"What can you do with penalties and license suspensions that will act as a deterrent to the growing list of motor vehicle violations?" Gov. Edmund S. Muskie asked at a special session of municipal court judges and recorders and trial justices Thursday afternoon at the Samoset Hotel.

The special highway safety conference session followed the annual convention of the Maine State Bar Association at the hotel which saw Frank Harding of Rockland, the State's attorney-general, elected as one of the vice presidents and to the executive committee of the association.

The special session was called by the governor in an effort to curb the rapidly rising record of highway fatalities on Maine highways over the past weeks.

Muskie commented that for the first seven months of this year, the toll of State highway fatalities was below that of 1957, which was considered the safest year in the history of the State. But during the past few weeks, "all hell broke loose" on fatalities on the roads, he said.

Muskie explained the various reasons for the 24 highway fatalities during the month of August of this year. He cited speeding as contributing 10 per cent of the 24 deaths; 36 per cent from reckless driving; five per cent drunken driving and 42 per cent to negligence on the part of pedestrians.

The latter reason, the governor remarked, showed a growing lack of concern for highway safety on the part of the walking public. He said that the Governor's Highway Safety Committee has already instituted several methods of educating the public in care and watchfulness while walking on the streets.

The group approved the plan of Paul MacDonald, deputy Secretary of State, that a more stringent policy will now be instituted in regards to license suspension. The plan was that when the local judge suspended a respondent's driver's license for 10 days, he would then note on the back of the file card, which is sent to the Secretary of State office in Augusta, that he recommends an extended time for suspension.

MacDonald promised that his department would then further suspend the respondent's license until such a time that the person is called to Augusta for a special hearing. This time between the arraignment in court and the hearing in Augusta would take about 30 days, MacDonald said.

In the past, the deputy Secretary of State noted, a person's 10 day suspension would be over and his license returned before the Secretary of State would have a chance of extending the suspension, if needed, after a hearing is held in Augusta.

During the conference, many of the judges, led by Judge Alfred M. Strout of the Rockland Municipal Court, asked MacDonald whether more discretionary power could be given to the lower courts on the question of license suspension. Strout suggested this plan as opposed to MacDonald's idea that the Secretary of State should be vested in the power to act as a central agency in the absolute right of suspending licenses and even calling for the registration plates of the respondent's vehicle.

Strout also suggested that a law should be presented at the January session of the State legislature to extend the power of the municipal court judge in suspending licenses from 10 to 60, or even 90 days.

The Rockland Municipal Court judge also advocated a plan for suspending and returning the respondent's license in the lower court, especially in the case of younger drivers. This would save the respondent and his parents the inconvenience of journeying to Augusta for a special hearing.

He also commented that two punishments handed to the younger violators, first by the Municipal court judge and again by the Sec-

TROOPER ON MATINICUS LOBSTER WAR DUTY ORDERS ISLANDERS TO COURT FOR UNREGISTERED VEHICLES

The residents of Matinicus Island received a surprise this week when Trooper Keith Littlefield, who was stationed on the island Tuesday, issued 17 summonses to residents of the island to appear in Rockland Municipal Court Tuesday for operating unregistered motor vehicles.

The trooper was sent from the Turnpike barracks of the State Police in an effort to prevent any further cutting of lobster traps such as has occurred on the island during the spring and summer of this year.

County Attorney Curtis Payson said that many of the 17 respondents on the island, which is 18 miles from the mainland, will be represented in court by attorneys and will not make the trip to Rockland.

Until some two years ago, the island had no road as such. Efforts of Island residents resulted in the State allocating funds and sending a construction crew there to build a gravel highway for about three and one-half miles. Town and State funds were pooled to pay for the job. Prior to that time, the roads of the island followed the path of least resistance, going around ledges, or along them as the need dictated and there was no highway program on the island. The roads were where a vehicle could be driven with reasonable safety.

As a result, no official ever thought to require registration of the jeeps and trucks the island people used to journey over the ledges to and from the docks. However, with State money invested in island roads, the powers that be evidently intend to get back some of their bait.

STROUT CRACKS DOWN ON DRUNKEN DRIVERS AND TRAFFIC VIOLATORS WITH JAIL TERMS, SUSPENSIONS

Judge Alfred M. Strout announced in Municipal Court Friday morning that he has instituted a new "get tough policy" against motor vehicle violators. A flagrant violator will immediately have his license suspended and a person found guilty of drunken driving will serve three days in jail, he said.

In carrying out his new policy, Judge Strout found Maynard Butler of Warren guilty of operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor and fined him $110, or 30 days in jail. In imposing the three days in the county jail, he told the respondent that this will give him the time to "meditate on the offense of which he was found guilty and the serious consequence which could have resulted from his driving while under the influence."

The results of a blood test showed that Butler had .446 per cent of alcohol in his blood when he was arrested by Sheriff P. Willard Pease Aug. 23 on the road leading from the Union Fair grounds to Route 17 in Union. A test showing .15 is considered evidence sufficient for conviction.

Judge Strout said that the blood test result was the highest that he has ever seen in Rockland Municipal Court. Sheriff Pease remarked that when he stopped Butler, the respondent denied even operating his vehicle.

Lorna D. Clark, 62, of Rockport, was found guilty of passing a red light at the intersection of Union and Limerock streets, Rockland, Thursday afternoon and was fined $25.

Rockland police asserted that the Clark car went through the red light, struck a vehicle driven by Hester F. Graf, 33, of 21 Frederick street, Rockland, which was proceeding south on Union street, causing an estimated $450 damage to the Graf car and about $100 damage to her own vehicle.

The Graf car spun around and struck a car, driven by Mrs. Dorothy Gordon, 39, of 30 Shaw avenue, Rockland, which had stopped for the red light heading east on Limerock street, causing about $25 damage. There were no reported injuries.

Thomas H. Perry, 21, of Hope pleaded guilty to operating an unregistered vehicle and the illegal attachment of plates.

He was fined $25 on the illegal attachment charge and given a suspended $10 fine on the former complaint and had his operator's license suspended for 10 days by Judge Strout.

State Police stopped the respondent Aug. 18 on Route 131 in Appleton and found that the plates on his 1941 Chevrolet had been issued to a 1952 Mercury sedan which Perry had previously sold.

Francis W. Watts, 47, of Union was found guilty of towing a car without a permit from the State Police and was fined $15. His son, Edward D. Watts, 18, who was steering the towing vehicle, was also found guilty and given a $10 suspended fine.

Francis Watts explained that he was towing a car that belonged to him from Brunswick and did not know that he required a permit to do so from the State Police.

Trooper George Massie stopped him on Route 17 in Union Aug. 17, not far from Watts' residence.

Judge Strout suspended the driver's license of Samuel P. Holton, 23, of Camden until Sept. 1 after he pleaded guilty to imprudent driving on Bay View street in Camden Aug. 28.

Camden police said that Holton was speeding 40 miles an hour in a 25 mile zone, gunning and screeching his tires on Bay View street in Camden.

Judge Strout fined him $15, and a 10 day suspended jail sentence with the provision that he does not drive over the Labor Day weekend. He left Holton's license in the custody of the Camden police so the respondent could claim it Monday morning.

