Norman Thayer, the character that has been so endearingly portrayed on six continents, in 30 languages, on thousands of stages - even in places where there are no loons, no screen doors, no baseball.

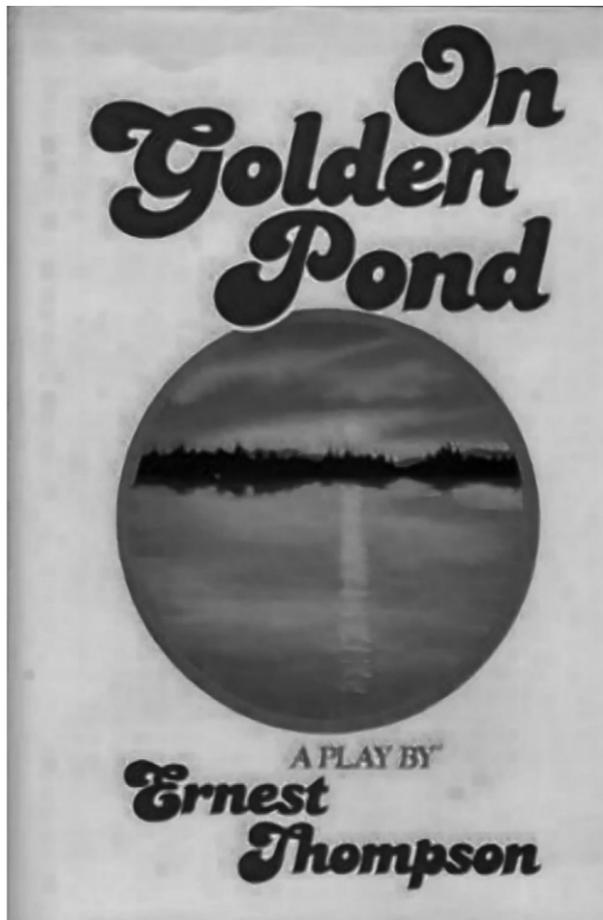

In the live televised musical Norman was presented by Christopher Plummer and on the big screen legendary Henry Fonda performed the lead in the second-highest grossing movie of 1982. Both Fonda and Thompson won Academy Awards for the movie.

"I'm following in the footsteps of some pretty top-level actors," Thompson says. "The role is really fascinating and I've had 41 years to think about it. I'm attempting to go deeper into his character."

It's still going to be the same play, the same comedy, Thompson states, "but there are layers under the layers."

"When 'On Golden Pond' was written, Alzheimer's was not in our vocabulary. But the guy (Norman) is drifting away; he's losing his grip. I'm inviting the audience to come into his mind."

Audiences have always been partisan to Norman's forgetfulness, but in the June production directed by and starring Thompson, there will be a projection device that shows the audience what Norman is experiencing in scenes when he is forgetful, going into the woods and getting lost, seeing things that aren't there, being confused over things that are there. The screen will reset when Norman's mind resets.

"I'm at the precipice of creating a whole new interpretation," Thompson states. "I've always been fascinated by mental instability."

Although the other characters will be played with deeper relational interpretations (Why has Chelsea stayed away for eight years? What is the mailman's underlying interaction with Norman - the father of his once upon a time crush, Chelsea?) the production will still be very, very funny, Thompson points out.

Unsure of how many other playwrights have starred in their own plays, Thompson says that for him and "On Golden Pond," he hopes this production will just be the beginning and that the play will continue to be produced for decades to come.

Thompson does admit that he has an advantage with "On Golden Pond." He owns it and although no one else can do anything with "On Golden Pond" without his permission, he can.

"It's a wonderful thing to own something," he says. "Not a day goes by but that we don't get a request (to produce it). There are literally hundreds of productions of 'On Golden Pond' every year."

And now, there is one. "On Golden Pond" starring Ernest Thompson will be presented June 12-22 at the Winnepesaukee Playhouse in Meredith, New Hampshire. For tickets call 603 279-0333. Getting there from here is a beautiful drive.

