Nothing is rarer than the use of a word in its exact meaning.—Whipple.

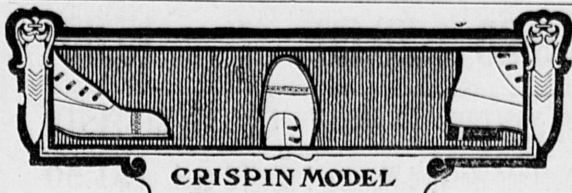

Rockland has a Republican Club that is alive and means business, as the vote of this city on November 5 will show. Let every Republican who believes in his party's principles become a member.

The trouble with the reckoning of the Progressives, says the Bath Times, is that they confuse the Roosevelt-Republicans of the pre-convention primaries with the Progressives of today. The November voting will disclose the difference.

How foolish the American people would be to hazard the continuance of prosperity by voting into power a party whose first declared principle is hostility to the policy of protection on the way our business is conducted.—President Taft.

The real question at issue is whether the people are so anxious to change from a protection policy to a tariff for revenue that they are willing to assume the burden of the hard times which must necessarily accompany the change.—President Taft.

Hitting the Northwest Trail

Frank B. Miller Gives Side Lights of Trip to Sovereign Grand Lodge—Winnipeg's Wonderful Progress.

The 88th annual session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was held in the city of Winnipeg, Province of Manitoba (across on the north), Sept. 16-21 last. The Courier-Gazette has asked me for a brief review of the work of the session, the social features which are closely associated with these annual gatherings, and the impressions made upon me by our neighbors in the Canadian Northwest.

This was the first time in the history of the Order that a session was held in Western Canada. The delegates were accorded a most generous welcome, and Canadian hospitality was lavishly showered on them and the many visiting Odd Fellows. Every state in the Union was represented, and the Canadian brethren turned out in such numbers that the enterprising city of Winnipeg was thronged with thousands of the three-linkers.

Maine was represented by Hon. Alfred S. Kimball of Norway, one of the leading lawyers of Maine and a member of Gov. Plaisted's council; Hon. Reuel Robinson of Camden, who is so well known to the readers of this paper that he needs no further introduction; Dr. Leon S. Merrill of Orono, Dean of the Agricultural Department of the University of Maine, and lastly by the writer.

The Massachusetts representatives extended a cordial invitation to their Maine brethren to join their party, but as the proposed route was by the way of the Great Lakes, I hastily declined the invitation, having in mind the result of several trips to Vinland, especially the time when I violently parted with a generous piece of Mrs. Dan Glidden's delicious custard pie. Previous to my departure I had arranged with Grand Secretary Brooks of the Province of Ontario to join the representatives of Central and Eastern Canada at Toronto.

and arrived at Winnipeg the Saturday afternoon following, without change of cars from Toronto by way of the Grand Trunk, Chicago, Milwaukee A. St. Paul, and Great Northern Railways. This route gave the patrons of the Canadian excursion an opportunity of visiting the progressive (with a small p) cities of Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and intermediate centers, which proved both pleasant and profitable to me.

We arrived at Chicago Friday afternoon, Sept. 12. After an uneventful ride of 85 miles we reached the beautiful city of Milwaukee where a short stop was made, and then onward across the state of Wisconsin, passing through a most interesting and lovely country, where fleeting visions of lakes, rivers and woodland scenery, interspersed with fruitful farms from which the harvests were being gathered in plentiful quantities, greeted the eye and enchanted the traveler as he was whirled across the state towards the Father of Waters. After traveling several miles along the banks of the Mississippi, we reached St. Paul about midnight. This beautiful city, like ancient Rome, enthroned on seven hills on the high bluffs of the Mississippi river at the head of steamboat navigation, has a population of over 225,000, and its increase over 10,000 each year. The city is over 2000 miles from the mouth of the river, and navigation at this point is open for seven months in the year.

It was one of the first cities to construct tall office buildings in the modern style of architecture. St. Paul occupies 50 square miles of land, 15,000 acres of which are parks. Its beautiful situation tends to make it a city of homes and schools. And, as though its own beauty, parks and islands were not enough, it is surrounded by some of the most beautiful lakes and summer resorts that are to be found anywhere. Fine as the city is now, a system of magnificent Capitol approaches, stately malls and parkways are being planned. The state Capitol building is one of the features of St. Paul and ranks in architecture with the greatest public buildings in the country. It was 13 years in process of construction, and cost $5,000,000. Its dome is 220 feet high and its interior decorations are of the most superb character.

A life size statue of former Governor Johnson, who died in office, is soon to be placed in conspicuous position in front of the Capitol building. Gov. Eberhart, the present state executive, is of Swedish birth, his family name being Olson, but after entering public life he discarded it and adopted his mother's name to guard against annoyance and mistakes, there being several bearing his early name in the place where he resided. The day our party visited the Capitol, the governor was absent from the city, but we were permitted to visit the executive chambers, and on our departure were presented by the official in charge of excellent campaign pictures of the governor.

Minneapolis, just across the river and seven miles from St. Paul, is a successful rival of the latter city, which offers many attractions to the visitor. It has a population of 370,000, and is one of the most important and progressive cities in the United States. The Falls of St. Anthony furnish 40,000 horse power for the great flour mills which abound in Minneapolis, while 25,000 horse power is harnessed to the city from the Falls of St. Croix, a great industrial corporation. It is a great manufacturing center, and the point of distribution for an immense trade in the Northwest. The city is surrounded by parks, lakes and rivers, and the Twin Cities (St. Paul and Minneapolis) make this region a desirable spot for the lover of the beautiful.

The distance from St. Paul to Winnipeg is 458 miles. From here the route of the "Odd Fellows Special" was by the way of Fargo, North Dakota, but being seven hours behind schedule time, the visit to North Dakota was abandoned, and the most direct route from Crookston, Minn., to Winnipeg was taken. As we journeyed through the extensive grain-producing regions of Northern Minnesota and Southern Manitoba, we had a splendid opportunity to witness the gathering of the great crops of wheat and oats, and listen to the whirr of the binder and the hum of the steam thrasher. These crops are rich and mellow, and the crops produced are usually very abundant. The manufacturer and seller of fertilizers find this region a very unproductive one.

At Noyes, Minn., we left the United States, and passing over the boundary line we entered Canadian territory at Emerson, Manitoba. By the time the train reached Emerson, all the protectionist ladies in our party became ardent free-traders, being compelled to submit the contents of their handbags to an examination by the customs inspector who boarded the train at Noyes. He was not officious, however, and treated the passengers with kindly consideration. From Emerson to Winnipeg, a distance of 60 miles, we traveled through some of the finest country in southern Manitoba. This section must be seen to be properly appreciated, the description being insufficient to express the great advantages of this particular region. The rich, black loam which grows the famous "Manitoba No. 1" stretches as far as the eye can reach, until to the vision "earth and sky do meet." After two hours' ride we came in sight of Winnipeg, the Metropolis of Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest. Crossing the Red river we glided into the palatial depot of the Canadian Northwest Railway, where our journey ended.

In Winnipeg the visitor will find one of the most marvelous and impressive records of civic growth the world has seen. Thirty years ago,

TEACHERS' PENSIONS

Maine Legislature To Discuss Terms of a Needed Law.

The general terms of the proposed teachers' pension law, which will be introduced in the legislature in 1913, is as follows:

"Any person of either sex who, on the passage of this act or thereafter, shall have reached the age of 60 years and who for 30 years shall have been engaged in teaching as his principal occupation as a teacher or as a superintendent in the public schools, or in such other schools within this State as are supported wholly or at least three-fifths by State or town appropriation and are entirely managed and controlled by the State, 20 years of which employment, including the 15 years immediately preceding retirement, shall have been in this State and who at the expiration of the school year shall have been retired by his employer or shall have voluntarily retired from active service, shall, on his formal application, receive from the State for the remainder of his life an annual pension equal to one-half of his average contractual salary during the last five years before retiring, but in no case shall such annual pension be more than $500, and in case the said one-half of his average contractual salary shall be less than $250, said annual pension shall be $250 provided, however, that after the passage of this act no such employment as teachers within this State shall be included within its provisions unless the teacher shall hold a State teachers' certificate, issued under the authority of the State superintendent of schools.

OIL FOR THE LIGHTS

70,000 Gallons for Delivery at the Maine Lighthouses.

Nearly two and a half miles of kerosene cans were delivered on Custom wharf in Portland recently, for the lighthouse bureau. Trucks and wagons were busy all day carting the cases to wharves, and as fast as one load was delivered, another would be sought and all day the vehicles were busy. Even then, all of the kerosene had not been received. In each of these 70,000 cases were two five-gallon cans of oil, so that the total amount of kerosene represented in what was delivered on the wharf was 700,000 gallons. Each one of these cans is 20½ inches long so that if they were placed end to end, the whole of them would extend in a straight line for nearly two and a half miles.

All the kerosene is destined for use in the lighthouses along the Maine coast. Several thousand of the cases will be taken aboard the tender Hibiscus for distribution to the eastern stations and the remainder will go on the Zizania for delivery at the stations to the westward on the Maine and New Hampshire coasts. It will probably be a month before all of the oil has been left for every station where there is a light to be visited. Early each fall kerosene of this amount, or approximately this amount, is shipped to the stations along the coast and it is enough to last until the following fall. Generally the amount is about the same, though it is not always delivered as early as it should be. In some years, each five-gallon can has been in a separate case so that in those years there have been 14,000 cases. This year two cans are placed in a case and the oil is handled much more quickly and easily.

A Glimpse At Gotham

Rambling Version of a Trip That Three Rockland Fans Took, Lured by the World's Series Games

All the way from Rockland to New York to see six innings of a ball game.

