PAYNE EXPLAINS LEGISLATION ON FISHERIES TO ROTARIANS, GUESTS

Grevis Payson, president of the Rockland Rotary Club, right, is congratulating Senator Frederick Payne of Waldoboro for his fine speech made before the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs of Rockland at the Thorndike Hotel Friday afternoon.

Senator Frederick G. Payne, fisheries by Bowdoin College in conjunction with the Department of Sea and Shore Fisheries.

The Payne-McCormick Fishery Act passed in 1956 provides for education in fisheries in technical schools, secondary schools and colleges. The senator reported that programs have been established in secondary and technical schools. Congress failed to appropriate money for the college program and the President has not included it in his budget of this year. Payne commented that he had urged the Senate Appropriations Committee to include it.

He cited the Saltonstall-Kennedy Act of 1954 as the first major fishery legislation in 20 years. The Act, of which Payne was a co-sponsor, made available federal funds for research in all phases of commercial fishery activity.

One phase of the activity resulting from the Act is the study now being conducted on Maine

ANNAS SPEAKS ON AREA SCHOOL AT THOMASTON MEETING WHICH DREW 100 FROM FIVE TOWNS

Philip Annas of the State Department of Education discussed what constitutes the best size area school before the more than 100 delegates from five communities at the Thomaston High School Thursday night.

Speaking before the representatives from Thomaston, Warren, Union, Cushing and St. George, Annas reviewed the background of the population trend in conjunction with the existing school structures around the State, according to Beniah Harding of Thomaston, moderator for the evening.

A panel discussion followed the talk. On the panel were: Annas,

Mrs. Weston Farrow of Union, Mrs. William S. Cook of Martinsville, Mrs. Warren Ford of Thomaston, Carroll Wallace, principal of Thomaston High School, Orville Guptill, superintendent of schools for Camden and Thomaston, Mrs. Berry Barbour of Warren and Keith Crockett of West Rockport.

Harding expressed the idea that most of the people at the meeting were against a "Greater Knox County Area High School" although several delegates have indicated that they will be present at the meeting April 18 at the Thompson Memorial Gymnasium in Union concerning the possible formation of a county-wide administrative school district.

A meeting has been called for Monday at 7:30 p. m. for the members of the population studies, existing school structures and the curriculum committees at the Thomaston High School.

SALESMAN DECAPITATED BY TAUT TOW TRUCK CABLE ACROSS ROUTE ONE IN GLEN COVE THURSDAY MORNING

The Spack car is pictured where it came to rest 47 feet off the highway to the left of the accident scene. Trooper George Massie is examining the wreckage which contained Spack's mutilated body, covered by blankets in the front seat. The top was swept clean from the body at door level as if it had been sliced with a knife. Lobster cartons and samples of merchandise Spack sold are in the rear seat with clothing, which might have been hanging in the car, draped over the rear deck.

The first fatality on the new road under construction between the Rockland-Glen Cove line and the Drive-In Theatre in Rockport occurred about 7:10 a. m. Thursday.

Dead is George M. Spack, 58, a salesman whose home was at 110 Evans road in Brookline, Mass.

The top was torn from his 1953 Oldsmobile hardtop sedan and he was decapitated when he drove the vehicle into a wire cable stretched taut across Route 1 between two trucks of the Thomas DiCenzo Construction Company of Calais, contractors on the project.

Site of the accident was a short distance north of the junction of Route 1 and Old County road just beyond the homes of Shirley Barbour and Donald Kelsey.

Workmen of the DiCenzo crew related that they were engaged in towing the heavy dump trucks used on the job from their overnight parking place in a field on the east side of the road beyond the Kelsey home. It has been the practice all winter to start the heavy dump trucks from their parking lot by towing them each morning, working with guards posted at either end of the scene to halt traffic while the road was blocked. For a brief time in each towing operation, the towing cable would stretch across Route 1; perhaps not visible to oncoming motorists, as a truck was pulled to the highway from the field.

Seth E. Avery, Jr., of Eastport, the flagman on the southern end of the project, said that Spack's car entered the area which he was guarding at high speed and that it became necessary for him to jump to avoid injury. Efforts to halt the car were fruitless, he commented.

Apparently trying to pass around the rear of the towing truck on the right of the highway, Spack struck the cable. It just passed over the hood of his car and struck the windshield to rip the top completely from the car and drop it in the highway astern.

The picture below shows the top of the car where it dropped in the highway. The glass of the windshield and windows was scattered over the road, smashed into tiny fragments by the force of the impact.