Two Vacancies In Faculty As City Schools Prepare To Open; 3 New Teachers Employed; Others Assigned

Superintendent of School Bruce Kinney has announced the employing of three teachers for Rockland High School which opens Sept. 8, for the 1958-59 school year. Also the assignment of four practice teachers, two each from Gorham State Teachers College and the University of Maine; and the resignation of a veteran teacher for reasons of ill health.

Mrs. Ella Gatonbe of Owls Head, who has headed the dramatics department of the school for several years, will not return to classes. Ill health requires that she terminate a teaching career which covers 20 years spent in classrooms since she graduated from the University of Maine in 1920.

Mr. Kinney announced that the post of guidance director, which was vacated 30 days before school opening by George Johnson, has not been filled. Johnson contracted for a Connecticut position three months before he resigned his Rockland post. The superintendent said that while he has had applications for the post, he is continuing his search for a fully experienced man to fill the important position.

Also yet to be filled is a position in social studies and English.

New teachers include: Allen A. Guay, 22, a graduate of the St. Petersburg, Fla., High School and the University of Miami last June to teach industrial arts. He has been attending summer school at the University of Maine.

Brian G. Flynn, 22, will teach English and social studies and coach freshman football. A Lewiston native, he graduated from Bates College in 1957 and was in the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant in 1957 and 1958. A football and baseball letterman at Bates, he was an all-state end in 1956 and member of the state championship football team.

A four year Navy veteran from 1952 to 1956, William S. Duncklee, Jr., will teach English. He is 27 years of age and a graduate of Boston University where he has also done graduate work.

Two Rockland and Camden High graduates in the class of 1955 will enter the Rockland system as grade practice teachers as a part of their senior year training at Gorham State Teachers College. They are

Dwinal Resigns As Probate Judge

Judge Charles F. Dwinal

Judge of Probate Charles F. Dwinal has tendered his resignation to Governor Edmund S. Muskie, effective immediately.

Judge Dwinal said Friday afternoon that he preferred to return to the probate law practice which he and his father, the late Judge Zelma M. Dwinal, had before he accepted the county probate judgeship in January of 1957. The position as judge of the Knox County Probate Court removes the holder from the practice of probate law in the state, so long as he holds office.

Prior to becoming judge of probate, Dwinal was recorder of the

In a post season Little League clash, St. George of the Knox Suburban Little League defeated the Giants of the Rockland League 10-5.

Nine runs in the first three frames were all the Knoxers needed to win.

Al Leppanen led the Saints with his hurling, giving up only four hits and striking out 13.

Consumer Buying Biggest Prop In National Economy

Consumer spending has proved to be the strongest kind of prop to the economy in the 1957-58 recession, as in the two previous downturns, says The First National Bank of Boston in the September issue of its New England Letter.

Continuing, the Bank says, Disposable personal income was notably well sustained, due in large measure to stabilizers such as Government transfer payments, while there was some reduction in the rate of personal saving. Thus, individuals were enabled to go on spending, with only a slight slackening in purchases of goods, principally durables, and particularly new automobiles. Buying of services actually increased in each period. What is the pattern of spending likely to be as we move ahead in recovery? Will consumers' needs and tastes change on any broad scale? And how will this affect selected industries, productive capacity, new investment, and prices?

These are but a few of the questions which will increasingly challenge management as it seeks to "guesstimate" what nearly 175 consumers will want and finally buy. The automobile has recently been the single most talked-about product in terms of consumer acceptance and of the influence of the industry on the economy, receiving much undeserved criticism. Admittedly, the American automobile is big and expensive, both to buy and to operate. Hence, the preference for smaller cars and for imports, which have significantly increased their penetration of the market, is unquestionably important with a substantial number of buyers. But most of the evidence from this year's sales, now expected to be around 4.6 million in contrast with 5 million in 1957 and 1956, points to the drop in employment and income accompanying the recession as the principal explanation. Insofar as planned obsolescence may have been a factor, some shrewd observers feel that "conscious consumption" may in the future be accorded less importance by buyers of cars, and indeed of some other products. Glamour appeal may well give way before a sounder, more substantial sense of values.

We must recognize that the facts of the past will frequently not be a trustworthy guide to the future. The trials of a rapidly-changing market faced by the automobile industry will also come to other producers as Americans shift their discretionary spending. The rising market saturation of some recently popular products must also enter into calculations. Preferences will certainly be expressed by many new buyers for another room on the house, a summer or weekend cottage, cameras, sports or camping equipment, boats, foreign travel, education, hi-fi equipment, and for many new products now but dimly seen on the horizon, as objects for their optional spending. As particular products capture the fancy of large numbers of customers, we may find unanticipated areas of excess or shortage in capacity, which will influence business investment patterns. With survival for many firms dependent upon success in making their particular discretionary products irresistible, competition is sure to be sharp and rugged.

Rains Cut Down Baseball Activity

Rain, rain, and more rain: That spells out most of the story as far as baseball is concerned on the coast.

All of the action scheduled for Monday and Tuesday nights fell victim to the rains and Thursday night's contests were games which were rescheduled from earlier rain-outs.

In two Wednesday night battles Damariscotta grabbed a firmer hold on second place by beating pace-setting Waldoboro 7-1 while Thomaston was bowing to St. George 6-0.

At Waldoboro in a Damariscotta "home game" Rediegher Travis Paine pitched his team over the league leaders and cut the gap between the two teams to two and a half games.

Lannie Oliver homered for the Townies in the third to tie the score and account for the lone Townie tally.

Two Rediegher runs in the last of the third sewed up the win. Don Bowman started things with a lead-off double, then a walk, two hit batsmen, and a single by Lewis brought in the scores.

At St. George, the Torpedoes downed the Thomaston Clippers behind the six inning, two-hit pitching of Roger Smith.

Four tallies in the fifth really put the St. Georges out in front, but a single first inning tally was enough to win with. That came when Gil Post drew a base on balls, was sacrificed to second by Roger Smith, and scored on a Gary Hyvärinen single.

In a Thursday night contest, Damariscotta defeated St. George 8-0 behind the five inning, one-hit hurling of Kenny Rice to narrow the Waldoboro lead over them to two games.

Four scores in the initial frame did the trick for the Redieghes. A two-run single by Pitcher Rice and a two-run homer by Don Bowman accounted for the scoring.

Dean Shea had three singles to help the winning cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pratt and family left on Thursday for Champaign, Illinois.

Miss Marjorie McGlauffin has been spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGlauffin in Owls Head.

Mrs. John Van Vleet and daughter Virginia, who have been occupying the B. P. Miller cottage at Timber Point, returned to their home in Newton Square, Penna.,

Municipal Court

Harold M. Clarke, 20, of Thomaston was ordered into Municipal Court Thursday morning by Rockland Police on two motor vehicle violations.

After Clarke pleaded guilty to speeding 70 miles an hour in a 50 mile zone and passing on a curve on Payne Avenue in Rockland August 27, Judge Alfred M. Strout explained that Clarke's driving was a classic example of the type of drivers in which the State is trying to keep off the roads.

He was fined $25 on the passing on a curve complaint and was given a 30 day suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for five days on the other charge, with the stipulation that he will not operate a vehicle over the Labor Day weekend. He told the Thomaston respondent that he can claim his license Tuesday morning in court.

