BIG FOREST FIRE.

RAGED AT BIGELOW TILL THE RAIN CAME.

Threatened Vast District—Jotham Shaw's House and Buildings Set on Fire By Tramp In Byron and Totally Destroyed.

The unusually dry weather preceding the rainfall early this week made the conditions for forest fires serious, and Sunday a serious fire broke out on the timberland owned by the Great Northern Paper company two miles above Bigelow station, which was the worst in that section in many years and was fought by hundreds of men.

The timely rainfall of Tuesday put an end to the fire, but not until it had burned over about 2,000 acres of cut over land, doing about a thousand dollars worth of damage.

In the fire there were destroyed also several hundred cords of pulp wood ready for market. Two lumber camps were also destroyed. The paper company sent a crew of 40 men and Fire Warden Frank Savage had 75 more who took turns in fighting the flames. The smoke could be seen for miles and the blaze at one time threatened to spread over a vast territory of valuable timber lands.

One report received here today is that the damage caused amounts to $4,000 and was much more serious than at first reported.

Another serious fire is reported from Byron, Oxford county, in which the dwelling house and buildings of Jotham Shaw were destroyed. The fire is thought to have been the dastardly work of a tramp who called at the Shaw home shortly before the fire was seen and was refused admittance by Miss Etta Shaw, in the absence of her father from home.

Following is the account of the Shaw fire received from its correspondent at Byron by the MAINE WOODSMAN:

Mr. Jotham Shaw's buildings were burned Monday morning. Mr. Shaw was away at the time at his brother's about a mile from his home. His daughter, Etta was the only one present when the fire started, and the barn was in flames before she knew it.

John and Jotham Shaw and some of the neighbors were soon on the spot and succeeded in getting about one-half of the furniture out before it was burned. Several tons of hay were burned in the barn and a pig was the only live creature lost.

It is thought the fire was set by a tramp, as one came to the door a short time before the fire was discovered and was refused admittance by Miss Shaw. When last seen he was going in the direction of Weld. Mr. Shaw was insured in the Grange.

WATERVILLE MOTOR CO.

Enterprise of Messrs. Hennings and Belyea of Phillips.

The following description of the Waterville Motor Company's establishment from a motor paper will interest Phillips people as it is the enterprise of John J. Hennings, formerly in business here, and Mr. L. L. Belyea, formerly with the MAINE WOODS and WOODSMAN. The article follows:

One of the most pleasing things that a wayfaring motorist can find on entering his night stopping place is an attractive garage from which he may drive away satisfied on the following morning. Waterville, Maine, has, for a city of 10,000 inhabitants, one of the best equipped, well managed motor hostleries in the country in the garage and repair depot of the Waterville Motor Company.

This concern, which was organized two years ago by J. J. Hennings and L. L. Belyea, is agent for the Reo car and does a motor livery business, beside providing the best sort of facilities for repairs to cars and tires. It is to be found on Main street, near the Elmwood and not far from the railroad station, and is open day and night during the touring season.

On entering the garage, which provides 3,000 square feet of floor space, one is confronted by a roomy area for the housing of cars. At the rear of this is a wash room with modern equipment, and close by the tire room, where the facilities of repair, including vulcanizing apparatus, are excellent. On the left is the department of car repairing, which is sufficiently well equipped to do all kinds of work. A thoroughly competent man is always in charge.

On the right, as one enters, there is a stock room where supplies in abundance may be obtained, or Prest O Lite tanks may be exchanged. Next to this is a waiting room for women, where magazines and daily papers are kept on file and the long-distance telephone is available. Immediately back of the waiting room is the main office and beyond it the private office, both of which open upon the main garage room.

BEEDÉ-BEAN.

Marriage of Very Popular Phillips Young Couple.

A simple but pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bean Saturday, June 13 at 8 o'clock, p. m., when their only daughter, Annie Carson, was united in marriage to Mr. Everett Rufus Beede, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Beede.

Rev. M. S. Hutchins officiated using the double ring service. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present.

The bride was most prettily gowned in a white persian lawn cut Princess, with lace trimmings.

