First National Bank Buys GAR Hall, Copper Kettle For New Building

First Major Change In Business District For Nearly Decade To Be Colonial Brick Building

President Hubert A. Hauck of the First National Bank of Portland announced Friday afternoon the plans for the construction of a brick, Colonial design bank building on the site of the Copper Kettle and Grand Army Hall in Rockland. The structure will house the First National's Rockland branch offices, until recent months the First National Bank of Rockland. The two banks merged March 31 of this year.

The sale of the site of the new bank structure was carried out through the James Cousens real estate agency. The Copper Kettle was purchased from Mrs. Patricia Huntley of Rockland while the Grand Army Hall was sold by the Civil War Memorial Association. Both buildings will be razed to make room for the new building.

The bank offered the Civil War

Memorial Association $35,000 for its property, plus the costs of moving the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument to a new location chosen by the Association. While the amount paid for the Copper Kettle was not revealed, the property had been on the market for some months at a figure reported in the vicinity of $35,000.

The area is bounded by Limerock Street to the north; School Street to the south; Union Street to the west and by Post Office Square to the east. The section contains approximately 19,000 square feet. The two lots measure 153 feet on Limerock Street, 101 feet on Union Street, 160 feet on School Street and 136 feet across Post Office Square.

The proposal to purchase was placed before the Civil War Memorial Association trustees three weeks ago by Cousens who at that time was not free to reveal the identity of the prospective purchaser. He offered a deposit of $1,000 to bind the possible deal; offered to relocate the Soldiers and Sailors Monument at the purchaser's expense and assist the association in establishing itself in a new home.

The Richard Leavitt residence at 104 Limerock Street was then available as a possible GAR Hall. The trustees have since inspected the home and apparently plan to buy it at $16,500. It was pointed out at the meeting during which the GAR Hall purchase was offered that the Civil War Memorial Association could buy the home; remodel it and then have sufficient funds left with which to establish an irrevocable trust for maintenance of the building in the years ahead.