Judge Strout further explained that Clarke was very fortunate to have received such a light sentence in the light that Governor Edmund S. Muskie, in his address to the municipal court judges and recorders Thursday afternoon at the Samoset Hotel, would probably ask that a 30 to 60 day suspension of licenses be given to traffic violators.

A charge of driving a vehicle while under the influence of liquor against Maynard S. Butler of Warren was continued without plea to Friday morning, pending the results of a blood test. He was arrested Aug. 23 on Route 17 in Union, near the Union Fair grounds. Sheriff P. Willard Pease was the complainant.

Butler was released on $200 sureties which were posted by Baxter Tolman.

Judge Strout found Donald Burdill, Jr., 19, of 40 Grace street, Rockland, not guilty of imprudent driving. Rockland police brought him into court Monday morning on the charge after he was in-

Clark, Mrs. Carolyn Whitten, Mrs. Dorothy Jameson, Mrs. Gladys Ring, Mrs. Barbara Baines of Thomaston, with Mrs. Luella Crockett, Miss Doris Hyler, Mrs. Mary Creamer and Mrs. Gertrude Weaver of Crescent Temple as guests. The hostess' husband and daughter Susan were guests, also.

Mrs. F. M. Hayer and daughter, Miss Muriel Thayer, who have been guests of her sister, Mrs. Anna Starrett during the summer, returned home to Great Neck, L. I. N. Y., Wednesday.

Mrs. Agnes Hall has had as recent summer guests, Miss Helen Lancaster and Richard Lee of Maryland and Mrs. Daniel Yates of Camden.

Mrs. Della Hayes and daughter, Miss Marie Hayes, who have been at their summer home during July and August, returned to Somerville, Mass., Thursday morning. Principal and Mrs. Edgar Lemke and son Billie, who are occupants of the Hayes home during the school year, have returned.

Nillo Hills and Leland Bogge, Jr., who have been doing the repairs at the Town Hall during the summer, completed their work Thursday.

So far this season no resident has applied for the Farm Pond Matching Fund. This amount raised and appropriated for the continuation of this project for this year was $200. Any resident interested in establishing a farm pond on his property, may make application to the Selectmen.

Last year ponds were made on the farms of Henry Lauka, Nestor Salmaki and Widar Sladey, jointly; Richard Howard, and Leslie Farrington and Foster Pales, jointly.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert White entertained the members of E. A. Starrett Sons of Union Veterans at their Cushing camp for an all day picnic Wednesday. Attending were: Miss Laverne Young, Mrs. Luella Crockett, Mrs. Christine Puzelli and son Ellis, Mrs. Clara Lermond, Mrs. Edith Wotton, Mrs. Doris Jenkins, Mrs. Lucy Stimpson, Mrs. Nancy Bonner, Miss Doris Hyler, Mrs. Gladys Ring of Thomaston, Misses Lizzie and Winnie Winslow and Miss Wanda Stimpson. During the afternoon, several of the ladies called on Mrs. Willis Vinal at the next cottage.

SENATOR SMITH'S VISIT

Great encouragement is lent to Knox County Republicans by the word that Senator Margaret Chase Smith is to tour the County prior to the election of September 8. She is highly popular throughout the County and her coming in answer to County Chairman Paul Dillaway's invitation is bound to be of great help to the Republican cause.

ELLA GATCOMBE RESIGNS

Rockland has suffered a severe loss in the resignation of Mrs. Ella Gatcombe from its school system. Mrs. Gatcombe was a natural born teacher and has given to the boys and girls of Rockland Schools a vast amount of knowledge not to be found in text books. We feel that those youngsters lucky enough to come under her teaching were fortunate indeed.

The Rockland School system has suffered a great loss when ill health forced her retirement.

AN ENCOURAGING SIGN

One of the most encouraging signs in a long time has been the sharp drop in crime, especially in rural auto violations reported by Sheriff Willard Pease and the Knox County Sheriff's Patrol.

Sheriff Pease says the drop in violations came about since 1956 in spite of an increase in patrolling and more miles travelled for that purpose.

This shows the wisdom of establishing the Sheriff's Patrol which has been operating over the rural sections of Knox County for two years.

AIM TO LOWER HIGHWAY DEATH TOLL

There can be no question that the slaughter on Maine highways has reached the intolerable stage and that State authorities are at last awake to the situation. Gov. Muskie has taken a vigorous hand in the situation, held a meeting with the Highway Safety Committee headed by Brian Jewett and Thursday met with the court officials of the State at the Samoset in an effort to curb the death toll on our highways.

The purpose of this extremely important meeting was the defining of effective policies of the courts, especially on the suspension of license provisions, undoubtedly the most effective weapon.

This increase in the death toll has occurred in spite of the increasing of the number of State Patrolmen and the best efforts of the safety committee and a legislative program aimed at controlling fatal accidents on the highways.

It is the prime purpose of the Governor's effort to appeal to the conscience of every motorist in Maine and lead him or her to drive with greater care.

THUNDER OVER QUEMOY

If the Chinese Communists follow up their artillery shellings and air strafings with a full-scale attack on the islands of Quemoy, what happens then? A great many Americans, including men of military age and their families, are asking this question uneasily. For the United States is committed to a defensive alliance with Nationalist China, and Congress in 1955 authorized the President to use American forces if necessary in defense of Formosa.

Military opinion thus far inclines to the view that the bombardment of Quemoy is a military gesture aimed at limited objectives, such as to cover an attempted seizure of the nearby Tan Islands in the mouth of Amoy Harbor. These are helpful to the Nationalists as an observation post in their blockade of shipping.

But American policy makers must look further ahead and make up their minds whether the offshore islands, the Quemoy, Matsu, and a few others, are important enough to require involvement of units of the Seventh Fleet in what Chinese regard as a continuation of civil war between Communists and anti-Communists.

For a long time these islands on the mainland side of the Formosa Strait were looked upon by the Nationalists as a springboard for reinvigoration of China, and consequently were viewed as a threat by the Communists. But any serious probability of a "return to the mainland" in the visible future has evaporated. Rather the practical question now is whether retention of the offshore islands is essential to a defense of Formosa against the Communists.

The 1955 resolution empowered President Eisenhower to protect "such related positions" as he considered requisite to the defense of Formosa. It would seem that with American naval assistance the Chinese Nationalists should be able to defend Formosa without benefit of the offshore islands. Indeed, they might be better able to do so than if they lost nearly one-third of their fighting forces now said to be stationed on those islands.

Obviously, neither the Nationalists nor their American advisers can be expected to announce that they are leaving the islands, thereby inviting the Communists to come in. They must test how far the Communists propose to go. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek may reasonably be disposed to make an attack as costly for the Communists as he can—without making it too costly for himself.

But there is, we believe, little disposition in the United States to consider that it would be wise or necessary to engage this country in a war with Communist China by having its ships, planes, and men join directly in a defense of Quemoy. Many of America's non-Asian allies would concur in resisting an invasion of Formosa but not in a decision to fight over Quemoy. Asian neutral nations would be favorably impressed by American restraint in the interests of preserving peace.