After congratulations were extended refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The house next to the bride's parents and owned by her grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Mosher, has been rented by Mr. Beede for the summer, and they immediately went to their new home where everything was in readiness for housekeeping. They were the recipients of many useful and pretty gifts.

The bride has been a compositress in this office for over a year, and both Mr. and Mrs. Beede are popular among their associates. The WOODSMAN with many friends join in wishing them much happiness and prosperity.

BAND CONCERTS.

Phillips Band Gives First of Series This Evening.

The Phillips Band will give the first of a series of five concerts from the village band stand this evening beginning at 8-15 o'clock when the following program will be rendered:

Debut March L. T. Laurendan
Red Lips Waltz
Viva March
The Hit March
Paradox
Caramba March
Romola March Edward Hazel
The Drummer's Pride G. F. Daniels.

The Phillips band should receive the hearty support and encouragement of the public and they hope to be able through a series of engagements and entertainments, aided by an appropriation for summer band concerts next year by the town, to get enough funds to purchase suits for the band.

The band has been newly re-organized and the members are enthusiastic in the work. The officers are: Dr. L. J. Holt, president; John E. Russell, vice-president; Herman Beal, secretary and treasurer; Frank Worthley, leader, who with Howard Leavitt constitute the directors.

There are fourteen members and half a dozen others ready to join. The boys have, unaided, purchased several new instruments and stood individual expense for fatigue suits.

They made a good appearance Memorial Day and hope to have other local engagements other than July 4th when they play at the Park.

The band hopes to receive a small appropriation from the town at the next town meeting for a series of summer concerts and they will give this summer's series free. The band boys should be encouraged. There is plenty of musical talent here and no need to send out of town for a band when occasion requires.

FOR TAFT.

War Secretary Will Receive Presidential Nomination.

The great National Republican convention, assembled today at Chicago, will nominate Taft for president, in all probability, as the "allies" have practically given up hope of stampeding the convention for Roosevelt. The nomination of Taft will probably be made Friday or Saturday.

Maine is on deck there with the following delegation:

GONE TO BOSTON.

Hon. H. H. Rice and Family Remove From Farmington.

The people of Franklin county will regret to learn that Senator H. H. Rice and family of Farmington are to remove to Massachusetts where Mr. Rice has become financially interested in the big Atkinson furniture business in Boston.

Mr. Rice will go the last of July. The business will be bought by a corporation, which is to be organized at once and made up of Farmington men. This resolve on Mr. Rice's part is keenly felt by a large circle of business, social and political friends. It was wholly unlooked for, as it was believed Mr. Rice's recent retirement from business was wholly due to ill health. He left Wednesday with his family for Salem, where he will remain for the greater part of the time till he goes to Boston.

JUNE FROST.

Disastrous Fall In Temperature to Franklin County.

The unusual drop from 90 in the shade on Saturday to 32 on Wednesday and Thursday mornings in Franklin county, is one of the freaks of the presidential year to be remembered.

In the Rangeley and Dead River regions there was a heavy frost on Wednesday morning which is said to have done great damage to early crops.

Frost is reported all over Franklin county Thursday morning. The damage to early growths is large and reports say that such a disaster, following an unusually early summer, is something to be remembered with regret by the farmers.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "burps" or "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The platform of the Union church had been prettily decorated for the coming of Children's Day. The color scheme was white and gold with green. The choir rail was banked with ferns from which looked forth bouquets of yellow centered daisies, and wound in and out among the greenery were bands of yellow and of white crepe paper the effect of all being exceedingly pretty.

The morning service was for the children, and very happy looked the bright-eyed little people. Their songs and recitations were interspersed among the other parts of the morning and Sunday school exercises. Following the singing of Coronation and the invocation were recitations by Sarah McKenzie and Hortense Butler. After singing by the choir, "The Children May Come if They Will," and reading of scripture by the pastor the program continued as follows:

Exercise, Richard Field, Mary Haines.
Nina Haines, Roy Grover.
Recitation, Rosie Parker.
Hymn, Holy, Holy, Holy.
Prayer, Rev. Mr. Hutchins.
Response, Berilla McKenzie.
Recitation, Richard Wing.
Announcements and Offering.
Anthem, Around the Throne of God on High.
Sermon, Rev. Mr. Hutchins.
Hymn, I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old Benediction.