The idea will impress the average person as foolhardy in the extreme, but the lust of the World's Series had gotten into our veins, and all else counted as naught. Forty thousand persons assembled on the Polo grounds in New York Friday afternoon, Oct. 11, might have seen three strangers rush hurriedly through the entrance to the first base bleachers late in the third inning, skirting the entire semicircle of bleacher seats in search of a tiny place in which to ensconce themselves, and little dreamed that the late comers had traveled, consecutively, nearly 500 miles in order to witness the battle royal between Jeff Tesreau and Joe Wood.

There were three of us, and we had embarked on Thursday night's boat with a definite purpose of seeing the Saturday game in Boston between the New York Nationals and Boston Americans—better known in the sporting nomenclature of two hemispheres as the Giants and Red Sox.

Lowering skies gave evil promise for the morrow, and that meant no game in New York Friday and no game in Boston Saturday—for the rules governing the World's Championship Series required the teams to stay in one of the two cities until the game was actually played. You saw an instance of this in the first Boston game, which resulted in an eleven-inning tie, and kept the two teams in Boston one more day than ordinary conditions would have required.

We scanned the clouded skies, and the idea rapidly took shape that it would be a fine scheme to extend our journey to New York and see at least one game.

Arriving in Boston at an hour when the twinkling lights were soft reflected on the murky waters of the harbor, we lost no time in consulting the ticket office at the South Station for the purpose of seeing how soon we could reach New York. The first train went at 6 a. m., he said, supplementing this piece of information with the statement that the 3 o'clock train reached the national metropolis just as soon, neither being due there until after 2 p. m. With no baseball tickets in sight, and no prospect of reaching the Polo Grounds before 2:45 it seemed like taking a long chance.

But we were in the mood for it, and none loath to escape the discomforts of the slimy Boston pavements, which a fairly vigorous rain was converting into a condition such as benighted Rockland never sees.

The 8 o'clock train out of Boston (New York, New Haven & Hartford) proceeds to its destination by what is known as the Hartford line, passing through Franklin and Blackstone during its exit from the Bay State. Rain had ceased to fall by this time and at Putnam, Conn. Bert saw the sun in reality.

Down through the Connecticut Valley the train continued on its speedy journey, the vista from the car windows being a vast panorama of ever changing Autumnal beauty. The turf had that reddish hue one sees but seldom in this state, while the foliage of the hardwood trees was at the height of its beauty. Now and then we saw an occasional grove of pines, but for the most part the trees of all kinds presented a stunted growth. Williamantic, the home of famous cotton mills, offered interesting variety with its buildings of sandstone.

Hartford, the home of many insurance companies, had all the earmarks of the prosperous metropolis that it is. Its population is now close to the 100,000 mark, and its public buildings and residences would be a credit to a much larger city. Holding a prominent position with one of Hartford's insurance companies is a former Rockland boy—J. E. Rhodes.

At present traveling through the South.

The Connecticut cities are famous for their manufacturing establishments, all of which bore an air of prosperity. In Bridgeport the train passes in close proximity to the winter quarters of Barnum & Bailey's Circus, an institution which has brought more thrills to the youth of America than anything else that comes to the writer's mind. The sign "Waterbury" was a synonym with watches as lime is with Rockland.

Campaign flags and banners had not blossomed very numerous, but here and there Progressive sentiment was evidenced by these emblems. Taft pictures adorned the dead-ends, but Wilson and Marshall seemed to lack champion.

At Stamford the steam locomotive was detached from our train, and in its place was substituted one of the electric engines with which the New York, New Haven & Hartford has been gradually equipping its system. The reminder of the journey was accomplished with a speed more like that with which the Knox county automobiles pass a "12-miles an hour" sign.

The Grand Central Station, at which the New York, New Haven & Hartford trains arrive, is comparatively easy to get out of, but not so easy to get back into, as we subsequently found. Some day, when it has reached completion, some simple system will be furnished for the benefit of the stranger, but at present it reminds one of the mystic maze designed for the amusement of tourists.

A Sixth Avenue elevated train brought us to the 155th street station, whence one could look directly into the Polo Grounds where the fourth game of the World's Championship Series was being staged. A glance at the double-decked grandstand and the bleachers, all swarming with expected fans, offered small prospect of admission, even though the official calmly put forth three tickets admitting to the bleachers. When the writer passed through the turnstile it recorded 36,502 paid admissions, which was the second largest crowd that ever witnessed a baseball contest in the world.

Not a single person was permitted inside of the enclosure formed by the grandstand and bleachers except the members of the two teams, and such officials as were necessary to the proper running of the game. There were two bat-boys, to be sure, and it is quite certain that neither would have exchanged places with Charlie Taft or the Roosevelt boys.

The Polo Grounds represent the "last word" as a baseball park, having a capacity for about 40,000 persons and all the equipment that goes with a faultless plant. The field is as level as a house floor, the turf being closely cropped. Quite a contrast, the writer thought, to the sloping outfield at Oakland Park, where Wilis was Ayer turned three somersaults before he could gauge an ordinary fly.

It had rained hard on this particular morning, but the park force had cheated nature by covering the diamonds with canvas. The game was witnessed from lofty roof-tops by hundreds of fans, who could or would not take a chance at getting a seat within the park. The center of many thousand pairs of eyes was a painter at work on the roof of a water-tower. Although he was 100 feet above the ground he clung carelessly to the end of a rope with one hand and wielded a paint brush with the other. It is barely possible that he was also scoring the game, for he was certainly paying more attention to it than he was to the task in hand.

The giant Tesreau was in the box for New York, easily distinguished by his great size. Opposing him was Joe Wood, upon whom Boston was pinning championship aspirations. The final score of 3 to 1 in favor of Boston was a fair indication of the pitchers' relative merits as the writer saw them.

In New York there was no such pitch of enthusiasm as we saw at Fenway Park in Boston, next day. I asked a policeman standing guard near the entrance of the Polo Grounds what the score was. "Dunno," he replied, "but Boston's way ahead." The actual score at that time was 2 to 0, but as the game had been going it doubtless seemed a long way ahead to the Knickerbocker fans.

The New York newspapers devoted to these games less than one-quarter of the space that the energetic Boston press bestowed upon them, the famous Becker trial having the call with the New York public apparently.

New York City covers an immense territory, but one can see a great deal of it in as brief a period as two hours when the services of a taxicab are invoked. The Riverside Drive

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

Old-fashioned poetry, but oh, so good. —Isaac Walton

A Dirge
Said hid beneath the bank
By the willow river side
Where Narcissus gently sank,
Where unmarred Echo died,
Unto thy serene repose
Waft the stricken Anteros.

Where the tranquil swan is borne,
Languid in a watery zone,
Where the spray of fresh pink thorn
Slopes to catch the breeze that pass,
Where the earliest orchids grow,
Bury thou fair Anteros.

Guide me by, with glow and oar:
Ripple shadows of the wave,
And reflected on the shore
Rapidly about his grave.
Folk of summer-light enshrine
All that once was Anteros.

On a flickering wave we gaze,
Not upon his answering eyes:
Flower and bird we scarce can praise,
Having lost his sweet replies:
Cold and mute the river flows
With our tears for Anteros.

"POLITICS!" "POLITICS!" "POLITICS!"

"INVESTIGATION!" "INVESTIGATION!" "INVESTIGATION!"

"SCRABBLE!" "SCRABBLE!" "SCRABBLE!"

WHAT A SPECTACLE!

One man dumps in $100,000 to the New York political pot, "just for the fun of it," and for another "wink" dumps in $50,000 more. "Sure" nothing is expected in return—in fact, on the street, they don't know each other. "Bunco men," "Con men" and poker sharps don't know each other sometimes.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE? One "gang of sharps" play their cards on what we eat, drink and wear. The other "gang of sharps" play for all you have got in your pocket book. Morally, and in fact, THERE IS NO DIFFERENCE.

WHAT'S THE REMEDY? Vote the Republican ticket? Not Democratic ticket? Not Progressive ticket? Not Socialist ticket? Not Prohibition ticket? Not What, then?

LISTEN! After our public men, from "Presidents," down the line, get through muck-raking each other and men, "wealthy, respectable," and corporations—all testify to how much they dumped into the corruption pot to elect one of their kind, and the whole bunch have besmirched themselves beyond respectability, and all have passed before the camera so the people get wise to the fact that the whole combination is a "game," the "people" will not be slow to find a remedy and elect men to public office who will see to it that "WATER WILL FIND ITS LEVEL."

POINTS—The Truth, the Whole Truth, and Nothing but the Truth.

When I came into this territory to sell Pianos, eleven years ago, enormous prices were being paid for pianos. A piano costing around $100 was being sold for $300 to $400. Just think of it! Why, it was just like finding money by the pot—a piano was selling for almost as much as a home, and people were being jolled into the good trade they were getting. What one agent couldn't think up for a "fairy story" another agent would concoct and put it in a sweet way, "Blest by the gods," etc., etc.

Thomas Struck Town

and began selling the same make of pianos, same style, same everything, for just one-half their price—the prices just cut in half—and planted his feet solid on the principle that "good pianos at a fair price" would in the long run win the people. THOMAS WAS RIGHT.

WHAT HAPPENED Of all the "ramshackle" yarns that I ever heard, came from my competitors, yarn upon yarn, story upon story, mud into muck. All lies and of the most foolish kind. Why, honestly, I didn't know that such tongues were created—if these yarns were stretched out on a line they would actually reach way from Maine to Mexico. I have kept a memorandum of most of them, and really "they would make a horse laugh." Slicker than grease to my face, but when my back was turned they would "run the knife clear in to the hilt." Some people actually thought I had "horns."

THE RESULT THOMAS STAYED. Slowly but surely the big profit fellows have lowered their banner of "High Prices" down, down, down, like a dying cow, each time with a kick, until now some of them are actually advertising pianos for $105, with a picture of it at that. "Going some" isn't it, especially when less than a year ago they told you a "good piano" could not be bought for less than $225. Perhaps this one $105 is called a "Half Piano," balance by paying the difference.

