Summertime in the Belgrades

... Serving the Central Maine Lakes & Kennebec River Corridor

—A Cider Mill Press Publication—

VOLUME 12, NUMBER 10

What's This Picture Worth?

Is It Worth a Thousand Words?

Is It Just Plane Water Skiing?

Is It Worth $50,000?

by Erle H. Morse

In an unpredictable but thoroughly enjoyable sequence of events, a trio of young Central Maine entrepreneurs, Adam Gardner of Great Pond Marina (waterskier), Klaus Thalinger of Airlink Flying Services (pilot), and Peter Barrett, a world class photographer, joined talents to create an unusual image that earned them a hefty cash return which they will be using to support community development and educational programs in the area.

Waterskiing and tubing behind speedboats are popular summer activities on Maine lakes, but behind a seaplane? What was initially done for fun turned serious when Barrett entered the image in a National Captain Morgan's "Calling All Captains" photo contest which had a $50,000 Grand Prize....and it won!

There were, however, stipulations attached to the prize: it had to be invested in a one-time social event featuring the sponsor's goods and services, i.e. a Captain Morgan party, which the team did, inviting a hundred and thirty friends, business associates, and supporters from the extended region to a gala at the Belgrade Lakes Golf Club. They also formed a foundation, "Calling All Loons," to which party-goers could contribute for the benefit of local improvement and enrichment projects.

The first project which "Calling All Loons" has scheduled is the repair/restoration of a classic lakeside camp on the Belgrade Community Center for All Seasons property which has been unused for many years and which is an ideal site for the Center's developing teen day camp program. Materials will be paid for by the foundation and labor will be donated by G&L Construction and other builders from the area. Gardner hopes to start work by mid-October.

A second project is already in the works. Over the winter a scholarship program for area students interested in careers in aviation will be developed.

In the meantime it is reassuring to know that there are good hearted and energetic people looking positively toward the future and working to make it better...and taking winning pictures.

Animal Countdown

Barks in the Park

On August 28 from 10 am-3 pm the Gardiner Common will go to the dogs at the first annual Barks in the Park. Demonstrations, dog activities, agility courses, obstacles, a costume contest - there'll be something for every dog and some of the owners, too. The Maine State Police K9 unit will be there and a range of handlers and vendors. For more information call 582-3100..

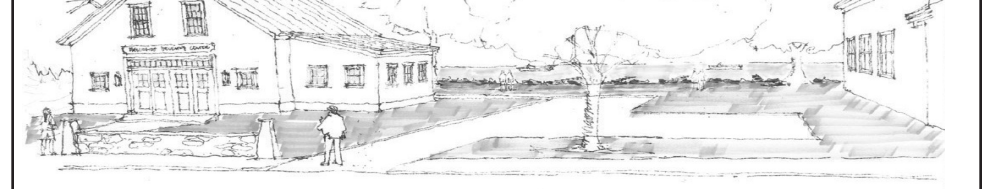

Barks and Bubbles

Wash your car and your dog, too, but not in the same bay! Barks & Bubbles is the new pet wash station at J&S on Route 202 in Manchester. The facility includes a separate room with wash station, a walk-up ramp for dogs, a dispenser with shampoo, conditioner, rinse, and a coin operated timer. The cost is roughly $5 or $6 for five minutes depending on the selection. What a great alternative to hair in the bathtub drain, sopping towels and wet paw prints across the floor. 623-9663.

Docks to Doorways Needs Your Help

Our goal is to open the Mill Stream public docks, build a new 3,500 square foot conservation resource center and convert the Village post office lot into a community park by the summer of 2011. Of the $2.5 million that is required, we have raised more than $1.6 million. In addition we have a $450,000 challenge grant from the Harold Alfond® Foundation, which will match your contribution dollar for dollar. Your tax deductible gift will help ensure the preservation of our lakes and our way of life.

Watershed Wisdom

I have been discussing Mother Nature's watershed design and the importance of maintaining upland forests and vegetated wetland buffers to protect water quality. I have talked about the importance of responsible development to avoid excess stormwater runoff that can cause erosion and deplete groundwater supplies. These are not new ideas. Consider this observation from over 2000 years ago

"There are mountains in Attica, which can now keep nothing but bees, but which were clothed, not so very long ago, with fine trees producing timber suitable for roofing the largest buildings....while the country produced boundless pasture for cattle. The annual supply of rainfall was not lost, as it is at present, through being allowed to flow over a denuded surface to the sea, but was received by the earth, in all its abundance, into her bosom where she stored it."
Plato: Dialogue of Critias 360 B.C.E

Plato could just as easily be talking about modern day America. Cutting down forests in the uplands and clearing the native vegetation results in too much impervious surface, which in turn results in excess stormwater runoff. Instead of recharging the groundwater aquifers and filtering slowly into streams and lakes, this runoff flows quickly down the hills, resulting in flooding in the lowlands and excessive erosion and phosphorus-laden sediments flowing into our lakes.