The sermon was brief and addressed to the children. Its subject was Happiness. Mr. Hutchins told his small listeners that God meant them to be happy, that he was a God of happiness, always planning for the happiness of the people upon the earth, giving beautiful things to make us happy. God loves to see the smiling cheerful face.

But there are two ways of being happy two ideas about what will make us truly happy. One way is right and one is wrong. Here, to illustrate the truth he was wishing to impress, the speaker put on an overcoat, and as the children looked gleefully at him he asked what was the matter with it, for it did not seem to be right. A small boy answered that it was wrong side out. The coat was taken off and inspected but no fault was to be found with it. Clearly the trouble came from the way in which it was worn. So, too, we sometimes turn happiness wrong side out. We want all the good things turned toward ourselves, and we do not ask about other people; if they will be helped or cheered, by the happiness we are trying to get for ourselves. That is the selfish way. We are looking at the wrong side of happiness. But there is a right side, and when we look on that we ask about other people, how can they be made more glad, how can the days be made pleasant for them? If we are on the wrong side we shall be selfish and unkind, we shall try to do just something to please ourselves. We shall not be willing to play or to work just because some one else would like to have us do so. "I don't want to," will be our way of settling things.

But do you know that God who can do wonderful things can not be happy unless he is doing something to bring gladness and joy to someone? Because he wants us to be glad he is always sending things for us to enjoy, the pretty flowers, the sweet songs of the birds, things for our food and for our comfort.

You will find children that the happiness that comes from getting what you want can not be depended upon. Even when you seem to get it you will not always be pleasant and sweet. But when you are trying to make someone else glad, you will find that you are on the right side of your own happiness.

All were invited to remain for the Sunday school hour, and many of the congregation accepted the invitation. A little time was devoted to a song service. Then came a short program: Reading, "Children"; Longfellow, Lucille French Song, Florence Hinkley; Recitation, Muriel Berry; Song, Mildred Smith; Recitation, Fern Worthley; with chorus by the children.

Miss Landers, the superintendent of the Cradle Roll read from slips of paper drawn from a tiny cradle in the hands of Hortense Butler the names of fourteen children who had been added to the Cradle Roll during the past year, and flowers were brought in memory of those who had died. The Cradle Roll now numbers 47 members.

Certificates were given to twelve who have reached the age where they are considered members of the primary department of the Sunday school. The session closed with the reading of a poem by Mrs. Wilbur, and the benediction.

In the evening after a service of song the pastor told the story of Saint Christopher. It is a Catholic legend coming down to us from so long ago, that now we may not tell whether or not in the far-away past there really lived some man of great strength and high purpose around whose name the legends have clustered. Be that as it may, the story though it is largely legendary holds lessons for us. This is what we are told. Long ago there lived a young man of great strength and stature. In all conflicts with enemies, in all tests of strength he easily proved himself stronger than those with whom he strove or competed, and he said to himself: I will go to the various countries and find where is the king who is stronger than all others, whose armies are the most powerful for I do not wish to join myself with any other leader. So he journeyed from place to place sometimes thinking he might have found the king for whom was his guest, and then, finding himself mistaken, going anew on his search. At last he found the king who was really the strongest of any and he entered his army. Very happy was he in the service he gave until one day, so the story tells us, the name of Satan was spoken in the presence of the king. The face of the king blanched, and he shivered with fear and dread. And the strong man who loved strength asked who was meant by Satan. The king told him that he was a leader stronger than himself. Then he went seeking Satan and finding him he entered the ranks of his forces for he would serve only the mightiest. As they marched one day at a cross road they saw, set in the ground, a piece of wood across which was nailed a shorter piece. At the sight Satan stopped. Then it was that his face blanched, and he shivered with dread. The young man asked him the meaning of it all, and Satan told him that it was the sign of one who was more powerful than he. It was the symbol of Jesus Christ. Again the young man sought the mightiest leader. At length he asked of an old hermit where Jesus could be found. The wise old hermit told him to go to his home and busy himself with deeds of helpfulness and Jesus would come to him.

