Senior Department Entertained by Miss Lucille French.

One of the most delightful evenings was that spent at the home of Miss Lucille French on Wednesday of last week when she entertained in honor of the Senior department of the Union Sunday school. The hostess who always plans something unique for her entertainments invited several to play on a musical instrument upon which they had never before played, giving them an opportunity to practice from the time they received the invitation until that evening. No one hearing the music would have suspected that they were not professionals (?) Especially noticeable was the proficiency (?) of Miss Georgine Wilbur on the violin. She informed the company that the former violinist had played the selection she had intended and that she would be obliged to play one of her own composition entitled "Voices of Spring." After a hearty encore Miss Wilbur favored them with an original poem also.

The other highly accomplished musicians were Mrs. L. J. Holt, violin; L. J. Holt, zither; H. Riddle, baritone horn; Miss Fannie Harlow, cornet; Mrs. J. W. Carleton, fife; Miss Sarah Toothaker, accordion; Miss Miriam Brackett, ocarina; DeBerna Ross, harmonica; Miss Elizabeth Ott, comb.

The following musical program was much enjoyed: Song and chorus by the young ladies in Mrs. Mary Field's class; song, Algie Pratt; banjo duet, Shirley Holt and Helen Holman; duet, Mrs. L. J. Holt, Miss Birdena Plaisted; song, Miss Fannie Harlow; piano solo, Miss Helen Hilton. Most delicious homemade candies were served.

MAINE PEOPLE IN KANSAS

PROSPERING AND MANY PLANNING TRIPS TO FORMER HOMES.

Wheat Crop Promises to Be Large and Gardens Are Well Advanced—Wonderful Increase in Land Values Due to Fertility of Soil.

ARKANSAS CITY, KAN., May 10, 1908.

To the Editor of MAINE WOODSMAN:

About our Maine people and Kansas, our Maine people are all well and prospering. H. P. Farrar, a former Phillips boy, has just bought a $3000 automobile, the finest I have ever seen. It seats six people, shines all over, and registers the number of miles as it goes.

A. D. Prescott is now in Western Kansas looking after the many farms owned by the Hill Investment Co., composed of Prescott & Farrar, Arkansas City, Kan. Mr. and Mrs. Prescott anticipate taking a trip to Maine some time in June for an extended visit. Mrs. Bert Worthley and Mrs. M. E. Lord from East Wilton are also hoping to visit old friends in Maine for a time. There may be many others not known to us. Our Maine people are well fixed financially and think but little of taking trips to Maine or California, being half way between the two states. We would go to Maine only for the lack of someone to leave in care of the home; besides, there will be two national conventions so near us, we are hoping some old friends will call on us and many other Maine people here.

April and so far in May has been uncommonly wet and cold for this climate. Some parts of Kansas have suffered considerably by frosts and much fruit has been killed, though in the south and southwestern portion of the state the damage has been quite small only along the creeks and bottom lands, but nothing to hurt the wheat which has made a vigorous growth and now promises a big crop unless some unknown scourge strikes it. Corn so far is making a poor showing on account of so much rain, which has made planting on wet ground impossible and on the planted ground the cool weather makes it look pale and weak. Early planted corn usually does the best here. Gardens are looking fine. Home grown peas and potatoes will be on the board in a few weeks, though our markets here are supplied with almost all kinds of garden truck from Texas and California nearly all the year round at little higher prices.

It is surprising how land has gone up in price in the southwest. I met an old neighbor on the street yesterday, who was our near neighbor in the Strip. He secured a good claim and improved it the best he could with the small means he then had, but after several years of good crops he sold out to an Illinois man for $9000. He took the money with him from within four miles of the north line of Oklahoma to within a few miles of its southern line near the Red river where he bought two farms of the same size, for which he paid the $9000 about six years ago. Now he says the two farms will sell for $20,000 and are better land than the farm he sold.

