daughter's suitor.

The mother's love is beautiful but there is something peculiarly sacred, sweet and strong in a father's love.

I often recall this story by an old soldier. He said: "I think one of the saddest incidents of the war which came under my observation was just after the battle of Gettysburg. Off on the outskirts, seated on the ground with his back against a tree, was a soldier dead. His eyes were riveted on some object clasped tightly in his hands. As we drew near we saw that it was an amputee of two small children. Man though I was, hardened through long years of carnage and bloodshed, the sight of that man who had looked on his children for the last time in this world, who, far away in a secluded spot, had rested himself against a tree, that he might feast his eyes on his little darlings, brought tears to my eyes which I could not restrain. There were six of us in the company, and we all found great lumps rising in our throats, and mists gathering before our eyes, which almost blinded us. We stood looking at him for some time. I was thinking of the wife and baby I had left at home, and wondering, how soon in the mercy of God, she would be left a widow, and my baby boy fatherless. We looked at each other and instinctively seemed to understand.

Not a word was spoken, but we dug a grave and laid the poor fellow to rest with his children's picture clasped over his heart. Over his grave, on the tree against which he had leaned, I inscribed the words: "Somebody's Father."

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Some men are born great, but the majority don't even have greatness thrust upon them.

It sometimes happens that when an actor finds things coming his way he tries to dodge them.

There may be plenty of room at the top, but victims of that tired feeling never reach it.

Men who boast of their virtues would probably have more to say if they enumerated their vices.

And the more energy a man expends in talking the less he will have left to assist him in making good.

Many a man would be unable to paddle his own canoe if he couldn't borrow some other man's paddle.

Genius is said to be a certain form of madness, but the madness of most people is more or less uncertain.

It may not be your fault if you have never been in jail; more than likely it's due to your good fortune.

A man's idea of good luck is any old kind that leaves him a few dollars ahead of the other fellow's game.

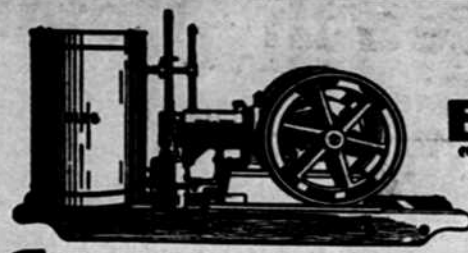

Don't sit down and think about what you would do if you could live your life over. Get busy and improve the rest of it.

It's a waste of time to attempt to dodge a hypocrite. He knows more dodges in a minute than you will learn in a lifetime.

And when you hear a man boast of his ancestors it's a safe bet that his descendants will have no occasion to boast of theirs.—Bakers' Helper.

The Book Thief's City.

A Paris correspondent, writing to a paper in Berlin, says: "Paris is the home of the great book thief. It is just sixty years since Count Libri, a librarian of the National Library, fled to England, taking with him books to the value of 2,000,000 francs, belonging to the library. He was sentenced 'in contumaciam' to ten years' imprisonment, but never served a day and never returned a book. The directors had to purchase them from people to whom they had been sold, and paid large prices for them. A similar theft has recently been discovered in the library of the Ecole des Beaux Arts. Here also the thief remains unpunished because he died before his crime became known. A good name covers much and the thief, who was M. Thomas, an officer of the Legion of Honor, architect of the Grand Palais and recipient of the Roman prize, was at liberty to plunder the library at will. He was an enthusiast on the subject of old engravings and bibliographic curiosities, and could satisfy his desires in that direction without molestation on the part of the custodians. His method was to tear engravings from books or to carry away the whole work. In this manner he acquired books and pictures to the value of about 200,000 francs." The Thomas thefts brought to light the fact that no inventory had ever been made of the Beaux Arts Library, and that instead of a modern catalogue antique slips and memoranda furnished all the information as to the valuable collection.

The Early Bird.

Bishop Brewster of Connecticut is noted for his funny stories, and his latest is said to be about an old reprobate who decided to repent, and announced to everyone that whatever wrong he had done should be made right. So a man whom he had cheated out of a large sum of money went around at midnight to demand it.

"But what did you come at this hour for, and wake me up? Why not wait till tomorrow?" said the old sinner, crossly.

"I came now," replied the man, "to avoid the rush."—Harper's Weekly.

He Took a Rest.

As it is undoubtedly true that one man's meat may be another man's poison, so it happens sometimes that what seems like work to one person is regarded as recreation by another.

"Had a good lecture on Alaska, didn't we, Eb?" asked one of Mr. Dodd's neighbors, meeting him the day after the lecture. "To sit there peaceful as pie for two hours, hearing him reel off the information and seeing those pictures cast on the screen was a grand rest for me, beat out with cranberrying as I be."

