HOTELS AND SCENERY

OF KENNEBUNKPORT AND KENNEBUNK
BEACH,

With a Complete Hotel Directory.

For the benefit of those who come to our shores for the season, as well as for the sojourners for a few days, it has been deemed advisable to mention a few of the principal places of interest and amusement at these growing and attractive summer resorts. Leaving the R. R. station and crossing the bridge one enters at once into the heart of Kennebunkport village with its wide streets, broad, spreading trees and its large, old-fashioned houses built by sea captains and ship owners in the palmy days of the West India trade. The tourist can well afford to spend a day in looking over the many quaint articles of interest in this delightful, old-fashioned sort of a place.
They will notice the front yard fences
of antique design, doubtless copied from foreign patterns that the builders
may have seen in some trans-Atlantic town. The weathercocks of odd design, the old-fashioned knockers that have done duty since the days when great ships sailed out of this, then busy, seaport town. All these will come in for their share of his attention, and should he enter these quaint but comfortable abodes he would see queer old articles such as would set the an-tiquarian's heart beating with joy.

Right in the center of the village is located the Parker House. This elegant house, combining convenient and sumptuously furnished rooms with great architectural beauty make it a most desirable summer house for those needing rest and recreation from the busy mill of life. The grounds are finely laid out and ornamented with beautiful flowers and plants. Tall trees shed down their grateful shade, while between their branches steals the invigorating air heavy with saline odors from the ocean.

Leaving the Port village, where the Norton House, a favorite resort for transients as well as regular boarders,
is located, and moving toward Cape Arundel we come first, after passing the Nonantum House, which is one of the most comfortable and best managed houses at the beach, to the Highland House. This place is very appropriately named, the house being situated on a cliff overlooking the river and ocean and commanding a fine view inland. The house is designed for the comfort of the guests,
as well as their amusement, as a glance
at its broad piazzas and green lawns will show.

Moving on past the boat houses and Indian tents we come to the Riverside House and the Arundel. The former is located close to the river bank and on a spot of much beauty. The grounds are well kept and shady, and all in all, the house is a most attractive one. The Arundel is a mansion of imposing appearance and beauty.
While sufficiently retired, it yet gives its guests a magnificent view of the sea, calm in repose or terrific in storm
as the case may be.

Passing on we come to the Glen House. All that has been said of any other house may well be said of this,
for an inviting summer house it is unrivalled. Just beyond and past the Bickford House, finely located so as to command a magnificent ocean view and one of the best patronized hotels at the beach, is the Cliff House and Glen Cottage which, under the efficient management of Mr. B. F. Eldridge, has acquired a justly famous reputation. To those who know anything of the house no words of praise are necessary. Slightly in rear of this, on rising ground, is the celebrated Ocean Bluff Hotel. This is the largest hotel in Kennebunkport, and for years has been noted as a famous rendezvous for Southern and Western people. The view from the house is indescribably grand. But a stone's throw away the waters leap and lash themselves against the "stern and rock bound coast," throwing up a vast cloud of misty spray. Every room commands an ocean view. One thing may be said of the Bluff—it is never hot there. So near the sea and so elevated is the location that no matter how torrid the day may be it is always cold here.
Crossing the river is a ferry, the only house that at first presents itself is the Seaside, kept by Mr. I. P. Gooch, one

Neighboring Places of Interest Worth Visiting.

One of the chief charms of Kennebunkport, and one that has made it famous, are its delightful drives. As many strangers are ignorant of the locality of these places THE WAVE proposes to enlighten them on the subject. One of the places most frequently visited by those wishing for a short drive is

CAPE PORPOISE,

which is located about two and a half miles from the Port village. The scenery is very attractive, the many jutting ledges and thick forests being a pleasing contrast to the visitors fresh from the city. Another place which is probably visited more than any other is the shady, beautiful village of which is reached by a drive of four miles over excellent roads. This is one of the most delightful villages in the state, its shady trees, its wide streets and old-fashioned yet elegant residences being objects of envy to those who see them. Located about five miles beyond Kennebunk are the

KENNEBUNK,

"OLD FALLS,"

on the Mousam river. Here is a pleasant grove with many rocks and wild berries. It is a favorite resort for picnic parties.

