In peace or war, for more than a hundred years, Maine hotels and sporting camps have striven to build up and maintain the tradition of Maine Hospitality.

This year, our heritage and our traditions take on a newer and richer meaning than ever before. Vacation habits will be different and transportation methods may change, but Maine visitors will find us ready, as usual, to accommodate our methods to their requirements.

Maine hotel and camp operators will gladly meet trains and buses at convenient terminals. Their programs will be planned for the "stay put" type of vacation. There will be no compromise with established standards of quality and service.

We Maine Hosts invite you to "have the time of your life in Maine," this year.

MAINE HOTEL ASSOCIATION
Headquarters: 1 St. John Street, Portland, Maine
In 1922 a small group of far-seeing, public-spirited Maine business men organized the State of Maine Publicity Bureau; thus, inaugurating the first State-wide activity in the United States for the promotion of an entire State's agricultural, industrial, and recreational facilities.

Today, in addition to carrying on an extensive promotion campaign and publishing several pieces of literature annually, the Bureau operates the most outstanding State-wide, free information service in the country. You will find our home office, pictured above, at the southern approach to the city of Portland, you will find branch information services located at strategic points throughout the State of Maine, and you will find our New York Office in the R. C. A. Building at 30 Rockefeller Plaza.

We cordially invite you to make full use of our facilities—before you leave home, to help you plan your visit, and after you arrive in Maine, to help make your visit more enjoyable.

BETWEEN the attractive covers of this, our tenth edition, we hope that you will find the answer to your war-time vacation problem; for, more than ever before, amidst the grief and turmoil of the times, you will need the health-giving, morale-building benefits of a Maine vacation, this year.

More than ever before, MAINE INVITES YOU to enjoy the mystery of her forests, the beauty of her lakes and hills, the music of her streams, the sweep of her great rivers, and the majesty of her rock bound coast and sea-girt isles. Here, in a perfect symphony of nature’s greatest blessings, you may, for a time, re-create those all-important reservoirs of mental and physical strength upon which every American is making such demands in his effort to be of service to his nation.

Of course, vacation habits will be different. By necessity, transportation methods and facilities will change. Vacations must be planned, well in advance, for the complete elimination of interference with the war effort. All of us must adjust our tempo to the pace of a democracy fighting for the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

But let us not forget that furloughs for rest and relaxation are of equal importance to all,—civilians, war workers, and members of our armed forces. Frills and furbelows are "out." Unwise use of transportation, either public or private, will be restricted. The old-fashioned type of vacation is "in."

That’s why it’s such a pleasure to send you this copy of MAINE INVITES YOU,—because, in the pages that follow, you will find an almost endless supply of information about our great VACATION LAND and its multitudinous "old fashioned" recreational offerings.

Your attention is called to the county index map on page 4 and to the complete index of advertisers on pages 92 to 96. Handy inquiry cards are supplied for your convenience in requesting specific information or reservations of our advertisers.

We’ll appreciate your mentioning MAINE INVITES YOU when corresponding or conversing with those whose loyal support has made this book possible.

All states have to begin somewhere. Historically, Maine began in York County; geographically, Maine begins with York County. Over 80% of all visitors to the state come in through this southernmost tip of Maine.

Not only is the county the show-window of Maine — the part that folks see first when they enter the state — but it is also a miniature of all of its other fifteen counties. Here in York County one can find lakes, rivers, streams, beaches, even mountains in the Northwestern part. Here one can hunt, fish, swim, ski, hike or just take it easy. It has as great a variety of recreational resources and possibilities as any other county in the state.

Boston is only fifty miles away to the South. A seventy-five mile drive from that metropolis will bring you right smack into a virgin lake region which few people even know exists. Or the same drive will land you on the sparkling white sands of the largest and best beaches in the State of Maine.

Maybe you would like to own an old home in York County, an old farm house; the county has hundreds of them. Go back through Parsonsfield, Cornish, Limington, Limerick, Newfield or Shapleigh and you’ll be shown more beautiful sites for homes and more beautiful homes than you will find in any other region of the same size in the country. Maybe you’re interested in the farming areas around Hollis, Buxton, East Waterboro on Little Ossipee Lake, Waterboro, Dayton, Lebanon, Lyman, Acton and North Kennebunkport.

This area has an average of 140 consecutive days without killing frosts and proudly boasts of the longest-growing season in Maine. Abundant rainfall of 23 inches in this area during the months of April to October inclusive is excellent for high crop yields. One orchard in the county has 16,000 trees, the largest orchard in the state. The county has 108,000 acres of farm forests alone.

Maybe you would like to take a drive to Sanford to do some shopping. Maybe to Biddeford; both large industrial and business centers. Maybe you would prefer to drive over to the Berwicks, famous historically, and the homes of authoress Gladys Hasty Carroll and the late historian, Sarah Orne Jewett. Saco, which was first settled in 1631 and was the seat of the first court in Maine over 300 years ago, is the only town in the county which produced a governor of the state. Its beautiful main street is one of the best preserved colonial main streets in Maine.

Eliot, together with Kittery, shares the distinction of being the first town to greet visitors in Maine. Along the coast, starting at Kittery where the incorrectly named “Portsmouth” navy yard is located, a visitor can find any kind of seashore property that he desires, Kennebunkport, Kennebunk Beach, Ogunquit, York Harbor, Biddeford Pool and Bay View are the largest of the more exclusive summer resorts. Old Orchard has the longest and finest beach in Maine and is the center of the greatest seashore tourist business in the state. York and Wells are close seconds.

THE BRIGHTEST SPOT AT YORK BEACH

If you're interested in old documents and papers which tell the tale of Maine beginnings, you'll find them in the county seat at Alfred. Booth Tarkington, dean of American authors and Kenneth Roberts, number one historical writer in America, both live in York County. The former spends eight months here; the latter the entire year. Mr. Roberts was born in Kennebunk.

Says Gladys Hasty Carroll: "I have said elsewhere, and I am happy to say again of York County that in one generation people crowded this land and these shores until their weight might well have sunk them; and in the next people left at the first excuse, crowding other places. But all the time these have been the same shores, with plenty of clams for the digging and plenty of fish at the river-mouths, and this is the same land, none of it so far outworn it cannot be renewed if a man set to it, and much still virgin, awaiting only stout and willing arms. There is soil and water, sun and rain, woods and brooks and seed and natural fertilizer, as there has always been. Anyone who does not want too much can live here. Those who once did want too much went out to seek it—some still seek—but it is nowhere, and many have, as more will, come home again to simple living and to profound peace."

Throughout York County are hundreds upon hundreds of miles of excellent dustless highways reaching into all of its towns. The scenery on every hand is diversified and tremendously interesting and includes ocean, hill, lake, river and delightful early American communities. York County is one of the most historic areas in North America and there are scores of spots to visit where transpired events that have thrilled the World. One could spend days without end visiting such interesting spots as the Wedding Cake House at Kennebunk, Fort McClary at Kittery, the Old Jail and (Continued on Page 17)
Ogunquit is 70 miles north of Boston; 35 miles south of Portland, on Federal Route No. 1. Its three mile beach of hard, clean, gold and gray sand is one of the finest in the world. Thousands bathe in its thundering surf. The nationally famous Bald Head Cliff, Watch Dog, Devil's Kitchen, Giant's Stairway, Spouting Rock, White Flint, and Pirate's Cove are but a pleasant walk from our hotels. Beautiful, spill carpeted woodroads lead one through a charming countryside. A beautifully laid-out marginal way for foot travel follows Ogunquit's entire coastline. We have sixteen excellent hotels and three camping grounds. Gift-shops, tea rooms, stores. In our populous artist colony are many of America's great painters. Ogunquit Playhouse presents artists of national fame. High-class screen productions at Leavitt's Theatre. The Cliff Country Club maintains an excellent golf course. Riding school—beautiful, gentle horses—bridle paths. In no part of the world may better tuna fishing be found. Accommodations for every purse. We invite you.

Saco, Maine Route No. 1
Cumberland County

By HENRY S. BEVERAGE

Within the boundaries of Cumberland County’s 853 square miles can be found nearly every attraction the vacationist in Maine might desire. Here, on one hand, are shelving white sand beaches for sun and sea bathing, interspersed by rocky headlands over which flow the cool sea breezes from the Atlantic Ocean, yet a half hour’s drive from the coast will quickly change the scenery to thousand acre forests. Here, in Portland, Maine’s metropolis, will be found the largest shopping center east of Boston, yet a drive of only a few miles brings one to a typical cross roads country store. And here, in Cumberland County, is the widest variety of accommodations to be found in Maine, including modern commercial and resort hotels, coastal, island, and inland guest homes, lake and sea-shore camp and cottage colonies, country boarding houses and over-night camps.

There is fishing in Cumberland County to delight the heart of any angler whether he seeks the largest game fish of them all, the giant tuna, or the trout, landlocked salmon and bass of the inland lakes and streams. There are numerous golf courses where the visitor is always welcome; there are courts for the tennis enthusiast; there are bridle trails; lake and ocean cruises and trips for deep sea fishing can be arranged on short notice; camp sites are scattered throughout the county, canoe trips are numerous and even mountain climbing, in a modified form, is available for devotees of hiking.