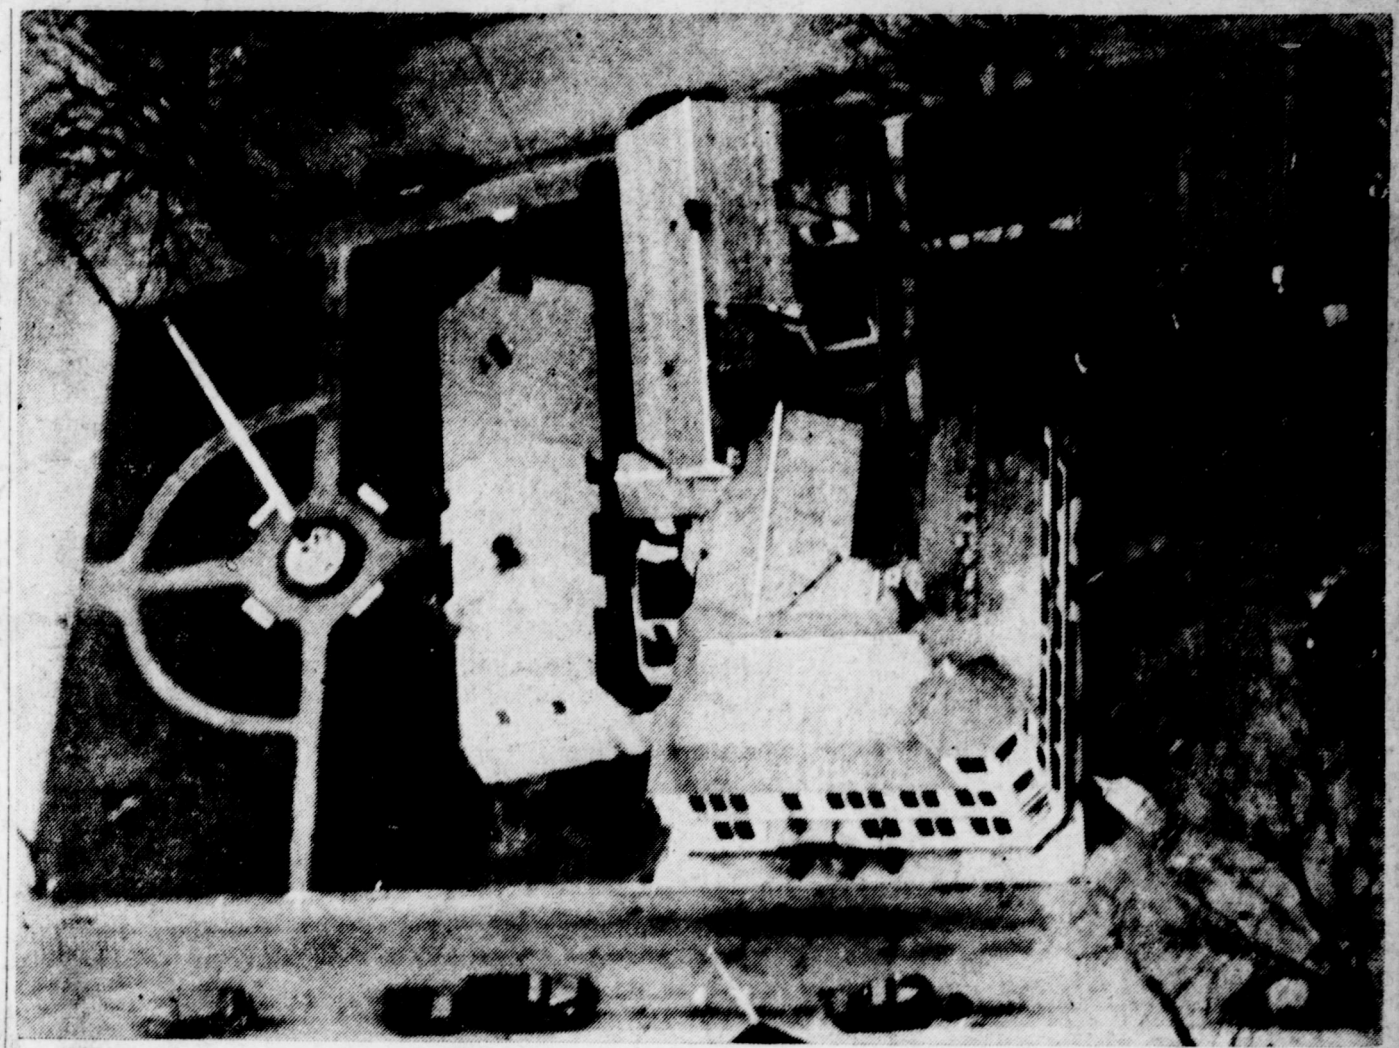

Hauck said that a one or two story brick building will be constructed on the lot and will have a drive-in banking window for persons in their cars as well as modern banking facilities inside. The area will permit construction of ample parking facilities about the new building for customers and employees of the bank.

The razing of the two old wooden buildings will continue the pattern which has been forming in that area of the city's business section for some years. The new brick banking institution will fit into the construction picture set by the Community Building, Knox Hospital, Court House, Telephone Building, and the Post Office.

Hauck said that plans for the new building have yet to be drawn, but that bank officers have reached a decision as to the type of structure with other details yet to be worked out with architects.

The bank owns the building which it now occupies on Main Street and presumably will put it on the real estate market as the new building nears completion.

The aerial view above shows the complete area involved in the transaction this week between the First National Bank of Portland, the Civil War Memorial Association and Mrs. Patricia Huntley. The Copper Kettle is the larger building at the right which extends from School Street in the foreground to Limerock Street in the background and faces on Post Office Square at the right. The GAR Hall is the smaller structure at the center left which faces the park area bounded by Union at the left, Limerock and School Streets. The Soldiers and Sailors Monument is in the center of the park area. Both buildings will be vacated soon and then razed to make way for construction of a Colonial type brick structure which will house the Rockland office of the First National Bank of Portland.

City Farm Barn Blaze Draws Big Crowd To Lake Avenue Wednesday

Leaping flames from the ruins of the old City Farm barn off Lake Avenue, Wednesday night, drew many spectators including off duty patrolman John Low. As The Courier-Gazette photographer returned to Lake Avenue from the fire scene some 1,200 feet away, he discovered Low watching the blaze through a pair of field glasses. Idle chatter about the possibility of taking a picture through the field glasses resulted in the shot above. It was a two-man job as the shot was first focused through the focusing lens of an Ikonflex camera, then Low moved the field glass piece to the lens. The picture was shot at f 5.6 at a 50th of a second on film rated about 300.

The large barn at the former city poor farm on the West Meadow Road burned late Wednesday night. The large 50 x 100 foot structure was in the process of being torn down and all the good lumber had been removed, according to Fire Chief Wesley Knight who said that there was no loss involved.

The spectacular blaze was in progress for over 20 minutes before the fire department was summoned, as many who saw it thought that the city was deliberately burning it down. By the time they arrived there was little to do but wet down the remains. A huge crowd jammed Lake Avenue and Route 17 to watch the fire which was visible for a great distance.

It was necessary to string hose for nearly three-quarters of a mile to the nearest hydrant and portable pumps were also used in combating the flames.

Moore Withdraws As Candidate For Legislature To Accept Post In Gov. Reed's Campaign

OWLS HEAD — The appointment of Louis F. Moore of Owls Head, veteran Maine newsman and a Democratic candidate for the Legislature, as Public Relations Director for the Reed for Governor campaign, was announced Friday by Col. Harry A. Mapes, campaign manager.

Moore has submitted his withdrawal from the Legislative race in the class towns of Cushing, Owls Head, South Thomaston, Thomaston and Friendship to Deputy Secretary of State Paul MacDonald.

Recalled as a captain to active Army duty in 1950, Moore was named a press and liaison officer to the United Nations Command Military Armistice delegation in 1952. Following the signing of the Armistice in July, 1953, Moore was named chief of the News Transmission Branch of the Far East Command in Tokyo, Japan, and later made deputy news chief, Far East.

He returned to Maine in 1954 and after working in television and radio news was named to the Rockland bureau of the Gannett newspapers.

Moore resigned early this year to enter the insurance field.

He lives in Owls Head with his wife, the former Irene Graham of Calais and the couple's three children.

An Army Reserve major, Moore recently was assigned as public information officer, to State Headquarters, Maine National Guard, in the office of Major General Edwin Heywood, Adjutant General.

Colonel Mapes said Moore would assume his new duties immediately.

APPLETON HIRES ROCKLAND MAN AS FIRST PRINCIPAL OF THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

APPLETON — For the first time in history Appleton will have an elementary school principal. The Appleton School Board, Thursday night, voted to hire Robert Merriam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Merriam of Rockland, for the position.

Merriam graduated in June from Gordon College, Beverly Farms, Mass., with a bachelors degree in education. He will be teaching the upper grades at the village school.

A teaching vacancy was created by the resignation of Mrs. Esther Moody.

The board also has hired Kenneth Orcutt of Rockland who will teach science in the high school. He is a graduate of Northeastern University in Boston with a degree in chemistry. It will be his first teaching assignment. He is completing University of Maine extension courses this summer. In addition to science, he will teach mathematics.

