Raise For Municipal Employees And Two More Firemen Are Listed In Proposed 1960 Rockland Budget

A raise for city employees appears to be in the offing as City Manager Charles Haynes and the City Council prepare the annual municipal operating budget. Coupled with it is the possibility of the employing of two more men in the Fire Department and one in the Police Department.

The increase sought by city employees in all departments is 10 per cent across the board. The Council has not yet reached a decision. Indications are that while an increase may be allowed to bring local wage and salary rates nearer in line with other communities in Maine of like size, it may not reach the figure asked.

The 10 per cent increase and the hiring of two firemen and one policeman would add an estimated $33,000 to the annual budget.

Other increases now under discussion include $5,000 for roads and streets; $3,000 for snow removal; $1,000 for care of trees in Dutch Elm disease control; $4,000 for an additional float at the Public Landing, plus a new ramp. The total, all charged to the Department of Public Works, is $13,700.

The building fund has a proposed increase of $3,900, but is offset in great part by the deletion of telephone accounts in other departments which had been previously charged to each department.

The Welfare Department is the lone department to seek a drop in its budget. Due to the closing of the City Farm, which had operated 105 years, Welfare is asking $2,500 less for the coming year.

The municipal operating budget, which cares for all city services other than schools, was $482,458 this year. Revenue from several sources brought the actual cost to the taxpayer down to $380,558. The school budget, which is submitted in April and is not considered at this time, was $470,338 to make a total for tax purposes of $851,196.

The tax rate was 56 mills.

Should all requests be allowed, the city operating budget could increase as much as $46,700.

Haynes noted, Friday, that all of the refunding bonds which plagued the city for a century are paid off, the last being a $13,000 item last year. All municipal bonds are now serial bonds which cannot be refunded, but must be met on the due date.

Under the current valuation the city has a legal permissible debt limit of $1,125,000. The actual bonded debt has been reduced in the years since the Council-Manager form of government was instituted to the present $82,000. Notes which paid for the new city building and its remodeling amount to $75,000 for a total city indebtedness of $158,000. This does not take into consideration the Rockland School District bonded debt for the North and South Schools and which is included in the school budget to be submitted in April.

Eight Candidates Competing In Two Contests Monday When Rockland Voters Cast Ballots In Three Wards

Gerald S. Grant

Raymond F. Cross

Frederick E. Tripp

Fred T. Spaulding

Charles H. McIntosh

Barbara M. Griffith

Walter R. Loker

Robert S. Chisholm

Rockland voters will use the new three ward system for the first time at a City election, Monday, to name directors for two and three-year terms on the board of directors of School Administrative District Five; two Councilmen; a trustee of the Rockland Port District; two trustees for the Rockland School District; and wardens and ward clerks for the three polling places. City Clerk Gerald U. Margeson said that the polls at the North School, Community Building and at the South School will be opened from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Contest appear for the two positions on the district's board of directors, which have a term of two years, and for the two Council seats. Five candidates, Fred T. Spaulding, Charles H. McIntosh, Barbara M. Griffith, Walter R. Loker and Dr. Robert S. Chisholm, are seeking the two directors' posts. Three aspirants, Gerald S. Grant, Raymond F. Cross and Frederick E. Tripp, are running for the two, three-year terms on the Council. Write-in votes will name two trustees of the Rockland School District, which handles the amortization of the building bonds for the North School and South School.

The Courier-Gazette will tabulate returns and make them available to the public by telephone or at the office.

The following are the names of the candidates as they will appear on the ballot:

For two directors of School District Five, with a tenure of two years each, which were created by the resignations of Harold Kaier and Sebastian Groder.

Fred T. Spaulding, 41, of 158 Talbot Avenue, is a public accountant who is married and has two children attending Rockland School. A graduate of Dorchester, Mass., High School, he studied accounting at Bentley and Bryant & Stratton Schools. Active in several PTA groups, Spaulding is a member of the Rockland Lions Club and is a former Merchant Marine officer. He was a candidate for one of the seven positions on the board of directors last year.

Charles H. McIntosh, 52 years old and proprietor of the Paramount Restaurant, was a former Rockland school board member, having served as its chairman three times. McIntosh, also an unsuccessful aspirant for one of the directorships in 1958, attended Rockland High School and was a patrolman in the city police department for several years. He was later operator of an ice establishment before entering the restaurant business. He is married and the father of four children.

Mrs. Barbara M. Griffith, 45, is the widow of Carl Griffith and resides at 58 Brewster Street. She is the auditor at the Sears Store in Rockland and has four children and several grandchildren. Affiliated with the Girl Scout movement for the better part of two decades, Mrs. Griffith served as commissioner for three and one half years. Other activities have included: Rubinstein Club, of which she is past president; president of the BPW; and secretary of the Rockland Festival Corporation. She was one of the 16 candidates last year for the board of directors.

Walter R. Loker, 39, of 43 Rankin Street, is the only new name for a place on the board. Head of the laboratory and x-ray department in Knox Hospital, Loker was educated in the Medfield, Mass., school system and studied three years in Boston University before entering the Army in 1944. He served for two and one half years in Alaska before he was discharged with the rank of technical sergeant. Loker was an x-ray and laboratory technician in the Farmington Hospital in Massachusetts before moving to Rockland in 1949. He is past president of the Maine State X-Ray Technicians Association; an officer in Aurora Lodge of Masons in Rockland, Scottish Rites; a 32nd degree mason and member of the Rockland Congregational Church; two PTA organizations and the Winslow-Holbrook-Merritt American Legion Post. He is married and the father of two children.