The LakeSmart program I discussed a few weeks ago emphasizes the importance of maintaining native vegetated buffers along the shorelines of our lakes, rivers, and streams. Over 500 years ago, Leonardo da Vinci gave the same advice:

"The roots of the willows do not suffer the banks of the canals to be destroyed; and the branches of the willows, nourished during their passage through the thickness of the bank and then cut low, thicken every year and make shoots continually, and so you have a bank that has life and is of one substance."-Leonardo Da Vinci (1452-1519)

Ancient Wisdom

by Peter Kallin

We have discussed the importance of watersheds and managing our lakes on a watershed basis instead of arbitrary municipal boundaries. There are two places in Maine where this takes place- the Cobbossee Watershed District and the Penobscot Nation in the Penobscot River Watershed. It is no coincidence that Cobbossee Lake is the only major lake that has been taken off of the official DEP list of impaired waterbodies. Native Americans have long recognized the importance of taking care of our lakes and rivers. Chief Seattle (1786-1866) was not a Penobscot but I think they would agree with him:

"The rivers are our brothers. They quench our thirst. The rivers carry our canoes, and feed our children. If we sell you land, you must remember, and teach your children, that the rivers are our brothers and yours, and you must henceforth give the rivers the kindness you would give any brother."

More recently Luna Leopold (1915-2006), the son of the great 20th Century conservationist Aldo Leopold, who was the Chief Hydrologist of U.S. Geological Services (USGS) and a Professor at the University of California summed it all up when he said:

"Water is the most critical resource issue of our lifetime and our children's lifetimes. The health of our waters is the principal measure of how we live on the land."

Hopefully by this time next year our new Maine Lakes Resource Center will be helping to make conservation a tradition in our watershed. We need to implement some of the wisdom of past generations to preserve this special place for future generations. We need to take advantage of Mother Nature's built in systems and figure out ways to modify man-made systems to mimic natural systems. You can help make this happen by contributing to either the BLA or BRCA and earmarking your gift for the new center or simply go to (<http://www.dockstodoorways.com/>). If you are interested in exploring some of these ideas further, stop in to BRCA's office in Belgrades Lakes Village, next to the Post Office and I would be happy to chat with you.

Peter Kallin, Executive Director of the Belgrade Regional Conservation Alliance (BRCA), can be contacted at 495-6039 or brca@gwi.net, or visited at the BRCA Office, The Boathouse, Belgrade Lakes.

Conservation

Landowners, including non-agricultural and forestry landowners, who would like technical and financial assistance in developing, improving, or managing wildlife habitat or restoring natural ecosystems, are encouraged to apply for the federal Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP), administered by the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

WHIP is a voluntary program that encourages establishment of high quality wildlife habitats that support wildlife populations of National, State, Tribal, and local significance. Through

September 1 Deadline for WHIP Applications

WHIP, the NRCS provides technical and financial assistance to landowners and others to develop upland, wetland, riparian, and aquatic habitat areas on their property.

Applications for WHIP are accepted at local USDA Service Centers on a continuous basis. Applicants must then complete a conservation plan with the assistance of NRCS conservationists. Applications which are received by September 1, 2010 will be considered for funding in Fiscal Year 2011. Contact www.nrcs.usda.gov or 778-4767 ext. 105.

Art Walk Gardiner August 13

Walk the brick sidewalks, climb the narrow stairs, sip wine in the funky studios, gaze at the river views. Gardiner was the place where sturgeon were fished, clipper ships docked, and poet Edgar Arlington Robinson envisioned Tilbury Town. Gardiner is the place where visitors enjoy the quiet Main Street, attractive boutiques and friendly shopkeepers, historic Johnson Hall, the popular Kennebec River Rail Trail, theater, dance and art.

For a taste of the best of Gardiner's art community go to Artwalk Gardiner on Friday, August 13, 5:30-8:30 pm. Held in the historic (1758) district of downtown, the event features art in exhibition pace and open studios, stores, shops and boutiques, restaurants and coffee shops. Some places provide music, many offer refreshments, and almost all have artists in residence greeting visitors, answering questions, and working. Maps/guides will be available that evening. For more information visit www.theartdogs.com.

