"Fruit-a-lives" Soon Relieved This Dangerous Condition

632 GERRARD ST. EAST, TORONTO.
"For two years, I was a victim of Acute Indigestion and Gas In The Stomach. It afterwards attacked my Heart and I had pains all over my body, so that I could hardly move around. I tried all kinds of Medicine but none of them did me any good. At last, I decided to try 'Fruit-a-lives'. I bought the first box last June, and now I am well, after using only three boxes. I recommend 'Fruit-a-lives' to anyone suffering from Indigestion'."

South Montville Grange Fair.

The date was Oct. 31st. It was a great success, being largely attended, and having on exhibition a remarkable display of fruits and vegetables. There was a fine lot of fancy work. O. W. Ripley exhibited antique articles, an apple parer over 100 years old, a fireboard 90 years old, a hand-made picture frame of 195 pieces, a cane made of several kinds of wood, spurs and canteen worn and carried by his grandfather, Gen. Oren Prescott, in the Mexican war, Indian relics, and a chip from the Washington monument. He also exhibited 44 kinds of apples, 14 kinds of potatoes, 4 kinds of cucumbers, 3 kinds of squash, 3 of beets, 1 of carrot and 3 of tomatoes.

Mrs. L. F. Sukeforth displayed a Spanish flag captured by her brother's regiment in the Philippines; also some weapons of war which she had as a gift from her brother, Col. E. E. Hatch, and a beautiful Japanese mat, one of her treasures of art.

Mrs. Nancy Colby, 92 years old, was present, receiving congratulations and praise for her exhibits, which included a beautiful quilt and double mittens recently knit by her, and a coverlet she and her sister made 80 years ago. It still holds its color, a rich garnet, with white, as when made by the two girl sisters.

There were rare old dishes. An old baker brought by Miss Eliza Gilman received the blue ribbon. Wonders from the field; great yellow pumpkins, pale yellow squash, bright red and golden apples, were exhibited. Mrs. Hazel Adams took the sweepstakes on canned goods; O. W. Ripley on his fine display, and Miss Erva Connor on jelly. There were blue ribbons for all on something—one on the black coat of Chester Gray. Nice stock, fat and shining cattle right from pasture, cows and heifers, were in evidence. Mr. I. Paul and Don Bowley did great pulling with fine horses, but the tug by men broke the rope and threw them all, amid great mirth.

J. M. Sukeforth, Chas. M. Howes, John Prescott, John Q. Adams, Preston Freeman and others, had fine exhibits of vegetables, corn, grain, beans and garden seeds. The stimulus of this success will lead to greater things next year, when a welcome to attendance and co-operation will be extended to all. Appended is a list of awards:

The Coming Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20, 1916. The short session of Congress, which will meet on the first Monday of December and adjourn on the third of March, will have presented for its consideration some of the most important questions that have ever called for legislative action in the United States. The present administration, Democratic in both Houses of Congress and at the White House, will endeavor to complete some of the legislative policies it has undertaken.

It is acknowledged by the Democrats that the so-called eight-hour legislation, which is in reality a wage-increase law, is not complete and there will be a demand on the part of both the employers and employees that the administration take some action to make the law more definite and specific in its language and to make it as comprehensive and as permanent in character as this administration intends to make it. The question of compulsory arbitration will also be up for consideration in this connection.

It is recognized, even among Democrats, that the so-called anti-dumping provision of the last revenue bill is entirely inadequate and will be ineffective as a protection against the competition of cheap foreign products after the war. While it is scarcely to be expected that the Democratic administration will take any action looking to the reinstatement of a protective tariff policy there will be demand among the business men of the country for some legislation that will prepare this country for after-the-war conditions.

The passage of appropriation bills for the ordinary and perhaps extraordinary expenses of the government, will also present a perplexing problem for the present administration. Revenues are notoriously inadequate, and yet the general policy of the present administration in the creation of new commissions and in authorization of the new governmental enterprises will call for appropriations nearly as large as were made in the last session of Congress, which was a record-breaker in large expenditures of public funds.