Dr. Robert S. Chisholm, who is active in several professional and civic bodies, has been a practicing dentist for the past several years. He is 37 years old and resides with his family at 35 Summer Street. An alumnus of Rockland High School, Holy Cross College in Worcester and the University of Maryland Dental School, Dr. Chisholm taught one year at Walton Junior High School in Auburn and tutored four summers in a boys' camp. He belongs to the Rockland Lions Club, the Lime-rock Council of the Knights of Columbus and the Maine and American Dental Associations. He failed to win one of the seven directorships last year which were allotted to the City of Rockland.

For two directors of School District Five, with terms of three years each are:

Irving H. McConchie, 36, is a commercial lobster fisherman who won one of the seven seats on the board last year. His term was decided by a lot at one year. Residing at 33 Samoset Road, he is married and their one daughter attends school in Rockland. McConchie received diplomas from Rockland High School and Springfield College with a major in physical education. He holds membership in the Kiwanis Club, Rockland Lodge of Masons and the Shrine.

C. Maxwell Ames, the chairman of the board of directors, had been on the former Rockland School Board. Residing at 17 Masonic Street, Ames, 43, is assistant cashier in the First National Bank of Rockland. A graduate of Rockland High School, he is active in the Rockland Lodge of Elks. He is married and has two children in the city schools.

For members of the City Council, two, three-year terms:

Gerald S. Grant, 44, who was elected at a special election 11 months ago to fill the unexpired term of Henry S. Marsh, is the owner and operator of a variety store which bears his name in the Rankin Block. He was educated in the public schools and business college in New Brunswick. Grant served the Lions Club in various capacities, King Lion of the Rockland group, zone chairman and district governor. He is past commander of the Claremont Commandery, a member of several

Robertson Fined $30 For Failing To Show License

Walter Robertson of Thomaston paid a $30 fine in Municipal Court, Friday morning, after he was found guilty of failure to produce his driver's license and registration upon command from Trooper George Massie. Judge Christy C. Adams, who found Robertson innocent of impersonating a State Police officer, last week, reprimanded him for his actions on the night of the offense.

Judge Adams stated that it was not the intention of the Legislature to give law enforcement agencies the right to demand to see a license and registration without adequate provisions for penalty in the event that the demand is not adhered to by the respondent.

He told the Thomaston man, a former civilian dispatcher with Troop D of the State Police barracks in Thomaston, for four years, that he was tempted to issue bench warrants against him for resisting arrest and assaulting a police officer, following the hearing in court, Nov. 24.

A motion for dismissal by demurrer was denied in the course of the proceedings. A demurrer is a legal pleading which asserts that all the facts are true but that no violation exists.

It was only upon the insistence of the complainant, Trooper George Massie, of "not hitting a man while he was down," Adams continued, that refrained him from that action. The judge noted that the trooper did not want to show any animosity toward Robertson and obtained the warrants which alleged the two milder offenses, impersonating an officer and failing to produce the license and registration.

Robertson was found innocent of the impersonation complaint, Nov. 27, when Adams declared that the mere display of a badge does not constitute the full meaning of the charge. Massie had contended on the witness stand that Robertson had said that he was a State Trooper, which the Thomaston man denied.

However, Robertson pleaded guilty to a similar complaint in Waldo County Municipal Court in Belfast and paid a $40 fine to Judge Hillard Buzzell. The Belfast incident happened several hours before Massie stopped him on Route 1 in Rockport, Nov. 22, and became involved in a hassle.

city election. E. Clifford Ladd, president, and Samuel W. Collins, clerk, have issued the following statement:

"Although the functions of Rockland School District have been transferred to the new School Administrative District Five, it is necessary that the existence of the old district be preserved until the bonds relating to North and South Schools are paid off.

"Two trustees of Rockland School District must be elected on December 7, although no candidates appear on the ballot. We urge voters to write in the names of Paul D. Merriam of 72 Mechanic Street and Irving H. McConchie of 35 Samoset Road for these positions. Merriam has been treasurer of the district for the past 12 years. McConchie is a director of District Five and his election would provide liaison between the two groups."

Sylvania Buys Plant From Waldoboro Group

The Lighting Division of Sylvania Electric Products Inc., following authorization of the company's board of directors, has arranged for purchase of the plant located on Friendship Street in Waldoboro according to an announcement made recently by H. F. Callahan, vice president and general manager of the Lighting Division. Sylvania Electric is a subsidiary of General Telephone and Electronics Corporation.

The 24,000 square foot one-story structure first built as a speculative venture during 1949-50 by the non-profit Waldoboro Realty Company has been occupied by Sylvania since November of 1951. During this eight-year period, the employment at the plant has grown from six to 360 employees. Currently operations require two regular shifts and one partial shift. The total annual payroll of the Waldoboro plant during 1959 was approximately $1,250,000.

Among the products manufactured there are fluorescent starters, tungsten filaments, glass enclosed circuit breakers, and coils of approximately 40 different categories with as many as 280 different types of coils being made during a typical month.

Said Callahan in announcing the agreement, "We were gratified to learn of the decision of the Sylvania board of directors to purchase the Waldoboro plant. We have looked with favor on the high performance record of the Waldoboro operation. In addition your town has made us feel warmly welcome, and we are privileged to be counted among your neighbors."

Said Louis Martin, chairman of the Waldoboro Board of Selectmen, "The economic impact on Waldoboro and the surrounding region of the continuing operation of Sylvania's activity here has been an important factor in our area's growth and stability. Not only are the direct benefits of a growing employment level apparent, but the existence of an operation of this size in our community lends strength and value to our future plans."

Said A. A. Weeks, Waldoboro plant manager, "I feel most fortunate to have been connected with the Waldoboro operation since its inception and have watched with satisfaction its fine growth. I know all the employees along with me are very grateful for the vote of confidence that Sylvania's board has given us in purchasing this building."

