MR. ARMBRUST'S TRAVELS

Vinalhaven Man Inspects Uncle Sam's Big Panama Canal Under Most Favorable Circumstances.

I saw and inspected the Panama canal under the most favorable circumstances. I met an old friend of mine who is one of the inspectors of the canal. He has a son, an engineer on the canal cut with headquarters at Las Cascades. With a letter of introduction to the son, who I had never met, I started to do up the canal.

My first stop was at Gatun dam, a three locks and spillway. I got so interested in the stupendous work that I missed the regular train for Las Cascades. The important question with me then was how was I to reach the cut before the work was suspended for the day, as the next train was not due to arrive until 4.30 and would not reach the nearest station until after 6 p. m. As my time was limited I could not afford to lose a half day.

I had four hours to the locks and dams, so I wanted to see more of the work. So after thinking the matter over it occurred to me that I had a tongue in my head and that I had better use it. The first thing to do was to get some dinner so going to one of the big hotels the government had provided for the engineers, bosses, superintendents and other officials I got a good dinner served well and clean for $1.00. I could have had a good one for $1.00 outside of the canal zone. Here I found an engineer on one of the dirt trains that runs about every 20 minutes hauling dirt out of the Culebra cut to the dam for filling.

Explaining my work to him and showing my letter he said he would gladly take me on his engine and show me all he could, but could not do so without an order from the master of transportation. He informed me how to get that important official and pointed out his office as I started. On the way I fell in with a German employed in the drafting office. He volunteered to show me all the blue prints of the dam, locks and excavation and answer all questions that I might ask. After spending an hour or so with him we went to the master of transportation's office. The master was not in but his chief clerk, a Bean of Boston, Mass., listened to my tale of woe and got busy on the telephone. After telephoning to several points on the canal he at last located the officer and explained my situation to that gentleman. In a few moments I was armed with a document that allowed me to ride on any of the engines or dirt trains as far as the locks on the Pacific end of the canal. He pointed out to me the exact spot where I would be most likely to get a train in the shortest time as the office is situated on a high hill overlooking locks and dam. He could watch my progress. He signaled a light engine that was going out on top of the dam to pick me up and take me out and drop me off at the water town, as all trains stop there. I could board the first train that came along bound for the cut.

I went out on the engine on top of the dam where he helped shift a train, then back down on a track that runs in front of the dam onto a track that will be about 50 feet under water when the dam is completed. I did not have to wait long at the water tank until a train came along. Boarding it I went as far as Gargona. At this point our train was ordered off the main track to run down into the bed of the river, where five or six big steam shovels are at work loading trains with dirt for the fill at the dam, and at the same time straighten the channel of the river. The canal follows most places the old channel of the Chagres river as it saves a lot of excavating, at a number of places the channel has to be straightened.

This point is high ground and the government has built quite a number of houses at this point. This is the largest town on the canal. It will be an island when the dam is filled. The point where the railroad runs and the depot stands will be 44 feet under water. Just above this point is located the big machine shops to repair the canal, where the machinery is repaired and some new built. As we found that I could not go further on that train and that it would take some 30 or 50 minutes to load the train and pull out and get back to the depot at Gargona the conductor gave me back my order for transportation and directed me to go across the town to the depot where I would find a train behind the freight house on a side track used for carrying supplies out to the cut and taking the men back and forth to work, and as it was about time for it to start, if I hurried I could catch it, and as it was through the cut I could see more than I followed the main line of the canal that runs back away from the cut. I got the aforesaid train with a few minutes to spare. As the train was going light and no stops to make the conductor was not busy so he sat down alongside of me and pointed out the things that he thought would interest me. We run out on the 90-foot level that is 90 feet above the bottom of the cut, and came back picking up the workmen. Most of the men live in Gargona that work in the cut on the Atlantic side of the range of mountains. There is a point near Emperor that is called the summit, from the fact that the engineers have ordered, that in the excavation at this point be kept the highest, and that both ends of the cut be kept down to grade, so that all the surface water will drain out of the cut and not interfere with the working at the ends of the cut.

There is a ditch 12-feet deep below grade on the Atlantic side of the cut that is the long end of the cut to take care of the water. I had time to go the entire length of the cut which at some points is 200 feet deep and at Gold Hill it is 100 feet deep. They are having a lot of trouble in the cut with slides. The cutting is through a soft kind of earth composed of a kind of reddish clay on top of the cut and broken rocks and a kind of a blue clay that is almost as hard as rock in the bottom that has to be blasted before the steam shovels can dig or handle it. This material is called rock and in fact is worse than all rock to handle. It is all hard when first exposed but as it is exposed to the air for a long time it begins to crack and

A CIVIL WAR INCIDENT

Capt. E. A. Butler Describes Blowing Up of the U. S. S. Housatonic.

The following letter, written by E. A. Butler to his father, Capt. Anson Butler, describes an interesting event of the Civil War in which Rockland's ex-Mayor figured:

U. S. S. "Wabash."

Off Charleston, S. C. Feb. 18, '64.