The issue of Communist ascendancy or decline in Asia will be decided on broader grounds than whether Quemoy continues in Nationalist hands.—Christian Science Monitor.

Involved in an accident on Park street in Rockland, Aug. 22, near the driveway of Sampson's Market.

The accident happened when a car, operated by Beulah R. Tweedie, 25, of Orono, swung over from the left hand lane in front of the Burrill car and attempted to enter the market's driveway, police said.

The charge was continued from court Monday for judgment by Judge Strout.

Maine counties with 500 to 999 broilers per 100 acres of farmland includes parts of York, Somerset and Penobscot and all of Cumberland, Sagadahoc and Lincoln.

More people would stay on the straight and narrow path if the right path wasn't so often left.

Bluegrass Seed Recommended For Lawns In Maine

Kentucky bluegrass is the best lawn grass for Maine conditions, says Lewis P. Bissell, Extension Service forestry specialist, University of Maine.

Bissell recommends seeding lawn in the fall, using a lawn grass mixture containing 50 per cent or more of Kentucky bluegrass. Along with the bluegrass, he suggests seeding smaller amounts of creeping red fescue, Chewink's fescue, Colonial bent, and rough-stalked meadowgrass. This helps insure a stand of permanent grasses under conditions of shade or moisture not favorable to Kentucky blue.

Besides having many more seeds per pound than ryegrass or fescues, Kentucky bluegrass spreads by underground roots to form a smooth, rugged sod. Also, it's generally free of diseases and insects in Maine. Regular fertilization, weeding and mowing is about all that's needed to keep a Kentucky bluegrass lawn vigorous and handsome, says Bissell.

The Extension specialist suggests using 3 to 5 pounds of lawn seed per 1,000 square feet in seeding a new lawn. With good mixture made up mostly of bluegrasses, coupled with adequate fertilization, the three-pound rate is ample seed.

Since it has so many seeds per pound, a Kentucky bluegrass mixture at $1.50 a pound is a better buy than a cheap mixture of ryegrasses, fescues, and others at 50 cents a pound. A lawn seed mixture made up largely of Kentucky bluegrass can give an excellent turf for less than $5 per 1,000 square feet.

Bissell points out that neither Zoysia nor "Mondo grass" are suitable for use in Maine. They're expensive, not hardy, and won't give the satisfaction that Kentucky bluegrass will.

Further information on the starting and care of lawns is given in Maine Extension Service Circular 391, "Lawn Care." County agents have copies or they may be obtained by writing the Bulletin Office, Extension Service, University of Maine, Orono.

County agents also have soil test forms and can help homeowners get soil samples and recommendations. They also have experience with the soil types and fertilizers common to the various sections of Maine.

The county agent's office for Knox and Lincoln Counties is located on the second floor of the Rockland post office. Its services are free to all and are not restricted to farmers alone.

STEAMBOAT YARNS of Ships and Men

John M. Richardson

The "City of Bangor" Did Not Die By Fire Despite Numerous Small Blazes.

79 Paprocki Avenue
West Islip, New York
Dear Steamboat Editor:

It occurred to me today that I was wrong years back when I predicted that the City of Bangor's untimely end would be by fire. My reason for thinking in that direction at that time was due to the fact that she suffered so many minor fires prior to that which damaged her in the major fire in 1914.

We had two minor fires in her gangways in 1913, supposedly to be from sparks from those roll your own cigarettes so commonly used by the Spanish firemen and coal passers in those days. In both cases these fires started in sweepings of hay after the freight had been discharged. It was a habit of these men to come up to the forward gangways for a breath of fresh air. Ashes from these cigarettes would fall to the deck and blow back into the gangways where these sweepings could easily ignite.

She was only three months old when she had a bad fire while laying at the Atlantic Works in East Boston.

This was in the morning of December 7, 1893. The fire originated in the paint shop at the Atlantic Works and spread very rapidly. Sparks ignited the forward superstructure of the City of Bangor and before the fire was brought under control, it had damaged her to the extent of $30,000. She was insured by a yard policy which covered the damage. John Muir, foreman of the Atlantic Works, was badly burned.

So often a steamboat man's loyalty and devotion to his profession was proved beyond a doubt by the death of George Williams, whose services as first officer of the City of Rockland during the early 1900's made him the most popular first officer of the Bangor Line. I served under First Officer Williams on the City of Rockland with William Casey as his third officer. These two men working as a team could handle men and made the best time at way landings on the Penobscot River of any other team of officers on boats of that line.

A few years prior to his death he was transferred to boats of the Metropolitan Line where he was most discontented. With less than two years service on this line, he was retired by the Eastern Steamship Lines.

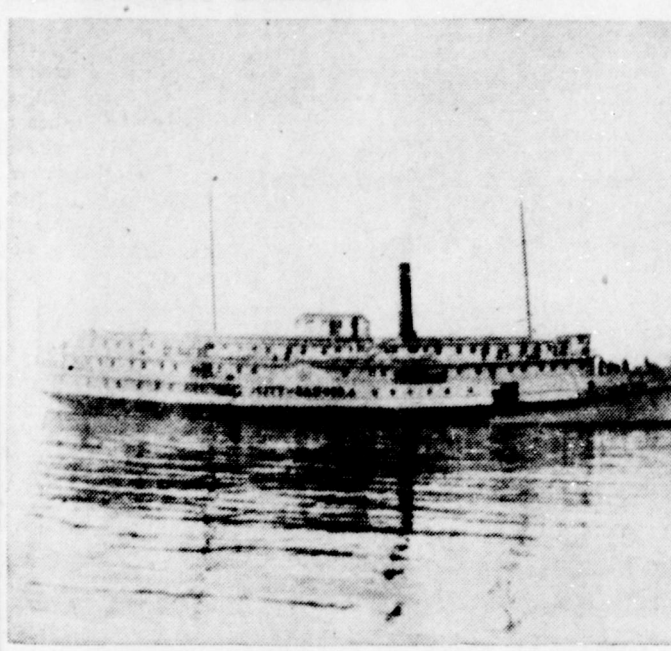

Being a bachelor and his nearest relative being a cousin, he went to the Sailors Snug Harbor. His friends there said he brooded over his retirement. He had a cottage at Holbrook's Pond in Maine. In his leave of absence from Snug Harbor he went to his camp at Holbrook Pond and on October 18, 1923, it was there that continued brooding over his retirement from the profession which was his very life caused him to take his own life by shooting himself with a shotgun. He was 63 years of age and a native of Nantucket, Mass., where the ways of the sea were schooled into his young mind.

His long service on the City of Rockland made her his next to kin in his life. Parting from her left an empty world for George Williams without her or his third officer Casey. Continued nostalgia of the past that he knew would never return was too much for this great and much loved man of the Penobscot to bear. The City of Rockland was his home. The Penobscot way landings were his daily calls in the pathway of his life. Without them there was little left for George Williams.

