People crowded the streets in communities up and down the coast and stood to hear talks at memorials and cemeteries. In several places firing squads accompanied the placing of wreaths at memorials. Coastal communities also honored those lost at sea.

Pickarel Bit Off Mouthful

The old saw about biting off more than you can chew kicked back on a predatory pickarel at Lake Megunticook in Lincolnville Sunday. James Economy was swimming at a Sunday School picnic of children from St. Peter's Church, Rockland, when he spotted the pickarel struggling in the water. The lad grabbed the helpless fish and found it had a white perch half devoured. The spiny perch was more than the pickarel could take but the dorsal fin prevented spitting it out. The tail of the perch can be seen hanging out of the mouth of the pickarel as James holds it. The picnic drew 67 children and adults to St. Thomas Camp.

BURKETTVILLE — Five persons suffered injuries and the two cars involved in a Saturday night collision at Burkettville were demolished in the only serious accident of the weekend to be reported at presstime.

State Police say the drivers of the cars were Leslie Ladd, 45, of Appleton and Edward A. Mahoney, 22, of Augusta. The mishap took place on a sharp curve on Route 105 and the two cars hit nearly head-on investigating Trooper George Massie said.

Injured and taken to Knox County General Hospital in the Union ambulance were Ladd, who suffered multiple bruises and lacerations; two year old Randall Grover, who had a broken right leg; Mrs. Carol Grover, who was thrown from the car and had numerous contusions; Delores Ladd, 17, who was also thrown from the car and had a broken toe and bruises. All were from Appleton.

Also injured was Mrs. Barbara Perry, 46, of Hope who had a broken right foot and contusions. All the injured were in the Ladd car. Mahoney, who was alone, complained of an injured knee but did not require treatment, Massie said.

Those taken to the hospital were released following treatment. The accident is still under investigation.

Electronic Laboratory At Waldoboro To Expand To 30 Employees This Year

WALDOBORO — The Vocaline Company of America, Inc., an Old Saybrook, Conn., electronic manufacturing firm, has announced recently that it will immediately expand its research and development facilities in Waldoboro, Maine. In announcing its new addition to the Waldoboro laboratory, Carroll T. Cooney, Jr., president of the company, stated that a number of military contracts in the field of communications and the necessity for the establishment of an electronic test range for the Navy Department in the general area requires that the company substantially expand its engineering and technical staff to meet increased demands for its services.

For some time Vocaline has maintained an electronic research and development center south of the Town of Waldoboro on Friendship Street for the development of electrical and electronic products for the home and industry as well as for the military. The staff has been under the supervision of John R. Cooney, long a resident of the town.

New government contracts, it is said, will result in the ultimate employment this year of approximately 25 to 30 people - primarily engineers and skilled technicians. In Old Saybrook, Vocaline operates a modern electronic and electro-mechanical manufacturing plant comprising over 35,000 square feet and employing 175 people.

Sales are stated to be at a rate at present of 2.5 million dollars annually.

Why A New High School For School District Five?

Planning Holds Down Costs of New Building

As discussion has developed on the need for a new high school in School District 5 two questions, related to planning and finances, have been voiced by many citizens. One is the important question of whether or not the $1,250,000 will provide a school building which will make possible an improved curriculum for high school students. The other is the question of how well the building has been planned from the standpoint of economy of construction.

In reference to the first of these questions it is safe to say that few school buildings have been as carefully planned to fit the needs of a curriculum as has the proposed new building. Planning for the building has been going on for the past year. Very early in the planning each department of the high school faculty met with the head of the firm of architects to discuss needs of each department. As the planning has progressed, staff members have been consulted as changes have been made.

In addition to conference with teachers the architects and the board of directors have worked closely with high school principal, A. Hamilton Boothby, and with Superintendent of Schools Bruce J. Kinney. In short, it may safely be said that the building plans which have finally been approved by the directors and on which the present estimates are based represents the best thinking of both the school staff and the citizens elected to manage the affairs of District 5.

In relation to the second question of economy of construction, there are several indications that the proposed building will represent an efficient expenditure of district funds. Two years ago when district plans were discussed and citizens voted to form a school district the need for a new high school was evident and recognized. Figures presented at that time by the study group estimated the cost of a new high school at $1,500,000. In view of the fact that building costs have risen steadily during that time the $1,250,000 requested in the bond issue vote Friday reflects a very careful consideration of costs in the planning of the structure. This is true even in light of the fact that the present plans call for a slightly smaller high school because one less town is included than in the first district planning.

Another measure of the economy of construction is the square foot cost. Estimates of costs for the type of construction chosen for the proposed building are about $11.15 per square foot. Some areas of the building will cost more and some less but the $11.15 figure represents the general average. This compares with construction costs running from $11.32 per square foot to much higher figures for schools constructed in other parts of Maine but built to somewhat different specifications. Many of these more expensive buildings were junior high and elementary buildings which do not demand some of the specialized space needed for a high school program.