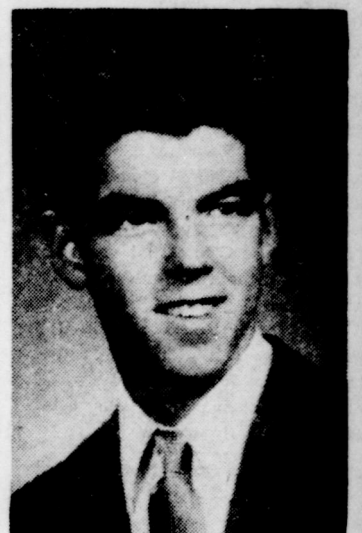

The truck at the right of the picture is that which was being used as a tow truck. The home of Shirley Barbour shows in the background.

SCHOOL DISTRICT STUDY GROUP REPORTS FINDINGS ON BUILDING COSTS TO ROCKLAND HIGH PTA

By Harvey Kelley

At a meeting of the Rockland High School P.T.A. Monday evening it was reported that a high school building, costing in the neighborhood of one and a half million dollars, appeared to be needed to provide adequate facilities for the towns of Rockland, Rockport, Owls Head and South Thomaston. The recommendation for the new structure came from the joint school committees of the four towns, as a result of an intensive study of their needs during the coming years if they should form a school district.

In order that citizens be informed, it is perhaps a good idea to review the reasons back of the committee recommendations and the way in which they reached their decision.

One of the first items considered by them was the fact that Rockland High School, which now serves Rockland, Owls Head and South Thomaston, is literally bursting at the seams. A pupil population study has shown that this condition will not get any better. In fact, it indicates that even if Rockland were to stop taking students from Owls Head and South Thomaston, it would tions Committee to add the amount to the Department of the Interior Appropriation Bill.

The Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956 was a step ahead in fishery legislation which the senator pointed to with justifiable pride as he was one of the prime movers in the program.

The Act created a clear cut line between commercial and sports fishing and established a Commercial Fisheries Bureau completely independent of the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife. Also arising from the program was the $10,000,000 Fishery Loan Fund available through the Saltonstall-Kennedy Fishery Research Act. It is expected that as a result of activity of Payne and Senator Magnuson that the loan fund will shortly be increased to 20 million.

Also before Congress is a Payne-sponsored bill which proposes a Fishery Extension Service not unlike the Agricultural Extension Service which serves the farmers of the nation. Such a service would provide on-the-scene experts in fisheries to assist commercial fishermen.

In closing, Senator Payne touched on the impending trial of the Maine Lobstermen's Association for alleged price fixing in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. He had the following to say.

"At the present time the problem of greatest interest to the lobster industry, and indeed to all segments of the commercial fisheries, both here in Maine and throughout the United States, is the Federal indictment of the Maine Lobstermen's Association.

"The fact that the MLA has been indicted for a restraint of trade indicates that the law as it applies to the pricing policies and marketing activities of fishermen is not as clear and certain as most people believed. The pending case is now scheduled for trial in May, but it may be some time—up to several years in fact—before the issue is finally resolved. In the meantime the individual lobster fishermen will be in a complete quandary as to what actions he can safely take to secure a fair price for his catch.

"This same uncertainty will extend to practically all fishermen and the result could well be economic chaos for the entire fishing industry.

"In an effort to clarify the situation in regard to future catches, I have just recently introduced a bill, which is co-sponsored by Senator Margaret Chase Smith, to exempt fishermen from the anti-trust laws. Enactment of this legislation will give every American fisherman the right to bargain collectively or individually for a fair price for his catch without risking prosecution for violation of the anti-trust laws—a risk that neither the farmer nor laborer has to run in bargaining for a fair return for his produce or labor.

"Since this fishery anti-trust bill was introduced there has been widespread interest indicated in it. Shortly before leaving Washington I discussed the bill with Senator Magnuson, Chairman of the Commerce Committee, and he indicated that action on the bill would be initiated shortly after the Easter Recess of Congress."

EDITORIAL

WE REPUBLICANS NOT POLITICALLY MINDED

Throughout our nonpartisan researches into partisan politics we have been fascinated by the ability of the Democrats to hurl against Republicans brickbats which might, with equal appropriateness, be hurled at Democrats.

Take the recent hue and cry over the pulling and hauling in the Federal Communications Commission as to whether a license for a TV station in Miami should go to an airline or to a gentlemen named Katzentine. It is a good bet that 90 per cent of newspaper readers identified this as a Republican embarrassment, a sort of poor man's Teapot Dome. The names of Sherman Adams and Vice President Nixon, among others, were freely tossed about the committee room and in the newspapers, although it does not appear that these individuals had any more to do with the affair than to be the target of letters which they didn't answer.