Now all this money has been accumulated in the last 15 years in an honest way. I believe all the land in Kansas and Oklahoma would be appraised on an average of from $40 to $50 an acre, though there are some sections where the land is poor and worth very much less but on which are generally found oil, coal or other minerals such as cement mines and shale, which is used in making brick of different kinds. Cement is so abundant and cheap that it is being used in building big bridges instead of rock or lumber and will last for many years. Several such bridges are now being built in this county over the Arkansas river. No doubt it would be hard for people in New England to understand how land could be so valuable as it is here, but when it is known that it can raise such big crops for so many years without being fertilized and that one man with three or four good horses can handle a hundred acres easily and raise such big crops it is plain to see the incomes.

Alfalfa is the coming crop here and is much more profitable than wheat, corn or oats. It is being planted on large tracts of land and yields from three to four crops each year and is acknowledged to contain more nutriment according to the expense of production than any other crop, all the expense being to cut and market the hay. A. A. Newman has just installed a mill here to grind the hay into meal. The mill is operated by water power below the big flour mill. In that way alfalfa makes grand feed for hogs; pigs and young hogs grow and do fine with nothing else but that and water in the pasture. The net profit is estimated to be $30 a year for each acre of good alfalfa. It is fine feed for all kinds of stock, especially cows. It sells for $10 a ton while prairie hay sells for $6 a ton. The above goes to show why land is so high in this country. More anon.

What Stove for Summer?

Nothing adds to kitchen convenience in summer weather like a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. Anything that any stove can do the "New Perfection" will do, and do it better. Bakes, roasts, boils, toasts; heats the wash water and the sad irons, and does it without dissipating its heat through the room to your discomfort. The

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The subject of the sermon preached at the Union church Sunday morning by Rev. Mr. Hutchins was "Appreciation," the text Phil. iv, 8. "Finally, brethren whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise think on these things."

In the stream of life there are two currents whose power we may feel. In rivers we sometimes find the two currents practically separate one from the other, flowing perhaps, one in the center of the stream and one on this side or that, each keeping its waters apart from those of the other. In the stream of life it is not so. The different currents are intermingled often eddying about one another, so that the closest and constant attention is necessary in order to follow the chosen one. There are three courses from which to choose.

We may get into the current of evil, looking for and expecting to find it everywhere. We may watch our acquaintances and all of whose acts we can have knowledge to note their mistakes and their sins; we may go along carelessly, drifting, giving little attention; having no interest in those around us; or if we choose the third cause, we may seek for and find the good. There is surely some good in every life, and if we learn to know it wherever seen, if we learn to discern good wherever it is found that is appreciation of the good, and we shall find ourselves more and more able to recognize and enjoy the good.

There are many desirable results of the appreciation of the good. First, there is increased enjoyment to ourselves. I remember that when as a boy I had reached the age when all desirable possessions seemed to be included in one word, jackknives, there was a swamp to which I sometimes went, but which I had not found to contain anything of interest. One night I dreamed that I had seen the bottom of the swamp and it was covered with jackknives. After that I found many things to interest and amuse around the swamp.

The thought of it has always brought the lesson that searching for good we may find much which had been unknown, and that lives that looked dark and forbidding, when better known might yield joy and gladness.

Appreciation also adds to the enjoyment of others, through the increased agreeableness of the one who shows the appreciation. It is much pleasanter to listen to the speaking of a person who sees the good and tells of that, than to a speech that continually calls attention to the evil. It leads the listeners' thoughts in happier channels, and surely renders the speaker more agreeable. Going into a machine shop we may see the floor covered with dust and dirt with which is mingled filings from the steel which has been worked. We can not separate the steel from the coal dust that is about; we, in fact, can not see it. But pass a magnet along near the floor, and it will draw the particles of steel away from the dirt with which they were mingled. So appreciative mention of that which is good brings to it notice it might not otherwise receive; appreciation brings the good to view, and helps to uplift those who feel its influence.

