Rockport Youth Seriously Hurt When His Motorcycle Upsets In Rockville Tossing Him Onto Wall

ROCKVILLE — A 17 year old Rockport youth, Daniel St. Clair, suffered severe injuries about 7 o'clock Monday evening when a motorcycle he was operating went out of control on Rockville Street, Rockport, dumped him and a passenger and bounced on top of St. Clair before coming to rest some distance away.

He was taken to Knox Hospital where at press time, Monday, he was still in the emergency room. St. Clair landed draped over a stone wall and, according to an eye witness, the bike landed on top of him, then it bounced away to come to rest some 35 to 40 feet away on the opposite side of the road.

A passenger, Erwin L. Sprague,

16, was tossed off the bike but apparently did not suffer serious injury.

The accident happened on the brow of a hill on the road that goes from Route 1, Rockport, to Rockville. The motorcycle was traveling easterly and apparently was out of control about 150 feet before it hit the dirt shoulder on the north side of the road dumping the driver and passenger.

Sprague apparently hit the shoulder and escaped the hurtling cycle. St. Clair was found in a heap on top of the wall.

Investigating State Troopers George Masse and Lawrence Chapman picked up a booklet on the proper operation of a motorcycle as they cleared away the debris to take measurements.

Rockland and Waldoboro In Linnox Wins

Rockland and Waldoboro won Babe Ruth Linnox League games easily Friday night. Rockland took an 18-4 decision over St. George and Waldoboro swamped Thomaston 14-3.

Rockland piled up enough to win as early as the second inning when they scored five runs with the aid of a double by Mike McGuire, singles by Howard Lowell and Tim Woodman, a walk, and a hit batsman. Jeff Madore worked well on the mound for the baby Tigers and was given fine support. Tim Woodman was the Rockland batting star with four bingles; Billy Johnson and Al Leppanen had two apiece for the losers.

At Waldoboro, the home team scored four in the first to take the lead for good behind the excellent two hit pitching of Bob Crabtree. Waldoboro was helped by the nine walks issued by three Clipper hurlers and Hal Kennedy weighed in with a three run homer in the second to put his team out of reach.

Jimmy Graffam, Wally Heathcote, and Dick Autio all had two hits for the winners while Dick Robinson and Duane Sawyer were the only Clippers able to solve Crabtree's delivery.

Scores:
Rockland 450 036 0—18-13-1
St. George 000 400 0—4-8-5
Madore and Pine; Davis, Lombardo (7) and Stewart.
Thomaston 120 000 0—3-2-1
Waldoboro 441 141 x—14-10-4
Sawyer, Melvin (2), Keyes (6) and Watts; Crabtree and Creamer, Jackson (6).

gawa in careful English when interviewed Monday.

Miss Nakagawa was a dormitory mate of Susan at LaSalle Junior College in Boston this past winter. The petite student is the daughter of a physician in Japan which gave the girls a common bond.

In regard to President Eisenhower's visit to Japan and the anti-American actions, Miss Nakagawa said she was sure the trouble was caused by only a small group of communists.

What impressed her most in the United States? "Everything," she exclaimed with a smile. The Dennisons plan to show their guest as much of the coastal area as possible in a few days. A trip to the seashore and to area lakes was in store for Monday.

Miss Nakagawa spent a year at LaSalle through the aid of a friend of her family. Her father visited the United States not so long ago to attend a Rockefeller Foundation medical course at New York City.

On returning to Japan this summer, she will prepare to enter college in Tokyo. She is a liberal arts student who will choose her major field at the end of the next academic year.

