Tomorrow every fault is to be

A double calla lily has been raised by the Misses Laura and Dora Carleton of

was due to no special cultivation or training. Those who have seen the blossom say it is very beautiful.

Fire which broke out in the boiler room of Barrows Lodge, one of the boys' dormitories at Hebron Academy Monday night, was extinguished by the boys' fire department before it reached the conflagration stage. At least 20 of the 28 students still find accommodations in the building. Comparatively few personal effects were lost.

The number of idle freight cars in the United States and Canada, as shown by the report of the American Railway association, is on the increase. Jan. 18,
the date on which the report was completed, there were 122,297 idle cars,
more than twice the number on Jan.
19, 1910, when 51,836 idle cars were reported. The railroad men give three reasons for the surplus: First, snow
and storms in 1910 tied up many cars
and brought out all the empty cars
the railroads could obtain. Second, the low ebb at which the iron and steel mills and the big manufacturing plants are operating. Third, enforcement of rules of the interstate commerce commission for prompt unloading of cars.

Capt. C. O. Cousins and Walter L.
Blaisdell, U. S. steamboat inspectors for the Eastern district of Maine, have presented their annual report, which shows that 765,662 passengers were carried on passenger steamers belonging in the district and reported to the inspectors. This number does not include passengers carried on the Eastern Steamship Co.'s boats between Boston and Bangor, which are reported in the Boston district. Speaking of the increase of motor-driven craft, Capt.
Cousins says that it has been estimated there are 3,000 or more motor boats in this district and of this number a very large percentage is more or less engaged in the transportation of passengers, if not for hire, at least, in such a manner as to take away business from regular steamboats. Capt. Cousins stated that he knew of four steamers that had been withdrawn from their routes largely, if not wholly, by reason of increasing competition on the part of motor-driven craft.

Fishermen On Anxious Seat

Will There be a Nine Inch Law and Close Time in Summer Months?—Horatio D. Crie Discusses the Seining Proposition.

With a nine-inch lobster law pending
in the Legislature, coupled with a proposition to have a close time from June 1st to Sept. 1st, and with the seiners
and weirmen indulging in the preliminary skirmish before the great battle which they are to wage during the Legislative session, it is not surprising that many Knox county fishermen are spending sleepless nights.

The Augusta staff correspondent of the Bangor Commercial describes the lobster situation as follows:

"The nine-inch lobster bill, which has been introduced has aroused the last fisherman on the coast to fighting pitch and the next few weeks of the session will be made notable by one of the biggest fisheries fights in recent years. Many of the lobstermen were interested in the fight between the weir-
men and the seiners, because of the use of herring for bait, but the nine-inch lobster bill has aroused them all. Some of them suspect that this proposed lobster law was put in to divide their forces on the other fight, but the most of them feel that the real purpose is to give the pound keepers and big dealers
a chance to get the cream of the summer trade, for in addition to the nine-inches clause, the bill also provides for a close time on lobsters during the month of July.

"The lobstermen claim that this is one of their best months, that they can often sell lobsters to the summer people for 25 cents apiece that the pound keepers wouldn't pay 15 cents for.
They further say that there is a small army of old men and very young men, who can pull traps at that time of year and eke out an existence, who cannot fish at other times of the year.

"The nine-inch law has been tried in other states, say the fishermen who want to cling to the present Maine law,
and proved a failure. The lobster supply in those states has been constantly depleted until they have been obliged to turn to Maine for enough to meet the demand. On the other hand, lobster on the Maine coast have been constantly increasing in number and the industry has been and is on a sound footing.

"The lobster fishermen themselves have a bill which they propose to put through this session, if it is possible.
They want lobster fishermen licensed,
if they fish in Maine waters and to restrict the granting of licenses to citizens of Maine or individuals who have lived in the state at least one year. It is hoped, by a strict enforcement of such a law to stop the residents of other countries and states from fishing in Maine waters."

The sentiment of the Portland wholesale dealers was obtained by the Press,
which could not find one man in favor of the nine-inch law. "It will ruin the business here as it has in Massachusetts," was the general verdict. From the article in Friday's Press we quote
the following:

"One dealer pointed out that the fishermen, under the back measurement which provides that a legal lobster must be 4 1/2 inches from nose to the end of the back shell, the fishermen are really gaining from seven to ten lobsters in every hundred over what they would have under the old 10 1/2 inch rule."

"Not only the dealers, but the fishermen who do not handle short lobsters, declared they want no change in the present law. They have come to realize that a lobster less than the real length should not be caught. Nine inch lobsters, if taken, would be landed in the fall, just when the crustaceans
are shedding their shells and the females are beginning to spawn. To catch these would cut off the supply.
More than that, a lobster of nine inches in length has not reached maturity and

"Capt. E. E. Hahn, in charge of the United States hatchery at Boothbay, was in the city recently and when asked in regard to any proposed change
to that of the fishermen in the vicinity of Boothbay were also against it.

"According to the dealers of Portland, the State of Maine should take some action in the lobster matter. It would not be to lessen the legal length but to get into communication with the other New England states and see if some agreement could not be reached
so that the legal length in other states could be made greater. Maine supplies practically nine-tenths of the American lobster market, except when the Nova Scotia lobsters are being brought here. This State, the dealers say, should not recede from its position and endanger its supply. The other states of New England have ruined the industry by allowing the catching of short lobsters, or cullings,
as they are known among the trade,
and the dealers do not want to see the Maine supply go the same way.