OLD ORCHARD, twelve miles away, is too well known to require any description. It is reached via Biddeford and Saco, two busy manufacturing cities.

FORTUNE'S ROCKS

is almost the same distance and is a very pretty place, well worth a visit. Quite a cottage settlement is located here.

THE POOL,

an old-fashioned sort of a place, said to resemble Nantasket. It is reached by a drive of about twelve miles. It has steamboat connections with Old Orchard and Saco.

GOOSE ROCKS

is only six miles away and is a very pretty place with a fine beach and a good hotel. A very pleasant drive is that to

HART'S BEACH,

four miles along the shore. A still prettier one is to

MT. AGAMENTICUS,

in York, some twenty miles distant. This elevation can be distinctly seen from here and when reached by team is found to be clothed with thick woods that render an ascension almost impossible. To those in search of water lilies and boating a ride to will be found agreeable. It is situated in the northern part of Kennebunk, almost eight miles distant, in a fine farming section. There are other equally fine drives in this vicinity but these seem to be the favorite ones.

BALD HEAD CLIFFS,

however, should not be forgotten, as here is to be found some of the finest scenery on the coast. Hall & Littlefield, the Parker House stables and Jos. H. Jeffrey, all can supply teams at reasonable rates to parties wishing to visit any of these places. The pleasure to be derived from visiting any of these localities will well repay one for the time and expense that may be attached to the trip.

Fun at the Cape.

Tuesday, July 24th, will be long remembered by the residents of Cape Porpoise and guests at the Langsford House as the gala day of the year 1888. For some days preparations had been going on to make the day a red letter one, and when the morning sun came up clear and bright all agreed that the time had come. All the morning the sound of the axe and saw was heard in the land, which added to trundling of wheelbarrows, hanging of curtains, many hurried drives to and from the Port, with carefully given and mysteriously carried out messages, was warning enough to everybody that fun was afoot at Langsford's for the afternoon and evening. Noon came all too soon and with it came Photographer Houdlette, from the Port, whose camera preserved excellent views of the house, the boats and the 50 odd guests. One o'clock was the hour set for the four-oared boat race and shortly after that hour Messrs. Goodale and Knight, Shay and Coughlin, with Studley and Barstow rowed a pretty race, which resulted in a victory for Studley and Barstow. A slight shower interrupted for half an hour and so the proposed single scull and scrub races had to be postponed on account of shoal water. Ernest Wright, Homer