Near his little hut ran a swift and strong river. To its shores often came those who wished to be taken across; but the passage was perilous and sometimes they found no help. Here he dwelt carrying in safety over the dangerous ford those who came to the crossing. Here he received his name, Offero, from the Latin word meaning to bear.

One night he was very, very weary. He had taken many people across the river that day and the stream was swollen and wild. At evening there came a little child wishing to be carried over the stream. Offero said he could take upon his shoulder the weight of the little child, and he began the crossing of the river. But his burden grew heavier and heavier. It seemed as he staggered along that he would not be able to complete the crossing; but at last well-nigh exhausted he tottered up the bank. "I thought I carried a little child," he said, "but you might have been the whole world so heavy are you." And he whom he carried said "I am he who created the world. I am Jesus." Gladly did Offero follow him for he knew he had found the mightiest. And he was called St. Christopher for he bore the Christ.

A few weeks ago you heard Dr. Noble speak of his meeting with Gladstone. Afterward he told me more about it. In his conversation with the great English statesman who fought so long for rule in Ireland, Dr. Noble asked him if he expected to see his bills passed. Gladstone told him that he did not expect to see the passage of the bills, but it would come at last, for they were right. The secret of his courage was that he knew his work was with the mightiest force.

Does not the lesson come to us that we seek the mightiest, that we join ourselves to him, even to Jesus Christ? He is the all-conqueror, and he will lead us to victory.

FESTIVAL OF THE DEAD.

Eskimos Provide Food and Clothes For Returning Ghosts.

The natives of the Yukon river region hold a festival of the dead every year shortly before Christmas and a greater festival at intervals of several years. At these seasons food, drink and clothes are provided for the returning ghosts in the clubhouse of the village, which is illuminated for the occasion with oil lamps. Every man or woman who wishes to honor a dead friend sets up a lamp on a stand in front of the place which the dead one used to occupy in the clubhouse. These lamps, filled with seal oil, are kept burning day and night until the festival is over. They are believed to light the shades on their return to their old home and back again to the land of the dead. If any one fails to put up a lamp in the clubhouse and to keep it burning, the shade whom he or she desires to honor could not find its way to the place and so would miss the feast. When a person has been much disliked his ghost is sometimes purposely ignored, and that is deemed the severest punishment that could be inflicted upon him. After the songs of invitation to the dead have been sung the givers of the feast take a small portion of food from every dish and cast it down as an offering to the shades. Then each pours a little water on the floor so that it runs through the cracks. In this way they believed the spiritual essence of all the food and water is conveyed to the souls. With songs and dances the feast comes to an end and the ghosts are dismissed to their own place. The dancers dance, not only in the clubhouse, but also at the graves and on the ice if the dead met their deaths by drowning. On the eve of the festival the nearest male relative goes to the grave and summons the ghost by planting there a small model of a seal spear or of a wooden dish, according as the dead was a man or a woman. The totems of the dead are marked on these implements. The dead who have none to make offerings to them are believed to suffer great destitution; hence the Eskimos fear to die without leaving behind them some one who will sacrifice to their spirit, and childless people generally adopt children lest their shades be forgotten at the festivals.—New York Tribune.

Pipes and the Lips.

The constant habit of smoking pipes has a perceptible effect upon the face. The pressure of the lips to hold the pipe in position increases the curvature of the lips round the stem, and the muscles become more rigid here than in other parts. Thus the lips at a certain point become stronger, and the pipe is unconsciously held in the same habitual position. After long continuation of the habit small circular wrinkles form parallel with the curvature of the lips around the stem. These are crossed by finer lines caused by the pressure of the lips to retain the stem in position. In the case of old men who have smoked a pipe for years the effect upon the lips is very marked, not only altering the form of the lips, but of the one entire side of the face, causing the wrinkles that are the result of age to deepen and instead of following the natural course of facial wrinkles to change their course so as to radiate from the part of the mouth where the pipe is habitually carried. Furthermore, one or both lips often protrude, just like the lips of people who used to suck their thumbs when children.—Medical Record.

toward the Pole.

