

INFORMATION RE-LATING TO EAST-ERN ME. R. R.Facts Which Should Have Been Published Before

The following report of the doings of the special session of the Legislature evidently disposes of the request of the promoters of the Eastern Maine Railroad to loan the county's credit for $200,000 toward financing the road.

Act authorizing Aroostook county to aid in the construction of a railroad and own its bonds, was referred to the next legislature, in concurrence. Our esteemed contemporary the Star-Herald goes on to say regarding the attitude of this paper:

"The Houlton Times does not seem to enthuse over the project of loaning the county's credit for $200,000 to aid the so-called Eastern Maine Railroad."

Evidently the Star-Herald has forgotten the many articles which have appeared in these columns regarding the project of the Eastern Maine Railroad and in commenting on the article from the TIMES they left out one paragraph which explains in a way, not our non-support of the project, but our lack of enthusiasm.

"But the Eastern Maine railroad has been before the public for at least 6 years, they have spent money in surveying and locations but unfortunately the financing has not been a success for various reasons and much of this work has been done late in the fall of the year, when it should have been done three or four months earlier. Railroads cannot be economically built with short days, mud and cold fingers."

The promoters of the Eastern Me. R. R. have promised so much on different occasions with very, very few results that the general public have practically given up hope that the whistle of the Eastern Maine railroad locomotive would ever be heard.

Another paragraph the Star-Herald omits to reprint in its article:

"Today it costs $40,000 to build one mile of railroad ready to use. The $200,000 will build 5 miles. Will it be used in actual building, or to pay present indebtedness, or to obtain credit?"

Since this article was published it has been ascertained that the bond issue, or guarantee of $200,000 was requested by the financial backers of the proposed road, before they would advance the cash to build it, as a guarantee that the people were back of it.

"People of North Aroostook are friendly to Houlton, but not to the extent of loaning their credit to help a project almost exclusively for Houlton's profit."

What helps one particular section of the great Aroostook County, helps indirectly every other section, and if the above paragraph expresses the sentiment of people in North Aroostook, they evidently forget, that at the time that the B. & A. was built the county as a whole voted to loan its credit for $500,000 to build the main line of that road and then a few years later the county voted $228,000 to build the Ashland branch, which was a great asset to the entire northern county.

Did Houlton refuse to vote to help northern Aroostook? Look at the vote, and you will see that there was no opposition, and Houlton's vote at that time helped northern Aroostook. Why then should the people of Northern Aroostook say:

"People of North Aroostook are friendly to Houlton, but not to the extent of loaning their credit to keep a project almost exclusively to Houlton's profit."

Is not this rather a selfish attitude to take? Do they forget the farmers that live in Hodgdon, Cary, Amity, Orient and Haynesville, whose land is just as fertile as any in Aroostook, who, ever since they located in these towns have been struggling to get their produce to market? Who now have to haul their potatoes from 10 to 25 miles in order to sell them, who outside of a few months when they can use the automobile, cannot get to a trading center without driving this distance in the stormy days of fall, winter or spring, while people living on the Ashland branch travel by the B. & A. Are not these people just as much value to the county and as deserving of a railroad as the people of Ashland and up the line to Fort Kent?

Its a good deal like a parent furnishing shoes and clothing to one child, because he happens to be a little better looking than another brother or sister, and saying to the more unfortunate, "you cannot have shoes or clothing." If this is the attitude which "North Aroostook" takes, we are glad to know how they stand. It may help Houlton and South Aroostook in the future.

What was done at the Hearing in Augusta

Henry J. Hart of Bangor, counsel for the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad Company, made the statement at the hearing before the committee on public utilities Thursday evening on the act authorizing the county of Aroostook to aid in the construction of a railroad through the county by subscribing for and purchasing an issue of six per cent. 30-year gold bonds of the Eastern Maine railroad to an amount not

An intensive campaign will be carried out to increase the membership and each local man is expected to do his best to win new members.

According to agreement the team that gets the most members will be given a supper by the losing team.

An Oyster Stew was served to members of Rockabema Lodge I. O. O. F. after the work last Thursday evening, about 70 enjoyed the same.

Three candidates were initiated and several applications were received.

The next big event on the Odd fellows calendar is the annual roll call which takes place this month. It's going to be the best ever, look out for it.

MRS. EMMA WOODS

The death of Mrs. Emma Woods of this town occurred in Boston Tuesday Nov. 4th where she had gone for medical treatment and where she was obliged to submit to a surgical operation from which she did not rally.

She was the widow of the late William Woods who died about 20 years ago and she has always resided on the old homestead on the Ludlow road.

Mrs. Woods possessed many splendid traits of character that made for her many friends who will regret her death.

Rev. E. C. Jenkins of the Free Baptist church officiated at the funeral service Friday afternoon.

One son, James Woods, and a daughter Mrs. Wm. Johnson, both of this town, survive her.

exceeding $200,000 in all, that the New England railroads are $23,000,000 short on earning the interest on their bonds and if it were not for the guarantee of the government these railroads would be in the hands of a receiver.

George W. Maxfield of Bangor, one of the promoters of the Eastern railroad, explained that the building of this road would develop the southern part of Aroostook county and that bankers in New York declared that the proposed route would be as good a piece of railroad property as there is in the country.

Opposition developed to the idea of a referendum by the voters of Aroostook principally because of the fact that sufficient notice had not been given of the hearing.

Mr. Maxfield told the committee that the southern part of Aroostook county was standing still. There is good land in the southern section but the transportation facilities to get to market are poor. If the county of Aroostook will favor this proposition the New York bankers will take hold of the proposition and push it through. "The New York bankers want something more than an endorsement from my attorney, Mr. Andrews of Augusta, and myself," said Mr. Maxwell, and that is why we are asking for this.

W. S. Lewin of Houlton, who spoke in favor of the referendum, said that there was not a man on the proposed route who was not in favor of the proposition. He felt that the road would greatly develop the southern part of Aroostook county. The road would be started with steam power but he thought that if the conditions warranted it later, electricity would be used.

N. C. Perry of Presque Isle said that he did not think it a good business proposition for the county of Aroostook to put up $200,000 on such short notice. The voters do not generally know anything about this idea.

"Do you think that there would be any objection to a referendum on this proposition," asked Senator Folsom of Somerset, the chairman of the committee.

"I don't know, in fact I do not think that the people up in Aroostook know much about it," replied Mr. Perry.

Counsel Hart of the Bangor & Aroostook, said that of course the corporation which he represented was opposed to the building of the road as was natural. He did not think that it was right to hold a hearing on a proposition as important as this one without giving the customary seven days' notice, and thrust the expense of a referendum on the people of Aroostook without their knowing anything about the matter.

Hon. Clarence A. Powers of Fort Fairfield, Judge John B. Roberts of Caribou and Representatives Wilson of Presque Isle and Bragdon of Perham also spoke against the idea of having a referendum on the matter next June or later without the customary notice so that the residents of Aroostook county could have the opportunity to come to the State house and be heard.

SPECIAL SESSION
ADJOURNED
SATURDAYWhat Was Done by the Law
Makers at Augusta

The special session of the Maine legislature finally adjourned Saturday morning at 3 o'clock. It was thought at 11 o'clock Friday night that it would be necessary to hold a session Saturday forenoon; in fact at that hour Governor Milliken was of that opinion. But the members buckled down to business and it was only a question of waiting for the disposal of the routine connected with adjournment.

Governor Milliken signed 34 acts and nine resolves and among the measures that received passage were:

Act to provide for an issue of state highway and bridge bonds.

Act to amend the public laws of 1917 relating to the election and appointment of commission officers.

Act to provide a bonus for the heads of state departments.

Act to prevent profiteering in the necessities of life and rents.

Act to amend the public laws of 1915 relative to state and county aid in the construction of highway bridges.

Act to amend and revise statutes relating to fees of sheriffs.

Act to repeal an act passed at the regular session providing for the licensing of the sardine packers to improve the quality of fish used for sardines and to establish standards of measures for sardine herring.

Act to increase salary of the treasurer of Penobscot county.

Act to amend the public laws of 1919 relative to the creation and expenditure of the mill tax highway fund.

Act to provide clerk hire in the office of certain officials in Aroostook and Hancock counties, in Aroostook the following additional amounts were granted: Register of Deeds $800, County Attorney $600, Clerk of Court $400, County Treasurer $300.

Act to provide for the payment of bonus to the Maine soldiers and sailors in the war with Germany.

Act to exempt from taxation property of the posts of the American Legion.

Resolve in favor of the Maine Institution for the Blind.

Resolve ratifying the Susan B. Anthony Federal amendment for woman suffrage.

Resolve reimbursing certain members of the First Maine Heavy Artillery for expenses incurred by action of their superior officers.

Resolve amending the constitution providing for an income tax.

Resolve in favor of the town of Blue Hill reimbursing the town for money paid to soldiers' dependents.

Resolve proposing amendment to the constitution to provide for a bond issue for the purpose of paying a bonus to Maine soldiers and sailors in the war with Germany.

Resolve in favor of the international bridge between Madawaska, Maine, and Edmonston, N. B.

Resolve increasing the amount which state aided hospitals may charge for ward patients.

Act to amend the revised statutes relating to additional exemption from taxation of sewerage district bonds.

Act increasing amount of money for clerk hire in office of register of deeds of Penobscot county.

Before the $100 bonus for soldiers can be effective there must be a Referendum for a bond issue from which the amount will be paid, which will be voted on in Sept. 1920.

MRS. HENRY C. BRADBURY

The death of Mrs. Henry C. Bradbury occurred at the Aroostook Hospital on Thursday last, from pneumonia, after a short illness.

Mrs. Bradbury was 68 years of age and before her marriage in January 1892 was Miss Orrie Williams of Amity, moving to Houlton where Mr. Bradbury was in business, conducting the store on the corner of Military street and the Foxcroft road.

Since the death of her husband she has made Houlton her home, but had not been here all the time.

Mrs. Bradbury was a woman who confined her acquaintance to a small circle of friends and was highly esteemed by those who knew her.

Funeral services took place on Saturday, Rev. Dwight F. Mowrey of the Unitarian Church officiating.

DISTRIBUTION OF SOFT COAL

The Director General of Railroads has today made public the following statement to the press:

The machinery set up by the Railroad Administration to distribute the coal and in transit by the railroads in accordance with the directions of the Fuel Administrator is in full operation and as a result wherever possible coal is being distributed in accordance with the priority list established by the Fuel Administration where such coal is absolutely needed; therefore where there is a real need for coal the problem should be taken up immediately with the railroad ordinarily supplying the coal and every effort will be made by such railroad to meet the demands.

It is, of course, essential, both because of the present bituminous coal strike and in order that the needs for the coming winter may be looked after, that fuel be used as economically as possible; it should be remembered that the railroads did not interfere with the delivery of coal to designated consignees until the day before the present strike began.

In order to conserve coal as much as possible Regional Directors of railroads have been given authority wherever it seems absolutely necessary, to eliminate for the time being train service but in order to provide for the essential business needs of the country no general curtailment of train service is contemplated. The maintenance of public transportation service is of paramount importance in order to serve the countless needs of general public and the interruption of that service should be minimized as far as possible.

HAWAIIAN MUSICAL PLAY

Beautiful dreamy Honolulu with its wonderful resort, delightful scenery and mysterious people have formed a plot and setting for Norman Friedenwald's fascinating musical jingle "My Honolulu Girl." Original Hawaiian music, native Hawaiian singers, dancers and instrumentalists, a big cast of musical comedy favorites, bewildering scenic effects, whirling dancers, a charming chorus of girls exquisitely arrayed in costumes of every known hue and color, and the many striking novelties and sensations make "My Honolulu Girl" assured of a record-breaking engagement locally.

Clean and classy, bright and sparkling, refreshing youth and beauty, whistling melodies and the smartest of dancing, a pretty Hawaiian love story with a musical setting, two big acts and six smashing scenes make "My Honolulu Girl" one of the real events of the season.