Present during the informal purchase-sale agreement were James Pelletier, director of Industrial Development, State of Maine; Maynard D. Gentner, president, Waldoboro Realty Co.; Henry F. Callahan, vice president and general manager, Lighting Division, Sylvania Electric Products Inc.; and A. A. Weeks, plant manager, Waldoboro plant.

SUPPLEMENTARY UNEMPLOYMENT FUND FOR CEMENT WORKERS AWAITS RULING FROM MESC ON LEGALITY

Members of the local of the United Cement, Lime & Gypsum Union, AFL-CIO, at the Dragon Cement Company in Thomaston, are waiting for a ruling from the Maine Employment Security Commission in Augusta in regard to a new provision in their contract calling for the creation of a company unemployment fund.

The provision, which was inserted into the new contract when it was signed in September, calls for money to be given to employees of the plant who are laid off at certain times of the year due to a reduction in the production.

the firm, said, Friday, that the idea for this fund is now for the industry, with other plants having this agreement with the union, elsewhere in the country. He added that management is handling the question from the Chicago headquarters of the American-Marietta Company which controls Dragon Cement.

Earl Benjamin, representative of the union, asserted, Friday, that Maine stands with Virginia as the only States in the Union who have restrictions which make this provision inoperative. An answer from the MESC on the legality of the provision is expected sometime next week.

IT'S YOUR CASH THEY SPEND — YOUR SCHOOLS THEY DIRECT

Monday is the day during which the citizens of the City of Rockland select those persons who will spend their tax money and determine the path of their municipal and school affairs the coming year. It is election day.

The selection of municipal and school officers should not be taken lightly. Most certainly it should not be left to only a few voters. There are over 3600 registered voters in the community who have every right — it actually amounts to an obligation — to express themselves in the polling booth. The average vote in a city election the past decade has been between 800 and 900. There has been a low of just under 400 and a high of 1200, plus. The highest vote only represented one-third of the voters, let alone anything approaching a majority expression.

The excuse of hard to reach polling places with difficult entrances and other inconveniences is no longer valid. The polling places under the new three ward pattern all afford easy entrance and modern buildings in which to vote. Ward 1 will vote at North School. Ward 2 voters will go to the Limerock Street entrance of Community Building and Ward 3 to the South School.

Please remember, you will be selecting the administrators of a $17,000,000 corporation which is the City of Rockland. If it was all your cash you would be on hand to help pick them — very carefully. The truth is, a part of it is yours.

AN INDUSTRIAL FILM IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

The Safety Division of Central Maine Power Company has a motion picture which should be shown widely in the interest of public safety. The color film, titled "Rescue Breathing", pictures and explains in detail the method of mouth to mouth resuscitation. Prepared by professionals in the industrial movie field with the actors being medical men and women, the film shows how any person familiar with the basic steps shown, and the breath from their own lungs can save human life in emergencies. Revival of persons unconscious from drowning, electrical shock, carbon monoxide poisoning and other causes are dramatically shown. The film was shown Monday evening to the Kiwanis Club and is available for showing to other clubs and to school groups. It may be obtained, together with a speaker from the Safety Division, by contacting any of the local offices of the power company or the Safety Division office at Augusta.

Maine Extension Membership Shows Increase of 600

Membership in the County Extension Associations of Maine is running nearly 600 ahead of last year at this same time. Maine now has 12,740 Extension members.

Richard C. Dolloff, secretary of the Maine Extension Association and county agent leader for the Maine Extension Service, reported today an increase of 597 members.

This is the increase in membership at the close of the annual meetings this year over that of a year ago. However, Maine needs 4,594 more members to equal last year's seasonal total reached on June 30.

Nine counties have exceeded their annual meeting membership of a year ago, Dolloff said. These County Extension Associations are: Washington, 228; Somerset, 185; Hancock, 175; York, 131; Penobscot, 109; Aroostook, 69; Cumberland, 66; Knox-Lincoln, 38; and Oxford, 33.

County Extension Associations with the largest total enrollments to date are: Hancock, 1,168; Aroostook, 1,113; Cumberland, 1,035; York, 1,014; Androscoggin-Sagadahoc, 1,009; Oxford, 1,000; Penobscot, 985; Somerset, 949; Knox-Lincoln, 934; and Waldo, 933.

The Extension Association membership total of 12,740 includes 4,890 men and 7,850 women. Also, it's composed of 10,984 members who have renewed and 1,756 new members, said Dolloff.

Dolloff urged all 1959 Extension Association members to renew their memberships for 1960. He also invited all Maine men and women not now members to join the Extension Association. This way they can help support Extension work in agriculture, homemaking, 4-H clubs, and allied fields. Interested persons should get in touch with local Extension Association solicitors or with the nearest County Extension Association office.

Safety Is Best Insurance Says Maine Council

"Insure your holiday against a traffic accident!"

This was the advice of the State Police as they warn motorists and pedestrians of the special dangers of the holiday season.

How do we take out this insurance?

"By observing the three C's of safety," the police tell us, "Caution, Courtesy, and Common Sense. The premiums are paid in constant watchfulness, and the dividends are collected in the form of freedom from pain and tragedy."

The enforcement group urged all drivers to redouble their caution to fit the added dangers of the Christmas — New Year holiday season, emphasizing that courtesy behind the wheel is a tremendous factor in the prevention of accidents.

"Give other drivers and pedestrians more than an even break," they urged. "If every driver would follow this rule, everyone, including himself, would benefit."

Speaking especially to pedestrians, they pointed out that this coming holiday period is particularly dangerous for those who walk in traffic.

"All of us are going to be pedestrians as we go about the business of Christmas shopping," they continued. "Here's how we can make each step a safety step: First, Never assume that the driver will look out for us. Too many victims discover too late that the driver was assuming that the pedestrian would observe all traffic laws and that he would look out for himself. Secondly, use extra care to offset more hours of darkness. Much of our shopping is done when the light is fading or in darkness. Under such conditions, it is harder for the motorist to see us."