Ice eight feet thick on the ocean and snow falling even in summer—such is the weather experienced in the polar regions. When the air is dry and still it is remarkable how low a temperature can be borne with ease. One explorer tells us that with the thermometer at 9 degrees it was too warm for skating. The summer weather in this region is, moreover, in some respects pleasant and healthful. Within the arctic zone there are wonderfully colored sunrises and sunsets to be seen. They are both brilliant and impressive. But the nights—the nights are monotonous and repelling. A rigid world buried in everlasting snow, silent save for the cracking of the ice or the wail of the wind. Travelers in these regions experience many discomforts. The keen air causes their skin to burn and blister, while their lips swell and crack. Thirst, again, has been much complained of, arising from the action of the low temperature on the warm body.

Maine at Chicago.

MAINE took a prominent part in the deliberations of the great Republican National convention this week, at Chicago, with Asher C. Hinds of Portland as expert parliamentarian, sitting at the right hand of Chairman Burrows, to steer him through the tangle of motions according to accepted rules; with ex-Gov. J. F. Hill, of Maine, again appointed national committeeman, acting with the national leaders in preparing the details of the gathering but unfortunately compelled to return home before the end because of illness; and with Judge Charles J. Dunn and Byron Boyd, of Maine, on the committees on resolutions and credentials respectively. E. P. Ricker was chosen on the committee to notify the successful candidate of his selection.

"Dirigo" is still a very appropriate motto for the Pine Tree state.

THE supreme court, in a rescript drawn by Justice Whitehouse, in the case of John J. Howe vs. the Presque Isle Water Co., has decided that a water company, though it fail to maintain an adequate water pressure or supply for fire purposes, is not liable to the individual for loss of property sustained by such inadequate supply or pressure, where no specific contract exists.

The rescript sets forth that any other interpretation of the law would be practically to require the company to assume the duty of insuring property.

In the case of the Inhabitants of Milford vs. the Bangor Railway & Electric Co., an action to recover the value of the town hall destroyed by fire through the failure of the defendant corporation to fulfill its contract carried up on demurrer, the rescript, by Justice Whitehouse overrules the demurrer and orders defendant to be placed anew. The opinion points out that the contract between the town and defendant corporation for water supply for fire protection particularly stipulated certain protection for said hall.

IT behooves every good citizen of Franklin county who lives in the timber belt to be on the watch for forest fires and to promptly report their presence, and to give all aid possible in preventing the destruction of our forest wealth at this critical season.

PHILLIPS will have a good old-fashioned celebration of the Fourth this year, and invites all of Franklin county to enter her gates on that day and enjoy themselves as befits the observance of the great National holiday.

HON. BERT M. FERNALD is now safely thundering down the home stretch in the gubernatorial race, and Mr. Haines appears to have trouble with his very sulky sulky.

A QUEER TREE

The Tumbo Is a Monstrosity of the African Desert.

The mature tumbo is a tree with a trunk about two feet long, shaped much like an inverted cone. Almost all the trunk is below the surface of the ground, the visible part rarely exceeding a few inches. But the remarkable feature of the stem is that it is often fourteen feet in circumference and becomes more or less a two lobed image. The stem looks more like a great mass of "the burned crust of a loaf of bread," to quote Dr. Welwitsch's letter, than the trunk of a tree. The underground portion becomes greatly elongated, and its continuation is the top root of the plant. This goes down several feet in its effort to get the few drops of water that the arid conditions of the country permit.

There are never more than two leaves after the seed leaves drop off, and very curious leaves they are. Starting from a groove on opposite sides of the depressed mass, they stand straight out on both sides of the plant. They are often six feet long and two feet wide and usually split into ribbons that undulate over the ground in a way strikingly suggestive of the tentacles of an octopus. With its great ugly body and its tentacle-like leaves it is no wonder that it has been the most remarkable plant novelty of the last century. The flowers are borne in scarlet cones on a cymose inflorescence coming from the crown of the trunk.

Tumboa bainesii belongs to the joint fir family, or gnetaceae, and is known only from Portuguese West Africa to Damaraland. This is a region that seldom gets any rain, and desert conditions prevail almost completely, except for the sea fogs. The tumbo is thus a desert plant par excellence, and it is only by a close approximation of these very arid conditions that we can cultivate it.—New York Botanic Garden.