I have rode the "Goat" "took my degree," until now I am carrying the Largest Stock of High Grade Pianos and Player Pianos of any dealer in the State of Maine. I have cut the price of pianos in half. I sell on easy terms, ONE PRICE—same for cash, same on easy terms—one price to everybody. Every Piano Sold under Guarantee.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS

For President
WILLIAM H. TAFT
of Ohio
For Vice President
JAMES S. SHERMAN
of New York

The Republicans of Rockland do not approve of the attempt to split their party. They believe in the square deal for President Taft, who is the party's candidate, justly nominated under the established rules of the national convention. At the Republican State Convention, where Roosevelt supporters were in charge, the resolutions heartily pledged the support of Maine Republicans to whoever should be the nominee of the Chicago convention. Had Col. Roosevelt been that nominee there would be no split here now—the Republicans who favored Mr. Taft would have loyally supported their party's duly chosen candidate. But Roosevelt is the candidate of a third party. Taft is the Republican candidate and Republicans who believe in their party, who believe in its demonstrated principles of progressiveness, should not by voting, through disappointed or pique, for a third-party candidate help to make possible the election of a Democratic President. Believing that this is the proper attitude for a Republican to assume, the Republicans of Rockland have formed a club for the purpose of solidifying party sentiment here and joining with the great party of Maine in returning a vote for the continuance of that wonderful prosperity which this country has enjoyed, and at this moment continues to enjoy, under the principles of protection. It is absurd for Republicans to divide their party and thus help Maine elect the Wilson and Marshall ticket. Let every Republican in the city regard it as a just political duty to join this club and add his efforts toward saving the country from the unwelcome conditions that were visited upon it when the Democratic party was last in power.

The whole country breathes easier with the assurance that Col. Roosevelt's wound is not serious. The dastardly attempt upon his life evoked the reprobation of every honorable and rightly balanced man of whatever way of political thinking. Some of us differ radically from Mr. Roosevelt's more recently promulgated views and severely deprecate his attempts to divide and wreck the Republican party, whose honored candidate he has previously been and which distinction he again sought—but while thus opposing him we recognize the great things he has achieved and his value as a citizen of this country whose taking off by the bullet of a fanatic would have been a national calamity.

The great success attending the sixteenth session of the Maine Music Festival is a matter upon which to congratulate all those who took part in it, and especially that extraordinary man, William R. Chapman, whose genius founded it and whose unquenchable faith and enthusiasm have carried the institution forward to this present triumph. All honor to him. He deserves every bit of praise that even the most enthusiastic can give him.

With the shooting of Roosevelt, the war in the Balkans, the naval parade at New York and the nerve-racking shock of the Red Sox-Giants combat the past week has closely trended upon the hysterical. Let us now assume a calmer attitude of mind and wait upon Nov. 5th with equanimity.

"We Propose to Sink or Swim With the Old Republican Party," Said Governor Cobb in Keynote Speech.

"The Republican Club of Rockland" was organized in Armory hall Tuesday night, at an enthusiastic and representative gathering of Republican voters. The attendance was close to two hundred, and the largest assemblage of voters this city has witnessed since the close of the September campaign, and it indicated very conclusively that there is still plenty of fighting spirit in the Grand Old Party.

The keynote of the new club's purpose was sounded by Ex-Governor Cobb, who dealt with the subject in the straightforward and unequivocal manner for which he is famed. The meeting was called to order by Ralph W. Brown of the Republican city committee, who presented Governor Cobb as chairman. With his very first blow Mr. Cobb hit the nail squarely on the head.

"If ever there was a time when Republicans should stand up and show their colors, it is now," said he. And the hall shook with the applause that responded to this sentiment.

"If there has been any change in the principles which have led our party to victory for the past 50 years, I do not know where that change is," he continued. "Some of us have been diffident at times in our advocacy of those principles, and some have been indignant, but no one can expect to have his own personal views carried out all the time. The best we can do is to strike a good fair average in politics and in candidates."

"There can be but two parties in this country. We have seen several third party movements, and each has carried out all the time. The best we can do is to strike a good fair average in politics and in candidates."

"We have had our trouble in the past, and we will come out of it as gloriously as we have before," said Mr. Donohue. "The club is not a party, it is a movement. It is a movement to bring about a change in the country, and it is a movement to bring about a change in the country."

"The club is not a party, it is a movement. It is a movement to bring about a change in the country, and it is a movement to bring about a change in the country."

"The club is not a party, it is a movement. It is a movement to bring about a change in the country, and it is a movement to bring about a change in the country."

gives other than one of two reasons why he is a Progressive. One reason is that he admires Theodore Roosevelt; the other is that he believes the Republican party guilty of theft in the nomination of Mr. Taft. The latter I do not believe.

"It is a great mistake to be frightened out of the Republican party. We want to show that we are standing for the regularly nominated candidate. It is our duty to work harder for the success of that party than we have at any time in the past 25 years. It is my opinion that those who have joined the Progressive wing are misled and have been swept off their feet, but they shouldn't be abused or ridiculed. We propose to sink or swim with the old Republican party."

The governor's sentiment was again applauded to the echo. Thomas P. Hayden was made secretary of the meeting and the election of officers proceeded, nominations being made from the floor.

Col. E. K. Gould was nominated for president. He would modestly have declined, but the vote was so emphatic and so unanimous that he withdrew his objections. "I think you are fairly consider that there was no theft about your election," said Gov. Cobb.

Charles M. Harrington, whose energy and position were contributory to the formation of the club, was elected vice president. Thomas P. Hayden and Arthur L. Orne were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively. The selection of an executive committee of seven was left to the new officers, as was also the selection of headquarters. Brief speeches were next in order.

"I cannot understand the occasion of a third party," said Ex-Mayor W. S. White. "I believe the Republicans of this country have the welfare of their fellow citizens in view just as well as those who have moved out and organized a new party. There was never a time when the people of the United States were so near an ideal. They want to do the best for their country and bring about prosperity. The exigencies do not demand an uprising among the voters. I do not believe that there is only one man who can straighten us out. Whatever Taft has done in the way of success or failure has been through undertaking to carry out the principles of the Republican party."

W. O. Fuller spoke of his early campaigning, which began when he was 19, and paid a tribute to those grand leaders, the late John S. Case and Francis Cobb, who were anxious that young men should be brought into the party. "And it is to this phase of the campaign that the club should address itself," said the speaker. "We have nominated a splendid candidate," he continued, "and the reason doesn't exist why he should not be supported by anybody who has been identified with the Republican party."

"The Republicans are still in the game, and are going to do something," said Hon. H. L. Shepherd, chairman of the county committee. The state committee will be glad to aid you if there is anything it can do. The gentlemen in the other party are just as honest and sincere as we are. They may be right, but everything is looked at through different eyes. We all want prosperity, and when in the history of this country was it more prosperous than now?"

"I have been a Republican through and through, and I cannot see anything in the new party," said M. A. Johnson. It requires principle to make a party and not one man. Instead of catering to the red flag I had rather cater to the U. S. flag. I would like to ask my friends in the new party what they can see to make a change for. Roosevelt was in office seven years and didn't make any of the changes they are now advocating. The Republican party has got to do something more than it has so far before it drives me into another party."

Judge Campbell took some exceptions to Mr. Johnson's reference to the red flag, believing that the impression should not be permitted to go forth that the Progressives were catering to it.

He was assured by Mr. Johnson that such was not the intent of the latter's remarks.

"We have made a good start, and I only regret that it didn't start sooner," said Vice President Harrington. When Nov. 5 arrives it will find that the Republicans are there."

"Everybody knows where I stand," said Ex-Mayor E. A. Butler. "There isn't any party better than the Republican, and I propose to stick to it."

"I am sorry to see voters led astray by one man's impulsiveness," said Mr. A. B. Crockett, and his terse suggestion caught the club's fancy.

The newly-organized Republican Club held another enthusiastic meeting Thursday night, at which quite a number of new faces were seen. The executive committee was announced as follows: Ward 1, H. Higgins; Ward 2, A. B. Crockett; Ward 3, W. T. Cobb; Ward 4, F. W. Wign; Ward 5, O. E. Davies; Ward 6, G. H. Blethen; Ward 7, Albert Winslow.

The club listened to very interesting remarks by James Donohue and F. B. Miller. "We have had our trouble in the past, and we will come out of it as gloriously as we have before," said Mr. Donohue. "The club is not a party, it is a movement. It is a movement to bring about a change in the country, and it is a movement to bring about a change in the country."

The committee has not yet found a suitable club room and announcements in this connection will be made later.

ROOSEVELT'S CONDITION

So Good That He is Planning a Continuing of His Campaign Trip.

Six doctors, making the most extended survey of Col. Roosevelt's condition attempted since his arrival at Mercy Hospital Thursday morning, found his condition as near normal as a wounded man could be and renewed their assurance that there was no longer cause for worry.

The following bulletin was issued: "Pulse 72, temperature 98.3, respiration 18, all night. Wound dressed, looks well, some oozing. Examination by Dr. Alexander Lambert shows lungs in good condition; general condition splendid. The case progressing so favorably that unless some complications occur, the bullet will not be removed at present."

It was also announced positively that Col. Roosevelt would not leave the hospital until next week at least.

Col. Roosevelt already is feeling so much better and has shown so much improvement that on awakening Thursday he began planning for a continuation of his campaign trip. Most of last night the colonel slept in restful sleep. At six o'clock his temperature was 98.4, pulse 74 and respiration 18, indicating a condition practically normal.

ABOUT THE SAME

Condition of the Granite Industry at Hurricane and Stonington.

The condition of the stone trade at Hurricane Isle and Stonington is set forth in the following communications from union secretaries to the Quarry Workers' Journal.