"Another important pedestrian pointer is extra care in watching for drinking drivers. Too many drivers fail to remember that drink and driving form a fatal combination. Christmas spirits have caused many tragedies, and many pedestrians have become innocent victims of this highway menace."

"If pedestrians will keep these things in mind and if they, and all drivers, will practice the three C's of safety, they will purchase real holiday insurance."

"Another important pedestrian pointer is extra care in watching for drinking drivers. Too many drivers fail to remember that drink and driving form a fatal combination. Christmas spirits have caused many tragedies, and many pedestrians have become innocent victims of this highway menace."

Muskie Says Intellectual Development Vital

Senator Edmund S. Muskie stressed, Thursday evening, at Meenahga Grange in Waldoboro that the development of the human mind is the most important advantage the free world can have over the Communist countries. The supper and rally, under the auspices of the Lincoln County Democratic Committee, had the three top State Democratic leaders as guests. Senator Muskie, Governor Clinton A. Clauson and Representative Frank Coffin.

The junior Senator from Maine briefly touched upon the Passamaquoddy Project which is presently under study by the government, and the political rejuvenation of the Democratic Party in the State since 1954 when he won his first term as Governor.

Muskie briefly told of his experiences behind the Iron Curtain recently where he had a chance to view the economic advancement and the great strides in science which Russia has made. He noted that in most every instance, they have either matched us in the rate of production or achievement or have surpassed us.

He urged that the one thing, the development of the human mind, which this country can still hold as superior over Russia, has not been given serious thought in this country. He asserted that the sooner this country awakens to the importance of education, the better we will be able to meet the challenge of today and tomorrow.

Speaking on the results of the study of the Passamaquoddy Project, Muskie expected that a formal recommendation by the joint international commission will be delivered to both governments concerned sometime after the first of the year. He reiterated the fact that the project will prove feasible for only the United States in the terms of cost ratio translated into the returns outweighing construction. Muskie lauded Governor Clauson for appointing a committee of Maine citizens to keep abreast of the project's latest developments.

He explained that new birth in the State Democratic Party in 1954 was attributed to the "economic and political stability" which the candidates felt and were stimulated by to campaign for office.

Governor Clauson urged the establishment of a strong two party system which would provide a system of checks and balances. He praised the party's innovation of a State Issues Conference where the feelings of the people are heard and then adopted into the platform for the State election.

Clauson added the party should use as food for thought the goal of "good government for all the people in the State of Maine."

Representative Coffin compared the system of government in Western Europe with our own, particularly in sparsely populated States such as Maine.

In Europe, party policy is determined at the top, he said, while in States like Maine, the workers on the local and county level tend to exert a strong influence on the way the party develops, operates and grows.

Coffin remarked that counties like Lincoln County cannot look back on past success but look ahead to build for the future.

That's Where the Money Goes

Close behind the vending machine as a major cause for Americans using more coins than ever before may be the increasing use of state sales taxes, says Tax Foundation, Inc. It points out, for example, that at the end of June, 1958, the United States had $91 million worth more of coins in stock than it did at the beginning of that fiscal year. During the year, United States mints issued for circulation 1.8 billion domestic coins with a face value of $93 million. One cent pieces, (1.3 billion of them were shipped for circulation), were in greatest demand that year, comprising 72 per cent of the six coin denominations issued. Of the total shipped, nearly 13 per cent was dimes.

Where - and why - many of these coins went, is demonstrated by figures showing that total state collections from all sales and gross receipts' taxes rose from $4,265 million in 1949 (in 48 states), to $9,289 million in 1959 (in 49 states). This was an increase of $4,924 million, or 112.8 per cent, the Foundation said.

In the latest year, these collections were 58.7 per cent of all state tax collections, amounting to $15,831 million.

The figures include general sales tax collections, estimated at $3,694 million for 33 states on June 30th (1959) as compared with $1,609 million for 27 states on June 30, 1949.

One of the biggest items in the list of selective taxes, motor vehicle fuel, went up 124 per cent in the 11 years, 1949-59, or from $1,861 million to an estimated $3,046 million. In the same period, selective sales taxes on alcoholic beverages increased 41 per cent, or from $695 million to an estimated $999 million, while selective sales taxes on tobacco products increased 76 per cent, or from $388 million to an estimated $680 million.

Smallest gainer in the 11 year span were admissions taxes. They increased nearly seven per cent, or from $15 million to $16 million.

The only kind of happiness worth while comes from doing things that are worth while.

Veterans Urged To Review GI Term Insurance

Many of the 3,218,000 World War II veterans who hold term GI life insurance may find themselves at "the point of no return" unless they plan their insurance futures now. That's the word of caution sounded by M. L. Stoddard, manager of the Veterans Administration Center, Togus.

He identified the veterans as those who expect life-time protection from their term GI policies, ignoring the spiraling cost of term insurance as they grow older.

Term insurance affords maximum protection at minimum cost, during the years it is usually needed for a growing family. It is seldom suitable for protection in a policyholder's advanced age, Stoddard said.

As an example, he cited a veteran paying an annual gross premium, not counting dividends, of $102 on a $10,000 term policy at age 40. The gross premium at age 65 will have jumped to $476.40 annually — and to $741.60 at age 70.

The way out is conversion of all or part of the term policy to a

Methodist Women Hold Anniversary Bazaar

Tips On Selecting Christmas Trees

Select a Christmas tree early when the choice is wide. First, apply this freshness test before you buy:

Bounce the butt end on the ground. If needles shower down, says Dr. Rush P. Marshall, director of a tree research laboratory, the tree has begun to dry out. Next, tug at the needles at the end of the branch. If they pull out easily, dryness is also indicated.