CUPID'S COURT.

An Adverse Decision, an Appeal and an Oral Argument.

The judge's daughter was perturbed. "Papa," she said, knitting her pretty brow, "I am in doubt as to whether I have kept to the proper form of procedure. In law one can err in so many little technicalities that I am ever fearful. Now, last evening George?"

The judge looked at her so sharply over his glasses that she involuntarily paused.

"I thought you had sent him about his business," he said.

"I did hand down an adverse decision," she answered, "and he declared that he would appeal. However, I convinced him that I was the court of last resort in a case like that and that no appeal would lie from my decision."

"Possibly the court was assuming a little more power than rightfully belongs to it," said the judge thoughtfully, "but let that pass. What did he do then?"

"He filed a petition for a rehearing." "The usual course," said the judge, "but it is usually nothing but a mere formality."

"So I thought," returned the girl, "and I was prepared to deny it without argument, but the facts set forth in his petition were sufficient to make me hesitate and wonder whether his case had really been properly presented at the first trial."

"Upon what grounds did he make the application?" asked the judge, scowling.

"Well," she replied, blushing a little, "you see, he proposed by letter, and his contention was that the case was of that peculiar character that cannot be properly presented by briefs, but demands oral arguments. The fact that the latter had been omitted, he held, should be held an error, and the point was such a novel one that I consented to let him argue it. Then his argument was so forceful that I granted his petition and consented to hear the whole case again. Do you think?"

"I think," said the judge, "that the court favors the plaintiff."—Chicago Post.

Why Is the Ocean Salt?

The Creator made the ocean salt to save the land from putrefaction. The winds blow everything offensive and pestilential (as far as we allow them to do the work of boards of health) out to sea, where all humors are absorbed by the hungry waters. Salt is a purifying agent. The ocean is a great manufacturer. It converts everything foul into health making ozone and hands it back to us without charge. No government label is necessary. Stand on the prow of a ship for three hours a day, deep breathing like an athlete, and your lungs will be cleaned of everything poisonous. Your blood will leap through veins and arteries. Your heart will be obliged to thump with renewed force. The tide is the ocean's tongue. It comes in twice a day to lick up the foul things of the earth and convey them to the ocean's stomach, where they are digested, salted down, cured and rendered pure again.—Marine Journal.

THE MYSTERY OF SLEEP.

No Man Knows When the Moment of Unconsciousness Comes.

There is a remarkable fact connected with sleep which must not be overlooked. The sleep of a human being, if we are not too busy to attend to the matter, always evokes a certain feeling of awe. Go into a room where a person is sleeping, and it is difficult to resist the sense that one is in the presence of the central mystery of existence. People who remember how constantly they see old Jones asleep in the club library will smile at this, but look quietly and alone even at old Jones and the sense of mystery will soon develop.

It is no good to say that sleep is only "moving" because it looks like death. The person who is breathing so loudly as to take away all thought of death causes the sense of awe quite as easily as the silent sleeper who hardly seems to breathe.

We see death seldom, but were it more familiar we doubt if a corpse would inspire so much awe as the unconscious and sleeping figure—a smiling, irresponsible doll, flesh and blood, but a doll to whom in a second may be called a proud, active, controlling consciousness which will ride his bodily and his mental horse with a hand of iron, which will force that body to endure toil and misery and will make that mind, now wandering in paths of fantastic folly, grapple with some great problem or throw all its force into the ruling, the saving or the destruction of mankind. The corpse is only so much bone, muscle and tissue; the sleeping body is the house which a quick and eager master has only left for an hour or so.

Let any one who thinks sleep is not a mystery try to observe in himself the process by which sleep comes and to notice how and when and under what conditions he loses consciousness. He will, of course, utterly fail to put his finger on the moment of sleep coming, but in striving to get as close as he can to the phenomena of sleep he will realize how great is the mystery which he is trying to fathom.

A JAPANESE DINNER.

Plenty of Variety, but Too Much Salt For American Palates.

"I am afraid you won't like it," said the young Japanese baron. "You insisted, though, on a real Japanese dinner. So what was I to do?"