Friends of the Cobbossee Watershed host "Slow-the-Flow" PlayDay with Camp KV for Kids

The Friends of the Cobbossee Watershed hosted seventy campers at Camp KV for Kids as part of their "Slow-the-Flow PlayDay" program. Held at Camp KV on Maranacook Lake in Readfield, over 2,000 children have attended a "PlayDay" since 2003.

Consisting of five activity stations, children performed water quality sampling and testing procedures aboard the OTTER II, the Friends' 22' pontoon boat "floating classroom". They also learned about the importance of buffers while observing a Friends YCC planted buffer along the shoreline; were educated about native and non-native fish species while playing "Oh - Fish!"; learned about local history that traces water usage over time and the effects of that use on lake water quality by participating in an activity called "Common Water"; and painted their own keepsake T-shirt to take home with them.

"Slow the Flow PlayDays" are offered to local recreation groups and summer camps throughout the 217-square mile Cobbossee Watershed during the summer months. The all day program provides hands-on activities that focus on educating children about water quality issues and the surrounding watershed environment.

Staffed by employees and volunteers of the Friends and AmeriCorps volunteers, this year's PlayDays are sponsored by Smart EyeCare, DR Struck Landscape Nursery and Savings Bank of Maine. PlayDays are geared for children aged 12 and under. FMI, contact their offices at 621-4100 or visit them online at www.watershedfriends.com

Reflections of Summer

A different feeling than in Spring
The wonderful feeling that Summer brings

Looking forward to relaxing and having fun
Swimming and enjoying the mid-day sun

The birds in the woods starting to wake
Sun and moon as they shine on the lake

Peace and quiet you can't put a price
The calling of loons - their calls do entice

Kayaking - canoeing when the lake looks like glass
Early morning fishing hoping for bass

A Hawk finds the thermals as I glance to the sky
Picking wild blueberries and making a pie

The best part of Summer is the one that I savor
Enjoying the Summer with wonderful neighbors.

My Reflections of Summer as my mind starts to scan
I'll spend them in Maine for as long as I can

When the time comes that I need to depart
My Reflections of Summer will live in my Heart

Part 3 of the 'Buffer Story'

by Dale Finseth

We've discussed the merits and the features of a buffer with the primary focus on a riparian buffer for shoreline property. Remember, the goal is to minimize the impact of your life on the water quality. Most of us use our property in a manner that generates stormwater or other water runoff. We have buildings, places to park our vehicles, and outdoor areas like a patio or deck. If we live on the water, we have pathways to the shore and a dock. Changing some of your behaviors on the land can make a difference. Most of us use our shoreline however. Creating buffers is a good way to minimize the impact of your land use on water quality. Mow your lawn less often and at a taller height. Stop using fertilizers and pesticides. At least limit their use and use them only in the fall as needed. Only irrigate your yard and garden as is needed. Manage your activities at the water's edge to minimize erosion and pollution. But... back to the discussion of 'buffers'.

How do you design and create buffer planting between our buildings, driveways, patios or lawns and the waterway into which the runoff water runs. I'll focus on a riparian buffer since it will be located fairly close to the water's edge.

Depending upon how you use your own property, a Natural Buffer may have limitations. Ideally a riparian buffer is made up of five tiers: the canopy, shrub, under-story, ground cover and, last but not least, the duff layer. While the discussion is about these five tiers of a buffer system, sometimes your property or the way you use it makes it difficult to design and build a buffer with all five tiers.

In the last article I asked that you consider the factors affecting your buffer design. Is it steep or flat? What are the soil conditions? How much sun is available? Just as important: "How do you use the property?" Is your footprint pretty light on the land or do you regularly host large groups? Do you use the water's edge heavily for boating or swimming? You need to answer these questions honestly to best design an effective buffer. Given that we are focused on a plant buffer, your interest in maintaining the planting is also important: Remember... the objective is to use the buffer to minimize your impact on water quality. The buffer needs to intercept the water runoff to be effective.

So... what do you need to do in order to establish a buffer? A buffer between your "stuff" i.e. buildings, vehicles, miscellaneous possessions - and the water? First, try to keep as many of the existing plants and ground cover as you have. Take a look at where the water from your buildings and impervious areas flows. Water molecules are friendly sorts. They like to gather together and become a raging torrent if possible. Try to keep that from happening. Intercept it before it gets to the shoreline. Plan to have that water run into an area that will slow it down, hold it and let it filter into the ground and/or redirect it into an area where it will not cause erosion. Use the trees and shrubs already on the property to define a more intensive planting area which includes substantial amounts of Erosion Control Mulch [ECM] and plants which will help hold and filter the runoff. Or take the time to design and construct a rain garden area to collect and filter water runoff from your property.