Before The Courier-Gazette changed to a plastic photo engraving process, Orcutt was the paper's engraver. Since then, he has been in the advertising department, as a salesman and manager, and a compositor.

Ten-Year Old Catches Spirit Of the Fourth

OWLS HEAD—The spirit of the Fourth of July and the reminder of its true meaning was brought to the attention of the members of her family by 10-year-old Susan Hufnagel at a family party held on the Fourth by Bill

Reilly at the new summer home he has just purchased in Owls Head. Just before the serving of a lobster and steak dinner, Monday, Susan asked everyone to be quiet, as she had a program to present to them.

When she had everyone's attention, she asked her father to raise the new 50-star flag and requested that the group give the salute. She then led them all in the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner".

It Will Be A Picnic In The Park At Belfast's Annual Broiler Festival Saturday

BELFAST—It will be picnic-in-the-park time Saturday, July 9, when the Maine Broiler Festival again offers a full day of fun and feasting at Belfast City Park overlooking scenic Penobscot Bay.

The 12th annual "World's Largest Outdoor Chicken Barbecue" will get underway at 10:30 a. m., and from then until 4 p. m., a three-shift crew of some 150 men and women will be busy turning out 2,500 chicken dinners per hour from the 280 feet of charcoal-fed barbecue pits.

Guaranteed to be one of the outstanding food values for Maine natives and visitors alike, the ticket price will still buy a complete barbecued dinner including a golden brown Maine chicken half and all the trimmings.

A 100 foot long conveyor belt will quickly move the birds from pit to serving table as a guarantee against "waiting lines".

Expected to attract more than 15,000 guests, the entire Saturday program will be staged for the enjoyment of the general public. Friday, July 8, will be devoted to members of the poultry industry. Arrangements have been made for the Festival to be held in the park, rain or shine. Inaugurating a new "rainy day" policy, Festival chairman Donald Constable of Unity, has appointed Robert McGowan of Waterville, and William P. Charron, assistant chief, Division of Markets, Maine Department of Agriculture to work with him as rainy day coordinators.

In the event of rain, a drive-in, pick-up service will be set up. Barbecue pits will be covered and visitors will be served in their cars. They will then have a choice of driving to the parking areas designated and eat in their cars or they may use the facilities of three huge tents erected on the grounds. All exhibits, displays, and entertainment, as well as the eating program, will then be presented under canvas.

Parking areas have been graded and should be in good condition regardless of the weather, the committee reports.

Highlighting the day-long entertainment features of the Festival will be the coronation of the Maine Poultry Queen at 2 p. m.

Throughout the park, exhibits and displays, both static and live, and demonstrations of poultry cutting, backyard barbecuing, egg candling and poultry preparation and cooking will be conducted by state and national poultry experts.

Top quality, packaged, ready-to-cook Maine broilers will be on sale all day.

A live chicken weight-guessing contest will give young and old alike an opportunity to participate. A backyard barbecue grill will be awarded to the guesser who comes closest to the actual total weight of a pen of live birds.

The park's outdoor, fresh water swimming pool will be available to the public, with a life-guard on duty, between performances of a synchronized swimming team, the Bangor YWCA Flamingos.

Money will buy a dog, but only love will make him wag his tail.

For every human on earth to have 2,600 calories per day (the established minimum for good health), it would take TWICE the amount of food produced yearly in the entire world. And yet, the world's population is increasing by some 100,000 per day (excess of births over deaths). It looks like many will have to go hungry.

Indian Relics Uncovered At Union

Four of the better specimens of Indian relics found in a gravel pit on the Bliss Fuller, Jr., farm in Union are shown above. Along the top are a broken and a perfect spear or arrow head. The complete one is five and one-half inches long and the two are made of Kineo type flint. At the right on top is a plummet or weight, used by Indians on fish nets. The large tool at the bottom is a gouge. It was worn smooth and had been sharpened. It was hewn from a sedimentary rock. It was used to hollow wood. The articles were loaned by Fuller for the picture. Many others were found.

By Malcolm Stark

UNION—The finding of a few Indian relics in a newly opened gravel pit in the town of Union may not be sensational news to many of those living in the Georges River Valley, however, it is of lasting interest. Parts of the valley have very colorful history. Old timers tell of the "Copper Mine" in Appleton and of the Canal that follows the river up through Union and Appleton. Novels have been written with parts of the valley as their setting. Traces of an Indian camping ground or burial ground certainly adds to this fund of lore.

Such traces were uncovered, last week, on the Bliss Fuller Farm in Union. When the sod and topsoil were removed to uncover the good road gravel the ash remains of several large camp fires were uncovered. The finding of some Indian arrow heads led to the belief that the fire remains could be of Indian origin. Wendell Hadlock of the Farnsworth Museum was called to investigate. By then the earth had been stripped a bit deeper and layers of a red clay-like substance were uncovered. This showed the site was definitely used by Indians.

Bliss Fuller, Jr., enthused by such findings, started excavating beneath one of the ash piles with a shovel. By chance Fuller unearthed a pocket, that contained what many archeologists would give a great deal to have the thrill of finding. Below a layer of the red substance (ochre) and above a thin layer of black substance (possibly decayed wood) he unearthed a fine specimen of a stone spear head, several broken spearheads, many unfinished stone spear or arrow heads, a fish net weight shaped from stone and other unidentified implements of stone as well as a few bits of bone. Another implement worn smooth by use was found near the surface some distance from the first find.