"It was a good enough talk," admitted Mr. Dodd, in a grudging tone, "but it didn't rest me any to speak of. Between having to set stock-still without a chance to get in a word for two mortal hours, and crane my neck looking at those views, I was pretty well wore when I got home."

"But I took the lantern out into the woodshed and by the time I'd split up a week's kindlings I felt kind o' rested and calm down."—Youth's Companion.

EXCELLENT ESSAYS.

Chebeague High School Graduates Do Honor To Their School.

Miss Agnes B. Webber, Mr. Theodore P. Hill and Mr. Stanley T. Bennett Received Diplomas.

ADVICE TO UNDERGRADUATES.

Agnes B. Webber.

Dear young friends, we, the class of nineteen hundred and seven are leaving the Chebeague high school forever. We leave the school entirely with you. You must take our places. First of all, young friends, do not neglect the annual entertainment. Strive to make the coming one the best of all. Do not think of it merely as an event for having a good time. Think of it as one thing essential to a good education. Put your very best efforts forth and make it a success. Remember that the success of your school depends upon your co-operative efforts. Strive then to be very punctual in attendance and encourage the younger students to enter the high school, that it may be a great benefit to the community. I will say to those now attending the school: Do not get discouraged. Press onward toward the mark. I cannot tell you of it merely. I am that I ever persevered. It seems wonderful when I look back and think that out of a class of twenty only three have endured the hardships and have at last conquered them. We have had many attendant drawbacks, but at last we stand as conquerors.

I trust many of you will much more successful if you will only fight it out. Remember that your education is a personal matter. You alone must conquer the difficulties. "Get a good education, for, to him who will, ways are not wanting." The school has, as all know, been subject to a great diversity of teachers. Of course it would have been better for some reasons not to have had such a change. But when we stop to think of it, how beneficial it has been to us all. Each teacher has different ideas concerning our studies. This has been a very great help to us. If we had had only one teacher, we would still be clinging to the same ideas.

How amusing it will be in years to come when we look back and think how bravely we rounded the bakers in the Chebeague High school, and of the various pilots who have guided us over the troubled waters.

Dear friends, next, let me instill into your minds a few words in regard to your personal character. Cheerfulness is a very important thing to cultivate in our souls. If we make up our minds to it, we can be cheerful under any circumstances, no matter how adverse they may seem for the time being. By doing this we increase not only our own happiness, but the happiness of those around us. Dr. Johnson has said that the habit of looking upon the bright side of everything was better than five thousand dollars salary a year. A laugh is worth a hundred groans. By keeping the face to the sunlight the shadows are cast behind. Let us cultivate cheerfulness. Let us look upon the virtues and not the faults of those around us.

There are very few, if any of us, who find things just as we want them. Annoyances, disappointments and troubles come to us all. But strive to do your best and hope for pleasant things.

Young friends, encouragement is one of the most constant needs in life. Multitudes are bearing heavy burdens which a few words of cheer would lighten. Life takes on new beauty when under the rain of encouraging words. A single expression of appreciation will sometimes turn a soul to an upward path. Where we have one chance of doing a good deed, we have a hundred chances to speak a good word. The way the battle may go on in another's life, may depend upon our faithfulness in speaking an encouraging word at the proper time. Human lives are moulded by honest words which have in them a tone of quality. Tokens of sympathy and admiration are the means which enable others to win the conflicts. The kind, invigorating word is like a spring along a desert highway. Frances Ridley Havergal sang truly when she sang:

"The memory of a kindly word for long gone by,
The fragrance of a faded flower sent lovingly,
The gleaming of a sudden smile or sudden tear,
The warmer pressure of the hand,
The tone of cheer."

Another thing which adds to our character is the love of the truth and the habit of speaking the truth. The man who never excuses himself for making a mistake is not likely to be truthful in his speech. Conversely, the man who is always careful will probably be clear-thoughted in his speech. "To speak the truth, we must know the truth. What we are not sure of, we must never express as a fact. Accuracy in the matter in hand may be of little importance, but accuracy of the mental and moral habit is beyond estimate.

No matter how much we may be engaged in pleasures or in occupations we find some time for thought and reflection. Mental occupations are a pleasing relief from bodily exertions. The mind finds in its contemplations a source of amusement and of pleasure. Every day brings some disappointment and every moment brings us nearer the time when the present scenes shall fade away and future prospects cannot be formed. This consideration displays the beneficial results of furnishing the mind with ideas which may amuse it in leisure and dispel the gloom of melancholy. The uneducated man compared with the educated, is like a blind man and one that can see. How literature beautifies the mind, how it multiplies the ideas. It affords pleasures which wealth cannot procure and which poverty cannot entirely take away. A well educated mind places its possessor above the trifling vexations which continually perplex those who have no resources within themselves. In some cases it elevates us above the smiles and frowns of fortune.