Goodwin, Harry Knight and Clarence Knight next contested on standing jumping until all were tired and willing to call it a draw. A scrub wheelbarrow race between Knight and Shumway resulted in a broken barrow and laurels for Knight. Messrs. Wright, Goodale and Knight next tried putting a 15 lb. stone, in which Goodale won. A sack race by the "kids" of the house, Masters Chas. Goodale, Chas. Kelly, Harry Knight and Rufus Lord followed, which, after many tumbles, was won by Knight. Now came the best fun of the afternoon, a potato race, first tried by Messrs. Goodale, Edmunds, Goodwin and Wright, with victory for Goodwin. A team of village youngsters next scrambled for a 10 cent prize and all won. Now came to the line, amid great applause, four ladies of the house who claimed they could pick "taters" as well as the men. Mrs. Shumway, Edmunds, Wright and Miss Morse were the fair contestants, and with cheers and hurrahs struggled nobly for the prize. Mrs. Edmunds came in first, followed by Shumway, Morse and Wright, in order named. A scrub foot and base ball game used up the time till the sound of the supper bell was heartily welcomed by the tired participants and lookers on of the sports, which had given lots of fun and exercise for all. Dainty birch bark invitations were sent out some days ago to the guests of the other houses at the Cape, and you, Mr. Editor, would have received an invitation had you been at your office Saturday, for tableaux at the Langsford. As darkness came on some forty odd visitors from the other houses found Langsford's Hotel gaily decorated with lanterns, and chairs ready in the large parlor for the evening's entertainment, which was planned and carried out by the ladies of the house. At 8.15 o'clock the curtains parted, showing tableau No. 1, "What the daisy lived to see," as illustrated by Misses S. G. Knight and M. H. Whitaker. Then followed No. 2, "Maud Muller," by Miss L. M. Simmons. No. 3, "The Three Fates," Misses M. Howard, L. M. Howard and E. E. Morse, and happy would be any man whose fate could be settled by so beautiful goddesses. No. 4, "John Alden and Priscilla," Misses S. E. Kelly and Minnie Howard revealed a most tastily arranged room, and surely no one could blame Priscilla for wanting such a John for herself. No. 5, "Columbia freeing the slave," Miss M. A. Wright and Master H. F. Knight, forcibly brought to our minds the "cause" which 25 years ago brought such suffering with glorious outcome to our country. No. 6, "The Oriental Beauty," Mrs. C. H. Knight, was a revelation of such magnificence that all the gentlemen involuntarily united in the cry "Yum, Yum." No. 7, "The course of True Love," as portrayed by Misses S. G. Knight, M. H. Whitaker and E. E. Morse was divided into four scenes, "Expectation," "Awakening," "Realization" and "Retribution," and was heartily enjoyed, all evidently having been there, and realizing the force of application. No. 8 was an illustrated reading of Lowell's capital character sketch "The Courtin'," Miss M. A. Wright, Mrs. T. T. Goodale and Mr. H. E. Wright were most successful and hearty in their several parts, while the poem was being admirably read by Miss E. E. Morse. No. 9, "Good Night" showed Master Percy Goodale with candle and gown just ready for bed, and was so cute that all the ladies wanted to hug the little fellow who so perfectly carried out his part of this delightful evening's entertainment. Interspersed between the tableaux were flute solos by Mr. E. V. Wright, violin solos by Miss C. Lord, whistling solos with banjo accompaniments by Miss M. H. Whitaker, with piano solos by Miss Grace Lord and Mrs. H. Estes Wright, which were heartily enjoyed; Mrs. Wright especially having to respond to continued encores. A surprise awaited the ladies of the house when, after the entertainment closed, they were invited to the dining room where the gentlemen had provided Norton's ice cream and cake, which brought to a fitting close a most enjoyable day, crowded full of fun and amusement.

Who is She?

(Written for THE WAVE.)

Brown as is a berry
In the summer days
Is the fairy maiden
That on pleasant ways
Of the fairies
Goes she o'er the leaf,
And I oft in wonder Ask—ah! who is she?

Dressed in sailor costume,
Oft I see her ply
Skillful ear—canoeing
Lightly, and I lie
On the rocks, down gazing
At her and the sea;
And my heart seems beating,
Ah! who is she?

Then as bright and pleasant
As a gypsy maid
Dances she—and reckless
As tho' in a glade.
O, yes! she seems all fashion,
That I plainly see.
Ah, I love this maiden,
Tell me—who is she?

CONCLUSION.

I have met the maiden;
We have roamed away
Thro' wood and valley,
Many a pleasant day.
Ah! with tender kisses
Has she blessed poor me;
You know, my darling,
Tell me—who is she?

WANTED—Bright, smart newsboys to sell THE WAVE every Wednesday and Saturday at 10 a. m.

The unpaid non-resident taxes for 1887 will soon be published in THE WAVE, so if you do not wish your property advertised, interview the Treasurer.

Mr. Jos. H. Jeffrey has just bought a very handsome saddle pony. He is a beauty, and good as he is pretty. He will doubtless be in great demand by the gals.

Miss Blithen, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, John P. Thomas Jr. and nurse, Mrs. Tukey, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Deering, son and daughter, Mrs. Hawes, Capt. Little, Mrs. Bragdon and daughter, are summering at Captain S. Brown's.

Episcopal services will be held next Sunday, if fair, in the Episcopal church, at 11 a. m. Rev. Wm. L. Bull of Philadelphia will preach. Dr. McCosh of Princeton college will preach the following Sunday in Arundel hall.

The Ocean Bluff dining hall presents its usual beautiful appearance with its artistic decorations. The head waiter understands pleasing the eye as well as the palate. The waiter girls this year are an unusually pretty and capable lot.

Dr. W. H. H. Hinds has an elegant organ for sale, adapted for church or vestry. It has two banks of keys of five octaves each, with ten and a half octaves of pedal base with foot and lever power. It will be sold for less than half cost.