To be more specific, consider Portland: A sea-coast city of 70,000 inhabitants, a vacation center, the central point of many attractions including day trips to nearby lakes, the Casco Bay islands, coastal communities and several beaches. Here is a cosmopolitan city built on a high peninsula less than a mile wide, nearly surrounded by water, swept by cool sea breezes, and bathed in sparkling clear sunshine; a city alive with gay summer throngs.

Fine public buildings distinguish the City of Portland. Excellent hotels, comfortable tourist homes, splendid restaurants featuring Maine shore dinners, large department stores and specialty shops, good banking facilities, theatres, libraries, churches, art, historical and natural history museums. The city maintains a fine municipal golf course, tennis and horseshoe courts, bowling on the green, and a splendid public beach for salt water bathing.

Longfellow. Also Portland City Hall where summer concerts are given on the Municipal organ, a gift to his native city from the late Cyrus H. K. Curtis.

Inland in Cumberland County one finds the famous Sebago Lake region; nearly a score of other lakes and ponds; the quiet surroundings of numerous rural communities and several lively summer resort towns.

Sebago, second largest lake in Maine, is the habitat of fighting landlocked salmon, square-tail trout, black bass and numerous other fresh water species and affords excellent fishing from Spring to Fall. Accommodations around the lake and in the bordering towns of Windham, Raymond, South Casco, Sebago and Standish, are varied and inviting, ranging all the way from over-night camps to exclusive lake shore resorts. Boats and guides are available for one-day visitors as well as for those who stay for longer periods.

At the head of Sebago and at the foot of another large inland body, Long Lake, is Naples, widely popular summer playground in the center of an extensive boys' and girls' summer camp area, supporting several fine hotels and guest homes.

A few miles from Naples in the Long Lake section is Harrison, also a popular spot for the vacationist with excellent and varied accommodations, while Bridgton, in the foothills of the White Mountains, is an attractive community that is becoming as well known to winter sports enthusiasts as it has long been to summer visitors.

Among other well known and equally inviting towns are Baldwin, Steep Falls, Cumberland, Cornish, Gorham, Otisfield, Casco, and Pownal, rural communities that offer the charm and peaceful atmosphere of the quiet countryside.

Within the towns of Gray and New Gloucester are two attractions which the wildlife lover and angler should not miss while in Maine, the State Fish and Game Department's game farm and an extensive trout hatchery, the latter one of the largest in the country. At the game farm may be seen many species of wildlife not ordinarily found except in zoos or menageries, while the hatchery system shows the methods of raising and rearing game fish to excellent advantage.

Picture a cosmopolitan city of seventy-five thousand people built on a high peninsula less than a mile wide, nearly surrounded by water, swept by cool sea breezes, and bathed in sparkling clear sunshine; a city alive with gay summer throngs. That's Portland.

Portland, the metropolis of Maine, is a city of commerce and industry in a setting of blue seas and emerald islands, blending into rolling, wooded hills. A handsomely landscaped Promenade overlooks Portland Harbor and Casco Bay. The Western Promenade, with many fine private residences overlooks a rolling country to the White Mountains sixty miles away and into sunsets beyond description.

Fine public buildings distinguish the City of Portland. Excellent hotels, comfortable tourist homes, splendid restaurants featuring Maine shore dinners, large department stores and specialty shops, good banking facilities, theatres, libraries, churches, art, historical and a natural history museum.

Of particular interest is the birthplace of the poet, Longfellow. Also Portland City Hall where summer concerts are given on the Municipal organ, a gift to his native city from the late Cyrus H. K. now New Gloucester, and its Shaker Village and Church on the road to Poland Spring are also of special interest to visitors in this part of Maine. Nearby one finds beautiful Sabbathday Lake.

For the vacationist who prefers the salty tang of the Atlantic coast to the inland areas, Cumberland County offers a wealth of variety. All of the larger islands in Casco Bay afford vacation accommodations. The coastal towns, Prouts Neck, Higgins Beach, Cape Elizabeth, Cape Cottage, Harpswell, Orr's Island, Scarborough, Bailey Island, Cundy's Harbor, Yarmouth, Falmouth, South Freeport, and the City of South Portland all have features of interest to the seeker of seashore vacation plus a variety of accommodations.

Other interesting Cumberland County localities are Brunswick, home of Bowdoin College; Freeport, claimed to be the "birthplace of Maine" and site of the "Desert of Maine"; and the city of Westbrook, known far and wide for its paper manufacturing.

Trunk highways to all sections of Maine converge at Portland and the county is inter-laced with many miles of connecting roads, from the hard-surfaced main arteries of travel to the gravel highways of the rural communities and the countless dirt roads of the lightly-settled sections, the latter, by the way, often rich in "discoveries" for exploration-minded travelers.

Yes, Cumberland County's attractions are many and varied. Among them may be those that will provide the answer to your Maine vacation problem.

MAINE CLIMATE MOST HEALTHFUL IN NATION

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau annual meteorological summary, says "Maine has the most healthful climate in the United States and equals any in the world, not only in the summer but also, contrary to popular belief, in the winter. "Sunshine averages close to 60 per cent for the year and monthly averages vary little during the changes of seasons. Frequently the winter has more sunshiny days than the summer.

It is a fact that southern Maine has more actual hours of sunshine during the summer months of June, July, August and September than the famous winter resorts of Florida, Georgia, Texas and California have during the winter months of November, December, January and February.

"Vitamin 'D' has been recognized as being very necessary to invalids or convalescent patients. Maine's sunshine and large number of crystal clear days assure residents of large quantities of vitamin 'D' and ultraviolet rays to insure good health."

Few parts of New England of like area offer a greater diversity of attractions to the vacationists and sportsmen than Oxford County with its famous hills, sparkling streams, sky blue lakes, and snug villages; all easily accessible by rail and good highways.

The year round there are sports of one sort or another — hunting, fishing, hiking, mountain climbing, riding, swimming, boating, canoe trips and golf, tennis, skeet and trap shooting and winter sports to mention a few; and the pure air, laden with the scent of balsam fir, spruce, and pine, is always a tonic for the weary city dweller seeking only rest and health.

The southern portion of the county is composed of wide intervale lands dotted with rolling hills stretching away into the foothills of the White Mountains. This famous range is reached by a trunk highway through Fryeburg, where years ago Captain Lovewell fought his famous battle with the Indians on the shores of the pond now bearing his name and the subject of the first poem written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Here are winding lazy rivers, ideal for canoeing, with fine bass fishing in Lovewell’s Pond; in Kezar Lake in the towns of Lovell and Center Lovell, which also offers some of the finest salmon fishing in the section; while in Waterford, where Artemus Ward, one of America’s famous humorists, lived and is buried, bass of large size abound in Lake Keoka. Lake Keewaydin in Stoneham is also a salmon lake.

In the central portion of the county are Songo Pond at Bethel in the region once terrorized by the Indian raids of Tom Hegan; Twitchell Pond, North Pond and Lake Christopher in the Locke Mills-Bryant Pond region, and Lake Pennessesewasse in Norway, all of which offer bass fishing. Lake Thompson at Oxford lies partly in the county. Near the eastern border of the county at Canton is found the scene of an annual bass fishing tournament, the Mecca of many sportsmen.

Oxford County is divided in the middle by the beautiful Androscoggin River, which flows through Bethel, Rumford, Dixfield and Peru on its way to the sea. Along its banks are some of the most beautiful scenic drives in the state, particularly that from Bethel to Rumford.

Paris made up of South Paris, West Paris and Paris Hill with many marvelous old homes in the shire town of the county. The birthplace at Paris Hill of Hannibal Hamlin, Vice-President of the United States with the martyred Abraham Lincoln, is where the original settlement was made.

This charming region combines an air of antiquity...

recently stated that it is the largest boulder in the world and of great interest to geologists.

The north portion of the county possesses fine trout and salmon fishing in scores of streams, small ponds, and includes the upper reaches of the Rangeley chain, namely Umbagog Lake washing the shores of Upton, Lower and Upper Richardson Lakes, and part of Mooselookmeguntie Lake with fine camps at Upper Dam. Further north are Aziscoos Lake, now called Sawyer, and in the extreme north Parmachenee Lake, famed for trout, and the lake for which the Parmachenee Belle trout fly was named. The northern portion of the county is hilly and mountainous; heavily wooded. There are excellent accommodations at Wilson’s Mills.

One of the finest scenic drives in the State, particularly in the autumn foliage season is through Fryeburg, No. Fryeburg, and Evans Notch to Gilead in the western border of Oxford County.

The entire county offers good hunting for bear, deer, and small game; ducks, partridge, and other wild fowl. The activities of numerous fish and game protective associations are making fishing better every year.

Fine tours are offered by many routes in all but the extreme north portion of the country. For those who want wild rugged beauty, accessible only by tote road or canoe, the famous Magalloway region is a paradise.