In view of these figures it would appear that the suggested District 5 high school will provide an effective school at costs (Continued on Page Three)

Spectacular Sunday Fire Destroys Large Barn On Old County Road In Rockland

Roaring flames almost completely consumed this large barn on the property of Russell Bartlett, Old County Road, in less than half an hour, Sunday. The searing fire sent a column of black smoke high in the sky drawing hundreds of spectators. The two pictures were taken about 15 minutes apart. The upper photo shows the northeast corner about 10 minutes after firemen arrived. The lower photo is of the southwest corner. The barn, moved onto the property about 50 years ago, was empty. Two saddle horses were in a nearby pasture. Although firemen had not determined the cause, Bartlett told spectators it might have started from spontaneous combustion in a manure pile. He first noticed flames on the outside of the building near the pile. Wind drove the flames away from the house and all so only the barn was destroyed.

Bonfire Explodes Charged Can Wounding Youth In Leg At North Waldoboro Home

NORTH WALDOBORO—James Graffam, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Graffam of North Waldoboro was the victim of an unusual accident shortly after noon Monday when he was struck in the inside upper left leg by what was at first believed to be a bullet while sitting in the backyard of his home watching his mother burn rubbish. Later investigation proved that an aerosol bomb had exploded in the fire and a part of it had struck the boy.

He was rushed to Knox County General Hospital by his parents who had a State Police escort and was undergoing surgery at presstime. Hospital officials said that the object striking the boy narrowly missed the main artery of the leg.

James is the youngest son of the Graffams.

In other mishaps, Deborah Dyer, one and a half years old, was treated at the hospital for possible poisoning when she was believed to have swallowed some rat poison at the home of her grandmother. She was later released to her home, 10 Birch Street. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dyer. Charles Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Peters, 81 Waldo Street, was treated for a lacerated thumb and later released.

Shopping Around Has Results At Thomaston

Some Yankee shopping by town officers has brought a piece of equipment to Thomaston at a very low cost. Shown at left working on a sewer project on Beechwood Street is a six by six GMC truck with a mounted Leroy compressor which the town obtained from Army surplus for $125. Town Manager Archer Scribner, at the transit, explained the compressor will be removed from the truck in the winter and a plow will be mounted. Standing by the truck is highway foreman Ted Clukey, and holding the rod is Tauno Numinen. On the jack hammer is Donald Moody.

THOMASTON — A 400-foot sewer extension project is underway on Beechwood Street starting at the junction of Erin Street in Thomaston and a newly acquired piece of equipment and a new type of catch basin for the area are expected to help hold down the cost. Town Manager Archer Scribner explained last week.

A six by six Army surplus truck with mounted compressor which the town obtained for $125 will save renting a compressor and a cast cement catch basin is expected to cut labor costs on that item.

The compressor is capable of handling four jack hammers at a time and because it is mounted on the truck, it is very mobile.

A further expense saving feature of the project is that the sewer extension will be laid under the street shoulder most of the distance to save repaving.

The extension starts opposite the junction of Erin Street and runs to a new house being constructed by Thomaston contractor Arthur Henry.

At the end of the extension a catch basin will be set. For the first time in the area, Thomaston will use a cast cement basin. It is formed of two three-by-three lower sections and a dome. Scribner explained that the cost of brick and the cost of labor make the cast cement basin more economical to install than the old built up type. The cement basin has been used in other parts of the State.

THE LOSS MAY BE GREATER THAN WE KNOW

As we witnessed parades and memorial rites for the dead of all wars Monday we speculated as to what those heroes might have accomplished had they lived instead of giving their lives in the nation's conflicts. Would one of them have solved the riddle of cancer to benefit all mankind? Would others have contributed to the business and industrial progress of their communities? Would still others have become great teachers, or church leaders, or statesmen of world stature who would have led the nations down the paths of peace rather than the cold war we are now experiencing?

Mankind's loss may have been far greater in those men who became a wartime casualty statistic than we can ever realize.

CAMDEN SPLIT WITH LINCOLN GIVES IDLE WALDOBORO K-L DIAMOND CROWN FOR 1960

The Waldoboro Blue Jays became the 1960 champions of the Knox-Lincoln M League Friday as their closest rivals, the Camden Mustangs, bowed to Lincoln Academy 4-0 in the first game of a double header at Camden. The home team won the second game 3-1, but with one game to play, Camden is now two games out.

In other Friday action Wiscasset's Redskins soundly thumped Boothbay Region 12-2.

Camden lost it in the very first inning when Lincoln Academy scored three without benefit of a hit on four walks and two Camden errors. Tommy Wright of Lincoln Academy hurled a strong game, allowing only four scattered hits, one of which was a triple by Carleton Sprio. Bob Whiteley, who relieved starter Harlan Pierson in the first inning, fanned nine the rest of the way but his effort came too late.

Camden reversed things in the second game by also wrapping it up early, the two runs they scored in the second holding up behind the good hurling of Walt Drinkwater. In that frame three walks and singles by Wayne Hansen and Drinkwater accounted for the scoring. Two errors and a single by Ned Collins produced the only Lincoln Academy run in the third.