Dear friends, last of all let us remember that the success of our after life is formed while in school. If we get a good education, we are very sure of finding plenty of employment. On the other hand, if we are not well educated, we find it very difficult to obtain a good position. Strive therefore, young friends, to get the very best education possible. We have only a short time to go to school, and then we are called to go forth into the world. Let us start not forward in life with the idea of becoming mere seekers of pleasure. Sportive butterflies seeking for gaudy flowers. Let us remember that the lawful objects of human efforts are but means to higher and nobler ends. Let us think not simply of this world. Let us think what we must do to enter and enjoy life beyond. This world is but the vestibule of an immortal life. Every action of our lives touches on some chord which shall vibrate in eternity.

Let us labor to accomplish a work which shall remain unchanged when time has withered the garlands of youth and monuments have crumbled to ashes.

The Means and Advantages Of An Education.

Theodore P. Hill.

A useful and practical education cannot be obtained without at least a few years of study in the school-room or by private instruction. There are very few now-a-days who use the latter method.

It seems hardly possible that such great men as Livingston and Lincoln did, but it is a fact.

Children just beginning their school days have no idea of what an education is; in fact nearly every thought is pleasure or mischief.

It is therefore with difficulty and much trouble to the teacher that they are taught to be orderly during school hours.

In this nerve-straining work the children's parents should assist the teacher as much as possible. Neglect to do this may bring serious trouble to the children.

Careful attention and encouragement to the little ones will generally make them studious pupils ready to spend a reasonable amount of time in preparing their lessons.

There are many in school who attend only because the state laws compel them.

These boys and girls consider their time as wasted and school days are a period of hardship.

It is certainly difficult for pupils to sit at their desk and read over matter which seems nothing more than pronouncing the words or reading sentence after sentence. Such conditions are often brought on by valuing too highly the outdoor pleasures of which whispering and passing notes are substitutes. Time wasted in doing these things could be used to great advantage in studying the meaning of a few sentences or thinking out solutions for some of the difficult problems.

The teacher is always willing to explain statements not perfectly understood.

The habit of being absent a day or two now and then never leads to success, on the other hand it leads to a lack of interest and causes a student to become dull and discouraged caring little whether school keeps or not.

At about the age of fifteen when education is no longer compulsory, the desire to leave school and go to work becomes the strongest. There are numerous chances for both men and women who are contented to work year after year for the same pay.

Some after a time have their wages increased, but that does not give them an education.

They regret having left school and having yielded to trifling thoughts. A strong will power is often dangerous, but is the best means of conquering the tendency to stop in the middle of a school course. If one looks only on the dark side he will see many reasons for giving up a task, but if both sides are considered there are more important reasons why this task should be completed.

A good motto for everyone to follow in obtaining an education is, "Stick to Your Books."

A thorough knowledge of the grammar school studies combined with a course in business college, will fit one for an ordinary business position such as a typewriter, stenographer, bookkeeper, and so forth, where the reliable employee receives fair wages.

In connection with a knowledge of these subjects, good penmanship and rapid calculation are quite necessary in order to record quickly, accurately and plainly the many business transactions.

In connection with grammar school and business college studies, it would be well to include a high school course of algebra, geometry, and a few studies which might be most useful in everyday life.

There are many problems in arithmetic which cannot be fully understood without a knowledge of geometry. This subject enables one to dig to the actual foundation of mathematics and find reasons for every statement.

Algebra provides a means of working out problems on the power and root basis.

Often much difficulty is avoided by the use of letters representing unknown quantities.

A high school education with a normal course is a good foundation on which to begin a teacher's career.

Of course the normal training may be omitted, but in that case a very important part is left out.

This consists largely in teaching practice and review which one does not get elsewhere.

There is nothing in any line of business or occupation more beneficial than experience.

A high school course furnishes the requirements for entrance to college and universities. Besides helping people in carrying on business, or in teaching, or preparing for college, a high school course also furnishes much general knowledge which every one should have.

All are not interested in the same affairs, for this reason there are several courses following up different lines. Many of the same studies, however, are included in each course. These are English, mathematics and other subjects which ought to interest everybody, and they do to a certain extent, although they may not be aware of it.

A college course is a stepping-stone to many professions of which the graduate may make a choice. Any of them may be attained by a year or two of special study in a university. Those who have secured their passing rank by hard study are well fitted for positions of honor and dignity.