The fun of Eddie-Low Kraner and Sam Burton, the delightful vocalisms of Kathryn Partell, the pleasing personality of statuesque Billie Emerson, lavish costumes and millinery effects, the comedy nonsense of Madeleine LaFere and the native Hawaiians, form an evening of cheerfulness, splendid jollity and classy entertainment. Scenic magnificence, showing the famous bathing beach at Waikiki, a full rigged Pacific Ocean liner leaving the docks in Honolulu, and the Volcano Kilanea in eruption, are wonders of the painters' art.

"My Honolulu Girl" comes to the Heywood, Saturday Nov. 15th.

RALPH GRANT STRUCK BY AUTO SUCCUMBS TO INJURES

Ralph Grant the 19 year old son of Mrs. Nellie Grant was struck by a passing auto on upper Court street early Tuesday evening while he was crossing the street and died an hour later at the Aroostook Hospital where he was taken.

The accident was a most unfortunate one and was one that could not seem to be avoided. He was on an errand for his mother and in crossing the street he tried to avoid a passing car, and stepped in front of another car, the mud guard striking him a terrific blow which caused his death.

His mother the widow of the late Daniel Grant who died 6 years ago is prostrated by her bereavement. Ralph was her second son and was a particularly bright little chap well liked by his playmates and neighbors.

Funeral services were held from his late home Thursday afternoon, burial being made in Evergreen cemetery.

To his mother and brothers the deepest sympathy of the community is extended.

SEEING OURSELVES
AS OTHERS SEE USExperiences of an Oxford
County Editor in Houlton

F. W. Sanborn editor of the Norway Advertiser visited Aroostook last month to see the country and also to sell a little patent in the shape of a can handle.

In the write up of the trip he says in part: Houlton is the capital of Aroostook out they hold their courts around in different places so as to accommodate a wide area of potatoes raisers and politicians. Most of the latter are at the permanent county seat but a few great men yet live in distant towns but no doubt are thinking of coming to Houlton or planning on dividing the county.

We registered at the Snell House and stayed one night. More than four hundred autos were parked in Market Square that evening and I was told it was about the usual Saturday night number. There were five or six rows and late comers left their cars on side streets. It resembled "Dollar Day" traffic congestion in Norway.

A big sign "Footwear or Shoe Hospital" nearly opposite the Times office attracted my attention. A protruding nail was removed from my shoe and I could walk more comfortably.

C. H. Fogg of the Times has a nice looking office. I looked in the window and wished I might see the boss but he was not there and the door was locked, though it was early evening.

Somehow newspaper publishers are now making so much money they do not keep their offices open in the evening to entertain can-handle peddling tramps. I did not see Mr. Fogg. I peeked round for the Pioneer office but it aluded me. The police were overworked handling the auto traffic and I didn't like to bother them. In the early hours of Sunday morning I strolled about and sized up the town. "Barnes' Law Office" attracted my attention. It was emblazoned in gold letters on plate glass one story up. At the entrance I read 165 lb. bag. Receipts on the New York Central, pier 17, have been very light. This has been ascribed to the dock regulations which only permit the owners' trucks to haul potatoes off the dock and deliver them to the customers outside the gate at a cost of 12 1/2 c per bag which is equal and sometimes in excess of the actual profits realized on the merchandise business.

Sales at the yards have been up to $4.75 on No. 1 Maines, while $5 has been reached in a small jobbing way, but latter price has not become general. Although track prices in the country will automatically advance the cost of stock laid down here to $4.80 at 4.85 per 165 lb. bag on fine Maine stock some of the large Maine shippers are not inclined to put the potatoes on the market at the present and one letter from a leading grower showed some disposition among the growers to hold their potatoes back until later in the season.

This shipper writes: "The statistical position of the market is such that we do not consider it good business to sell our potatoes on the present market, as with the Government report showing a 350,000,000 bu. crop while in 1917 with a 365,000,000 bu. the market went as high as $10.50 per 165 lb. bag and seldom was below $6.50. Other growers feel about the same as I do and it does not now look as if there will be many of the Maine potatoes sent to this market until after the turn of the year, exclusive of sock already purchased."

State and Pennsylvania potatoes are coming forward more freely, but quality is irregular, with general sales at $4.42.5, while some shipments are bringing $4.50, but the latter have to be closely graded. Long Island potatoes are moving rather slowly, as those coming are not graded closely enough to suit the hotel trade, and while fancy are reaching $5.50, most sales are at $5.25.25 as to quality. A few cars of Virginia second crop potatoes have arrived, showing exceptionally fine quality and size. They are selling $4.42.5, while some sales have been reported at $4.50, but country prices have recently advanced and it is doubtful whether any more Virginia potatoes can be laid down here at that price. The yield is estimated at 1,500 to 2,000 carloads, but it is thought that a good percentage of them will go South and be shipped to the West Indies on account of the keeping quality. One order from South America for good sized lots of second crop Virginia potatoes has been reported. Canadian potatoes are showing disease and rot in about the same proportion as the Maine stock, but recent arrivals have been a little cleaner and in the near future quality is expected to be much better.

Up stairs there is a wilderness of professional signs of all descriptions. It brought to mind a building I once saw in Pemberton Square, Boston. On a door in big, gold letters was "Barnes' Law Office." It was almost as prominent as a bear's hide on the side of a building. It pleased me greatly because professional men are too modest to advertise in newspapers. Should you, however, leave out their name in reporting an important trial you hear from them forthwith and sometimes the language used is not fit to print. I know all about it and presume lawyers here are no different from those in Oxford County.

Houlton probably has a population of 7500. It was 5,895 at the last census. I was told it far exceeds that number now. Some setting it as high as ten thousand. It is a thriving burgh anyhow and the home of wild land barons, lumber kings, millionaire potato shippers and statesmen.

The cutest thing seen in art outside the work of the Indians of the stone age is the drinking fountain in the Park: a wet-footed lad on a pedestal, I gazed with wonder and admiration on the fitness of the idea. It shows a condition that befalls every boy who wears long-legged boots and gets in to the water over the tops of them. It is natural to life. I question the necessity for eight bubblers for humans and no provisions for dogs to drink. It looks well and bears in bas relief the name of the construction company who erected it. It is in a park near a building I suppose to be a public library or something of that sort.

I could not leave town without calling on Charles P. Barnes Annie and the children. I tried to do so time it as not to interfere with their attending church but in this failed. We lingered long in their comfortable home and with the children. Lots of Norway friends we talked over. Charles is busy; too much so and with a special session of the Legislature on his hands and is liable to be over-worked. Nine years ago I advised him not to leave Oxford County but he did and he must now take the consequences. I don't pity him, not a bit, but have sympathy for his family and the community. I got seventy-five dollars by swapping a check for cash and with what money Walter and I had, started for North Aroostook feeling I would not have to depend entirely on the sale of handles to meet expenses.

OLD TOWN VIEW ON
REQUESTED CHANGE OF ROUTE

The Old Town Enterprise has the following regarding the change of routing hearing which was held in Bangor recently.

The B. and A. R. round table at Bangor last Friday did not anger well for the interests of the railroad. President Todd had his witnesses well schooled and they spoke their little pieces in ala Punch and Judy style.

The B. and A. came into Old Town with their shops (at Hartwell) long enough to get our ten thousand dollars and ten years exemption and then scheduled for Derby as fast as they could. There is not even a streak of iron rust left at Hartwell now.

If by all legal and moral rights the B. and A. ought to come into Bangor via Old Town they ought to be made to do it. The excuse of increase of time, loss of interest on bank balances does not meet the issue. Give us some good reasons for not coming to Bangor via Old

A FAR REACHING VICTORY

Seldom, if ever, in the life of this Country has a more important question been involved in a state election
than was that which was so satisfactorily and emphatically passed upon by Massachusetts last week. In its last analysis it was: Shall the Government of this Country continue to be administered by all the people for all the people or shall it be controlled by a class for a class against the rights of all the people?

The result in the old Bay State
although a victory for the Republican party, is in a higher sense a victory of law over lawlessness. Its great magnitude was made possible by scores of prominent Democrats and by thousands of Democratic voters who realized the danger to the Country
lurking in the position of their party organization. To save the Country from that danger they rose above the level of party politics and stood for the Country and its welfare and for the protection of the rights of all the people from the recklessness of those who with the tacit assent of the Democratic organization were assaulting them.

It was more than a party victory. It was a victory for law and order. But its great significance to the Republican party, which enables it properly to claim it is that the Republican organization had kept itself so loyal to the principles upon which our Government was founded that when those principles were assailed as they were
by the Democratic organization those who were defending them naturally turned to the Republican party and through the success of which that defense could alone be made effective.

The simple, unvarnished truth is that an arrogant, radical and anarchistic element consisting a part of an organization of a small portion of the people were determined to use the power of organization against the unorganized masses of the people for the fancied benefit of a few of its members at the expense of the rights of the rest of the people. This element mistaking the past cowardice
of politicians for a great power of their own step by step encroached upon the vested rights of the people at large.
At length in their arrogance they took one step too many. That brought them into the light as seeking to deprive the people of all protection from violence in every form save that which those leaders might condescendingly grant. That settled it. Massachusetts spoke.

It is to be hoped and believed that the people who were thus aroused
from the foolish lethargy as regards the attack that was organizing upon them will not allow themselves to be lulled again into a dangerous sleep.
Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

THE GERMAN

COMMERCIAL PERIL.

There is certain to be some sort of resumption of trade with Germany.
Even during the war it was apparent that, once peace had been concluded,
the dollar would lose its patriotic inspiration, and that if the German could presently provide a superior commodity at a cheaper rate than others they would be able to sell it.
Talk of boycotting has been absurd.
If there is money to be made in handling German products they will be handled all around the globe.

Conceding this economic fact, there is no reason why we should be eager to welcome German goods. The sickly and maudlin sentimentalists who urge us to be prompt in assisting stricken Germany to its feet are perhaps sincere, but they are very foolish. Germany is likely to be on its feet before France recovers its economic balance;
it is likely to have settled its internal problems before Great Britain and the United States are able to settle theirs.
Germany needs no sympathy, and it would be a great mistake to deal softly with the Germans in the commercial and economic field. They do not believe today that they were beaten in the war; their factories were untouched; their ambition burns as brightly as ever; they have been hardened by their trials, and their determination to conquer economically what they could not win by the sword is burned into their hearts.

So we have this problem. German goods will constantly be offered in our markets. German manufacturers, aided by their government, will pursue a far-reaching system of economic penetration. They will hide themselves in the guise of neutrals; they will conceal the origin of their goods; they will underseal our manufacturers in the effort to drive them out of business; no method will be too sinister for them to adopt. And so callous is the dollar that if there is profit in handling German products they will be handled.

The only practicable remedy is in the tariff. Prohibitive duties upon German products which are sent here with the purpose of ruining American manufacturers may be imposed by a mere act of Congress, and such duties removing the chance of profit, will remove the source of temptation. This is not a plea for an embargo; it is only a suggestion of a necessary measure of self protection. The conflicts of the next 30 years are likely to be mainly commercial, but they will be no less bitter than those which are waged with shells and bayonets. No one can reflect upon the manner in which the currents of history have altered their course in the last 12 months without realizing how important it is that the United States should be on guard for its own defense.

WHAT MAKES FOR PROGRESS

Let us not forget in these days that there are now, and always have been, honest differences of opinion. It would be an unprogressive nation and a dull world, if we all of us agreed on all questions and acted the same under the same circumstances. It would mean the end of research, the stunting of all growth, and the dissolving of all life into a dull, drab,
uninteresting wait for the inevitable
decay.

There are the over-zealous in all times. There is prejudice and bias in all individual conclusions. It is a human trait to over-emphasize personal conviction upon all subjects. It is a human trait to avoid the appearance of weakness by the acknowledgment of good points and desirable plans in those persons and those things to which we have become opposed, even unconsciously prejudiced against.

