Crowding At St. George High Prompts Committee To Begin New Study Of Solutions To Problem

Several proposals were set forth by a special group of St. George citizens, Wednesday night, to derive at a solution to the crowded conditions at the high school. Superintendent of Schools Norman Moulton revealed. A committee of William Bicknell, Irving Mathews and Alfred Smalley, will report back to the group at 8 p. m., Feb. 3, with a set of costs and figures to accompany each of the proposals.

The suggestions, according to the superintendent, revolved around the shifting of the seventh and eighth grades out of the high school building, giving the space of two more rooms in the building to the growing student enrollment which is expected in the future. The present study body of both grades number 69.

The first proposal would be to utilize the now vacant Port Clyde Elementary School Building which can house the seventh and eighth grades. The grade school pupils have been transported from Port Clyde by bus to the new Tenants Harbor Elementary School for the past several years.

The second idea would add two more rooms onto the present Elementary School in Tenants Harbor to accommodate the two junior high school grades. Using existing facilities in the building would be out of the question, Moulton explained, since the grade school has also reached its saturation point in student enrollment.

The next suggestion would have a separate general purpose room built alongside the grade school. The fourth offer would be to remain status quo and begin to "water down" the existing curriculum in the high school to accommodate the larger classes.

Moulton added that this process, set forth in the last step, would eliminate many of the specialized and college preparatory courses which are presently offered in the school.

The people who met in the high school building Wednesday, Moulton added, represent the first action the town has taken since entry into School Administrative District Five was turned down at a recent special town meeting.

Forty-Year CMP Workers Are Honored

Almost 100 people gathered at the Rockland Masonic Temple, Wednesday night, to honor two retiring employees of the Central Maine Power Company, whose service dates back to the days of the old Rockland, Thomaston and Camden Street Railway. Earle D. MacWilliams worked for the RT&C and its successor for 39 and one-half years, first at the Glen Cove station and then at the sub-station on Park Street in Rockland. Harold A. Tolman served in numerous departments, starting as a motorman with the RT&C, going through his four decades until he finished in the line department. In the picture are Mr. and Mrs. MacWilliams at left; Mr. and Mrs. Tolman at right; and Donald Kilgour, district manager. The two retiring employees were presented with gifts. Guests at the dinner were several retired members of the CMP staff, Lucius Jones, Lucy Ball, Wilbur Strong and Clayton Clark. Two other CMP officials attended the session with Kilgour, George Brann and Malcolm Howard.

Storm Blamed For Two Accidents In Rockland Thursday

Storm conditions were blamed for two mid afternoon traffic mishaps reported to the Rockland Police Department Thursday. There were no injuries but considerable property damage.

A car driven by John Stanley of Pleasant Street, Thomaston, was parked on the left side of Main Street when it was struck by one, police said was operated by Joy Mazzeo, 16, of Sherer's Lane. She told police that the car she was following slowed and she skidded when she applied the brakes.

Damage to the Stanley car was placed at $300 and at $250 to the other car.

At about the same time, a collision occurred on Lake View Drive when a car, which police said was operated by Beverly L. Moody, was struck while making a left turn into a driveway by one, police said was operated by Mrs. Helen Taylor of Warren. Mrs. Taylor told police that poor visibility prevented her from seeing that the other car was turning as she started to pass.

The Taylor car was damaged to the extent of $200, while damage to the other amounted to $50, police said.

Thomaston Tax Books To Close After Saturday

Warren Voters To Be Faced With 20 Percent Higher Budget Of Some $136,569 At Annual Town Meeting

Increased costs of school operation and general administration plus a move to pay off the remaining town debt have added up to a recommended municipal budget of $136,569 which will face the voters of Warren at their annual meeting on March 7. The budget was recommended at a meeting of the town budget committee Tuesday night.

The total recommended budget is about the same as that of 1957. Cuts were made in 1958 and 1959. The recommended budget by titles:

SALARIES, $7,516. In 1957, the amount raised was $5,700. In 1958, $6,517 and in 1959, $6,995. The salaries covered are Town Manager, Clerical, Assessors, Moderator, Fish Warden, Common School Fund Secretary.

ADMINISTRATION, $3,000. In 1957, the appropriation was $2,630—1958, $2,715—1959, $2,650. This account covers all of the business operations of the town, such as operation of the office, audit and legal fees, printing and mailing of town reports, travel expense, Assessors and Selectmen's supplies, election expense and miscellaneous expense.

TOWN BUILDINGS, $2,730. In 1957 the amount was $3,850—1958, $2,430 and 1959, $2,400. This account covers the operation expense and repairs of the Town Hall, the Municipal Building, Town Garage and storage sheds.

FIRE DEPARTMENT, $4,000. In 1957, the amount raised was $3,000—1958, $4,000—1959, $4,000, and covers the operation of the department. By vote of the town meeting, any balance remaining in this fund at the end of the year goes into the Fire Equipment Fund.

WELFARE, $1,700. In 1957 the amount raised was $5,000 plus $1,000 transferred by vote from surplus. In 1958, $2,800 and in 1959, $2,500. This lower figure is a result of closer watch and investigation of welfare requests.

HIGHWAY AND BRIDGES, $13,000. The amount raised in 1957 was $12,150 in 1958, $12,766 and 1959, $12,060. This is for the maintenance of the roads and to the two maintenance men.

SNOW AND ICE, $13,541. The bridges, including the wages paid amount raised in 1957 was $10,700, in 1958, $11,386.80 and in 1959, $11,841. This figure includes the snow removal contract, winter sand and salt and winter maintenance of the roads.

SONS OF VETERANS AUXILIARY, $60 and is the same as other years. This covers the Memorial Flags which this patriotic order faithfully places each year in the 16 cemeteries in the town.

STREET LIGHTS, $1,147.56. This amount just covers installed lights.

INSURANCE, $1,000. This figure covers the fire, accident, Workmen's Compensation, bonding of Town Officials. It remains the same as 1958 and 1959.

Three articles of the Annual Town Meeting Warrant, will ask the town to vote to appoint a special committee for Local Industrial Development and the raising of $100 for the operation of this committee. To vote to appoint a special committee to investigate the tax acquired property and to assist the Selectmen in the disposal of this property and help to get it back into tax paying property. ## SCHOOL DISTRICT FIVE BUDGET APPROVED WITHOUT CHANGE AT MEETING ATTENDED BY 40 VOTERS

Only 40 persons attended the annual budget meeting of the School Administrative District 5 held Thursday night in the Rockland High School auditorium. After a lengthy explanation of the various proposed expenditures they voted unanimously that it be accepted.

Albert MacPhail was chosen as moderator for the meeting and Chairman A. Alan Grossman and District Superintendent Bruce Kinney explained the various expenditures and answered questions.