Television Writer David E. Kelley Addresses Colby College Graduates

David E. Kelley, creator of popular and critically acclaimed shows from Ally McBeal to Big Little Lies, urged Colby College graduates to reject a career that is "not so terrible" and instead pursue what will make them truly fulfilled.

A Waterville native and winner of multiple Emmy Awards for his television dramas, Kelley received a standing ovation from the approximately 460 graduates who were conferred degrees at the College's 198th Commencement.

Kelley recounted his own path after college, attending law school and practicing law in Boston, which he realized wasn't for him. Referring to the Bruce Springsteen lyric "Everybody's got a hungry heart," Kelley said he realized it was writing, not law, that brought him joy. After long days at a law firm, he worked on a screenplay at night-and so began his successful television career, which, early on, drew on his legal background.

Acknowledging that his advice might seem banal, he urged students to do what gives them joy. "Cling to the [inner] scream," Kelley said. "Keep it in there because so many, after failing to get what they want, decide the easier route is just to invalidate the want and pretend it was never a goal to begin with, and you become a little more deadened inside."

"If there's anything worse than a career you loathe, it could be one you kind of like. For those of you who get jobs you love, you'll be fine. The ones who get jobs, careers you hate, you'll figure it out, move on." But those who continue with careers that are "kind of okay," he said, "you could be doomed."

He also suggested graduates look back at their own college application essays, in which many of them pledged to make Colby a better place, and "take advice from the younger you."

The graduates, he said, "might write another essay in your application for life. What do you hope to accomplish? What you hope to get out of it? More importantly, what do you plan to bring to it?" There's one cliché that turns out to be true," Kelley said. "It's not about what you attain. It's about what you give."

—The Luckiest Boy—

Well, I guess it's time to open r State of Maine back up. Gutta go down thayah to Kittrey and move them barricades away from the rest of the gates on the Maine Pike entrance. Supposidly, one lane's good 'nuff from Novembah thru April. That's gets the skiahs up heah and back—and what few snowbirds didn't leave in time or came back early. It's been kinda nice to have it pretty much quiet up heah, but the problem is this: the money's run out. Yep, no matter how hard you work in the summah, no matter how much you stuff away in various accounts (like beeah, sled gas, Grill food), you just can't make it for moren 6 months before the bank calls and says your truk payment is 2 weeks late.

Now, just to fess up, I was writing downeast Mainer lingo above just to give all you "from-away folks" a reminder that things are different up here. So welcome back, but don't try talking up here like you just came out of New York City or South Mississippi. We know you won't sound like a real Mainer, but please do your best to give it a try, we'd sure appreciate it. It also gives the Maine folk something to make fun of from time to time.

Now that you've had a lingo refresher, let's talk about some of the Mainer habits that you should try and copy while you are here, whether it's one week or the entire season. Following is a list of do's and don'ts that you might as well get started on right from the get-go.

On your way into camp on Memorial weekend, don't bother to try and pick around the potholes on the camp road, just pound through 'em—your SUV can take it, and if it can't it ain't worth keepin. A little mud is not going to hurt your baby. Just remember, your road dues help put that dirt back in the holes, so use common sense.

When you go shopping tomorrow to fill the larder (fridge), don't buy fake butter. Get the logs of normal real butter. You're going to need it to roll corn in, and you can melt it down to dip lobsta parts in. Real good on toast

by Rod Johnson

When you are going in and out of the camp road, or even West Road or 27, don't wonder why some guy gave you a short fingered wave without letting go of the Jeep steering wheel. He was just saying howdy and won't bite. He probably recognized your buggy from last year, or his brother in law is your camp caretaker. Go ahead and practice it, it's just a minor effort-less finger lift. After 2 or 3 trys you'll have it down pat. Don't just stare ahead making it real clear that you aren't about to make eye contact while taking your half out of the middle. Look 'um right in the eye as you brush past and do be careful not to knock off your side mirror by hitting a hem-lock tree.