Rub a finger over the butt end. If it's sticky, the tree is fresh. Spread wide the lower branches. If they're springy and bounce back, that's fine; they will hold the weight of ornaments. Spread out, lower branches should measure half the height of a tree, and permanent type plan, where premium rates remain the same from year to year.

In addition, permanent insurance has a cash surrender, extended insurance, paid up insurance, and loan value. Term insurance has none of these.

But, warned Stoddard, veterans are urged not to reduce the total face amount of their insurance in order to meet the initially higher costs of a permanent type GI policy.

Further information may be obtained at the nearest VA office.

the stump of the tree should be 6 to 7 inches long.

Fragrant odor, good healthy color and full needles are other signs of freshness. Beware of a tree with patches of brown needles. This could be a fire hazard.

At home, cut an inch or two on a slant from the butt, then peel back the bark another inch. Now plunge the tree into a bucket of cool water and keep the pail filled until the tree is to be brought into the house. Water is the key to freshness.

Store the tree in a cool place: on a porch, in a garage, or at the rear of the house. Occasionally sprinkle the branches with water.

In many states Christmas trees are graded, inspected and tagged to identify species before they are marketed. In the East, balsam and Douglas fir and spruce are favorites, with pines becoming increasingly popular. In the mid-south, long-needled pines are preferred. In the West, firs and cypresses are the choice.

This, say experts, is an easy way to distinguish them: Needles of fir are 4-sided, soft to the touch and blunt. Spruce needles are usually stiff, sharply pointed. Pine needles are from 2 to 5 inches long, supple and attached to twig in bundles of 2 to 5.

Firs retain their needles two to three weeks indoors. Norway spruce sheds their needles much sooner in a heated room.

Middies To Leave School To Attend Special Classes

Thirty-six members of the senior class at the Maine Maritime Academy will attend "schools away school" the week of Dec. 14 through 18 in New York City.

Thirteen men will attend the U. S. Maritime Administration's Radar School, located in lower Manhattan. This school, opened in 1957, was set up by Coast Guard specifications for the instruction of deck officers in the proper use of radar including observing and plotting.

The course teaches the officers how to plot a ship's movement on either a reflection plotter or a maneuvering board using a vector diagram or speed triangle to find another vessel's true course, speed and the closest point of approach.

LIKE A MOUNTAIN NAMED FOR YOU?

Not one of these, certainly! They're here today, gone tomorrow. We'd gladly lend our names to a timeless peak like Everest — not to a heap of shifting sands rolling before the desert wind.

Of course, we have to identify ourselves with many a transitory idea and institution. We are busy most of our days just trying to keep up with this ever-changing world . . .

But our deeper self gropes for the Eternal! God understands this yearning. He breathed it into our souls.

A voice crying in the wilderness . . . across the shifting sands . . . of the TRUTH and LIFE that are ETERNAL.

And God answers it: In Christ! In Scripture! In the voice of a neighbor inviting you and your family to Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

 The speaker for the weekly meeting of the Camden Lions Club was Lion Parker Laite, who has been away working as second and third mate for the American Export Lines. He spoke of his adventures and work on the various vessels which ply from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and other east coast ports to Greece, Turkey, North African ports, and Spain. Lion Parker advised the club that a majority of the cargo originating from the states was give-away material to these European and North African countries.

In addition to the regular song period led by Lion Robert Laite the club was entertained by the "Short Tixet Singers", consisting of Lions Lester Gross, Kip Burkett, Rodney Boynton, Sterling Morris, Robert Laite and Parker Laite.

A new Lions project is being worked out and will soon be announced to the public.

Farmers Reminded To Winterize
 All Equipment

Maine farmers have found that it pays dividends in safety and efficiency to winterize their farm equipment, machinery, buildings, and vehicles.

That's the word today from Mardis R. Warner, Extension Service agricultural engineer, University of Maine. Warner is also vice chairman of the Maine Farm and Home Safety Council.

Winter has arrived in Maine. Farm machinery is best stored under cover and out of the way of snow removal operations. Maine tractors have been winterized some months ago. Electric tank heaters are well grounded and fuel tank heaters are in good repair.

Freezing of exposed pipes is not only inconvenient and expensive, but it's downright dangerous, said Warner. Frozen pipes may mean that it's difficult to find water should a fire break out. Instead of having to thaw your pipes, protect them from freezing, he added.

Farm autos and trucks need winterizing, too, along with the operator's driving techniques. Warner suggested getting the feel of the road in order to avoid sliding or spinning of your wheels. Adjust your speed to road and weather conditions.

It pays to keep the windshield and windows clear. Good ventilation of the car or truck will keep the inside from fogging.

Smart drivers have good tires and tire chains. Even with snow tires or chains, it's important to drive more slowly in snow or ice.

Warner pointed out that winter driving requires following the car ahead at a safe distance. Keeping well back of the car ahead gives you plenty of room to stop. It takes three to 12 times as far to stop on snow and ice as it does on dry days.

Mrs. Gardner Lawson of Mt. Desert, and Miss Norma Graves of Rockland; two sons, Jonathan Graves of Portland and Robert Graves of Rockland; one brother, Roland Graves of Plymouth, Conn.; 14 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. from the Burpee Funeral Home with Rev. Merle S. Conant officiating. Interment will be in Seaview Cemetery.

People who say just what they think have lots of explaining to do.