The net budget, after estimated revenue is subtracted, comes to $466,375.17 which is an increase of $26,000 over that of last year. The following assessments to the three communities are: Rockland, $409,570.67, an increase of $23,000; Owls Head, $38,009.58, an increase of $2,500; South Thomaston, $18,794.92, an increase of $1,000.

Most of the increase was in teacher's salaries it was brought out at the meeting, with increased insurance costs and plant maintenance other factors contributing to the rise.

A Thomaston youth will compete for a nomination and a Vinalhaven student was named an alternate by Congressman Frank M. Coffin in posting names from the Second District for appointment to the military academies.

Allan Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carroll of 10 Georges Street, Thomaston, will compete with six other young men for the single vacancy under the Second District quota to the U. S. Air Force Academy.

G. Kirk Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hansen of Vinalhaven, was named a first alternate to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Those nominated by Congressman Coffin will take entrance aptitude and physical examinations.

SUPERINTENDENT OF UNION 69 GUPTILL NOT TO SEEK RENEWAL OF CONTRACT AT END OF JUNE

Orville J. Guptill, Jr., submitted a letter to the joint meeting of the school boards of School Union 69, this week, stating that he will not seek re-election as superintendent of schools of Camden, Hope and Thomaston, which presently comprise the union.

The chairman of the joint board, Charles J. Mitchell, Jr., of Camden, stated that Thomaston was granted permission to withdraw from the Union, July 1, and join School Union 72 which includes St. George, Friendship and Cushing. Mitchell explained that Guptill did not state a reason for his leaving the post which he has held for four years.

The Town of Rockport will replace Guptill as the third member of the school union, as a result of the decision of the State Board of Education. Mitchell added that the Rockport School Board will be given a chance to voice their approval of a new school superintendent, when the joint board is ready to accept applications.

NORTH HAVEN FERRY DUE IN ROCKLAND LATE SATURDAY AFTERNOON IF WEATHER HOLDS

Weather permitting, the Maine State Ferry Service craft North Haven is expected to leave into sight of Rockland Harbor about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. MFS Manager Ralph Brown said late Friday afternoon.

At mid-afternoon Friday, the North Haven, under tow, was at the southern entrance to the Cape Cod Canal moving northward.

Once the ferry arrives it will undergo tests in Penobscot Bay before being put into service on the Rockland-North Haven run.

GOVERNOR SIGNS SCHOOL DISTRICT BILLS AS SPECIAL SESSION OF MAINE LEGISLATURE ADJOURNS

A special session of the Maine Legislature completed its work on 51 bills at six minutes before 11 p. m. Friday afternoon, with passage given to all school district validation bills including those of SAD 5, 7 and 8. A bill to clear the way for SAD 5 to take land for a school site also was passed.

Governor John H. Reed signed both of the latter bills, Friday morning.

Without debate the House passed a bill which will give the Maine Port Authority an additional $253,000 for its first full year of operation of the Maine State Ferry Service. The service also received an official name in the session. After the debate, Thursday, about a sum of money for the Port Authority to use on the Maine State Pier, it was feared by some coastal circles that objections would be raised to appropriating more money for the ferry service.

It was reported out of the State House that action on the ferry money bill went through swiftly and without discussion. In committee hearing, the requested $293,000 was pared down by a sum earmarked for the State contingency fund. It would have replaced money given to the MPA by the Governor and Council.

USCG Clears Up Confusion Over Fire Extinguishers

Officials at First Coast Guard District headquarters in Boston have reported some confusion exists in New England boating circles concerning the regulation of fire extinguishers of the vaporizing liquid type (carbon tetrachloride and chlorobromomethane).

Captain A. G. Moberg, Officer in Charge of Coast Guard Marine Inspection in Boston, revealed that the approval for this type of extinguisher for use on board vessels under the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard was withdrawn in December of 1958. He explained that no extinguisher of this type may be newly installed or installed as a replacement on vessels after that date.

However, he added, any such fire extinguishers manufactured prior to December, 1958 which are in use, may be continued in service as long as they are in good and serviceable condition until January of 1962. Effective Jan. 1, 1962, Capt. Moberg concluded, these vaporizing liquid type extinguishers are outlawed and must be removed and replaced by approved type extinguishers.

Mrs. Marjorie Mayo is now the social reporter for The Courier-Gazette. She will observe office hours at the newspaper plant daily from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. The newspaper telephone is LYRIC 4-4461. After office hours and on Saturdays and Sundays, she will receive calls at her home, the telephone of which is LYRIC 4-7504. ## FLASH FIRE DOES CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE TO COMBINATION GARAGE, SHOP OF THOMASTON CONTRACTOR

An unidentified worker escaped injured when a fire gutted the side of a combination garage and workshop and burned a utility vehicle and tools, Thursday morning, on the property of Contractor Arthur Henry on Beechwood Street, Thomaston.

Thomaston Fire Chief Edwin Anderson believed that the spark for the blaze started when Henry's employee had cracked an oxygenacetylene torch for welding repair on the utility vehicle and ignited a pool of hydraulic fluid on the floor which had leaked out of the truck. The worker fled the burning structure without injuries, Anderson commented.

Firemen, who were called at 7:40 a. m., confined the fire to the inside of the 40 by 30 foot, one and one half story wooden frame building and returned to the station at 8:45 a. m.

Anti-Rocket Bill Is Defeated In Both Houses Of Legislature Paving Way For SOAR To Re-Plan Mail Shot

Amateur rocketeers won their second legal round with the State Insurance Department, Thursday, when a bill, to prohibit the firing of rockets in Maine, was defeated during the special session of the Legislature, although it had received an ought to pass recommendation as a result of committee hearings.

The Society of Amateur Rocketry, Inc., which was foiled in their attempt to blast off a mail carrying rocket from Lincolnville Beach in the fall, was told by Justice Harold C. Marden at the Kennebec County Court House, Jan. 20, that its project does not come under the State's 10-year-old fireworks statute, as the Insurance Department had contended.

The House vote, Thursday, was 53 in favor and 67 against passage of the bill. The Senate followed suit, later on in the day, and also voted the measure down. As an emergency measure, it required a two-thirds favorable vote to pass. Speaking on behalf of SOAR, Inc., before the vote in the House was Representative William Hardy of Hope, who keynoted his speech with the words, "Let the space age come to Maine." He went on to explain how this act would be "one of the bluest of the blue laws on the books and would discourage space age industries considering locations in Maine."

The rocketeers, who place the society's home at Brooklyn, N. Y., had planned to fire a 10-foot rocket from Lincolnville Beach over Penobscot Bay, laden with 6,000 pieces of mail which would have been cancelled at the Lincolnville Beach Post Office. The rocket is propelled by a solid fuel and uses a parachute for deceleration and descent.