"Should any bill providing for a shorter legal length, be presented to the Legislature, a solid representation to oppose it will go from the city of Portland. The local dealers are determined to do everything in their power to prevent any change and yesterday
announced their plans along this line.
With Portland representing the head of the industry in Maine and all the de-

ers opposed to the proposed change,
it seems doubtful if the law would be altered."

Horatio D. Crie of Castine, well known in Knox county because of his long residence at Criehaven, publishes the following communication in the Waldo County Herald, under date of
Jan. 23:

I went to Rockland on the Pemaquid,
Friday, the 20th, and had Alvin Hurd of Spruce Head meet me at Dr. Gould's office in Rockland. Mr. Hurd is a well fisherman, residing at Spruce Head but having weirs near Dix Island.

In course of conversation Mr. Hurd informed me that Joseph Cook, the captain of the sardine boat Harold, in the employ of E. M. Lawrence—and others set a drag sein across a cove
near Flag Island, and when the tide
ebbed and the fish came out of the cove,
over a bar, being stopped by the seine,
they rolled up in the water and smothered,
and he understood the amount estimated by Mr. Cook as lying there on the bottom destroyed by this process, was some 1500 bushels, and Mr.
Hurd thought a most conservative estimate would be a thousand bushels.
Reputable gentlemen who saw this smothering of fish will be at Augusta at the hearing.

Mr. Hurd further told me that several years ago steam seiners and vessels smothered hundreds of hogsheds in the lower part of the Mussel Ridges.
For years thereafter, no fish were found
where this smothering had taken place.
The following is written from personal knowledge:

Some 13 years ago at Ragged Island
the fishermen set approximately a thousand gill nets one night when it was calm. During the night a heavy southeaster came on, and the fishermen were compelled to make harbor, leaving their nets. These nets were filled with spawn herring and sunk during the night. As a result, no herring to speak of have been caught at this place until last year—1909—or nearly 12
years after this wholesale destruction.

Last year they came again in quantities. The water was filled with them.
You could dip them in any quantity
without torches, the lobster and other fishermen had an opportunity to get all the bait they wanted. Some few on the island owning seines, proceeded to seine these fish and where they would perhaps surround and capture a thousand and bushels, they would dip out only enough to load their boat, carrying from 200 to 500 bushels. The balance of the fish would be dumped on the bottom. As a result, there would have not been any fish there during the year 1910.

As a matter of fact, some of the men who used the seines were also lobster fishermen, and though for 12 years
they had had to go from 12 to 30 miles
to get bait, they entered into the work of destruction without regard to what the consequences might be, and this year they have had to go from 12 to 40 miles for their bait. This of itself is a demonstration that the matter of protecting fish cannot be safely left to the fisherman.

The above cases of destruction are of my own personal knowledge and the facts cannot be successfully disputed.

presented to Sheriff Richardson an ele-

What Is Time

I asked an aged man, a man of cares,
Wrinkled and curved, and white with hoary
hairs,
"Time is the warp of life," he said, "oh, tell
The young, the fair, the gay, to weave it well!"

I asked the ancient, venerable dead,
Sages who wrote and warriors who bled,
From the cold grave a hollow murmur flowed,
"Time sowed the seeds we reap in this abode."

I asked the dying sinner, ere the stroke
Of ruthless Death life's golden bowl had broke,
I asked him, "What is Time?" "Time," he replied,
"I've lost it! Ah, the treasure!" and he died.

I asked the golden sun and silver spheres,
Those bright chronometers of days and years,
They answered, "Time is but a meteor's glare,"
And bade me for eternity prepare.

I asked the seasons in their annual round
Which beautify or desolate the ground,
And they replied (no oracle more wise),
"Tis Folly's blank and Wisdom's brightest prize."

I asked a spirit lost, but, oh! the shriek
That pierced my soul! I shudder while I speak!
He cried, "A paradise! A paradise! A paradise!
Of endless years, duration infinite!"

Of things inanimate my dial I Consulted, and it made no wise reply:
"Time is the season fair of living well,
The path to glory or the path to hell."

I asked old Father Time himself, at last;
But in a moment he flew swiftly past;
His chariot was the cloud, the swift wind
His noiseless steeds, which left no trace behind.

I asked the mighty angel who shall stand
One foot on sea and one on solid land;
"By heaven's great King I swear the mystery's
Time was," he cried, "but Time shall be no more."

One of those annoying typographical errors made us say in a preceding issue, in alluding to Senator Staples' efforts to get prohibition taken out of Maine's constitution, that "we do wish to be understood to be questioning the senator's honesty." Obviously what we wrote was, "we do not wish," etc. The context would clearly indicate that we were not impugning Senator Staples' honesty, but we add this note of explanation and apology for the types. We think the senator sincere and regret only that he is on the side that we consider in error.

Temperance Committee Reports "Ought To Pass" on Senator Staples' Resubmission of Prohibition Bill—Knox County Power Co. Organized—Other Matters of Local Interest.

(From our special correspondent.)

Augusta, Feb. 2.
The temperance committee had a field day Wednesday afternoon and Representatives' hall was packed nearly three hours. The resubmission bill, the Sturgis repeal and the temperance committee's work generally were grouped for one big hearing. Senator Staples of Knox county opened the speaking by advocating his resubmission bill. Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens, national W. C. T. U. president opened for the remonstrants, and was followed by Hon. W. T. C. Rannels of Searsport, J. R. Libby of Portland, Frank W. Gowen of Waterville. Mr. Gowen nearly started a riot by shouting against the "dirty run Democracy," and was called to order by Senator Boynton, chairman of the committee. Screams of "Put him out" came from all parts of the hall, and Senator Staples entered a personal protest against the speaker's remarks. Mr. Gowen attempted to apologize by saying he was quoting the words of a prominent Maine Republican but did not name the man.