We have many differences in religious creeds, differing ideas in the methods of church government and forms of worship. And yet most of us believe in the Bible and humbly put our faith in the same God. We may have differences of opinion about politics, about plans for our economic progress and industrial reconstruction,
but still we all believe in the United States of America, in the glorious history of our country, in her noble institutions, in her golden future and her great people.

It is no flat platitude for us to say that we are the greatest nation in the world. We can say it with pride, and without boasting. Our ideals are higher, the educational standards are higher, our morals are better, than any other nation in the world. We are the most democratic and the richest. American citizenship is high because it cannot successfully be a selfish estate. Your neighbor is not only responsible to you but you are to him—for protection against thieves,
and fires, and disease, and for peace and prosperity as well. And so it seems best to remember, as we counsel
together, to be tolerant and thoughtfully considerate of all, and forever
remembering that there are honest differences of opinion and always will be.

CANADA'S SONS

The figures themselves are more eloquent than any words could be in telling the magnificent part that the Canadians played in the great war.
In a book of more than 600 pages Col.
George G. Nasmith has prepared the story of Canada's part—the full name of the volume is "Canada's Sons and Great Britain in the World War," and it is published by the John C. Winston Company—but the tabulation of the figures makes the most impressive feature. In all there were close to 450,000 Canadians overseas, and the casualties were 218,433.

In addition to the 118,052 members of the Canadian expeditionary forces
who went to France there were 21-169 Canadians who enlisted in the royal air force or the naval service.
Moreover 11,590 British and allied reservists went from Canada to rejoin the colors in their own countries.
Thus Canada sent overseas almost a quarter as many men as the United States did, and their casualties were almost as many as ours.

It will probably never be known definitely how many from this side of the border went across in the Canadian ranks. A semi-official statement once set the number at 50,000. There was a steady stream of them before this country entered the war—so many that it was a standing joke among Americans in France about coming across "Canadians" who hailed from Maine or Michigan, or almost any other state. It is known that thousands of them concealed their American citizenship—not that the recruiting officers were at all fussy, but to prevent complications on the records.

But subtracting those 50,000 or more the total of Canada's sons in the war makes a record that will always be a glory of the Dominion. And the world knows that no fighters were better.
Sixty-four Victoria Crosses were awarded to Canadians, 531 D. S. O.'s, 1882 military crosses, 6697 military medals, etc. It is curious to note that the French conferred only 410
decorations on the Canadians, as compared with more than 6000 on Americans.

Though the Canadians who went overseas numbered about 450,000, the total enlistments were 595,441, of whom 465,984 were obtained by voluntary enlistments. During the war Canada built 103 steel and wooden ships with a tonnage of 367,367. The Canadian outlay for the war was $1,068,606,527, and during the war the net debt of the Dominion increased from about $200,000,000 to $1,307,429-661. During the war Canada exported more than $1,000,000,000 worth of munitions, including 65,223,647 shells.
The voluntary contributions of the Canadian people to war funds of various kinds totalled about $95,000-000.

AMERICAN RULE IN DOMINICA

After three years' government of the Dominican republic the American administrators have reason to be satisfied with the improvements
they have effected in the condition of that traditionally turbulent little state. Intervention was virtually forced upon the United States by the

violent disturbances of May, 1916, and six months later our officers took a firm grip of the situation by establishing a military government which would protect the people from themselves until they had learned something like good behavior. The lesson of law and order has been so effective that before long they may be offered another opportunity to attempt self-government. Only because they were so largely engaged in stabbing and shooting one another, making the mulatto state a disturber of the peace
among its neighbors, did America step in and gather up the daggers, revolvers
and other weapons with which the population bristled. There were bandits everywhere. Not one of the twelve provinces was without well known robber chiefs, whose organized bands terrorized the country.

We landed about 5000 marines, put naval and marine officers into the principal executive posts, and took hold of the customs duties, which furnish the bulk of the revenue. Indomitable and irresistible as ever,
our sea-and-land soldiers have gradually mastered the hosts of marauders, crushing their power and clearing the remnants out of section after section, until now there are less than 200 bandits left in their last refuge, the province of Seybo, at the eastern extremity of the island. Elsewhere murder no longer stalks abroad
by night or day. The peaceable people have peace and are glad. Military administration is strict, but it is just,
equally the punisher of law-breakers
and the protector of upright citizens.
The honest collection of revenue and careful regulation of expenditure have made the country financially safer than it has been for a good many years.
Financial control may have to be continued, but the time seems to be approaching when the military occupation may cease. Let the Dominican republic produce a tolerable government and the United States will most willingly step out, content with having helped the people to rise from the lamentable disorder into which they had fallen.

A NEW-OLD Foe FOR BOLSHIEVISM

A new force has been set loose in Russia against Bolshievism. It has the promise of being increasingly potent
because it is a by-product of the deep religious instinct of the Russians that has survived the cruelly repressive policies and the un-Christian philosophy of the Lenninites.

The nucleus of this latest anti-Bolshevik propaganda is a society formed at that traditionally turbulent little
state. Intervention was virtually
forced upon the United States by the

and opportunity may permit. Something of this kind has long been expected from the Russian people by those who know them best and understand the ardor of their love for the church of their fathers. Particularly have the peasants been deeply religious and spiritually emotional.
This fact helped the czar the accredited head of the church, to maintain his imperialistic hold on the affairs of Russia.

The Bolsheviki are avowedly hostile to the Christian religion. They have put church properties to other than spiritual uses. They have discouraged religion, organized and unorganized.
They have repudiated Christian tenets regarding the marriage relation and the home. They have no use for prayer and scoff at the idea of a human being trying to bring himself into relationship with a Divine friend and protector. Denying there is a hereafter, they have established a full-fledged one in Russia.

Despite all these non-theistic
preachings and policies, the Bolsheviki have been unable to smother the Russian religious instinct. A vast majority of the peasantry not only is still outside the political pale of the Leni-nites, but is said to be immune in a spiritual sense from the poisonous life philosophy of that breed.

Time

By Sickness and Enforced Idleness.
Many of the days of sickness and misery, too often accompanied by loss of pay, may easily be charged to neglect or indiscretion on the part of the individ-

of diet and attention to regularity of habits will change such days into happy and profitable ones. Give heed to Nature's first warning of approaching trouble, keep your stomach and digestion right and your bowels regular—then everything will look cheerful and your day's work will be easier.

On the first appearance of acid stom-

URGE SENSIBLE

WOMAN'S SHOES

Women who wear the almost universal pointed-toe, high-heeled shoe and think they can live a long and happy life are handed a rather severe jolt in an editorial in the current issue of the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

"Not only does the so-called fashionable shoe cause local pain, deformity and discomfort, but it is also responsible for a greater proportion of the back strain, eye strain and nervous irritation from which many women suffer," states the writer.

Attention is called to the fact that American boys were weakest in the feet at the time of the war examinations. Thousands of youths were rejected because of unfit feet, and it is probable that 99 per cent of the rejections were caused by the wearing of improperly fitted shoes.

The pointed toe and the French or Louis 15th heels, three to five inches tall, has attracted attention and interest until a country-wide campaign has been started to provide a normally shaped shoe for the woman's foot.

Will They Wear It

Leaders in this campaign under the direction of the Young Woman's Christian Association already have discussed the question as to whether the manufacturer can make the shoe desired and secondly whether the American woman can be induced to wear such a shoe.

The shoe is under way, and once it is ready it will be tried out.

The question as to whether milady will wear an even half-way decently-shaped shoe is quite a different proposition.

If you will stand squarely on your bare feet and look hard at them, it will not be difficult to discover the difference between the shape of the foot as it is by nature—without footwear—and the shape of the poor thing when it is shoved down into one of the $29-per-pair contraptions with the tooth-pick front end and the Bunker Hill monument heel. By means of such a heel leading orthopedic surgeons maintain that the greatest physical injury is caused.

Experts maintain women will live considerably longer if they throw overboard the pointed toe shoe and substitute therefor a shoe that will conform to the actual, and not the style decreed, shape of the foot.

SAYS WE ARE IN A

FOOL'S PARADISE

The world lives in a fool's paradise based on fictitious wealth, rash promises and mad illusions, declared Paul M. Warburg, formerly vice-governor of the federal reserve board, in a statement issued on his return from Europe on the steamship Nieuw Amsterdam.

He has traveled in Europe the last three months studying the financial situation abroad.

"The disease is world-wide," he said. "It is spread too far to enable us to deal with it as a whole. We may agree on the principles on which it must be fought, but each country will have to be treated in accordance with its own particular conditions. The first step, however, is to prick the bubbles of false promises and to begin by clearing the world balance sheet of fictitious assets as far and as fast as we can."

Mr. Warburg asserted that the lesson brought home from Europe is that "we must not stand by idly with folded hands while the world is drowning; but that it is our duty and within our power to arrest a movement which, if unchecked and permitted to run into extremes, will engulf us all.

"Europe is our products and it requires them largely on credit and it is our moral duty to furnish these goods," the banker declared there cannot be any doubt that as long as the rise in prices continues, labor will have to fight for and be entitled to increased wages.

"On the other hand, it is obvious that a higher scale of wages is in itself a factor making for a future increase in prices," he asserted. "In Europe and the United States," he said, "there never was a greater recklessness in spending money than has been prevailing since the armistice."

OUR MEN IN GERMANY

FOND OF SWIMMING

Swimming proved one of the big recreative features of the American soldiers in Germany. During the warm weather the soldiers took full advantage of the various pools at their disposal, which were requisitioned by the Y. M. C. A. through the army. There are exceptionally fine pools at Neuweid and Coblenz.

The report of Charles Tooze, the Y. M. C. C. swimming expert at Neuweid shows that 11,000 men participated in swimming alone during September, and that more than 10,000 spectators attended the various swimming meets. Tooze trained and conditioned the A. E. F. swimmers for their championships early in the year and later acted as coach and trainer for the American team which won the inter-allied games. In Coblenz the Y used the Residenzbad swimming pool. The plunge is 45 feet, 25 feet and is filled with filtered water. The dressing rooms are models of the cabinetmaker's art and are finished in polished mahogany. Each room accommodates three men comfortably. Swimming at Coblenz and Neuweid is taught free to the soldiers by Prof. Tooze. Tanks in both cities are turned over to the women welfare workers of the forces. Wednesday afternoons. Both places have electric and Turkish baths.

The final swimming championship of the season were held in the Moselle river Oct. 25 and 26, the following events being on the program: 50 metre free; 100 metre, free; 1500 metre, free 50 metre, back stroke; 50 metre, breast stroke; fancy diving and four-man relay, each man swimming 50 metres.

SET BEAR TRAPS FOR

REVENUE AGENTS

The use of bear-traps by Alabama moonshiners to catch revenue agents is a new kind of strategy in an old form of warfare. Spring-traps to catch trespassers are a time-honored device. In England, now forbidden by law except that householders may set such traps on their premises between sunset and sunrise. An exciting episode in one of Thomas Hardy's novels involves the use of a man-trap to cripple a rival in love.

Perhaps a strain of English ancestry in Alabama moonshiners account for the adaptation of the bear-trap to this defensive use. But the fact is of less interest as an illustration of the survival of custom than as a hint of future developments in the irreconcilable conflict between makers of illicit whiskey and government agents. The passage by both houses of Congress of the drastic prohibition enforcement act means the extension of the warfare into new fields. With all whiskey contraband and all makers and distributors of it moonshiners in effect, it is apparent that the suppression of illicit distilling will require an army of officials and provoke an increased resistance to the law.

As respects mountain stills, raiding them with the necessity of first running the gauntlet of bear trap defenses will add a new hazard to the work of revenue agents. Will moonshiners yet resort to poisonous gas and other modern methods of military defence?

Y. M. C. A. IS HELPING

MARINES IN HAYTI

Toting tobacco, chocolate and soap by pack mule through the bandit-infested mountain of Hayti to marines on isolated outpost duty is one phase of a "Y" man's life with the marine corps, according to D. F. Dunster of Claremont, Cal., district secretary for the Y. M. C. A. in the West Indies.