Body Found Off Matinicus By The Louise G

At press time Friday afternoon the Coast Guard cutter Snohomish was enroute to Rockland with a badly decomposed body of a man found 25 miles south southeast of Matinicus by the fishing vessel Louis G. No identification had been made.

Chief Boatswain Brock of the Coast Guard Mooring in Rockland said that a call was received by radio from Capt. Elmer Gross of the trawler at 10 a. m. Friday and the Snohomish was dispatched to take the body from the fishing vessel at 10:30. The cutter met the Louise G at the approximate location where the body was found and took it aboard at 2:30 p. m.

No further details were available other than information that Dr. David Mann of Camden, a Knox County medical examiner, would meet the Snohomish when she docked at Rockland at 7:15 p. m.

There was speculation on the waterfront that the body might be one of three persons lost when a small boat upset off Cape Elizabeth about three weeks ago.

One traffic expert suggests that farm tractors adopt the device used by some trucking firms to make vehicles show up better on highways at night — oversized trademarks made of reflective sheeting which can be seen as far away as 2,500 feet in the headlights of following cars.

Women Put Final Touches On Plans For Community Club Carnival At Union

UNION — The largest July event in the town of Union will take place on Union Common, Thursday night, when the Women's Community Club presents its annual carnival. Festivities open at 4 p. m. with a doll carriage and bicycle parade.

An international atmosphere will be created on the Common with booths featuring food from Hawaii, Alaska, Finland, Italy and of course, the United States. Booths will open at 5 o'clock.

The Union school band will present its first summer concert at 7 p. m. on the Village Green and band awards for the year will be presented.

Freeman Garniss, band director, states a band rehearsal will be held on July 14 from 10 a. m. to 12 noon in the music room of the Thompson Memorial Building.

Cogitates Colossal Clam

SPRUCE HEAD—Robert Curtis, a young clam digger from Cushing, proudly exhibits the largest clam he and a number of other diggers in the Spruce Head area ever saw. Dig Friday morning, the clam measured six inches along its shell and four inches wide. The neck was extended six inches. It definitely was of the steamer variety rather than a hen clam. The shell was white along the edge and dark at the hinge.

Council To Give Three Ordinances Final Reading

Final reading will be given three ordinances at the regular monthly meeting of the Rockland City Council Monday evening. One is to establish an Industrial E Zone on the New County Road; a continued public hearing on an amendment regarding taxicab stands and bus stops; and one to change the phrasing on city ordinances applying to taxicabs.

A victualer's license application from Dorothy Monson, doing business at the Dam Site near Chickawankie Lake, will be considered, as well as petitions to remedy the allegedly unsafe condition of the brook on Gay Street and for a new sidewalk on Granite Street from Union Street West to the brook.

Also to be heard will be the minutes of the planning Board meeting of July 7.

CONFIDENCE IN KNOX COUNTY

Rockland's newest business partner has expressed the utmost confidence in the future of the community and the Coastal Area which it serves. We refer to the First National Bank of Portland which announces in this edition the construction of a bank building, the cost of which may reach a quarter million dollars. The Portland bank merged with the First National Bank of Rockland last spring and in a few short months has moved ahead with acquisition of the GAR Hall and Copper Kettle sites adjoining Post Office Square and today announces plans for construction. The merger brought to Knox County business firms the facilities of the larger bank and with them far greater loaning power, increasing the local bank's single loan maximum from $42,000 to $600,000.

LIONS CLUB AT THOMASTON DISBANDS AFTER MEMBERSHIP DROPS TO JUST SEVEN MEN

THOMASTON—The Lions Club of Thomaston, which had been in existence for over nine years, disbanded as of June 30 with only seven of the original members left: John Hill, Dr. Frederick Dennison, Darold Hocking, Douglas Brooks, Victor Hills, William Vinal and Lawrence Hill.

The club has taken part in many worthwhile projects to benefit the community, notably the outdoor basketball court at the Lura Libby School which cost in the neighborhood of $3,000; assisting in the upkeep of the skating rink; furnishing toys for needy children; and making donations to various drives both on the national and local scale.

Over the years, the club held rummage sales, auctions, light bulb sales, and sponsored the World of Mirth Carnival for two years in their money raising efforts.

The remaining active members voted to disband due to the increasing lack of interest on the community level. The club has asked the Town of Thomaston to accept a gift of $1,300, with the stipulation that a bond be purchased, the income from which to be used to equip some needy child with glasses each year.

Cousens Heads Olympic Fund In Local Area

James Cousens of Rockland has been named the Rockland area chairman of the Maine Olympic Fund campaign which will be carried out next week. He was named by Hubert Hauck of Portland, state chairman.

The Maine group is seeking funds to help American athletes to the Olympic games in Rome this summer. A $25 donation will bring the donor an Olympic book which will be completed at the close of the games.

Cousens has enlisted the aid of George Huntley, D. Robert McCarty, Charles Wotton and Raymond Gross to solicit funds for the campaign in the Rockland area. Any donation will be gratefully received, Cousens said.

Clowns To Bring Full Satchel of Tricks On Monday

It will be all in fun when the fabulous Indianapolis Clowns pull out all the items from their bag of tricks against the classy N. Y. Royals ball club at South Field in Rockland, commencing at 6 p. m. Monday evening.

The Clowns have made merry on the basepaths for 30 years all over the country, and have built their act to include rock n' roll, slow-motion shadowball and acrobatic routines.

The Clowns don't merely clown, however. The club has produced many top stars over its history, including Milwaukee Braves' star Hank Aaron.

Tempering their comedy with a large helping of talent, the Clowns have taken the measure of such outstanding opponents as Jackie Robinson's Major League All-Stars, and the Nashville Vols of the Southern Association.