The higher cost of living has become a serious problem to the wage earners of the country and it is altogether likely that there will be strong demand from the consuming public that Congress make some effort to check the steady advance in prices of the necessities of life. There has been much agitation in favor of an

FELL FROM LOFT, HURT; THEN WELL

How a Man Who Landed on Wood Pile and Was Sore from Head to Foot Found Quick Relief.

Once upon a time Edwin Putnam, who lives in the quiet, pretty hamlet of Wendell Depot, Mass., climbed up into a loft to get some building material, just as many another man living in the country must often do. Suddenly he slipped and fell. Ten feet below was a pile of wood, knotted and gnarled. It was a nasty tumble, and Mr. Putnam was injured painfully in the back, he was covered with bruises and was sore from head to foot.

The next day he bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which had been recommended to him. Within a very few hours the soreness had vanished and the lameness had disappeared. He was an active man once more.

Sloan's Liniment can be obtained at all drug stores, 25c., 50c. and $1.00.

embargo which would shut off or curtail exports and thereby reduce prices for the home consumer. There is also much opposition to any legislative enactment of this kind. Since, however, it has become difficult for wage-earners to pay the prices that are now demanded for ordinary necessities, not to say anything of the more common luxuries, many people will expect Congress to find a means of affording relief.

Not much progress has been made in naval construction or military preparedness, and nothing has been done under the provisions of the ship purchase bill. The indefiniteness of steps already taken is certain to impress upon members of the present administration the necessity of further legislation in order to avoid a confession of practically complete failure.

Congress will meet on December 4th and will probably adjourn for the holidays about the 21st. Some of the appropriation committees will hold informal sessions before Congress meets and will get some of the appropriation bills in tentative shape before adjournment for the holidays. The short session of Congress is always a busy one, notwithstanding general legislation is not usually taken up. The coming session will be no exception to the rule.

Heard at the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20, 1916. Whatever explanations may be made by those interested, the fact is indisputable that the army preparedness act of the Wilson administration has been a miserable failure. Under the old law the maximum authorized strength of the army was 113,564, and there was then an actual strength of 86,607. The new law authorized an emergency increase of 20,000 and made changes in the law which were designed to increase enlistments. In the last thirteen months only 12,650 men have enlisted and the strength is now placed at 99,257, or 14,307 below the authorized strength of the old law and more than 34,000 below the maximum of the new law. The fact probably is that in spite of the strenuous efforts made by the administration to persuade men to enlist, there has been such general lack of confidence in the Wilson management of military affairs that comparatively few men cared to enlist, even when they had the inducement of active service.

In his last speech of the campaign, President Wilson made one admission which received no public attention but which is of vast importance, in view of the tendency toward government ownership. Discussing the enlargement of the service of the Department of Agriculture, he said that "the whole process has illustrated a very noteworthy and interesting fact, the stimulation and development come from outside the government rather than from inside the departments." This is one of the most serious objections to government ownership. In the government service there is no encouragement for individual effort. This has been especially true under the Wilson administration. Men in the ranks in the different departments see no incentive to extra effort and no reward for specially valuable service, for the higher positions are frequently filled by men of no experience and with no claim to recognition except the political service they have rendered in the past.

Because there is little prospect of reward for real merit in government service, under the policies pursued by an administration such as this, men who are really ambitious to serve the country effectively, soon lose their interest and fall into ruts. As President Wilson admits, the development and the stimulation come from outside the departments. And so it will be under government ownership of telephone, telegraph and railroad systems, if the government ever commits itself to the ownership and operation of these utilities.

Southern Democrats are not at all pleased with the manner in which Attorney General Gregory issued statements regarding intimidation of voters, just before election. This was designed, of course, to create the impression that the intimidation existed in Republican circles, and in Northern States. Mr. Gregory declared his intention to vigorously prosecute infractions of the law against intimidation. He overlooked the fact that the only part of the country where there is open and wholesale intimidation is in the South, where practically half the voting population does not dare go near the polls on election day. It is quite evident that when Mr. Gregory begins his prosecutions, he will be impressively reminded of conditions in the section of the country from which he hails, and he will be reminded of his official obligation to enforce the law impartially.