Bandits had no terrors for the Americans, although the outlaws were reported to have held up a mountain village and had felled trees across the trail. On the trip which Mr. Dunster describes, the "Y" men saw bandits lurking in the hills, but he believes the fact that the supply party was American saved it from an attack. The marines were glad to see the "Y" men, for they had been given out to fighting men, who had been willing to pay as much as $5 for a sack. The soap which was brought to them was as eagerly sought by many of the marines as was the tobacco.

Three years of experience with the "Y" men in the island have led Lt. Col. T. H. Brown to write the "Y" war work council, praising the organization for giving the men on duty at outlying posts the only social relaxation furnished them. Chaplain Raszle W. Truitt, who has been with the same marines, seconds Lt. Col. Brown's sentiments in a letter commending the co-operation of Mr. Dunster.

In Bankruptcy
Bankrupt.

To the Hon. Clarence Hale, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Maine.

PERLEY PARKER of Woodland in the County of Arrostook, and State of Maine, in said District respectfully represents that on the 21st day of November, 1918, last past, he was duly adjudged bankrupt under the Acts of Congress relating to Bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said Acts and of the orders of Court touching his bankruptcy.

Wherefore he prays, That he may be decreed by the Court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said bankruptcy Acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 28th day of October, A. D., 1919.

PERLEY PARKER,
Bankrupt.

ORDER OF NOTICE THEREON
District of Maine, Northern Division, ss.
On the 1st day of November, A. D., 1919, on reading the foregoing petition, it is—

Ordered by the Court, That a hearing be had upon the same on the 12th day of December, A. ## GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER WELFARE WORK IN ARMY

Y. M. C. A. and All Organizations Cease Camp Activities November 1st.

New York.—In compliance with a special order from the Government, the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. on Nov. 1, transferred its welfare work activities as conducted in the temporary buildings erected during war times within the camps in the continental limits of the United States, according to statements just issued here by John S. Tichenor, national executive secretary for Y. M. C. A. war work in America.

The War work Council has requested its 1,300 secretaries conducting activities in 593 temporary Y. M. C. A. huts in camps throughout the United States to consider favorably the desire of the Government that they continue as welfare workers under the direction of the War Department, which tomorrow officially establishes its own organization within the War Plans Division of the General Staff, under the direction of Major General W. G. Haan.

The Y. M. C. A. also at the request of the Government will transfer also without reimbursement its 593 temporary huts within the Army camps together with their complete equipment valued at approximately $4,500,000, for continued use by officers and men. This represents a small part of the volume of war work that was being carried on by the Y. M. C. A. at the time of the signing of the Armistice when it was operating in the United States 1,171 huts with 5,717 secretaries and other employees. In all, the Y. M. C. A. constructed 553 buildings in the home camps during the period of the World War at a cost of $7,768,984.

In a letter addressed to Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, has thanked the Association for "the efficient and tireless effort of the Y. M. C. A. in providing for the comfort and well-being of the men in the Army." The Secretary of War also requests the Y. M. C. A. to continue and enlarge its program in permanent Y. M. C. A. buildings outside of the camps and to provide new buildings as far as needed in communities and cities adjacent to camps for the service of the men. Mr. Tichenor stated today: "The Y. M. C. A. definitely plans to continue and extend its service to the country's fighting forces. As a result of its twenty years' experience and service to Army and Navy men, the Association has an effective organization and constituency, thus insuring an expanding and permanent program."

As requested by the Secretary of War, the Y. M. C. A. will continue its service to the troops in France, Germany, Siberia, the Panama Canal Zone, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippine Islands until the Army is in a position to undertake this responsibility.

Action somewhat similar to the War Department has been taken by the Navy Department, according to Mr. Tichenor, Secretary of the Navy. Josephus Daniels, has requested the Y. M. C. A. to continue its work within the naval reservations at home until the Navy is ready to take over the welfare work.

From the Navy Department also has come warm commendation for the extensive service rendered by the Y. M. C. A. Secretary Daniels writes: "The Navy believes that a large share of the credit of victory should be given your organization for its work in ministering to the men of the Navy and feels that the greatest compliment, the most sincere expression of its regard, lies in the decision to perpetuate your good work by means of a permanent organization within the Navy itself." He not only expressed the hope that the Y. M. C. A. program outside of the Naval reservations should be continued and enlarged, but he also desires to perpetuate in the welfare work within the Navy the peculiar genius of the Y. M. C. A. in its service to men and boys, and will order Navy welfare and morale officers to keep in touch with the Y. M. C. A. methods.

Permanent buildings of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. which will continue to operate, include the following: Brooklyn Navy Yard, N. Y.; Newport, R. I.; Norfolk, Va.; Charleston Navy Yard, Boston, Mass.; Vallejo, Cal.; at the Presidio, San Francisco, California; at Bremerton, Washington, D. C.; at Fort Monroe, Gloucester, Jay, Tilden, Hampton, Hancock and Leavenworth; and at Honolulu, Hawaii and Fort William McKinley, Philippine Islands. The Y. M. C. A. will continue its rented buildings in Philadelphia, San Francisco and Shanghai, China. Other buildings will be provided at numerous points in cities adjacent to Army camps and Naval stations according to the new plans of the Y. M. C. A.

The extent of the Y. M. C. A. wartime service to men of the Army and Navy within the continental limits of the United States is indicated by the following figures, from the beginning of the war to September 30, 1919:

"Y" CONVENTION AT DETROIT

Delegates Coming From All Parts Of U. S. and Canada.

New York.—The fortieth annual convention of the International Young Men's Christian Associations of North America will be held in Detroit from November 19th to November 23 inclusive. The sessions will be held in the Arena Gardens on Woodward Avenue and will be attended by delegates representing the hundreds of local Associations throughout the United States and Canada.

The convention will be devoted chiefly to dealing in a constructive way with large questions of policy. Some indication of the lines of action to be taken is indicated by the fact that three special commissions have been appointed, one on the "Conservation of the values of the War Work," the second on the "Relation of the Y. M. C. A. to the Churches," and the other on the "Occupation of the Field."

All of the commissions include in their membership men prominent in various lines of business and in the professions. The first named is headed by Joseph T. Ailing of Rochester, of the firm of Ailing and Company, paper manufacturers. The second commission has for its chairman, W. Douglas Mackenzie of Hartford, Connecticut, the president of Hartford Theological Seminary. The commission on the "Occupation of the Field" is under the chairmanship of L. A. Crosssett, of Boston, the shoe manufacturer, who served as a special commissioner of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. to France in 1917. Associated with Mr. Crosssett as vice-chairman of the commission is Cyrus H. McCormick of Chicago, the president of the International Harvester Company.

Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the International Committee of Y. M. C. A. Associations, regards this convention as the most important in the annals of the Association.

In all the history of the Young Men's Christian Association, throughout its three-quarters of a century, there never has been held an assembly of more than 100,000 delegates.

first-rate and urgent importance." Dr. Mott writes in an appeal for the attendance of the leading laymen of the Evangelical laymen at the convention. "Nothing short of the best thought and concerted action of the wisest, most trusted and influential laymen of all the evangelical forces of North America will suffice."

Some of the questions to be brought before the convention through the International Committee and the commissions already appointed are:

How to assimilate back into all that is best in American and Canadian life the 4,800,000 young men, who recently served in the American Army and Navy and the 500,000 who constituted the Canadian Army?

How to stabilize the many millions of men in industry now surging with discontent?

Dated at Houlton, November 5th, 1919. EDWIN L. VAIL, Referee in Bankruptcy.

How to stabilize the new aspirations of the young men of rural communities, who through the war have been brought more fully into touch with the currents of the life of the world?

Racial problems of North America will also be considered. Methods will be discussed to make the ministry of the city Associations more truly community-wide.

The redefinition of the field and the reassertion of the distinctive mission of the Association in the light of the rise of new agencies, both secular and religious, so as to avoid friction, unwise duplication of effort and waste in financial expenditure.

SON BORN TO ROOSEVELT AS HE WINS SEAT

By the largest majority ever given a candidate for the New York Assembly Lt.-Col. Theodore Roosevelt was elected from the 2d Nassau county district, defeating Elias Raff, his Democratic opponent. In every precinct.

To add to the candidate's happiness, a baby boy was added to his family this afternoon. The child was immediately named Quentin in honor of his father's brother.

Speaking of his election Col. Roosevelt said: "It is a big day for my family."

He's a fine boy, Mrs. Roosevelt is doing well, and I am elected from my home district to the Assembly. It will be my earnest endeavor to stand for the principles of justice and order fearlessly and to aid in the solution of the vital problem of economic readjustment with all that lies in me."

Col. Roosevelt carried Sea Cliff, his opponent's home town, by 193 votes. Oyster Bay gave the colonel a big majority and turned out en masse celebrating his victory.

BONUS FOR MAINE SOLDIERS

Bill to be Presented to the Next Legislature

No matter what will come before the special session of the legislature, nothing when it meets will be of more wide-spread interest than the resolve and bill presented by Rep. Garcelon of Auburn to provide a bonus for Maine soldiers and sailors who served in the war with Germany.

These measures are of great importance. This interest and importance is not confined to those men who will receive financial benefit from the enactment of such laws. Every home owner and home renter in the State has a vital interest. At this time general knowledge of the provisions of these bills, which were submitted to the consolidated committees at their meeting this week, is limited. As a result of this, the question is frequently heard: Why will they submit this matter to a referendum? Why not either vote to pay the bonus and do so or refuse to? The answer to these queries is: Such a course is necessary to finance the bonus. In this matter the same course must be followed as was taken in the matter of financing the building of good roads in Maine.

It is true that it would be possible for the legislature to provide for the payment of these bonuses immediately, or in a comparatively short time after the special session shall have adjourned. To do so, however, would work great hardships on many. It would make hardships it is feared, which would more than offset the good it would do those who were to benefit under it. This is, strictly speaking, a matter of financial necessity.

If the course of immediate payment, rather than reference to the people, be adopted, then the amount of the bonus would have to be made by a direct tax levied upon the property of Maine in 1920. To show what this would mean it is necessary to use some illustrative figures.

The Dollars and Cents of It

According to figures of the secretary of the Maine department of the American Legion there were 29,389 Maine men in service during the war. The proposed bonus is $100 per man. This is the amount which the legion at the Bangor convention voted to ask the legislature to give. This shows that the amount which the State will pay to soldiers and sailors will be approximately $3,000,000.

Maine's total valuation according to the figures of the State assessors is $577,442,529. To raise the sum of $3,000,000 from this property would necessitate a tax rate of practically 5 2-10 mills. This would be in addition to the rate which has already been fixed to provide the money for State expenditures for that year. Perhaps that does not mean anything to you. It will when you understand that this course would mean that the tax rate in Lewiston would be increased exactly that much; that is, instead of a tax rate of 27 mills in that city in 1920—providing it can be retained at the same figures as prevailed in 1919—it would be 32 2-10 mills. This additional State tax which Lewiston would have to pay in 1920 would be approximately $116,443.52. In Auburn it would be, approximately $66,726.31. These amounts would be, it must be kept in mind, in addition to the amount of State tax which these cities must pay anyway.

Still another way to make this clear is to take the case of the individual who owns a home. A home in Lewiston is valued, say, at $3,000. The taxes on this property the present year were $71. Add this 5 2-10 mills to it and the tax in 1920 would be in excess of $100.

Bond Issue Meets Situation

The foregoing is the result which would obtain were the bonus to be paid in any other way than by a

on the subject of shortbread, so popular with Scotch and English folk.

"But, good as was the old-fashioned kind," remarked our hostess, "it was so extremely rich that the heavy taste lingered long after eating."

"Well," said Betsy, "there's nothing like that about the shortbread we have at our house—Lorna Doone Biscuit."

"I was talking to mother about them only the other day," said Lorna. "They are so good, so different from the squares that come already packed and ready to serve, any time."