They seated themselves, the three girls and he, upon the green silk cushions placed on a parquet floor about a little table a foot high. A Japanese servant entered with the tea, and the Japanese dinner began.

For first course there were sweet biscuit and tea—delicate tea of the April harvest, "first chop" tea, formerly served with cherry spoons and a poem for each guest.

Next came ushio, a salty soup, with which the national wine, called sake, was served in flat saucers.

The third course was a little raw fish, very salty and steeped in a sour and appetizing sauce. The guests, contrary to their expectation, found the raw fish no more difficult to eat than raw oysters. With this course went a salad of white chrysanthemums.

The elaborate fourth course consisted of boiled chestnuts and a paste of sharks' fins, quail roasted and hashed with preserved cherries and crawfish with eggs. These viands were all arranged decoratively on one large dish. The fifth course, also on one dish, was boiled bamboo shoots with soy, salted mushrooms and a cold boiled salmon and cold boiled perch, with pickled shoots of the ginger plant.

Next came a soup of seaweed, bitter, salty, decidedly good; next an assortment of nuts boiled in soy; next salted relishes; next delicious boiled rice, the grains as large as cherries, and, to conclude, tea again.

The young girls as they rose from their low cushions and limped about in the effort to get the stiffness out of their legs said that the Japanese dinner had been very good, really much better than they had counted on, but perhaps a little too salty for occidental taste.—Exchange.

How the Brahman Cleans His Teeth.

When the Brahman cleans his teeth he must use a small twig cut from one of a number of certain trees, and before he cuts it he must make his act known to the gods of the woods. He must not indulge in this cleanly habit every day. He must abstain on the sixth, the eighth, the ninth, the fourteenth, the fifteenth and the last day of the moon, on the days of new and full moon, on the Tuesday in every week, on the day of the constellation under which he was born, on the day of the week and on the day of the month which correspond with those of his birth, at an eclipse, at the conjunction of the planets, at the equinoxes and other unlucky epochs and also on the anniversary of the death of his father or mother. Any one who cleans his teeth with his bit of stick on any of the above mentioned days will have hell as his portion.—"Hindoo Manners," by Abbe Dubois.

The Flour of Rich Ohio Wheat

There is a great difference in the flours of wheats grown in different places. Of course there is. Just as there is a difference in peaches—watermelons—cantaloupes.

Ohio wheat has few equals and no superiors. It produces flour peculiarly rich in nutrition—wholesome—delicate of flavor—the kind that makes the light, white, fine-grained bread that delights the expert housewife.

William Tell Flour is made exclusively from specially selected Ohio wheat. The grain is stored at the Ansted & Burk Company's big mills at Springfield, Ohio, in hermetically sealed tanks. It is cleaned six times before grinding. Everything—even the sewing of the flour bags—is done by bright, clean machinery.

You can make sure of bread that is beautiful to look at, appetizing to the taste, but best of all—

A health bread—absolutely clean—by using William Tell flour. Ask your grocer for

A Good Thing and Nothing to Pay.

Just see what Dr. Greene offers to do for all weak and suffering people. He is the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. His unparalleled offer to consult with anyone, free of charge, by letter correspondence is doing wonderful good. If you have any complaint which you do not thoroughly understand, and which you would like cured, write the Doctor a letter stating just how you feel and what symptoms trouble you. He will answer it, giving a complete description of your case, explaining the meaning of every symptom, and telling how you can surely get well and strong. He gives most careful attention to each letter, and explains your case so thoroughly that you understand exactly what ails you. All this costs you nothing, you have no doctor's fees to pay, and you don't have to leave your home. The Doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and they nearly always get well. He is the discoverer of that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Write to him at his office, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., and you will undoubtedly be made strong and well.

Last Sunday was Memorial Day with the Odd Fellows and a memorial address was given before the order and allied organizations, by Judge James Morrison of Phillips. The address was an able production, an argument in support of the belief in immortality. The cause of reasoning showed that as in the material world nothing is ever lost, that though matter may change form and place, it continues to exist in some form and somewhere, so the spirit when separated from the material form where it had for a time its abode, still exists somewhere and will never die. The universal desire not only to live, but to retain one's identity, is another strong evidence that life will continue and personality be preserved. At the conclusion of the exercises de-

Al, who has always been a great trapper, has been in his element, having trapped hundreds of the little pests. Mr. Worthley while residing in Mexico trapped a great many bears, his traps being always made by Oed Russell of Phillips. In a letter to his nephew, H. W. Worthley, he writes that the winter was ideal but the summer rather warm.