Stonington—We held our regular monthly meeting on Sept. 19. The members did not turn out very well owing to the stormy night. Some of the boys are quite backward in keeping their dues paid up, but when it comes to kicking they can do it on the street. Business is about the same except one gang short—C. K. Pison.

Hurricane Island—We held our regular monthly meeting the 16th. We had a fairly good attendance and I took in one new member. Business remains about the same as it was at my last writing. They are loading one barge with good grout for the Breakwater at Bar Harbor and another one with cut stone for the Breakwater at Sandy Bay—A. A. Philbrook.

Some Day

Some day the skies shall all be fair;
Some day all heartaches will have ceased;
The sun shall shine out everywhere,
And souls from bondage be released.
True happiness, without a blight,
Glad day, which knows no coming night;
Clear vision for our failing sight,
Some day, some happy day.

Some day the wounded, broken heart
Shall find a balm for healing sweet;
The lonely, living all apart,
Shall know reunion most complete;
No more shall Manoh's moaning wail
Deluge the heart which would be brave;
But joy, clear streams the shores shall love,
Some day, some happy day.

Some day the victory shall be ours,
The foe be beaten back and slain,
The sun shall shine out everywhere,
In that bliss "shining after rain,"
After the storm, after the strife,
After the we which once was life,
Shall come the entering into life,
Some day, some happy day.

MIRROR LAKE IS LOW

Experts Are Seeing What Can be Done About Increasing Its Capacity.

The continued dry spell has served to lower the water in Mirror Lake to such an extent that the Camden & Rockland Water Co. are examining the watersheds around that lake to see how best its capacity may be increased.

Walter H. Sawyer of Lewiston, whose achievements include the construction of a dam on the Androscoggin, giving a storage of 63,000,000 gallons, is making the examination at Mirror Lake, assisted by Edward Lee and Don White. The latter is a member of a Rockland baseball team, afterward numbered among Bowdoin's stars.

Two methods which may benefit the water company are under consideration. One calls for the construction of artificial brooks around Ragged and Spruce mountains. The other contemplates a dam about 1000 feet in length, extending from the gate house to the main road.

A series of tests as to water consumption by the various branches of the company's system is under way. With Chickawaukie Lake to fall back upon there is little danger of Rockland "going short." Water is being pumped into the reservoir from there daily.

Joe Hood of Boston, known in sporting circles as the champion trick and fancy billiard and pool shot of the world, dropped dead at the home of his sister at Roxbury Friday night. He first gained prominence in the amateur pool tournaments held in Boston and later branched out in the fancy shot line. Joe Hood was well known in this city some years ago, having given several exhibitions here.

A large barn on the George Smith place, Old County road, was burned early Wednesday morning—probably the work of an incendiary. It contained 10 tons of hay, the season's crop belonging to Warren B. Gardner, who owned the barn; and Charles L. Smith. In it were also stored valuable farming implements owned by Mr. Gardner, Charles A. Spear and Herbert Bowden; a buckboard owned by Carl Ross; a hose reel which was lying stored there while the engine had been in use.

Warren's squashes which were put there so they would not get frost-bitten; and a barrel of beans, which probably got burned a little too much to suit the average taste. Mr. Gardner had small insurance on building and contents which he owned. Mr. Smith had $75 insurance on his hay, but the other properties were not protected, it is said. The total loss was about $3000.

Baseball fans in this city and vicinity are under lasting obligations to Frank C. Pratt, manager of the Postal office, through whose kindness they were able to receive bulletins of each game in the World's Series, not only by innings, but within five minutes after each playing was played. Red Sox sentiment was overwhelming, and when Hendrickson's hit tied the score there was an uproar that could be heard on Main street. Manager Pratt was ably assisted by his operator, Victor Gray, while volunteers gladly attended to unceasing phone calls. Fans presented the Postal staff with a nice box of cigars Wednesday afternoon, and their gratitude to Manager Pratt does not end there.

ALASKA IN REALITY

Sidelights of a Wonderful Country, Presented by Prof. Snow—Politics and Peary

The 50 members of the Baptist Men's League, who attended the monthly meeting Wednesday night were regaled with an exceptionally interesting story of Alaska—told, not by a lecturer who never saw Alaska outside of an encyclopedia, but by a young man who summered there who wintered and summered there with his pair of keen eyes wide open.

The lecturer in this instance was Prof. C. Wilbert Snow of Ash Point, a former Bowdoin professor, who went to Alaska as a government instructor, eventually filling many other roles in this Arctic cast.

Alaska has been used as a political football. Prof. Snow told just how this had been done, and in the telling he trod impartially upon the Bull Moose, the Elephant and the Donkey.

Pertaining to the coal situation, and the criticism directed against the Guggenheims and the Cunninghams, he said: "If we do not let the great business men go to Alaska and develop the coal fields, they will not be developed in this generation. The possibility of getting coal at $1.75 a ton, as foretold by the muckrakers, will never be realized he said.

Alaska's gold possibilities, and the three methods of extracting the yellow ore were very interestingly described by the speaker.

Confessing that the reindeer is his hobby, Prof. Snow told how its numbers had already increased from 1280 to 35,000, and predicted that within 20 years there would be 2,000,000 of the animals, at which time Alaska will have lock horns with the Beef Trust, for reindeer meat is one of the finest articles of food in the world.

Prof. Snow told how one native had netted $1000 a year in this industry, after indulging in the luxury of living, plus a thermos bottle and a phonograph.

"It's a thrilling sight," said Prof. Snow, "to stand on the shore, to see the last steamboat sail away before the long winter shuts in. How do they pass away that time?"

Prof. Snow in a fascinating manner told of the Arctic Brotherhood, and the methods it devises to pass away the weary winter days. In Council, 200 men, nine married women and no single woman. When a dance was held it was necessary to organize in connection with it a poker game on the side of the hall, where the men play a game popularly known as "freezeout."

"The saloon is the social center of Alaskan life," said Prof. Snow. "I was raised in a Prohibition atmosphere, but when I went to Alaska and saw the conditions with which the men are surrounded, the shackles dropped from my views. It is a well known fact that too much whiskey may cause insanity, and too little in solitude like that, may cause it."

Stock companies do not remain in Alaska after the last boat goes out, but there are armchair tourists, and in this connection Prof. Snow told an amusing incident.

Bear hunts and their perils were described. Under the speaker's own observation came a case of a hunter who had been killed in a struggle with one of these enormous beasts, while the bear expired soon after from its own wounds.

Dog races, covering a distance of 400 miles, and with a first prize of $10,000 are to the men in the States. There is no enthusiasm anywhere equal to that which is manifested in a sweepstakes dog race," said Prof. Snow.

The speaker closed with a fine tribute to the Eskimos, and incidentally took a whack at Peary's authority in patenting as the "Peary jacket," an article of clothing long used by the Alaskan Eskimos.

At the close of the lecture Prof. Snow answered numerous questions and told more anecdotes—the whole forming an evening's entertainment long to be remembered.

Max Blegen was a special guest of President Rising and spoke briefly. Riley Strout and Francis Harrington were admitted to membership.

V. O. Fuller and E. S. Bird presented a composite report on the forthcoming entertainment course.

E. A. Knowlton, E. S. Bird and E. L. Spear were appointed a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

In Nebraska the colonel defended his action in leaving the Republican party. It is needless to enlarge on his bold. He is out, and the party proceeds with its business in the usual self-respecting way. The colonel's mistake is in supposing that he killed the party by deserting it.

Whatever his antics may be they are now outside of Republicanism, and antagonistic to it.

A Rockport citizen received a call Tuesday from a man whom he had not seen in 28 years. The stranger called to pay a bill contracted that long ago, and for which he had given his note. The Rockport man had destroyed the note long ago, and was not a little surprised when he received payment Tuesday. Lots of people owe bills that long, but few have been known to pay them.

Truant Officer Frank T. Safstrom appeared in Judge Hurley's court Wednesday morning with Samuel Levi, aged 14, Nathan Berliawsky, aged 14, and Santino Romasco, aged 16, in tow. The boys had not only been "skipping school," but resisted the truant officer when he sought to take them in charge. Mr. Safstrom exhibited scratches and bites on both arms to show that the youngsters had put up a vigorous battle. The boys seemed to think the whole affair a huge joke, and were not altogether sobered by Judge Hurley's threat to send them to a reform school. Supt. Stuart expressed himself as out of patience with the boys. "The parents cannot do anything with them and we can't stand it any longer," he said. He favored a liberal application of "strap-on" as the delinquent grammar school boys are given in Rockport, but this does not seem to be practical as there are no male teachers to administer the medicine. He gave an opportunity to return to school on their good behavior, but declined to do so, and will be sent to reform school instead. Subsequently sentence was suspended, but the boys are required to report to Judge Hurley each Saturday.

After any Sickness

nothing so rapidly restores health and vigor as SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is the essence of natural body-nourishment, so medically perfect that nature immediately appropriates and distributes it to every organ, every tissue—feeding, nourishing and restoring them to normal activity.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is not a patent medicine, but is nature's body-nourishment with curative, upbuilding properties and without a drop of drug or alcohol. It contains superior cod liver oil, the hypophosphites of lime and soda with glycerine, and is so delicately emulsified that it enters the system without digestive effort—builds, tones and sustains.

After croup, whooping cough, measles and other child ailments it is nature's ally in restoring health.

After grippe or pneumonia it imparts strength and health, and for colds, coughs, sore, tight chests and throat troubles SCOTT'S EMULSION gives the greatest relief known.