"I was talking to mother about them only the other day," said Lorna. "They are so good, so different from the squares that come already packed and ready to serve, any time."

"Yes, that's the beauty of all National Biscuit Company products—they are always ready—night and day—and always fresh. Their ready-ness and freshness, however, are not the only features that recommend them. A still greater consideration is the fact that National Biscuit Company products obviate the necessity for mixing and baking at home, and any woman who has spent a moment of her time in the kitchen knows the comfort, efficiency and economy of buying these uniformly good, ready-to-serve products."

bond issue. A bond issue would provide the money, yet make no perceptible increase in the State tax, which in the world result in no great advance in local taxation. It is for this reason that the general idea of those who understand State and city finances feel that the way to provide this bonus is to issue bonds for the purpose.

Issuing bonds is something more of a proposition for the State of Maine than merely going out and ordering a job of printing. In this respect Maine differs from those other states which have voted bonuses to their soldiers and sailors. In those states the legislature has the bond issuing power without reference to the electorate. The Maine legislature has not such power. Before the legislature of this State can issue a bond for a single dollar it must have the authority of a vote of the people. That was why the people of Maine were asked in September to pass upon the question of issuing bonds with which to build highways and to construct the Portland pier.

This being the constitutional law of Maine, and a bond issue being the logical way in which to provide the money for the bonus, then the legislature at its special session must adopt a resolution submitting an amendment to the constitution providing for such issue of bonds to the people. The people will then pass upon this amendment at the general election in September, 1920.

Why not call a special session and have an early decision? asks someone.

Again the constitutional law of this State interferes. The constitution provides that these amendments must be voted upon either at the general election or at a special election called for the second Monday of September in the year between general election. A special session cannot be called.

There is the entire situation. The legislature, if it follows the suggestion outlined at the conferences held in Augusta the early part of the present week, will be taking the only course which it can to provide this bounty without working undue hardships on all the people of the State.

The Garcelon Measures.

At this time about all that is known of the Garcelon measures, as the two measures which the Auburn representatives presented the consolidated committees at Augusta are known is that they provide a bonus for $100 each, for service men and, also, refer the matter to the people to be voted upon in September, 1920.

The first measure which Mr. Garcelon offered was a resolve submitting to the voters of Maine an amendment to the constitution authorizing the issuance of bonds not to exceed $3,000,000 in value for the purpose of paying a bonus to soldiers and sailors from the State who served in the war with Germany.

The second measure is a bill which provides for issuing these bonds in the event that the amendment is adopted; also for the payment of a bonus to each soldier and sailor of $100, with the provision that men who served less than three months do not receive such bonus.

The exemption of the less than three months service men is in accordance with the vote adopted at the meeting of the State Convention of the American Legion at Bangor in September, rather than the personal idea of Mr. Garcelon or members of the legislature. In this connection it is interesting to mention that Representative Garcelon, who is a service man, is commander of the Auburn post of the American Legion, who is now a member of the legislature, and the only member of the legion in Maine who is a member of the Legislature. His two measures are the official measures of the American Legion's Maine department.

The resolve proposing an amendment to the question will, undoubtedly be sent to the people. It may be deemed wise by the Legislature at its special session not to enact the bill, but to refer it to the next legislature. This is merely a possibility. The only reason for such a course would be that by so doing it would prevent the possibility of any question arising as to the legality of the bonds.

Provisions of the Townsend Bill Discussed

The general provisions of the Townsend Bill were gone into and discussed as to the benefits that would be derived from such a system and especially what benefit such a plan would be to the farmers of the country.

Increased usage of Roads.

It was pointed out that the use of the roads had increased from 600 to 800 per cent in the past 12 years, due to the change in the vehicle used and the motor covering a greater range and a longer distance in a shorter time, as well as the great increase in travel due to increased population and changed condition. A large portion of the traffic over the main trunk highways is through-traffic from other states and should be taken care of by the Government and not by the states, counties and local communities.

Cost of Bad Roads.

There are at present something like 2,500,000 miles of unimproved roads and due to their bad conditions are costing the country for transportation of produce and supplies from one-half to three-quarters of a billion dollars annually, and further the roads of the country should be put on a business basis and separated into a system composed of National, State, County and Township highways.

Approximate Number of Miles in National System

The national system should consist of about 60,000 miles; the state system, 260,000 miles and the county and township systems, 300,000 miles, leaving approximately 1,800,000 miles of earth roads that will have to be drained, dragged and kept in fair condition.

County System to be Built in Zones

County and township systems to be built in zones leading from the railroad stations and the market centers out into the farming districts to the farms and connecting up with the state and national systems at the most advantageous points. The state system to connect the county seats and the principle cities with the national system. The national system to consist of not less than two or more than four main trunk highways thru the state, two running generally north and south, and two running generally east and west, connecting up large centers of population with the adjoining states.

What the National System will mean to the Farmer

With this system the farmers will have available many markets and it will be possible for him to transport his materials quickly and cheaply from his farm in different directions to the point of consumption or delivery at the least cost. The increased value in all farm lands and the many advantages that will be derived from such a plan will more than pay for the cost of this improvement. The cities and towns will necessarily have to pay quite a large percentage of the cost of these roads.

Senator Townsend gives Object of Bill

In the afternoon the delegation called on Senator Townsend, Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads of the Senate, who introduced the Townsend Bill, (S. 1309) and discussed the provisions of this bill with the Senator. The Senator briefly stated that the object of the Townsend Bill was to build a national system of highways connecting all parts of the country together and forming a backbone with which the states and counties could connect, and build out into the farming areas and market centers of the country. The necessity of the highways connecting the different states with each other and the country as a whole is of prime importance, and will serve many economic needs and be a great stimulant to the states and counties in developing their highways.

National Highway System to Encourage and Increase Federal Aid.

The Senator said, also, he believed by the establishment of the national highway system Congress would be more inclined to extend and enlarge Federal Aid as to assist the States and counties in connecting their systems with the National system, thereby making the entire road plan more effective and of greater use to passage of Townsend Bill, except that the Federal Highway Commission would be substituted for the Secretary of Agriculture in the execution and carrying out of the law.

From the study made of the Townsend Bill and a few suggested amendments, it is believed that such plan should be brought into existence so that the roads of the nation, state, county and township can be developed along logical lines in the most economical way.

CASOLINE TAKEN FROM NATURAL GAS

More than 210 cities and towns in the United States are supplied with natural gas, which is furnished to domestic consumers at rates that should arouse the envy of those consumers of artificial gas who have to pay about a dollar a thousand cubic feet. The average price per thousand cubic feet charged to domestic consumers of natural gas in the United States in 1917 was about 30 cents. The average price charged to manufacturers was less than 12 cents.

Most of the towns and cities supplied with natural gas are in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kansas, Oklahoma and California. In Ohio 872,000 domestic consumers were supplied in 1917. In Pennsylvania 480,000, in California, 239,000, in Kansas 188,000, in New York 164,000 in West Virginia 129,000, and in Oklahoma 95,000. The industrial consumers, by whom the gas is used for manufactures or for generating power, use twice as much gas as the domestic consumers.

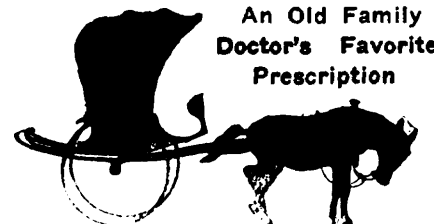

During the present century the value of the natural gas used in the United States has risen annually without break from $27,000,000 to $142,000,000 and is still rising.

A report on "Natural Gas and Natural Gas Gasoline in 1917" by John D. Northrop, just published by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, gives statistics of the production and consumption of natural gas and sketches the condition of the industry in 25 states. It gives also statistics concerning gasoline made from natural gas in that year.

The recovery of gasoline from natural gas has now become a large industry, which contributes materially to the supply of motor fuels. Experiments in the conversion of natural gas to gasoline were made as early as 1903 but experiment did not give way to commercial production until about 1910. The growth of the industry since that year has been remarkable. In 1911 there were in operation 176 plants which produced about 7,400,000 gallons of raw gasoline from natural gas. In 1917, only six years later, there were 866 plants, which produced nearly 218,000,000 gallons. Prior to 1916 most of the gasoline recovered from natural gas was derived from casing-head gas obtained from oil wells, by methods involving compression and condensation, but from year to year an increasingly large proportion of the annual output of natural-gas gasoline has been recovered by the absorption process, which has now been applied not only to "wet" gas from oil wells but also to so-called "dry" gas, which occurs independent of oil and constitutes the main supply of natural gas. Dry gas cannot be profitably converted into gasoline by compression.

TANLAC DID MORE GOOD THAN ALL ELSE

Feels Young and Active Again. Eats Heartily and Sleeps Soundly First Time in Months

"I feel like getting out there in the street and out-running any man in town," said Earle Wyman, of Winn, Maine, while in Babcock's Drug Store in Lewiston, Me., recently. Mr. Wyman is assistant to the head clerk of the American Realty Co., a lumber firm which operates all over Maine and New Hampshire. Continuing, he said:

"I have been badly out of shape all this year. My stomach was all out of order and I had indigestion of the worst kind and I frequently had sharp, aching pains. I also had a drowsy feeling and my head did not seem clear when I woke up in the morning.

"It looked like everybody in town was talking Tanlac and, as I heard so many people talking about it, I decided to give it a trial. I bought a bottle and it did just what you said it would do. It helped me right from the start, and I feel better than I have felt for years. My appetite is good and I now can eat anything I wish without dreading any bad effects. My head seems clear and I no longer have that drowsy feeling, because I am no longer bilious and constipated like I used to be. When I go to bed at night I can sleep like a log all night long. I feel fine, and feel as young and active as when I was a boy. You are at liberty to publish my statement as I think every man, woman and child should know about this medicine."

Commenting on the foregoing statement, the Tanlac representative said:

"People who suffer from indigestion as a general rule also suffer from constipation and biliousness. The stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are the most important organs of the body. If you keep them in order, you will probably remain well. When they get out of order your entire system fills up with poison and you suffer various ills.

"Tanic being purely vegetable, acts in a safe and wholesome manner as a result of the natural medicinal action of the herbs and roots of which it is composed. Tanlac is not a purgative like many other medicines, but is a powerful reconstructive tonic which builds up the system and tones up the vital organs so as to enable them to perform their proper functions as nature intended, and relieves and overcomes biliousness and habitual constipation in this way."

Tanic is sold in Houlton by Munro's West End Drug Store, Island Falls by S. R. Crabtree, Fort Kent by Stanley Burrill.—Advt.

MRS. E. J. LANOUE

Mrs. Maud L. Lanoue died very suddenly at the Aroostook Hospital last Wednesday morning after an illness of a few days. She came to Houlton a year ago with her husband Edmond J. Lanoue and her father L. L. Scott from North Adams, Mass., where they became proprietors of the Snell House. In this brief time she had endeared herself to a large circle of friends by her winsome manner and sincere character. Her quick sympathy and generous nature will long be remembered by the members of the First Baptist church where she was a constant attendant and by the ladies of the Ruth Club of which she was secretary. To her tactful administration and good judgment is due much of the success of this popular hotel. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Henry C. Speed in the private parlor of the hotel on Wednesday afternoon and the bereaved husband and father left with the body on the evening train for North Adams where another service was held on Friday morning in the First Baptist church of which she was a member. In that city she was born and educated and fourteen years ago this month was married to Mr. Lanoue whom she had known since childhood.

The sympathy of many will go out to these lonely men as they return to what had been a very happy home. The following words by Susan Coolidge revealed Mrs. Lanoue's faith:

"If I were told that I must die to-morrow.
That the next sun
Which sinks, should bear me past
all fear and sorrow.
For anyone.
All the fight fought, all the short
Journey through.
What should I do?
I do not think that I should shrink
or falter,
But just go on Doing my work, nor change nor seek to alter
Aught that is gone.
But rise, and move, and love, and smile and pray.
For one more day.
And laying down at night for a
last sleeping.
Say in that ear
Which hearkens ever: 'Lord within Thy keeping
How should I fear
And when to-morrow brings Thee
nearer still.
Do Thou Thy will.
I might not sleep for awe, but peaceful, tender,
My soul would lie
All that night long, and when the morning splendour
Flushed o'er the sky,
I think that I could smile, and calmly say,
'It is His day.'"