Lost in the shuffle was the fact that Commissioner Mack, the man who accepted favors from applicants for TV licenses, is a Democrat, albeit an "Eisenhower Democrat". Furthermore, few went to as much trouble to stir up sentiment on behalf of a friend as Senator Estes Kefauver, the old crusader, did for Mr. Katzentine. Maybe the committee has a big, juicy and immoral Republican up its sleeve, but its first victim was certainly a Democrat. Nevertheless, it is the Democrats who do the accusing and the Republicans who do the worrying!

This is a political year and thus there is no cause for complaint against the Democrats in Congress for attempting to make a "thing" out of the arrangement which President Eisenhower reported having made with Vice President Nixon in respect to the possibility that he might be compelled by illness to retire from office. From all the talk about a "secret deal" consummated "behind closed doors" one might think that some frightful conspiracy had been hatched to sneak Mr. Nixon onto the throne while nobody was looking.

The failure was on the part of the Republicans. Instead of letting this small cat crawl slyly out of the bag, they could easily have capitalized heavily on what the President did. "In the absence of necessary legislation by a Democratic Congress," a GOP spokesman might have said, "President Eisenhower courageously and patriotically agreed that, should illness or other disability make it necessary, he would immediately step aside and permit the Vice President to carry on the duties of his office, thereby ending confusion and permitting the administration of the executive departments to continue without interruption. With his usual good sense the President did not make public announcements of this arrangement, lest it give rise to rumors that he had already been stricken."

Something like that would have taken the starch out of Speaker Sam Rayburn's objection that nothing so simple could be done without a constitutional amendment. It isis comes on in the middle of the night, it could be pointed out; amending the Constitution is likely to take five years. Furthermore, the Democrats control Congress and can start an amendment on its way whenever they like. The President says he is for it.

All this clowning by the Democrats may be the way to play it. Nevertheless, our own strategic suggestion for Democrats is that before 1960 they should shake themselves clear of the Americans for Democratic Action and other left-fringe pressure groups, and name a solid middle-of-the-road candidate. At random we toss out the names of Senator Frank Lausche of Ohio, Senator John McClellan of Arkansas, or maybe Governor LeRoy Collins of Florida. Candidates like these would really worry the Republicans—that is, when and if they learn what to worry about.

"WELCOME SWEET SPRINGTIME?"

Spring is here, and our northern areas are encountering the almost-forgotten sights and sounds of this gently blustering season. There are whitecapped millponds, stretching and tossing after their icy hibernation; pussywillows sunning themselves like wise kittens; and increasingly frequent flashes of bright birds back home after their vacation down South.

There's the first faintly perceptible yellowing of bare-limbed maples, beginning to get dressed in their cool summer green; snowbanks of spiraea blossoms making believe that winter has come back; lines of Monday morning wash whipping like bright flags under the high-riding sun.

There's the sound of peepers in springtime pools, reminding us that even April can get a little frog in her throat in such changeable weather; the drip of maple sap from a boy-broken tree branch and the back-to-work buzzing of bees; the chirping of newly hatched chicks; the eager rush and gurgle of city gutters and country trout streams; the satisfying crack of the first clean-hit ball and the mud-sucking sound of boys' shoes, unfettered by galoshes, as they play catch in a soggy field.

There's a new ring to Sunday church bells, unhurried but clear over the balmy air, telling us that perhaps it is not yet irrevocably later than we think, that there is always a new beginning, another chance for our sad old world, one more hope for us all.—Saturday Evening Post

EDUCATION ON ALCOHOLISM

The National Council of Alcoholism says there are about 5,000,000 alcoholics in the United States. (The estimates are climbing.) James F. Oates, Jr., president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, told the council that 2,000,000 of these alcoholics are employed in industry and cause a direct loss of a billion dollars a year.

An alcoholic is defined by the council as a person who is powerless to stop drinking which seriously affects his pattern of living. And Mr. Oates appealed to industry not to condemn the alcoholic as immoral, deliberately undisciplined and self-indulgent, but as the victim of an illness,—a compassionate and accurate view as it applies to those who have become actual prisoners of the appetite. Many, however, earlier in their history failed to make a moral choice while a choice was still possible.

The way out of the problem for industry, said Mr. Oates, is to further a broad program of education. Might that program include education in the facts that industry is paying in lost production, the alcoholic is paying in loss of peace of mind and self-respect, and society is paying in broken homes and custodial care?