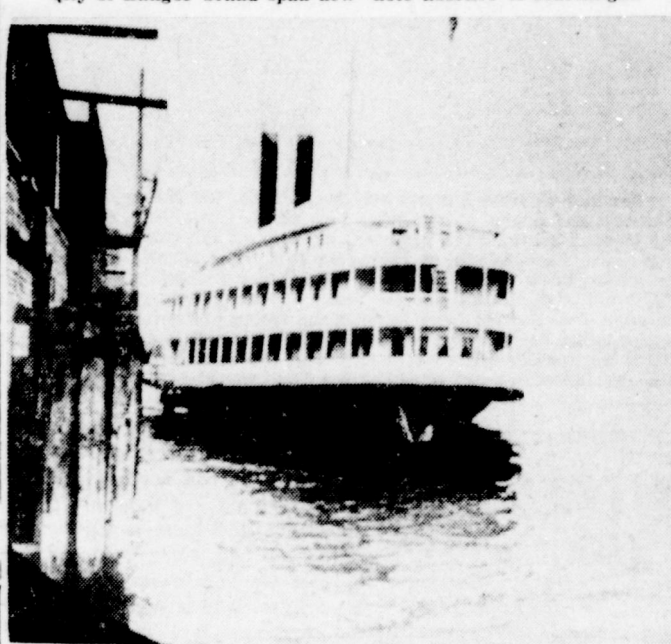

Sincerely,
Capt. Walter E. Scott.

COFFIN-BISHOP DEBATE THURSDAY HAD FARM PROBLEMS AS SUBJECT

The major point of disagreement Thursday night between the two candidates for U. S. Representative from the Second Maine District, Democrat incumbent Frank Coffin of Lewiston and Republican Neil Bishop of Stockton Springs, was on farm price supports.

The topic of the debate was: "What Constitutes a Sound Agricultural Policy for the Farmers of Maine," and was held before a packed audience in the auditorium of the Legion Home in Rockland, with Paul Huber of Rockland acting as moderator for the evening.

Bishop contended that Coffin, whom he described as a "young man who had no practical knowledge of agricultural problems or had every worked on a farm, had voted for a freeze in price supports in Congress.

In an answer to this statement, the Lewiston Congressman cited his record for the past two years in Congress where he conferred with national and State farm leaders before voting on farm issues. He remarked that his vote had coincided with the decision of either one or both of the other two representatives from Maine who are Republicans.

He explained how he had fought on the floor of the House of Representatives although many times unsuccessful, to prevent the Federal government from further interfering with the agricultural picture in the country.

Coffin corrected his opponent by saying that he voted on a temporary one year price freeze on farm supports and not for a permanent one.

Bishop contended that a rigid farm support program is an unconscious subsidy and should be used in emergencies only. However, he did remark that if the government continues to subsidize means of transportation and other things in the country then they might as well subsidize the farmer for consistency sake.

The Stockton Springs resident, who was a former dairyman for over 30 years, warned that price support is a form of indirect taxation and hits the hardest on the low income families.

He placed his whole support behind Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson who wants the "government to get off the backs of the farmer and let them return to the old law of supply and demand."

Coffin said that the abolishment of price supports would cause a variety of slumps in the agricultural situation. Citing a chief situation would be the fact that farmers out West would find it more profitable to ship their cattle East instead of their feed. This would be the ruin of the dairy and poultry industry in Maine, he said.

Bishop further remarked that a solution for the storing of surplus of farm produce would be to ship it overseas to the underprivileged and starving people in the world. This, he continued, would combat one of the best weapons of Communism; starvation.

The Congressman explained that past experiences have proven that friendship cannot be won over just by sending tons of grains to foreign lands.

In summation, Bishop presented the following points: eliminate price fixing; free farmers from gradual control; get rid of surpluses gradually; promote markets abroad; expand markets at home; expand experimentation in farming and an effective conservation program.

Coffin summarized his talk by presenting the following points: a more systematic approach to agricultural disposal problems both at home and overseas. A more effective policy of preventing further surpluses by fixing quotas in terms of production rather than acreages. A long range conservation program; research in the industrial rural development. A stepped up program in farm management, a more adequate credit program and exploration of the field of the cost-price program to give the farmer more of the retail profit.

Bishop accused his adversary of talking like a Patrick Henry in Maine but voting like a New Dealer but he said that so as to show no hard feelings between himself and Coffin he invited the Congressman and his wife for a dinner at his Stockton Springs home following the election to have a taste of "some real Maine beef, cured and processed by him."

GRANGE NEWS OF KNOX-LINCOLN COUNTIES

SIGNUP PERIOD FOR SOIL BANK OPENS MONDAY; MORE LIBERAL ALLOWANCES SEEN FOR MAINE

Details of the 1959 Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank were announced today by Donald C. Prince, chairman, Maine ASC State Committee. The signup period will begin Sept. 1, and will close Oct. 10. The Conservation Reserve is being opened early this year because the other phase of the Soil Bank—Acreage Reserve—will not be in effect in 1959 anywhere in the country.

Major changes in the 1959 Conservation Reserve from the program in effect for contracts beginning this year are:

An increase in the Maine average annual payment for Conservation Reserve land to $12 per acre from the previous State average rate of $9.

Additional incentives, including a payment of 10 per cent above normal rates for farmers to put all eligible land on their farms in the program for at least five years.

A priority system for accepting Conservation Reserve contract applications.

Under the priority system, preference will be given farmers offering land at lowest rates compared with applicable maximum rates for their farms.

County ASC committees will establish a maximum annual payment rate per acre for all land offered for the program, and farmers will have the opportunity to offer their land at less than these ceiling rates. In cases where participation in the program might exhaust available funds in one year, offers at lower than maximum rates would be more certain of acceptance.

In cases of applicants of equal standing under this second priority, these further criteria will be applied—offers of lowest rate per acre, offers of total eligible acreage, offers of contracts for the longest period.

The rates of annual payments for individual farms, upon application of farmers, will be set by County ASC committees. Rates are to be established on the basis of average land on the farm, taking into consideration productivity, agricultural value, and rental rates for similar land in the locality. Individual farm rates may vary above and below the average annual payment rate established for the county. An upper limit of no more than 20 per cent of the value of the land on the individual farm is required by law.

The regular maximum payment rate may be earned by putting in the program land which during the past two years (1957 and 1958) has been in Soil Bank "base" crops (row crops or grain) or from which tame hay has been harvested for hay or silage during the same period, and a corresponding reduction is made in Soil Bank base crops.

A lower rate of per-acre payment, 50 percent of the regular maximum rate for the farm, may be earned by putting additional "non-diversion" land in the program. Non-diversion land does not require a corresponding reduction in Soil Bank "base" crops.

In addition to the per-acre annual rental payments, participating farmers receive a payment covering a substantial part of the cost of establishing an approved conservation practice on the land they put in the program. Each county ASC office has a list of approved soil, forestry and wildlife conservation practices. Participating farmers may select those they wish to carry out on their own land.

A series of county meetings is currently being held to acquaint AEC, SCS, Forest Service, Extension Service, Farmers' Home Administration and other interested Departmental field personnel, with details of the 1959 program.

Detailed information on the program is available at the ASC county office in Rockland post office, said Prince. Farmers interested in having payment rates established for their farms should call at the ASC county office for this information and forms for applying for the rates.

Working on the theory that hens like any humans eat more than they need, Dr. E. P. Singens, head of the poultry science department at the University of Connecticut, and his associates have completed tests that certainly give evidence that many hens do overeat.