Appreciation tends to courtesy, for we can not lightly esteem others when we have learned to know their worth. It is also a mark of culture. To see the good and the beautiful in art, in music, in literature, is culture.

This faculty of appreciation which increases for us enjoyment, agreeableness to others, courtesy, and culture, is capable of cultivation. Its growth is fostered by rightly directed study along various lines; by study of nature Longfellow wrote of Agassiz

"And Nature, the old nurse took
The child upon her knee,
Saying, 'Here is a story-book
Thy father has written for thee.'

"Come, wander with me," she said
"Into regions yet untrod
And read what is still unread
In the manuscripts of God,"

And reading from that story book, Agassiz learned to see more and more of God's wonderful work and marvelous goodness and wisdom, learned to bring the story to others.

Think of the great works of mankind; and man's inventions also we will remember as gifts of God, for did he not give the powers of mind that enable man to grasp the truths of his laws and apply them in ways that add to the comfort and welfare of mankind?

All those who serve us in any way, the doctor, the grocer, the merchant, the farmer, bring to us something that merits an appreciation we should not withhold. Art, music, books will give the honest student appreciation for what the world through its great minds give to him. Books are the life blood of a master spirit it is said. This is true not alone of books written by men of former generations, but of some of the present time. Read books like "Aunt Jane of Kentucky" and receive a new love of nature, a new insight into character.

Study the lives of noblemen and women. Who can tell how much of the greatness of the spirit that was in Abraham Lincoln was due to the love which he, as a boy, felt for the portrait of George Washington which he delighted to gaze upon?

"The coldest gazer's heart grew warm,
And felt no more its indecision,
While every soul which saw that form
Grew larger to contain the vision."

Those around us, living in our day, by their lives, their thoughts, their opinions, are often inspirations of good to us.

From old things and from new we may learn. Take some of the old forms of architecture. One of the oldest forms of Greek architecture was the Doric characterized by great simplicity. Along the shaft of the pillars were lines apparently exactly parallel to each other. For a long time it was thought that they were indeed parallel, so that if projected into space they would, whatever the distance, preserve the same relative position. Later it was found that at the top of the column the lines were a very little nearer one another than at the base, and that if continued a certain distance they would meet.

It seems sometimes that the work of certain teachers could never touch any common ground so different are they. Think of Aristotle and Plato, of Paul

The drive of pulpwood down the Carabasset stream is progressing rapidly and is not meeting with the difficulties that were expected. The wood is spruce and is cut into four-foot lengths. It is the property of the Great Northern Paper Co., and was cut about five miles above Bigelow, where the drive started. At the beginning some 80 men were employed on the drive, but this number has now been reduced to 30 drivers and the short logs are kept moving right along. It was thought that the logs would jam and lodge badly but this has not taken place to any great extent and although the Carabasset stream has not been driven for many years now it is likely that it will be quite often in the coming seasons. The rear of the drive is now well below this place and from here on the water and the nature of the stream are comparatively good for the work in hand.

Arbor day was observed by the public schools and by the Sons of Daniel Boone club in an appropriate manner.

Leon Thomas, conductor on the F. & M. passenger train, was at Tuft's pond the first of the week and caught eight handsome trout.

John F. Sullivan and family are to spend the summer months at Echo cottage, Tuft's pond, and have already begun their outing there. This pond is one of the prettiest in Maine and each year is becoming more popular.

The assessors of the town of Wilton have finished taking the inventory and have got the valuation upon their books and committed the taxes to Herman Sanborn, collector, making such commitment May 2. The valuation of the town shows a healthy increase in value over last year and while not large it tends to show that Wilton is one of the coming towns of Franklin county and also of the state. The valuation of Wilton for the year 1908 is $967,680, showing an increase over last year of $29,140. The livestock shows a falling off of $2,900, but the value of personal property on the whole shows a gain of $8,520. Upon the polls and estates there has been assessed the sum of $17,832.72 at the rate of $16.50 on a $1,000. This is also less than last year by $1.50. The poultry statistics show the whole number to be 4,891; estimated value of poultry produces $2,623; estimated value of eggs produced $3,050; total value, $5,673. The fall quota of dogs was found to be 149.