SENATOR SMITH TO SEEK MOVE TO SPEED NEGOTIATIONS WITH CANADA ON QUODDY PROJECT

Senator Margaret Chase Smith revealed today that, after study of the report on the overall survey of the proposed Passamaquoddy Tidal Power project - the survey made in pursuance of her own Smith Act enacted in January 1956 as Public Law 401 - she would propose that the Maine Congressional Delegation introduce in the coming session of Congress a concurrent resolution requesting President Eisenhower to cause negotiations to be commenced at the earliest practicable date with the Dominion of Canada with a view to entering into a treaty or other international agreement under which the Passamaquoddy Tidal Power project may proceed in accordance with the findings and recommendations of the International Joint Commission.

She also revealed that she had sent copies of the draft of her proposed Quoddy resolution to the other four members of the Maine Congressional Delegation asking for their consideration of it for introduction by the entire Maine Congressional Delegation and stating that it would be brought up for discussion at the first delegation meeting the morning of January 6, 1960, the opening day of the congressional session.

Senator Smith said she had decided upon the resolution after conferring with the office of the Legislative Counsel of the United States Senate. At her request, that office has made a study of the overall survey report and recommended the resolution. Attached is a copy of the draft of the proposed concurrent resolution and a legal memorandum prepared by the office of the Legislative Counsel of the United States Senate stating why the proposed concurrent resolution is the appropriate congressional action at this time.

The leadership of Senator Smith on Quoddy is long and frequent. She introduced the first Quoddy bill on March 11, 1948, to authorize the construction of the project on an international basis. She got Congress in 1949 to appropriate the funds necessary for the preliminary survey which established the physical feasibility of the proposed project. It was her bill, S. J. Res. 12, the Smith Act, which obtained the three year overall survey that recently concluded that the project was economically feasible.

On January 10, 1955, Senator Smith again reintroduced S. J. Res. 12 to authorize the overall survey. And again on June 14, 1955, she was able to get the Senate to pass the legislation. It was then sent to the House for action. But again in 1955 the House failed to take any action on the legislation.

With the House having failed twice to take action on the Senate

And repeatedly it was Senator Smith who obtained by Senate action the necessary money for the overall survey after the House had refused to appropriate any money in 1956 and not enough money in 1957. The following is a resume of the 12 year history of Senator Smith's efforts on Quoddy.

Margaret Chase Smith on Quoddy
On March 11, 1948, Representative Margaret Chase Smith introduced H. R. 821, to establish the Passamaquoddy power project on an international basis for the development and use of tidal energy in the waters of Passamaquoddy Bay for the production of electrical power and proposing an authorization of $100,000,000.

On April 9, 1948, the Chairman of the American Section of the International Joint Commission expressed the opinion that action on the matter should go through the International Joint Commission since it had jurisdiction over such an international matter.

On January 5, 1949, Senator Margaret Chase Smith reintroduced her authorization bill, (S. 233). However, the Maine Congressional Delegation at that time then decided to proceed through the International Joint Commission.

In June 1949, together with former Senator Owen Brewster, Senator Smith got the Senate to appropriate $30,000 for the preliminary survey, which later found that the proposed project was physically feasible.

In January 1951, Senator Smith introduced a joint resolution (S. J. Res. 18) to authorize the overall survey.

In January 1953, Senator Smith introduced S. J. Res. 12 to authorize the overall survey. She was able to get the Senate to pass the legislation - but her Senate bill died in the House of Representatives when the House failed to act on the legislation.

On January 10, 1955, Senator Smith again reintroduced S. J. Res. 12 to authorize the overall survey. And again on June 14, 1955, she was able to get the Senate to pass the legislation. It was then sent to the House for action. But again in 1955 the House failed to take any action on the legislation.

And repeatedly it was Senator Smith who obtained by Senate action the necessary money for the overall survey after the House had refused to appropriate any money in 1956 and not enough money in 1957. The following is a resume of the 12 year history of Senator Smith's efforts on Quoddy.

Margaret Chase Smith on Quoddy
On March 11, 1948, Representative Margaret Chase Smith introduced H. R. 821, to establish the Passamaquoddy power project on an international basis for the development and use of tidal energy in the waters of Passamaquoddy Bay for the production of electrical power and proposing an authorization of $100,000,000.

On April 9, 1948, the Chairman of the American Section of the International Joint Commission expressed the opinion that action on the matter should go through the International Joint Commission since it had jurisdiction over such an international matter.

On January 5, 1949, Senator Margaret Chase Smith reintroduced her authorization bill, (S. 233). However, the Maine Congressional Delegation at that time then decided to proceed through the International Joint Commission.

In June 1949, together with former Senator Owen Brewster, Senator Smith got the Senate to appropriate $30,000 for the preliminary survey, which later found that the proposed project was physically feasible.

In January 1951, Senator Smith introduced a joint resolution (S. J. Res. 18) to authorize the overall survey.

passed legislation of Senator Smith's, on November 22, 1955, she started a personal campaign to get a majority of the 12 member House Rules Committee to approve her Senate passed legislation. Her personal appeal to the individual members of the committee was successful as she obtained the personal commitment of a majority of that committee to vote for her Senate passed legislation. Seven members of the committee (four Republicans and three Democrats) made personal commitments to her. Then on January 19, 1956, the House finally passed the Smith Bill for Quoddy. The President then on January 31, 1956, signed the bill and it became the Smith Act on that date and Public Law 401 of the 84th Congress authorizing the overall Quoddy survey.

But the fight had not been won. Instead it had just started since it was necessary to get the funds to pay for the overall survey. And again it was Senator Smith who led the way.

In 1956 the House failed to appropriate any money for the authorized overall survey. The appropriations bill then went to the Senate and Senator Smith again saved the day by getting the Senate Appropriations Committee and then the Senate to appropriate $935,000 for the survey work in fiscal year 1957. As a Senate conferee on the bill, she then got the House to agree to the Senate appropriation for Quoddy.