Dr. Singens reported on these tests to a large audience of Maine poultrymen Wednesday at the annual Poultry Day program at Orono, sponsored by the University of Maine and the Poultry Improvement Association.

THIS LITTLE TREE ALL MIXED UP

Summer weather has not only been asked, but the apple trees too. Blossoms and apples on the same twig at the same time, months after the blossom season have appeared on trees at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Earl MacWilliams at Ingraham Hill. The species of the tree is not known to its owners, but it is an oddity which has withstood the rigors of its shorefront site for many a year. Usually, it behaves as an apple tree should, blossoming in the spring and producing delicious apples in the early weeks of the fall. This year, it is a little mixed up and if the weather holds warm may start a second crop of apples from the blossoms which are crowding the first crop of fruit.

production; two, body weight; three, calories; four, seasons of the year. The hen needs enough food to keep up her body weight and enough additional to keep her in normal egg production. One per cent too little feed means a two per cent drop in egg production.

It is necessary to know the number of calories per pound in the feed being used, which incidentally is high energy feed. The needs of the bird as to feed vary according to the seasons of the year. Actually it is question of temperature as birds need more feed when the temperature drops. Actually this summer, a hot weather schedule of feeding has not been necessary.

Dr. Singens provided members of his audience with complete tables for feeding according to his experiments. Taking the cold weather table as an example, a six and one half pound bird at 70 per cent production would need 28.3 pounds daily per hundred, while a six pound bird at 50 per cent production would need only 24.9 pounds daily per hundred.

Sample weightings of a number of birds must be taken every week until peak production and then at least every two weeks. The exact number of birds in each pen must be known at all times and the feed weighed daily.

The experiment was conducted with hand-fed troughs, at the rate of 50 feet of feeder space per 100 birds. In answer to a question, Dr. Singens thought that it would take about eight hanging feeders per one hundred. He thought that automatic feeders could be used by filling the trough after the birds went to bed.

Under this system the birds were without feed 17 out of every 24 hours. They were fed every morning at 9 o'clock and evidently the feed lasted about seven hours.

Due to the fact that there were only 25 birds in the testing and control pens, the thought went through

OCEAN VIEW GRANGE

By June Watts

The meeting of August 25 saw 22 members present.

The Grange Emblem wall chart showing progress toward National Grange Achievement Award for 1958-59 has arrived.

The sum of $125.38 was realized from a rummage and food sale held August 6.

The literary program with Lecturer Harriet Tibbets was much enjoyed. There were songs by members with Harriet at the piano. Elaine Hupper sang two songs with her mother, Barbara Hupper, the accompaniment, and Dale played several saxophone selections.

Readings were by June Watts and Rachel Routledge. Brian Routledge favored with old time songs played on the accordion.

Master Fay, who is also fire chief, thanked us in behalf of the St. George Volunteer Firemen for the use of the hall last Saturday.

Home Economics Chairman Virginia Fay is busy preparing the Community Service report.

Refreshments were served by the three Graces, Marilyn Wiley, June Watts and Rachel Routledge.

There are a few cake plates, casserole dishes that are uncleaned for from the Fishermen's Mug-up supper of last March. Please get in touch with this correspondent and they will be returned.

many a poultryman's mind as to how much turmoil there would be in the pen when the feed was put in by hand. Dr. Singens admitted that the birds were really hungry when feeding time arrived.

I think I can speak for many in the audience when I say that Dr. Singens' report was extremely interesting and we certainly want to see more studies on ways of saving feed. There is a question in my mind as to whether or not such a program is yet practical for the poultrymen who keep thousands of birds.

The best part of it to me is that it keeps me thinking along the line of feeding efficiency and that is certainly vital with the trends toward lower average egg prices. Even if we do not reach the savings made by Dr. Singens, we can work in that direction. But it is well to keep in mind that underfed birds will not lay as many eggs, because one per cent too little feed means a two per cent drop in egg production. It might be well, if you are interested, to start with one pen and work out a program. It is certainly a good idea to weigh feed, and a lot of poultrymen are now conducting a daily feed check.

Dr. Singens and his corps of researchers have made a good start and we hope they will continue in the same or similar directions. Perhaps, eventually simpler methods of controlling feed for layers may be worked out.

Before I leave this particular subject, I might mention that the control pens used in the experiment, were fed as follows: full-fed, high energy; full fed low efficiency and controlled fed low efficiency feed. The controlled fed high energy showed the most favorable results by a very definite margin.

The final event on the program was a panel discussion on controlled feeding with Dr. R. W. Gerry of the University poultry department as leader. Members of the panel included Dr. Fred Garland, Purina Research farm, Exeter, N. H.; Dr. Robert Bickford, Wirthmore Research farm, Exeter, N. H.; Dr. Robert Bickford, Wirthmore Research farm, Berkeley, Mass.; Dr. R. E. Ward, Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, West Springfield, Mass.; Richard Goodell, Nichols, Inc., Exeter, N. H.; and Dr. Singens. Shortly before the close of the morning session, Chet Bacheller of Limington, president of the Maine Poultry Improvement Association came to the rostrum and presented gifts to Dr. and Mrs. Elmer R. Hitchner. Dr. Hitchner retired in June after serving for many years as head of the pullover testing service.

Having Waistline And Diet Problems?

Having trouble finding foods which will meet the demands of a low calorie diet? Miss Gene West, home demonstration agent for the Knox-Lincoln Extension Service, has prepared a number of suggestions. They come from the files of the home demonstration agents of the United States Extension Service and are widely used.

Not only does she give the recipes, but the number of calories in each serving and the vitamins contained.

Cooks who have people in their home with waistline troubles, possibly including themselves, may find the following useful.

MENUS FOR DIETERS

Omelet With Herbs

4 eggs separated
4 tablespoons milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 tablespoon mixture of dried summer savory, tarragon, Chervil, basil and chives.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and dry. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; add milk, salt, pepper and herb mixture. Fold the egg yolk mixture into the whites. Pour into a hot, buttered omelet pan or skillet. Cook over low heat until omelet has risen and is a golden-brown color next to the pan. Then set the pan in a moderate oven (350° F) for 5 minutes, or until surface seems set when pressed with the finger.

Serves 2-4; 166 calories per serving. Source of vitamins A, B complex.

Hamburg Herb Patties

1 pound ground beef
1 egg slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons mixture of dried basil, summer savory, thyme, marjoram, parsley and celery leaves.

Mix together, the beef, egg, salt and bread crumbs. Sauté the onion in butter until transparent; add with the herb mixture to the meat and mix well. Shape into 4 large or 6 medium-sized patties. Place under the broiler and broil 4-5 minutes on each side. Serve with a sprig of basil or parsley.

Serves 4-6; 205 calories per serving. Source of vitamins A, B complex.

Smoked Tongue

4 pounds tongue 3 cups water
Cover tongue with cold water and soak for 1 hour. Place tongue on rack in pressure cooker. Add 3 cups of water. Cover. Allow steam to flow from vent in steady stream for about 1 minute. Place indicator weight on vent and cook for 1 1/2 hours after 15 pounds pressure has been reached. Cool slowly. Remove skin from tongue and keep in liquid to retain moisture.