W. C. T. U.

A very successful termination to the W. C. T. U. membership drive was a reception to the new members held on Thursday evening, Nov. 6th at the ladies' parlor of the M. E. Church. Owing to snow and mud only about 20 of the 62 new members were present all of whom put on the little bow of white as they stood in line and received cordial greetings from other members of the W. C. T. U. Rev. Thos. Whiteside made a few appropriate remarks and other members gave brief talks. Solos were given by Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Towens and Miss Natalie Smith, which were listened to with much pleasure. Tea, sandwiches and wafers were served and all enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

RED CROSS SEALS

Augusta, Me., Nov. 10.—The executive committee of the Maine Anti-Tuberculosis Association at its regular meeting here today unanimously voted to put the fight against tuberculosis on a more efficient basis by carrying the work in 1920 into every county of the state under the direction of the state office.

W. A. Harris, who was recently made executive secretary of the state organization, will be assisted by an enlarged staff. Under this plan, it is believed it will be possible to command the services of some of the most able public health nurses and health educators in the country. Less than half of the counties at present have anti-tuberculosis organizations.

In the campaign which will be carried on under the name of the Red Cross Seal Campaign from Dec. 1 to Dec. 10, under the direction of a state-wide committee of which Gov. Milliken is chairman, it is expected that sufficient funds will be raised to provide for the fight against tuberculosis in every county of the state. Under the new plan a united force will be able to render much better co-operation to the state tuberculosis sanatoria in caring for tuberculous patients prior to their admission to state hospitals, as well as subsequent to their discharge. It is also felt that the nursing forces of the state can be more quickly mobilized in emergencies for special work in particular localities under the new plan.

Gov. Milliken today sent the following telegram to prominent people in various sections of the state asking them to serve with him on the state committee:

"I have just accepted the chairmanship of the Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign for Maine and am anxious to have you associated with me as a member of the state committee. The money raised will be used to fight tuberculosis during the coming year. We hope you will be able to attend a general state meeting late this month."

Gov. Milliken has invited Edward L. Cleveland of Houlton, Atwood W. Spaulding of Caribou, J. Frank Gufou of Presque Isle and Patrick Theriault of Grand Isle to serve as members of the committee for Aroostook county.

DREAM THEATRE

Mae Marsh's New Film Gives Her Strong Role

Fascinating Mae Marsh, she of the multi-moods, comes to the Dream Theatre beginning Wednesday in her latest Goldwyn photo-drama "The Glorious Adventure," by Edith Barnard Delano. Described as a dramatic offering, the story embodies all the delicate whimsicality the slim star is famous for portraying.

She is Carey Wethersbee, a girl whose knowledge of life does not extend beyond the garden of the old Southern mansion she occupies with her spinster aunt. When the latter dies, Carey, imbued with the desire to go "visiting," sets out on a journey which brings her to a strange town and the home of Hiram A. Ward, owner of a great mill.

Society Heroine of New Type Portrayed by Elsie Ferguson

The character portrayed by the talented stage and screen star, Elsie Ferguson in her latest Arctcraft photoplay, "A Society Exile," which will be shown at the Dream Theatre next Friday, is one which most of us would probably have considered untrue to life in the days before the war.

However, the splendid work done by many daughters of millionaire parents for our soldiers and sailors has convinced us that there is another type of society heiress besides the honor, soon afterward opening an office in his home town. He is one of the popular young men of the town Shard, the heiress-heroine of "A Society Exile" is a distinguished novel will wish him much joy upon this happy event.

socially ambitious, but is taken to one of the worst fibbers that ever England by an aspiring aunt, who intends to marry her to a title. The girl strikes up a close acquaintance with an intelligent young nobleman who desires to turn her novel into a play. Tragedy follows, due to the unfounded suspicions of his jealous wife, and Nora is practically exiled from England.

Later in Venice all turns out for the better. Was Worst Fibber in all the World Wins Truth Medal! Because she was reputed never to have told a lie in all her life, Berenice Somers was presented with a truth medal. As a matter of fact, she was joined the Ananias Club. The funny part of it was that she had such a pious and innocent expression on her pretty face that she completely fooled everybody except her immediate friends, who ironically called her "Miss George Washington"—because she was so different. Dainty little Marguerite Clark is "Miss George Washington" in the photoplay of that name, which will be the Paramount attraction at the Dream Theatre next Saturday. The picture was directed by J. Searle Dawley, who staged many of the little star's successes, such as "Little Lady Eileen," "Molly Make-Believe," "Silks and Satins," "Seven Swans," and others.

PLEADS FOR ## CANADIAN TROOPS

All lovers of Canada (I count myself to the front rank of them) must have been shocked and grieved by the tragedy at Epsom. Nevertheless, the time has come when some writer with the necessary knowledge and sympathy should make an effort to stem the tide of misrepresentation whereby a small but powerful section of the British press is now doing its best, or worst, willingly or unwillingly, to separate Canada from the Mother Country. That task I humbly undertake in this article, writes Sir Hall Caine in the London Daily Telegraph.

The first thing it is necessary to do is to give categorical denials to the leading counts in the indictment which represents the Canadian troops as lawless, undisciplined, unprincipled, and brutal in their relation to their own officers and to the civilian population of this country. The campaign of calumny appears to have begun at Kinmel. After the unfortunate incident there (a purely Canadian affair), it was said that Canadian soldiers had attacked their officers and trampled a V. C. major to death.

It was not true. It was said that as the result of the incident at Witley 20,000 Canadians were without shelter.

It was not true. After events of no particular moment at Rhyl, it was said that Canadian soldiers had provoked a riot in which blood had been shed; that they had broken into banks, stolen motorcars, held up innocent civilians at the pistol's point, and reduced the whole district to a reign of terror which had had the result of destroying the visiting industry on which it lives.

It was not true. But not only were these statements untrue; they were the exact reverse of the truth, and therefore fairly under the suspicion of being deliberate falsehoods. After the incident at Rhyl the chairman of the district council put it on record that the behavior of the Canadian troops stationed there had been excellent, and that the town was so far from suffering from their presence that it was enjoying a period of unexampled prosperity.

After the event at Guildford (a collision between Canadian troops and demobilized civilians), the mayor of the town said that the troops in the vicinity had behaved particularly well, and that the conduct of some of the civilians had been such as to disgrace the name of Englishman.

So the general charge of lawlessness and want of discipline brought against the Canadian troops in this country is in its leading counts, a manifest and mendacious falsehood. And if it has to be admitted (and it has) that there have been lamentable and most reprehensible exceptions to the rule of good behavior, are there no mitigating circumstances? I think there are, and that they are circumstances of the most appalling magnitude.

The first of these is, by universal consent, the delay in repatriation. Five hundred thousand Canadians came to this country to fight the battle of the empire, and, when the war was over, it was natural that they should wish to go back at the earliest possible moment. There might be considerations of policy to detain them (the armistice was not the peace), difficulties of shipping (the enemy had reduced our means of transport) and impediments of labor (the war had left its legacy of discontent), but the Canadian troops had, nevertheless, a right to expect that they would be sent home without more delay than was absolutely necessary.

Perhaps they have been. Perhaps the programme of repatriation as laid down, has, in the aggregate been fairly fulfilled. Perhaps the Canadian troops have not fully realized the strain on the resources of the government or taken account of the perils of the international situation. It is not for me either to excuse their lack of knowledge, to make charges against the public departments or to throw a measure of responsibility for the collisions which have occurred on to the working classes of this country. My sole business is to present a fair view of the circumstances which mitigate the offence of whatever lawlessness the Canadian troops may have been guilty in certain places and on certain occasions.

It is easy to do. Five hundred thousand men, who live 3000 miles away, wish to go home, their work in Europe being, as they believe, done. It is promised them that at stated times and in stated numbers they shall go home. From one cause or other those promises are repeatedly broken. Is not this, of itself, an explanation of unrest and of the spirit of rebellion which comes of it?

But it conveys no adequate sense of the bitterness of these broken promises to say merely that, by reason of such and such insurmountable difficulties, the sailings of ships have had to be cancelled or postponed. You have to look closer. A man says to himself, "Tomorrow I am to go home." But when tomorrow comes he is told it is the day after. And when the day after comes he is told it is to be the day after that, and so on, from day to day, until weeks have passed. To think that 500,000 men, living together in vast masses, are to control the emotions which arise from such repeated postponements and to conduct themselves as if they had not occurred, is to know nothing whatever about human nature. It never has happened, and it never can.

The British people have heard much of the alleged lawlessness of the Canadian troops, but little or nothing of their disappointments. Let me offer you 22 postponements of sailings; in March there were 25; in April there were 21; and in May there were 29. One hundred postponements in four months, and every one of them a heart-stab to vast numbers of excited men! What wonder if there was impatience, and if impatience sometimes led to lawlessness.

But the impatience which these postponements provoked is no sufficient measure of the pain of them. You have to look deeper for that. Every Canadian of the half-million who crossed the ocean left his business behind him, and as soon as the war seemed to be over he was anxious to get back to it. He was young, on the threshold of life, and every day lost seemed to him to be a day wasted. He saw his British comrades demobilized and resuming their occupations, and he had the sense of being treated unequally and left behind in the race. Were these conditions calculated to foster discipline? I think quite the contrary.

Baled Hay Brings the Highest Price

Baled hay is the easiest to handle, occupies less storage room and is in the proper shape for shipment to markets where the highest prices are paid.

Before getting higher prices for your hay, you can also save money by baling with a John Deere Dain Motor Press—the hay press that makes neat, well-shaped bales quickly.

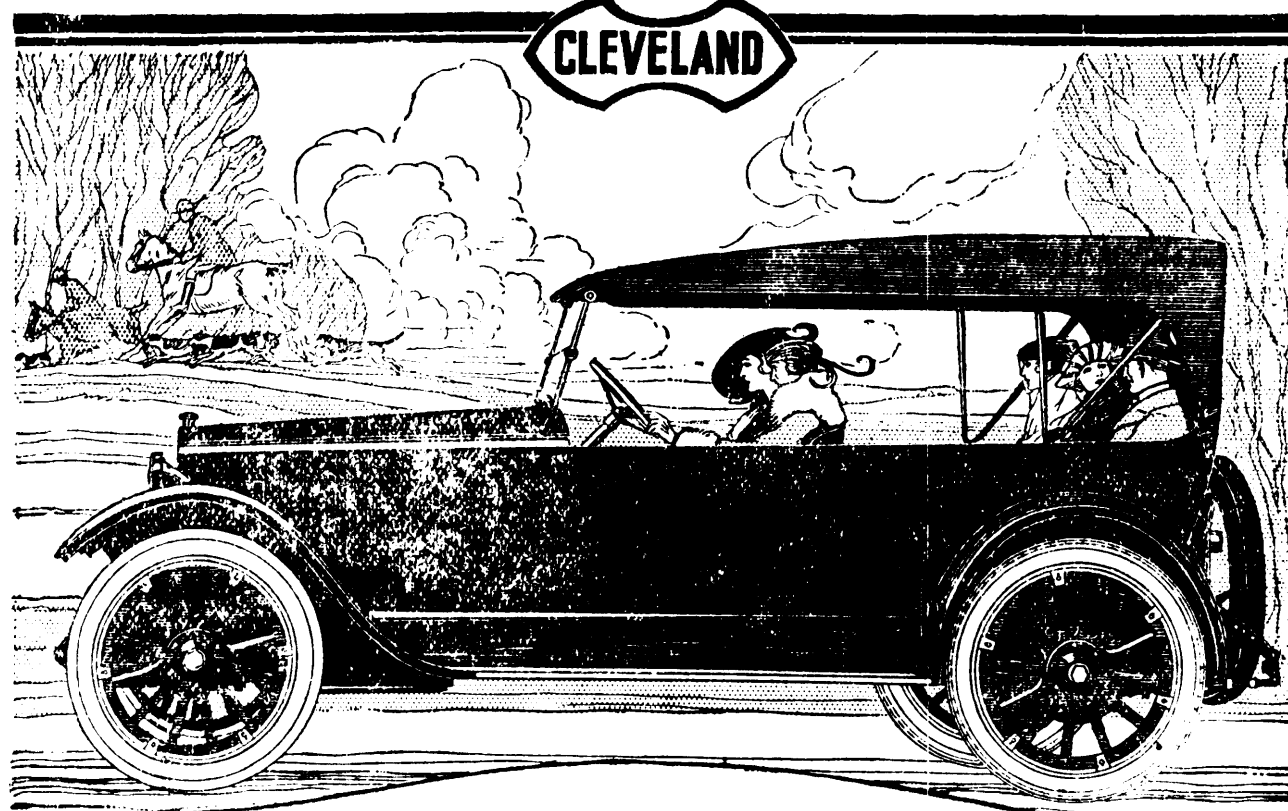

Come in and let us show you one of these presses, and explain to you why it does better work. We want particularly to show you the eccentric gear construction and to explain why, by mounting the gears off-center, more work can be accomplished without any increase in power. The powerful stroke of both plunger and self-feed arms, and the automatic feed mechanism, well-pressed bales and the quick return of the plunger and self-feed arms on the stroke give plenty of time to feed the press. The improved form of block dropper is a convenience you will appreciate.