Stubborn Colds May Lead to Consumption

Did you ever have a cold that would not let go? A cough that persisted, that prevented sleep and made waking hours miserable? Eckman's Alternative is the proper remedy in such cases. Perhaps some simple medicine may be effective where it is only a tickling in the throat; but when your chest is sore and simple remedies do not answer—then take Eckman's Alternative. Neglect often leads to more serious trouble; a case in point follows:

"Gentlemen: In July, 1905, I first noted the conditions that showed I had Consumption. I lost weight rapidly; had a severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alternative. In the fall of 1905, I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicine to anyone."

(Signed) M. L. GERRARD.
Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa. for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

MR. HAINES' PLURALITY

Was 3295. According to Canvass of Clerks' Returns—Some Interesting "Figures."

The plurality received by Hon. William T. Haines of Waterville for Governor in the September election was 3295, according to the clerks' returns, the tabulation of which was completed October 8 at the State House by Messenger George W. Leadbetter and his assistants. The total vote was 142,105, of which William T. Haines, Republican, had 71,043; Frederick W. Plaisted, Democrat, 67,748; George Allen England, Socialist, 2110, and William I. Stirling of Waterville, Prohibitionist, 1201. The Prohibitionists polled 92 votes less than two years ago and have again failed to obtain a place upon the official ballot, the requirement being that any political party to receive a place upon the official ballot must poll at least 1 per cent of the total vote cast in the preceding general election. This tabulation is from the clerk's returns and not from the official returns, which will not be opened until the assembling of the 76th Legislature and will then be canvassed by the joint select committee on gubernatorial vote.

The total vote cast in 1910, according to the official returns, was 141,564, of which Bert M. Fernald, Republican received 64,644; Frederick W. Plaisted, Democrat, 73,304; R. V. Hunter, Socialist, 1641; James H. Ames, Prohibitionist, 1206; 60 were scattering and 619 defective.

Following is the vote by counties in 1912, according to the tabulation of the clerk's returns, made Tuesday week:

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Women From Forty-Five to Fifty Are Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The "change of life" is a most critical period in a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, she may be predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of some organ. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared to meet the needs of women's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

A LIBERAL OFFER

Anyone Can Try Samose, the Remarkable Flesh-Forming Food

When one of the leading druggists in Rockland tells you that he has a preparation which he so thoroughly believes in that he will refund your money if it does not do all that is claimed for it, it shows that the article must have unusual merits. It is in this way that C. H. Pendleton is selling Samose, the remarkable flesh-forming food.

Samose is in reality a concentrated food and restores life and vitality at once to the blood. It mixes with the ordinary foods and aids digestion; it extracts from the food that you eat the flesh-forming and strength giving elements, building up the tissues and the general health.

Any one can get a 50 cent box of this remarkable flesh-forming food, knowing that their money will be refunded if it does not increase weight and restore the system to health.

Mrs. Estella Gillispie

ONE CASE OUT OF MANY TO PROVE OUR CLAIMS.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement, and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headache, was nervous, irritable and was dependent. Sometimes my appetite was good but more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance."

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I was helped from the first. At the end of two months the swelling had gone down, I was relieved of pain, and could walk with ease. I continued with the medicine and now I do almost all my housework. I know your medicine has saved me from the grave and I am willing for you to publish anything I write to you, for the good of others."—Mrs. ESTELLA GILLISPIE, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 34, St. Anne, Illinois.

ORRINE CURES WHISKEY AND BEER HABIT

ORRINE is the standard remedy and is everywhere recognized as the most successful and reliable home treatment for the "Drink Habit." It is highly praised by thousands of women, because it has restored their loved ones to lives of sobriety and usefulness, and the weekly wages which at one time were spent for "Drink" are now used to purchase the necessities and many comforts for home. Any wife or mother who wants to save her husband or son from "Drink" will be glad to know that she can purchase ORRINE at our store, and if no benefit is obtained after a trial the money will be refunded. Can be given secretly.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms: No. 1, secret treatment, a powder, absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink; ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, is for those who desire to take voluntary treatment.

Costs only $1.00 per box. Ask for free booklet telling all about ORRINE.

HOW TO SUCCEED

During the last few years, conditions in all lines of business, even professional life, have changed so completely that every man is waking up to the fact that in order to win success he must specialize and learn to do some one thing and do it well. So it is with any article that is sold to the people. It must have genuine merit or no amount of advertising will maintain the demand for the article.

For many years we have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. From the very beginning of its preparation, it had so much confidence in it that they invited every one to test it, free of cost, before purchasing.

It is a physician's prescription. They have on file thousands of letters received from former sufferers who are now enjoying good health as a result of its use.

However, if you wish first to try a sample bottle, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will gladly forward you a sample bottle by mail, absolutely free.

APPLETON

Amos Boynton

Amos Boynton died at his home early Wednesday morning, Oct. 9, after an illness of nearly five years.

The patience and fortitude which he manifested throughout the trying months of his sickness were remarkable, always having a pleasant smile and a cheery word for those around him.

The deceased was born in Alna, Me., and was 50 years of age. When he was 10 years old he went to Boston where he had employment with a firm for 32 years.

About five years ago his health began to fail gradually, but kept at work until two years ago when he came here hoping the change would benefit him and he would regain his health. By his first marriage to Miss Helen Burkett, who died several years ago, he is survived by three daughters and one son.

His second marriage was to Miss Annie McVoor of this place, who survives. He was a member of the Tremont Temple church in Boston. By his life he has shown there to be a reality in the religion which he professed.

Funeral services were held Saturday conducted by Rev. H. P. Taylor of Searsmont. Many beautiful floral pieces from relatives and friends in Camden, also from the neighbors, covered the casket. The interment was at Pine Grove cemetery.

Those from out of town present at the services were Mrs. Graves, Woburn, Mass.; Mrs. Wilkins and Mr. Boynton, Somerville; John McVoor, Fitchburg; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gray, Edwin Gray and Mrs. Lawson Cobb of Warren; Mrs. Payson, Mrs. Ara Cummings and Miss Rose Evans of Camden.

HITTING NORTHWEST TRAIL

It was the site of the historic Fort Garry, a Hudson Bay trading post; now it is the metropolis, railroad and business centre of the Canadian West. It has been well and truly called the "Hub" of Canada, with apologies to Boston. In 1870 it had a population of 215. It now has approximately 200,000 people, and at the present rate of increase, will probably have over a quarter of a million in 1914.

Winnipeg is an educational and religious center, having 122 churches and missions, the Presbyterians being the strongest, with the Church of England, the Roman Catholic, Meth- odists, Baptists, Lutherans, Hebrews and Congregationalists following in the order named; 32 public schools with an enrollment exceeding 21,000; also six parochial schools with 1,200 pupils, six colleges, the University, Provincial Agricultural College, acad- emies, ladies' schools, etc. One of the largest department stores, the Eaton Company, in America, is in Winnipeg. The "Fort Garry Hotel" is now being built by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, almost on the site of the historic fort of that name. The new hotel will cost $1,500,000, will have 14 stories and 350 rooms, each with outside light, bath, etc., and will represent the last word in hotel construction. At present the Royal Alexandra is the largest hotel in the city, and was the headquarters of the Sovereign Grand Lodge during its session.

The city is splendidly equipped for business purposes. There are 23 banks with over 700 branches in the western Provinces. Locally, 23 banks in 1911, did a business that amounted to $1,172,763,142. The only other cities in Canada that even approached these figures were Mon- treal with a population of almost half a million, and Toronto with at least 350,000 people.

The grain business of the Canadian West centers in Winnipeg, and for the last year the inspection ex- ceeded 100,000,000 bushels, placing Win- nipeg as the greatest grain market on the American continent. This would be a good place for a nation. The city is well supplied with railway facilities; 22 railway tracks radiating therefrom. The Canadian Pacific Railway yard here, with its 135 miles of siding, is the largest in the world controlled by a single corporation. It is the central point of the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway systems—these railroads having just built a Union Station there at a cost of $1,500,000. Surveys have been made for a railroad from Winnipeg to Hudson's Bay, and that it will build in the near future is an assured fact. The construction of this road will open up a large and new territory for the exploitation of the agriculturist and manufacturer.

The total assessment of Winnipeg property for 1911 was $12,677,250, and the tax rate is 13 1/4 mills. Civic government is vested in a Mayor, a Board of Control of four members and the Mayor, and four city councilmen, all elected by ballot of qualified voters, taxpayers and tenants who are British subjects by birth and naturalization, being qualified to vote. Mr. Alderman has no place in the makeup of the city government.

Mayor Waugh is a Scotchman with a good-humored countenance, and re- ceives one very strongly if he dis- likes the city of Winnipeg.

Winnipeg owns and operates its own asphalt paving plant, its own quarry, street lighting, water works— including high pressure fire pro- tection.

It is now in a position to en- courage manufacturing by affording cheap power, which Rockland needs, but lacks. On the Winnipeg river, a total of 60,000 horse power is de- veloped, which is to be sold to con- sumers at cost of production. These facts argue strongly in favor of pub- lic ownership of franchises and util- ities.

Some idea of the remarkable growth that is taking place in Win- nipeg may be found from the building permits figures. New buildings erected in 1910-11 amounted to $5,585,845, and in 1911, $17,550,000. The first seven months of the current year have on record $14,068,650 for build- ing permits issued, and it is anticipated that Winnipeg will invest at least $20,000,000 in new buildings in 1912.

The factory output is now esti- mated at $36,000,000 annually, which is an increase of over 400 per centum in the last ten years. Over 15,000 factory hands now find employment in the 300 registered plants operat- ing. Take this record in industry, growth and add to it the wholesale turnover of $140,000,000, and the enormous grain trade, handled in the city, makes Winnipeg the central market and capital city of commerce in western Canada.