Representatives of the society testified during the Superior Court hearing in Augusta during the first part of January that the purpose of the group has been to further the technical engineering in applied rocketry and to develop practical application. SOAR, Inc., had taken two rockets to Lincolnville Beach to attempt to experiment with rockets as a means of carrying mail over short distances.

"COMPASS CAPERS"
Wardens, ridge runners, experienced woodsmen and just about every other level headed person who uses a compass in their woodland travels have always insisted "that a good compass never tells a lie."

I had my most convincing lesson of this logic a number of years ago as Ernest Crie and I decided to short cut a portion of the wild Kokado region after fishing several miles down river from camp and wondering if we would be back in time for supper. At the last minute before starting this venture we were joined by the late Dr. Robert Allen, who lost a portion of his trousers in the cross country hike, - but, by Crie's insistence that the compass didn't lie, we arrived safely at camp quite a while before others in the fishing party who chose to back track the winding river.

At the time I started the game inventory trail of which this series is written I owned a Waltham built, jeweled bearing pocket compass, considered to be as reliable as any similar instrument then available; and although it had seen considerable rough use it had no failings that I knew of.

From the Rockland quadrangle of the 1940 USOC map, I plotted the proposed line of the trail, using this compass for calculations. And, fortunately, for me the overall direction of a trail that would cross the selected area from Dragon Cement Company to Shattuckville, was just a "whisker" less than half way between true north and magnetic north.

I double checked this before I started the trail by taking the compass up a tall spruce near the highlands surrounding Babbs Quarry and sighting the towering smoke from the Dragon Cement Company concrete stacks.

This direction would be about the halfway mark, pass through the center of Long Swamp behind Amos Norton's "back 40", and would come out on Westbrook Road exactly at the crown of Mile Hill.

These calculations were not near as complex as they seem and as related in last week's column, I started the second section of the trail in a northerly direction from the top of Mile Hill with full confidence it would converge at the peeled spruce stake in Stackpole's pasture, as I had planned.

This pasture is a sprawling area of mostly small hoop pole size saplings and alders, largely in the 40-60 contours. The top soil is shallow, quite rocky, and lays over a preponderance of clay subsoil which accounts for much of its almost constantly present moisture and verdance.

Somewhere underlying, and frequently breaking above the surface of this veritable plateau, is quantities of ledge, - some of it quite unusual formation.

I had progressed roughly a half mile (down hill all the way) when the land commenced to flatten out gradually. Along the baselines of these declining grades I found small, trickling rills and occasional puddles of clear standing water confined by knolls and beds of moss.

Leaves, now withered in early frosts indicated this portion of the trail passed through a luxuriant garden of wood and pasture flowers such as blue and white violets, snowdrops, anemones, ladies slippers, hepaticas and jack-in-the-pulpits.

There was very little wildlife to be seen, but observations made without leaving the trail revealed one moose and several deer had been in the area recently.

Abruptly after crossing a small watercourse of sparkling clear and delightfully cold water, I stepped out on the flat pastureland and into the road beside which I had driven the peeled spruce stake indicating where the two portions of completed trail were supposed to join, - but the stake was not within sight either up or down the road as far as I could see.

Parking the machete, camera, and dinner bag on a convenient stump, I wandered 500 yards west on the pasture road until I could hear cars on the river road. There was no peeled stake in that direction.

Next I started towards the marsh in the opposite direction. At 430 paces from where I parked the tools I came to the peeled stake standing exactly as I had driven it a few days before, except that sitting on top was a sassy red squirrel who regarded me with the derision I probably deserved.

What had happened? - Here was nearly a quarter mile fault in my trail and no one to blame but the compass or I, - and after a bunch of hoarse and gravelly "brox cheers" from the squirrel, I went back to the stump, ate my dinner, and pondered over the error.

Not having the map with me I sketched the two sections of the trail on a paper bag from memory. This tiresome effort was accompanied by the raucous jeers of another red squirrel who just couldn't endure my quiet lingering around his selected dining table at just dinner time.

There could be several reasons why I had made the error; I remembered that in detouring large trees and boulders along the trail, I had invariably passed them on my left, but once past them I had returned to the prevailing general direction immediately and continued on as before - this theory was quickly abandoned when the whistle of a Rockland bound train sounded for the crossing on the river road and I could hear the "littery-lip" of the steel wheels as they rolled eastward from rail to rail. The next signal would be sounded for Buttermilk Lane crossing (I figured) and from a direction certainly almost in exact line with the start of the trail.

It was one chance in a hundred that my error in the trail was not confined to the one section in which it was first noticed, but could be a similar error in both sections causing it to fan out and away, both east and west as I neared the pasture from opposite directions.

As accurately as possible I logged the train whistle at Buttermilk Lane on the compass from a point just halfway between the peeled spruce stake at section one and where section two entered the Stackpole pasture road - this would be the point of correction if I eventually decided to straighten out the trail.

While pondering what to do next I was aware of a darkening of the western sky accompanied by light snow falling silent and lazily through the alder tops, so, gathering up my tools and whistle data, I started back up trail section No. 2 for Westbrook Road and home.

It was only luck that 15 minutes later as I mounted the last rise of Mile Hill, I heard another crossing whistle of what I suppose was a switcher locomotive again signaling for the Buttermilk Lane crossing.

Quickly I whipped out the compass to log the direction, and there on the dial of the instrument which never tells a lie was the answer to my problem.

This compass may not have lied to me intentionally, premeditated, or with malice aforethought - but the intricacy of its man made vitals had confounded me with a side show of magnetic technique which I never expected, much less needed.

I short, I had walked a straight

Moore Enters Insurance Field

Louis F. Moore

The appointment of Louis F. Moore of Owls Head as agent for the Maine Coastal Area by the Berkshire Life Insurance Company of Pittsfield, Mass., has been announced by Frederick Leen of Portland, general agent for Maine.

Moore was formerly associated with the Portland Free Herald in Rockland for five years. A native of Boston, Moore attended Boston schools and became a member of the Yankee Network news staff in Boston and Portland.

He served in Europe in World War II with the Combat Engineers and was discharged as a first lieutenant.

Moore was later recalled to active duty in 1950 and after a tour as a staff officer with the 101st Airborne Division in Kentucky was sent to Korea as a member of the United Nations Armistice Delegation at Panmunjom.

He was assigned as operations officer and press officer for the return of the sick and wounded prisoners of war and later for Armistice negotiations. He returned to Tokyo, Japan and was named deputy news director for the Far East Command, under General Mark Clark.

Moore holds the Silver Star medal, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, and Croix de Guerre and seven battle campaign stars.

He is married to the former Irene Graham of Calais and the couple have three children.