Dear Father—Here I am, and, thanks to kind Providence, all right and unharmed. The "Housatonic" sunk last night at her anchorage, having been blown up by a rebel torpedo boat about 9 p. m. There are even less casualties than might have been expected under the circumstances, we having the advantage of shoal water and a smooth sea. Two officers are missing (an Ensign and Capt's clerk), the number of men not yet ascertained but will probably not exceed twenty. I have nothing except what I stand in, and in that respect am much better off than the majority, many of them having thrown away their clothes in the water.

It's rather a hard blow for us from a pecuniary point of view but we are very grateful and thankful that so many of our lives are spared. You will probably receive intelligence of this unfortunate affair through Rebel sources long before any of the true particulars reach you. Hope no unnecessary anxiety will be felt for me for I am as good as new, have a whole skin and in good spirits.

When the alarm was first given all in our stateroom were attentively listening to one of its members reading from "Paradise Lost." Hearing some commotion on deck and thinking it might be "quarters" I seized my cutlary and rushed on deck, making the best of my way to my gun which was farthest forward, finding considerable confusion on deck, but unable to ascertain what was the cause of it. The chain was shipped and the engines commenced backing when in less time than it takes to describe it, a heavy gun was heard, accompanied by a dense volume of smoke, and fragments shot up and enveloping the whole stern of the ship. She immediately commenced sinking. A rush was made for the boats and rigging and some in a state of excitement jumped overboard. I took to the fore rigging and did not even get wet although considerably chilled. We sank and heeled to port, a small portion of our starboard head rail being out of water. Thus the noble "H" at present appears, a portion of her lines, mast and smoke stack being out of water. Don't know what will be done with us, but we all hope and expect to be sent north. Hope I may soon be with you all, then will give you further particulars. Excuse unintelligible writing. Your affectionate son,
E. A. Butler.

SHIPMASTERS PROTEST

The announcement by the United States lighthouse bureau a short time ago that the Nantucket Shoals light vessel, No. 85, would be changed from its present location to a point 15 miles to the eastward has created considerable adverse criticism among the owners and masters of coastwise steamers and schooners and a petition is now in circulation protesting against the removal of this important aid to navigation.

"Bush" Ladd of Warren, who is under contract with the Cleveland Americans, is convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever in Huron Roads hospital, Cleveland. This illness will probably prevent him from doing much in the professional line this season, much to the regret of the Knox county fans, who hoped to see him getting some valuable experience in some minor league, at least.

Postmaster General Hitchcock is confident that penny postage is probably of the near future, as the result of reductions in the more than seventeen million dollar postal deficit which existed when he took charge of the Post-office department.

Old fashioned poetry, but choice good.

Two In the Campagna

I wonder do you feel to-day
As I have felt, since, hand in hand,
We sat down on the grass to stray
In spirit better through the land,
This morn of Rome and May?

For me, I touch'd a thought, I know,
Has tantalized me many times,
(Like turns of thread the spiders throw
Looking across our path) for rhymes
To catch at and let go.

Help me to hold it! First it left
The yellow fennel, run to seed
There, branching from the brickwork's cleft,
Some old tomb's ruin, yonder weed
Took up the floating web.

Where one small orange cup amass'd
Five beetles,—blind and green they grope
Among the honey-meat; and last,
Everywhere on the grassy slope
I tread it. Hold it fast!

The champagne with its endless dross
Of foamy grasses everywhere;
Silence and passion, joy and peace,
An everlasting of all
Rome's ghost since her decease.

Such life there, through such lengths of hours,
Such miracles perform'd in play,
Such primal naked forms of flowers,
Such letting Nature have her way
While Heaven looks from its towers!

How say you? Let us, O my dove,
Let us be unsham'd of soul,
As earth lies bare to heaven above!
How is it under our control
To love or not to love?

I would that you were all to me,
You that are just so much, no more.
Nor yours, nor mine, nor slave nor free!
Where does the fault lie? what the core
Of the wound, since wound must be?

I would I could adopt your will,
See with your eyes, and see my heart
Beating by yours, and drink my fill
At your soul's springs,—your part, my part
In life, for good and ill.

No, I yearn upward, touch you close,
Then stand away. I kiss your cheek,
Catch your soul's warmth,—I pluck the rose
And love it more than tongue can speak—
Then the good minute goes.

Already how am I so far
Out of that minute? Must I go
Still like the thistle-bell, no bar,
Onward, whenever light winds blow,
Flung by no friendly star?

Just when I seem'd about to learn
Where is the thread now? Off again!
The old trick! Only I discern—
Infinite passion, and the pain
Of finite hearts that yearn.

The new black and gilt sign over the Street Railway's waiting room is pronounced a daisy.

The Salvation Army people will conduct the service at the Glen Cove chapel Sunday afternoon.

Key Company U. R. K. of P., has a benefit dance in their Castle hall this Friday evening. The members will wear uniforms except side arms.

Spring may not actually be here, but just the same its a safe precaution to see that you are not trying to cross the street when a chug cart is bearing down on you.

The Knox county jail had 12 occupants yesterday, and they appeared to be a fairly robust lot in spite of the fact that green turtle and French peas do not figure on Landlord Tolman's menu.

Two handsome new motor cars arrived in the city Thursday—Chalmers 40 for F. A. Thorndike and an Oakland for A. B. Crockett. Both came through from Portland accompanied by their owners.