The public park system includes 424 acres divided into 20 parks, the largest containing about 280 acres, and are well adapted for play and rest. They are not disfigured as are the parks of Europe by idlers and unemployed as there is work for all in Winnipeg and the idler is a lone- some man. Main street is the chief thoroughfare of the city. It is 140 feet wide, beautifully paved, and has wide granite sidewalks. Double electric car tracks traverse the full length of the street within the city limits and fine buildings line its sides, making Winnipeg's principal street big, dignified and impressive— the more so since it is familiar history that it is no more than 30 years since what is now Main street was a muddy prairie trail.

Winnipeg's wonderful growth from a small trading post to one of the most prosperous large cities on the American continent is not alone due to its good location, but also to the energy and perseverance of its pioneer citizens, a spirit which re- mains the Winnipeg spirit of the present day, and surely in the future will insure its being one of the best and most progressive cities in North America. Instead of the little isolated frontier post of 40 years ago, it is now in every respect the most im- portant city in Western Canada.

In Social Circles

The arrival and departure of guests during the vacation season is of interest both to them and their friends. We are glad to print such items of social news and will thank our friends to supply us with information in this connection.

Miriam Rebekah Lodge will have a drill meeting tonight.

The Shakespeare Society will meet with Mrs. Ensign Otis, Lindsey street, Monday, Oct. 21, instead of Mrs. H. B. Fales, as given in the year book.

Milton Griffin, who has been home from Ludlow, Mass., on a month's vacation, returned last night. This Rockland boy is making good in the Bay State, having been promoted, after short service, to the position of assistant paymaster in the mills of the Ludlow Associates' Co.

Mrs. E. J. Southard has lately returned from Boston where she visited her daughter, Miss Bessie Southard.

Mrs. D. D. Wright of Long Cove is spending a few weeks in Boston and vicinity visiting friends.

Mrs. W. D. Bagley of Bridgeport, Conn., who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. M. F. Ham, has returned home.

Mrs. G. A. Milliken, 3 Fulton street, has returned from two months' stay in Bangor and vicinity, where she visited relatives and friends.

Miss Edith Young of Union is stopping at Mrs. M. F. Ulmer's, Park street.

Mrs. Edith Harriman and daughter, Carrie Lee Harriman of Stonington are guests of Mrs. L. P. Doran, Park street.

Mrs. and Mrs. William B. Smith of Bangor are spending their honeymoon with Miss Loretta D. Smith at the Highlands. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Florence Wood of this city.

Mrs. George Douglas, Mrs. Peter McCouttie and Mrs. Thomas Richards and daughter, Miss Lida Richards of Clark Island, were in this city Wednesday visiting friends. Mrs. Richards and Mrs. McCouttie were solicited funds to help complete the chapel at that place, which was begun a few years ago.

Mrs. Henry Stover is quite ill with the grippe at her home on South Main street.

Mrs. Eunice Clark of Thomaston and Mrs. Charles Kallio of Wilton are spending a few days in town this week.

Mrs. Frances P. Wight visited Mrs. Harris Woodman in Winthrop this week.

The Methebec Club meets this Friday afternoon with Mrs. L. F. Chase, Middle street. Papers on "Picturesque America" will be given.

Mrs. Elbridge Orbeton is visiting her daughter, Miss Eva Orbeton in Lawrence, Mass.

The Progressive Literary Club will be entertained by Mrs. B. Silsby, Summer street, on Monday evening, Oct. 28. The study of Brownings "Ring and the Book" will be continued.

The annual meeting of the Laymen's League of the Universalist church was held in the church vestry Wednesday evening, with supper at 6:30. Officers for the year were elected as follows: Ralph Loring, president; Arthur Shea, vice president; George L. St. Clair, secretary; E. W. Berry, treasurer. The League has about 70 members enrolled, and is planning some very interesting events for the winter.

The Shakespeare Society will meet with Mrs. Ensign Otis, Lindsey street, Monday evening, Oct. 21, instead of with Mrs. H. B. Fales, as printed in the year book. The first and second scenes of Act II, "Measure for Measure" will be read and studied under the leadership of Miss Ellen Cochrane.

Mrs. Mary Johnson of Belfast is visiting at F. J. Sprague's, Camden street.

Albert Robbins of Boston has been the guest for the past few days of relatives in this city. He was called here by the death of his father, W. J. Robbins.

Harry Schute and Frank Radley have been spending a few days in Boston attending the big games.

Charles H. Gross of East Boston is visiting his brother, E. W. Gross, Fern street.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Rolfe of Pittsfield are visiting Mrs. Rolfe's father, Abner Rolfe, at Beach Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. John Titus of Lime-rock street gave a birthday party Monday afternoon in honor of their year-old grandson Kenneth. Master Titus received numerous presents and his friends had a pleasant time playing games, etc. Refreshments were served. Those present were Gertrude Smith, Francis Douglas, Evelyn McDougal, Margaret Morey, Stanley Hall, George Edgett, Ellis Mills, Douglas Hall, Kenneth Moran, Ralph Derby, Thelma Titus and Earle Titus. The ladies of the Columbus will meet in their hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Howard G. Philbrook of Boston is a guest at W. O. Fuller's.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hix and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rose are guests of H. W. Huke at Torrington, Conn., motoring thither in Mr. Hix's car.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. C. Hain leave Sunday for a ten days' trip to New York. The Congregational Fraternity had its first meeting of the season Thursday night. The election of officers was scheduled for that time, but was voted to postpone that action until the church has a pastor and the ladies are better able to arrange for the banquet. The supper furnished by them Thursday night shows that they are equal to all emergencies.

Arthur B. Richardson is having his annual vacation from the banking offices of the Security Trust Co. He saw the Red Sox win the World's Championship Wednesday.

There will be a meeting of Class 26 of the Methodist Sunday school at Dr. Sweet's residence, Broadway, Saturday evening. Those interested in chrysanthemums are specially requested to be present.

ALBERT G. THOMAS

Albert G. Thomas, one of the best known residents of the Northend, died last Sunday at the age of 75. His death was due to paralytic shock, one of which he sustained four years ago, and the other about two months ago.

The deceased was born in Lincolnville, Oct. 16, 1837, a son of Jacob and Deborah (Whalen) Thomas. He learned the trade of ship fastener, and prior to his retirement from active work, about six years ago, was for a long time employed at the North Marine Railway. In his younger days he served as foreman of the Defence Engine Co. and the N. A. Burpee Co. He was a member of the regular police force several years, afterward serving for a long time as special officer. He had represented his ward in the city government. He was a member of Knox Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Rockland Encampment. Mr. Thomas was known for his evergreen nature, and his record as a citizen is one that led him to be honored and respected. He is survived by his wife, formerly Susan E. Neil to whom he was married July 3, 1867.

MacFarland's Second Trial

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Crockett Among the Witnesses at Newark—MacFarland on the Stand.

Allison M. MacFarland was placed on the stand for his second trial for his life for the second time in a year in the Court of Oyer and Terminer in Newark, N. J., Monday morning. He was convicted of causing the death of his wife, Evelyn B. MacFarland, formerly of this city, with cyanide of potassium at his home, No. 346 Park avenue, in the Roseville section of Newark, last October. He was sentenced to death, and after being removed to the death house at Trenton, received a new trial as a result of an appeal to the Court of Errors.

The trial proceedings, as reported in the daily newspapers, are given as follows:

Monday

Allison MacFarland was the coolest man in the Court today when Wilbur F. Mott, county prosecutor, in his opening address to the jury declared that the prisoner and Miss Florence Bromley of Philadelphia, of whom they had been married, were abnormal beings and that MacFarland would hesitate at the commission of no crime to gain his ends.

The opening session was prolix of developments that held the close attention of all that could be crowded into the court room. Many women hovered about the corridors in anticipation of seeing Miss Bromley, writer of the "Bunny" letters to the defendant, but while that young woman had arrived from Philadelphia on an early train with her father, neither went to the courtroom, nor did they be seen there until Miss Bromley is called as a witness in behalf of the defendant.

Frank M. and James McDermitt, counsel for the defendant, exercised peremptory challenges, while the prosecution challenged 11. The jury finally selected, after 51 names had been called, includes the following:

Max I. Tanenbaum, foreman mechanic of the Board of Education, 270 Fairmount avenue; G. Kahn, mechanic of 247 Warren street; O. J. Aaron, merchant, 55 Belleville avenue; J. Breen, undertaker, 65 Brookfield road, Montclair; Jean Tack, jeweler, 43 Nairn place; T. Grafton Abbott, Jr., insurance agent, Montclair; Thomas Valenzia, merchant, 90 Roseville avenue; J. Wesley Jackson, manufacturer, 336 Warren street; Howard W. Dale, insurance agent, 600 Highland avenue; Downer Adams, steamship company treasurer, East Orange; John E. Green, undertaker, 1000 Broadway; and Roman Holland, celluloid worker, 76 Barbara street.

Chief Justice William S. Gummere, who presided, lost his temper when the defendant's counsel exercised themselves opposed to the death penalty. A half-dozen talesmen timidly admitted they could not convince themselves that capital punishment was proper, but when Frank J. Gaffney of 179 Lincoln avenue said he would disregard his oath as a juror rather than condemn a fellow creature, the justice turned upon him angrily.

"Do you mean to say that you would violate your solemn oath?" asked Justice Gummere indignantly. "After his arrest, I, Gaffney, was proper, but when Frank J. Gaffney of 179 Lincoln avenue said he would disregard his oath as a juror rather than condemn a fellow creature, the justice turned upon him angrily."

"You are discharged! Your name will be stricken from the panel as long as I preside in a court in Essex county. A man who will say on the witness stand that he will commit perjury is not fit to associate with respectable men."

Gaffney left the stand with bowed head and attempted to seat himself among the spectators. Chief Justice Gummere would not permit this and directed a court attendant to show Gaffney to the door.

George E. Lacy of 248 Broad street, Newark, admitted that his religion forbade him to vote for the death penalty, however strong the evidence against him.

"Would you disregard your oath if the evidence warranted a verdict of death?" asked Mott.