Leen said Moore would handle general life insurance, hospitalization and accident and sickness insurance.

New Recruiter
T/Sgt. Ken Johnson from Dallas, Texas, has recently been assigned as the new Air Force Recruiter for the Rockland-Agusta Area. Sgt. Johnson replaced S/Sgt. John Mischik who has been transferred to Manchester, N. H., to assume recruiting duties in that area. Sgt. Johnson will be at the employment office in Rockland each Wednesday between 1 p. m. and 3 p. m. to discuss Air Force opportunities with those interested in enlisting. He will be at the Augusta Post Office between 12 and 4 p. m. each Monday and Friday. At other times he may be reached at the USAF Recruiting Office, Post Office Building, Waterville, Phone TRinity 3-3523.

Line from the Stackpole pasture to the summit of Mile Hill exactly on course - yet from where I now stood that compass was telling me that Buttermilk Lane R.R. crossing was a full 15 degrees east of where it had been only 20 minutes ago - something was screwy! - And just to prove it wasn't me I banished the compass inside my vest and struck out for home across country in a fast gathering snowstorm, refusing to look at it again all the way.

Five miles and three hours later I came to a familiar looking tree in a small field near home. The only butternut tree on the west side of the 'Weskeag' I must have roamed the Ed Russell woods and Pumpkin Hill valley in near circles most of that time, in righteous stubbornness.

How I regained confidence in my compass and finally made my way into Long Swamp will be told in next week's installment of this series.

IS THE STATE INTERFERING IN LOCAL AFFAIRS?

The school bus issue over the transportation of private school pupils is settled for the moment. But, be assured that it will come up again to plague legislators at coming sessions in Augusta. Sooner or later, the right of decision in the matter of extending bus transportation to parochial and private school pupils will be given to the communities where it should have been in the first place. Actually, what concern is it of ours, or our legislators, whether or not Lewiston or a half dozen other Maine communities choose to transport private and parochial students? Money for bus transportation does not come from state funds, but is raised within the communities by local taxation. If those communities choose to expend money for such services, why should the rest of Maine be concerned? It is their money and their children and their neighbor's children involved.

AN OUTSTANDING PASTOR AND LEADER

The Rev. Melvin H. Dorr, Jr., concludes an 18 year pastorate of the Chestnut Street Baptist Church in Camden Sunday. In his taking a larger parish in Schenectady, N. Y., the area is losing one of its outstanding religious leaders. Not only has he accomplished much with his parish, which has prospered under his leadership both spiritually and in material things, but he has taken an active part in community affairs and in those of several organizations which have as their aim service to the youth of the area. We are richer for his having been with us nearly two decades and only hope that the community which he will now serve will take full advantage of his abilities, both as a pastor and community leader.

ALLEY ECHOES

CAMDEN YMCA

Action in this week's YMCA Men's League saw the league-leading Giants add to their cushion by taking the Braves 4 to 1. Joe Weare's men bowled a steady 256 for the match total with few outstanding games, but no poor ones. This outfit gets by on fine team balance. The second place Rangers, well anchored by Roland Marriner with a 512 series, took the third place Red Sox 3 to 2, despite McFarland's 206 game for the Sox. The Indians, led by Bud Perry's high game for the night of 218 and high series of 544, took the war path against the hapless Cubs 4 points to 1. Leo Arad's Bruins took True Spear's Senators 5 to 0 to tighten things in the middle of the standings.

Outdoor Maine New Monthly In Publishing Field

Ever wonder what makes a snowshoe rabbit turn white? It's the amount of light the rabbit is exposed to, according to Lew Dietz in an article in the current issue of Outdoor Maine. A rabbit hunt in Knox County is the picture story feature by Dietz and Kosti Ruohomaa. Rockland photographer.

Another story features Harry Goodridge of Rockport and Knox County Bluefish (divers) Edgar Post, Leroy Morey, Lew Stockford and Avarad Chater. A cover story tells how teenager Denny Maxey of Warren has developed a fly-tieing business.

Nathan C. Fuller of Rockland is managing editor and Mrs. Elizabeth Moelling of Camden is OM Buyer's Guide editor. W. A. Shevils of Belmont is art editor. Lew Dietz of Rockport, Bill Geagan of Bangor, Cliff Gove of Biddeford, Jerry McCarthy of Portland are associate editors. ## Rockland High Key Club Notes

By Mike Savitt

In the corridor at the school there is a Key Club bulletin board. In the future students who wish to know about the Key Club, may view the constitution of our club, our activities, or other things of more interest to the school.

We have decided to pick a teacher of the month each month to honor for a job done extra on their own free will to help out the school. At the last meeting of the month John Melquist and Floyd Montgomery will offer the club three nominees. We will then vote on one person to honor for that month. Next week we will know what teacher did the most for the school in the month of January.

Another project that has been suggested is to buy emblems and lettering for the warm-up jackets of Rockland High's basketball team. If they go to the tournament, the emblems and lettering will look a little extra special to the crowd and other teams.

At last week's meeting it was decided to elect an assistant to help me on the public relations committee. So in the future, Arnold McConchie, a junior, will be helping me write this column. Last Monday Robert Perry and John Melquist attended the Kiwanis meeting.

Citrus Best Prescription

This is the time of the year when colds plague the land — people stay home from work, youngsters stay home from school, as the common scourge takes its annual toll. Doctors advise people on how to keep resistance to respiratory ills at a high level, but too often no one takes precautions until a cold is full-blown.

One of the safest and sanest things that everyone can do every day, to keep the system toned up for colder, changeable weather influences is to get an adequate amount of vitamin C daily. Citrus fruits are the best natural source of this vitamin, and they represent the cheapest and pleasantest prescription for good health yet discovered.

This year's Florida crop of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines is right at its peak. You can find plenty of the handy little zipper-skin tangerines — the ones that Grandma called "punkin' oranges." They're ideal for lunch box use. The big juice oranges most plentiful this month are the Pineapple variety, and you're sure to get at least a quart of juice from every five pounds of these oranges. Easy to peel, it's a good idea to juice a dozen or more and keep the juice covered in a container in the refrigerator for mid-day snacks. There are good supplies of Temple oranges, too, this year — the ones that peel easily like tangerines.

It's Breakfast, No Matter What

An around the world visit to the breakfast tables of foreign lands would give any traveler a lesson in language — plus a wide variety of foods, exotic and plain.

For the most part, the breakfasts served in foreign countries — particularly in the homes of working people — are substantial. Not all of them supply the nutritionally desirable goal of one-third of the body's daily nutrients, but they come close to it.

In Mexico, Spain, Argentina and other Latin and South American countries, breakfast is termed desayuno, continental breakfasts — coffee and rolls — are served early.

pected that local foresters and other experts will be asked to demonstrate and judge events in their fields of work.