At Wiscasset, the Redskins scored heavily in the middle innings to take the win behind the four hit pitching of Bill LeBourdais. Errors and a Stan Foye double accounted for the Wiscasset winning margin. Eddie Leighton doubled three times for the winners.

Planning Holds

that are well below the average figures for school construction.

To get this low construction figure the single story plan was used with specifications calling for cinder block construction with brick veneer and an open rafter construction in the interior. The architects have pointed out that where level land is available the single story construction is much more economical as it reduces costs for structural steel, fireproof stairwells and heavier supporting walls needed in a multi-story building.

The total cost of $1,250,000 would be divided among the towns and the State as follows: State of Maine, $400,000; Rockland, $746,500; Owls Head, $69,250 and South Thomaston, $34,250. Included in the bond issue of $1,250,000 are of course items other than the cost of the bare building. A figure of $141,000 is marked for equipping the building to meet the needs of the improved curriculum planned. Another major item is a contingency fund of $67,915. This was included to prevent the necessity of going back for an additional bond issue if rising costs during the next few months should throw the estimates far out of line. Other items making up the total figure include architects fees, insurance, land, building inspection during construction and parking lot and physical education athletic field construction.

In determining the cost to each town over the coming years, two plans of payment were worked out, one based on a 25 year bond retirement plan and the other on a 21 year plan. Although the latter means slightly larger yearly payments it is favored by the board of directors since it means a saving of $135,000 in interest payments.

Under the plan which is preferred, payments would be made on the principal with interest payments reducing each year. This would mean that the first year in which principal payments were made would be the year of greatest cost.

During the year of greatest cost, Rockland's payment would be $68,678. This would represent a mill rate increase of 4.57. This would mean that a taxpayer now paying $100 in taxes would pay an additional $8.13. This amount would then reduce slightly each year. It has also been pointed out that the debt service payments now being made on the existing school debt will continue to grow smaller each year thus helping to absorb some of the increase of the new high school.

In Owls Head the largest yearly payment would be $6,371 representing a mill rate increase of 8.33. The cost to a taxpayer now paying a tax of $100 would be $12.08 during that year.

The largest payment for South Thomaston would be $3,151 making a mill rate increase of $4.82. This would represent an increase of $7.76 for each $100 of taxes now paid.

Another item to be considered is the effect that the new school will have on the operating costs of the district. The new plan of operation will call for the adding of two and one-half positions in the high school and two positions in the junior high school. These positions are needed to bring the high school and junior high school curriculum up to the desired standard and to secure accreditation for the high school. Included in these positions are those of full time librarian and additional physical education instruction, both demanded for accreditation whether or not a new building is constructed.

Other operational costs will not be increased as much as might be thought because of the fact that two elementary buildings, Tyler and Purchase Street, can be closed. This will mean that expenditures now being made in these buildings for janitorial service, fuel and maintenance can be applied to the new building resulting in very little increase in the total school budget for these items.

NOTES OF A POULTRYMAN

By Henry Teague

Five months have gone by since the beginning of the New Year and with the exception of a period of about three weeks before Easter, there has been little if any profit for the market egg farmer.

We hear reports very often that eggs are a scarce commodity and that some handlers are finding it difficult to get enough eggs to fill their orders, but this not only does not seem to move prices up, but these prices have kept dropping back until at the present moment all eggs, brown and white are in the thirties. The real pay off for the brown came last week when extra large browns tumbled eight cents a dozen and all other sizes dropped some.

This has sent a lot of old fowl to market, but the poultryman is not winning in that direction either for fowl immediately took a six cent drop and if eggs stay down, fowl will probably go still lower.

One might say that most poultrymen are both scared and mad. They have listened to such pleasant predictions during the past few months about the scarcity of eggs and layers as well as new pullets. If statistics compiled by the USDA are anywhere near right, eggs certainly should be ten or more cents higher right now and all set for a rise into the sixties later on this summer.

As usual we do not have a clear picture of the situation, both present and future. How many big deals are going on that are putting thousands of new layers into production? If you know of a few such promotions, the chances are good that here are many more.

The squeeze is still on for the small poultryman and even if there is some let up this summer and fall, it certainly appears that it will not be long before we are put in a corner again.

We have needed some clear answers for a long time now and unless we get them very soon we will no longer need them for we will not even be interested in eggs any more.

For example, what do we need to know? We need accurate figures on total bird population in every area. We need accurate knowledge as to how many eggs are coming into New England at the present time. We need to know how many pullets have actually been started this season and how many more are going to be started in the immediate future. We need to know just how many less eggs consumers are buying these days. We need to know whether our markets really reflect supply and demand in pricing of whether they are rigged to provide for storage at lower prices and then boosted so that the stored eggs will bring extra profit.

We need a lot of other information too for if the market is actually manipulated as we think it might be, what hope have we that we can ever again get a decent price for our eggs? I have been talking with a few poultrymen lately and they seem to be interested in a meeting where the situation can be talked over. They do not really believe that we will come up with the answers, but they think that we should at least present an organized front.