In 1957 there was trouble again with the House as it cut the Quoddy Survey funds by over $400,000 - or over one-third of the amount needed for fiscal year 1958. And again it was Senator Smith who came to the rescue of Quoddy. For she got the Senate Appropriations Committee and then the Senate to restore the $400,000 that the House had cut out.

In 1958 Senator Smith got the Senate to appropriate the final increment of money necessary for the completion of the overall survey.

Concurrent Resolution
Whereas by Public Law 401, Eighty-fourth Congress, the Congress directed the Secretary of State to arrange for a final survey by the International Joint Commission of the proposed Passamaquoddy tidal power project in the State of Maine and the Province of New Brunswick, Canada, to determine its economic feasibility and its probable contribution to the national economy and the national defense; and

Whereas the Secretary of State has reported to the Congress the results of such survey pursuant to said Public Law 401; and

Whereas such survey clearly establishes the economic feasibility of the project, and its importance to the economies of the United States and the Dominion of Canada, and to the national defense; and

Whereas the project considered in such survey and which is recommended differs from earlier proposals for a Passamaquoddy tidal power project in that it is an international two-pool project which permits production of continuous power, and includes a river hydroelectric auxiliary plant to augment the tidal plant; and

Whereas the survey demonstrates that this international power project could be undertaken without detriment to the fisheries of the region; and

Whereas since the need for, and the economic feasibility of this project, have been thoroughly explored and documented, and its vital contribution to the common defense clearly established, it is in the interest of this country and the Dominion of Canada to work out a mutually acceptable basis on which the construction of the project may proceed without further delay; and

Whereas because of the international character of the proposed project, no work or preparations for work thereon may properly be undertaken until such time as there has been concluded between the United States and the Dominion of Canada a treaty or other international agreement setting forth the rights and duties of the respective countries with respect to such project: Now therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President is requested to cause negotiations to be commenced at the earliest practicable date with the Dominion of Canada with a view to entering into a treaty or other international agreement under which the Passamaquoddy tidal power project may proceed in accordance with the findings and recommendations of the International Joint Commission.

Memorandum Concerning Project
The proposed Passamaquoddy tidal power project calls for the construction, operation and maintenance of certain works within the boundaries of the Dominion of Canada and of certain other works (including the actual turbines and other power generating equipment) within the boundaries of the United States.

The nature of the project is such that the entire works could only be operated as an integrated unit, because, among other reasons, the very functioning of the power generating facilities requires the closely coordinated opening and closing of certain locks to be located in Canada and of certain other locks to be located in the United States.

The Passamaquoddy project is distinguishable from the Saint Lawrence Seaway project where each of the two nations did proceed, to a considerable extent independently of each other, with works within its own boundaries which formed parts of a joint international project. In that project there were present special circumstances which do not obtain in the case of Quoddy, viz:

(1) The Canadian Government had already clearly and forcefully demonstrated its interest in participating in such project by first, entering into a treaty with the United States to provide for such project (which treaty never became effective because of lack of approval by Congress as required by its terms), and secondly, after the failure of such treaty, indicated its intention to undertake a similar project which was to be located exclusively in Canada;

(2) The International Joint Commission, which was established pursuant to treaty between the two nations, already had sufficient authority to enable the two countries to cooperate in carrying out the project; and

(3) The works undertaken by each of the two nations within its own boundaries would not necessarily have been without value even if the other nation did not undertake similar works on its side of the international boundary.

In the case of the Passamaquoddy project—

(1) Canada has demonstrated no such interest in participating in the project, nor is it likely to do so without being assured of some rights in or benefits from the electric power to be generated;

(2) The International Joint Commission does not have authority to provide for the disposition of the electric power to be generated by such project; and (3) the works to be constructed in one country would be completely valueless without the construction of necessary works in the other country.

Thus, the integrated nature as well as the international character of the Passamaquoddy project makes it unfeasible for the United States to proceed with the construction of works within its own boundaries until such time as the rights and duties of the two nations with respect to such project have been defined by a treaty or other international agreement for that purpose. Especially important and necessary would be the provision of such treaty or agreement which prescribes the rights of the two countries with respect to the electric power to be produced by such project; for without some such provision Canada would derive no rights or benefits from the project inasmuch as the power generating facilities would be located in the United States.

Since the negotiation of treaties in the United States is an executive function, it would appear that the only Congressional action which might be appropriately taken at this time to expedite the carrying out of the Passamaquoddy project would be a resolution requesting the President to enter into negotiations with Canada with a view to the conclusion, at the earliest possible date, of an appropriate treaty or other international agreement for the purpose of bringing this project to fruition.

Council To Boost Lamb and Wool Through Promotion

Lamb and wool produced in the United States will receive an added boost from promotion and advertising next year under a stepped up program by the American Sheep Producers' Council.

The council's board of directors, all sheep owners representing every part of the country, authorized the accelerated program in its recent semi-annual meeting in Denver. Purpose of the increase in promotion and advertising effort will be to boost returns to sheep producers on both lamb and wool.

The directors authorized the organization of a wool division in the ASPP headquarters to promote and advertise domestic wool and American made wool products.

Don Clyde of Heber City, Utah, president of the ASPP, said the council will co-operate and coordinate its activities in wool advertising and promotion with other wool agencies.

The council's current budget for wool is $974,000, and this figure may be increased slightly for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

For the lamb phase of the program, the directors called for an allied committee with representatives of all segments of the livestock and meat industry participating to discuss all problems of lamb production and marketing in an effort to bolster live market price for lamb. President Clyde said there is no doubt that the ASPP has done a good job of increasing consumer demand for lamb in all of the 21 promotion cities in which it operates, but that there are basic problems which need to be solved before greater success can be attained. He pointed out that the retail price of lamb has held high and steady, but this favorable margin has not been reflected to live prices.