Henry Hudson of Guilford opposed resubmission, as a Democrat. Other opponents were Frederick Burnell of Portland, Frederick Hinckley of Portland, Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Berry of Waterville, H. E. Lufkin of Portland, E. H. Emery of Sanford. This was followed by the hearing on the Sturgis law repeal. Hon. Robert H. Sturgis appearing in opposition, as did also Rev. Dr. Berry, while Senator Staples spoke in favor of repeal. Senator Staples again spoke, this time in favor of repeal of the agency law, and Dr. Seth C. Gordon of Portland spoke to the same purpose. Mrs. Stevens explained the history of the agency law, and said that "if the time has come for abolishing the agencies, no one will rejoice more than the W. C. T. U."

The committee voted "ought to pass."

The hearing on the bill to require street cars to be equipped with fenders, held by the railroad committee on Tuesday brought out opposition from President Libby of the Portland Railroad and President Graham of the Bangor Railway and Electric Co. and the Lewiston, Augusta and Waterville Electric Ry. Both claimed that any known fender was really a menace of safety device. Mr. Graham stated that his companies are to equip their rural cars with cowcatchers. The committee voted that the bill ought not to pass. Memorial services to the late Senator James B. Mullen of Bangor were held in the Senate Wednesday morning. The Senators who offered memorial addresses were Kellogg of Penobscot, Gowen of York, Staples of Knox, Milliken of Aroostook. Resolutions of sorrow were adopted.

The fish and game association legislative committee met here on Tuesday and voted to recommend a law that a person shooting another in the woods shall be fined not exceeding $1,000, the fine to be deposited with the state treasurer for the benefit of the injured person or his family if killed.

New measures are:

By Representative Otis of Rockland—To authorize Rockland, South Thomaston & St. George Ry. to carry goods and chattels.

By Representative Skehan of Augusta—To forbid using material on streets that will injure the street. This is understood to be aimed at the practice of street railroads using salt in winter.

By Senator Farrington of Kennebec—To require savings bank books to be called in and audited once in three years.

By Senator Moulton of Cumberland—For $10 fine for selling short measure milk.

By Senator Moulton of Cumberland—To compel hotel keepers, restaurant keepers, etc., to notify guests when serving oleomargarine.

By Senator Staples of Knox—To repeal the law providing for censuses of the feeble minded.

By Representative Austin of Phillips—To make the fine for not setting and maintaining guide posts not less than $10 nor more than $50.

By Representative Harmon of Stonington—To exempt Civil War soldiers and sailors from taxation when their assessed property does not exceed $500.

By Representative Morse of Belfast—To extend charter of Belfast & Liberty Electric Ry. two years.

By Senator Mayo of Hancock—To provide for election of town school superintendents at the town meeting.

By Senator Mayo of Hancock county—Remonstrance of municipal officers and 304 others of Deer Isle against setting any towns off from Hancock county.

By Senator Mayo of Hancock county—Another herring bill. It would forbid taking herring in permanent weirs or traps, and allows a fisherman to take not exceeding 15 bushels of herring in a day with a dipnet. It provides for the present fines and for destruction of the weirs or traps.

By Representative Harmon of Stonington—Remonstrance of Leslie Stinson and 62 others against proposed law to prohibit taking smelts by dragnet.

By Representative Campbell of Cherryfield—Petition for making it unlawful to haul lobster traps between sunset and sunrise, the bill accompanied by a petition.

By Senator Allen of Washington—Petition for law to allow lobster, trawl and line fishermen to take herring in any manner for their own use, except within 1000 feet of a weir.

By Representative Boman of Vinalhaven—Remonstrance of Ralph J. Bickford and 29 others, fishermen, of Vinalhaven, against proposed close time on lobsters.

By Representative Small of Machiasport—Petition of Freeman B. Walker and 55 others for lobster and line fishermen of Jonesport for a law to forbid taking herring by permanent weirs or traps.

Hurley Wins the Handicap

His Appointment as Municipal Judge Calls to Mind the Romance of John Alden and Priscilla—Being a Story of the Court House Czar's Latest Conquest, and a Governor Who Ducked.

Gov. Plaisted appointed a municipal judge for Rockland late Wednesday afternoon, and to the unbounded surprise of all except a few statesmen, who are on the "inside," it was learned that Capt. William P. Hurley had been selected for the job. His name has been so much as been mentioned in connection with the appointment, although there have been many wild surmises as to what Gov. Plaisted might do if he sidestepped the responsibility of naming either Mr. Starrett or Mr. Thompson.

A review of the judgeship matter has so recently appeared in these columns that most of our readers are doubtless familiar with the circumstances.

When Maine went Democratic it was generally assumed that ex-Mayor Rodney L. Thompson would be a candidate for police judge. The Tolman faction which had been laying for him with an axe, immediately bestirred itself to develop another candidate, and after putting a score or more of available into the sieve found that Lewis Frederick Starrett represented the survival of the fittest. One of the sakesmas considered was to move Judge C. K. Miller down from Camden and give him the job as a consolation for manner in which they kicked him out of the probate court. It was found that this compromise apparently did not fill the bill, and the anti-Thompson faction flocked back to the Starrett standard.