Mr. John C. Emmons has begun the publication of THE WAVE, the summer paper of Kennebunk and Kennebunkport beaches. It is a bright, handsome and entertaining sheet which does credit to Mr. Emmons.—Portland Sunday Telegram.

Mr. George Riddle, the eminent elocutionist, will give his annual reading in Arundel hall to-morrow night. To those who have heard him read no word of commendation is necessary. Tickets can be procured at the Ocean Bluff book store.

Tourists visiting Portland should not forget to pay a visit to the mammoth store of Owen, Moore & Co. They have a full line of beach goods and the store is headquarters for summer travelers who make it a place to wait, meet friends and leave bundles. Union Station horse cars pass the door. Go in. You will see something you want.

ON THE ROCKS.

THE YACHT AMPHRODITE HAS A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Day of Interest and Excitement at the Piers.

Early yesterday morning the eleven ton yacht Amphrodite owned by H. G. Eaton of Boston and piloted by Hiram Gooch, attempted to pass out of the river; from some reason, not easily explained, she failed to make the passage successfully and landed on the rocks at the end of the pier on the Kennebunk side. Lines were fastened to the opposite pier, the ballast taken out, planks and joist placed so that the rising tide would not crush her against the craggy rocks on which she lay. Meantime a great crowd lined the piers and shore speculating on the probable fate of the craft. At a little after two o'clock she was gotten off without receiving serious injury. She will be repaired and then proceed on her trip to Boston. It was a narrow escape from a complete wreck.

The Sweet Summer Girls.

(Written for THE WAVE.) The sweet summer girls are "coming a-kiting." From full freighted trains ye see them alighting— Each bringing her trunks, parasol and umbrella, And some don't forget to bring their "best feller."

The sweet summer girls are happy and jolly. When chasing the bubbles of fashion and folly: They live for to-day, but not for the morrow, They dream but of pleasures, and never of sorrow.

In the blaze of the ball room, where bright lights are shining,

With fond lover's arms about them entwining, The sweet summer girls are seen waltzing and dancing,

While their eyes like their jewels on their lovers are glancing.

The sweet summer girls are often seen walking,

On calm summer's eve with their lovers a talking

Or reading some book with yellowish covers, Where no one can hear but they and their lovers.

They love to go bathing in the pure briny waters—

They love it as well as Old Neptune's fair daughters;

They will jump up and scream, and laugh, and giggle,

When they see little fishes about their feet wriggle.

They swim and they float on the blue rolling billows,

And recline their heads on seafoamy pillows. Their lovers and they in their aquatic sporting,

Sometimes, it is said, do a little courting.

On the river's still current we hear them a rowing,

While in search of new pleasures each is a going.

Their love songs and laughter ring o'er the waters,

While parents are waiting the return of their daughters.

The bold summer girl looks a little suspicious,

Tho' it cannot be said she is really vicious; Like a dove mating by "bidding and cooing,"

She is known on the street by her bold way of wooing.

The sweet summer girl is modest and winning;

Her ways are not the ways of the wayward and slinking;

If wanting a lover, tho' yearning and sighing, Her flag of distress she don't keep a flying.

The sweet summer girls will soon be a going,

To reap of the harvest they've here been sowing,

And many a lover left yearning and sighing, For his sweet summer girl who is homeward a flying.

When the sweet summer girls "come again kiting,"

And from full freighted trains at our depot are lighting,

May we be living, (and a full tide flowing) With the sweet summer girls to go bathing and rowing.

—SHORTFELLOW. Kennebunkport, Me.

FIRST HOP OF THE SEASON

At the Ever Popular Parker House, Last Saturday Eve.

The opening hop of the season at the Parker House took place on Saturday evening. All day the ladies were busy as bees decorating the dance hall for the occasion. Tennis nets were strung along the sides of the hall, intertwined with wild roses and flowers. The chandeliers were hung with ferns and flowers, and fans were hung on the sides and ends of the room. The whole presented a very beautiful spectacle that did credit to the artistic skill of those who conceived and executed it. The evening proved to be stormy, which prevented many from other houses attending, yet the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The music, as a matter of course, was extremely fine.

BERNAL, THE BANDIT.