When you hear someone say they are going shopping tomorrow, it doesn't necessarily mean they are headed to Portland or Freeport. It may well mean they are heading to Reny's in Farmington or Damriscotta, maybe just out to Waterville or Lewiston to see what Mardens has today. Remember, "If You Saw It, You Should Have Bought It, At Marden's." Nice little jingle.

Dress: When you are riding around with your arm out the window on the local roads (it's o.k.) with your brand new red and black plaid shirt on, rub it in dirt and run over it with your truck before putting it on. A new red and plaid flannel shirt just doesn't get it—somehow make it appear half or two-thirds worn out.

Last but not least, don't ever say Lobst (er), say Lobsta.

Enjoy your time here, thanks for coming. We hope you are or will become an annual visitor, and that you progress this summer and learn a lot of new words.

Yours truly, The Luckiest Boy

— Take It Outside —

Greetings to the greater Belgrade Lakes Community and welcome back summer residents and visitors! Exciting things are happening: a new park (Village Green) as you come into the village from the south; new pavement and curbs; and probably most exciting of all, new high-tech stormwater catch basins equipped with filters that will remove sediment from the runoff before discharging to the lake. Of course, it will be much more exciting when the construction crews are finished. They have been working hard in all kinds of weather to get as much done as possible before the busy summer season and will be back in the fall to finish the job.

When I was growing up and there was any kind of ruckus in the house, which was pretty common with six kids, my mother would tell us to, "Take it outside!" We would then head out to the woods behind the house to find something to do. My mother was a wise woman. Fifty years before Richard Louv wrote Last Child in the Woods in 2008, she had an innate understanding of "Nature Deficit Disorder" and knew that direct exposure to nature is essential for a child's healthy physical and emotional development. Louv later proved that kids who spend a lot of time outside are healthier, have longer attention spans, and are less likely to suffer from depression or childhood obesity. If you haven't read Louv's book, you should. I hope this column will inspire you to take advantage of all the outdoor recreation opportunities in our area and especially about the importance of getting youngsters outside and interacting with Mother Nature. Mother Nature is an amazing teacher and we can all learn from her.

Like last year, this winter seemed to come and go, with snow followed by melting, rain, and then more snow and cold. The ice fishing was decent and the skiing was excellent on the trails in the Kennebec Highlands. The ice went out early in the fourth week of April, pretty much the same time as last year. The fishing has been good, especially for bass, pike, and trout. Right after ice out, the best action was near the inlet streams where the water coming into the lake is slightly warmer than the lake. Check out the 18-inch largemouth and 15-inch rainbow trout taken on back to back casts in the mouth of one of the streams coming into Long Pond. Once the surface water hit about 50 degrees (F) the fish began to get active and I caught a lot of very large (3- to 4.5-pound range) bass on flies fished deep near the bottom in about 20 feet of water near drop-offs, as well many rainbow trout feeding in the vicinity of insect hatches (watch for the tree swallows swooping low to the water). I normally release the vast majority of the fish I catch but kept two on Mother's Day for a nice dinner with fresh-picked fiddleheads, knotweed, trillium leaves, and dandelion greens. By the time this article is published, the water temperature will be in the mid to high 60's in most of our lakes and the bass will be in the shallows, either on their own beds or chasing sunfish on theirs. Fast action can be had with streamer flies, surface poppers, jerk baits, or Senko type jigs. There have also been some nice trout taken in the spillway below the Belgrade Lakes dam, and a lot of nice white perch being taken at several of the lakes, especially at inlet streams.

Hiking Again

Fish taken on back to back casts near a stream mouth. Mothers Day dinner rainbows.

Jodie Mosher-Towle with members of the extended Mosher and Towle families.

The local lake associations and other conservation groups have been preparing for summer, hiring Courtesy Boat Inspectors (CBIs) and Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) members to help protect our lakes. On Earth Day, members of the North Pond Association (including Linda Rice, the extended Mosher, Towle, and ten Broeke families) cleaned up the boat launch, spread erosion control mulch (ECM) and then took a hike up nearby Mount Phillip. Great to see all those kids getting outside!