Mountain climbers may find plenty of their sort of fun on Pleasant Mountain, Sabattus, East Royce, Peabody, Mount Zircon, and Speckled, Old Spec in Grafton Notch, Plumbago, Aziscoos, Deer Mountain and others.

Franklin County
By ROBERT F. WHITE, JR.

For the visitor intent upon spending a quiet, restful vacation embodying comforts and natural beauty, the environs of Franklin County commend themselves to the most discriminating.

With Farmington, the shire town, as the hub, good roads lead to the many smaller towns and villages, through rolling country indescribably beautiful, dotted with lakes, blue-capped hills and picturesque forest—emerald-green in summer, dark in winter, multi-colored in spring, and gorgeous in autumn with its gaily-colored sweep from the valleys to the rounded summits.

Perhaps the most noted of summer resorts in the County is the Rangeley Region, 1500 to 1800 feet above sea level. Here come sportsmen, statesmen, scholars, artists and nature lovers to rest and play. The Region lies in the great Appalachian range. It contains the second highest mountain in Maine—Saddleback; and because of its elevation and its pure spruce-scented air the Rangeley Region is famed as a health-giving summer resort, free from hay fever conditions.

Rangeley's chain of lakes embracing Rangeley, Quimby Pond, Dodge Pond, Kennebago, Loon, Saddleback, Mooselookmeguntic, Cupsuptic, Upper and Lower Richardson and Umbagog lakes with connecting streams, affords an imperative lure to vacationists all over the world—450 square miles of playground in which to fish, swim, canoe, hunt and loaf.

Besides its Saddleback, Franklin County contains scores of other mountain summits of varying elevation offering every variety of mountain climbing and hiking.

The Rangeley Region is the birthplace of the cabin idea of summer hotel life, wherein you and your family occupy a separate cabin, oftentimes built of logs, with a fireplace in the living room, ample verandas, one, two or more bedrooms with private bath. You are relieved of all housekeeping details as all service is provided from a larger main cabin in which is usually found the office, dining room, recreation room, lounge, more fireplaces and more often than not a library of good books.

While Dad is perhaps off fishing Mother can ride horseback, knit, play bridge, listen to music on the radio, walk a bit, meet congenial people and enjoy the entertainment provided for her and the children by the camp management. Such camps are now found in many other lake regions.

Eustis is a favorite haunt of the hunter and fisherman. Here also are found the famous "cathedral pines," one of the few remaining stands of virgin timber. Names like King & Bartlett, Deer Pond, Jim Pond, Round Mountain Lake and Tim Pond have made this section synonymous with good hunting and fishing.

The Arnold Trail highway starts at Stratton on its way into Canada, following the trail of Benedict Arnold on his ill-fated march to Quebec over the Height of Land, through the Chain of Ponds and on to Lake Megantic where that hardy group of men found the waters of the Chaudiere flowing to the St. Lawrence River opposite the City of Quebec.

A beautiful valley, surrounded by rugged mountains with Lake Webb in their midst—that's the site of the HALF WAY between the White Mountains and Bar Harbor and between Boston and Quebec—that's Skowhegan. No longer do Indians watch for salmon in the winding Kennebec River here, yet Skowhegan is still a place to watch. Nestled on both sides of the river well harnessed and on a central island, the shire town of Somerset County is widely known for manufactured products consisting mainly of woolen cloth, worsted yarn, shoes, moccasins and hardwood novelties. We have modern stores, hotels, banks, restaurants, rich farmlands, scenic attractions. We are a short ride from numerous lakes; an hour and a half from Moosehead.

More than 7000 people call Skowhegan home. Artemus Ward called it "The Garden Spot of America." Thousands of tourists have admired, will admire, what we have to offer you.

Lakewood, nationally-known resort, is only eight minutes' drive from the center of Skowhegan. There thousands annually see some of the finest theatrical productions by America's oldest summer stock company and enjoy golf, swimming, boating, fishing, dancing, and other healthful outdoor recreation. Lakewood cottages are available this year for vacations of any length. Tourist Homes and Camps, the finest in Maine, are found in Skowhegan—you'll like their "Old New England" hospitality.

Ten years after Kennebec County was incorporated on March 1, 1809, the County of Somerset was incorporated with Norridgewock as its shire town.

In 1873 Skowhegan became the county seat in place of Norridgewock and a Court House, the gift of Hon. Abner Coburn of Skowhegan, a Governor of Maine in 1863, was erected. It was through this historical section that Benedict Arnold's Quebec Expedition passed up the Kennebec River and in October 1775, successive sections of that organization camped on the present Skowhegan Island where the Federated and Methodist churches and the Junior High School building are located.

The first town to be entered after leaving Kennebec County at Waterville is Fairfield, a thriving community, the early settlement of which was characterized by numerous Quaker families, and where a Quaker meeting House has existed for many years.

There is much of early history in the Skowhegan locality and interest is maintained by means of a charming History House which was given by Miss Louise Helen Coburn of the well known Coburn family. In this are collections of furniture, glass, utilitarian articles and papers which have belonged to early Skowhegan families. This is open for inspection during the summer months.

Mainly a textile town with woolen, spinning and shoe factories in the lead, it is only five miles from Skowhegan to Lakewood Theatre, the home of many notable theatrical people during the summer months. The first settlement where this nationally known colony with its modern theatre and inn now exists was made by the Spiritualists on the shore of Hayden Lake, now Lake Wasserrunsett. Norridgewock already referred to remains a historical center. There still stands the early Congregational Church; the old county jail and the Danforth Tavern, where the old bar and the ballroom remain intact. Privately owned this ancient hostelry has long been closed to the public. The trip from Norridgewock to Madison leads past the Old Point section where Father Rasle's murder occurred over 200 years ago. A rude church was built at the spot and a monument was erected to his memory in 1853 when Bishop Fenwick of Boston purchased an acre of ground to preserve the grave, the site of the church and the home of this martyred missionary to the Indians.

An excellent hard-surfaced highway stretches north from Lakewood through Bingham with its famous Wyman Dam and side trip to Pleasant Ridge, Carry Pond, Rowe Pond and other desirable fishing waters and vacationing territory amid restful and inspirational scenery. The main highway continues on to Quebec over the so-called Jackman highway through Caratunk, the gateway to Pierce Pond, and to The Forks, named because of the confluence of the waters of the Dead River which have flowed down from the hills and lakes of Franklin County to join those of the Kennebec, Troutdale on Lake Moxie, Indian Pond reached via Tarratine, Lake Parlin and Jackman sections are fishing and hunting centers of renown. The lakes have an abundance of trout, landlocked salmon and togue. There are partridge, woodcock, deer and many bear.

ROCKWOOD, MAINE

At Jackman an excellent highway extends to Rockwood on the shores of Moosehead Lake and across the lake are far famed Kineo and Kineo Mountain. A fine new highway extends south from Rockwood to Greenville crossing the West and East Outlets of Moosehead which flow into the Kennebec river, thence through Squaw Mountain Township on the southern shore of Moosehead Lake.

For trout, salmon and togue (lake trout) fishing, the Jackman Region has long been famous. Salmon thrive in these cool northern waters and weigh from two to seven pounds and over. Moose River waters are celebrated for the fighting qualities of these “landlocked” salmon. Some smaller ponds are well stocked also. It is the last frontier in this great unspoiled region on the historic “Indian Trail” highway leading to Quebec.

Outstanding in the northernmost section of Somerset County is the house of logs just above the Moose River settlement which was built by the Sutro family of Port Chester, N. Y. at a cost of $135,000 at about the location of the early log cabin of the Holden family which was built there in 1820. This is only a short distance away from the historic Holden tavern in the main Moose River settlement. Throughout this entire section and in Dennistown are summer camps where the public is entertained offering fishing in abundance, while in the fall during the hunting season, there is vast opportunity for this type of sport.

In the eastern part of the County is the well-known Great Moose Lake resort a few miles from St. Albans and about one mile above the village of Hartland. This is one of the manufacturing villages which sprang into being about 75 years ago, like Pittsfield, its neighbor, eight miles south. In the latter town the founder of the woven industry was a family named Dobson and in Hartland, the founder was Archibald Linn. These were Scotchmen, who came over to this country and amassed fortunes by their thrift and industry in the textile business. No longer are textiles manufactured in Hartland, but a good sized tannery industry has been established there. Near the head of Great Moose Lake stands Castle Harmony, the home of the Wild Goose Club, which was organized by Maine and Massachusetts woolen men.
Piscataquis County

By O. L. Evans

Piscataquis, the second largest county in Maine and containing literally hundreds of lakes and ponds, including Moosehead Lake, the whole crowned by majestic Mt. Katahdin, offers the summer and winter visitor a variety of unsurpassed recreational opportunities.

Piscataquis has well been called “the county of the lakes,” for within its 4205 square miles are 252,872 acres of water, almost twice as great an area as in any other Maine county.