No matter whether you want a hay press for custom work or only for your private use, we can furnish you with a John Deere Dain Motor Press of the right size and capacity.

RECIPROCAL LICENSE AMONG STATES

Unlimited automobile reciprocity among the several states and the District of Columbia soon will receive the attention of Congress, as several bills on the subject have been introduced in both branches and have found place on the dockets of the Interstate Commerce committees.

In the House its committee passes upon both interstate and foreign commerce, and because of this fact the reciprocity measure just introduced by Representative Burton E. Sweet of Iowa best meets the general needs of the situation. This bill has the endorsement of the American Automobile Association, which for a period of years has been seeking from Congress the "open door" in registration reciprocity.

Not only does Mr. Sweet's draft provide for unlimited recognition of registration numbers throughout the United States, but it also authorizes the Secretary of State to arrange with foreign nations so that any American going abroad can be equipped with a registration tag on which "U. S." will be substituted for the name of his state and in consequence be acceptable in all European countries which are signatories in the use of the so-called "international plate of identity." This arrangement has been in existence in Europe for a period of years, somewhat interrupted by the war, but now to be resumed again, undoubtedly with a subsequent accompaniment in the form of an "international triptych" which will relate to customs duties.

Americans traveling abroad have been obliged to accept the courtesy of Great Britain or France in arranging for the international plate, which has been somewhat awkward and more or less a reflection on our inability to provide this great help.

Another excellent provision in Mr. Sweet's bill is that it definitely provides that the resident of any state temporarily located in the District of Columbia, either as a member of Congress or in any other governmental capacity, shall have the right to display on his motor vehicle a home state registration number which will be acceptable in lieu of any other registration in the District of Columbia.

In the Senate the Interstate Commerce committee confines its activities to domestic matters, and this may mean that the question of international reciprocity cannot be taken care of by amending the bill of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada which is a duplicate of the original Adamson draft. A separate measure may have to be passed upon by the Foreign Relations Committee, of which Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is the chairman. Having in mind the many Americans who will go abroad next year, the convenience of this arrangement is plainly apparent.

CARDS SUGGESTED LIFE INSURANCE

A game of cards is said to have suggested the system of life insurance now so universal.

A Flemish nobleman in the seventeenth century tried to divide equitably the cash staked upon an interrupted game of chance. He was helped in his attempt by Pascal, a distinguished French mathematician, who solved the problem.

The idea can be illustrated by the throwing of a dice, the chance of turning up an ace being one out of six. In a large number of throws, the chances are in the same proportion. From this Pascal laid down the proposition that results which have happened in a given number of observed cases will again happen in similar circumstances, provided the numbers be sufficient for the proper working of the law of average.

The life of a person is one of the greatest uncertainties, but the duration or rate of mortality, of a large number of persons may be predicted with the greatest accuracy by comparison with the observed result among a sufficiently large number of persons of similar ages and occupations and subject to similar climatic influences.

HOLD BACK OR RUN DOWN HILL

"Economy in the household," says a magazine contributor, "consists in minimizing non-essentials. Economize in the things you don't need, and the things you do need will take care of themselves. No matter who you are, or what you do, you can get along on what you have and be happy. The people who are always worrying about money are the ones who are always wanting what they don't need. The more you want a particular thing, the more you should wait until day after tomorrow before getting it."

Apparently our old friend, "Never put off until tomorrow what can be done today," is in the discard when it comes to buying, and it's best that it should be. Beyond the bare essentials to sustain life and keep the body decently clothed, there is nothing whose purchase cannot be delayed if that is obviously desirable.

If a social position will not stand a necessary economy, it is a false social position. If a spirit of pride or impatience will not wait to make a purchase until it can well be afforded, it is an unruly spirit. There is need of saving common sense in these days, if there ever was, and the philosopher quoted above gives good counsel when he concludes, "Buy what you can't afford, only when you can afford it."

WORK THE KEYNOTE, SAYS CLEMENCEAU

The solution of the many problems the world is now facing may be summarized in the single word "work," Premier Clemenceau declared in his keynote speech for the government party in the parliamentary elections campaign.

The speech also was the farewell message of the aged prime minister on the eve of the retirement from political life which he contemplates.

The premier's address, he declared, was not a message meant for France alone, but was an appeal to the entire world to renew its labors as they had been before the war and produce for the world's needs.

M. He said England and America had not bargained for their blood and would not grudge financial help to France.

LAYS DIVORCES TO LACK OF CHILDREN

Happiness of man and woman is of only secondary importance in marriage, the prime purpose of which is to produce robust children. Prof. William J. Durant of Columbia University said in a lecture, "Where there are no children there is no marriage," he added.

Free love is impossible, the professor said, because conquests of a man are praised by other men, "but if a woman had had one free love affair she is held in ridicule and belittled by her associates."

"Most men now marry after they have become incapable of love," the professor continued, "and then comes your divorce."

"Courts say that divorces are due to cruelty, drunkenness and half a dozen other things, but they are all wrong. The three fundamental reasons for divorce are:

- "1—The natural vanity of both sexes.
- "2—Physiological incompatibility.
- "3—Lack of children."

PERSHING OPPOSES WAR DEPARTMENT

Favors Army of 300,000 and Universal Training with Educational Work

Dissenting in many important respects from the program recommended by the war department and the general staff, Gen. Pershing told the committee of Congress that 300,000 men, raised entirely by voluntary enlistment, should be the outside figures considered for a standing army.

He favored universal military training to provide an emergency reserve, but thought general educational work should be combined with it and military discipline somewhat relaxed so that the system would be in complete harmony with democratic institutions. He fixed six months as the training period.

Department's Recommendation

The department had recommended an army of more than 500,000 with a system of universal training not embracing the educational feature. Its recommendation for a training period was three months.

Departing again from the expressed views of the department, the general declared purchasing should be reorganized in a new bureau apart from the quartermaster corps and that a separate department of the government should be organized to co-ordinate and supervise military, naval and commercial aeronautics. He considered the department's request for 231 general staff officers excessive, and made clear his opposition to any effort by the staff to extend its authority into the details of the department bureaus and of the line.

During his day of testimony before the two committees, which opened a series of special joint sessions to hear his views on peace-time reorganization of the army, the former commander of the American expeditionary forces expressed several times his unfamiliarity with the present make-up and policy of the general staff and emphasized that he was speaking directly from his experience in the field. But he did not hesitate to put into pointed language his opinions on the abstract questions presented by committee members.

When one representative asked whether he approved an apparent tendency of the staff to project its control into details of the line, he brought his fist down upon the table and snapped:

"I certainly do not."

He was equally emphatic when a senator asked whether the staff ought not to take the military committees into its confidence about the general situation in the army.

"I am quite sure of it," he quickly replied.

Only once or twice did the questioning lead him into discussion of the activities of the American armies in France, though that is expected to come in for more detailed consideration before he completes his testimony. PERSHING OPPOSES WAR DEPT. He will appear again tomorrow and his statement, which is expected to be the last before the committees, may run into next week.

No Combat Planes up to Jan. 1

Asked for the facts about the number of airplanes and artillery pieces which reached the American army, the general said no American combat planes at all had been received up to the beginning of this year, though on Jan. 1 a total of 1443 American fighting machines of the observation type were on hand, together with 5181 of various types made in Europe. The only American guns which got into action were some eight-inch pieces. About 170 American-made 75-mm. guns reached France, but they never were used. He did not have the exact figures on guns and planes at the time of the armistice.

The witness also touched on his experiences in France in discussing the size of the general staff, saying that his staff at the time of the armistice, when more than 2,000,000 men were under his command, consisting of less than 350 officers. While he thought that proportion might not obtain exactly for the new peace time army, he expressed an opinion that the department's estimate of 231 could be cut down considerably.

He also recommended that rank up to and including second lieutenant be given army nurses; that students at West Point be required to serve a year in the army or go to a training camp; that the pay of officers and enlisted men be increased; that reserve officers be classified and assigned on paper to definite units; that the scope of army service schools be broadened, and that the duties of bureau chiefs be prescribed by law.

and the President empowered to remove them.

Suggesting 275,000 to 300,000 and possibly less as the outside figures for the peace army, he said the cost of maintaining a larger establishment was a consideration which could not be overlooked. He did not make a detailed statement of the strategic need for a large army, but said the permanent strength should be large enough to meet sudden attacks, take care of internal disturbances, and make possible expeditionary forces on this continent.

Universal service, he said, would be a distinct advantage in making better citizens under the plan he outlined. Illiteracy, he thought, might be materially reduced and physical defects overcome by providing an extra three months training for the absolutely illiterate and the physically weak. He added that while discipline was very necessary, there might easily be a relaxation in view of the character of the training.

"I would emphasize the educational features," he said "more than the military features."

With the exception of the period necessary to instruct raw recruits under the proposed military training plan, it is expected that Secretary Baker and other war department officials will indorse Gen. Pershing's views on the proper basis for army reorganization.

Secretary Baker stated specifically today that he could never indorse either the proposal for a year's training or to put the universal training more or less under the supervision of the statute.

PART OF SAHARA

ENJOYS RAINFALL

That the Sahara will some day "blossom like the rose" or, at any rate, like a reasonably productive agricultural country, is the gist of an article by J. Nicholas Brusse in La Nation of Paris. For more than a quarter of a century, Mr. Brusse declares, although people in general have thought of the Sahara as an enormous, permanently hopeless expanse of sand, those acquainted with the results of a geographical survey conducted about 1893 have known also that the Sahara is not absolutely unfit for either plant or animal life.

Rain falls sometimes in the Great Desert and there are underground streams that could be made available for water. The present oases could be developed and others created, provided a beginning were made by establishing strategic roads and introducing a sense of law and order among the desert tribes for the security of those who were trying to develop the country.

In its entirety the region included in the Sahara contains already a good deal of spontaneous vegetation; it grows a number of forage plants and shrubs that serve as pasture for caravans, and could doubtless be improved and made valuable by cultivation. Fig trees, apricots, peaches, grapes and various cereals have been grown in the oases.

ATTEMPT TO SATISFY LABOR

NEW YORK, OCT. 25 1919.

Writing of the Industrial Conference several weeks ago, before it had convened, we said that the object of the Conference was to establish a complete harmony as possible between the workers and the industrial managers of the country. So that business might proceed thereafter undisturbed by unrest because of labor dissatisfaction.