Creating a nice garden in an area that does not intercept the water may be nice to look at but is ineffective in protecting water quality. Remember the goal!!! The buffers need to intercept and serve to keep those 'friendly water molecules' from getting together and having a raging party.

Contact a local lake association or the Kennebec Soil & Water Conservation District for assistance and information. Check out the Maine DEP website for excellent information about buffers, plant selection, and designing types of gardens. www.maine.gov/dep/blwq/docwatershed/

The Small Garden Guide

Harvest! Store! Process! Preserve!

The growing season winds down; the harvesting and putting by revs up. If it's time to learn more about this critical phase of gardening, two workshops designed to help are being offered by The University of Maine Cooperative Extension, Franklin County Office, in Farmington this month.

Preserving the Harvest: On Wednesday, August 25, 1-4 pm, "Preserving The Harvest" will teach recommended methods for preserving foods, the latest and safest recipes, equipment to insure safety and how to check for properly sealed jars. It will be taught by Kate McCarty, Food Preservation Program Aide of the UMaine Cooperative Extension. Participants need to bring a pot holder to the workshop. For information about material costs, registration, and for special accommodations needed to attend, please call Carol Ross at 778-4650. The location will be at the Extension office, 138 Pleasant Street, Farmington.

Harvesting and Food Safety: On Tuesday, August 31, 6-7:30 pm, "Harvesting and Food Safety" will teach how to make the most of a garden's bounty.

Many home gardeners lose a significant portion of their crops to improper harvesting, storage, or handling practices and it is estimated that as many as 76 million people in the U.S. contract some type of foodborne illness each year. Careful harvesting and processing procedures can result in higher yields, a reduction in microbial health risks and prolonged post-harvest shelf life.

The free workshop will be taught by Dr. David Handley at Rogers Farm Master Gardener Demonstration Garden. Refreshments will be served. For more information call Kate Garland at 942-7396.

Summer Smallmouth Bass Fishing

by Mike Guarino

A couple of good sized bass that fell to a drop shot and a spinnerbait last week.

Momma told me at a very young age that “honesty is the best policy” so here’s some upfront honesty; I really don’t like fishing in the rain. This past week we really didn’t have much choice though. Five days of fishing to do and 3 of them involved getting wet at some point. We never saw a rainbow, but we did find a pot of gold (or to be more specific bronze) when we discovered feeding smallmouth bass that were slamming spinnerbaits early in the morning.

Ripping spinnerbaits over the heads of active smallmouth is so much fun that it should be illegal. During the rainy and overcast mornings we burned the T-2 Series Terminator spinnerbaits in ½ ounce and would zip them just under the water, pausing or snapping the blades together about ½ way through the retrieve. The hottest color was white shad, but I also changed skirts to brown/gold and teamed it with a tandem copper willow blade – that drove the bass nuts too! The only down side to fishing this technique is that your arm will eventually get so tired that it will simply fall off your body and land in the lake. It’s really tough on the body, so plan on popping a few Advil when you get home. The hot bite and the constant aerobic exercise helped get us through the downpours and as the sun finally came out the bite began to change. This is typical of summer bass fishing. As the sun starts to rise up into the sky, the bass move out deeper and become slightly harder to catch. We switched to the single greatest smallmouth bass lure every created, the Senko and slowed down our presentation. Working the Senko is much more relaxing and our sore arms and wrists welcomed the change in technique. We caught a few on Watermelon and Black/Blue flake, but found the bite to be a bit slow. So, we headed out to even deeper water and found schools of fish in 20 – 25 feet. Time to start drop shotting.

Drop Shotting is a very easy technique that can be made as complicated as you want. There is a lot of information out there on this method of fishing, however keeping it simple will help you catch more fish (and minimize any future headaches). I’ve attached a picture of what a drop shot rig looks like. Basically, use a Palomar Knot to tie the hook and leave 2-feet of line on your tag end. Tie the necessary weight to the tag end and you have a drop shot rig. One piece of advice would be to splice in a barrel swivel about 10-inches above your hook because drop shotting can lead to major line twist. On this particular day, we were drop shotting Berkley Gulp Minnows (3 and 4 inch) and the bass were sucking them right in. It’s really important to keep in contact with your bait as it pendulums through the water column because if a bass finds your bait, they often will take it very deep. If you feel the bite, set the hook quickly to avoid damaging the fish any more than necessary. By the way, on this trip we discovered that white perch like to hit the 3 inch minnow and the perch were schooling with the smallmouth – BONUS! Good luck this week.