After 19 Years Camden's Lucky Strike Alleys To Have New Home On Rt.1

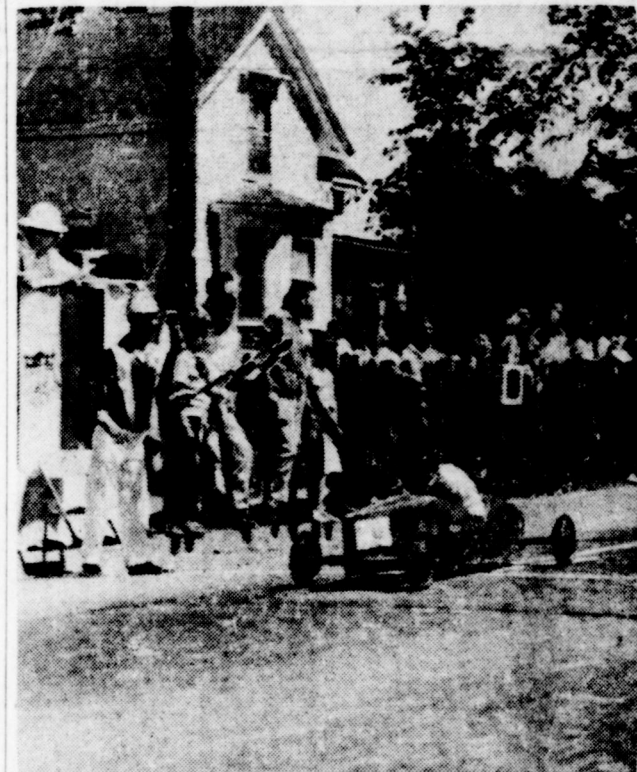

CAMDEN — A new bowling alley will be erected in Camden this summer on Route 1 it is announced by Mrs. Dora Packard, operator of the Lucky Strike Alleys. The building will house the alleys located for some years on Washington Street.

A building large enough to house eight or ten alleys will be built on a site almost opposite Marion Village. The Washington Street building is in need of repair and offers no opportunity for expansion, Mrs. Packard said. Mrs. Packard and her husband, William, have been operating the Camden alleys for 19 years. They will continue to run candlepin bowling.

The number of alleys will depend in part on the amount of interest in league bowling. Mrs. Packard asks those who may or may not have bowled this year in leagues to contact her if they

A WARM PUBLIC RESPONSE

The response of the public to the appeal for funds with which to send the Rockland High School debating team to San Diego was a heartwarming experience, both for the staff of The Courier-Gazette, who sponsored the campaign, and Henry Marsh who served as fund drive chairman. Alumni of the school, persons who never attended the school but have become local residents since their school days, clubs, business firms and corporations joined the students of several classes in raising the fund. The debaters are a distinct credit to the community and every best wish goes with them as they enter National Forensic League competition. The youngsters are fortunate to make their homes in a community which so quickly recognized their accomplishments and extended its full support. It is good to live in a town which will do things such as this.

A POSTAGE STAMP FEEBLE AID TO FISHERMEN

The other day there was a shower of press releases out of Washington and Augusta heralding a new postage stamp which recognized the fishing industry. The stamp was the first ever issued by the Post Office Department which had commercial fisheries as its theme. It was good, and probably a step in the right direction, but of very little comfort to boat owners and fishermen who are facing an ever increasing flood of fish and fish products from foreign nations. The present Administration has repeatedly refused to support tariffs on fish imports which, if properly imposed, could aid in the rebuilding of commercial fisheries in the United States. Within the past few days, Congress completed action on a bill which would provide a subsidy of $2,500,000 for fishing boat construction over a three year period. This figure sounds huge, but when one considers that trawlers such as those which sail out of Rockland for 40 Fathom Fisheries would cost a half million today; and consider all the trawlers which need replacing on all the coasts of the United States, it is a pretty feeble effort. Perhaps, only a token gesture to quiet the fisheries people fighting to preserve an industry while untold millions are dumped into support of agriculture to build huge surpluses. American fisheries are just not getting the break from the government which they are entitled to receive.