The printers' strike swept in then, and prevented the publication of that and other statements which follow. And worse than that, the Conference, when it came together, instead of settling down to solve the problem, was carried by labor into a controversy on the Steel strike, through the attempt of the labor party to bolster up the American Federation of Labor in its contest with the Steel leaders. Since then nothing has been done else of moment in the deliberations, and a deadlock has followed.

Nevertheless, what we wrote at that time applies as well now to the real situation as it did when written, and we will set it down here.

The real object of the Conference is, or should be, to arrange for business to proceed undisturbed hereafter by unrest and dissatisfaction on either side.

The unrest and dissatisfaction is mainly on the workers' side. Capital, or the employer, has no grievance to be assuaged, except perhaps that present day labor is not working up to full normal efficiency; consequently, production is being curtailed, and things, including prices, made hard for all by us.

The object, then, to be brought about, is to arrange so that the workers will be satisfied.

Why are the employers satisfied with the outcome of their business operations? Mainly because they are enabled to make a profit, which is used either to strengthen the financial conditions of the business concerned or to increase its plants and facilities so that it can make a larger profit, or both.

It is a rather widely-held theory that profit-sharing on the part of labor is the solution of the difficulty; that labor is not getting its share of the wealth which is being accumulated partly as a result of its efforts, and that an adjustment in this direction will solve the problem. But profit-sharing plans have been tried, and thus far, mostly, have proved failures.

Will Profit-sharing Really Benefit?

The reason it appears is that the same as with increased wages the added sums thus distributed do not permanently benefit the worker. The workers spend their profits just as they spend their increased wages, and have nothing left to show for them.

In other words, the workers, unlike the capitalists and employers and industrial concerns, are not, as a class, growing richer and more assured as to income, and really permanently benefited by the increased funds coming in to them in the shape of higher wages, and would not be more so if in receipt of additional amounts in the way of profit-sharing money.

On the other hand, it is claimed by some that the worker is permanently benefiting by increasing wages, as shown by the very large increase in savings-bank deposits—as, for instance in New England, where this class of deposits is four times as large as before the war.

Labor Spending Too Much

It is doubtful, however, whether this savings development does not, after all, apply to only a small proportion of the workers—those who are naturally thrifty. It is probable that the great mass of rank and file workers has not yet become thrifty. From all trade reports from dry goods, automobile and jewelry companies, extravagance among the laboring class is widespread. Not that free spending is by any means confined to one class, but special instances are cited showing that mill and factory workers and many wage-earners are buying luxuries freely.

It may be said that, after all, what he does with his money is the affair of the worker; that he may do as he likes with his funds, and if he wishes to spend them on comforts and luxuries for himself and his family, he has as much right to do so as the employer has.

But, we are starting out to remedy a situation, and something must be done, either by educating the workers to get lasting benefits from their increased earnings, or perhaps by putting into operation some plan which will bring about this result forcibly. Education toward thrift is, of course, the better way, but it takes too long.

Can Thrift Be Cultivated Automatically?

Might not a plan of putting the workingman's funds from profit-sharing automatically into a trust fund, be worth considering? That is, supposing it were made a widely-observed rule that the credits due working people from their share of profits, be required to be invested in Government bonds or other high-class securities, to be held in trust by duly appointed trust officers or trust companies or other trustees, income to be paid to the owner regularly, but principal to be held for a period of, say, five years.

The amount thus to be put aside for any one individual might be limited to five hundred dollars, further amounts coming in as profits to be paid over to the owner on the grounds that the savings habit would be then sufficiently cultivated so that the wage-earner could be trusted to continue it himself.

Up To The Workers.

Still all artificial arrangements will not change economic laws. Labor cannot be benefited permanently unless production is actually increased.

After all, the best results of the conference—in fact, the only results worth while—will be attained if some plan for greater and greater production is found. It is up to the workers, as Charles M. Schwab says: "An honest day's work for an honest day's pay." This is the solution.

But the conference, deadlock on the bargaining question, has not begun to touch the real issue.

It has become very clear that the steel strike had no such object in view as the betterment of the workmen's condition. It was not even a concerted effort against the open shop and for the wide unionizing of all labor, as it appeared at first to be.

The real object was to open a way for labor (dominated by the Red element) to take over and control the whole steel industry, just as the Plumb bill aims to have the same forces take over the railroads completely.

And if the steel industry and the railroads were taken over in this manner, more than 50 per cent. of all the industrial investment of the United States would have come into possessive control of the Bolshevik element. It would not be long after that before the whole industrial machinery of the United States would be wrecked.

But even if the radical element which is striving to get the upper hand were eliminated, what would the effect of labor control of industry be on the well-being of labor itself?

Labor is complaining of the high cost of living. Forty per cent. of this high cost is due to working inefficiency—to the fact that average labor is not doing a full day's work, and that is why, more than enough things to go around are not made, and why those that are made, with the demand exceeding the supply, can command higher and higher prices.

Labor Control Destructive to Industry. If labor were in control instead of skilled industrial leadership, it cannot be imagined that more efficiency would result. It would decline as in every instance or record, notably Russia, and while prices would mount higher, the businesses of the country would drift steadily, one after the other, to disaster, under inexperienced and self-seeking labor demagogues and under higher and higher production-costs limiting the output.

But the strike is, in fact, a conflict between the more or less hidden forces of the Bolsheviks and the forces of order and reason. The intelligent part of the community, including the workmen themselves, have grasped the meaning of this, and a great majority has lined up on the side of civilization against anarchy.

The attitude of business from the start has been one of confidence, with no real doubts as to the final outcome of the contest, which is an entering wedge to take over the control of the Government. While there is firm belief that this whole movement throughout the country, which has destruction for its object, will be defeated, there is no disposition to minimize the difficulty and danger of the situation.

Individual support from every sound-thinking citizen may yet be necessary, through organization.

The Market.

The strong markets of the last few weeks have been reflecting, to a certain extent, the confident feeling on the outcome of the labor contest in America, and have been discounting the belief in good trade ahead.

The disquieting factors relating to labor are offset by the reluctance of many holders to take profits, with income-tax regulations waiting to swallow a good part of them. Another reason why some industrials especially, are firmly held, is because large profits have advanced, book values beyond present prices. In the absence of money restrictions, we see no reason why the market should have any serious decline at this time.

GOOD DEBT IS THING OF VALUE

When I was a young girl I had a terrible horror of the word "debt." It loomed large in my mind as some hideous monster that certainly would destroy you if you got anywhere near it. It was always associated in my thoughts with destruction. I could not conceive of it having any constructive air or end. Then one day I read these words of Louis F. Smith which completely changed my point of view: "Young men should get into debt, not for clothes, drink and the like, but for some investment of tangible value that will be worth saving for." Those words were a revelation. The word "debt" took on a new meaning.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weak kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil has been relieving the weakness and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil is contained in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease. Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your drugist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, in sealed packages.

It could be a means to build up as well as tear down.

When we come to analyze a horror of debt, it is usually due to some painful personal experience or to some harrowing story of a mortgage that could not be lifted and which swept out a half dozen lives. The horror is based on the experience of a dear friend who had lost everything and gone insane. It is associated in our mind with a widow and small children left to struggle with a load of debts. These conditions form the reverse side of the story which may take an entirely different angle.

How much business would be transacted if nobody ever went into debt? How many young men could make a start for themselves if they dared not go into debt? How many homes would be purchased if everybody had to pay cash? Our whole system of business is built on credit. Cut off the credits of a country and the whole structure would collapse in three hours.

Far-seeing employers like to see their workers get into the right kind of debt. They know that the investing home-owning employee makes the steadiest kind of worker, that he is not likely to waste his substance in foolish expenditure and dissipation. It is with these ideas in mind that good employers of labor build homes which they sell to their workers on payments without profits to themselves. They also realize that employers who own government bonds, good industrial stocks or a little property are not

EVANGELISTIC MEETING

Chaplain A. J. Croft (A. E. F.) comes to Houlton under the auspices of the Department of Evangelism of the Board of Home Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia. Chaplain Croft had recently a large church in Milwaukee, Wisconsin of more than one thousand members. He resigned the charge of this important congregation to become Chaplain in the U. S. Army when America went into the War. He knows the problems of the pastor and his parish thoroughly and is well equipped both by training and experience to give strong leadership to our Union Evangelistic Campaign. The Chaplain is a strong preacher, and presents a clear-cut, convincing, Gospel Message.

Both as preacher and pastor he was very successful in his pastorate in Milwaukee. For several years he received into the membership of his churches, an average of 200 members a year. We sincerely believe that his coming to Houlton will be an inspiration to our churches, and a great blessing to our town and community.

TROTTERING CIRCUIT FOR MAINE AND N. B.

The Maritime and Maine shortship harness circuit was formed at a meeting of horsemen representing various tracks in Maine, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia at Fredericton last Wednesday. The officers of the new circuit are: President, S. D. Heckbert, Chatham; vice-president, P. S. Watson, Fredericton; secretary, P. D. Tweedie, Chatham. Members of the executive reporting the various tracks are: Sackville, A. E. Etter, Sussex; Mr. Fairweather; Springhill, N. S., E. B. Paul; St. Stephen, F. D. J. Graham; St. John, A. P. Ryan; Moncton, P. A. Bellevue; Woodstock, H. M. DeWitt; Chatham, S. D. Heckbert; Houlton, Me., A. J. Saunders; Fredericton, P. S. Watson.

Arrangements are to be made for a ten week circuit for harness-horses, each track in the circuit having one week allotted to it, beginning with the Dominion day meet and closing in time to avoid conflicting with the meetings of the fall fairs.

The starting point will be that most convenient for the greater numbers of horses. Dates will be arranged at another meeting which is to be called by President Heckbert late in November at Fredericton.

Horsemen present at the meeting say that the prospects for 1920 never were surpassed in the maritime provinces. The attendance at the meeting was the largest ever at such a gathering in this section of the country and enthusiasm is high. There is little doubt of the new circuit having a successful season. Those reporting the tracks at the meeting were: Fredericton, Hugh O'Neill, P. S. Watson; Woodstock, H. M. DeWitt, J. W. Gallagher; St. Stephen, F. D. J. Graham; Chatham, S. D. Heckbert, F. D. Tweedie; Springhill, N. S., H. A. B. Glendenning; St. John, A. P. Ryan; Houlton, O. B. Buzzell and Winthrop Robinson. No representatives from Moncton, Sackville or Sussex were in attendance.

OBSERVING ARMISTIC DAY

Contrary to the prevailing idea Tuesday, Nov. 11, 1919 is not a legal holiday.

The Houlton stores were closed by a vote of the Houlton Merchants' Assn.

CHILD ALMOST DEAD

GRANDMOTHER SAVES LIFE

Roxbury, Mass. A grandmother in Roxbury writes: "I put great faith in your medicine, and one of my children was dying. The doctor said she could not live until morning, and I ran out to the drug store, got a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir, was so excited I gave her the half of the bottle at once, and at night I gave her the other half. I thought it's ethel kill or cure for the doctor says she is dying anyway, but she did not die. She went to sleep, the first sleep for a week, and the next morning she passed two worms, red in color, six inches long. The doctor came to see if she was dead, but he ran out pretty quick, as she was sitting in her chair eating a bowl of oatmeal and milk. That was twenty-four years ago, and now she has a baby girl of her own, seven months old, who is also using Dr. True's Elixir." (Name on Request)

After the Moulting EGGS

REMEMBER, going through the moult is like going through a long spell of sickness. To force out the old quills and grow new feathers saps a hen's vitality.

If you expect your hens to be fall producers and winter layers, then feed them Poultry Pan-a-ce-a during and after the moult.

It contains internal antiseptics that destroy disease germs that may be lurking in the system. No disease where Pan-a-ce-a is fed. It pays to feed Pan-a-ce-a regularly.

It brings back the singing—it brings back the scratching—it brings back the cackle. That's when you get eggs; and it's eggs you want—fall eggs, winter eggs—when eggs are eggs.