The Clowns will bring their outstanding 1960 stars to town, including showboating first sacker Natureboy Williams; "Two-Way" Grand Greene, ambidextrous pitcher; the Great Yogi, most amazing performer to ever don a baseball uniform; Byron Burnell, whom a number of Major League Clubs are now bidding for; and others.

Little Leaguers in regulation baseball uniform will be admitted free to watch the funmaking Clowns play baseball.

Second place winners were the team of Mrs. Meredith Dondis, Mrs. Brad Adams and Mrs. Lincoln McRae, Sr., with 33. Mrs. Brad Adams had the lowest number of putts, 31.

CLIPPERS FIND RANGE TO DUMP REDLEGS WHILE SAINTS WERE SWAMPING WALDOBORO

The Thomaston Clippers broke out in a rash of base hits to defeat the league leading Damariscotta Redlegs 14-8 Thursday evening and St. George defeated Waldoboro 15-4. As a result the Twilight League race tightened, with only three games now separating last place Thomaston and the top flight Redlegs.

Wildness on the part of Redleg pitchers also hurt their cause badly and rallies by the Clippers of five runs in the second and six in the third were kept going by walks. The winning third inning splurge was also helped along with a double by Doug Miller and singles by Floyd Johnson, George Alex, and Jim Halligan.

Halligan lost his stuff in the fourth and seven runs came over before Ronnie Hill could put out the fire in relief. The only homer of the game was a first inning bases empty blast by Bob Latter which gave the Redlegs their only lead of the night. Latter had two hits and Johnson three for the Clippers.

At St. George, the home forces dropped it up with nine in the second aided by three errors, catcher's interference, and singles by Charlie Mahoney, Hilding Seastrom, Bud Hodgkins, Gary Hyvarinen and Walt Drinkwater. Mahoney fanned seven and scattered eight hits over the route in picking up his second win for St. George and teammate Bud Hodgkins chimed in with three hits.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my "Son", Sgt. Kenneth C. Robinson, who was killed in action in Korea, July 6, 1953.

From our happy home and circle God has taken one we loved. He is borne away from sin and sorrow

To a nobler rest above. No one knows how much I miss you "Son"

No one knows the bitter pain I have suffered since I lost you. Life has never been the same. In my heart your memory lingers, sweetly, tender, fond and true. There is not a day, dear "Son", I do not think of you.

Why you went we will never know. All we know is we loved you so; We changed our star from blue to gold

And, within our hearts so true, Remains our precious love for you.

Time speeds on, "seven" years have passed Since death, its gloom, its shadow cast

Within our home, where all seemed bright And took from us a shining light

He gently closed his loving eyes And whispered peace be thine. "Son" never seemed his country's call

But gladly gave his life, his all He died, the helpless to defend. A faithful soldier's end.

Never to be forgotten, Mom, Bessie O'Sullivan and Johnnie.

Ketch Launched At Thomaston Yard

New ketch floats off the cradle at Thomaston, off Morse's Boat Yard.

THOMASTON—A sleek new ketch tasted the brine, Wednesday evening, at Morse's Boat Yard as the Jimmi slid down the ways. The 45-foot craft was built for Carl J. Baquie of Panama and it was christened by his wife.

The John Alden designed ketch has a clipper bow and has a beam of 11 feet, nine inches. It is mahogany planked with teak decking. It has all modern fittings with stainless steel rigging.

It is powered by a General Motors diesel engine. The Jimmi will sail principally in the Chesapeake Bay area.

Morse Boat Yard had the yacht under construction for seven months. Below decks, it has a modern galley, even to a deep freeze, and it sleeps six.

The new yacht actually didn't see the light of day until the next morning. Because of a late tide, the launching was held at 8:30 p. m. under ideal weather conditions. The ceremony went off without a hitch.

Mouth-To-Mouth Respiration Is Advised By NSC

Your swimming companion finds himself in water too deep for him. He can't stay afloat.

He goes under - but rescuers reach him quickly and pull him into their boat. You climb in, too.

Seconds are precious. Victims of water accidents die from lack of oxygen - suffocation. Lack of oxygen can spell permanent brain damage. Too long without oxygen means - death!

What would you do? "Start artificial respiration at once," advises the National Safety Council, hub of the safety movement in America and concerned with all forms of safety.

The Council goes along with the system of artificial respiration recommended by many authorities - the mouth-to-mouth method.

"The mouth-to-mouth method has the advantage of providing immediate pressure to inflate the victim's lungs. And it enables the rescuer to get more accurate information on the volume, pressure and timing of efforts needed to inflate the victim's lungs than are afforded by other methods," say experts on artificial respiration.

When should you use artificial respiration? "Anyone someone stops breathing - because of electric shock, suffocation in a discarded refrigerator or in a plastic bag, or a near-drowning," said Ralph Kuhl, the Council's director of public safety.

Here is how you can perform the life-saving mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration, he said:

1. Wipe out foreign matter in the mouth with your fingers or a cloth wrapped around them.

2. Tilt the victim's head back so the chin is pointing upward. Pull or push the jaw into a jutting-out position.

These maneuvers should relieve obstruction of the air passage by moving the base of the tongue away from the back of the throat.

3. Open your mouth wide and place it tightly over the victim's mouth. At the same time, pinch the victim's nostrils shut. Then breathe air - at a normal rate - into the victim.

4. Remove your mouth, turn your head to the side, and listen for air coming out.

Repeat the blowing effort. For an adult, blow about 12 breaths a minute. For a child breathe more softly - about 20 times a minute.

"This, basically, is how to apply mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration," said Kuhl.

"No special skills are involved. Anyone - even children - can learn how to save lives through use of mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration."