It is reported in army circles that strong recommendations will be made in the forthcoming annual reports for the abandonment of the army horse and mule and the substitution of the motor tractor for the hauling of heavy artillery. It is claimed that the cost of maintenance will be much less, as the motor requires little expense when not in use, while the horse must be fed and stabled at all times. Moreover, it is asserted that a tractor will turn a heavy gun in a shorter space than the teams necessary in handling heavy guns.

WALDO COUNTY'S SENATOR.

[Bangor Daily News.]
Waldo county has but one seat in the State Senate, but this is most ably filled by Hon. Charles M. Conant of Winterport, who enters upon his third term with the opening of the 78th Legislature. Mr. Conant has many business interests, his services takes much valuable time and he has not sought the nomination but the Republicans of the county have always been insistent upon his candidacy.

Mr. Conant is a native of Winterport and lives upon the old homestead where he was born. From 1875 to 1883 he devoted his time to farming. In the latter year he established an agricultural implement and seed store in Bangor. By his excellent ability and square dealing the business grew and was remarkably successful and in 1906 it was incorporated as the C. M. Conant Co., Mr. Conant being made President and Treasurer. He still cultivates and resides on his farm of two hundred acres in Winterport. Mr. Conant has always been a staunch Republican and has held town offices. He has been a member of Penobscot Lodge No. 7, Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Bangor, since 1885, also, of the United Commercial Travelers, and of Morning Light Grange, No. 19, Patrons of Husbandry, since 1875, having held several offices, including that of Master.

Mr. Conant, it is needless to say has a wide acquaintance in this section of Maine. His knowledge of the needs and conditions of Waldo county and his experience will make him one of the most valuable members of the upper branch and he will no doubt receive many important committee assignments.

Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria died Nov. 21st in Vienna after a long illness.

The Boston Herald criticizes the phraseology of the President's Thanksgiving day proclamation from a literary standpoint.

Railroads to fight Adamson law "to the end." Brotherhoods depend on President. News item in Boston Globe.

Gompers will see that he does.

If the sentiment which prevailed in the recent presidential election had been existent at the time of the Civil War we should have a divided country today.

The warring nations in Europe are said to be buying Maine potatoes in large quantities and having them dried and put into a condensed form on this side of the ocean, for shipment to Europe as flour or some such substance.

The mine owners say that the railroads are responsible for the high price of coal, and the railroads lay it to the mine owners. As the result of an investigation in New York city 42 coal dealers have been accused of giving their customers short weight. Let the good work go on.

If we had the say as to who should represent the third district in the Governor's Council we should name F. B. Nichols of the Bath Times—a good newspaperman and a good fellow. And for the second district George W. Norton of the Portland Evening Express will fill the bill.

The intention of the Democratic Senate to deprive the Republican Senators-elect of their seats is clearly revealed in a press dispatch from Washington. Each legislative body is the judge of its own members and the Democrats will control the new Senate by a majority of 12 votes. They, of course, do not need to increase that majority now, but are looking ahead to make their majority secure against further Republican gains.

Don Marquis in an article in the New York Sun on "Literary Hypocrites" names the following books "that we habitually pretend we have read which we have never read at all": "Tom Jones," "The Vicar of Wakefield," "Dante's Divine Comedy," "Don Quixote," "Boswell's Life of Johnson," and Whitman's poetry. If this confession is not another case of "literary hypocrisy" the fault is with Mr. Marquis, and not with the books.

The President elected is the President not only for those who supported him but for every patriotic and devoted American; and good luck to him and wisdom commensurate with the mighty task before him in the next four years.—New York Sun.

That of course is loyal, patriotic, and as it should be, but is not something due from the president who is accorded such support? Should he not have some regard for the whole people, and not use the power and patronage of his high office to promote his personal interests and the interests of organizations with a view to securing their votes?