Of Wonderful Value, and Free.

Tired bodies, pale and sunken cheeks, haggard eyes, sleepless nights and weak nerves, are ruining our lives and killing our people. No wonder these poor sufferers bless Dr. Greene for his great free offer. He is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and the discoverer of that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. He has established a system of letter correspondence at his office, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., by which all can write him about their complaints, and by mentioning the symptoms they suffer from and telling him how they feel, they will receive an answer from him, free of charge, giving a complete description of their case and telling just what ails them. He gives most careful attention to every letter, tells just what to do to be cured perfectly and permanently, and makes all understand exactly what their complaint is. And all this costs nothing. No journey to the city, no doctor's fee, the best medical advice and consultation in the world, and nothing to pay. The Doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and it is successful. Write him at once, reader, and you will almost certainly be made strong and well.

Obituary.

Daniel Carey Leavitt.

The death of Daniel Carey Leavitt, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen of this village, took place at his late residence Wednesday, May 13. He had been in feeble health for many years and practically an invalid for a year.

Mr. Leavitt was born in this town 75 years ago and when a young man lived with his father on their farm, five miles from the village. In what old-timers will recall as the Billington district. He grew up tall and strong until he was 16 years of age, when by a sad and painful accident he cut his knee, causing a long confinement to his room, a stiff, bent knee joint and the lameness with which he was ever after afflicted. While convalescing he pursued his studies, and on recovery immediately began teaching. To the poor advantages of the district school were added an occasional term at the village High school and notwithstanding the difficulties of hasty and imperfect preparation he attained success and was prominent for some time as a teacher of the public schools in the towns of Phillips, Weld and Madrid; and in some crowded schoolroom the big bad boy hesitated when those flashing black eyes turned on him, the little children and any weak or unfortunate knew from the first day that they had found a friend.

He was energetic and industrious and during vacations continued farming or worked at shoemaking. During the War of the Rebellion he bought and sold cattle and sheep, making some money.

In 1863 he married Olive A. Brackett and the Christian spirit that pervaded their home, manifest in gentle deeds of kindness and helpfulness to many in affliction, were known best to those who were benefited.

Mr. Leavitt was a staunch Republican; a member of the Free Baptist church. He served for a long time on the school board. He was also one of the selectmen of the town, being elected to that office for successive years and at intervals, probably as many times as any other man of his day. His keen executive ability, honesty and economy commended him to his fellow townsmen. He also represented the town in the legislature of 1883.

While still a young man Mr. Leavitt suffered a serious illness, from which he never fully recovered, although he was active in business until past 70 years of age. A stomach trouble, probably of a cancerous nature, caused his suffering. At the last he was only in bed a few days, a hemorrhage of the brain hastening the end.

He leaves one sister, Mrs. Lizzie Merrill, who has resided with him for several years. The nieces and nephews who survive him are Mrs. Cora Trask, Miss Clara Leavitt of Lewiston, Mrs. Mary and Will Leavitt of Portland, Carry Leavitt, Mrs. Nettie Gove of North Wayne, children of his brother, the late Seth Leavitt; Jennie, Frank, Ernest and Norman Houghton of Ontario, Mrs. Stella Green and Miss Ethel Houghton of Malden, Mass., children of the late Angie Leavitt Houghton. A grandniece, Mrs. R. J. Williams of Augusta, was summoned to care for him the day before his death.

A characteristic kindness of Mr. Leavitt was that when a young man he took home Charles W. Miner, an orphan cousin, four years of age, and brought him up. His compensation came in his old age when this love and devotion was returned to him by Mr. Miner. The funeral services were held Friday, May 15, at 2 p. m.