Moosehead Lake is one of the most widely known attractions in Maine. Forty miles long and twenty wide, its shores surrounded by forest extending for hundreds of miles to the Canadian border, Moosehead is the center of a vast recreational region. Its waters provide unexcelled trout, togue and salmon fishing from the time the ice goes out, early in May, until hunting season in October. From Moosehead Lake start five famous canoe trips: the East and West Branch trips, the Allagash, the Allagash Circuit and St. John River trip.

Sebec Lake, reached from Dover-Foxcroft, is thirteen miles long and is one of the original homes of land-locked salmon in Maine. Here salmon, bass and perch fishing is good. Lake Onawa is a gem among Maine lakes, nestled at the foot of Borestone Mountain. Eagle, Chamberlain, Chesuncook, Caucomgomoc, Lobster Lakes, situated in the North Woods, all have their charms and provide good fishing.

The fifty-seven-foot falls on Little Wilson Stream, reached from Greenville, in a sheer slate canyon is one of the best known cascades in the state; and for real grandeur there is nothing finer than the Gulf on the West Branch of Pleasant River. Here the stream is deeply entrenched in a slate canyon. Water falls, sheer walls, fantastic shapes and formations succeed each other in bewildering number, the whole making a picture of surpassing beauty.

Both of these scenic wonders are on the Appalachian Trail whose northern terminus is Mt. Katahdin. By means of this well marked route the hiker may visit some of the most beautiful spots in Piscataquis County, the trail being so laid out that nightfall of each day finds the hiker at a camp where he can find good food and a comfortable bed.

If a man stands alone on the summit of Mt. Katahdin in the early morning and faces East, he will be the first person in the United States on that particular day to greet the rising sun whose rays touch the mountain’s crest before any other spot in the country. Katahdin is indeed the king of Maine mountains, rising 5672 feet.
A great sparkling inland sea, surrounded by rugged mountains and undulating hills; hundreds of miles of sparkling tributary streams and outlets; vacation days without end of fishing, hunting, hiking, canoeing or golf in an enchanted wonderland.

Here, in this great unspoiled playground, lies the answer to your vacation problem. Moosehead offers every recreational pleasure, but with an added zest—a greater delight. The air is clearer, the scenery more beautiful, the fish are bigger and scrappier, the people more friendly, and life, in general, more worth living at Moosehead.

Excellent roads, train and bus services, lead to this vacation Paradise. Every known type of accommodation is available—luxurious hotels, modern tourist camps and homes, housekeeping cottages, delightfully informal sporting camps, and sequestered camping sites.

Visit Moosehead once and you will want to come back again and again to enjoy its intriguing water-ways, the view from Squaw and Kineo Mountains, the hundreds of miles of primeval forests, the delightful climate, and unlimited recreational facilities.

HARRY I. ROLLINS
above sea level, an isolated, massive gray granite monolith, and while it can be climbed by the novice, who is bound to be thrilled by the magnificent view of mountain, lake and forest, yet it also challenges elsewhere the skill and daring of the experienced climber.

The summit of Katahdin, through the generosity of former Governor Percival P. Baxter has been set aside and designated as Baxter State Park in which no camping or hunting is allowed, to preserve forever its natural beauty as a game and bird sanctuary.

Boystone and Squaw Mountains, to mention only two other Piscataquis peaks, are easily climbed and reward the climber with wonderful views.

Rising midway of Moosehead Lake directly opposite Rockwood and West Outlet, Kineo Mountain is a particularly interesting spot, for it is composed of pure flint, where Indians came from hundreds of miles away to manufacture from the rock their implements and weapons.

The traveler can reach the very heart of Piscataquis County's forest area over good roads. Gravel highways extend from Greenville eighty miles through the forest to Caucomgomoc Lake; and to the east, through Lily Bay, Kokadjo, past Rainbow Lake and the famous Ripogenus Dam, to the very foot of Mt. Katahdin and thence to the town of Millinocket. The motorist will find accommodations in excellently appointed camps to be found throughout the county.

But perhaps the sweep of Moosehead Lake, the imperial majesty of Katahdin or the mystery of the big woods do not appeal; perhaps a less strenuous vacation is desired. Piscataquis County towns offer real New England atmosphere and hospitality and in every one of them may be found homes, and in several of them fine hotels which are open to tourists the year around. Dover-Foxcroft, the shire town, offers such accommodations, plus progressive shops, an excellent library, and shady streets.

Besides being the “capital” of the Moosehead region, Greenville is notable for its unusually fine public buildings and beautiful homes. The view from Blair’s Hill, just beyond Greenville, is breath-taking in its loveliness.

Monson is famous for the slate quarried there and used industrially throughout the country. Guilford and Sangerville are typical Maine towns, the latter having the distinction of having had two of its sons knighted by England: Sir Hiram Maxim, the inventor, and Sir Harry Oakes, gold mine operator and one of the world’s richest men.

Milo and Brownville, in the eastern part of the county, are hospitable villages and the gateway to the area of forest and lakes centering about Katahdin Iron Works where are to be found some of the best hunting and fishing in Maine.

The highway from Bingham in Somerset County passing through Kingsbury, Abbot Village, Blanchard, and Shirley is in every respect a scenic route.

And so Piscataquis bids you welcome to the full delights of a vacation in the “County of the Lakes.”

RELIEF FROM HAY FEVER

Maine is rapidly becoming known as a mecca for those suffering from hay fever.

Broadly speaking, places in the forested regions offer great relief and in many cases entire immunity is had, particularly in northern Oxford County and in the Rangeley region and the wooded country around Moosehead Lake. Probably anywhere up in the "Big Woods," region of Maine where grasses and pollen bearing weeds are not found can be confidently recommended.

Along the coast where the growth is principally coniferous, Monhegan Island, Newagen, Squirrel Island, Mount Desert Island, Petit Manan and Eastport are recommended.
Androscoggin County

By ALICE FROST LORD

Androscoggin is sort of a sample county in Maine. Barring a seacoast, it has well-defined samples of what most other counties in the State can boast, only on a somewhat smaller scale. The major exception, of course, is the group of important cotton mills and shoe factories in the shire city of Auburn, and its twin city of Lewiston just across the power-producing Androscoggin River.

Its sample-case includes one of Maine's most popular hotels in Poland Spring, with its world famous beautiful golf links and hill-top setting; Lake Auburn where recent stocking has provided square-tails, brown trout, Chinooks, landlocked salmon and perch; plenty of brooks for the sportsmen who know the lucky spots; Moose Hill in Livermore, where the local correspondents are prone to write about stray moose in the pastures; deer, fox and rabbit haunts; fertile orchards, and corn, bean, and potato fields; excellent dairy herds in what is the county's largest agricultural activity; a State Fair that has been famous for years; large summer camps in Poland, Lisbon and Leeds; fur farms in five of its towns; a church in Lewiston that for startling beauty rivals some of the biggest cathedrals in America; and Kora Shrine Temple with Harry Cochrane's famous Palestine Murals.

Lewiston and Auburn also boast of fine parks and playgrounds, excellent golf courses, delightful residential sections, good hotels, theatres, a modern broadcasting station and excellent shopping facilities. In fact, the largest and most progressive department store in central Maine is located here.

Educationally, Androscoggin County boasts of five public and private schools, Bates College, at Lewiston, ranks high among collegiate institutions, meeting the needs of nearly 700 students annually for cultural courses; and in addition opening its campus and halls to a large registration of summer school folk. For over three-quarters of a century Bates has been known best for the educators it has so-well trained for service all over the world. Since the turn of the century it has steadily increasing its collection of valuable historical material.

All the cities and towns have their expected quota of seasonal sports; moreover, Auburn has attained a widespread reputation as a supply center for sports materials, for fishing, hunting and camping. Many out-of-State sportsmen make it their business to do business here.

A new activity which is meeting with favor is all-year hiking by the Alpine Club, which holds its meetings in Auburn regularly.

Thus, Androscoggin County, the sample box of Maine, invites you. A loyal, conservative, industrious people await an opportunity to welcome you.

Kennebec County

By JOHN H. RICH, JR.