Career of the Most Interesting Outlaw That Mexico Has Produced.

Official confirmation has been received of the killing of Eraclo Bernal, the famous bandit. There was $10,000 reward offered for the capture, dead or alive, of Eraclo Bernal, the scourge of Sinaloa, the terror of Durango, the most-famous bandit of the many this republic has produced. His name was a great terror to the defenseless inhabitants of the Sierras than was the name of Attila to the ancient Romans. Bernal was born at Moeria, Sinaloa, in the year 1850. He was consequently, thirty-eight years old at the time of his death. He in his early manhood bore the reputation of a law-abiding citizen. About twelve years ago he was tried and convicted of a crime of which he was said to be innocent. He escaped from prison, swearing that the authorities if they ever caught him again would be really justified in condemning him to prison. He became a highwayman, and by the boldness of his misdeeds and the skill displayed in carrying them out soon became notorious. He gathered around him a band of men of a like desperate character, who, under his leadership, terrorized most of the districts of Sinaloa and Durango. At first he limited himself to attacks on the diligences, or stage-coaches, but he soon increased in boldness, and would present himself before a hacienda or village, and levy tribute on the citizens. If his terms were refused, he would attack and pillage the place, carry off all the booty, and, if armed resistance were offered, he would not hesitate to murder the people. It is claimed that the bold outlaw never killed men willfully, or for the mere pleasure of killing, but only when resistance was made to his demands, or when it was necessary for his own safety.

His capture had been often announced, but a few days later a denial of the news has invariably followed. The State and Federal authorities finally decided to make a determined and continuous effort to pursue Mexico's "Fra Diavolo" until he should be captured or killed and his band of robbers exterminated. For over two years the troops have scoured the mountains of Sinaloa, have penetrated into almost inaccessible fastnesses among the rocks, and trailed the outlaws through the dense forests. Many were the conflicts between the troops and the banditi, but the former were generally victorious. Many of Bernal's companions were captured and shot, but the ubiquitous Eraclo invariably managed to give the authorities the slip.

Bernal was tall and well built, handsome and of strong constitution, and an ideal bandit. He always journeyed by night on swift and well-trained horses. When he intended to attack a ranch or village he always selected one twenty-five or thirty miles distant from his camp, and after a night's ride, would make his appearance before it about daybreak. He was true and kind to his loyal, though lawless, followers, and, though reckless and bold by nature, he never exposed the lives of his comrades unnecessarily. He was of a jovial disposition, but at times he was filled with melancholy as he thought of his miserable past and hopeless future. During these repentant moments he would swoop down on the nearest village to attend the parish church, and while the trembling priest chanted the mass Bernal and his picturesque band in the background would devoutly cross themselves and recite their prayers. Then mounting their horses they would disappear as on the wings of the wind, leaving the villagers in peaceful possession. These penitential moods rarely were of long duration, and perchance the same village that had been the scene of his devotional exercises would, a few days later, be selected for ravage and rapine.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

The important roles which cavalry and artillery play in the art of modern warfare make it interesting to know the total number of animals which the leading countries of the world can throw into the field of battle. Here, according to the latest statistics, is the list: Russia, 21,570,000 horses; America, 9,500,000; the Argentine Republic, 4,000,000; Austria, 3,500,000; Germany, 3,350,000; France, 3,800,000 horses and 300,000 mules; England, 2,700,000 horses; Canada, 2,624,000. Spain, 680,000 horses and 2,300,000 mules; Italy, 2,000,000 horses; Belgium, 353,000; Denmark, 316,000; Australia, 301,000; Holland, 125,000; and Portugal, 88,000 horses and 50,000 mules. It will be remarked that Russia heads the list by an enormous majority.

A sharp Maine constable opened a cement barrel the other day on suspicion. He found it packed solidly with sand, wet down, and in the middle of the barrel was a twenty-gallon aer of whisky.

Don't be afraid to let your children see your love for them. Let a child feel that no matter where he goes or what he does, no matter whether friends forsake or foes slander him, his parents' love and trust will always follow him, and that child will not only be safe for all time, but the thought of this love will shine out like a lamp in a dark place, cheering and strengthening against all odds.

TREATMENT OF SUN-STROKE.