Among the Churches.

and James, of Caloin and Arminius, of Mark Hopkins and Dr. McCosh. At variance they seem yet there are truths in the teachings of each, that will touch the truth taught by the other, and altogether the truth is our force for onward movement. God can see all around any idea. He sees the truth and the good, where, perhaps we see neither in the side at which we look. We have no right to think evil of any honest opinion. If it be honest some truth of God is in it, and we know not what it may foreshadow.

Be appreciative of opportunity, neglect not one because of its seeming littleness. The lives that may be touched by the influence may make it sublime in its magnitude.

We may cultivate appreciation by observation. The kindergarten teacher will send the children to look in some window coming back to tell what is there displayed, and by practice the child will learn to see more and more. If we practice looking for those things worthy of appreciation we shall gain the habit of seeing them. Have open minds, ready to recognize worth wherever seen.

Cultivate appreciation by speaking of the good which you see. By words, but not by words alone, let it be seen that you appreciate the good around you.

Pardon a personal allusion. You may have met the same difficulty. I have often said that I would not let myself be led into gossip upon some subject, and have found that my resolution was broken. I have come to this conclusion that virtue is not negative. If I would abstain from speech that is undesirable. I do well to speak of the good that does exist. Make heroes of others, and become heroes yourselves.

The sermon is ended and no word has been said of appreciation of religious things. Is it necessary? If we are looking for good shall we not look to Him who is the source and giver of good? If we look for good in the lives that have been lived, shall we not look upon the perfect life and there learn trust, obedience and righteousness? We shall learn also to love and appreciate that life, what it has done and what it teaches.

Phillips and Vicinity.

Former Judge James C. Tarbox, prominent politician and an attorney of Monticello, Minn., died suddenly last night after a stroke of apoplexy which seized him about 6.30 o'clock while he was waiting for a train at the Union depot in Minneapolis. Medical aid was summoned when the attack came upon him, but before Judge Tarbox could be removed to the hospital in the police ambulance, he died. Coroner J. M. Kistler notified relatives at Monticello. Mr. Tarbox was for many years closely associated with Minnesota judicial work. At the time of the formation of the Eighteenth judicial district, he was appointed judge, which position he held several years. His legal work has been prominent around the circuits of the state and it was professional business at the terminal court in Elk River that brought him away from his home. Mr. Tarbox was a native of Maine, having been born in that state, April 10, 1857. He graduated from Bowdoin college in 1879, coming to Monticello two years later, where he had since been actively engaged in the practice of his profession. For a number of years Mr. Tarbox had been affected with heart disease. For several days he had been complaining. He was afflicted with the I. O. O. F., being a member of the Garfield lodge, No. 145, of Monticello. He leaves a wife and three children.—Minneapolis Tribune. #### Freeman Centre.

A not common but very pleasant event occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Blackwell Saturday May 16. At about 10 o'clock their eldest daughter Addie and Roscoe D. Vineing of Weld were united in marriage by Rev. L. Arthur White, Miss Elsie Blackwell, sister of the bride, acting as bridesmaid and Clinton E. Vining, brother of the groom acting as best man.

In the evening about 50 of the friends and neighbors gathered at the home to help celebrate the 25th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Blackwell's marriage.

A short program was carried out. Mrs. Chancell Weymouth read a very appropriate piece for the occasion entitled "Silver Greeting", also a piece giving a description of one of Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell's trips on the train which she made out was unpleasant.

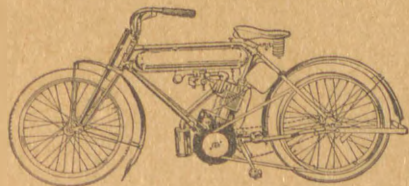

Edgar Wills made a few remarks on marriage as spoken of in the Bible and also of blessings which are given to us and closing with a few verses very fitting for the night entitled "Count Your Blessings."