Serves 10; 170 calories per serving. Source of vitamin B complex.

Weight-away Dressing

1 8-ounce can (1 cup) seasoned tomato sauce
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dill seed
1/2 teaspoon basil

Combine all ingredients in jar. Cover and shake well. Chill. Shake again just before serving. This pretty red dressing gives tang to salad bowl greens, or use as a marinade for chilled asparagus spears or green beans. Dressing recipe makes about 1 cup. Calories per tablespoon: 5.

Thin-shred Salad

1 medium-sized head firm cabbage
1/4 cup oil
2 tablespoons vinegar (tarragon preferred)
1 teaspoon salt
Fresh ground pepper
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Wash and trim cabbage. Shred very fine. If necessary, crisp in ice water, drain well, dry on a towel or in a colander. Place in deep bowl, pour on vinegar, oil and scatter seasonings over the top. Toss well with two forks until each shred glistens with oil.

6-8 servings; 21 calories per serving. Source of vitamins A, C.

If mayonnaise is used on cabbage salad, dilute to the consistency of thin cream with evaporated milk or with half milk and mild vinegar. A small onion minced and added to the mayonnaise gives sharpness to a flavor that might otherwise be too rich for this type of salad. Sections of pineapple can be used as flavor contrast, and shredded apple also gives a sharp fruitiness to cabbage.

Crabmeat Salad With Low-Calorie Dressing

Dressings:
1-2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
Dash of cayenne
1/4 cup vinegar

Mix sugar, flour, salt, dry mustard and cayenne in top of double boiler. Add vinegar and water and cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Pour a small amount over eggs; add to hot mixture and continue cooking 2 minutes. (If dressing appears slightly curdled, beat with wire whisk.) Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice; cool and chill. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

Salad:
1 can (6 1/2 oz.) crabmeat
1 cup chopped celery
1 hard cooked egg, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Combine crabmeat, celery, chopped egg and lemon juice; chill about 1 hour. To serve, add enough dressing to moisten and spoon into lettuce cups.

Serves 4; 135 calories per serving. Source of vitamins A, B.

Broiled Lemon Sole With Mushrooms

1 6-ounce can (1 cup) crabmeat (shredded)
Combine chowder and milk; heat to boiling. Add mushrooms (with liquid) and crabmeat; heat through. Makes 6 to 8 servings. This is a thick chowder. If you prefer it thinner, add water to suit; season to taste.

Piquant Perfection Salad

1 3/4 cups hot water
1 3/4 cups cold water
1/2 cup tarragon vinegar

Count about 30 to 50 calories for fruit.

Vanilla Snow

1 egg white
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon lemon juice, fresh, frozen or canned

For a meal that's attractive, easy to prepare and oh so good for you, try this broiler meal. I'm sure you will come back for more.

Broiled Halibut

Cover broiler grid with double thickness of clean brown paper. Grease well and sprinkle with salt and pepper to season under side of fish. Place fish on paper, season as desired and spread with soft butter. With scissors trim off excess paper so that only 1/2 inch extends around edge of fish. Place pan so that top of fish is 5 to 6 inches away from unit, allowing fish to cook through without turning, about 10 to 15 minutes, depending on thickness.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Mashed Potatoes

Cut tomatoes into quarters down to stem end but not through; press wedges apart. On center of each tomato place 1/4 cup well seasoned mashed potatoes. Brush with butter or margarine and broil until potatoes are browned. These may be added the last 5 to 8 minutes.

Green Beans

Cook frozen green beans with 2 tablespoons of water and a little salt. Switch HIGH until steaming, then LOW for 12 to 15 minutes. Young garden-fresh beans may be cooked with 1/4 cup water in 20 minutes. When age or freshness is a question use 1/2 cup water and cook 30 to 40 minutes.

Boston Cream Pie

1/2 cup shortening
2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cream Filling

Combine first four ingredients in the large beater bowl and beat on HIGH speed until mixture looks like French vanilla ice cream. Sift flour, measure and add baking powder and salt and then sift twice. Add flour to egg mixture; make 2 or 3 "wells" in the flour and pour in milk. Beat on LOW speed just long enough to produce smooth mixture. Bake in two 8-inch layer pans 25 minutes at 375°.

1 cup milk
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup sugar
1 egg beaten
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Scald milk. Mix flour, sugar, salt and beaten egg. Add hot milk. Cook over LOW heat stirring constantly until thickened. Cool and spread between layers of cooled cake.

Easy Chocolate Frosting

2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 medium sized egg
2 squares chocolate, melted
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
Melt chocolate and butter together. Combine other ingredients and beat slightly. Add melted chocolate and butter and continue beating until thick enough to spread.

Pan Coat

Cream together 1/2 cup vegetable shortening and 1/4 cup flour. Store in covered jar and keep on cupboard shelf at room temperature. Use generously to grease baking pans, patting surface with finger tips as final finish.

Promises Action

retary of State, could cause a bitter resentment by the respondents and result in encouraging violations on the State roads out of resentment for the law, instead of curbing them.

In Rockland Municipal Court Thursday morning, Judge Strout gave a respondent, 30 day suspended sentence for a motor vehicle violation with the specific condition that he will not operate a vehicle over the Labor Day weekend. Strout asked for the respondent's license and informed him that he can claim it in court Tuesday morning.

MacDonald, in defending his department, remarked that the Secretary of State has not followed the strict policy set in the State of Connecticut that calls for the immediate suspension of a driver's license regardless of the offense. Instead, he continued, the respondent's right to drive is not suspended unless his record proves that he is a flagrant violator of the highway laws of the State.

MacDonald also pledged that his department will hasten the notifications of license suspensions sent to the various law enforcement agencies in the State. Many times in the past, the Secretary of State's bulletin would frequently reach the authorities after the suspension period had been concluded and the licenses returned to their owners.

The Deputy Secretary of State also promised the prosecution of out of State drivers who refuse to adhere to the State of Maine laws. He remarked that upon a conviction of a serious violation or after a series of violations, that person's right to operate a vehicle in the State is forbidden and a letter is sent to the respondent's home state requesting that additional punishment be meted out.

He remarked that a respondent's past history of motor vehicle violations can be secured within a 24 hour period, or in special emergencies, the record can be given over the telephone at the request of the municipal court judge. MacDonald commented that the respondent's background of violations would help the judge to decide upon the punishment.

MacDonald also quelled any fears that many of the judges had in regards to a growing number of appeals that could result if the stepped policy of license suspension is adhered to by the lower courts.

The judges felt that at many times, the punishment given on the Superior Court level was easier than that of the lower court. MacDonald promised that the same treatment would be given to the person who pleaded guilty in municipal court and the respondent who was found guilty in the higher court following appeal.

Stone Asks Safe Driving Over Holiday Weekend

Forest W. Stone, Knox County chairman of the Maine Highway Safety Committee reminds all of the citizens of the County to cooperate in Operation Labor Day.

Drive and walk with exceptional care. Let's do our share to keep Maine free from highway death over the long holiday weekend.

Safety is an individual proposition, if each of us drives and walks safely, the death record will be reduced to a minimum and we can get through this Labor Day period without killing anyone on the highway.