Stretching back from both historic banks of the majestic Kennebec River, through rolling hills and green countryside studded with blue lakes, lies Kennebec County in the very heart of the nation’s vacationland. Cool lakes for bathing, boating or unsurpassed fishing, rivers and brooks large and small, entwined among pine-clad hills, historic landmarks that played their part in the struggle of a young nation — these are all found in Kennebec County, truly the heart of Maine. In the center of this region, keynoting the atmosphere of its county as well as the entire State, stands stately Augusta, Maine’s Capital, spanning the great Kennebec from sloping banks where once roamed the lithe, bronzed Indians. Here, surrounded by this wonderland of nature, business of the State is carried on in the picturesquely domed Capitol, visible above the treetops for miles up and down the winding river. Here also will be found Fort Western erected in 1754. Along the river in the confines of Kennebec County lie four cities. Below Augusta are Hallowell and Gardiner with the neighboring town of Farmingdale, active industrial centers boasting beautiful mansions and estates which whisper of the past when trim trading vessels slipped down the Kennebec to carry the name of this region around the globe. Up river, some 20 miles above the Capital, elm-shaded Waterville poses at the confluence of the Kennebec and Sebasticook with only old Fort Halifax, built in 1754, to recall when these rivers served as important thoroughfares for the Indians in their travels about Maine. This is where a once famous Indian village, Ticonic, stood which has given its name to the falls, to cotton, woolen and paper mills, and to many other products. Waterville is the site of Colby College which is being rebuilt at a new site on Mayflower Hill to replace the present location near the railroad yard. It is also the home of Coburn Classical Institute. To the East of the Kennebec, but a few miles from Augusta and Waterville are to be found a chain of lakes cool and inviting when seen from the highway in their woodland setting. Largest of these is deep, clear China Lake, water supply for the City of Waterville where are taken some of Maine’s most beautiful land locked salmon and small mouth black bass. Three Mile Pond and Webber Pond, smaller but none the less beautiful, peacefully ripple in the woodlands on the coastal side of the Kennebec. To the West of the Kennebec, where falls the early morning shadow of the Capitol dome, spreads a fairyland of wooded hills, lakes and streams, known as the Kennebec Lakes Region. This countryside embraces 200 square miles of rolling, farm-dotted landscape, nearly one-fourth of which nature has filled with shimmering lakes and ponds, twenty of them joined by a network of murmuring streams. Laced by smooth highways revealing beauty at every turn, the Kennebec Lakes Region lures scores of pleasure seekers every season of the year. Cottages, cabins and hotels afford ample accommodations on the pine and spruce scented shores of the lakes. Enchanted since first the Red Man trod their shores, these lakes, on summer days reflecting back the billow-

MRS. FRED ALDEN
OAKLAND, MAINE

Probably no region in the world is more justified in boasting of its small mouthed bass fishing than the Belgrade Lakes Region. For more than a hundred years it has been famous, and in size and quantity of their gamey fish these lakes are discussed wherever anglers foregather throughout the country. Add to this fact the Chinook Salmon, recently introduced and native landlocked salmon and trout with which these lakes abound, and one can understand why they are considered a veritable angler’s paradise.

Within easy motoring distance of the shopping centers at Waterville and Augusta, the Belgrade Lakes offer a wide range of accommodations from smart hotels and camps to simple housekeeping cottages. Set among heavily wooded hills in the North and flanked by low rolling hills in the South, here can be found complete relaxation in a woodland setting with all the comforts of home.

Canoeing — some of the best in the State, is offered by these closely connected lakes, and convenient streams make long portages unnecessary. Hunting on the lofty hills is of the best with plenty of game, especially birds and deer. Winter recreation facilities here are numerous and diversified. Skiing, snowshoeing, ice-boating, toboggan- ing, skating and ice-fishing are all available. At nearby Waterville is a ski and toboggan tow rated among the finest in the East.

Sagadahoc County

By HARRY C. WEBBER

Although the smallest of Maine’s sixteen counties none is more closely linked with the early history of America than Sagadahoc.

The Popham colony, under the command of Sir George Popham landed at the mouth of the Kennebec River, on the shore of Atkins Bay, and there established the Popham colony with Fort St. George, a church, schoolhouse, storehouses and dwellings.

As shipbuilding became a prominent industry along the Kennebec River it was necessary that it should be provided protection in case of war, and during the period since the Popham colony landed at the mouth of the Kennebec, and built Fort St. George, six other forts have been erected at Popham or within sight of Popham. Of these the great granite fort of Civil War days, along with Fort Baldwin erected following the Spanish-American war, are now abandoned, so far as military use is concerned, and have been turned over to the State to become State Parks.

The building of many ships feature the shire city of Sagadahoc county, Bath. Here for almost three hundred years have been constructed craft of every type from the flat bottom skiff, lap-streak rowboat to the famous clippers which sailed the seven seas, to the schooners, large and small which have traded along our coast, to the palatial yachts of American millionaires, to the fastest and finest boats which have become the “pride of the fleet” in the United States Navy, including a battleship, a scout cruiser and several score speedy destroyers, to say nothing of trawlers, light-ships, cargo carriers and other types.

One of the most interesting sights in the Shipping City is the $3,000,000 Carlton bridge, which spans the Kennebec River here, connecting Bath with the town of Woolwich. Another interesting feature connected with its principal industry is the exhibit of paintings, models and other maritime souvenirs exhibited by the Kennebec Marine Museum, Inc., in the auditorium of the Davenport Memorial City Hall. There being no charge to visit the display or to inspect the Paul Revere bell in the tower of the municipal building.

On the Phippsburg peninsula south of Bath are located, besides Popham Beach, two quaint little Old New England villages, Phippsburgh Center and Parker Head. There are also numerous Summer colonies including Small Point Beach where many persons of prominence pass their vacation periods; West Point originally a fishing village now considerable of a summer colony as well; Small Point Harbor once the site of “Ancient Augusta,” a one time important settlement which was destroyed by the Indians. In Phippsburg is also located Sebasco Estates with its golf course, tennis courts, swimming pool and other recreational features. From here fishermen, with well equipped boats, are always ready to take out those who desire to try tuna fishing, their luck with other denizens of the deep, pull lobster traps or just enjoy an afternoon’s sail.

On Phipps’ Point in Woolwich is the summer home of former Governor William Tudor Gardiner overlooking beautiful Hockomock bay. It is called Phipps’ Point because here was born the great adventurer, one time Provincial Governor and later the first American knighted at the English court in recognition of his having brought treasure taken from old Spanish galleons sunken in the Caribbean sea. In this town is the oldest Congregational Church east of the Kennebec River, built nearly 200 years ago.

Leaving Woolwich, by means of the old wooden drawbridge, one enters and passes through the island town of Arrowsic scene of a parley between the Indians of Maine and English officers during which the Indians were convinced that they should throw their support to the English against the French enemies. Leaving Arrowsic one enters Georgetown, a section of which known as Five Islands, has one of the best harbors along the coast and has been the frequent rendezvous of the Boston and other yacht clubs. Bay Point must also be included in referring to resorts in Georgetown which is the summer home of several artists of note and Robinhood where reside in vacation time sculptors of national reputation.

The upper part of Sagadahoc county comprises the towns of Richmond, Bowdoin, and Bowdoinham. Richmond and Bowdoinham are perhaps best known to many tourists because they are the center of many sporting camps which are in great demand, with their boats and guides, during the duck hunting season on Merrymeeting Bay, one of the finest hunting grounds for water fowl to be found along the eastern seaboard and which attracts hunters every Fall from many distant sections of the country.

Lincoln County

By S. H. ERSKINE

Bordering on the Atlantic Ocean with its numerous bays and inlets, and its interior intersected with lakes, rivers and small streams, Lincoln County may perhaps be considered the birthplace of New England, the Jamestown of Maine. It was settled at Pemaquid the same year as Jamestown in Virginia. Here the first deed recorded in New England, if not in America, was given by the Indians to John Brown in 1625. It conveyed a large part of what is now Lincoln County for the price of fifty beaver skins.

Lincoln County has a picturesque coast of exceeding beauty, with its Gibraltar-like rock island, Monhegan, ten miles off shore, with a remarkable spruce area in the bowl-like center of the island. Squirrel Island is one of the oldest resorts in this section, the summer home of college professors and people whose names are nationally known in the world of literature, art and business today.

Pemaquid Point invites you to one of the boldest headlands on the coast, to watch the surf break on its shores. The old round fort at Pemaquid Beach and the fine old fort house take one back to Indian times when three other forts rose and fell on the same spot.

All the Pemaquids are in Bristol and close by, South Bristol invites you to play golf on one of the finest courses in the State, or anchor your yacht while you stay at one of its several excellent hotels. At Christmas Cove, you may take your dip in a salt water pool or enjoy the Casino close by.

On either side of one of the most beautiful rivers in Maine, The Twin towns of Newcastle and Damariscotta furnish the shopping and banking center of the county, and have an added attraction in an old time industry, as the shipyard is building war craft, near the bridge connecting the two towns. Lincoln County has returned to its former fame in ship building, with Government boats on the ways at South Bristol, East Boothbay and Boothbay Harbor as well.

The Boothbay Region is one of the most attractive in Lincoln County and in the entire state. Its location on the Atlantic coast with its bays and harbors offer excellent facilities for fishing, bathing, boating and other water sports and pastimes. Its first class hotels, tourists homes and cabins furnish attractive accommodations for summer vacationists.

Wiscasset, once a famous shipping port, still has two picturesque old ships anchored close by the mile long bridge. Rich in beautiful colonial homes built in the late 1700’s and early 1800’s, the town holds Open House Day each August, when one may visit houses furnished with priceless antiques and meet hostesses gowned as Colonial dames. The old stone jail and handsome old Court House have been in constant use since Wiscasset succeeded Pownalborough as the shire town of the county.

Driving across the long bridge over the Sheepscot River and into Edgecomb, one passes the Marie Antoinette house which the royal personage for whom it was planned and built in Westport, never occupied. Near by, Fort Edgecomb, the block house, built to protect the harbor in 1812 is a picturesque example of early fortifications.