The hiking trails (including some new ones!) in the Kennebec Highlands and nearby 7-Lakes Alliance (former BRCA) properties like French Mountain, Mount Phillip, Fogg Island, and The Mountain are beautiful, verdant, and awash in spring and early summer wildflowers like trillium and lady slippers and birds and other wildlife. Check the 7LA FaceBook site for upcoming events: (<https://www.facebook.com/7lakesalliance/>). June 1st is National Trails Day and the 7-LA Stewardship Committee is holding a Trail Workday. Stop into the MLRC or call Amy at 495-6039 to sign up. I encourage everyone to take advantage of the wealth of recreational opportunities this area offers. Take a kid fishing or on a hike, or paddling in a canoe. It's how memories are made. Or take a parent, so they can become a kid again.

The Dams Keeper Report

Welcome back to another Summertime in the Belgrades and the Dams Keeper Report. As of this writing, we are starting the summer off with the Village spillway dam 2.64" above full pond. Gate 1 is open just 10" or so to have some flow. That's right, above, i.e. the water going over the spillway is 2.64" deep. Long Pond is 3.12" also above full pond with both gates now completely shut down. Salmon is right at full pond. Our ponds are supposed to be at full pond to begin the summer, but with another beautiful but dry summer in the forecast, your Dams Committee has elected once again to start our summer with an extra 3" to spare. At this level, it will not have an adverse effect on our feathered friends nor should it float anyone's dock!

All of the ponds in Maine, with the exception of our neighbors on Messalonskee Lake, suffered again last year from the lack of precipitation. But Messalonskee was actually in great shape as it basked in the leakage from Long Pond's Wings Mill Dam keeping it full all summer. Well, that will not be the case this summer as we have temporarily remediated 95% of the leakage in this one hundred-year-old dam with reinforced poly, 500 stone filled sandbags and 45 sheets of 5/8" tongue-in-groove DryGuard sheathing.

This coming fall, we will begin a two-year final fix of the Wings Mill Dam whilst keeping what water we can in all of the ponds. Enjoy your summer! It's supposed to be beautiful.

Welcome Home!

Family-Friendly Kennebec Paddle On June 1

On Saturday, June 1, the family-friendly Annual Paddle for Pine Tree Camp features a seven-mile scenic excursion to benefit the camp in Rome that since 1945 has welcomed all Maine children and adults with disabilities who could benefit from its barrier-free facilities and programming.