When a person claims they like the old-fashioned way the best, they are forgetting that sin is about the oldest characteristic of the Human Race.

All the rest is provided. A real Down East pit clam-broiler bake will be started Saturday night when the hewers and haulers of wood start gathering driftwood in preparation for a giant fire that will be lighted early Sunday morning.

Challenge

What is it about fishing that appeals to so many men? Is it the tang of the out-of-doors, the salt spray, the play of the reel — or is it a part of that age-old challenge of pitting oneself against the forces of nature?

Probably, it is mostly the challenge, for man is forever excited by a dare. Yet, while life is full of challenges, all of them are not fun. When it comes to meeting the greater tests successfully, you need a lot more than a fishing pole. Then it is that Faith comes into its own; then it is that the teachings of the Church are put into practise.

Don't walk by your church next Sunday — walk into it. Equip yourself for your own spiritual future now.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL — ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Catholic Cemetery Discovered

Members of the Fourth Degree Assembly, Knights of Columbus, complete work on clearing the grave of a Catholic Civil War soldier in a cemetery discovered on Old County Road, Thomaston, not far from Morse's Corner. The Assembly heard that a Civil War soldier was buried in the area. Assistance from Lee Morse revealed the location. The plot was cleaned and an enclosure was erected. Working on the project are, from left to right, Joseph Cormier, Al Plourd, Leo Dostie, Jasper Lombardo, Jr., Fern Mathews, John Aziz and Edward Fernands.

The Old Catholic Burial Ground

By F. L. S. Morse

During the last month of June in this year of Our Lord 1960 those who have traveled along the Old County Road or rather that part of it termed the Meadow Road between Mill River and Morse's Corner may have noticed very near the road a tombstone in a neat enclosure under a pine tree, with a small flag which indicates a soldier's grave.

It is the purpose of this paper to tell something of the history of this old cemetery now grown up to trees and bushes and also to present the few facts known of the worthy soldier buried there.

In the year 1836, a committee, of which Edward Robinson, later a Congressman, was chairman, purchased 10 acres of land near the home of Charles S. Tilson and built a large two story Poor House or House of Correction, for which the town treasurer was authorized to pay $5,000. Here the paupers were maintained under overseers Thomas Tolman, John Spear and probably others according to Cyrus Eaton, until it was sold on division of the town in 1848.

After the division of the town it was felt that it was far from being in a central location for the smaller town.

By some procedure which I do not understand, three men commissioners were authorized to sell the property and George Thordike and Charles McLoon of South Thomaston and Franklin Farrand bought it at an auction for $1,200. The paupers were divided according to their place of residence, 23 to Thomaston, 16 to East Thomaston, later named Rockland, and two to South Thomaston.

Eaton tells us that there had been Roman Catholic settlers in these parts and their numbers had been increased by European immigration. James O'Neil, who was engaged by General Knox at Philadelphia, came to Thomaston and lived at the Upper Corner where he managed the General's lime business. Later, he bought land at the Meadows and built a home at what has often been called O'Neil's Corner, near the old Green house.

He became a man of means and being a devout Catholic took steps toward the establishment of regular services of his church in this locality. Through his influence and that of John O'Brien of Warren services were held hereabouts by Bishop Cheveraux and other priests until the increased number of Irish immigrants warranted the establishment of a church here.

In Volume 18 of the Eastern Lincoln Deeds and on page 395 it is recorded that George Thordike, Charles McLoon and Franklin Farrand for $1,200 received from Catholics of Thomaston, Rockland and vicinity, granted, bargained, sold and conveyed the poor farm land and buildings to the Right Reverend John Fitzpatrick, Bishop of Boston, for a Catholic Church. Eaton tells us that this was in 1852 and that a small portion adjoining was consecrated as a burial ground. It seems probable that the whole area was consecrated as the land has not been taxed in the many years since the idea of having a church here was abandoned.

Eaton states that the house was used as a church for a time, but the late George McManus, who was an enthusiast on historical matters disputed this and maintained that services were held at the O'Neil house at the Meadows.

Because of the large number of Irish people in Rockland, a church had been erected there and the house was not in a central location so it was taken down and the materials moved to a new site purchased from the Rose estate near Erin Street, then called the Beach Woods Road. But, this church was never built. A few years later, Mrs. Cornelius Hanrahan bought the Congregational Church which was used until 1915.

As to exactly when and why this was abandoned one cannot know positively. I have been told that it was because the ground was wet and full of springs. A recent visit to the place convinced me beyond a doubt that this is true. I believe that Patrick Crowley, the soldier whose lot has been repaired, was one of the latest to be buried there and the stones in memory of his sons John and James may have been the reason the remains of the father were placed in that lot.

On the Rose lot where the contemplated church was to have been erected; could that have been the location of the present Catholic Cemetery?

As the years passed and the new cemetery was used, it is said that many bodies were removed from the older grounds, the families represented by the remaining graves being poor or perhaps removed from hereabouts. The place was gradually forgotten; perhaps the later priests were not informed about the old yard at all.

Nature kindly covers neglected spots with a beauty of shrubs and trees. The grounds are now fairly well wooded. Juniper and pine trees and many wild apple trees are gorgeous in apple blossom time.

As a small boy I often visited the place. I remember there were a dozen or more stones; Crowley's grave and that of one Peter Burdge being of most interest. The small boys of the neighborhood talked of these individuals and one of the most imaginative claimed an acquaintance with old Patrick Crowley but deceived nobody.

Patrick Crowley and his wife Mary were both natives of Ireland. He enlisted in the Fourth Maine Regiment. His tombstone tells us that he was wounded in the Battle of the Wilderness and died in a hospital in Washington.