Lincoln County has not only its grand coast line with deep Atlantic waters washing its shores, but several charming small lakes within its borders, with appealing cottages available along the shores. Queen among them all, big Damariscotta Lake attracts more and more people every year, and is becoming widely known for its splendid sporting camps and camps for boys and girls patronized by groups from many states. These camps have made the towns of Jefferson and Nobleboro widely known.

In the little town of Bremen one may salute Commodore Tucker in marble, standing above his grave. Then visit the Audubon Nature Camp on Hog Island, where people from all over the United States come to study at the Todd Wild Life Sanctuary. The National Audubon Society is here engaged in a program for the preservation of wild life.

Several ancient churches make Lincoln County outstanding. The Walpole meeting house, built in 1772, is the oldest church in Maine and has special seats reserved for slaves. The Old Aina Church, 1789, stored ammunition within its walls, and has a beautiful interior. In Waldoboro the historic German Church has its "silent city" close to its walls. St. Patrick's at Damariscotta Mills is the oldest Catholic Church in New England.

MAINE TEMPERATURE

The average temperature during the daytime periods of July, August and September is about 70 degrees—sometimes it runs well up into the eighties, with ninety degrees on an average of three times a year, according to weather bureau records.

It always cools off after the sun goes down and there is scarcely a night that one or two blankets are not needed even in the summer.

Knox County beautifully situated on Penobscot Bay possesses the unusual happy combination of mountains, lakes and sea in a constantly changing panorama.

Warren is a fine farming region, and here is located the Knox Arboretum with its 10,000 lots of sea shells, marine specimens, minerals, fossils, marine animals, a museum of art and science, open to the public.

Thomaston is noted historically as the home of General Henry Knox, Washington's chief of staff and the beautiful Montpelier, replica of the General Knox Mansion. In Thomaston one may find many examples of lovely Colonial homes and doorways.

Cushing has many interesting Indian relics and fine summer cottages and the "Valley of Mystery." Along the banks of the Georges River are the building ruins of which nothing is known.

St. George, which embraces the towns of Tenant's Harbor and Port Clyde, all quaint fishing villages, is a delightful section, and also boasts many summer homes.

Rockland, the shire town of Knox County is ideally located on Penobscot Bay. It is noted for its limestone quarries, one of them being the deepest in the world and its ocean trial course, over which ships of the U. S. Navy are tested for speed. From Rockland many boat trips may be taken to the myriads of enchanting islands in the bay. It also has a fine Public Landing and harbor for yachts protected by a mile-long breakwater.

Rockport has an exclusive summer residential section, among which are the estates of Mary Curtis Bok, the late Cyrus H. K. Curtis and many others. Mrs. Bok restored Rockport's waterfront to much of its natural beauty.

Camden, where the mountains meet the sea and look down on fir-bordered lakes, has long been famed for its scenery in summer and in recent years has seen members of its fashionable summer colony establish year round homes, since its winter attractions have become known through its interesting Snow Bowl winter sports area. Camden is also noted for its flower baskets which decorate the lamp-posts in the business section, and for the beautiful Bok Amphitheatre.

Owl's Head offers bathing beaches, salt water fishing, and many delightful inns by the sea. A lighthouse built in 1826 may also be visited.

South Thomaston, where the Wessaweskeag lazily winds to the sea, was settled in 1767, and the original home of Elisha Snow, the first settler, which was built in 1771 may still be seen. Pronounced for its scenic charms, is Spruce Head, the little village which is a part of South Thomaston.

Union has fine apple orchards and beautiful views of lakes, mountains, and streams. Vinalhaven, picturesque island of Penobscot Bay, is but a short boat-trip from Rockland.

Matinicus Isle Plantation and Criehaven may also be reached by boat from Rockland, and their primitive charm is well known to lovers of nature. Washington is a fine, rural community containing lakes and streams. Appleton is the center of the apple region and with a State Fish Rearing Station. Hope contains many ponds where fish abound, also beautiful Ragged Mountain, delight of mountain climbers. Friendship is a small fishing town, with public camp site, attractive inns and a charming summer cottage colony.

There are twenty-five towns in Waldo County and all of them have facilities to co-operate with its only city, Belfast, in welcoming tourists and visitors.

Lincolnville is on Penobscot Bay and its Beach is a favorite resort for tourists. A new feature there is the Islesboro Ferry Boat that connects the mainland with that Island, the largest on this section of the Coast, with an exclusive Summer colony and a yachting center that makes it the richest town in the county. Searsport, known native wise as the home of many famous sea captains, is on U. S. No. 1 Highway and the Penobscot River. It has many beautiful homes and also accommodations for tourists. Its principal attraction is the Penobscot Marine Museum, the most valuable in the State. It is in charge of Lincoln R. Colcord, who was born at Cape Horn and spent his early life at sea with his parents. He is now a well known author and composer of the Maine Stein Song made famous by Rudy Vallee, an alumnus of the University of Maine.

Stockton Springs is on the Atlantic Highway and also on Route Three in this Penobscot River region. It has the base of Fort Pownal at Fort Point that is a charming retreat for tourists, who are interested in natural research. The Fort was suggested by Governor Pownal of The Massachusetts Bay Colony on February 1, 1759, was completed July 28, 1759, and was destroyed in 1775 for fear of the enemy occupying it. Prospect is now much in evidence as it is the entrance of the Waldo-Hancock Bridge over the Penobscot River, one of the newest and most beautiful in the Country. It is used by the traveler enroute to Hancock and Washington counties. Fort Knox, nearby is now a State Park and one of the most historic buildings in Maine. Land for the building, was bought July 4, 1844, and was deeded to the State of Maine as a Park in December, 1923. The fort was built in 1846 of huge granite blocks from Mount Waldo, in Frankfort, a nearby town, then the property of General Knox. It was garrisoned during the Civil and Spanish Wars with some defense, but modern warfare would have no need of it. Frankfort, on the Penobscot River offers charming scenery, while Mount Waldo provides an almost endless supply of granite used for buildings and street paving in some of the largest cities of the Country. Winterport is at the head of the Penobscot River Winter navigation logically bearing its name. It has historic residences including the Blaisdell homestead built in 1789 and designed by Christopher Wren famous English architect. It has never been remodelled and is today much admired for its true colonial architecture.

Belmont, Searsmont, Liberty and Palermo are on the Augusta-Belfast Highway. Belmont's Tilden Pond is a popular summer resort. Searsmont with its Quantabacook Lake, offers many cottages and charming scenery in every direction. Ben Ames Williams has his farm home near the village and it is here he wrote his recent book, "Come Spring.” Liberty situated on Georges Lake, a most attractive body of water with Marshall Shore and the new "Picnic Park," is a favorite resort. Palermo is near Sheepscot Lake making it an ideal place to fish, rest and enjoy life in the open.

Brooks, Knox, Thorndike, Unity, Waldo and Burnham are on Highway 137 and the Belfast and Moosehead Lake Railroad, all inland towns that have rivers, lakes, streams and groves that appeal to all in search of recreation and real rest. Unity Lake is one of the best black bass and brown trout fishing waters in this section of Maine and is reached through Unity and Burnham.

Swayville is located on Swan Lake, noted for its salmon fishing, and offers fine accommodations for tourists. Montville will become a popular resort as it has Frye’s Mountain Park for recreation and rest. Freedom, Morrill, Monroe, Jackson and Troy have farm homes, where tourists may rest and enjoy the delicious foods that Maine women always seem to know how to cook best.

Belfast is centrally located on U. S. Highway No. 1 in the Penobscot Bay Region. It has scenic views that add beauty and attractions to Maine’s Vacationland. The city proper is situated on a side-hill that slopes gradually to the shores of Belfast Bay and the Passagassawakeag River; tributaries to Penobscot Bay. Belfast maintains a fifteen-acre City Park that extends from the Northport Avenue section to the shore of the bay. It invites trailer tourists to camp in certain sections. The public also has free use of the large salt-water pool under the protection of a swimming instructor and local officer. The beach is ideal for swimming, and there are bath houses, a large pavilion, long tables with bench seats under shade trees, a small store nearby.

The Belfast Chamber of Commerce operates a free information service to which all travelers are invited for more detailed information concerning the city of Belfast and Waldo County.

Corner Main and High St. (in heart of city)
Hancock County

By W. H. TITUS

Hancock County is unique, in that it offers to the nature lover not only the lakes and forests common throughout Maine, but a rare combination of mountain and ocean scenery. The mountains of Mount Desert Island are the highest points of land on the entire Atlantic seaboard of the United States.

To the natural scenic beauty of this region, man has added his skill and art and labor. Hard-surfaced roads of easy grade climb to the top of Cadillac Mountain, or skirt the rock-bound shores past such natural wonders as “Thunder Hole” and “Spouting Horn,” where the full majesty of the ocean awes one after a storm. These roads, some of which opened for the first time in 1940, have been laid out by engineers with considerable thought towards emphasizing the natural beauties of the region. They unfold a constantly changing panorama of lakes, forests, ocean and mountains, every turn presenting new vistas that surprise and entrance.