A special 50th Anniversary Achievement Award may be earned by any member who meets certain requirements including the recruiting of a new member, personal advancement in rank, keeping physically fit and rendering service to others.

A President Eisenhower streamer will go to units when more than half its members earn the 50th Anniversary Achievement Award.

The National Good Turn for 1960 will be the third non-partisan Get-Out-The-Vote campaign the Scouts will conduct with the Freedom Foundation of Valley Forge. In both the 1962 and 1966 efforts, Scouts placed more than two-million posters and distributed 66,000,000 Liberty Bell door-knob hangers to the homes of America.

often followed by a more substantial meal. France's petit déjeuner and Italy's piccola colazione, are continental breakfasts. The Italians may add cheese and fruit.

Ireland's breakfast may include cereal, eggs, bacon and large amounts of bread with a spread. The British like cereal, toast, a beverage and a main course which could be kippered herring, sausage with potatoes, broiled kidneys or steak and kidney pie. The Chinese have a mid-morning breakfast, chao tsan, which may include cakes, soup, rice, vegetable bowls, fish, meat or poultry and preserved or fresh eggs. Breakfast in Japan, choshioyoku, is fundamentally the same as in China. In addition to toast and beverage, breakfast in the Netherlands, ontbijt, may include hot cereal, smoked beef, eggs and cheese.

Even a linguist would be hard pressed to recognize breakfast by many of its names. In Czechoslovakia it's snidani; in Yugoslavia, doracak; and in Poland, szniadanie. In Iceland, breakfast is morgunmat; Greece, pragevma; Turkey, kahvalt; Germany, fruehstueck; Norway, frokast; and Sweden, frukast. In the Philippine Islands, breakfast is pang-una-gahan, and in Portugal it's simple cafe.

Breakfast by any other name will taste as good to the one who eats it — but it's hard to beat the fruit, cereal, toast, breakfast meat and eggs recommended as ideal for American tables.

Also emphasizing the power of prayer are citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, which include the following: "If we pray to God as a corporeal person, this will prevent us from relinquishing the human doubts and fears which attend such a belief, and so we cannot grasp the wonders wrought by infinite, incorporeal Love, to whom all things are possible" (13:20-24).

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	1 John	2	9-12
Monday	1 John	4	20-21
Tuesday	Romans	12	9-10
Wednesday	Proverbs	17	17
Thursday	1 Corinthians	16	13-14
Friday	John	10	9-10
Saturday	Psalms	35	13-14

A man's got to look after his brother. That's what Timmy said the other day, as he stood beside our baby. And I told him he was right. "You are so much stronger than this tiny, little creature," I said. "From now on, you've got a real responsibility!"

A man does have to look after his brother . . . especially when that brother is weak. But there are moments, too, when even the strongest man may need a brother!

In the eyes of the Church, all men are brothers, just as all men are equally beloved. As long as there is a church near you, you are not alone. You have only to open the door and walk in and you will be at one with your fellow man . . . and at home with your brothers.

Thomaston Scrap Book By Lee Morse

The Mark Gay house, built in 1850 and now owned by Mrs. Edwin Anderson.

Gay Street

Homes had been erected and occupied on both sides of Green Street from Water Street to the present Hyler Street but there was still open field where we now see Gay Street and the school building. Charles Waterman bought the lot where Mr. Hyler's house now stands and thereafter it was a part of the Strout lot.

As was stated in the last Scrapbook, Alfred C. Strout was married three times. Adella M. (Spear) Strout died Nov. 6, 1907.

After Strout married Miss Abbie Dunn, a neighbor, he lived with her in her Dunn Street home. Abbie Strout died in 1914. Later, he built the beautiful little home on the corner of Green and Gay and lived there with his wife, the former Susan Fales, daughter of Ebenezer and sister of the Fales boys, Nelson and Lermond shown in The Courier-Gazette of July 28, 1939. At least two of the Fales brothers had been in the First Maine Cavalry with Strout friends and comrades.

Alfred C. Strout died in 1924, but Susan, the widow, lived until 1932.

Old Time Funerals

As an undertaker and funeral director Alfred C. Strout was most efficient. There will never be an other exactly like him, nor so good. To the Thomaston families whom he had served he was admired and loved like Edgar Burpee, who served Rockland during the same period.

In the days before the era of funeral homes and automobiles the funerals were much different, less expensive, less convenient but no less rational than those of today.

The old fashioned funerals were held at the house where the deceased had drawn his last breath. After days and often months of work and anxiety the patient had finally died and the family, all worn out and distracted with grief, had to clean the house and get ready for the funeral. Had it not been for the assistance of the neighbors, who were neighbors in those old days, the families would have died of fatigue.

Whatever we thought about the faults or follies of those old neighbors at times of bereavement they measured up to a high standard and we loved them for it.

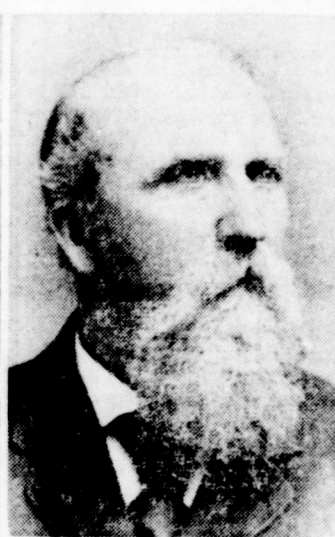

The body would be placed in the parlor, which, for most of the year had been kept closed, with shades drawn. For the children who were almost never allowed there except at these times, the room was a death room to be shunned and dreaded in spite of the boxes, pictures, stereoscopes and other attractions.

The relatives and friends and women of the neighborhood would sit in lines of chairs in most of the rooms while a group of men would sit or stand in the kitchen.

At one Thomaston home a man intending to go out of doors opened a door leading to a closet where the tinware had been tiered and crammed in. A veritable avalanche of tinware came out in the most disturbing and embarrassing manner.

After the preacher had done his best, Mr. Strout would call the names of those who were to follow the hearse to the grave. Billy Catland's hacks would lead and after two or three hacks there would be five or six one horse buggies.

Once when a funeral was held at Capt. John Morse's home, my great uncle, Charles Morse, borrowed my father's best sleigh and old Bill, a very high spirited and strong willed beast, and started in the procession. With him was Aunt Marcia and a lady neighbor. As the procession was about to pass my father's home old Bill decided to turn in and he did so in spite of the driver's wildest efforts to keep in the procession. The neighbor became frightened and jumped out into a snow-bank, much deeper than she had supposed it to be.