The combined forces of the State, County and local police of the various towns will strictly enforce all laws.

U. S. Dept. of Labor Outlines Law On Child Labor

Employers who hire teenagers this fall for full or part-time work were reminded today about the child-labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. At the same time, Regional Director Leo A. Gleason of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage and Hour Division pointed out that youngsters may be lawfully hired for a variety of jobs.

"Boys and girls 16 years of age and over can work under the Fair Labor Standards Act in any job—factories, wholesale houses, communications or other industries—except those which have been declared hazardous by the Secretary of Labor," Gleason said.

Thirteen hazardous occupations orders have been issued which prohibit the employment of minors under 18 years of age. The prohibited jobs include work as a driver or a driver's helper, elevator operator, operator of certain power-driven machinery, and most jobs in logging and sawmilling.

"Although the law prohibits the employment of children under 14, the 14 or 15 year old may be lawfully employed in office and sales work, fruit and vegetable packing sheds, and in a few other jobs—excluding work in manufacturing, mining, processing or similar jobs," Gleason added.

"It must be remembered, however, that certain restrictions apply during school hours for this age group. Youngsters of 14 and 15 may work only outside of school hours and a maximum of three hours on any school day. All work must also be performed between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m."

"An employer can protect himself from unintentional violation of the Act if he obtains and keeps on file an age certificate showing the minor to be old enough for the job in which he is employed. Such certificates can usually be obtained from local school officials."

The child-labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act apply to employment in interstate or foreign commerce or in the production of goods for such commerce. There are a few exemptions from these provisions, however.

Gleason points out that the child-labor provisions of the Act do not apply to actors or television performers or to children engaged as newspaper carriers. Nor does the Federal law cover such work as baby sitting, caddying and working at the fountain of the local drug store. The law also exempts children working for their parents in their parents' own business as long as the work is not mining or manufacturing, or has not been declared hazardous.

He added that where State and Federal child-labor standards differ, the higher standards must be observed. Additional information concerning the application of the child-labor provisions of the Act may be obtained from your local Wage and Hour Division's regional office.

The Quadrangle at the University of Pennsylvania... here live hundreds of freshmen from towns and cities all over America. For many it is their first great venture into the world of responsibility and temptation. It is a crucial year... and they live it in a community all their own, surrounded by the teeming millions of a great city!

An important part of their life is the Christian Association, augmenting the programs of the campus churches. There are wholesome social activities, challenging discussion groups, services of worship, opportunities for community service.

Here, as on almost every college campus, the Church is on the job. Its specially-trained leaders are guiding our sons and daughters in their adjustment to college life and the complicated world of opportunity and danger.

Are you helping the Church in its far-reaching ministry? Are you providing the religious home life and church-centered spiritual training that a boy and girl need BEFORE THEY GO OUT INTO THE WORLD?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

More than 30 candidates for the varsity squad of the Rockland High School football team opened practice this week at the South Field in preparation for their opening tilt Sept. 13 against Lisbon High School.

Under the direction of Coach Robert Morrill, the team has run through calisthenics and plays during the latter part of the week with full equipment. Practice during the first two days of the

Among the returning varsity lettermen are: Rowland Wasgatt and Roland Groder, tackles; Fred Ripley and Darrell Poulin, half-backs; Neal Smith, center; Avar Walker, end; and Louis Alex, fullback.

Nursing Association Sets Fund Drive Goal

The Rockland District Nursing Association opened their annual drive Thursday afternoon following a meeting of the trustees at the Community Building.

Heading the drive this year is John Crockett, who remarked that a goal of $6000 has been set. Heading the house to house canvass on Sept. 15, which will be conducted by the Rockland Jaycee wives are: Mrs. John Ross and Mrs. Harold Look, Jr. The trustees also discussed the session Thursday the possibility of securing another car for the Association. The present one, a 1951 Plymouth, is badly in need of repairs. A committee of three, John Ross, Frank Harden and Joshua N. Southard, were appointed to look into the matter of trading the present car for another one and report at the next meeting of the trustees Sept. 11.

Another matter also discussed was the possibility of securing the services of another nurse. Miss Eliza J. Steele of the Association commented that the rising cost of calls during the vacation months and the expected rise this fall due to the increase in bedside cases has made it necessary for her to request that the trustees employ another nurse.

Patriotic Organizations Need a Home in Rockland

The patriotic organizations whose home is the G.A.R. hall, have visions of civic minded citizens, carpenters, painters, dealers in paint, hardware, wood-work or whatever needed, donating same or time and labor to preserve the building, a memorial to the Civil War Veterans many giving their lives that we might live to carry out their teachings of honor and truth and to make the country worthy of its emblem, "The Flag Our Fathers Saved."

The surrounding public buildings cast a sombre reflection upon the G.A.R. Hall, to the extent that to beautify its appearance with paint would have its rightful place among the other buildings on the opposite corners. The building and property was left by Edwin Libby Post to the Sons of Union Veterans with the provision it never be sold but kept as a memorial and a home for the veterans' descendants or those eligible to become members of the several organizations. Previous to 1956 the president, secretary and treasurer of the association received a yearly salary. Since that time these officers have received no salaries, agreeing when taking office they would serve so all money could be used toward the maintenance of the hall.

Church spent last weekend with the Harold Gaytons at Skowhegan. While there they attended the State Fair.

True, the hall is rented much of the time, however the lights, water and fuel, especially during the winter months, is a big item, the interior has been redecorated, all labor being voluntary, some repairs on the exterior done by Henry Mills, also voluntary services. Plans are being made to help financially by game parties, sales and whatever way possible to raise money enough to cover some of the needed expenses. It is hoped in the near future that these dreams will become a reality.

Ladies' Night of Fish and Game Group Planned

The Knox County Fish & Game Association will hold its third annual Ladies' Night at Beaver Lodge in East Union Thursday, Sept. 11.

A lobster supper will be served and entertainment and dancing will follow.

Members planning to attend are asked to obtain tickets from Roy Miller, Warren Everett or Fred Ludwig before Monday, Sept. 7.

Lithograph Show By Ruth Rose Now At Museum

Visitors of the Farnsworth Museum, and particularly those who like to view lithographs, will be pleased to know that there is an exhibition of lithographs by Ruth Starr Rose being shown in the Square Gallery. This collection of prints will remain on view until Sept. 15.

Ruth Starr Rose is nationally known for her interpretation of the colorful culture area of Maryland's famous Eastern Shore. From her early childhood she has lived and worked among the people of this region, and her interpretations of Negro life and character are notable for their sincerity and understanding. For many years she has heard again and again the singing of the old Negro spirituals as the workers of the plantation labored in the fields or sang for relaxation at the close of the day.

Mrs. Rose attended Vassar College and Cathedral School in Washington, and studied for a number of years at the Art Students League in New York City. In addition to lithography, she studied silk screen technique with Leonard Pytkal. Her style in the silk screen medium is purely creative since all of her prints are created directly on the screen. Mrs. Rose has exhibited extensively throughout the United States and her works have recently been shown in South America, South Asia, and Scandinavia.

Her works are included in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, the Philadelphia Museum, Vassar College, Williams College, and Harvard University, as well as in many private collections.