The Steamship Belfast came into port Tuesday morning with flags flying, in honor of her first trip down from Boston after a thorough overhaul. The smile that Capt. Curtis wore had at least a five-inch beam.

A Rockland street lady has a new invention for making house-cleaning more agreeable. Her vestment yesterday consisted of a bathing costume, and when she appeared on her walk for a few moments, a neighbor's camera caught several snap-shots.

A. N. Saylor and Ralph Tripp rode the third degree goat in Aurora Lodge Wednesday night. The brethren worked up an appetite which had to be appeased at a neighboring luncheon, all but one of the candidates for the goat.

Rev. J. A. Flynn, John H. McGrath, T. M. McLaughlin, James Donohue and John R. Cousins were present at the organization of the Maine Historical Catholic Historical Society in Portland Tuesday. Preparations were begun for the Catholic centenary.

A. S. Littlefield is driving a new Pope-Hartford touring car, purchased through the agency of W. A. McLean, Jr., agent of the Maine Motor Carriage Co. of Portland. It is a handsome four-door machine of 60 h. p. and will furnish dust for many pursuers this summer.

The Adventurers' Club held its regular meeting Thursday evening and the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, John Richardson; vice-president, Maynard Snow; secretary, Alton Blackington; treasurer, Eugene Cleaves. The next meeting will be held at the N. F.

The late Capt. Lyman E. Stanley, whose tragic death at Vinalhaven was reported recently carried $400 insurance in the Loyal Protective Association, the local collector of which is George N. Harden. A very prompt settlement was made, the widow receiving a check for the amount this week.

A new record was established at the freight depot Wednesday when a whole carload of bananas arrived for the Rockland Produce Co. A carload of bananas counts 350 bushels. A bunch contains an average of 142 bananas, the skins which properly distributed on our sidewalks would fill all the hospitals to overflowing.

Policemen and drivers of city teams will probably be named at the May session of the city council next Monday evening, together with a member of the board of health. As usual, there is considerable interest attaching to these appointments. The salary committee will probably make its report, and there will be a large amount of other business.

Director Chapman visited Wight Philharmonic Society Thursday night and was full of enthusiasm about his concert with Mary Garden, notwithstanding the fact that he had, whom he displayed to an admiring chorus. From here Director Chapman went to Belfast, to arrange, if possible, a union rehearsal of the Belfast and Rockland choruses to take place in this city in about three weeks.

Ernest Rogers, who has been assistant at the Postal Telegraph office the past two years, left this morning to take up his new duties as manager of the company's office in Northampton, Mass. He has developed into one of the best key-clickers that the city has ever graduated, and possesses other qualifications which will justify his appointment as manager. Weston Gray, who can talk with or without wires succeeds him at the local office.

The redoubtable George Smith made his reappearance at Rockland Theatre amateur night, and coincident with the same there came the evident abundance of a fruit and vegetable crop that astonished in view of the belated season. George on this occasion wore an appliqued gown, imported from the Head of the Bay, but there were no new quirks to his Salome dance, and he was beaten to it by that other good old Has Been, John Skinner. Third prize went to Ross Brothers for lack of competition. The degeneracy of amateur night should lead Manager Rosenberg to heed the signs of growing discontent in his audience. The attendance on those occasions has held up remarkably, it is true, but the patrons have had enough (with a capital E) unless there is a program that is good enough to stand an assault on the nearest fruit stand.

J. S. Jenkins, manager of the local branch of Swift & Co. has returned from a vacation trip of 11 days, during which he visited the company's immense plants in Chicago, South Omaha, St. Joseph and Kansas City. It was his fifth journey into this territory, yet he found much that was interesting and instructive in his line of business. All bills were paid by the company and all hotel arrangements were made in advance. He had merely to show his card and a force of clerks and waiters sprang to do his bidding. He found the hotel was a very different place in weather changes as his own state of Maine. In Kansas City it was so hot that he carried his light summer coat on his arm. Next day he went into Chicago and it had grown so cold that he was tempted to swap the garment for a fur coat, although Swift & Co. would probably have bought him one if he had merely batted an eyelid. Mr. Jenkins has been with Swift & Co. 14 years, and six more years in the capacity of manager will entitle him to the privilege of retiring on half pay for the remainder of his life.

Dollar days at E. B. Hastings & Co., Saturday and Monday.

The Knox county teachers' convention will be held in Camden, May 15. Knox Lodge of Odd Fellows had six candidates on the first degree Monday night.

Capt. Nelson Mullen of the Mullen House, North Haven, was a business visitor in the city Thursday.

Swift & Co. put an attractive new delivery wagon into commission Tuesday. It came from Clinton, Mass.

Charles Hill is at Seal Island putting his 23-foot motor boat into condition for the season's fishing. Reports lobsterers scarce.

Capt. and Mrs. Scott of the Salvation Army are still expecting to hear from many more who are doing something for the sale of work. Have you overlooked this, let us hear from you.

Those who are making articles for the Salvation Army fair May 12 and 13 may expect to be called on for the same any day after May 3. Those out of town should send theirs as soon as possible.