THE PRESIDENT ON AN ESSENTIAL TRIP

The President is on his way to Japan where a hostile minority awaits him on his goodwill tour of the East. No doubt, he faces the prospects of Communist-inspired demonstrations in much the same manner as he faced the problems of World War 2 with the possible benefits carefully weighed against the hazards of the venture. Although he is now several years removed from military life he is unquestionably a soldier by training and long practice. His thinking will doubtless be that of a soldier facing the ordeal of battle and will consider the visit to Japan as a job to be done, and to the best of his ability. Even those high in government who at first opposed the trip as too dangerous have now joined in the thinking that it is essential to the continuation of good relations with the peoples in the East. Rousing welcomes are being planned for him in the Philippines, Taiwan and South Korea. In Japan, it may be expected that the government and the majority of the people, who are friendly to the United States, will have suppressed the Communist, Socialist, Left Wingers and Fifth Columnists who gave press secretary James Hagerty a bad time on his visit to arrange the trip of the President. This trip in the closing months of his second term may be President Eisenhower's greatest role as president.

SECOND DIVISION CLUBS WIN WEEKEND TWILIGHT CONTESTS

The Thomaston Clippers and St. George Torpedoes both won Knox-Lincoln Twilight League games Sunday and tightened up the hot pennant race as a result. Thomaston won a wild 15-12 decision over Waldoboro at Thomaston and St. George turned back the invading Damariscotta Red-legs 6-0. Waldoboro and Damariscotta, tied for the lead, are now only a game ahead of Sunday's winners.

Buster Kennedy blasted a three run homer for the Clippers to highlight a five run fifth inning, all the runs being unearned as they were set up by errors. In the eighth, Tink Powell of Waldoboro belted a grand slam homer to again put Waldoboro in front, but in their half of the inning the Clippers wrapped it up with a five run spurge of their own. The decisive rally was kept alive by a Buster Kennedy double, singles by Lou Cook, Gary Seavey and Doug Miller, plus two walks and a wild pitch. Kennedy waited the result of a blood test. The motion to continue was made by Attorney Alan Grossman who represented Beggs and the latter was released upon posting bail of $300.

SUEZ, GIBRALTAR LAST STOPS OF INTEREST ON WORLD TOUR OF COUPLE FROM THOMASTON

Port Taufig, Arabia
May 6, 1960

Dear Friends:
We came into Port Taufig at 2:30 a. m. At quarter of three I was on deck. A launch brought the company agent and others aboard. It was soon plain they had it in for American ships. They wouldn't even let the agent bring our mail out or take mail in. We couldn't land as no launch would take us. What a terrible disappointment that was! At 3:30 a. m. a man was aboard passing out flyers telling labor unions to get rid of Zionism, etc., etc.

A little later two boat loads of newspaper men and pickets came aboard and took pictures. The pickets chanted "Go home, Yankee. Long live Nasser". Some drew their fingers across their throats. We laughed and waved. They waved back and laughed.

It seemed a long time to breakfast at 7:30. A pilot came aboard and we had a message to proceed at 8:05. We were fourth in a convoy of 12 ships. We soon got into the narrow canal going eight miles an hour. It was really cool. I got my long coat which I started out in last January. It was comfortable until 9 o'clock, when I began to peel off. At five o'clock it was 120 degrees in the shade. I felt like J. E. Lawrence when he said, "The heat of Arabia came out and struck us speechless."

From Port Taufig we could see stretching away to the west, a large and modern looking city. On the Arabian side of the canal were sand dunes, stretching as far as the eye can see. Workers were dredging sand from the canal and piling it up in hills back a little. There were occasional groups of tents and adobe houses with camels in an enclosure or coming in from across the desert. Men digging the sand near the canal and piling it up further back looked like ants building an anthill or the slaves of Pharaoh's time building a pyramid, in their long black or white kafiyas. I think that it is the world. I can't find it in Tom's dictionary.

On the Egyptian side were more settlements as there is a fresh water canal, running all the way up, for irrigation, drinking, washing and small boats. There were many lush looking irrigated strips; some had onions, some beans and some were very green. We couldn't tell what it was—probably some kind of grain. There were threshing floors where we could see the straw piled in one heap and grain in another.

When we got to Great Bitter Lake, we anchored for two hours to let the convoy from Port Said pass us. It consisted of about 25 ships.