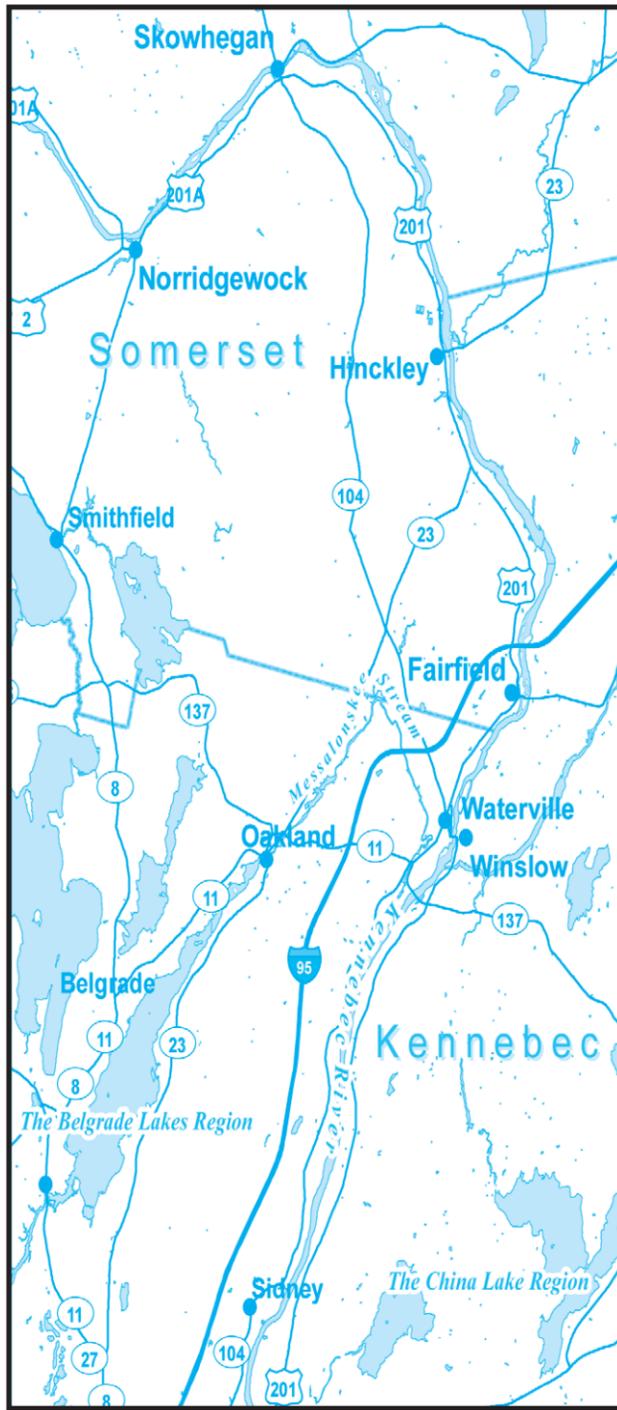

The 2-hour adventure starts with registration at 8 am at Evergreens Campground in Solon. The campground is a unique site on the route of Benedict Arnold's trek to Quebec, a location where Indians once camped and where today ancient petroglyphs can be viewed.

At 9:30 am, following welcome remarks and a safety briefing, the paddle begins as teams of friends, family and coworkers float down the Kennebec. A minimum of $100 per registrant must be raised and all proceeds go directly to Pine Tree's camper fund.

At 11:30 am, a free barbecue celebration begins at the North Anson takeout site on Patterson Bridge Road and at 1:30 pm the event ends.

For more information or to register visit www.pinetreesociety.org or call 386-5915. For campground registration call 643-2324.

Hoang Realty: All signs point to growth

The bright neon green HOANG REALTY signs all around Central Maine are unmissable. Even when you're tooling along at 55 mph on Route 3 through China or Route 27 in Belgrade.

The high-profile signs are ideal for sellers, who want their homes spotlighted. But as broker/owner Hoa Hoang will explain, there are multiple reasons for her color choice.

"Green suggests energy and movement and progress," she said. "What do you want to see when you're driving? A green light.

"Green represents our environment. Especially at this time of year, green means spring, grass coming up – growth. These are all positive associations."

And they embody the way business is conducted at Hoang Realty at 31 Western Ave. in the heart of Augusta. Take "growth":

After 10 years with MBNA in Belfast, rising to managerial positions, Hoa entered real estate in 2004, working at two large firms in Central Maine and Portland. In August 2013 she founded Hoang Realty, with just one agent, Heidi Witham.

Today, approaching its sixth anniversary and having grown to include five employees and 12 REALTORS® employees (Witham is still there, of course) Hoang ranks high among Central Maine's most prominent and successful realties.

In 2018 the firm was fifth in Kennebec County for number of transactions. In 2016, three of the four priciest properties in Vassalboro were sold by Hoang REALTORS®. The agency applies its expertise to residential (waterfront a specialty); multifamilies, land, commercial, and rentals.

"Our technology is a particular strength, as the Vassalboro sales illustrate," Hoa is proud to say. "We employ technology that in Southern Maine, you would find used only on the high-end listings.

"We use professional photography including aerials on all our houses, or as many for which it's possible, and Matterport tours as well. Listings also receive high visibility on our LED sign outside the office.