John Adams of Limerock street is recovering from the effects of an operation upon his left hand, performed a week ago by Dr. Wasgath, with the assistance of Dr. Hanscom. Mr. Adams, who is 87, was under ether an hour, but stood the operation as though he had been in the vigor of young manhood.

All of the Boy Scouts are directed to report at the headquarters, 81 Limerock street at 10 a. m. Saturday, in uniform. As many as can do so will go away on an all-day trip, and should themselves be accordingly equipped. Others will make a shorter trip, returning at noon. Next week more candidates will take examinations to qualify as second class Scouts.

The University of Maine Musical Clubs gave a pleasing concert in Temple hall Thursday evening. Selections from the opera "Madame Sherry" by the string quintet and "Idle Moments" by the vocalists, by the Mandolin Club were the favorite numbers of the varied and not too lengthy program. The U. of M. orchestra furnished music for the dance, in which about 60 couples participated.

Victor H. Shields, son of C. A. Shields of Vinalhaven was one of the speakers at the University of Maine Freshmen banquet at Bangor Saturday night. For the first time in the history of the college a Freshman banquet was pulled off without somebody starting rough-house.

The long established custom of having the Sophomores "start something" at these events has been abolished. There were 94 at the banquet.

The program offered by Manager Rosenberg for the last half of the week is one of exceptional merit. Solar and Rogers, the two "Country Kids" are an entertaining pair, with their songs and dances, while Willie Solar does a whistling stunt and facial contortion that is extremely funny. Florence Bowes, singing comedienne, is also a shining light, her songs are of the up-to-date, catchy kind, and include the following numbers, "Pick on Me," "All Aboard for Blanket Bay," and the hit of the evening, the telephone song "All Alone." The last named number being something out of the ordinary, and one that drew forth rounds of applause. Taking all in all, the program is strictly up to the minute, and deserves liberal patronage. New change of pictures tonight.

The sonorous tones of the sardine factory whistle awoke echoes on Crockett's Point Thursday morning, conveying the glad tidings that the season's work had begun. The first fare of fish was brought in by Capt. Ralph Crockett of Ash Point, and consisted of 50 bushels of hering. The smack Princess, owned by the North Lubec Manufacturing & Canning Co., came next with 110 bushels, and the third lot was another 50 bushel fare from Capt. Crockett. Nibbling fingers were soon converting the fish into first class material for mankind's consumption. E. M. Lawrence was here Wednesday for a brief inspection of the factory. He is a very busy personage just now, dividing his time between the company's factories at North Lubec and Rockland, and the one in process of construction at Stonington.

Rev. W. A. Newcombe of Thomaston will address the meeting for men at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4 o'clock. Miss L. A. Young will be the soloist.

Repairs to the steamer Monhegan are practically completed and that much improved craft will probably go back on the Portland-Rockland run next week.

The April issue of the Street Railway Bulletin contains a fine portrait of General Manager Hawken of this city, who was one of the guests of the New England Street Railway Club at its annual banquet in Hotel Somerset, Boston, March 23.

Lieut. Commander Reuben L. Dyer of Portland paid his first visit to the Naval Reserves Tuesday night, and was immensely pleased with the showing made by the boys. In fact he fails to see where Portland's experienced companies have any advantage of the drill work shown by Ensign Mullin's men Tuesday night. Commander Dyer is no stranger to this region, particularly our seashore, for he knows every inch of it by virtue of his many yachting expeditions to Penobscot Bay. Yesterday he was taken aboard A. S. Littlefield's handsome new motor car and with Boss's Mate Weymouth at the helm he was given a pretty good view of our landscape. Major Dooley is expected here from Portland next week to see about laying out a rifle range.

The program in the program is strictly up to the minute, and deserves liberal patronage. New change of pictures tonight.

The sonorous tones of the sardine factory whistle awoke echoes on Crockett's Point Thursday morning, conveying the glad tidings that the season's work had begun. The first fare of fish was brought in by Capt. Ralph Crockett of Ash Point, and consisted of 50 bushels of hering. The smack Princess, owned by the North Lubec Manufacturing & Canning Co., came next with 110 bushels, and the third lot was another 50 bushel fare from Capt. Crockett. Nibbling fingers were soon converting the fish into first class material for mankind's consumption. E. M. Lawrence was here Wednesday for a brief inspection of the factory. He is a very busy personage just now, dividing his time between the company's factories at North Lubec and Rockland, and the one in process of construction at Stonington.

WORMS

Unsuspected worms are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When a child is sick you rarely think that its sickness is caused by worms, yet worms, either directly or indirectly, are the cause of three quarters of all the ills of childhood. Children, and oftentimes adults, feel out of sorts, are irritable, feel restless and unrefreshed in the morning; suffer with indigestion, have a variable appetite, foul tongue, offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; slow fever; and often, in children, convulsions—in the majority of cases the cause of all the trouble is worms, though you may not suspect their presence.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

A pure vegetable compound, has been the standard household remedy since 1851. It never fails to expel not only worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.

The mother who gives her children Dr. True's Elixir regularly is wise, because it not only increases the appetite and acts as a preventive of coughs, cold, fever and worms, but gives rugged, robust health.