I take it, no rational citizens, capable of finding their way home at night, will undertake a defense of the President's foreign policy. —Julius Chambers in the Brooklyn Eagle.

Yet the election was carried on the Democratic slogan that "He kept us out of war," which can only mean approval of his foreign policy. And this despite the fact that we are now, and have been for months, at war with Mexico, at a cost of over one hundred million dollars and a loss of American lives exceeding that of the Spanish-American war, to say nothing of other losses including the prestige of this country abroad, the abandonment of the policy that the flag protects our citizens and their property wherever they may be, besides entailing upon Mexico an internecine war which has resulted in murders and outrages without number, and left thousands without food or shelter.

We don't want to hurt Senator Johnson's chances for postmaster general by endorsing him for the place, but we feel sure of one thing, and that is that he would see that Maine gets a better mail service than it is inconvenienced by at present. Under the present regime it takes from 12 to 24 hours to get a letter from the senator's home in Waterville to this city. —Portland Press.

There is general complaint of impaired efficiency of the mail service all over the country under the administration of Postmaster General Burleson, and yet President Wilson has announced that in entering upon a second term he will make no changes in his present cabinet. The Bar Harbor Times recently called attention, in a straightforward circum-

PURITY AND POWER

Necessary to Overcome Impure and Weak Condition of the Blood.

The grip, hard colds, pneumonia, fevers, diphtheria and other blood-poisoning, prostrating diseases leave the whole system subnormal—below par—weak and slow—blood depleted and thin, with that tired feeling, poor appetite, delicate digestive power or almost none at all.

The ideal treatment is Hood's Sarsaparilla—thoroughly to purify the blood and expel poisons, and Pepton Pills, the new pepton, nux and iron tonic—to put power into the blood, give strength, increase red corpuscles and restore normal health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has in forty years won and held the favor of the people, almost to the exclusion of other sarsaparillas and blood purifiers. Begin this course of medicine today. Any druggist will supply you.

stantial statement, to the curtailment of the mail facilities at that place, to the great inconvenience of business men and others—conditions which certainly should be remedied.

Christmas is to be observed in Eastport by a community Christmas tree and organized charity. The Eastport Sentinel reports that plans are already well developed for having a monster municipal Christmas tree, with a varied and extended program of vocal and instrumental music, in which the singing of carols and hymns by massed choirs numbering very many voices will be a big feature. It is the intention also to carry the spirit of the day into the homes of needy people by supplying them all with a basket which will hold materials for a splendid big dinner and "then some." The inception of the plan was with the ministers of the city, who at a recent meeting organized into an association which includes every pastor in the city. There is a feature of such an observance of Christmas—that of inspiring a community spirit, a getting together of the people—which is certainly not its least commendable feature. The Sentinel says:

Too much cannot be said in favor of the municipal Christmas tree plan and the charities associated with it that is being worked up by a civic committee headed by Mayor Eldridge. Times and moods seem to be changing for very much the better in Eastport—we are growing into a real community—a sort of closer neighborhood—in which differences are being sunk out of sight in a clearer understanding of the many advantages to be secured from cooperation. This is as it should be and is one of the things that is making Eastport pretty nearly an ideal place in which to live.

It has long been a generally accepted fact that good roads enhance the value of adjacent real estate, and specialists of the Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have established the truth of this conclusion by economic surveys in eight counties in each of the years from 1910 to 1915, inclusive. They found that the selling price of tillable land was increased from one to three times the total cost of improvements. The estimates of increase were based for the most part upon the territory within a distance of one mile on each side of the roads improved. The result in one county was as follows:

In Spotsylvania county, Va., a careful record was made in 1910 of 35 farms located on the road selected for improvement. Of the 7 farms sold in 1912 the prices actually paid show increases of from 37 to 116 per cent over the 1910 valuation. The average value after the roads were improved was $28.26 per acre, as compared with $17.31 previous to the improvement. In 1913 four transfers of farm land were on the basis of $30.11 per acre, whereas the properties were listed in 1910 at only $13.89 per acre. It appears that the 1,451 acres sold in 1914 increased in value $28,500, or 80 per cent, or from $24.46 to $44.10 per acre.