Hancock County is reached by two main highways—U. S. Route 1, by way of Bangor, or by Route 1A—a cut-off route, forking from Route 1 at Stockton Springs, crossing the Penobscot River by the magnificent new Waldo-Hancock Bridge, thence across the county to Ellsworth, where it again joins Route 1 for the shore route “down east” to Washington County.

Entering Hancock County by way of the Waldo-Hancock Bridge, right at the threshold, is Bucksport, home of “Jed Prouty Tavern,” made famous by the popular play, “Old Jed Prouty” of a few decades ago. It is now known by the more prosaic name of Robinson House, but it is still the same old “Tavern” and its doors have never closed to guests since the days of “Jed Prouty.” Famous names are on its old registers—Martin Van Buren, General Jackson, William Henry Harrison, John Tyler, and many of more recent history. In Bucksport, too, is one of Maine’s largest newsprint mills, open to visitors.

The route continues across the county, through Orland, where a short side trip may be taken to a Federal Government fish hatchery where trout and salmon are reared—to Ellsworth, shire town and trading center of the county. Ellsworth’s Main Street was practically wiped out by fire only seven years ago. Now to the tourist, after driving through many typical “Main Streets” it suddenly appears as a small edition of a metropolitan shopping district. Ellsworth has profited from disaster, and in rebuilding, provided commodious free parking areas close to the business section.

about 1802 by General David Cobb of Washington's Staff, and bequeathed to the county by the late George Nixon Black as a public museum. In it are found priceless Colonial furniture and antiques, rare books, dishes and glass, where one might set up housekeeping with furniture and furnishings from kitchen utensils to canopied beds, not one article of which is less than 100 years old. In summer, tea is served in the gardens. Folders and literature concerning the Black Mansion are available at the Maine Publicity Bureau at Portland.

From Ellsworth one may take many interesting side trips — to Bluehill, with its musical colony and its Rowantrees Pottery; to Castine, rich with history and romance through the Indian and French and Revolutionary Wars, where many old houses with famous doorways may be seen, dating back as far as 1765; or across the new bridge to Deer Isle and Stonington, beautiful island towns only last year made easily accessible to automobile tourists; Brooksville, with its fine harbor, yachting enthusiasts and cottage colonies; or to So. Brooksville, Sargentville, Brooklin and Cape Rosier with their beautiful views of the Penobscot Bay and its multitudinous islands.

A short mile out of Ellsworth, Route 3 bears right for Mount Desert Island and Acadia National Park. Just beyond the bridge to Mount Desert Island the road forks, the left leading to Bar Harbor, the right to the delightful shore resort towns of Northeast Harbor, Southwest Harbor, Manset, Tremont, McKinley and

The summer life in this section of Mount Desert Island has developed and retained a character typical of the many well known people who have established permanent summer homes in this region. The fleet with regularly scheduled races, the mountain trails with access to all features of Acadia National Park, and the usual outdoor activities all provide a basic variety and charm in living.

Seal Harbor. In the triangle formed by the fork of these roads is an information bureau maintained by the Mount Desert Island Chamber of Commerce. Here detailed information of drives and places of interest throughout the island may be obtained.

Henry Van Dyke called Mount Desert “the most beautiful island in the world.” It has an area of one hundred square miles, and offers the most unusual combination of ocean, lake and mountain scenery, in the world. Eighteen mountains literally rise out of the sea. In the valleys between, there are twenty-six lakes and ponds. The ocean front scenery is little short of marvelous, as bold headlands divide the coast into numerous bays and harbors. Recognizing this unique combination, the United States Government has created, on Mount Desert, the Acadia National Park, the first national park east of the Mississippi, and the only national park on the whole Atlantic Coast.

Near the delightful towns of Hancock and Winter Harbor, on the mainland, one finds Schoodic Point—a part of Acadia National Park, where is located a government radio station and where one finds a particularly grand view of Frenchman's Bay and the “rock-ribbed” coast of Maine.

Inland, there are many fine unspoiled lakes such as Branch, Graham, Spectacle, and Nicatous where sportsmen will find more than enough of bass, pickerel, trout and landlocked salmon.

Thus, Hancock County invites you. No matter what your pleasure may be, we know you’ll find it here.

This war has produced many new thoughts, but none has been more universally agreed upon than the conviction that people should avail themselves of every opportunity for recreation even during this period of furious activity. In Europe the various fighting nations have impressed this importance of recreation on their people unremittingly. They have been shown that it is their patriotic duty to keep fit mentally and physically.

Maine, one of the nation's greatest vacation states, is cooperating fully with the Federal Government in making it as easy as possible for the American people to enjoy normal vacations this summer. The State's great vacation advantages are enhanced by present day conditions. Maine is the nearest of the great vacation areas to a large proportion of the nation's great centers of population.

Fast, safe, modern trains and busses connect the big cities with every nook and cranny of Maine. Maine was a great vacation state before the automobile was invented when hundreds of thousands of persons came to the State by train. Since then, train service has been improved still further and the modern bus lines have come into being.

The recreational and resort centers are all self-sufficient so that Maine's visitors may participate in every outdoor activity imaginable. Golf courses are just a few steps from the hotel or camp, bathing beaches nearby, fishing, canoeing, tennis, nine times out of ten, right on the premises. Vacationing in Maine this year will be more fun than ever before, golfing tournaments, fishing contests, bridge tournaments, tennis matches, picnics, water sports and similar activities will take on a new zest.

No place in the world is safer than the vacation centers of Maine. Here the war seems far away and the strain of the conflict slips from the shoulders of those who visit them. Even a few days in the picturesque beauty of Maine's lakes, hills and coast will transform a person from a work-worn individual into a vibrant personality eager to get back to do his duties in the all important task of winning the war.

Your local ticket agent will be only too glad to give the latest information on bus and train service to Maine.

WASHINGTON COUNTY
Where the sun rises first on the U.S.A.

Spectacular, rugged coastline . . . lovely forest drives or through typical Maine villages . . . the world's only major tidal power project, Quoddy at Eastport . . . the coastal route to the Gaspe Peninsula and the Maritime Provinces.

Stream fishing is of the best in secluded pools . . . Atlantic sea salmon run up the Denny's, Machias, St. Croix, Pleasant and Narraguagus Rivers, a blood-tingling sport . . . plentiful bass, salmon, trout and togue in almost virgin waters.

As the hunting season approaches, Washington County is a goal where deer, bear, woodcock, partridge and waterfowl are plentiful. For four years the deer kill there has been by far the largest in any Maine county.

Yachting, swimming, deep sea fishing. The sea has an extra tang in Washington County. Here is the greatest rise and fall of tides in America.

On Dochet's Island near Calais the first Catholic church in America was built in 1604 by De Monts and Champlain. Off Machiasport the first naval engagement of the Revolution was fought in 1775. Washington County villages preserve to this day the charm and tradition of homes of a hundred years ago. Some of these homes are available for rent or sale.

Washington County

By ROSCOE C. EMERY

Washington County, the eastern-most part of the United States, possesses the most Eastern city, Eastport; the most Eastern town, Lubec; and the most Eastern lighthouse West Quoddy, within our national boundaries. It also has one of America's most isolated lighthouses located on Petit Manan Island, far out in the Atlantic Ocean.

It is the world's greatest commercial blueberry growing area and in it was introduced sardine canning to the western hemisphere. The immense Quoddy Dam project for producing electric power through the control of the greatest rise and fall of tides in the United States, is at Eastport. And as an added distinction for Washington County there is a monument in the town of Perry which officially marks the exact halfway point between the Equator and the North Pole.

Washington County has played a major part in National and World History. Here on June 24, 1604, on Doyet's Island, in the St. Croix River, was established by the famous French explorers, DeMonts and Champlain, the first settlement of Europeans North of Florida. For nearly a year it fought for an existence but when 35 of the 79 members had died from hardship, the survivors moved to Port Royal, Nova Scotia, and became the first colony in Canada.

In June 12, 1775, at Machias, was fought what the historical novelist, James Fenimore Cooper, called the "Lexington of the Seas"—the first naval engagement between the American colonies and the British. Captain Jeremiah O'Brien, whose grave has become a patriotic shrine and for whom a new U. S. destroyer has been named, was in command of the Colonial fleet. The British commander died at Burnham Tavern in the town, where the wounded were cared for and the old structure is now a public memorial to an heroic deed. It was in connection with this event that Hannah Wesely Baileyville, Baring, Beddington, Cherryfield, Millbridge, Columbia, Cutler, Danforth, Harrington, Jonesport, Robbinston, Princeton, Topsham and Vanceboro also have their individual vacational attractions coupled with the charm of historical backgrounds.

Penobscot County

By BILL WORCESTER

Penobscot County, with the city of Bangor as its focal point, serves as a grandly equipped metropolitan general store to several great vacation regions, besides its own.

North of Bangor are the vast and rich potato lands, hunting grounds, and fishing waters of Aroostook County. To the east lies Washington County, famed for its excellent hunting and fishing qualities, as well as being a noted center for vegetable and berry canning and commercial fisheries. Also a short distance east of Bangor is Lucerne-in-Maine, so picturesque it looms on the landscape like a giant painting; and Bar Harbor, known as a fashionable sea resort to travellers throughout the world.