"Vengeance is mine," said Gaffney. "Justice Gummere took the defendant in hand after he had been challenged for cause by the prosecutor, but Lacy did not recede from the stand he had taken."

"You are discharged," said the justice. "A man who will not do his duty as a juror has no business in this court."

Morris Tallant, a merchant, caused amusement when he admitted that he never read the newspapers. He didn't know what an oath was and never had heard of cyanide of potassium. When he said he might be induced to give damages for the State against the prisoner provided that the evidence warranted such a course, the justice held up his hands in amazement and Tallant was excused by consent.

The first move made by the defense was a motion that the prisoner be permitted to withdraw his plea of not guilty and that the indictment charging him with murder be quashed. The motion was denied by Justice Gummere, whereupon Mr. McDermitt provoked a long argument on the subject of the jury panel, which he said had been irregularly drawn. The objection was overruled.

In his opening statement to the jury Prosecutor Mott reviewed the circumstances attending the death of Mrs. Evelyn B. MacFarland in her room at 346 Park avenue, Newark, on Oct. 17, 1911, after taking cyanide of potassium which had been placed, as he said, by MacFarland in a bottle of bromide which was accustomed to use for the alleviation of headaches.

Tuesday

With the testimony of the parents of Mrs. Evelyn MacFarland the prosecution ended its case this afternoon.

The "Bunny" letters which convicted the defendant of murder in the first degree last January, were again introduced, but contrary to the expectations of the crowd that thronged the courtroom, the missives were not read.

Mrs. Lucy S. Crockett of Rockland, Me., mother of the dead woman, wept bitterly when she testified that she received a letter from her daughter on Oct. 18, 1911, the day on which her body was found in her apartment at 346 Park avenue, while little Ruth, the 2-year-old daughter of Mrs. MacFarland, was playing near.

Mrs. MacFarland wrote to his wife occasionally," said Mrs. Crockett sobbingly, "but he never visited her at our home. Finally she left us and we did not hear from her again until the very day on which her body was found. Her two children are now living with us."

George A. Crockett, father of Mrs. MacFarland, followed his wife on the witness stand. He testified that MacFarland had not sent his wife more than $75 during the two years she lived with her parents.

Your relations with MacFarland were pleasant until the police visited you after your daughter's death, were they not?" asked Mr. McDermitt, counsel for MacFarland, on cross-examination.

"In a general way, yes," was the reply.

"Why are you hostile to him now?" "I read accounts of the trial," answered the witness, "and his statement to the police convinced me of his guilt. I believe him to be guilty of the crime charged to him."

One of the most important witnesses for the state against the prisoner was Walter Godfrey, a detective sergeant. He swore MacFarland had informed him his wife was subject to heart troubles, but objected strenuously to an autopsy on his wife's body.

MacFarland told me he had found a bottle containing cyanide of potassium on the medicine chest," the witness said. "He also said he had placed the poison in a bottle which formerly contained bromide and which Mrs. MacFarland used when she had sick headaches. He said she did not know of the substitution, but he did not explain why he had not told her of the substitution of the drugs. Finally, when we found the letters his arrest was decided upon and a charge of murder was made against him."

That Mrs. MacFarland died from the effects of cyanide poisoning was proved by the testimony of Dr. Joseph H. Deschuer, a detective physician, who made an analysis of the contents of Mrs. MacFarland's stomach.

Wednesday

Telling nothing in his second trial that he had not set forth in a series of signed statements issued from his cell either in Newark or while in the death house in Trenton, Allison M. MacFarland, who had been convicted of wife poisoning, took the witness stand in his own defence in a Newark courtroom today.

He had not testified in the previous hearing, and interest centered in what he might have to say concerning the contents of his wife's stomach, as well as the contents of the letters which led to his conviction in the first trial.

The letters were those written to him by Miss Florence Bromley, a Philadelphia stenographer, known as the "Bunny letters." They are in the possession of Prosecutor Mott and had all been made public since the first trial. They contained passages which convinced the first jury that the defendant had planned the death of his wife to enable him to marry the stenographer.

When he took the stand MacFarland faced the ordeal of having to tell of his love for the Bromley girl, which he had admitted in saying soon after her death that he had endeavored to get a divorce from his wife so that he would be free to marry the Quaker City girl, and thus keep a promise he had made to her. The defense introduced three letters written by MacFarland after his arrest, one of which was sent to the Bromley girl. In this the defendant informed her that he was being held for the death of his wife and branded the charge as "preposterous."

The defendant wrote that he was not worrying about the situation and that everything would come out right in the end.

"As you know," the letter read, in part, "my lady had agreed to everything, and while she might have taken her life purpose, I think that she did it by error. Please do not be discouraged about it, dearest. Forget all about it for the present. It is a terrible mess, but you, dear, are in the wrong. Please do not be discouraged. I am to blame in the matter. My knowledge of innocence and your love will keep me up."

Remember, above all things, dearest, do not worry over it. What is to be will be, and at the worst we will die. Keep close to me on our wireless and remember that I think of you always. It seems such a pity when our affairs were so smooth. It will be two weeks or more before anything happens. I will write you if you want me to, but the letters are read."

The other letters referred to the disposition of MacFarland's son Robert, and for the provision of counsel for the accused man. The defendant was on the stand all day yesterday morning, and except for the noon recess, remained under direct examination until shortly after six o'clock last night, when it was decided to adjourn until this morning.

In the mean time Miss Bromley was in the office of Frank M. McDermitt, counsel for MacFarland, waiting to be called to testify on behalf of the defendant.

Summed up, MacFarland's testimony was a general denial of the charges against him. He explained about the presence of the bromide in his house for which it is alleged medicine was his own, and that only once did Mrs. MacFarland taste the bromide that he had bought. When he offered to take it, she refused to take it.

MacFarland was called on to explain his meeting with the Bromley girl. He said he first met Mrs. Bromley and about two months later met Miss Bromley. Her mother had told him of the girl's abilities as a stenographer, and he engaged her to work for him. He said that Mrs. MacFarland knew of the relations between him and the Bromley girl, having found it out in correspondence. The direct examination of the defendant was not finished and will be resumed this morning.

RED SOX WIN IT

By defeating the Giants 3 to 2 in a marvelous 10-inning contest Wednesday, the Red Sox, or Boston Americans, became champions of the world, having won four of the seven games. F. Louie will be the star.

CAMPING AT LAKEVIEW

A Faithful Account of the Adventures of Four Rockland Young Men.

Desiring to withdraw from the clicking of the Underwood, the ringing of the telephone, the changing of the B. Moore Railway Cars, rolling waves of the Sea and General Clamor and excitement of a great City, we, Charles B. G. Co. Morey, Arthur C. D. & C. Baker, Raphael E. S. S. Co. Sherman and Zenas Steamer Monaghan Melvin, planned a camping trip for this year's vacation.

We headed for Nobleboro, Tuesday, Oct. 8, Baker by train, Melvin and Sherman by buzz wagon, and Morey by later train.

The Painters' Retreat, where we stopped, is located on the main thoroughfare between Rockland and Damariscotta, being owned since 1904 by the Clifton & Karl gang. From an inspection of the register in the parlor we quickly saw that many of Rockland's best people had spent happy hours at the delightful spot. The cottage, or camp, is named "Lakeview," why so named the writer is unable to learn. There is a lake within half a mile, but it is not a lake, it would have to be nearly half as high as the Woolworth Building in New York in order to get a glimpse of it.

Even then those on the first and second floors could not get a view. Our life at the camp is simple, exactly as we wished. The first two days we hunted—for grub—both smoked and uncooked, and were very successful in bagging corn, beans, potatoes, pears, honey, etc., and our order for a chicken was executed by Mrs. Rolfe, the lady two houses away. The writer wishes Morey would learn to like onions.

Our time has been taken up with Flag Raisings. (Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt), one each in the forenoon, fires, cooking, washing, dirty dishes, scaring up partridges, (none of us are real sportsmen, although Sherman claims to have accidentally bagged a robin, etc., etc.)

Wednesday we were kept busy watching Rockland autoists slip by bound for the Topsham Fair. Thursday was spent walking to Damariscotta, where we had a picnic at Doctor Fiske's excellent dinners and watching (at Baker's suggestion) the girls and boys come from Lincoln Academy.

That evening we called on "Web" Sidelinger at his little store, "Web" inquired for Ned Clifton and told us in very lurid and religious language some short stories. We learned that his father was Red Cloud, and his age was 172. By Thursday night we were accustomed to the beds, all excepting Morey. He arrived last night, got the bunk and, after a long and hard day, he was in bed.

Friday we hunted. By this I mean we took turns in dragging a musket through the woods. After several miles of tramping we returned to camp with Big Apples, etc., etc., and all the Shells we started with.

That evening saw us sitting into the Spread provided by the Ladies' Aid of the Baptist church. The supper was delayed until 7:15 p. m., on account of the Beans and Cream Pie not reaching the Grange hall early enough to have the supper earlier.

Saturday it rained, and rained quite hard. In the afternoon we walked to the Station (1½ miles) with Baker. He had to leave us. We didn't have any doughnuts. Believe me, we got our Walter H. Spear Footwear some muddier.

Sunday slipped by very quietly. None of the remaining Three arose until after daylight. This delay in arising kept us from church in the morning, but we went to the evening service just after (our) dinner and had our supper when we got back, and then went right to bed.

Morey leaves this beautiful Morning for the Festival at Portland. He had seven dollars' worth of Pastebords locked up in his pocketbook. Some music coming to him, he thinks. By Gum, it will be lonesome for the next four days. Melvin and the writer plan to take an auto trip, visiting Bristol, Pemaquid, Round Pond, New Harbor and surrounding places. Sherr MacFarland.