The Rockland Gazette of June 25, 1864, states that the State Guards attended the funeral services in a body and that there were 22 vehicles in his funeral procession. It further states that Crowley was a good soldier and one of the best men of his regiment.

He had enlisted when the regiment was formed and must have been one of those who camped on Middle Street Hill before leaving for the front.

It is certainly good to see the grave of one of our Civil War heroes in good order near the highway where all can see with respect.

One can hardly imagine what this country or the world would be like had these boys in blue failed in that great four years conflict.

Less than one-half mile from Crowley's grave, at Morse's Corner was the home of another soldier of the Fourth Maine Regiment, who fell at the Battle of the Wilderness. After his mother had received the news of her son's death came a letter saying that he was counting the days even the hours to the time when he would meet her. For many years she kept the letter with some old soldier clothes, until her tears for her only boy had obliterated the writing. I wonder where Mary, the wife of Crowley and the mother of the two little boys, is buried. Possibly right there but nobody was left to mark her resting place.

The cellar of the old poorhouse in 1925 was full of rose bushes of the old fashioned double type, sometimes referred to as cinnamon roses. There are still a few of these on the eastern and southern sides of the cellar.

A few years ago, to the great disgust of most of the neighbors, someone began to dump rubbish, old tin cans and other trash into the cellar making it unsightly. But nature repairs the damage of such vandalism in time.

After the old poorhouse was moved away, a former inmate, a poor wayfarer, came there and committed suicide on the steps of the railway to the cellar. My father, then a small boy, went there on the same day and remembered all the gory details, as did the late John Tilson, another small boy at the time who lived to be over 90.

One who had formerly been familiar with the grounds made a visit to this place on July 1, 1960, and went straight to a stone he remembered flat on the ground and partly grassed over and a few yards distant the granite base of still another.

What a fine community project it would be to clear away the bushes, trim the timber and fruit trees, and make the ancient cemetery more like a park than the wilderness.

The stone of Peter Burdge was found, Thursday, and the date of his death was recorded as 1871. It shows that the cemetery was kept up at least until that time.

New Rockland Lockup Put Into Use

Painting has been completed to put Rockland's new cell block into first class condition, Chief Maurice Benner said Tuesday. Chief Benner points out to City Manager Charles Haynes the snap-lock feature of the cell doors. The four-cell block cost the city $4,700 plus city labor. Each cell has two steel-slatted bunks and a combination water closet-lavatory of enameled metal to prevent breakage. Thomaston Steel Works installed the block, making use of much of the material taken from the old lockup. The new lockup is located in the basement of City Hall. Included in the cost is a lift so officers won't have to take prisoners up and down a narrow, steep set of concrete stairs. Materials have arrived but the lift has not been installed. A booking area also will be set up in the cell block section.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Mechanization may help farmers raise more food per acre with fewer helpers than they needed before, but it's creating a serious problem on the highways.

With modern farm tractors and equipment, farmers can cultivate more land today than ever before, but their acreage is likely to be split up into several locations that must be reached by driving farm equipment down rural roads and highways.

In this age of fast-moving cars, the slower farm tractors create a serious menace. In the last ten years there has been a 90 per cent increase in the number of fatal tractor accidents. About one-third of these occurred on streets and highways, many of them happening at night when visibility is limited.

Many highway tractor accidents are caused by rear-end collisions with autos. Fast-moving autos frequently overtake tractors before the drivers realize it. On narrow rural roads, the motorist may frequently be unable to stop or turn aside before hitting the tractor.

During the plowing and planting season in the spring and the harvesting season in fall, farmers generally try to get full use of all available light and will work their fields until it gets dark. By the time they're ready to start home, visibility is gone.

Tractors and other farm machinery are not designed for the highway, particularly for the highway at night. Motorists following tractors at night have little or no indication of the slow-moving vehicles ahead until they're almost on them.

Safety experts and agricultural engineers are urging farmers to use every means to make their farm equipment more visible to the motorist. Suggested means are warning flags to enable a motorist to detect a slow-moving farm machine beyond the hill during daylight, and increased use of reflectors and reflective sheeting to make tractors and other farm equipment visible at greater distances at night.

Food Sense—Not Nonsense

THE VERSATILE APPLE

By Marjorie Mayo

The apple with its crisp tart-sweet flavor, has long been a favorite fruit with American people. Three of its popular uses are: eaten raw, baked whole, or made into sauce. Applesauce served with hot buttered biscuits, makes a delicious mouth-watering end to a meal, or served with roast pork or chops, bring out the flavor of the meat.

Indeed, the apple was so much a favorite, that proverbs were made up about them, such as, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away" and the seldom heard one "An apple in the night puts the dentist to flight". In America this fruit has a long history. The Pilgrims held it in such high esteem, that they brought the seeds with them to this country, planted them, and waited impatiently for them to grow so that they could bake them in a crust made of cornmeal and maple sap, the first American apple pie.

The apple pie has become, over the years, the All-American favorite dessert, and is the one most often ordered by American men.

Lawry, Mrs. Phyllis Flinchbaugh and Mrs. Donald Flinchbaugh, Jr., and daughter Marjorie of this town and East Natick, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Chadwick of Warren were all recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Paulsen of Bar Harbor have been the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Maloney.

Dean Hall has been in Boston on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Hall and Rhue Gleason went to Monhegan last week to visit friends.

Richard Chadwick of Thomaston spent the weekend of the 19th with David Saastamoinen. They camped out on Gay Island and later went deep sea fishing with Maurice Chadwick.