In the great sections of broad farm and timber lands, jutting out of Bangor in all directions are notable trout and salmon waters which cause sportsmen to travel from the other side of the country each year for a try at some of the most elusive game fish in the world.

Each year, there is a trek, almost religious in scope and purpose, to the Shin Pond Region near the town of Patten, where prize catches are the rule rather than the exception.

In Bangor itself there are attractions of world-wide interest. For instance, there isn't a fisherman this side of Tibet who has not heard of the city's salmon pool where some of the largest and most delicious salmon in the country are caught each year.

Through this city, too, runs one of the great and beautiful rivers of the world—the Penobscot. No other New England river, and few in the world, can match its gorgeous flow to the sea.

Newport, on the Western border of Penobscot County, is on the shores of Sebasticook Lake with excellent bass fishing. The town is important in the woolen industry and serves as a gateway through Corinna and Dexter, which has large tool manufacturing shops and woolen mills, to the Moosehead Country.

East of Bangor the town of Orono is the site of the University of Maine, a thoroughly modern educational institution with a beautiful campus and exceptionally attractive buildings.

The City of Old Town while given over largely to manufacturing is of interest to the visitor through its reservation of the remnants of the Penobscot Tribe of Abenaki Indians, the largest reservation in the New England States, situated on a nearby island connected by a bridge with the mainland. These dusky Americans still preserve many of their early traditions and customs and are of much interest to people engaged in the study of Indian lore, and language.

In that portion of Old Town known as Stillwater is a “double-barrelled” covered bridge, a hundred years old, with two roadways for north and south traffic, separated by trusses and believed to be the last “double-barrel” bridge in this state.

North of Old Town the towns of Milford, Costigan, Greenbush, Olamon, Enfield, and Lincoln lead to many fishing waters and big game sections.

North of East Enfield one reaches South Branch Lake at Seboeis, regarded by many as producing some of the largest small-mouth black bass in the State and also offering satisfactory river and stream as well as lake fishing for those hard biting, never-say-die fighters of the finny tribe.

At Lincoln a highway runs to Vanceboro on the border of the Province of New Brunswick, through Lee, Springfield, Carroll and Topsheld and crossed by many streams and bordering lakes of more than passing interest to the angler and with inspiring scenic beauty along the way.

To reach Sysladobsis Lake, (usually called Lower Dobsis) one leaves the main highway at Springfield and motors south over a good secondary road to the shores of the lake. It is the center of a wild lake country, parts of which will be found in three counties making possible canoeing trips of unusual interest with salmon, trout, togue and pickerel fishing and fine camping places.

Winn and Mattawamkeag are gateways to some of the best bass and trout fishing waterways in the State. At Mattawamkeag a divergent highway extends to the lumber, pulp and paper manufacturing towns of East Millinocket and Millinocket, where are located the big mills of the Great Northern Paper Company. These towns are also the gateways to Norcross, departure point for Twin Pemadumcook, Nahmakanta, Jo Mary and Millinocket lakes of the West Branch Chain while the East Branch of the Penobscot River is reached through Grindstone and Stacyville. The Millinocket highway also extends into the Katahdin Country, crossing the lower end of Baxter State Park and continuing along the borders of Sourdnahunk Stream to connect with the highway which runs to Greenville at the foot of Moosehead Lake.

In Bangor and other cities and towns are Chambers of Commerce and other civic bodies always ready to serve you. It can be truthfully said that, in its own unobtrusive way, Penobscot County is a charming spot to spend a vacation.

In Aroostook County lies a million acres of fertile well watered farmland which in summer becomes New England's largest flower garden with thousands of acres of vari-colored potato blossoms and seas of white, red and crimson clover.

Farmlands, with fine homes and great barns where rolling hilltops present some of the finest panoramic scenery in America. All in a frame of surrounding woodlands with sparkling lakes and rushing rivers and streams where fish and game in season can be had for the taking — four million acres in all.

That's Aroostook — The Garden of Maine — and it can't be duplicated anywhere!

An annual potato festival is held during the height of the potato blossom season, which is at its best from July 20th through the first week of August in an average year. The fame of this celebration is spreading rapidly and yearly attracts more and more visitors from other sections of the country.

Aroostook has something to offer on every phase of outdoor activities. To the fisherman it offers peerless trout and landlocked salmon fishing as well as small mouth bass, pickerel, and togue or lake trout. In the southern part of the county Mattawamkeag and Pleasant Lakes are best known for their pickerel, small mouth bass, and white perch . . one of the most excellent of pan fish. Easily reached from either Houlton or Island Falls, this section provides excellent accommodations both near and at the lake shores.

Within easy driving distance of either Presque Isle, Caribou or Fort Fairfield, the waters and tributary brooks and streams of the Aroostook River, the Fish River chain of lakes, the Allagash and the Upper Saint John River give access to some of Maine's best trout and landlocked salmon fishing. Well equipped sporting camps have headquarters at Ashland and Oxbow for Machias and Aroostook River fishing territory. Clayton Lake, Rowe Lake, and many other inland waters and hunting territories are reached from this section. The Fish River chain of lakes is particularly favored for landlocked salmon. Eight big lakes make up the chain, Long, Mud, Cross, Square, Eagle, Big Fish, Portage, and St. Froid. There are nearly one hundred miles of waterways in this system including the thoroughfares which are the connecting links from lake to lake. They provide a setting which especially appeals to the devotee of canoeing and camping.

Speaking generally Nelson Benedict in the column "Hunting and Fishing" remarks: "This Country is a veritable paradise for the gunner and angler. Grouse galore populate the nearby woodlands. Deer raid the gardens back of the cabins nightly. Miles of fine trout... streams cascade into the lakes."—(Newark, New Jersey Ledger).

Those interested in geology may secure many fine specimens of fossil-bearing rocks; many outcroppings of Devonian sandstone and limestone of Silurian origin are to be found. The world-famous Nylander Museum at Caribou contains many specimens of interest to the collector. Mr. Olaf Nylander, who actively directs the museum, has spent a lifetime in this study. His collection of crinoid fossils is outstanding. Museums in America and abroad have for years tried to purchase specimens, erupted eons ago, locally used for road surfacing.

To the traveler who likes to add a historic tang to his touring, Aroostook offers many items, for it is the place of the famous northern boundary dispute between Canada and the United States which resulted in the Aroostook War; The Blockhouse at Fort Kent is particularly well preserved, and Houlton and Fort Fairfield also mark places where garrisons were sustained during this bloodless conflict, which ended in the Webster-Ashburton Treaty of 1842.

Towns such as Monticello, Bridgewater, Mars Hill and Blaine, Westfield, Easton, Maple Grove, Fort Fairfield, Limestone, Washburn, Mapleton, Keegan and those bearing Swedish names of New Sweden, Jemtland, Stockholm and French names of Guerette, Ouellette, St. Agatha and Madawaska have their own distinctive charms and vacation invitation.

The resorts advertised in this booklet are dependable and are recommended by the Maine Publicity Bureau. You may depend on them for strictly first-class service at fair prices. When writing those who advertise in this book, it will be a favor to us if you will say that you have seen their advertisement in "Maine Invites You," published by the Maine Publicity Bureau. Each advertiser is a subscribing member of the Maine Publicity Bureau and interested to give your request special consideration.

Train or Bus is the Wisest Way to Travel to and from Maine

You can't buy a tire for the family automobile if you have trouble on the road anyway. Most Resort Proprietors have made plans to meet you at the Nearest Rail or Bus Station. You better check with them before arrival.

You'll find that you can get pretty near your favorite vacation spot with available train service. We expect to operate overnight Pullman cars from New York and Boston, plus the deluxe all-coach daylight train The "East Wind" from Washington, Philadelphia and New York.

We'll be glad to send you TRAIN or BUS schedules and furnish you with complete ticket costs.

Write to the Passenger Traffic Department, Boston, Mass. or Portland, Me.

(But make your Berth and Seat reservations EARLY and avoid disappointment)

Greetings from . . .

NORTHERN MAINE

From northern Maine's great inland lakes and streams, from her forest trails and mountain passes, a cordial invitation is extended to the sportsmen of the nation to visit this vacation-land, to rest or to play. In northern Maine, sportsmen will find the ideal sportland with every facility for the full enjoyment of their favorite sport; whether it be fishing, hunting, hiking, canoeing or golfing they can be assured of a friendly, homelike hospitality, reigning over all.

Northern Maine's hostelries are famed for their ideal settings, for their fine appointments and for a quality of hospitality that never fails to make a deep and lasting impression on all who come as guests. On the pine scented breezes from the forests that surround these hostelries is wafted a welcome to sportsmen from everywhere to visit northern Maine.

Travel by RAIL . . .

You'll find that travel by rail to this great sportland will be speedier, safer, more comfortable, more convenient and more economical than any other mode of travel. For specific information address J. Fred Smith, General Passenger Agent, Bangor and Aroostook Railroad, Bangor, Maine.