Sold by all Druggists. Prices 25c, 50c and $1.00. Write for free booklet, "Children and their Diseases."

HOME DECORATIONS

The decoration of a room may be based upon some special feature of the room—a piece of furniture, a bit of choice china, the coloring of the rug or planned to harmonize with the adjacent rooms.

WALLS—Rich, flat effects are secured by use of Flat-tone finishes. These materials are durable, sanitary and most practical in the home. Used over the old paper, you get the color desired and a durable surface that can be washed with soap and water like the paint on the wood work.

A FLAT-TONE treatment of the old curtains makes them look like new and gives them a color to harmonize with the room.

FLOORS—By using filler stains, wax or varnishes, any shade or finish may be given. For old red-wood floors, our floor paint or varnish stain may be used to give a lasting surface.

We have finished over 100 rooms the past few months with FLAT-TONE. The first cost is less and being durable, it's the most economical finish all around.

Seven Minute Sermon

On the Golden Text

By Our Own Preacher

(Copyright, 1910, by E. S. Davidson.)

April 30th, 1911.

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations.

—Matt. xxviii:19.

I. Go. I propose to take up the separate clauses of this text and discuss them, and thus bring out its meaning. The first word, "Go" is important; it is an imperative command to the church to disciple the nations. The apostles, in common with the entire Jewish people, were very narrow in their views of God's salvation, but the time had come when it was necessary that their narrow views should give place to the universality of the gospel as taught by Jesus. He had been preparing them for their world-wide mission, and as they were lined up before him for the last time, he gives them the emphatic word, "go." The time was past for discussing whether they ought to go, or whether the opportunity was ripe for going; all these considerations were cut short by the imperative starting word. This clear command has been ringing in the ears of the Christian church from that time until now. It was heeded by the disciples, as soon as they had recovered from the shock caused by the suddenness of these marching orders, and in the first century much successful missionary work was done. But the time came when the ears of the church became deafened through them. This is a command for the entire church. As an organization the church is in duty bound to send missionaries to all the nations that have not heard the charming name of Jesus, and who know nothing of his gospel of emancipation from sin. In the last analysis this is the whole duty of the church. The mission of Jesus is for every man, and offers his gospel to all people. All the machinery, the education, the building up the members of the church in the truths of the gospel, have but one purpose: to teach them to live like Christ, the outstanding feature of whose life is his laying it down for the world. There is no other duty for the church. It is not missionary; it is not Christian; it does not make the salvation of the world its first concern; it is disloyal to Jesus. The duty of the church, to obey the command of its captain, is also the duty of every Christian whether belonging to any organization or not. The command "Go ye" is for every believer. Many cannot go in person but we can all send. Some can send many missionaries, many can send one, and all may aid in sending a missionary, clubbing with others of limited means in the support of one.

II. Go ye therefore. Jesus has just said to them, "All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." The work he gave them to do was stupendous, and their hearts might well have faltered when it was not for the promise that he would be with them. The almighty power of Jesus, co-operating with his missionaries, is the ground of their confidence, and the certainty of his success in the colonization of the world. In the colonization of the world, the kingdoms of the world shall be brought to the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ. The power of the Christ has been with all missionaries since the first, and where there have been accomplished; the work is still going on, is mightily increasing, and the power of Jesus is always present to save.

IV. Go ye therefore and teach. Christianity needs only to be known by the nations, to be accepted by them, and this means teaching. Jesus makes no demand which is not founded upon reason. But men of other religions will not change for Christianity, unless they are taught its absolute truth, and this is the work of the missionary. Heathen and non-Christian people must be taught history, Christianity, and the wonders it has accomplished. They must be instructed in the Christian doctrine, in its philosophy of life, its exalted morality, in the power of faith to make bad men good, and how Christ answers to the universal craving of the human heart. The "house of many mansions," which Jesus is preparing for his followers, must be made known to them. They must be taught the depravity of the heart, and the Holy Spirit shall bring conviction and they are able to trust Him for the salvation of their souls. The success of the missionary is in teaching; compelling the minds and hearts of the heathen to see the truth and blessedness of Christianity.

The time was past for discussing whether they ought to go, or whether the opportunity was ripe for going; all these considerations were cut short by the imperative starting word. This clear command has been ringing in the ears of the Christian church from that time until now. It was heeded by the disciples, as soon as they had recovered from the shock caused by the suddenness of these marching orders, and in the first century much successful missionary work was done. But the time came when the ears of the church became deafened through them. This is a command for the entire church. As an organization the church is in duty bound to send missionaries to all the nations that have not heard the charming name of Jesus, and who know nothing of his gospel of emancipation from sin. In the last analysis this is the whole duty of the church. The mission of Jesus is for every man, and offers his gospel to all people. All the machinery, the education, the building up the members of the church in the truths of the gospel, have but one purpose: to teach them to live like Christ, the outstanding feature of whose life is his laying it down for the world. There is no other duty for the church. It is not missionary; it is not Christian; it does not make the salvation of the world its first concern; it is disloyal to Jesus. The duty of the church, to obey the command of its captain, is also the duty of every Christian whether belonging to any organization or not. The command "Go ye" is for every believer. Many cannot go in person but we can all send. Some can send many missionaries, many can send one, and all may aid in sending a missionary, clubbing with others of limited means in the support of one.