An unpleasant scene took place at old Aunt Freelove Brown's funeral, when the old director called somebody else before Capt. John, the oldest and by far the wealthiest nephew. The captain was a man of integrity but not always reasonable. He walked home in a tiff.

As a rule the funerals went off smoothly. Mr. Strout always did well and the folks loved him.

Now back to the homes on Gay Street—The home built by A. C. Strout has for many years been the property of Earl Hyler, the son of the late Sanford and Susie Pickering Hyler. Earle has been for years in the employ of Black and Gay. His wife, Leta, is the daughter of the late Eben and Lillian Young Feyler, the fine parents and good folk who lived over the Creighton store for many years.

The next lot was long the property of Thomas Russell and was sold by his daughter, Cora, to Hattie, wife of Capt. Frank W. Russell. Capt. Frank was the son of William, a brother of Thomas Russell. He was commander of the schooner Ella Elliot, 419 tons, built by Dunn and Elliot in 1882.

There were three children in the family. Hattie was my classmate and a frail girl, who gained strength with maturity as she is still living in the West. Fred, the good looking, fun-loving boy was engaged in business in the West, and died only a year or two ago.

Edith, the younger daughter, who taught in the Brick School at Mill River, later taught many years at Honolulu and is now retired in California.

Mrs. Russell sold the place to Mrs. Ermina Hawes, wife of Herbert Hawes of Union and mother of Mrs. Phoebe Starrett, its present owner. For many years Mrs. Starrett was employed in a Civil Service job in Washington, D. C. The late Capt. Earl Starrett lived here many years ago. Mrs. Starrett had an attractive daughter, Dorothy Starrett, who corresponded for the Portland paper, and now lives in Bangor, the wife of Donald Thompson.

The next house on this side of the road was built by Capt. T. Watson Dunn who lived there with his wife, Mary, a native of New Orleans and his children, George and Blanche. The daughter died while still a girl but George still lives after a business life in New Jersey. Capt. Dunn was the son of Thomas W. Dunn and commanded several vessels, among them the Lizzie J. Parker built for him by Dunn and Elliot, and which was lost on her second voyage loaded with iron on a reef in the Caribbean Sea.

Later, he commanded the Phineas W. Sprague and brought her from Nova Scotia with coal when he was succeeded by Capt. Arthur Elliot as the Sprague's commander.

The house was sold to the Nutt family and George Nutt and Lizzie lived here. George had come from England and Lizzie was the daughter of Julia Harper, who was a daughter of John D. Morse 1st (Old Uncle John) at the Meadows.

The place was later sold to the Methodist Episcopal Church and used as a parsonage, being first occupied as such by Rev. Mr. Hoyt around 1920. The church trustees, Levi Seavey, George A. Moore and William W. Gilchrist sold it to Mrs. Ruth Linnell Creighton, wife of Charles W. Creighton.

In the 1940's, Robert Libby, son of Guy and Addie Dickey Libby bought it and lived here with his wife, Lura Morse Libby, who was principal of the Green Street School. They had two daughters, Mrs. Nancy Barrett and Mrs. Kathleen Anderson. The new Elementary School was named for Lura Libby and appropriately. True there have been many worthy teachers but she was one of outstanding excellence both as a teacher and a woman. She died in 1930 after a heroic battle with illness.

This house and lot was later sold to Leroy Brown of South Thomaston, who sold it to its present owner, Frederick Daley, formerly of Stockton Springs, who is now in charge of the vehicle gate at the Maine State Prison. Mr. Daley lives here with his wife, the former Dorothy Trundy, also from Stockton Springs, and their daughter, Kathleen, who attends our schools in the seventh grade.

The Green Street schoolhouse was built and the new street was called School Street in some deeds but there was one street in town called by that name already.

Richard Feyler's house was built long before Gay Street by Benjamin Lowell and the road between Knox and Green Street was called Lowell Street in his honor as has been told in a previous Scrapbook story.

Gay Street was named for Mark Gay, a native of Friendship who bought the lot from John Svet who had already built and occupied first the Christine Moore house and later the present home of Harold Richardson on Hyler Street. He may have intended to build a home for himself but may have built it for Mark Gay who was a truckman and concerning whom little is known.

For many years this was the home of Capt. Jesse Wilson, who was related to the St. George Wilsons, but was born in Thomaston. Capt. Wilson was twice married and has been quoted as saying that he planted the elm trees around the house to please his first wife and cut them down to please the second wife. For years he followed the sea, one of his commands being the small schooner Nellie Drury. In his day the smaller schooners had followed the square riggers requiring a much smaller crew and in some ways being more desirable. Capt. Wm. Wilson and Mrs. Edward O.B. Burgess were children of his first wife, Harriet Young Wilson. The good captain died in 1909 at the age of 82.

Soon after the captain's death the place was sold to Mrs. Roxie Darby, daughter of John Young of Green Street and wife of Capt. Isaac Darby, a native of Belfast and a good man whom many of our people will remember. Capt. Darby's last command was the schooner Henrietta Simmons. Mrs. Helen, wife of Edwin Anderson, the only child of the Darby's, inherited the home. After Capt. Darby's death, the Andersons came here and cared for Mrs. Darby until her death in 1922.

Edwin Anderson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Anderson of Beechwood Street. For many years he had a restaurant business first in the old Levensaler building on Knox Street and later in the Levensaler Block on Main Street. In 1909 he joined a fire company and has been chief since 1928. The very excellent well-housed and well-equipped fire fighting department owes much to his efforts.

The Andersons had four good sons of whom three are now living. Donald married Hilda Foster of Rockland and lives in Milford, Conn. He has four children, all of whom live in Milford. Forrest, the eldest son, served four years in the United States Air Service, in the Philippines and Texas. Patricia, Mrs. Edgar Van Horn has two children and Donald and Helen are in school.

Douglass Anderson lives in Port Clyde and married Miss Verena Davis of that place. They have three sons, Larry, a student at Farmington State Teachers' College, Ronald, a junior at St. George High School, and Douglass 2nd, a pupil in school.

Howard, who married Alice Fager of Wadsworth Street, perished with his two sons in a fire in Whittsville on April 2, 1948. He had succeeded in getting his wife out of the window and went back after the two boys and to his death. He was a good boy and a hero.

Vaughn, youngest of Edwin Anderson's sons, married Arline Logan of Long Island, N. Y., and they live in Portland with three daughters, Linda, Pamela and Sandra.

The daughter, Barbara, now Mrs. Harold Saltmarsh of Concord, N. H., was visiting an aunt at the time. The Saltmarshes have two children.

The four homes on this short street are seen to have a history of interest only a little of which has been given here. Four captains—what a story of enterprise and adventure could be told.