Meanwhile, a profit-making industry, when it advertises for new customers, is advertising inescapably for new alcoholics at the same time—and making the rehabilitation of existing alcoholics even more difficult.

In Municipal Court Thursday morning, Judge Alfred M. Strout found probable cause to hold a charge of attempted breaking and entering against Malcolm Robbins, 18, of Rockland and Peter New-man, 20, of Owls Head, to the May term of Knox Superior Court.

Each respondent was required to post a bond of $500 for their re-lease.

A fugitive from justice warrant against Douglas W. Makie of Thomaston was continued without plea to April 21. His mother, Mrs. Lillian Makie, posted $200 property bail.

Rockland police brought Makie into court, after his release from a 30 day jail term in the county jail.

Makie was wanted for a charge of driving a vehicle while under the influence of liquor July 11, 1957 in New Bedford, Mass.

In Municipal Court Friday morning, Judge Alfred M. Strout continued a charge of driving a vehicle without any registration on his person against Malcolm Reynolds, 22, of Rockland, to April 22.

Reynolds was stopped April 10 on Orange street, Rockland, by Rockland police. The charge was continued without plea.

Camden Lions To Collect Sunday For Rummage Sale

The Camden Lions Club is exert-ing all its energies in putting the annual Charity Rummage and Bazaar together.

All types of clothing, serviceable shoes, household articles of all kinds, appliances in workable con-dition, novelties, books and any other saleable items will be picked up by teams of Lions every day from now until the opening day of the sale.

Emphasis is being put on the col-lecting date of Sunday, April 13, when many teams with trucks will be cruising the streets of Camden and surrounding areas picking up any and all of the above items.

Lions can be contacted at CEder 6-2841 and 6-2632 for pick-up of any serviceable articles.

The Charity Rummage and Bazaar will open at 6.30 p. m. Thursday, April 17, in order to give everyone the same advantage of securing the first choice after working hours. On Friday, April 18, it will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. The event will again be held at the Camden High School Gymnasium.

In addition to the usual rum-mage, the Dandylions will have baked goods, plants, fancy work and white elephant items for sale. There will also be a refreshment bar serving hot dogs and cold soda all during the sale.

The charge stated that the two attempted to break and enter the back window of the Charles Pet-teroli watch shop in the alley be-hind the Bicknell Block, April 8, by moving a horse and scaffold under the window. Their attempt to pry open the window was in-terrupted, according to the warrant.

Rockland police, who were the complainants, testified that New-man admitted the charge to them while under interrogation. A plea of not guilty was entered for the two respondents by their counsel.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Irvin D. Sim-mons, Sr., who passed away April 14, 1957.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all
Your memory is as sweet today
As in the hour you passed away
The blow was hard, the shock severe
We never thought death was so near
But only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without fare-well
Never to be forgotten by His Wife, Sons, Daughters and Grand-children. 44-11

In sad and loving memory of husband and father, Claron Shaw, who departed this life one year ago April 11, 1957.
Lonely is our home without him.
Sadly do we feel our loss, but God alone has helped us well to bear our heavy cross

STEAMBOAT YARNS of Ships and Men

John M. Richardson

Captain Scott Presents An Authentic History Of The Decline Of The Port Of Boston

Above appears a group of the colored porters and deck boys of the Steamer City of Bangor. Dur-ing all their years there was never a complaint of impertinence or undue familiarity from any of the hundreds of stewards who served on the ships over the years. The famous Kataladin whistle used on the Bangor may be seen forward of the beam house between the stacks.

Deer Isle, Maine
March 24, 1958
Dear Steamboat Editor,

I have three letters in my files from faithful readers of your Steamboat Column and the question they ask all have the same mean-ing, though they read somewhat differently. I don't feel equal to any long range prediction that would be an intelligent answer. The questions are as follows:

Has Boston's waterfront any as-sured future as a coastwise ship-ping port? Is it gradually going back to its condition when East India men discharged their cargoes at bulkheads and makeshift piers? Can Boston recuperate to the ex-tent that her waterfront activities would equal those days before World War I?

I will answer all the above ques-tions with one answer, India. Wharf has gone. Central is sold and unused at present. Fosters Wharf is closed and the ghost of the past peeks through the cob-webs of the old freight office win-dow to its historic arch entrance from Atlantic Avenue, and recently $300,000 was raised and in two weeks time another famous land-mark, the Merchants and Miners Transportation Dock on Northern Avenue will be demolished.