Miss Tressie Carroll read a fine piece on matrimony and we hope that all present will try to pattern from it. She also read a history of Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell's life which seemed to be very amusing.

The program was interspersed with music by Mr. Hervey Welch's graphophone and singing of old familiar songs with Miss Tressie Carroll at the organ and Mr. Frank Brackley, violin.

Apples, candy, ice cream and cake were served, then Mr. Blackwell made a few remarks and introduced his new son and wife. Mr. Vining in a few well chosen words greeted those present and thanked them for the many and beautiful presents.

The pleasant evening will long be remembered by all those present.

tween Oakes and the latter. Consequently Arthur Oakes, the son of Simon, was induced to indorse the note by Furbish, as an accommodation, as the latter wished to place it in the bank and realize the cash on it. Jacobs testified that soon after his purchase, he learned that Oakes had deceived him and that he had no title on the land, as the Haynes suit had resulted in the title being settled on Haynes and he was ordered to quit the premises by the agent of Haynes and did so; that he then went to Furbish and paid him $100 for the personal property he had received in the trade and told him he "would see him further in hell than a pigeon could fly in three weeks" before he would pay anything more on the note; that Furbish never asked him to pay the note, but in June 1904, he sold and transferred it to the present plaintiff, who had brought this action to recover the balance of it and interest.

Jacobs's defense was that Oakes had made false and fraudulent representation to him and that he had received no consideration for the balance of the note. Oakes's defence was that his endorsement after the note was made was without any consideration whatever, which was done merely as an accommodation to Furbish. Judge Morrison appeared very desirous to secure the testimony of Furbish but had been unsuccessful in getting him to come to court. All the evidence he had was the bare note; while both depts and the wife of Jacobs were witnesses on the other side. When the testimony was in the Court directed the jury to return a verdict for the depts.

There being no other cases ready for trial, the court adjourned till Thursday morning.

Phillips and Vicinity.

There will be another dancing assembly at the Phillips pavilion Friday evening, May 29. Music by Dyer's orchestra.

On Wednesday evening of last week Miss Lucille French very happily entertained the Senior department, together with the officers and teachers of the Union Sunday school at a musicale given at her home. A novel feature of the program was the introduction of instrumental numbers given by persons, who, previous to their invitation to play on that evening, had never performed upon the instruments chosen for that occasion. The names of the performers included both those known and those unknown to musical fame, and the instruments ranged from combs to violins. Some of the selections were unrecognizable, while others passed unnamed and one was improvised. The effect of all was indescribably mirth provoking. Other music was heard during the evening, and was followed by games and refreshments of delicious home made candies, all contributing to a most delightful evening.

Mr. Warren Hinds has bought the Chester Allen farm on the Mile Square. He will move his family there at once. The regular meeting of Phelan Lodge, No. 30, D. of H., will be held Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

Phillips and Vicinity.

Mr. S. A. McCrackin of Brewer left last week for El Paso, Texas, where he went for his health. He has been afflicted with a bad throat trouble for some time, which has grown worse instead of better and by the advice of his physician has gone west, thinking the change of climate may benefit him. Mr. McCrackin is a nephew of Mr. J. L. Matthews of Lincoln and his wife is a sister of Mrs. A. B. Grover of this town.

There are many Maine people in Newton, Mass., prominent among whom are the famous automobile inventors and manufacturers, the Stanleys. The Stanleys are active friends of technical education. They can devise chemical formula of much moment in photographic and other arts. They can build anything from an airship to an automobile and from a steam truck to a violin. We hear for example, that F. E. Stanley has just built, of old colonial lumber, two violins of great beauty of line and tone, covered with varnish such as we dream the old masters used. Newton has just established a technical High school to be larger than the existing High school and to cost $350,000, and Stanleys have given 16 acres of valuable land to be used as an athletic field in connection with the school.—Portland Advertiser.