Another investigation showed that improvement of roads in eight selected counties in different sections of the United States resulted in the aggregate, in a total gross annual savings in hauling costs of $627,409. The average gross annual saving in hauling cost due to the road improvements in these eight counties was found to be 17.9 cents per ton-mile, while the net saving was found to be 11.6 cents. While no argument as to the value of good roads is needed these official facts are of interest, and should tend to encourage the work of improving the highways.

Next Thursday, November 30th, the Catholic people of Belfast will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the dedication of their church. It was on Thanksgiving Day, 1891, that this church, a gift of the late William S. Brannagan, was opened for public worship. To fittingly commemorate this event, and at the same time recall the memory of the benefactor of Catholicism in Belfast, a solemn service will take place on the morning of November 30th at 10 o'clock, at which Bishop Walsh and many of the Catholic clergy will assist. A sermon on the memories of the day will be delivered by the Rt. Rev. Bishop of the diocese of Portland. The singing of the solemn high mass will be rendered by the choir from the Sacred Heart church, Waterville, and the service will close with the administration of the sacrament of confirmation. "NEARING THE JUBILEE." Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the North Congregational church, and invited guests, met Wednesday evening, Nov. 15th, at the parsonage to observe the 50th anniversary of the organization of the Women's Foreign Missionary Board. It is called "Nearing the Jubilee," as the anniversary is in January, and similar programs are being given throughout the country, where there are branches of the Board. Mrs. Charles M. Craig, president of the local auxiliary, welcomed the guests and presided during the evening's program, which opened with a devotional service led by Rev. Walter T. Hawthorne, pastor of the North church, after which various members of the society took part. Miss Grace H. Hall gave a most interesting sketch of the beginning of the Women's Missionary Board, telling of its small membership, 40 women, who met one stormy winter's day in the Old South church in Boston. From this small beginning the Board has grown to 40,000 members. Where only a few thousand dollars were raised the first year hundreds of thousands are pledged and expended annually now. She told of the first missionaries to go out and many other interesting things. Miss Margaret Dunton told of the work being done at the present time and called upon a dozen or more members to give particulars as to various cases that have been reported as especially interesting. Some very pertinent statistics were also given in a most original manner, not soon to be forgotten by those who heard them. Mrs. John R. Dunton gave a short talk on the "future" of the Board, telling what it purposes to accomplish before the Jubilee, and in the coming years. In this connection each branch is to assist in raising the membership and in organizing additional auxiliaries. An invitation was extended to the guests to become members and several availed themselves of the opportunity. Mr. Hawthorne then sang the Jubilee Hymn, written for the anniversary, and to which he set original music, with Miss Stoddard accompanist. A social hour followed, when sandwiches, cake and coffee were served under the direction of Miss Margaret A. Dunton and Mrs. Grace C. Pillsbury, with Misses Katherine Brown, Elizabeth Kittredge, Margaret Rogers, Lillian Davis, Dorothy and Marguerite Ingalls, assisting. Mr. Hawthorne then rendered several vocal solos, including The Bedouin's Love Song, all which were greatly enjoyed.

The following is taken from the Bugle Call the official organ of the Ladies of the G. A. R., published at Easton, Pa., October 1916:

"Acting under the wishes of her many friends, Mrs. Mary E. Tarbox of Fryeburg, is hereby announced as candidate for the office of National president, the election of which will be held at the next National convention Ladies of G. A. R."

"Mrs. Tarbox has served her own circle in all its several offices, has twice been elected president of her department of Maine and had experience in the National body, both on the council of administration and as senior vice president, besides having filled several appointive offices. Maine esteems her as a valuable officer and helpful member and therefore asks that she is given the support needed to secure the high office which we would like to see her gain and asks all sisters give her name and ability consideration."

There seems to be no doubt about the election of Mrs. Tarbox as the next president of the National body, her act in withdrawing her name from the contest at the last convention, in favor of a soldiers' widow winning for her the approval and strong friendship of the entire convention.