Valuable Hints Given by a Prominent American Physician.

In his opening remarks Dr. Mitchell said: "There are two distinct varieties of sun-stroke, but we recognize one, the common, which takes the form of an intense fever. The other presents exactly the opposite condition, though arising from the same cause. It is called heat exhaustion. This condition is essentially the same as that called 'collapse.' It attacks strong and weak indiscriminately. The attack is generally sudden, and with little or no warning the patient becomes unconscious, incapable of speech or movement, or mutters in incoherent phrases; he is pale, his skin is cold to the touch and covered with a profuse cold sweat. Even his breath feels cold to a hand held before his mouth. His pulse at the wrist is very fast and feeble and he can not be roused enough to reply intelligently.

The situation is almost the exact contrary of that in sun-stroke proper, as we frequently see, hence the treatment must be different. It is easy to see what is needed. The patient is too cold, the natural heat of the body which is the condition of the proper working of all the functions is lost, and first we must restore that. Put him in a hot bath to help bring back the normal heat by external warmth. Let the water be of temperature of 100 degrees or more, and keep the water at this temperature by pouring in more hot water. Keep him there until his own temperature has been restored to its natural standard, which is 98½ degrees. If you have no means to ascertain the patient's temperature let him remain in the water for about half an hour, unless he becomes conscious and intelligent sooner. Secondly, his heart is too fast and not strong enough and something must be given to strengthen it, the most convenient article being alcohol, whisky or brandy. Give a tablespoonful in about as much water and repeat it about three times at short intervals.

"Thermic fever," or heat fever," is always from exposure to heat in some form. The principal sufferers are those who use strong drink, habitually, white men more than negroes, and men more than women. The varieties of thermic fever differ in degree, but not much in kind. They range from severe headaches or dizziness to inflammation of the brain itself, with convulsions and death in its train. The mind confused, more or less headache with some fever, all of these are the ordinary symptoms of these slight sun-strokes, and they may be treated as I have suggested, giving, too, a little bromide of potash, about twenty or twenty-five grains.

Most cases are more marked. The face is greatly flushed, eyes bloodshot, breathing deep and noisy, the pulse very fast and convulsions often accompanying the attack. This last is the most important sign. The patient should be rubbed down with ice and cold water should be poured over him until his temperature is reduced to 100 degrees, when he should be put to bed.

Apoplexy or epileptic fits, often mistaken for sunstroke, are generally without convulsions and without fever. Opium poisoning comes on slowly and when found the patient's eyes are shrunken, the breathing is remarkably slow, with long, deep respirations, and they have often to be treated in the most brutal manner—rubbed with a wire brush or whipped with a wet towel to keep them moving so as to keep up breathing.

To avoid sun-stroke, avoid eating very much meat, eat plenty of vegetables, keep the skin clean, bathe frequently and keep as cool as possible.—Philadelphia Press.

DIRECTION OF SOUNDS.

Animals Can Not Detect It Much Better Than Man.

The average child, returning from school, on entering the house calls: "Mamma!" The mother, perhaps, replies: "Yes!" "Where are you?" is the next question, and the reply informs the child not only as to the floor, but as to the room in which the mother can be found. The child can not determine its mother's location by the sound of her voice. This exaggerated instance may be owing to the reflection of the sound, not only from the walls, but from the strata of air differing in temperature and humidity.

How many of us going to the next street, running at right angles to the car-tracks, can tell, from hearing the bell of the approaching street-car before the car comes in sight, whether that car is going north or south? It does not seem that animals can determine the direction of sound much better than man. The sleeping dog, roused by his master's call, is all abroad as to his master's location, and determines it by sight or scent, or both, frequently running in several different directions before hitting the right one. The deer, on being startled by the unseen hunter's tread, is not always right in his selection of the route to get out of harm's way. A flock of geese, ducks or other birds on hearing a gun, is as likely to fly toward as from the sportsman, if he has kept entirely out of sight, and the flask of his piece has not been seen.—Arnold Burgess Johnson, in Popular Science Monthly.

Conkling and the Reporters.