"Remember: According to the NAR, 89 percent of homes are sold because people saw them on the Internet," she continued. "If you do not put a property in the best light, as we do, people are leaving money on the table. We do the best job possible to save people money and to help them make money. We will also list a home for a flat fee of $300."

Eric Pronovost, a senior vice president at Baird Private Wealth Management in Portland and Camden, attested to Hoa's acumen. "I've worked with her for more than 10 years, with residential, second homes and investment properties. She's an incredibly hard worker who always does the best for her clients," Pronovost said.

"She is not afraid to tell you if she thinks you're making a bad investment," he continued. "And Hoa is certainly not afraid to negotiate, as my wife and I found when Hoa helped us buy a place on Lake St. George in Liberty."

Said David Barker, a longtime Manchester builder: "She is diligent and always on the ball and knows her facts inside out. I've done work for her, I've bought and sold from her, and I wouldn't go to anyone else." Hoa's countless repeat clients feel exactly the same.

Atmospheric Water

Atmospheric Water, the L.C. Bates Museum's 2019 summer exhibition, showcases representations of the Maine landscape as it is affected by water. Leaving aside depictions of the ocean, lakes, rivers, and streams, this exhibition will consider the many forms water takes as atmosphere transmutes it so it can, in turn, transform the landscape. Working in a range of media, the featured artists explore Maine's landscape as atmospheric water becomes fog, rain, snow, ice, mist, condensation, clouds, and dew. Displayed in a non-traditional museum with a strong focus on natural history, works in a variety of mediums and styles from contemporary Maine artists will be featured, giving visitors a fresh perspective on how local artists view and portray nature in their home state.

The exhibition will run from May through October 2019. Throughout the summer there will be workshops with featured artists and visitors of all ages are encouraged to attend. The L.C. Bates Museum welcomes visitors to explore its summer exhibition Atmospheric Water as well as the many objects on display from the Museum's permanent collections.

Atmospheric Water is the result of a collaborative effort between the L.C. Bates Museum staff and two Colby College students, Sarah Rossien and Alison Obstler, under the supervision of Professor Véronique Plesch.

Atmospheric Water will feature works from Michel Droge, Lynn Karlin, Christian Farnsworth, Barbara Sullivan, John Stetson, John Meader, and Nancy Barron to name a few. Do come to the reception to enjoy refreshments and meet artists in the exhibit. For more information, call 238-4250 or email lcbates@gwh.org.

Take the Family to the Fiber Frolic

The Annual Maine Fiber Frolic, featuring all the fiber-producing animals, food and fun will be held on Saturday and Sunday, June 1 and 2, 9 am-4 pm at the Windsor Fairgrounds.

It's a great show to get close to the sheep, goats, rabbits, llamas and alpacas that provide hair, wool and fur for warm clothing and cozy covers, learn how these animals are cared for and discover the many uses of fiber from hobby to business from fad to fashion.

The Fiber Frolic is a scenic destination to meet farm animals and their owners, to watch artisans at work and to wander among the barns, watch the competitions, shop the booths and relax at a favorite food concession.

Throughout the day, farmers and spinners and weavers engage in equipment discussions, serious workshops and peer networking while guests can admire the fiber products, attend shearing demos, enjoy music and children's entertainment.

The parking is easy and the price right. Adults are $5 (2-day pass $8), seniors $2, children under 12 free. In case of rain, many of the events are in the barns and the exhibit halls and many of the food concessions provide indoor diversion.

Two Books

by Martha F. Barkley

A hiker's book and a 50 places to visit in Maine travelogue, both great reads about our favorite state.

I have followed for years The Bangor Daily News reporter Aislinn Sarnacki, especially her write-up several summers ago about the Wells Trail named to honor Rachel Carson. We found the short hike along the coast and enjoyed the marsh views and birding, one of Rachel's hobbies. The writer took her little toddler niece on this short hike, so all ages would enjoy that path. Wheelchair accessible, too.