Above the lake is an impressive monument of two shafts of sand colored stone to those who died in World War I. In many places, salt water was being evaporated.

At Ismailia, a canal runs west to the Nile below Cairo. Near here is a fine hospital built high above the canal. We passed feluccas with sails and many small boats with motors. Many shouted insults as we passed.

Toward the northern end there was an open flat space that stretches away for miles. The captain showed us that we could see the curvature of the earth—the only place in the world. I should think it could be seen on the prairies, too.

On both sides, cement side-walls were being put in to prevent the waves from washing the sand away. Still the wind was blowing the sand in clouds—part of which must have dropped into the canal.

As we came into Suez at 10 p. m., we could just see the outline of the domed Suez Canal Co. building and the lighthouse which is 174 feet high and can be seen 24 miles at sea.

We were met with quite a escort when the company agent came aboard. There were loud speakers and yells of derision. Still no mail! When the agent left, one of the boats came up to his boat and he had to shove his bag to make sure he carried no mail back. We all had letters and cards which were really important and this was our last chance before Halifax. By 10:30 we had turned west in the Mediterranean.

When the canal was opened in 1869, the Empress Eugenie was present with a flotilla of 60 ships. To take care of all the guests, the Khedive of Egypt hired 500 cooks and 1000 servants.

May 7—Nothing but sea. The temperature is 72 degrees and we are nearly frozen. It was very windy. We got out our heavy clothes again. Three or four doves followed us and settled in the rigging. Leon said they were mourning doves but they were different from our mourning doves.

May 8—Temperature 62 degrees. Still windy. We had the heat turned on again. It doesn't seem possible. Two days ago we only wanted to be cold!

At dinner Mrs. M. said to Joe, "Why are you so quiet, Joe?" Joe's voice rang through the dining room. "Mrs. Moss, when I talk, I don't learn anything." We all laughed as she loves to talk. She was a good sport and laughed too, but she had no answer for Joe.

May 9—Now I know we are getting home. There are real herring gulls following us. About supper time a submarine appeared, coming in our direction.

SUMMER COURSES IN MATH AND DRIVER EDUCATION TO BE GIVEN AT WARREN HIGH

WARREN—Earle M. Spear, superintendent of schools in the Driver Education

car. The maximum number that can take the course will have to be limited to about 32 students. Since most students will be working during the day, it is planned to hold the classwork in the evening for one or more hours an evening, starting at 7 p. m. The road work will be arranged to be given during the day for those students who are not working or may only be working part time. Those employed regularly during the day will have to take the road work on evenings that the class does not meet. Road instruction to be given only during daylight hours. The course will run for approximately six weeks.

The high cost of living today causes many people to hurry to get ahead.

Don't Try To Make Pets of Young Deer

AUGUSTA—If you find a fawn deer which appears to have been deserted by its mother, please leave it there, the Maine Fish and Game Department says. The mother deer is probably watching you, waiting to get back to her youngster. And she does a much better job of raising it than any mere human. Also, when winter comes, the fawn raised in the woods is much better prepared for survival than the one reared in captivity.

Every spring, game wardens all over Maine receive from 25 to 50 fawns from people who found them where their mother had "deserted them". These deer must then be taken to the state game farm in Gray or to the home of Klir Beck, naturalist and artist, who raises them for the state. The following summer, these yearling deer are released in the woods, in areas where there is sufficient feed and light hunting pressure. All of this is an unnecessary expenditure of time and money by the Fish and Game Department. More important, the deer raised in captivity is missing the lessons of survival it would be learning in the woods. So, after caring for the deer for several months, and releasing it in a carefully chosen area, it's still a gamble whether the newcomer in the wilds will win its battle for survival.

While some does are killed by cars, dogs, bobcats, and so on, in most cases the mother of the apparent orphan is standing nearby, out of sight, waiting for the people to move on. When this happens, the doe comes out of the woods and resumes her care and feeding of the "helpless fawn".

Remains of temples, cities, buildings and roads in various parts of the Sahara (larger than the U. S.) show plainly that it was productive and inhabited at one time.