II. Go ye therefore. Jesus has just said to them, "All power is given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." The work he gave them to do was stupendous, and their hearts might well have faltered when it was not for the promise that he would be with them. The almighty power of Jesus, co-operating with his missionaries, is the ground of their confidence, and the certainty of his success in the colonization of the world. In the colonization of the world, the kingdoms of the world shall be brought to the kingdom of our Lord and His Christ. The power of the Christ has been with all missionaries since the first, and where there have been accomplished; the work is still going on, is mightily increasing, and the power of Jesus is always present to save.

IV. Go ye therefore and teach. Christianity needs only to be known by the nations, to be accepted by them, and this means teaching. Jesus makes no demand which is not founded upon reason. But men of other religions will not change for Christianity, unless they are taught its absolute truth, and this is the work of the missionary. Heathen and non-Christian people must be taught history, Christianity, and the wonders it has accomplished. They must be instructed in the Christian doctrine, in its philosophy of life, its exalted morality, in the power of faith to make bad men good, and how Christ answers to the universal craving of the human heart. The "house of many mansions," which Jesus is preparing for his followers, must be made known to them. They must be taught the depravity of the heart, and the Holy Spirit shall bring conviction and they are able to trust Him for the salvation of their souls. The success of the missionary is in teaching; compelling the minds and hearts of the heathen to see the truth and blessedness of Christianity.

Mrs. Lizzie Olive Burgess

Human lives are in a current which flows closely toward it enters the ocean of eternity. Many lives are borne along and hardly ripple the surface as they are caught up by the depths of the ocean; a few in their passing stir the depths; some are worked by the gentle swelling of the river and ocean waters. Such a life passed out on Monday, April 24 when Mrs. Lizzie Olive Burgess surrendered to the call from the other side.

"Early, bright, transient, chaste, as the morning dew," she departed, and went to heaven.

A native of St. George, daughter of Capt. Jesse and Harriet (Young) Wilson she in early life came with her family to Thomaston; passed through the various grades of the common school and was graduated from the high school in the close of 1885.

April 27, 1887, she was married to Edward O'Brien Burgess of Thomaston, to whom she was a loving and faithful wife, and the maker of a happy home.

Whoever came to that home as friend or guest felt the warmth of sincere hospitality. In her home the aged father passed the closing years of his life, loved and cared for. It seemed to be the close of her life work, for from the time of her father's death Mrs. Burgess' health failed until some insidious disease terminated her life in little more than one year after her father's death.

In early life she united with the Thomaston Baptist church. Through the years of her connection with the church she served constantly and faithfully. For many years she was a helpful member of the church.

Mrs. Burgess possessed a social nature and ever delighted in meeting her friends. Pure and spotless in her character her influence was uplifting.

She was a member of Mayflower Temple Pythian Sisters by whom she had been honored with offices of trust.

Of the immediate relatives there remain a husband, a young daughter, and two brothers, Capt. Wilbur M. Wilson of Thomaston, and J. Herbert Wilson of Hyde Park, Mass.

There has passed from the world a woman loved and honored but fully ripe for God's own Heaven.

"O woman! lovely woman! nature made thee. To temper man, we had been brutish without thee. Angels are painted fair, to look like you; A smiling, bright, sunny, and true; Eternal joy and everlasting love!"

The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon, Rev. W. A. Newcombe officiating. Mayflower Temple, Pythian Sisters, and the Baptist Choral Society attended in a body.

There was a large attendance, many coming from Warren and Rockland. A profusion of beautiful floral offerings bore mute testimony of the love and esteem in which she was held by all who knew her.

MARTINSVILLE

Capt. Joseph Meservy

By the death of Capt. Joseph Meservy, Martinsville, looks an old and very much respected citizen. Had he lived until July he would have been eighty years old. "Uncle Joe" as he was familiarly called was loved by all. Always cheerful, having a kind word for everyone with whom he came in contact. In earlier life he followed the sea, but retired from that some years ago. He was a most loyal and consistent church member of the St. George Baptist church of which he was deacon for many years. The church was very dear to him and it has sustained a great loss in the passing away of this good man. We sincerely mourn his loss in the church and community and his memory will be honored by all. Funeral services were held at the church conducted by Rev. E. S. Packard assisted by Rev. H. L. Skillins.

CARR-ACHORN
Nelson C. Carr and Miss Carrie Evelyn Achorn, a popular young Rockland couple, were united in marriage by Rev. E. S. Ufford Wednesday evening at his parish residence adjoining Galilee Temple. Members of the two families were the only witnesses. The ceremony was planned for a very quiet affair, but demonstrative friends of the groom would not have it so. When the happy couple emerged from the parsonage they were somewhat surprised to find an automobile in waiting, its occupants armed to the teeth with musical instruments which were operated with no particular regard to class effect or harmony. The carriage containing the bride and groom managed to give the merry-makers the slip and after making a wide detour of the city, the couple arrived home via the Maine Central wharf car.

The groom has been manager the past year of Whitney's pool and billiard parlor, which he has conducted in a manner that has made many friends for him among the patrons. Incidentally he has developed into one of the best billiard "sharks" the city now boasts. The bride has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Haskell, and is a very attractive young woman. The couple will reside for the present at the groom's home on Hull street.