Fighting Moths in New England.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20, 1916.

Twelve million nine hundred and forty-seven thousand seven hundred and thirteen parasites which prey on the gipsy moth were released in Massachusetts and New Hampshire last year by the Bureau of Entomology of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Of these, 661,713 were Japanese parasites known as Schedius kuyanae. These were liberated in 28 towns in Massachusetts and 11 in New Hampshire. Another enemy of the gipsy moth, known as Anastatus bifasciatus, was colonized in 14 towns in Maine, 31 towns in New Hampshire, and 71 towns in Massachusetts. In all, 12,286 colonies of this species containing 12,286,000 individuals, were liberated to aid in the work of controlling the gipsy moth pest. These two parasites place their eggs in the egg of the gipsy moth, the eggs of the parasites hatch into larvae, or grubs, and these feed upon the developing caterpillar within the eggshell and kill it before the egg has a chance to hatch. According to the annual report of the Chief of that bureau just published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the parasites previously released seem to be gaining a foothold and many of them are now found in larger number and over a wider territory than ever before. The Calosoma beetle, another insect enemy of the moth, the report states, is continuing its good work, although apparently the beetles are not so numerous in certain localities as they were last year.

The California Campaign for Prohibition.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL: I am sending you this brief letter from Prohibition headquarters in Los Angeles and enclosing check to pay my annual subscription to the dear old Journal, which I love for its noble stand on the temperance question and on other vital issues of the day. I have been speaking night and day since the first of October everywhere in this beautiful Southland and find myself hoarse and tired at the close of the greatest campaign for home against the saloon ever fought out on the soil of California. The papers state this morning, or rather some of them did, that the "drys" have won out on Amendment No. 2, which proposes to close the saloons of the State in 1918, and even if we have not won out on the dry Amendment No. 1, which proposed to prohibit the manufacture and sale of strong drink in the commonwealth, we shall have won a great victory in the adoption of Amendment No. 2 in this rum-cursed State of California, and we are going to fight until we sweep this great State completely "dry."

We rejoice this morning that four great States in this campaign have been carried for Prohibition, viz., Michigan, Nebraska, South Dakota and Montana—I mean for constitutional prohibition—and that Utah and Florida have elected legislatures favorable to statutory Prohibition and that far away Alaska is also added to the Prohibition list.

Half of our nation is now under the white banner of Prohibition, and in a very few years the nation will be dry. May God forbid that dear old Maine, the home of Prohibition, should ever go back on its temperance record, and I am indeed glad that my old home State has been carried by the Republican party, which means rigid enforcement of its prohibitory laws.

With the kindest regards to you and all my temperance friends in Maine.

The decorations were attractive and tasteful. The candy booth, done in pink and white was especially tasteful; also the party post booth with its patriotic decorations of red, white and blue hunting and American flags. The fancy work, utility, pop corn and apron tables were all tastefully arranged. Supper was served to 130 or more, and the receipts of the evening were highly satisfactory. The club thanks the people in town and elsewhere for their generous patronage; also the several committees, and sewers who worked so untiringly in its interests and to all who contributed in anyway the club is grateful.

President Wilson Blames Middlemen.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. President Wilson blamed the middlemen for the high cost of foodstuffs here tonight, in a speech welcoming to Washington the convention of the National Grange, the first formal speech he has delivered since election, urging that the farmers increase their output, the President said: "We ought to raise such big crops that circumstances like the present can never recur; when men can make as if the supply is so short that the middleman could charge for it what he pleased. It will not do to be niggardly with the rest of the world in respect to its food supply." The President did not mention recent petitions to him to declare an embargo on exportation of foodstuffs from the United States to the rest of the world, and he did not refer indirectly to the outcome of the National Grange convention. His address was interrupted frequently by applause from the farmers attending the fifth anniversary celebration of the founding of the grange.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

Mr. Sanford, Sr., had returned earlier, because of a business call in New York. A note from Mrs. Sanford informed the proprietor of the hotel that they spent Sunday night in Wisconsin.