Prior to World War I, above every freight shed from Castle Island to the Chelsea Creek were varied colors of smokestacks, one, two, three and four stacks. South Boston docks harbored the ocean greyhounds of the North German Lloyd and Hamburg American Lines. Every dock from this point to the Hoosic Tunnel docks in Charlestown, where the famous Cattle Boats unloaded their live cargoes for the Watertown stock yards, was jammed to the bulkheads with every type of steamboat from the beam driven side-wheeler to the twin screw tur-bine. The waters of Boston Har-bor would not conveniently accom-modate her waterborn activity, coastwise steamboats, tugs, light-ers, whalebacks, ocean liners, col-liers, and four different ferries that ran every minute, day and night.

It gives us food for thought to read the maritime history of Mas-sachusetts by that great historian, Samuel Eliot Morrison. He pic-tures the building of India and Cen-tral Wharves. His pictures show brigas and barks laying four abreast at the new India Wharf. This was that era from 1783 to 1860. From that date to World War I, Boston's waterfront enjoyed increased ac-tivity and expansion. Since then her waterfront activities have suf-fered a gradual decline. The pass-ing of steamers of the Metropolitan Line and steamers to coastal New England and the Maritime Provinces robbed Boston of a color that she can never replace.

Ransom B. Fuller proved himself wrong when he spoke at an an-nual directors meeting of the Bos-ton and Bangor Steamboat Com-pany in Portland on February 16, 1904, when he said, "Boston's wa-terfront activities guarantees our continued expansion." He failed, however, to say for how long. It was shown at that time that the net earnings for the year were $254,849, while the gross earnings were $1,435,894. The directors elected were: Ransom B. Fuller, James T. Morse, Calvin Austin, William H. Hill, Eugene P. Car-ver, Charles W. Morse, John Eng-lis, Charles F. Libby, James B. Drake, William T. Cobb of Rock-land and John F. Hill of Augusta.

In my early days as a roust-a-bout, I left the steamer Penobscot just before sailing time with a view of doing hourly work on At-lantic Avenue after getting a bite to eat. I met a stevedore who wanted men to unload cotton from a tramp steamer at White Spirit Wharf. I did not get a room as I thought I would be working all night. Shortly after midnight the boss handed us our slips as no lighters were available to load more cotton. We were not allowed to stay in the freight shed. The night being warm I decided to walk down to the North End Park to while away the hours until morn-ing. On my arrival there I saw an old abandoned smokestack laying on its side on the bulkhead. At this bulkhead three Italian barks were tied up three abreast. The old smokestack looked tempting so I crawled into it for a few winks. It was big enough so one could be quite comfortable in a sitting position. I slept little, however, as I found the stack almost as noisy as though the safety valve was attached and in operation. It was already occupied by Old Dan Dougherty, Eddie Collins, Tommy Means and two other roust-a-bouts in a peaceful, but noisy land of dreams. Their freight hooks be-side them, it was quite obvious that this was their permanent summer home, but they did not consider me an intruder as we were all invited to breakfast aboard one of the Italian barks, whose cook brought brimming tin plates of spaghetti up to the rail under the shade of a gaudy colored awning. A happy family of six roust-a-bouts enjoying a deli-cacy prepared and served by a famous and expert Italian chef.

Boston's waterfront was so busy that these barks were waiting their turn to unload and we six who had breakfast together unloaded these vessels later in the week. Any time, at any hour in those days there was plenty of hourly work on Boston's waterfront at 30 cents an hour. Compare those days with the situation today in Boston. It may help to answer the questions our readers ask.

Boston has a colorful historical background. The first fireboat used was commissioned in Boston on January 1, 1873, named the Wil-liam M. Flanders. It was espe-cially constructed of metal by a shipyard in East Boston and could throw 2,500 gallons of water a min-ute. The first New England hospi-tal to offer medical care to chil-dren aboard ship was the Boston Floating Hospital in 1894. It grew in 32 summers from a small excur-sion boat to a well equipped hospi-tal ship and continued until she burned in 1927.

The first large steam vessel made of iron constructed in the United States, was built in East Boston in 1857 by Holden and Gal-lagher, called "La Voyagour De La Mer". She was ordered by the Pasha of Egypt and was of 1,300 tons, 216 feet overall and a beam of 37 feet.

The Cunarda Britannia was the first transatlantic ship to enter Boston. She sailed from Liverpool on July 4, 1840, arriving in Boston 15 days later. The first drydock in the United States was started in Boston in 1828 at the Charlestown Navy Yard. It was built of Quincy granite and cost $927,000. It was completed in March, 1834, and the Frigate Constitution was the first to enter the dock on June 24, 1833, a year before the dock was actually completed.