Mr. Starrett circulated a petition, and found many willing signers in both parties. Mr. Thompson had no petition, but relied upon the support of with whom he is still persona grata.

It looked very much like Mr. Starrett until two weeks ago, when there came rumors from the state capital that Mr. Thompson was about to pluck the plum.

A general alarm was sounded by the Tolman forces, and business on the Rockland-Augusta toll-line increased by leaps and bounds. It is even said that one Democratic official threatened to bolt the party if Thompson was given the job. This dire calamity evidently unnerved Gov. Plaisted for word came from the capital that somebody beside Rodney would be appointed.

One of the emergency measures considered at this juncture was the appointment of Philip Howard, who has remained neutral throughout the contest. This would necessitate his resigning the office of county attorney.

All hail Judge Hurley!

had other occupations in summer, and thought that their interests should not be sustained as against the men who were in summer. The bill to make October a close month would hurt Maine, by depriving Maine fishermen of the Massachusetts market in the best month in the year, and he also asked for opening all the beds in September when the season begins in Massachusetts.

He asked for removing the restrictions now existing over a part of western Penobscot bay. He said that scallop fisheries should be open in spring, as scallops are the chief supply at that time.

James Elmer P. Spofford of Deer Isle stated that the people in his vicinity want the proposed law as a protection to their occupation, an occupation which, according to the fisheries commissioner, was worth $180,000 to Maine last year.

Gardner Closson, a Rockland scallop fisherman, said that he had fished for scallops 27 years, and believed that they crawl away from the beds for spawning, so that protection amounts to nothing at spawning time. He wanted the same chance as the scallop fisherman in states west of Maine. Under cross-examination by Mr. Kimball he admitted that he would not object but would make way for the appointment of Job H. Montgomery of Camden who has been getting his bumps of late. This excellent scheme fell through because County Attorney Howard declined the honor.

Capt. Hurley, who has stood sponsor for the Howard plan, by virtue of his position as state committeeman, was summoned into what some of the newspapers designate as "the imperial presence."

"Why don't you speak for yourself Captain?" asked Gov. Plaisted, paraphrasing a remark that savors of colonial days.

Capt. Hurley did not fall for the bait immediately, being a good deal of a fish, and somewhat smoother than goose-grease. There were conferences in Augusta and conferences in Rockland. It is rumored that the Czar of the Court House camped beside the telephone bell and that an imperial voice from the executive chambers hastily asked if the Hurley compromise would suit.

The Czar replied that it would; that Egan's cigar sign would be preferable to Rodney.

And thus the appointment came. The Tolman faction is pleased because it has again demonstrated that it is keener in strategy than the Insurgents.

Thompson is unruined. "I can earn a living without a political job, which is more than some of my friends at the Court House can say," is his only comment.

Starrett, the discarded catspaw, comes in for universal sympathy. He was coaxed into the canvass, and made to feel that he had a cinch, and the climax is a greater disappointment than as though he had been permitted to stand the even tenor of his way. It was in a similar manner that he was knifed for the tax-collector's job three years ago.

Judge Hurley will wear his new honors with accustomed grace. He is no lawyer, but nobody can say that he knows no law. Herbert M. Heath not long ago paid him the compliment of saying that he was the keenest man that ever faced him from the witness stand. Twenty-five years ago he was appointed postmaster, and the appointment came about as unexpectedly as did that of Wednesday. If there should be a vacancy for United States Senator there's none so reckless as to gamble that the job would not go to William P.

In the Tuesday issue of The Courier-Gazette appeared an advertisement of a fire and water sale for Mrs. E. F. Crockett which needs correcting. Mrs. Crockett called this office by telephone which was answered by a person not connected with the office, the office force being absent at dinner. The advertisement Mrs. Crockett wanted had nothing whatever to do with the goods in her old store that were damaged by fire, but the advertising man misinterpreted the message left him by the gentleman who answered the phone.

Mrs. Crockett knew absolutely nothing about the advertisement as published—she didn't order it printed and knew nothing about it until it was seen in the paper.

This office is wholly to blame in the matter.

The death of Joseph E. Anderson of Bath, father of Conductor Anderson of the Rockland-Lewiston run, was erroneously reported in our Tuesday issue, much to the embarrassment of the latter, who was being overwhelmed with condolences. Mr. Anderson, senior, celebrated his 74th birthday recently and the Bath Times published a biographical sketch, which was mistaken by our exchange editor for an obituary. In spite of the fact that he owns to 74 years, and has spent 53 of them on railroads, Joseph Anderson is enjoying such rugged health today that he can afford to be skeptical when he sees his own obituary in the newspapers. Our report was wrong—and we are glad of it.

Since the cottage season ended last September there have been 13 breaks along the shore from Owl's Head to Ingraham Hill. The thefts have not been large, but the breaks have occasioned much annoyance to the owners of the snug little summer homes. In one instance the theft consisted merely of a few boxes of cartridges, but the cottage was completely ransacked, and windows were broken. Druhi, the magician and illusionist, is mystifying Rockland Theatre patrons for the balance of this week. Wiseacres who think they know how to tie knots are invited onto the stage and requested to bind his arms and fasten him tightly to the top of a large box. A small tent is then brought forward to enclose him from the view of the audience, while the men who tie the knots sit alongside in comfortable chairs to ward off the approach of assistants. Druhi must be in league with the unseen powers, for when the tent-flap is again pulled aside no magician is to be seen until he leaps from the box with no sign of ropes upon him. Last night he freed himself in three minutes. It is rumored that some of the scallop fishermen will have a try at him today. Baby Lyons, the clever child singer, is back for another engagement.