The DeWinters
 In the Scrapbook of January there seems to be some confusion by errors in copying my notes. Isadore Cogan, a sister of Earl Cogan of Green Street, married Harry DeWinter, who worked for the Hawaiian-American Shipping Company. Her son, John DeWinter, was a member of the State Police and captain of the Highway Traffic Division. He is now sheriff of Kennebec County. He is one of whom our people may be justly proud.

When the story of the Carrie Morse house was related in the issue of Dec. 22, no mention was made of the fact that after Elizabeth, daughter of John Morse, first owner, had married Thomas Dunn members of the Dunn family lived there. At least Lawrence and his sister Hattie were there. I am told that Hattie is still living in Portland. I remember her well as a senior in Thomaston High School. She was a very pleasant girl whom I have not seen for many years.

We have added only one new member this time. "Frosty" has come to join us for a spell.

Lana Wiley is our January good citizen. Congratulations Lana.

In social studies we are studying "Joe Mammogots and His Sheep." This is especially interesting to us because of the study concerning with desert life. An exchange student from Iran is visiting us on Tuesday to speak concerning his homeland which is also a desert country.

Grade 4—Mrs. Braden
Since our last report we enjoyed a delightful Christmas vacation.

We have brought our favorite Christmas presents to school to share and compare with our classmates. Science and chemistry sets and motorized apparatus attracted special attention. Many scientific principles were explained as a result of this activity. Oral talks in the nature of explanations helped to enhance our language program.

Ruffie Damon and Douglas Bruff took part in the Boy Scout demonstration for the recent PTA meeting. They did a fine job illustrating knot tying.

Diane Kinney and Linda Ervin have just completed a 3-D cut-out puzzle of South America which entailed very much hard work on their part. Our large bulletin board displays our puzzle. It is so easy to see the comparative sizes of these countries. We have numbers instead of names on the pieces. We are learning to associate the names of the countries with these numbers. All sorts of understandings and generalizations in the form of statements

Grade 5—Mrs. Thorbjornson

Our January birthday student is Marylou Yattaw.

A half year of school is gone. Does that seem possible? So long until next time.

GRANGE NEWS OF KNOX-LINCOLN COUNTIES

ELECTRONIC CALCULATING OF POULTRY FARM DATA AVAILABLE THROUGH COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

County Agent Gil Jaeger reports that poultry production and feed efficiency figures may now be kept with the aid of electronic calculating machines.

On a six months trial basis, poultrymen may send monthly egg production, culling, mortality and feed figures to the County Agent. These will be forwarded to the Bath Iron Works for processing on their computing machines.

In return, poultrymen will receive monthly and totals to date of eggs produced and mortality figures (totals and percentages), plus factors such as feed per 100 birds and feed per dozen eggs.

Several poultrymen have requested this kind of a service. Extension workers feel that some poultrymen may be keeping the data, yet are not totaling and analyzing the figures they have. This project is set up to provide such an analysis.

For the first six months period, a charge of $8 per flock will be made. Costs will be adjusted, he hopes downward, when actual costs are known, says Jaeger. The charge is per flock regardless of how many pens are involved. Not more than one flock because the entered as one flock because the records for the birds will then be all off, of course. However, as many flocks can be entered as desired for the charge of $8 per flock.

Anyone interested in trying out this program, or anyone desiring more details should contact the County Agent in Rockland, telephone LYric 4-8881 or write Box 415, Rockland.

County ASC Now Making Contacts For 1960 Program

Community Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee members are now in the process of a farm to farm contact for the purpose of enrolling interested persons in the 1960 Agricultural Conservation Program. Shortly after Feb. 5, the county committee will be meeting to divide available funds. It is important, therefore, that enrollment in the program is done soon.

A list of committeemen doing contact work follows: Norman Chase, North Whitefield; Clinton Jewett, Whitefield; Daniel Ames, Wiscasset; John Campbell, Jefferson; Charles Cross, Cedar Grove; William S. Bryant, Jr., Damariscotta Mills; J. Malcolm Barter, Wadoboro; Herbert Spear, North Nobleboro; Ralph Wentworth, Hope; Chesley Cripps, Camden; Merrill Payson, Warren; Alonzo Meservy, Appleton; and Harold Watts, St. George.

The County ASC Office is located in Room 1 on the second floor of the Rockland Post Office. Hours are from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m.—Monday through Friday. Phone Rockland LYric 4-8851.

SUGGESTIONS TO PREPARE FOR LAMBING OFFERED SHEEP GROWERS BY COUNTY AGENT

Now is the time for sheep growers in Knox-Lincoln County to make preparations for lambing, reports County Agent Gilbert Jaeger of the Cooperative Extension Service.

The sheep grower should plan to spend some extra time with his flock during lambing time, Gil Jaeger says. Saving a few lambs will increase the profits per ewe.

The medicine chest for lambing could well be checked. It should include iodine (for use on navels of young lambs), soap, sterilized cotton cord (keep in sterilized bottle), quaternary ammonium compound, lubricant, paper towels, rubber gloves, hand sheep shears, mercuriolate (use when docking and castrating), dosing syringe, and nursing bottle and nipples.

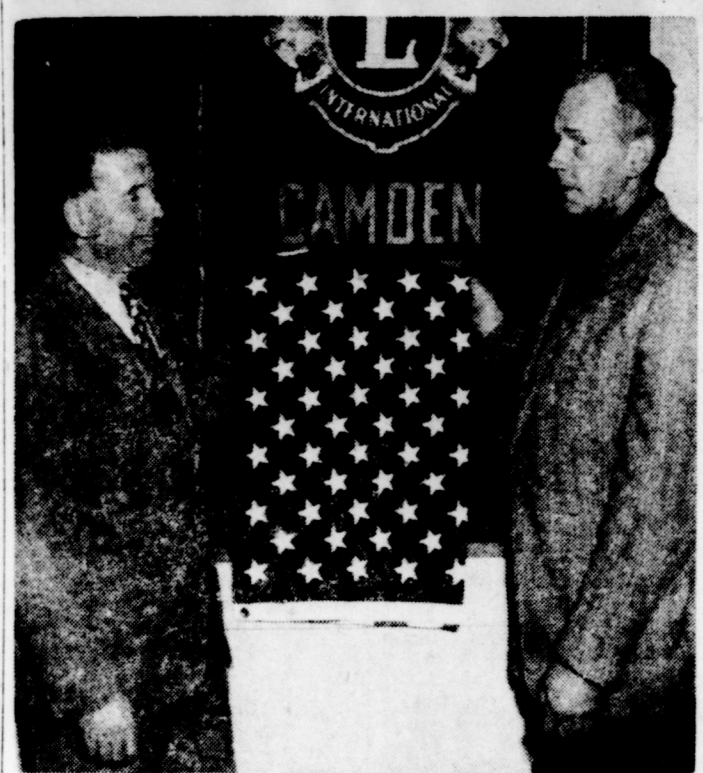

The small lambing pens where the ewes and newborn lambs will be held should be in the warm part of the barn or shed and in a draft-free area. The shed or barn must be well ventilated. All gates or doors the ewes will use should be at least eight feet wide.