The first exportation of ice was 300 tons shipped on the brig Fav-orite in August, 1805, from Boston to the West Indies. The next 50 years ice became one of Boston's leading exports, amounting to 150,000 tons a year.

The first United States Coast Guard cutter Massachusetts was captained by John Foster Williams of Boston, born on March 21, 1791.

Lady Lions Plan Rummage Sale

Mrs. Eugenia Annis, chairman of the ways and means committee for the Rockland Lady Lions, an-nounced at their dinner meeting Wednesday evening at the Med-O-Mak in Waldoboro that the annual rummage sale would be held Saturday morning, April 19, at the Masonic Temple at 9.30.

Members were asked to help pre-pare for the sale on Friday night at the Temple and to be on duty one-half hour before the doors will open to the public.

Mrs. Katherine Akers will pick up articles for anyone having rum-mage they wish to donate.

Mrs. Inez Harden, Mrs. Phyllis Grant and Mrs. Burnette Hardy volunteered to act as co-chairmen for the food booth at the Rockland Lions Club auction to be held at the Community Building on May 24, at 4 p. m. The Lady Lions voted to hold only one meeting during the months of July and August. The next meeting will be a social meet-ing at the home of Mrs. Esther Novicka on April 23.

He was commissioned by President Washington and retained his com-mand until his death in 1814.

The first merchant vessel to drop anchor in Buenos Aires flying the American flag was the schooner James of Boston on April 18, 1801. She was in command of Capt. Robert Gray who discovered the Columbia River in 1797.

The first public War Loan in America was raised in Boston in 1860, to finance the ill-fated expedi-tion against the French in Quebec. This required a force of 22 hundred men and 32 vessels.

The first American warship com-missioned was the schooner Han-nah on September 2, 1775. General Washington ordered her to seize all vessels going in and out of Boston in service of the Ministerial Army.

Boston is faced with the prob-lem of cleaning up the debris left in the wake of the speed of progress in high gear. The days of Capt. Otis Ingraham, Marcus Pierce and Capt. Eddie Rawley are but a memory. It is better for Bos-ton to clean up than to leave these relics of the past in ruins such as the steamboat wharf at Camden and all those left to rot to ruins along our New England Coast. It is hard for us old timers to ren-der to this present day of wings and wheels, but by doing so we must try to do as good a job re-cording those old steamboat days now gone, as Samuel Eliot Morri-son did with the history of the days of Boston's East India men.

Sincerely,

Capt. Walter Scott.

A fellow can hardly expect to get very far ahead if he is con-tinually looking backward.

GRANGE NEWS OF KNOX-LINCOLN COUNTIES

Home Service by Eleanor Spear of Central Maine Power Co.

Last Thursday I attended a cooking school which was held during Farm and Home Week at the University of Maine, and picked up some grand ideas on how to cook fish. I think we all ruin fish occasionally by overcooking or by using too high a temperature.

The next time you decide to have fish how about trying one of these recipes which come from the Fish and Wildlife Service of the United States Department of the Interior.

Fish Birds

2 pounds fillets, fresh or frozen
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Bread stuffing
¾ cup butter or other fat melted
3 slices bacon (optional)

Thaw frozen fillets. Remove skin from fillets. Sprinkle both sides with salt and pepper. Place a small ball of stuffing on each piece of fish. Roll fish around stuffing and fasten with toothpicks or skewers. Place rolls on a well-greased baking pan. Brush tops with butter and lay bacon on top of each bird. Bake in moderate oven, 350° F. for 25 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove fastenings. Serves 6.

Bread Stuffing

3 tablespoons chopped onion
¾ cup chopped celery

1/3 cup butter or other fat melted
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 teaspoon thyme, sage, or savory seasoning
1 quart day-old bread crumbs
Cook onion and celery in butter until tender. Add cooked vegetables and seasonings to bread crumbs; mix thoroughly. If stuffing seems very dry, add 1 tablespoon water, milk, or fish stock to moisten.

Tuna And Cheese Biscuit Roll
2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter or other fat melted
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup milk
¾ cup grated cheese
2 cups biscuit mix

Drain tuna. Flake. Cook onion in butter until tender. Blend in flour. Add milk gradually and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add cheese and heat until cheese melts. Stir in tuna. Prepare biscuit mix as directed. Roll into a rectangle about 12x8x½ inch. Spread with tuna mixture. Roll like a jelly roll and seal ends and edge. Cut top in three places to let steam escape. Place on a well-greased cookie sheet, 15½x12 inches. Bake in hot oven, 400° F. for 20 to 25 minutes or until brown. Serves 6.