Craftsman Homes

The True Relation Borne by the Walls of a Dwelling House to Its Interior.

"There are so many people who in building their houses seem always to have considered them from the other side of the street."

By GUSTAV STICKLEY

AN Englishman once told me of one of his neighbors who had built what seemed to him to be a very elaborate house. After showing my friend through it just after its completion he asked the usual question, "Well, how do you like it?" After some seconds of consideration the Englishman replied, "It seems to me that to really enjoy this house you ought to live on the other side of the street."

There are so many people who in building their houses seem always to have considered them from the other side of the street. The rooms are planned in order that the outside may take the desired and fashionable shape. There is a round dining room not because the owner prefers that shape, but because it is stylish to have a tower on the corner of a house. There is a cupola not because the stumpy roof within its confines is of use, but because it adds to the expensive appearance of the structure.

This is not building a house. It is building a monument to impress the neighbors, and monuments are hardly adapted for family use.

Of course a house must have walls, and it is the very necessity of them that makes their decoration or the putting them foremost in the planning of a house so absurd. A house has walls because something must stand between us and the elements. Our first consideration, then, is that they shall serve this purpose, not that they should impress the passerby. When we build a house we know about how much space we need or can afford to occupy, and after we have divided it up into rooms of such size and arrangement as would make us most comfortable we put a wall around it and ourselves within it.

This is the true house. Whether there is one room or a hundred, the house is first of all a shelter. It does not matter whether we pay hundreds of dollars to an architect or plan a little bungalow for ourselves, the buildings should develop in the same way—that is, the inside should dictate the character of the outside and the whole express the eternal principle of a house.

We do not mean to say that the outside of a house should not be attractive. Far from it. We only oppose the way in which so many people seek to make the house attractive. Since walls exist first of all to serve, why hamper their usefulness with architectural "trappings" which need continuous repair and fancy cornices and gables that leak and decorations nailed on to gather dampness?

There is a story of an old farmer who became prosperous and wanted to build himself a new house. The architect was frequently delayed in the plans, until finally the exasperated farmer said:

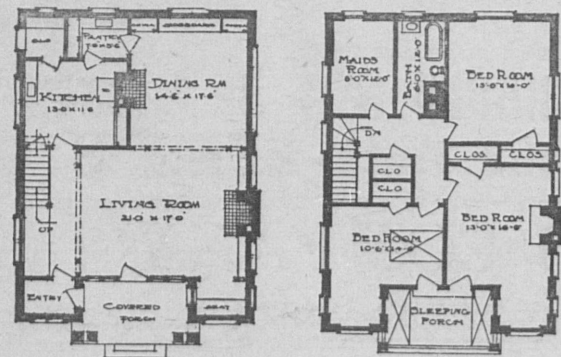

"Look here; I'll go home and build the house and you come and nail on the architecture when you get it ready."

This illustrates a popular idea of the treatment that the walls of a house should receive. But why decorate a house to be lived in as if it were a cake and should stimulate the appetite? The house is a construction, and if the materials from which it is made and the method of its construction are good those virtues make the beauty of the house. Nothing belongs to it that can be taken away from it and leave it as useful as ever, save in the case of certain structural features, such as the beams in the ceiling. Here in the evolution of building a stronger way of construction has been found which must be concealed. The beams because of their beauty represent the idea of support.

The Craftsman house which we publish for the use of the readers of this article will clearly illustrate our meaning.

Referring to our plans, the rooms will be seen to be closely connected, with no waste space, and to be conveniently arranged. They are large and airy; the lower floor, with the exception of the kitchen and the group of pantries around it, is really one large room. Sideboards, china closets, bookcases and window seats are all built in.

The stairs, with their long landing, are an attractive feature and balance the interest that the broad fireplace gives to the other wall. It is obviously comfortable and convenient to live in this house, as the plans show, and it is just as obviously so when you look at the outside of the house. There is nothing tortured or twisted in its outline. The walls simply rise up about the house, and you feel instinctively that they are a real protection and, whatever else is within them, there is at least warmth and security.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The house is built of dark red bricks arranged in a running pattern over the field of the walls so that they are neither severely plain nor monotonous, but interesting as in the surface of the woven tapestry. The vertical line at the belt course and above the windows finished with rows of headers relieves this pattern.

A colored tile blending with the bricks in hue and texture forms the key-stone to the window outlet. The roof of rough slate helps to blend the house with the trees and field about it, and the red tiles at the angles keep it in harmony with the walls. The exposed rafters and purlins are of cypress chemically treated to a soft brown, which, coming between the green of the roof and the red of the walls, weaves the colors together and bring out a fuller harmony. The exposure of this part of the construction proves the honesty of the building and adds to the impression of its adequacy.

The coloring thus far is dark and, although richly toned, might become somber. The use of brick exclusively is apt to make a house seem cold. With the introduction of wood there always comes a touch of warmth and humanity into a structure, and so the inner porch is made of wood and painted white. It is a distinctly informal touch and represents the life of the home. Standing as it does within the two outer pillars of brick which support the main roof, it seems to be extending hospitality to the stranger from the threshold of the home.

There is no attempt to make the house a letter of credit for the owner upon the passerby. It does not impress one with the number or size of the rooms within, but simply suggests comfort and well being without flaunting its owner's standard of living. The pretentious house with the round tower toward the rear, which we know must be the dining room; the stained glass panel which lights the staircase, the bay window in the parlor and the similar one in the sitting room across the hall actually demand attention to the commodiousness of the house. Its interior anatomy is as clear as if an X ray had been turned upon it. It offers no pleasant surprises to the one who enters it, and its pretentiousness makes every mode of life, no matter how comfortable, seem out of keeping with its elaborate exterior.