KALLOCH FURNITURE CO.

SUSPICIOUS OF MILKMEN

A Rockland Customer Who Wants to Know If There is a Trust, and If He is Getting His Money's Worth.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Will you kindly allow me space to ask a few questions which I think should be answered? I wish to address both the public and the milk dealers. My two main questions are: First: Have we a milk trust which is keeping milk at 8 cents per quart? Second: Are we getting full or short measure? I shall not charge the milk dealers with dishonesty, but it looks like a heads I win; tails you lose game for the consumer.

Grain can be bought at 55 cents a bushel retail, and of course much less at wholesale. Hay brings from $1.40 to $1.44 per ton. High-class milk cows can be bought from $35 to $80, and always could. Cheap cows can be had for $15 to $30, now as formerly. The price of cows is not the cause of 8-cent milk. Up-to-date milkmen always get the best cows possible and paid good prices for them. They are the kind that pay their owner the most money. I have known personally, milk dealers who lived on the fat of the land, added to their acres, built new buildings, kept fine driving horses and carriages; in fact made money on 6-cent milk under practically the same conditions as exist today, and with the wholesale price at 5 cents and 4 1/2 cents.

Is it a milk trust to squeeze the people? Mr. Milk dealer your customers are waiting a decent and business-like and sensible reply. If we are in the wrong put us right. We are willing to learn.

Now about short measures. Some of the dealers have their milk in glass quart bottles or jars. Sometimes the bottle is full, sometimes it lacks from one to two inches of being full. If we chance to want an extra quart the measure is filled within one-half inch or so of the top. Pour this in your quart milk jar and it fills it full. Again fill your glass milk bottle full and pour it in the milkman's quart measure and it will not fill it. Again, fill a milk measure quart full and try to get it in your quart bottle or jar and you will find you have about one-quarter of a cupful left after filling your bottle full. If a customer takes one quart of milk each day, even if the bottle is chock full, how many days does it take for him to pay for an 8-cent quart of milk that he never got? With the bottle filled within one or two inches of the top (which is the rule in most cases) the customer is bound to pay the dealer 8 cents every few days with nothing to show for it. Just get a regular milkman's quart measure and test it with your quart bottle which is left at your door, then do a little head work. Next meet your milkman at the door and tell him you want an extra quart. See how careful he is to stop the measuring process when the measure is within one-half inch or so from being full. Perhaps he will fill it right up if he chances to read this, and I hope so. If he does fill it, take your empty bottle and see if the full quart measure doesn't fill your bottle to more than one to two inches of the top. "Many a mickle makes a muckle" and a little shortage multiplied many times will amount into remarkable figures on the credit side of the ledger at the end of the year. Mr. Milk Dealer, if your quart bottle is standard measure and holds a full quart why does the standard measure you use hold a little more? If the measure you carry with you is a standard quart why don't you get a bottle that measures the same and then fill it full? Let us have fair, square standard measure filled full, and no more. All we ask is a full measure of milk at a fair price and we have got to be shown the why and wherefore of the matter before we will believe that 8 cents per quart is not an exorbitant price for milk under existing conditions. A Milk Customer.

Now is a good time to begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the medicine that cleanses the blood and clears the complexion.

NEWS OF THE GRANGES

Knox Pomona Grange held a special session in Camden April 21, and about 25 Patrons felt it was a day well spent, after listening to Prof. Comstock and B. Walker McKee. So well pleased were the Patrons with this session that the lecturer has been instructed to make plans for another in the near future.

Saturday evening, April 22 North Haven Grange celebrated its 2d anniversary, and a right good time it had, with about 25 guests from Pleasant River Grange and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Gardner of Rockland as special guests. During the lecturer's hour a most excellent program was presented, the address of welcome being given by the past lecturer, Mrs. Nellie Brown. At the close of the program a fine supper was served. In the center of the table prepared for the guests was a very handsome birthday cake illuminated with candles, the decorations being of candles placed in the form of hand embroidery. Mrs. Gardner lighted the candles, as she was the first to give this flourishing little Grange its first installation charge. When Mr. and Mrs. Gardner left for home Monday morning they took the cake and their friends are now enjoying a taste of the celebration. Notwithstanding this little Grange is separated from its brothers and sisters, it is not behind the times in its work, and if any Knox county Patrons want to see good work, excellent looking tables and receive the glad hand of greeting, visit North Haven Grange. It has its work all planned and everyone is hustling for the fair in the early autumn.

Ralph W. E. Thorndike, who has been in the employ of the American Express Co. at Augusta the past winter, is at his former home in this city for a few days before joining the steamship Camden as freight clerk. Mr. Thorndike's family now resides in Boston, and friends will regret to learn that several of its members have been troubled with ill health.