An education may be compared to an endowment policy. The time, money, and self-denial used in early life may represent the premium, while the result in both cases in after years is usually happiness. The educated man besides being fitted for business and profession has a store of knowledge which is of inestimable value in common affairs. Although he forgets much of the knowledge he has gained, yet the more important part remains. These combine to expand the thinking powers, thus enabling one to search out solutions to the many questions which may arise and to express his thoughts in proper words.

Considering the great and increasing assistance which the town, state and national government are furnishing to boys and girls, it seems that everyone in good health ought to attend school long enough to secure at least a beneficial education.

MODELS.

Stanley T. Bennett.

In all the mechanical arts we find the model the first and by far the most important point to be considered.

The model must be of such a structure that it is the nearest approach to perfection of any thing that human craft and handwork can accomplish.

A hundred years ago Great Britain excelled all the countries of the globe in her mechanical arts. But today as all the great expositions have shown, the United States leads them all in her labor saving machines, her fine yachts and steam vessels, her architecture and her automobiles. The European nations are growing to recognize this more and more and the output is steadily increasing.

But how has the United States come to such preeminence in these arts? Simply by getting down at the very core of the matter, the model. She has corrected her models until it seems that there is no chance for further improvement. But, as the future will probably reveal, we have not yet reached perfection; there is still something to which we have not attained.

As in the mechanical, so in the fine arts, we find the model the keynote of greatness. No true sculptor, painter, or orator, begins to work his particular art until his model has been brought to an excellence beyond improvement.

The ancient Greeks worked out their images by the finest specimens of human life as models, and the Greeks spent much time in perfecting their bodies, both by exercise and temperance. This is the reason for the high place which Grecian sculpture takes today. Their models were nearly perfect. They lived them in their own lives.

Towering high above the models of the mechanical and fine arts stand the models of character. As in the arts so in character, there is a vast contrast between the right and the wrong model, but in the finished article whether it be of the arts or of character, the contrast is far more vast.

In the soul of every person are two contending forces. One is fighting for good and the other for evil. Our future depends upon the force which we follow and allow to rule in our hearts.

Two young men once left the same town for the city. Both held high hopes for the future. Both were going to make their mark.

One of the young men became acquainted with a dashing young fellow somewhat older than himself. He watched the young fellow and did as he did. He followed him to the saloon and took his first glass of liquor. Soon the young man found himself in the lowest depths of debauchery and vice. He took the wrong model.

The other young man took for an associate a young fellow who went to church, kept in good company, and had no bad habits. The young man has now a good position and is doing well. He gives the credit of his success to the young fellow he followed years ago. This young man took the model all should follow.

Perhaps you will ask how men like

Washington and Lincoln found men their superior or equal to follow. These men certainly had models, but they improved on them. They were not content with living up to their models, they sought to better them. They forgot their bad points and followed the good ones. Great men like these make very good models for us. If possible we should improve even these.

Young men, choose the right models. Your future success depends upon it. God will reward you. There are many models to follow. We find them in every-day life and in the lives of great men. There are also many admirable models to be taken from the Bible. Its pages are crowded with the lives of the noblest character; true models of greatness, kindness and faithfulness.

But by far our highest reason for following worthy models is that we too may become models. Others may be about to follow in our footsteps. Can we be too careful to live lives worthy of imitation? Should we not follow a perfect model ourselves, and then let our own lights shine.

It is true that the evil a man does lives after him. It is also true that the lives likewise. The recollection of a man's good qualities remains long after his bad ones are forgotten. The example we are to set before the world is the greatest responsibility God has given us. How shall we use it? Let us make it a blessing and not a curse to humanity. It is the only thing that will give true happiness in the future.

It will not matter how well we have succeeded in business. It will not matter how much property we have accumulated, when we come near to the end of life's journey. But if we have followed the right model we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that we have not lived in vain. We shall know that our influence is still going on, that it will go on to Eternity.

How much the future depends upon the acts of the present. If we sow wild oats to-day we shall reap the same to-morrow. Therefore let us make our lives monuments of true manhood. Let us make them as the sculptor makes his model; the nearest approach to perfection of anything that can be accomplished. Then, from the models of the poet, "Let us steal away, gently and lovingly only remembered by what we have done."

"LET'S GO TO EASTMAN'S FIRST."

Overheard on the big steamer Machigonne the other day the above remark seemed to ring with potentiality. Why go to Eastman's—because the store itself appeals to the taste of summer people and the habit of catering to island trade has given the clerks valuable experience in the knowledge of boat shipments to the different points in the Bay. Eastman Bros. & Bancroft are well and widely known in Casco Bay and if these ladies went to Eastman's first they probably finished their shopping there.