Family Friendly Hikes in Maine contains a variety of choices collected over several years for hiker and non-hiker alike, places near Belgrade and places afar. She often has her dog or sometimes her husband, along with other family members, accompany her as she takes lovely color photos. Maps clearly show what your adventure will be like.

50 Things to Do in Maine Before You Die by Nancy Griffin will interest anyone, even the not so curious. The 50 chapter titles pretty much tell all, but chapter 13 caught my eye, Learn About the Good Life. There it was, photos of Forest Farm in Harborside, Maine, developed by the famed Helen and Scott Nearing. I first learned about their "back to the earth movement" at a Belgrade book discussion one summer. (Wish I were here all winter for the monthly book groups.)

Now it is a living museum for visitors and overnight guests who understand what their maintenance tasks will be. Kind of like youth hostels in Europe.

The Hop on a Bike chapter interested me because our son is a cyclist and runs a Menlo Park, CA business. Acadia crushed rock carriage roads are recommended, but Baxter State Park sounds more appealing for mountain bikers. Many crowd cycle events occur around the state to raise funds and are safer on busy roads. Cyclists are protected in larger groups with escort.

Tasting bitter Moxie, freshly picked warm blueberries and Aroostook potatoes, in Humpty Dumpty potato chips made in Portland, are three chapters.

Visiting the Shaker Museum in Sabbathday Day Lake is a must visit for me each summer. I worship with Brother Arnold and Sister June, the last living Shakers, at Shaker Meeting on Sunday at 10 am: all are welcome. Guests may even visit after worship and enjoy coffee and donuts downstairs in the kitchen/dining building. My friend in Rome, Maine, encouraged me to go out to the Shaker barn and see the sheep. They were huge.

Usually around 30 friends of the Shakers are there at Sunday meeting in the summer when I attend. A Capella singing with them is wonderful: "T is a gift to be simple, T is a gift to be free..." Clapping and motions occasionally for certain hymns. Shaking and dancing stopped years ago because too many tourists were peering through the windows during worship. Shakers and guests are welcome to stand and speak between each hymn.

Loons and whoopie pies are common knowledge in our Belgrade area. So are the yummy bean hole suppers and their warm tender taste offered everywhere at fire halls.

Find some new Maine adventures in Stand in the Clouds, the Penobscot Narrows Observatory, and other chapters. Always something new to explore or taste around the corner in Maine. You CAN get there from here! The Maine grand canyon and desert...I highly recommend the desert just off the green trees growing lushly along lovely 295. Yes, it is 40 acres of sand dunes. You gotta' see it to believe it.

From whitewater rafting on the rivers to viewing whales from an ocean schooner, all here in Maine.

Go to find puffins on the coast, watch ice harvesting inland or view the Milky Way at 3 am.

Both books are available at our favorite Belgrade Public Library. Go visit and I bet you will check out more than just two favorite finds. Brian, Jerod and director Janet Patterson helped me find these two fun books full of local adventures.

A letter of thanks to the Belgrade Lakes Community:

Our family has been coming to Great Pond and Belgrade Lakes since 1979. In 2016, after battling for three years, my father, Richard Beeman, passed away from ALS*. That last summer, he asked his family to help him find a way to spend time on the lake and in the house that he loved so much.

It is hard to overstate the degree of support and compassion that we received from the Belgrade Lakes community during his final two-week visit. In particular, the entire Gardiner family and the staff at the Great Pond Marina humbled us with their selflessness, no-nonsense kindness, and tireless assistance getting my dad out of his wheelchair and onto a pontoon boat every day that he was able. His daily life was difficult at that stage (he would pass away only a few weeks later) and being on or in the water was his greatest joy.

While we may never be able to repay the Gardiners, or the others in Belgrade who helped my dad and the rest of our family during this difficult time, I want to thank them all on behalf of my father's wife (Mary Cahill), my sister (Kristin Dunning), my mother (Pamela Butler) and myself. Your humanity and help have made Maine an even more special place for our entire family and give proof to Benjamin Franklin's maxim that "a true friend is the best possession".

With gratitude,
Joshua Beeman