Cure's Coughs Prevents Pneumonia

Woman's Danger Periods Made Safe

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Here is proof:

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the Change of Life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had creepy sensations and could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I had a tumor.

"I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Nathan B. Groaton, 51 No. Main St., Natick, Mass.

ANOTHER SIMILAR CASE.

Cornwallville, N. Y.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time for Change of Life, nervousness, and a fibroid growth.

"Two doctors advised me to go to the hospital, but one day while I was away visiting I met a woman who told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and I know it helped me wonderfully. I am very thankful that I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. Boughton, Cornwallville, N. Y., Greene Co.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She will send you a guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

No Such Thing as Any Animal Having

More Than One Life.

All animals have the power to recover from injury occasioned by shock

—from being stunned. Insects are in no sense an exception to this, and most of them possess what has been called tenacity of life to a remarkable degree. A butterfly will sail away with a pin through its body, and an ant will go floundering around after being cut

in two, and all insects will quickly recover from a blow, even if such may

dent or break their external coverings.

In such cases the inside parts are mostly out of use for a short time.

Somehow similar to the case of your

"cashed." But after a few moments rest the wasp can again resume its actions.

A wasp is well armored. Its exterior covering is hard and almost unyielding. When it is struck a severe blow the soft, delicate inner parts yield to the impact; the nerves and muscular tissues cannot operate in unison, and the insect may be said to have been rendered unconscious as well as incapable for the "mind" actions depend upon its entire nervous system.

But there is no such thing as an animal's having more than one life. When crushed, dismembered, poisoned or smothered beyond recovery, when its vital organs are injured so that they cannot again resume their regular uses, an insect will die—not in appearance, but really so. And this may result from the wearing out of its active vital organism, which may be called old age, or sometimes only a few days or weeks of life. Its one life has then been terminated beyond any doubt.—St. Nicholas.

NEW YORK LETTER

New Skyscraper Will Overtop all other Business Buildings Ever Reared—Attempt to Introduce Public Smoking by Women Fails—Americans Use More Opium Than Chinese, Says Authority.

New York, Feb. 4.—Land in the downtown section of this city has long commanded prices that are almost fabulous in comparison with the rates received by the ownership of most portions of the earth's surface. A new figure has been set, however, on the value of air space in this expensive section of Manhattan by the figures for the latest and greatest of New York's collection of skyscrapers. This new building, already under way, is to occupy an entire block front on lower Broadway and will be forty-five stories high. It will soar 750 feet into the air and will overtop the Metropolitan tower, the tallest building in the city at present, by about fifty feet. In fact it will be the loftiest structure ever reared by man with the exception of the Eiffel tower. The cost of this new skyscraper will be over $12,000,000 and $5,000,000 has been paid for the site. As it will occupy about 13,000,000 cubic feet of space it will be that the air above lower Manhattan has a market value of approximately a dollar a foot exclusive of the ground area occupied, or about $1.30 a foot if that is included. Not the least remarkable thing about the new building is that it is being erected from the profits of five and ten cent stores.

Feminine New York apparently has decided not to smoke in public places—and whatever the fashion in this matter may be in Paris or London, there is no indication that the women of this city intend to copy the foreign custom. While it is undoubtedly true that many of the sex are addicted to the use of cigarettes in the privacy of their own rooms, there seems to be no desire on their part to extend the practice to hotels and restaurants. Even the criticism of several Englishmen who characterized New York as old-fashioned in this matter has had no effect. Whether all the credit from abstaining from the use of cigarettes in public is due to the women themselves, however, is another matter. It was believed that with the opening of a number of new hotels patronized by the "400" that the habit might become more general. But the few attempts on the part of women guests to take a puff or two in some of the public rooms were promptly squelched by the hotel managers. At the new Hotel Rector, where it was thought society might inaugurate the custom, the ban against feminine smoking is particularly strict, no ladies being given to the application of the rigid rule forbidding it. Indeed among the better hotels there is only one where smoking is countenanced, and there only in a special restaurant. So in whatever other places women may attempt to usurp masculine rights, it seems certain that in this city at least smoking in public will continue to be a privilege for men alone. So far as women are concerned it is not fashionable and it is not permitted.

WHAT CURES ECZEMA?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it. And although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.

Because—It cleanses, soothes and heals the skin.

Because—It enables Nature to repair the ravages of the disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema cure.

Drop into our store today. Just to talk over your case with us.

two facts which seem to settle the matter conclusively.

That Americans are more addicted to the use of habit-forming drugs than any other nation was the startling statement made this week at the conference of uniform drug laws held in connection with the meeting of the National Civic Federation. As the association was made by William J. Schefflin, president of the drug manufacturers' Wholesale Druggists' Association, it commands more than ordinary attention. According to Mr. Schefflin, the people of the United States consume more opium per capita than do those of China. The importation of drug amounts to 400,000 pounds a year which he estimates to be at least eight times the requirements for legitimate use in medicine. Next to the use of opium in its various forms, though less extensive, come the use of cocaine and cocaine by an appalling large number of persons. Inasmuch as ninety-nine per cent of the cocaine legitimately used is employed in operations, Mr. Schefflin proposes that only physicians be allowed to administer it and that it be made a crime to supply it to lay persons or for anyone except authorized physicians, druggists and medical institutions to have it in their possession. Only by such rigid measures, he contends, can the baneful spread of the drug habit be arrested.