Stretching the Food Dollar is the meeting being held throughout the counties in April and May. One of the most important ways to do this is by making a plan. By planning your menus in advance you can take advantage of quantity buying and sales of the week.

We are now expecting entrants for the Farm and Home Improvement Contest. If you are going to do anything to improve the general appearance of your grounds you may enter this contest. If you want information about this contest you may come into the office at the Post Office building or write me at Box 415, Rockland.

Chicken and fowl are on the plentiful list this week. Pork also is in good supply along with cheese and the milk products. Fresh vegetables are rather high and the quality should be watched closely, but frozen and canned vegetables fill in very well to substitute for the lack of the fresh varieties.

Recipe Of The Week

1 package noodles (boiled until tender)
1 ½ or 2 pound fowl (cooked until tender)
1 can mushroom soup
Celery and Onion (chopped)
Mix all ingredients together and top with cracker crumbs. Bake in 350° F oven for 30 or 35 minutes.

Egg Producers Present Quality Contract

The featured speakers at the Independent Egg Producers' Association meeting Thursday night at the Warren Grange Hall discuss the bargaining power of co-operatives and egg contracts with the president of the association, Carl Erickson of Warren, second from right, and Gilbert Jaeger, county agent for Knox and Lincoln Counties, second from left. The speakers are: Frank Reed, poultry marketing specialist for the University of Maine, left, Joe Fletcher, a poultry producer from Wentworth, N. H., center, and Henry Bradford, in the farmer-cooperative service of the United States Department of Agriculture, right.

After a quality egg contract study of several months by the directors of the Independent Egg Producers Association, President Carl Erickson of Warren called all interested producers to a meeting Thursday night at the Warren Grange Hall to discuss a proposed contract which had been prepared in committee. Fully half of the 50 members present signified by a hand vote that they were ready to take part in the proposed quality contract program.

Henry L. Bradford of Washington, D. C., staff member of the U.S.D.A. Farmers Cooperative Service, substituting for the bureau chief, John Scanlan who was called to the West coast, gave an informative talk on the subject of bargaining cooperatives. Members of I.E.P.A. are thinking seriously of forming such a cooperative to carry out their plans for the contract program and also to put themselves in a position to deal collectively with the egg buying firms which operate in Maine.

President Erickson asked several members and guests to present their views, among them being Frank Reed of Orono, Maine Extension poultry and marketing specialist; Gilbert Jaeger of Camden, Knox-Lincoln county agent; Joseph Fletcher of Wentworth, N. H., author of the Fletcher Self-Help Plan; Herbert Alexander of Rockport, chairman of the marketing committee; Floyd Smith, representative of Hubbard Farms; Robert Kurr, Rockland egg producer and Lipman representative; Frederic Hynd of Cushing, secretary.

Under the present system, egg producers are paid alike for their eggs. That is, there is no differentiation for quality. Under the proposed contract plan, quality could have an important bearing on the income of the producer taking part and those producing the best eggs could conceivably receive greater income than is now possible. On the other hand, any farmer who does not achieve a high quality standard would be penalized.

The committee preparing the contract studied many factors pertaining to egg quality which they felt had a direct bearing. Frequent collections, careful handling, proper cooling, length of lay and even strains of birds were considered.

It was noted by Mr. Fletcher that a mere 10 years ago 45 per cent of the eggs used in New England were produced in other areas. Today, outside eggs represent only nine per cent, but strange to say, this nine per cent seems to have a greater bearing on prices paid the New England farmers than did the 45 per cent. One reason that could be given for this is the fact that there has been a great improvement in the quality of eggs shipped in from other areas, so that they are now in direct competition with nearby eggs.

Mr. Bradford urged the members to form a bargaining cooperative. He felt that this was the safest and most efficient way in which the group could handle the contract proposal. He has been working with I.E.P.A. for several months and had already submitted a set of proposed bylaws for a bargaining cooperative.

He cited some examples of successful work in egg quality that is being done in Pacific coast states. But, he said all retail customers are not ready to pay a premium for quality eggs and an educational program would probably be necessary to convince many housewives that better eggs were worth several cents more a dozen.

Frank Reed felt that a long step had been taken in the right direction and he urged the members to put every effort into making this quality plan work.

The contract suggestions of the committee were put into proper form for presentation at the meeting by County Agent Jaeger. He included several interesting tables showing the revenue that would accrue to the producer. These tables included both quality percentages and varying premiums per dozen.

Mr. Bradford offered the services of the Farmers Co-op Service attorney in preparing a final draft of the contract for presentation to the egg buyers.