Individual lambing pens are a must for a sheep flock, says the county agent. The pens make individual attention possible for each ewe and her lamb.

Portable pens are less expensive and more easily used. They are made of two panels—one five feet long and the other six feet hinged together. Make one pen for every five ewes, suggests the Extension Agent.

County Agent Jaeger points out that "lambing time is harvest time, so save your crop."

CAMDEN LIONS URGE FLAG DISPLAY

The Camden Lions Club will conduct a campaign to encourage the display of the flag on patriotic holidays, from Feb. 1 to Feb. 15. Club members will make a door to door canvass to display the flag and make available the new 50-star flags to those clubs and people who desire to purchase them through the club. Proceeds from the sale will be used for the Lions Charity Fund. In the picture, Edgar R. Tope, left, publicity chairman of the drive, presents King Lion Richard Moody with one of the new 50-star flags which the club will sell during the campaign, during the regular meeting of the club, Tuesday evening, at the Camden Congregational Parish House.

By Henry Toague

Every week that I write this column, I hope that next time I will have something more cheerful to talk about. One keeps thinking that the poultry situation has got to iron out because it is so important to the country as a producer of basic food products. It is time to realize that no one is doing much worrying (except the farmers themselves who are practically helpless to do anything about the situation by themselves. Logically, our help should come from beyond the farm as that appears to be where the major trouble lies. There has been some recent investigation of the pricing system that has been used for many years. Some are admitting that the system is not good but they have been unable to come up with anything they think would be an improvement.

Now we are going to toss marketing orders around for a while. This takes our problems into Congress where two major bills are now pending. According to what we read, it is unlikely that there will be positive action due to the fact that this is a political year.

The farmers have been exceedingly patient, for this downward trend in pricing started in 1954. Every time prices have reached pinching levels there has been some activity concerning the farm problems. But, a little rise in the price of eggs has slowed up or stopped any movement in the direction of adjustment.

Since this year just past has been the worst yet, the action has been a little livelier than usual, but how much has been accomplished. About the only concrete thing that has happened is that it has put a lot of poultry farmers out of business and more are close to the edge—lots more.

I think that it is safe to predict that not much will be done for the farmer in 1960. If the price of eggs takes a rise into the 40 cent range, I venture that most of the talk of helping the poultry farmer will die out completely.

A lot of folks argue that we should promote eggs so that more will be sold. It would be a good idea, except that the farmer would be the last one to benefit and he might not benefit at all. The selling of more eggs will simply bring more producers into the business and we will quickly revert to the present situation.

If there is a true surplus at the present time and many of us believe there is not, we may need some sort of production controls. We may have to abandon the idea that the independent farmer has the right to expand as he desires. As I understand it, marketing orders are a step in this direction. It is certain that marketing orders will not return us to the prosperity of the industry following World War 2, but it might help give us a living and perhaps a fairly decent one.

Marketing orders are being used in other branches of agriculture. It is not a new and untried system. But it needs to be studied and understood. One should know as much as possible about this plan and if you have not made a study already, you should certainly start now. It is something definite to work on, and about the only definite thing we have at the present moment. I am not setting myself up as a proponent of the idea. I think that marketing orders should be instituted only if the majority of the market egg producers want them. But, for heaven's sake don't take a negative attitude because you are too lazy to read over the present bills that are now in Congress.

Form your opinion after you have studied the situation and write a member of the Maine Congressional delegation, telling your Senator or Representative how you feel about it. They will welcome a letter from you and I am sure that they will work for us all the harder if they feel that many of us are behind them. While there seems to be little hope in this current session, let's keep the idea alive even though prices may strengthen a little this summer.

Here's a thought for 1960, sensible and sane:

Don't forget the Golden Rule, drivers, here in Maine.

Walkers, too, cooperate—you can help a lot.

Let's make Maine in '60—the nation's safest spot!

Not All Farmers Report Correctly For S. S. Credits

"Some farm operators may be losing valuable social security protection because of misunderstanding," George M. Field, district manager of the Augusta social security office, reports today. "Some farmers have commented to us that they believed the filing of social security reports of farm earnings was optional in every case," Field said.

The optional method can be used only in the following cases. If the gross income from farming is not more than $1,800, the farmer may count as his net either his actual net or two-thirds of his gross. If his gross farm income is more than $1,800 and his net is less than $1,200, he may report either his actual net or $1,200. These alternate methods of reporting allow a farmer with a gross farm income of at least $600 a year to report sufficient net earnings to receive some social security credits.

"We believe that some farmers with low earnings have missed getting social security protection because they were unaware of the 'optional method' for reporting," Field remarked. "Tax returns for the past three years can still be filed if gross income amounted to $600 or more in each year. These social security credits may be needed to qualify for retirement benefits later on," he added.

Workers reaching retirement age this year need a minimum of four years social security coverage to qualify. Coverage requirements increase for persons reaching retirement age in the future.

Do your children drink milk the last thing before going to bed? If so, be sure they clean their teeth afterward because even milk left in the mouth over night can cause the start of decay. Milk is especially bad because it turns acid and many people do not think of cleaning their teeth after drinking it.

With the different bugs that are going around now everyone should be more aware of taking good care of every family member. Good nutrition and plenty of rest is important. Vitamin C rich fruits, and Vitamin A rich fruits and vegetables are both thought to have a great deal to do with combating infection of any kind.

The Weight Control class scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 28, had to be postponed due to the storm. We will have it Thursday, Feb. 4, at 7 p. m. at the Farnsworth Museum. Anyone is welcome to come and join us. This is an informal meeting which lasts an hour or less.

Louise Thayer, secretary of Warren Wonder Workers, taught conservation at the 12th meeting, Monday night. She dealt with forest grazing land, wildlife, water, soil and mineral conservation.

Attention was given to why we need to conserve our resources; the conditions and wastefulness that have made conservation essential; and the steps that are being taken to save our resources today.

The destruction of forest through fires and mismanagement; the disappearance of animals due to hunting and destroying habitats; and wasteful uses of fuel supplies were some of the points brought out. Many conservation measures such as planting trees, providing refuges for animals, stocking streams with fish, enforcing hunting laws, and preventing waste of minerals were mentioned. Her talk was concluded with relationship between the types of conservation and the fact that they are inter-related.

Illustrations from books and pamphlets were used.

Patty Henry was winner of the table setting judging contest held by the Diligent Dozen, last Monday night, and Diane Smith won the judging contest on skirt hems.