REGULATES HERRING FISHERY

Full Text of Bill Introduced in Maine Legislature by Representative Heffron.

The bill seeking to regulate the herring fishing which is agitating the fishermen and fishermen in the eastern section of Maine and which promises to create as much trouble for the Legislature as the bill of six years ago, was sent into the House Monday by Representative Heffron of Eastport, and is as follows:

Section 2.—It shall be unlawful to erect or maintain, fish weirs or traps, on any spawning ground, or upon grounds where spawning herring usually habit.

Section 4.—It shall be lawful for lobster fishermen, or small shore fishermen, to catch herring for bait purposes, only for their own use, in any manner whatsoever, except with purse or drag seines, and except within one thousand (1000) feet of weirs, or traps owned by others, unless by consent of the owners of such weirs or traps.

Section 5.—It shall be lawful for any owner of a well equipped seine net, not exceeding one hundred (100) feet in length to tow such weir for the purpose of driving fish into such weir.

Section 6.—It shall be unlawful to catch or sell herring in quantities in which the fish under the milt, exceed in length more than five per cent in bulk of the total quantity caught or sold.

ACTIVE AND GROWING

Some Potent Reasons Why Neighbor Camden Feels Justified in Asking for the Railroad Extension.

We know that people outside of Camden do not realize the business activity in our town and we doubt even if our own people realize the growth and business development in town in the past ten years.

For two or three weeks we have been talking steam railroad and we said that we hoped to prove that Camden was important enough to make a steam railroad pay. Here are some facts that ought to go a long way in proving this claim.

Camden is the largest and most important town in Maine that is without steam railroad connection.

In twenty years its population has gained from 2,481 to 3,015, 20 per cent; in ten years, the gain has been from 2,825 to 3,015, about 7 per cent. In ten years our valuation has gained from $1,691,580 to $2,300,000.

Two of the best indicators of a town's business development are the bank deposits and postoffice receipts.

In ten years our bank deposits have grown from $209,508 to $647,350. Our ten years our postoffice receipts have advanced from a second to a first-class office and the postoffice receipts have grown from $18,000 to $47,000.

Within ten years two new industries have been established here, the Camden Yacht Bldg. and Ry. Co., and the Camden Anchor-Rockland Machine Co., the latter having a payroll of over $3000 a month.

During the same period several business blocks have been built, over 100 residences put up and more than 25 valuable summer cottages erected.

These facts prove conclusively that Camden is an active and growing town. No one can doubt that a steam railroad would give our town added impetus.

With only eight miles of railroad to build, it is extravagant to claim that a steam railroad to Camden would be a paying proposition? Aren't these facts sufficient to warrant the Main Central management in taking up this matter with our business men and making a thorough investigation of the situation.

Three patients from Warren who are at the Knox hospital in Rockland are rapidly recovering and will soon be at home again.

MRS. I. P. STARRETT

Mrs. Susan F. (Webb) Starrett was born in Waldboro, June 2, 1834. Her father was Robert Cushman Webb, and her mother was Mary Webb.

Of the family consisting of one son and six daughters, only the son Dea. Avery Webb of Waldboro remains.

Mrs. Starrett spent her girlhood in her father's home. Nov. 11, 1858 she changed her residence and her name, becoming the bride of I. Palmer Starrett and removing to the Starrett homestead at Stirling, in the western part of Warren.

Into this home three children were born, one dying in infancy and two growing to manhood.

In the process of home making Mrs. Starrett made room for church relationships. Having united with the Congregational church of Waldboro in 1855, she transferred her membership to the 2nd Congregational church of Warren, April 30, 1859.

In all these varied responsibilities, Mrs. Starrett did her duty faithfully. Through the years she has become a powerful factor in the home, in the church and in the community. With her husband she sang in the church choir for many years and was interested in the different lines of work carried on by the church.

Her home was made cheerful by an even, sunny disposition and had an attraction for a large circle of acquaintances. Every good cause was sure of a kindly hearing and earnest support.

Mrs. Starrett took a lively interest in what was going on about her and in the world at large.

On the morning of Nov. 11, 1908, when she was 74 years of age, she was stricken with paralysis and died.

Mr. and Mrs. Starrett that they remembered it was the time of their Jubilee wedding. On that occasion these worthy people were generously reminded of the passage of fifty years.

Now, we must record that near the close of Monday afternoon, Jan. 30, this long life came to a peaceful end. There had been years of failing strength; a few days of acute painful illness.

In her home, in the church, and among her many friends, Mrs. Starrett will be missed greatly.

Besides her brother, mentioned above, Mrs. Starrett leaves a husband, I. P. Starrett, two sons, Avery P. and Henry V., and three grandsons, Herbert L., Edmund and Nathaniel, and one great-grandson, Harold Bradley Starrett.

The funeral occurred Wednesday at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. Henry W. Webb. Music was furnished by the following: Miss E. P. Stevens and Ruby Brigham and Messrs. G. W. Walker and E. C. Stevens.

"THE DOCTOR" PLEASED 'EM

Amateurs Made a Hit at Rockland Theatre Wednesday Evening—It Will Be Repeated in Camden Saturday Night.

The clever farce comedy "The Doctor" was presented by amateurs in Rockland Theatre Wednesday night in such a creditable manner as to win praise from every person in the good-sized audience. The cast numbers seven persons, four of whom had never gazed across the footlights before, while only one member has had theatrical experience enough so as to be classed as seasoned.