The lamb promotion and advertising budget for the next fiscal year will be increased slightly from its current level of $1,371,000.

By Henry Teague

When one sees a truckload of hens going to market the chances that they are from 16 to 20 months of age. For the first six months of life a hen is nothing but expense. The cumulative total of raising a flock to laying age represents real money. For a flock of 5,000 birds the outlay can range anywhere from $7,500 to $10,000. With prices for eggs as low as they have been this year that total can go even higher.

A few years ago, one could plan on a new flock evening off at about 24 weeks. That means that at that age flocks were laying enough eggs to pay for daily feed. A 50 per cent rate of lay would generally do the trick. The extremely low price for small eggs this year has made the cost of raising pullets much greater than usual. In late spring it was possible that a flock laying as high as 80 per cent could not pay for feed.

This is a problem that poultrymen will probably have to face from now on, and it is really a serious one. Actually the time when pullets have reached a rate of lay that will pay for daily feed is not the time when costs of raising cease. This cost continues until the rate of lay is high enough to cover all farm expenses connected with the flock.

A decade ago the farmer raising pullets to laying age felt much more secure than today. Then the meat value of a pullet even at 16-18 weeks old often was higher than the cost of raising the bird to that point. Today the meat value of such a bird is only a small fraction of the cost of raising, so the farmer goes way out on a limb during the raising period. If the breeder flock was in good condition, the chicks strong and healthy on arrival at the farm, the chances of raising a good flock are fairly good.

There are many pitfalls along the way. Since many birds are brooded during the coldest part of the year there is always a chance of trouble with the brooding equipment. Vaccines do a very good job on the whole protecting the birds against Newcastle and bronchitis. But there are other disease problems as well as parasite problems that can creep in. Rats can kill young chicks by the hundreds. Some brooder houses

County Agent Reports On Trip To NEPPCO

Eggs at the Miller-Bushong Farm are picked up directly into plastic fillers on a carrier; washed, cooled, and cased without removing eggs from the filler. Eggs are washed at a rate of 15 cases an hour.

Last week, we promised you a discussion of the Miller and Bushong Farm in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, where Noah Gehman cordially showed us the operation.

This, we all felt, was the best operation we saw on this trip. The poultry house which we visited was 30 feet wide. The birds, leg-horns, were in at 1 1/2 square feet per bird. One half of the house was pits, the other half, longitudinally, was litter area. Pits were cleaned twice a year by a nearby dairy farmer.

There were four rows of automatic feeders to allow almost six inches of feeder space per bird. Gehman felt that four inches per bird was a minimum.

The automatic waterers, were directly over the feeders. In this way, spilled water does not go into the pits. Spilled water does not gum up the feeders, and the next bird picks up the wet feed. This farm, as most others, practices preventive medicine by keeping waterers in working condition at all times.

They allow 150 birds for each eight foot waterer.

The pits, used as roosts, run along the south side of the building which has a solid window area right down the length of the building. This means that the nests up down the dark side of the building and there are fewer floor eggs in the lighter pit area.

To obtain slots for fresh air intake, a six inch baffle board is run across the top of the windows. These are well flashed. Now, he can open the window an inch or two or more and still have a sloped system of intake — or he can open the windows all the way should he desire.

A 14 month period of laying is expected from the birds. The houses are run on a 15 month cycle. Most flocks in that area are run on a 12 month cycle. Gehman expects his birds to lay at the rate of 80% or more, on a hen housed basis, for at least four months. He wants them up to 60%, on a non day basis, when sold, with an average rate of lay of 70%.

He observed that farms all wire or flat floors dropped 10% in production as compared with other farms. Let's consider egg handling. This farm, as do many others, uses exclusive nest pads. All egg handling is done in 18 minutes per case as compared with 32 minutes for a basket method. How does he do it? Two rows of nests run down the middle of the litter area. A conveyor, on overhead tracks, runs in the alley between the nests. Eggs are picked from the nests and packed directly into plastic fillers on the conveyor. The eggs are washed in a machine with a capacity of 15 cases per hour without being removed from the plastic fillers. Still in the fillers, they are cooled for four hours. Then, plastic filler, rack and all are picked up and placed in a case.

This farm, as many we visited has daily pickup of eggs.

Now, I know some of you are saying — "We don't have daily pickups, we don't have plastic fillers — why is Gil Jaeger telling us how good this farm is?"

My answer is this — that with comparatively simple re-arranging of our pens — nests, waterers, feeders, etc. — and by use of simple devices such as the overhead track conveyor we can approximate much of the labor efficiency shown on this farm — and with a careful planning of our time, we can do much to approximate this efficiency.

This farm, of those we visited was to us the best managed; yet this farm had as little mechanical equipment as any.

Don't step off that curb until you know it is safe! The State Police point out that winter months are deadly ones for pedestrians. Be careful always when you must cross streets or walk in traffic. Don't depend upon the driver. He may not even see you.

It is a human failing to believe that, because one is in familiar surroundings, nothing tragic will happen to him. The fallacy of this thinking is borne out by the fact that the vast majority of pedestrian deaths occur near the home of the victims. The Maine Highway Safety Committee cautions us to watch for skidding cars and to be extra careful whenever we find it necessary to step into the street.

Motorists: don't skid yourself! You can get through this winter without a mishap, if you follow simple safety rules and drive with extra care. The Maine Highway Safety Committee offers these hot tips for cold weather driving:

1. Get the "feel" of the road.
2. Lengthen distance between cars.
3. Pump your brakes lightly for stopping.
4. Signal your intention to turn well in advance of the maneuver itself.
5. Use tire chains when conditions call for them.
6. Keep windshield and windows clear.
7. Keep a sharp lookout for pedestrians.

Depressions may come and depressions may go, but it never bothers the fellow who feathers his nest—with cash down.