Of Yale graduates living and dead there is now a total of 26,313, according to the new quinquennial catalogue of the university. The catalogue is the successor of the old triennial. Of the total number of graduates, 15,965 are living and 10,348 are dead. In the list of living and dead the graduates of the academic department number 16,089; of the scientific school, 4,464, and of the law school, 2,066. According to the previous catalogue, published in 1904, the total number of graduates was 22,135, of whom 12,744 were living and 9,391 were dead. A comparison of the two catalogues shows that the living graduates of Yale are increasing at the rate of about 537 a year, while the list of dead increases at the rate of about 176 a year.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the sugar used in its preparation gives it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by Norcross Drug Stores and W. H. Kittredge, Druggists.

crumble and let the water in and cause slides. In the wet season I am afraid that unless the banks have more of a slope there will be a lot of trouble at this point.

There are a number of places where the bank is cracked high up on the side of the cut. They have steam shovels up on top trying to relieve the pressure by giving the banks more slope. This is a hard problem to solve. They have done wonders so far and I am confident that the engineers will find a remedy. All that I can do is to give a general outline in the short time that I had to inspect this gigantic work. It would require a month to go over it as it should be gone over in order to write an intelligent article discussing the many difficulties that have to be overcome. Then after you have gone over it and given a description as is today in another month it would have changed so and new difficulties would have to be overcome.

The bottom of the canal at this point for the entire length of the cut is to be 200 feet wide; at other points 300 feet; still at others 500 feet and at some 1,000 feet wide. The locks at Gatun, three in length and two sets parallel with each other. In this arrangement it is possible that two ships can be put through either flight of locks in the same time, or in opposite directions. The locks have three compartments, each 1,000 feet long and 110 feet wide. At this point a ship coming from the Atlantic ocean will be lifted up at three different lifts, as she passes out of one lock into the other, making in all 85 feet of a lift up into the lake. At this point this lake is artificial, containing 164 square miles with a depth of 47 feet in the channel. This lake is made by throwing a dam across the valley at Gatun 2,000 yards between two high hills, at that point damming the water back for 27 miles.

At the Pacific end of the canal the vessel drops down to the level of the Pacific by being locked through the one lock at "Pedro Miguel" and at Melaflores through two locks; each of these three locks has a duplicate alongside the same as at Gatun, permitting simultaneous passage of another vessel in an opposite direction. In case of repair being necessary to one set of locks the parallel set would maintain the traffic. The lift on the lower locks at the ends of the canal will be different at times owing to the height of the tide. At the Gatun lock the tide is not over 26 inches, while at the Pacific end of the canal the average tide is about 12 feet and at times nearly double that so that the lift at this lock varies, as the tides flow up on both the Atlantic and the Pacific sides up to the lower locks.

The amount of concrete used in the locks I am told would build a sidewalk from Colon to New York three feet wide and six inches thick, then have enough left to build two large buildings. The dam is 2000 feet wide at the base and consisting of two embankments of rock and clay with a core puddled in between the sluice way.

The engineer has ordered that the gates be in and ready to raise the water 10 to 12 feet in the dam by the first of next January. In order to get deep water at each end of the canal there will have to be about 4 1/2 miles of digging at each end to carry it out far enough to get the desired depth of water.

Most people suppose that the canal runs east and west. Such is not the case. The course is almost north and south. I would like to stop a month in the canal zone and watch the progress of the work, there is so much to see and be learned. Now is the best time to see the canal as it nears completion. It is being shaped up and the work can be seen now and after the water is in the canal there will not be so much to see. I think that people begin to realize that fact and are flocking there by the hundreds. The week before I visited the canal 400 tourists came in on one ship from New York to see the canal. It is a pleasure not only to see the canal but to meet the officials in charge and talk with them. They are a fine lot of men, polite and obliging, willing to give you all the information on any point that you may inquire about. They are all workers and things are on a hustle all the time. You do not require an introduction to talk to any of them. I want to go back again if I am alive when the canal is opened.

There is no mistake but what we are doing a big thing here if nothing more than the cleaning up of one of the worst pest holes of fever and malaria and changing it into one of the healthiest spots in all the tropical climate. At one time it was the breeding ground for yellow fever. There has not been a case reported on the canal zone for six years. At the time the Panama Railroad was built it was reported that for every tie on the road a man lost his life and hundreds more left with a long lingering disease called the chagras fever. Today the death rate is low and all seem to be happy and contented.

There is 85 per cent of the excavation of the canal completed. The most work is to be done on the dam, locks and approaches to the canal and moving houses and changing railroads and taking down houses and moving them, for whole towns and miles of railroad track will have to be moved. In the Culebra cut there is at least 12 lines of railroad tracks and as many more short tracks for steam shovels and drilling machines. To enumerate the buildings, such as concrete mixers, air compressors, derricks, hoisting engines, etc., would take a long time. We left Colon for Jamaica on the morning of the 5th.

"Lenox - of course."

That is what most women say when the grocer asks them what kind of laundry soap they want.

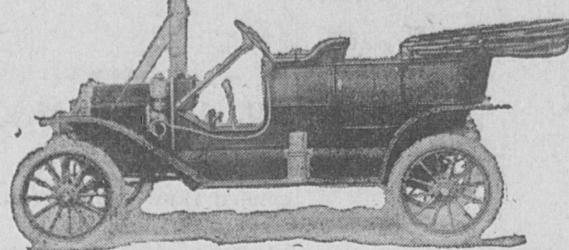

It isn't surprising.