Under the auspices of the Current Events Club the ladies held a preliminary meeting Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Everett Staples, Church street, relative to the Red Cross work to be done through the coming winter by the members and interested friends in this great humanitarian service. They also solicit new fabric suitable for covering these pillows, which vary in size from 8 to 18 inches square. Any and all contributions will be gladly received and can be sent to Mrs. Everett Staples, Church street, where the names of persons may be left who would do plain knitting—eye bandages, bath mittens, etc.—according to directions sent by the Red Cross Society. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, the company large—one hundred invitations having been issued—the bride beautifully gowned in white silk, en train, long bridal veil, carrying appropriate flowers, and wearing upon her slippers the silver wedding shoe buckles of a distant ancestor, Lieut. Robert Hiebborn, of Boston, belonging to the Revolutionary Army, said gentleman having died in 1800. The bride, and by a singular coincidence the groom, are both lineal descendants, in the sixth generation, from this illustrious great, great grandfather, each through a great grandmother, Elmina and Sally Hiebborn, respectively, daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Revere Hiebborn. The double ring service was performed by Rev. H. E. Poullard, Universalist pastor at Mattapoisett, Carleton Baudry acting as best man, and Miss Pauline Griffin, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, little Miss Eleanor Kexford as flower girl and Warren Griffin, brother of the bride, and his gentleman friend as ushers. A caterer furnished a fine wedding luncheon, after the reception following the ceremony. The bride's going away gown was a green broadcloth with fur trimmings and large hat to match. The bridal party left by auto for Fall River, amid showers of confetti and rice. The wedding trip will include New York and Washington, D. C., after which they will return to Mattapoisett for a week's visit before coming to Stockton to make their future home. Newport Woman Finds Relief From Stomach Worries By Use of Tanlac.

That tired, sleepy feeling during, and after meals caused Mrs. Nellie E. Patten of Newport, Me., to seek relief from many sources she told the Tanlac Man recently. Her condition was caused by stomach worries, she said, and she had been bothered for a long time, making difficult her work about the house.

"I wanted to sleep all the time, particularly at night on the severely tired feeling, and after eating from gas and pains in my stomach. My bowels refused to work with regularity and that caused me distress.

"I attributed my sleepiness to indigestion, to which I have always been prone. I suffered after eating from gas and pains in my stomach. My bowels refused to work with regularity and that caused me distress.

"The result has been satisfactory. I have lost the sleep feeling entirely. My appetite has increased and I can now eat my meals without fear of indigestion."

MANY FIND RELIEF.

Mrs. Patten's experience is like that of many others, the Tanlac Man said recently in discussing the merits of this new tonic.

"Women and men who experienced dizzy spells and sleepiness have found help in Tanlac," he said. "They generally tell me that these disorders are accompanied by indigestion, bad breath, gas or other stomach complaints."

"The Tanlac Man is ready to tell the public about Tanlac at his headquarters in the City Drug Store, Read & Hills, proprietors.—Advt.

THIS STOPS HAIR FROM FALLING OUT

Ever try to count the dead fallen hairs in your comb and brush? They are nature's advance warning of future baldness and proof that the dangerous little dandruff germ is busy on your scalp.

Dr. Sangerhord, the famous Paris specialist, first discovered that dandruff and falling hair are caused by a microbe. Then came the discovery of the value of the real Parisian Sage (liquid form) in destroying the dandruff germ and promptly preventing the further loss of hair. The effect of only three days' use of Parisian Sage is simply marvelous, and the American people have now awakened to the fact that dandruff is just as unnecessary as it is unhealthy, and that they can be quickly rid of it and save their hair by using a few ounces of Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is sold for not more than 50 cents a large bottle at drug and toilet counters everywhere. It is an ideal, daintily perfumed liquid, free from grease and stickiness, and will surely cause hair to grow soft, lustrous and really seem twice as abundant.

A. A. Howes Co. always has a large supply, and guarantees it to you.