Roscoe Conkling had an exceedingly genial way in dealing with reporters who were known to him. He was always happy and pleasant in his manners; frankly told them what they wanted to know, but invariably wound up the interview by resting his white hand on the reporter's shoulder and saying: "You will please to remember, my friend, that I have not said any thing for publication." Then he would explain how publicity might hamper him in his legal cases. His confidence was always respectably. Since he established himself in New York he was frequently called out of bed long after midnight in response to a reporter's call. Even at that hour he was genial, witty and obliging, as far as he could be. A short time before his death a reporter told him that he would like above all things to print some of the interesting confidential chats he had had with him. The reporter dilated on the avidity with which newspaper readers would read such matter. The Senator only smiled and said: "Wait till after my death, my friend; wait till I am dead."—N. Y. Sun.

How Cigarettes Are Made.

There is a great deal of ridicule leveled at the boys who smoke cigarettes, but without much effect. Perhaps a short history of the cigarette may teach boys that cigarette smoking is something worse than a "silly" habit. The cigarette which Cubans smoke is made from pure tobacco and rice paper, and they make it themselves. The cigarette the Americans smoke is made from cigar stumps, collected from gutters, bar-rooms, alleys and railroad stations. When the stumps are brought to the cigarette manufacturer they are dried over a fire. When dry they are rubbed between hands, not always clean, until they are shredded to the size of a pin's head. The stuff is then sprinkled with chemicals to give it a flavor, rolled in paper and sold to the boys, and the boys smoke them. It seems almost incredible, doesn't it?—Golden Days.

"Is that your dog, Squidg?" "Yes; fine animal, too. Here, Rover." (Whistles vainly for him). "He doesn't appear to obey very well." "Oh, that shows he's a pure breed. He's a terrier, you see."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

of the pioneer hotel keepers of this vicinity. The beach for a mile in length is owned by the proprietor of the Seaside House and affords excellent bathing facilities.

Following the beach we near the Bass Rock House, a fine large hotel which in the fifth year of its existence can look back with pride to its record and to the number of guests that have patronized it. Half a gun shot away is the Granite State House, well known as a favorite resort for many others than New Hampshire people. Located as it is directly on the beach, the location is a most desirable one for those wishing to be near the water. Still farther on is Cove Cottage, which for genuine comfort is second to none on the beach. Under its present management it had a very prosperous season last year and will undoubtedly do so this season.

Up the beach a little is the well known Sea View house. This house always has a long season beginning early in June and not ending until far into September. Up the Kennebunk road from the beach is the new Eagle Rock House which is admitted to be one of the strongest built and most desirably located houses at the beach. This is its second year and it is rapidly filling up and bids fair to have a most successful season. On up the road and situated about five minutes walk from the beach is the Beach House of Owen Wentworth. Mr. Wentworth began taking boarders in 1865 and his success since then speaks well for the care he must have given them.

But in this journey the tourist has skipped the finest hotel at the beach and one whose location is second to none. We refer to the Grove Hill House. Located about three minutes walk from the beach, on a high elevation, with beautiful sloping lawns and green terraces, the house stands out in bold relief. Steam elevator, electric lights, a mineral spring and every modern convenience for the comfort of the guests is destined to make the Grove Hill House stand second to none on the coast. When the visitor has been these rounds he has by no means seen all there is to be seen at Kennebunkport and Kennebunk Beach.

There is Blowing Cave, Spouting Rock, Aquarium, the piers and numerous romantic little nooks along the coast which will well repay the tourist for visiting. All are places of great natural beauty, but they need to be seen to be appreciated and will have to be written up later.

Saco, Me., Aug. 28, 1894.

My wife endured terribly from rheumatism and neuralgia for 18 years; was prostrated most of the time; each acute attack being severe. At last, 13 months ago, she took to her bed remaining there for over a year. Suffering torture no describable. For months I did not sleep much but stood over her trying to relieve her terrible pains. At first I gave her small doses of morphine to relieve her some, but at last even that in enormous doses had no effect whatever. Finally she commenced to take Dr. Cobb's Rheumatic Cure, and in twenty-four hours her pain left her never to return, and she was able to walk about the room. Next day she walked to the gate, and the day she walked 100 rods, and in ten days she walked a mile without inconvenience and in a fortnight was entirely well and able to do her household work, and has remained in perfect health since; praise God for this wonderful remedy.