A lunch was served by the members of the Warren Grange.

not these four towns should combine into one district. Deciding upon a new building and where to erect it, would be done after a board of directors had been elected to supervise the district.

The cost of a new building would be shared by the state and the four towns involved. The state would pay nearly one third of the cost. The shares to be paid by the four towns would be Rockland, $766.263; Rockport, $176.157; Owls Head, $65.771 and South Thomas, $34.342.

Another factor of importance is that if either Rockland or Rockport should decide to expand their present buildings or construct new high schools and do it by themselves the state would not pay any share of the construction costs.

WARREN, ME. CB 4-281

By Henry Teague

The heavy investment needed for a poultry enterprise is well illustrated in the report issued this week by the assessors of the Town of Warren. The report is the result of extensive appraisal work done last year by a method developed by the State Bureau of Taxation.

It is evident that poultry property is of tremendous importance to the town and following this line of reasoning, it is of great importance to practically every community in the county.

The four heaviest taxpayers in Warren are all poultrymen. They are Carl Erickson, Charles Kigel, the Clarence Tolman heirs and Fred Webel. The combined total valuation of land and buildings on these four farms is $213,160. And this does not include the value of the poultry on these farms which is also taxable. Practically every poultry farm in Warren has at least a five figure valuation.

The question as to whether the birds should be taxed is certainly debatable. In some other poultry states, poultrymen have been given relief in the taxing of birds.

One sound reason for eliminating the bird tax is the great change in value of the bird that has taken place over the last decade. During the period following the second World War up until the end of 1949, poultrymen not only made an excellent profit from their eggs, but fowl sold at a profit over the cost of raising pullets.

During a period like that a reasonable bird tax would have no adverse effect. But when birds are an actual expense to the poultryman, it seems hardly justifiable to add a tax fee to the load.

Even without the bird tax, poultry farms are an excellent source of revenue to a town, far above the return from the average dwelling. Yet the dwelling owner enjoys all the privileges supplied by a town tax at far less cost in many instances.

Since a poultry farm is so valuable to a town taxwise, it would seem to be just good business to encourage this line of endeavor. Given this encouragement, poultrymen who are already living in the town will be encouraged to expand their operations and new poultrymen may be interested in taking up residence.

The trend is definitely toward larger poultry farms, because the per bird profit has been growing smaller over the past 10 years. Hardly a year goes by but when several new poultry buildings go up in Knox County towns. This means added revenue to each community to help pay for schools, roads and other town expenses.

If the per bird tax were eliminated, the same amount could be obtained by spreading the tax over all the real estate and even then poultrymen would be paying an extra share.

The very reason for the recent revaluation in the town of Warren was to eliminate as many of the inequities as possible. This has meant a higher tax for some and lower for others.

If poultrymen are bearing more than their fair share of the tax burden in any town, they may not have enough votes in their group to make any changes. But, we like to think that town officials as a whole are fair minded and anxious to make all taxes as fair minded and anxious to make all taxes as fair as possible. If the per bird tax is putting too much of a load on the poultrymen of a town, it could be either lessened or eliminated entirely.

We poultrymen do know that in some other states along the Atlantic coast where there has been rapid expansion of population since the war, many poultrymen have been forced out by taxes that have become too high. These farmers were able to sell out in some cases at a fair figure due to the increased value of their land. Others suffered heavy losses through sale. This movement is still going on and hundreds of farms in states like Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are either gone or soon will be.

Maine does not have a land value problem yet, but if Wirthmore builds the new mill in Rockland which is now being discussed, one can predict a big growth in the poultry population of Knox County and for that matter other counties. This quite possibly could increase the value of poultry farms. In turn it will increase the importance of the poultry farm as taxable property in every town. So now is the time to give some heavy thought to equitable taxes, for the town offering the most reasonable tax plan for poultrymen is the one most likely to benefit in the long run.

MIRACLES

Blossoms prove that winter has given place to spring; fruit, vegetables and grain prove that harvest is at hand—all are miracles. We see them so often we take them for granted, and we forget there are other miracles, just as beautiful, just as significant, just as unfailing.

The Church, bringing human lives into contact with God, produces miracles every day. Rough, actually evil people become powers for good. As winter changes into spring, so cold, barren nature blossoms and brings forth good fruit.

God depends on our help to cultivate the soil and care for the seed. Similarly, He looks to us to help bring the message of the Church, the message of salvation to others. He invites each of us to become part of His great miracle-working program.

Why not begin NOW? Become a part of the Church and its great work. Your own life will be enriched, your happiness increased, because you are a partner in performing miracles.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor in the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