The sensation of the evening was the clever work of Henry Alperin, a young student who has recently graduated from Commercial college. Cast in the title role he was the central figure around which the plot of the comedy revolved. He was a thorough master of his lines, and combined with them an ease and expression that have been the lot of few stage novices. The kissing scene was so realistic as to cause the audience to sit up and take notice, but it was the only portion of the play in which Henry has had previous experience.

The character of "Thomas Pickett," victim of the omnipresent mother-in-law, was interpreted in a very droll and successful manner by Francis Havener, who exhibited "some class" in the hugging scene. Ross McKinney as "Crumpley Chuggs" had an excellent make-up, and his handling of the part was in keeping with it. His deadly rival "Prof. Plunker," found an able exponent in John Gray.

The three female members of the cast divided honors very evenly. Adella Vezzie who appeared as "Mrs. Biloway" has often figured in amateur theatricals, and handled this part with accustomed excellence. Miss Phyllis Tolman has considerable natural ability as an actress and left little to be desired in the role of "Mrs. Thomas Pickett." Miss Clara Rowling was a newcomer on the local stage but appeared perfectly at home in the role of Fanny Mayfair.

There were specialties between acts. Avarid Richan recited "The Champion Snorer." The little chap bit off the big words with surprising ease, and has cultivated a bunch of snores that would disturb a thunderstorm. In his climax he paid his respects to Bandmaster Farnham.

The "Just for Fun" quartet did several stunts in a pleasing manner. The four vocalists were H. D. Farnham, Henry Alperin, Ben Farnham and Ross McKinney. Miss Vezzie's rendition of "A Dollar and a Quarter" earned her an enthusiastic recall. A good comedy picture was unreel.

"The Doctor" is to be repeated in Camden opera house Saturday evening for the benefit of the members of the cast.

MISS PUGSLEY'S CONCERT

Given for Benefit of Pretty Welsh Singer Who is Earning Passage Back Home.

Miss Jessie Pugsley, a pretty, brown-eyed girl from South Wales, came to this country last September under a verbal contract as gospel singer. Arriving here she found that the evangelist with whom she was to have been associated, had been taken ill, and in a strange land she suddenly found herself thrown upon her own resources. She sang for a short time in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and then came to Rockland with friends who had relatives in this vicinity. Profitable employment for her talents was not available here, and Miss Pugsley through the medium of a benefit concert to be given in the First Baptist church next Wednesday evening hopes to be able to secure funds sufficient to defray her traveling expenses. She plans to sail for South Wales March 18.

Since coming to Rockland Miss Pugsley has sung in several public places, and her hearers have been charmed with her voice and manner. Last year she sang with Dr. Chapman, at a series of revival meetings in the metropolis of Wales.

She will be assisted in her concert next Wednesday by some of Knox.

BRAVED THE BLIZZARD

Sixty Rockland Laymen Heard Rev. William E. Gardner's Forceful Presentation of the Foreign Missionary Situation.

Sixty members of the local men's leagues braved Thursday night's blizzard to attend the laymen's banquet in the Universalist vestry. They felt well repaid by the excellent supper served by the ladies of the several churches, and the interesting address of Rev. William E. Gardner of Boston, who presented the foreign missions proposition in a clearer light than any of his hearers had ever seen it before.

Col. E. K. Gould of the Congregational Fraternity presided and told a few anecdotes in order to pave the way to informality. The knife and fork, he said, were emblem of fraternity.

Mr. Gardner, the speaker of the evening, is department secretary for New England of the great laymen's missionary movement, a man of pleasant countenance and expressive features, who presents a complex problem in a manner that gets his hearers to thinking and understanding.

The man of today who is considering only his own church, is a mossback, said he. We are tending towards a world unity that is truly marvelous. International relationship is the greatest problem of today, besides which prohibition and the divorce evil are mere bagatelles.

Mr. Gardner spoke of the inequality of population. He said the young American is brought to believe that this is the greatest nation on earth yet there are three others in the far East that have a combined population of 900,000,000, with marvelous possibilities when developed and organized. The ratio of population there is 63 per cent larger than it is in this country. Roosevelt is right when he tells about race-suicide. Today when we find a family of four children some folks throw up their hands. A family of nine is considered positively indecent.

Today we are giving China the poorest of have, saloons run by Americans, and houses of ill fame, run by Americans. It is the object of the laymen's movement to see that Christian men are sent there. America is at the parting of the ways. Is it a world nation? Has it a world vision?

In response to questions Mr. Gardner told his hearers how the work of organizing missionary forces is carried on. Give of your time, money and interest, he said.

"The Climax," which appears at Rockland Theatre Wednesday, Feb. 8, is claimed to be the only successful drama which entwines its theme around a musical motive. The dominant personage is Luigi Golfanti, a poor, kindly old Italian singing master. Pietro, his son, is a composer, swarthy, hot tempered, sometimes morose. A third, whose fate gives the play its propulsive force, is Adeline von Hagen, pupil of old Luigi who has come from a western town bringing with her ambitions to become a prima donna. John Raymond, a young doctor who loves Adeline, but who has no patience with her ambitions. These characters you see in the gray monotony of their half-starved lives. There is an enticing pathos in the little drama which seems to clutch at your heart strings.

There will be special cars to Camden, Thomaston, Warren and Crescent Beach after the play "The Climax" at Rockland Theatre, next Wednesday, evening, February 8.