P. S.—One of the neighbors just sent in a quart of buttermilk. The neighbors are all right.—S. M.

THE MANAGEMENT OF THE TWO THEATRES in Rockland—Rockland and Empire—will cooperate with the Health Day Association and give entertainments on Sunday, Oct. 27. Many prominent residents of Rockland are serving as honorary vice presidents of the Association and others have given the movement their hearty endorsement. Tickets are now on sale at the theatres and elsewhere in the city.

ROCKLAND THEATRE

Last Performances of Taylor Stock
Company Today and Tomorrow.

What may be termed a first-class repertoire stock company traveling nowadays is that of the Taylor Stock Company, now giving daily performances at the Rockland Theatre. Every one presented thus far was well received by the large audiences that packed the theatre every afternoon and evening. The participants in the plays had no trouble gaining the confidence of the people from the very first night they appeared on the stage, and by this time are easily the favorites of our city.

This afternoon the company presents that well known play "Regeneration," which pleased so well a large audience Tuesday evening. The play is well staged and each part is highly mastered by every one of the cast. Tonight the company presents "The Golden Bawn," Saturday matinee, "Deserted at the Altar," and the closing bill Saturday night will be "Yankee Doodle Detective." This play should draw a capacity house Saturday, as it is one of the strongest bills the company has in its repertoire.

Next week Rockland Theatre will resume its usual vaudeville and picture performances. For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Maeger Rosenberg has secured two of the best Keith acts on the circuit, namely Connery and Legault, comedy singing and talking specialty, and Hewitt & Co., novelty European artists.

The last set of baseball slides showing the most important plays of the game which won the pennant for the Red Sox will be shown in this theatre tonight between the acts.

proved to be of exceptional interest at the time of our visit because of the presence of Uncle Sam's powerful warship fleet, containing something like 150 craft. All were conspicuously numbered, and it was not at all difficult to locate the ship you wished to visit. Battleships have long since ceased to be a curiosity to Rockland folk, but this splendid array of sea fighters would have compelled admiration anywhere. Sailors by the thousands thronged Greater New York, but made less showing among the metropolitan multitudes than what 500 of them coming up Sea street.

New York by day and New York by night are two different cities, and of the two the latter would be chosen by the average stranger because of the dazzling splendor of the lights and electrical designs which make the Great White Way an object of interest unrivaled the world over.

We boarded one of the large automobiles operated by the Green Car Sight Seeing Co. and in company with about 30 other tourists spent three delightful hours visiting various points of interest, all of which were described by a guide with a megaphone and a strong sense of humor. From the Great White Way the sight-seeing party was eventually taken to the Chinese quarter in Pell, Mott and Doyne streets, the inhabitants of which were not minded to resent the intrusion, because of the commercial benefits which accrued to them. In the "Chinese Delmonico" we ate chop suey and its attendant courses, the ingredients of which were obligingly explained by a Chinese waiter who talked better English than the average Englishman.

We were shown an old Chinese theatre, which was abolished because of the frequency with which murders and riots occurred there. It is now used as a mission, and Salvation Army lassies were on hand to receive whatever financial inspiration the tourists might offer.

Of course we visited the Joss House, and were introduced to the High Priest, who did not cringe a smile, when our guide, sotto voce, remarked that he looked "almost human at times." He had the human instinct of commercialism, all right, and his dignified title of High Priest did not interfere with his willingness to swap post cards and other souvenirs for plain United States cash.

The guide told us all about the tongs and their bloody feuds. Had our visit been based upon the tongs, we should have seen how truthful our guide was, for the despatches of Oct. 14 told of the sudden tong outbreak in Chinatown, which resulted in the death of two Chinamen and two white men. Things were distressingly peaceful while we were in Chinatown, but we found plenty of excitement every time we undertook to cross one of the busy thoroughfares. The driver of our car nearly killed a score of pedestrians, including a cop.

In the foreign quarters, which are virtually four in number, the inhabitants swarm about the streets about 11 p. m. They also have a pleasant habit of throwing all sorts of refuse into the streets. At midnight the street cleaning department gets busy with garbage wagons, hose and disinfectants to clean the highways a temporary semblance of decency.

Little Hungary, where Col. Roosevelt once made himself solid by paying a personal visit, received a call from us in the evening. A gypsy orchestra furnished music, and a native sang. Both could be heard distinctly on the West Side.

Even the hardened travelers who visit New York as often as we do the "movies" are not conscious of its greatness. Read the following statistics furnished by the Green Car Sight Seeing Co.:

Every second four visitors arrive in town.
Every 42 seconds an immigrant arrives.

Every 52 seconds a passenger train arrives.

Every six minutes a child is born.

Every 113 minutes there is a wedding.

Every 42 minutes a new business firm starts up.

Every 48 minutes a ship leaves the harbor.

Every 51 minutes a new building is completed.

Every night $1,250,000 is spent in restaurants and hotels for dinners.

Every day 350 new citizens come here to live.

New York has 113 public parks varying in size from 4 square yards to 1750 acres.

Two thousand, three hundred and forty-one trains, carrying 403,183 passengers, come in and out of New York daily.

New York contains more Irish than Dublin and more Italians than Rome.

The density of population in New York is 66,000 per square mile—six times that of any other city in the United States.

More than a quarter of a billion dollars has been expended in the last ten years in building underground and under water railroads in and around New York.

New York has one building—the Metropolitan Building—in which more than 7500 people are at work daily. This is the tallest building in the world. The tower is 50 stories high from the ground and measures 700 feet to the dome. The main building, including the tower, covers an area of 425 by 200 feet. On the tower is the largest clock in the world. It has four faces, measuring each 36 feet 6 inches in diameter. There are six bells in the dome of the tower, which toll the hour, half hour and quarter. At night there is a search-light which has a radius of about 30 miles. The tower can be seen within a radius of five miles and the clock can be read within a radius of two miles.

It takes all the time and effort of 250,000 hens to supply the New York market with eggs daily; the market consumes 90,000,000 annually.

The German population of New York is twice the total population of Bremen.

The value of real estate of Greater New York is reckoned at $3,391,771,862.

New York consumes nearly 150,000 barrels of beans annually—four times more than Boston.

Every man, woman and child in New York is allowed 105 gallons of water a day.

There are five office buildings in New York, all within five blocks, worth $25,000,000, within which 28,000 people are at work daily.

The tobacco shops and hotel cigar stands in New York give away 11,000,000 matches daily.

The poor immigrants, landing at the port of New York, bring with them a total daily average of $4,000.

New York's new water supply system, now building, will cost $300,000,000. It will eventually supply a billion gallons of water daily, enough for a 7,000,000 population.

Back to Boston we sped on the midnight express, this time via the Shore Line, which includes New Haven and Providence. I thought of "Reddy" McDonald as the train stopped at New Haven, and wondered if he was "in right" on the World's Series.

We were fortunate enough to secure good seats to Saturday's game in Boston, but the payment of a premium was about all that stood between them and the disappointment of being among the several thousand who did not get into that game at all. The peerless pitching of Christy Mathewson, who did not permit one of the Red Sox to see first base after the 3d inning, and the unexpected class shown by Bedient were among the features of a game which the Boston Globe said had never been excelled.

When it was all over we jumped into the arena with about 10,000 others and examined more closely the diamond on which the famous struggle had taken place. The writer, or even Jimmy Carter, could do better work at Oakland Park with a diamond as perfect as that.

The electrical show in Mechanics' Building is a notable exhibit, for which we had only time for a cursory inspection. I have no doubt, however, that my friend Mose Beaton can give any person desiring it a description that will be well worth as good as the show itself. Supt. Hisholm also saw in that the president of the Bull Moose Club is a bashful man.

Columbus Day was celebrated by the Bostonians in a manner that would have astounded our lamented friend Christopher Columbus had he come back to life and been able to get a favorable position on the curb. There were nearly 30,000 persons in the parade, which was several hours in passing a given point. Among those who rode at its head was Mayor Fitzgerald, who sang "Sweet Adeline" at the Arcade a few nights ago, and then went home and spoke his mind about Maine. There were bands galore, but I heard none which had anything on "Admiral" Roscoe G. Ingraham's as it sounded on the night that "Honey Fitz" spoke here.

There are some other subjects pertaining to our trip which I would fain discuss, but our space is worth more for advertising, and I submit the foregoing with due apologies.

Crawford Parlor Stoves

Crawford "Parlor"

Crawford "Wood Parlor"

"Crawford Parlor." A genuine indirect draft stove with full return flue; the smoke passes down between the firepot and the outside casing of the stove to a flue beneath the ashpan, thence up and out through the back smoke pipe to the chimney, giving more heat and burning less coal. The grate center slides forward for dumping. Large clinker door; wide, deep ashpan; dust damper; nickel rails removable. Four sizes.

"Tropic Crawford." With or without down draft back pipe. Draw center grate. Best stove made at the price. Nickel rails removable.

Crawford "Wood Parlor." In this new heating stove for wood the front door swings open to give the effect of a fire-place. By moving a slide in this door the fire can be seen without opening the door itself. The slide openings are protected by wire gauze. The main top swings to one side and underneath it is a large plate that lifts to admit large pieces of wood.

This stove is made in both direct and indirect draft styles. It is strongly made and very handsome. Three sizes, to burn 19, 22 or 25 inch lengths.

IS DECLARED VOID

A trust, estimated at $2,000,000 created by the will of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church, for the benefit of the denomination, was declared void October 9 by the Massachusetts supreme court. The court holds, however, that a charitable trust has been created and that new trustees may be appointed to administer it.

The trust, under the will, was to have been administered by the directors of the Mother church in Boston, but the court decided that the trust provisions were nullified under the statute limiting the amount of the income bequests to religious organizations to $2,000 annually.

The court in its decision, dismissed the bill brought by the contestants of the will, who alleged that the teachings of Christian Science were against public policy. The contestants, however, are given 30 days in which to bring in additional evidence to support their claim.