In the old days, the housewives had to wait for the apple harvest in the fall, before they could cook and enjoy these tasty desserts. But today the fruit is in the market all year 'round, and desserts made with it can be a part of the menu at any time. Today with our modern utensils, ranges, milled flour, shortening and granulated sugar, foods can be turned out that would make our ancestors' eyes stick out in disbelief. Tapioca used in fruit pies, make them keep their fresh flavor, and the juices thickening to perfection, staying glistening and clear. Apple pie can be served hot or cold, many people liking sharp cheese served with it. Another favorite way to serve it is with a dip of ice cream on top.

Here is an old fashioned apple pie with a modern twist, and also a recipe for old time apple dumplings:

Apple Pie

1½ tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
5 cups thinly sliced peeled fresh apples
Pastry for two crust 9 inch pie
2 tablespoons butter

Combine quick cooking tapioca, sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, and apples. Let stand about 15 minutes. Roll half the pastry one-eighth inch thick. Line a nine inch pie pan and trim pastry at edge of rim. Roll remaining pastry one-eighth inch thick and cut several two inch slits or a fancy design near the center. Fill the pie with apple mixture. Dot with butter. Moisten edge of bottom crust. To adjust top crust, fold pastry in half or roll loosely on rolling pin; center on filling. Open slits with a knife. (Well opened slits are important to permit escape of steam during baking.) Trim top crust, allowing it to extend one-half inch over the rim. To seal, press top and bottom crusts together on rim. Then fold edge of top crust under bottom crust and flute. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 55 minutes, or until syrup boils with heavy bubbles that do not burst.

Old Time Apple Dumplings

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup shortening
2/3 cup milk
6 baking apples
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Milk

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; cut in shortening. Stir in milk; mix until soft dough is formed. Turn out; knead lightly. Roll one-eighth inch thick; cut into six squares. Core apples; peel; place on each square. Combine sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle into center of each apple. Add one-half teaspoon butter to each. Moisten edges of dough; press corners up over apples; brush with milk. Place in greased baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 30 minutes. Serve with Sweet-Sour Sauce. Makes six servings.

Sweet-Sour Sauce

2 cups water
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Heat water, vinegar and butter together. Combine remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Stir into hot mixture; cook over low heat, stirring until thickened. Pour warm over apple dumplings. Makes about two and one-half cups.

Many months ago numerous salaried persons connected in some way with the egg industry came out with predictions that the prices on eggs would be favorable this year because so many less pullets were being ordered by poultry farmers.

So far those predictions have not materialized and the summer is about three weeks old. Those who put in chickens as a direct result of those printed predictions stand to lose a lot of money as do those who were going to start pullets anyway.

Now, egg price predictions based on accurate information concerning the number of layers old and young that are likely to be laying eggs this summer would have been a very important service to the poultrymen. It was pictured to us that there might be a real shortage of eggs which would have meant that buyers would have been bidding for eggs and in turn we would have had favorable prices.

At the present time no shortage is in evidence. In fact eggs seem to be so plentiful that we often get reports that the larger sizes are more than ample in supply. This is a sickening blow to the poultrymen of Maine who started those pullets with high hopes of recouping some of their serious losses.

We will have to admit that the prophets are not legally responsible for the losses sustained by poultrymen even though their predictions may have great bearing on the situation. About all we can do is to emphasize the fact that price prophecy with-out accurate information is a service that we can well do without in the future, even though poultry magazines editors may have a little more trouble filling up their magazines.

Perhaps I am a bit cynical, but it seems to me that there has been more "hogwash" than ever pouring from the typewriters of the so-called poultry experts during the past couple of years. They love to enlarge on all sorts of topics that mean very little to their poultrymen because there are few facts mixed with their theories as is proven time and again.

The fact is that eggs were supposed to start a sustained rise two or three weeks ago and the only direction any sizes have gone is down. The situation is such that the retail customer almost never pays enough to give the farmer a reasonable return on his eggs. This is not the fault of the customer to be, but it certainly is going to be a hard job to get egg prices back in the profit column unless there is a real shortage — a big enough shortage so that consumer resistance to price will not be a controlling factor.

The subject for the day will be "Know Your Neighbor, Argentina" with Mrs. Mary Spear in charge.

County Agent's Corner

By Gilbert Jaeger,
County Agent

Dear Farmer:

Apple maggots have hatched, blueberry maggots are being taken care of, summer is here; and so is the preliminary 1959 farm census report.

Just a few items from the report without much comment. These figures are Knox-Lincoln totals.

Adjusting for changes in the definition of a farm as used by the Census Bureau, we find we've lost 400 farms, about 1/4 less than we had in 1954.

The figures show a loss of 333 farms reporting milk cows. This is a third less than in 1954. We only lost 521 cows, so I assume that at least part of the farms not reporting cows were family cow farms. Actually, we gained almost $200,000 from milk and cream sales despite the loss of cow numbers.

Farms reporting chickens four months old or older show a 1/3 loss, yet the number of this chicken age group shows 695,000 birds for a 10 percent increase.

Farms reporting egg sales dropped from 558 in number to 370 during this five year period for a loss of 188 farms—again, about a third loss. Yet we produced 9.3 million dozen eggs in 1959 as compared with 6.8 million dozen in 1954 for a 25 percent gain in eggs sold. From these few figures, we can see some of the trends in production per farm, per animal unit. We also can point up the suggestions in the Congressional subcommittee for Agriculture's report of a few years ago when they detailed a need for proper schooling of our farm youth who would not be staying on the farm; and for schooling of adults who would be leaving the farm. I have some copies of this report which I will loan anyone interested.

Sincerely,

Gilbert B. Jaeger,

County Agent