Old Roman Laws.

The old Roman laws, according to Colquhoun, conferred on the husband complete empery over the wife. All she owned or earned was vested in him, and he acquired the same rights over her person and property as if she were his natural daughter. The wife, on the other hand, acquired all the rights to a child and to her husband's name and succession in the event of an intestate estate, and she could exercise all the privileges to which her sex admitted. The power of the ancient Roman father over his offspring was originally perpetual, nor could the child be emancipated from the father's control during the father's life except by that parent's consent, nor did he become sui juris until the father (being himself sui juris) died, when the son was emancipated by the simple operation of the law. In those brave days the father had legal permission to scourge his children or to send them, fettered like slaves, to work on his estate or even to kill them, choosing whatsoever means for their taking off he thought proper.

NARROWLY ESCAPED.

Proprietor McLellan of Stoddard House Sinks Thrice.

(Special to MAINE WOODSMAN.)

FARMINGTON, ME., June 17, 1908.

W. S. McLellan, proprietor of the Stoddard House, nearly lost his life while in bathing near the electric light station on the banks of the Sandy river, Monday evening, and had it not been for the presence and activity of Stanley Moore, son of Postmaster Moore, who was bathing at the same time, the hundreds of commercial men and friends of "Mac" throughout Maine would have been involuntary contributors to a massive floral pillow or some other appropriate tribute to his memory.

Taken with cramps, Mr. McLellan had gone down thrice, when his cries attracted Moore. He was in 20 feet of water and was rescued by the bravery of Moore with great difficulty.

"Mac" says that his whole career flashed before him as he was "going down" the third and last time, and a great regret seemed to pervade him and a longing desire that he could come to the surface in time to see Taft nominated at Chicago. He remarked to his friends that he surely saw the great white light that streams through the big gate where Peter stands waiting to receive all Maine hotel proprietors; but his friends say it was but the evening incandescents turned on at the electric light station.

Aurora Grange, Strong.

Saturday, June 13, Aurora grange observed as Children's Day. The day was beautiful, and a goodly number took advantage of the clear skies to give themselves and their families the pleasure of attending this Grange picnic for the children. The number attending came well up to the hundred mark.

The children swung 'neath the branching trees, and played games in which the older ones joined with zest, and at the noon hour seated at the well laden tables, and enjoying the cool lemonade provided in abundance; one looking on could not fail to enjoy them and their enjoyment too.

Later, a short program of music and recitations by the children and happy remarks by Rev. H. A. Clifford were enjoyed. Owing to the press of school work and the preparations going forward for Children's Sunday the 14, the program was necessarily shortened.

At the time of breaking up and as the good-byes were being said, all declared that they had enjoyed themselves very, very much. Many of us will look forward with eagerness for another year's Children's day in Aurora Grange.

Spent Youth In Kingfield.

Of the recent death of C. V. Emerson, former clerk of courts in Lewiston, an exchange says:

Mr. Emerson was the son of Benj. B. and Rachel A. Emerson and was born in Lowell, Mass., Oct. 22, 1849. When a small boy he moved with his parents to Kingfield and there for years he lived a neighbor to the Stanley boys, Free-land and Frank. A strong friendship had always existed between these men and Mr. Emerson counted them among his staunchest friends. Three years ago they came from Newton, Mass., in their Stanley touring car, and with another former Kingfield boy, now living in Boston, the four went to Kingfield to visit old-time friends. Mr. Emerson had not been there for 25 years and it was with pleasure and sadness that he visited the scenes of his early boyhood.

W. R. Ward, of Dyersburg, Tenn., writes: "This is to certify that I have used Foley's Orino Laxative for chronic constipation, and it has proven without a doubt to be a thorough practical remedy for this trouble, and it is with pleasure I offer my conscientious reference." W. A. D. Cragin has just had completed the building of an attractive veranda at his residence which is a decidedly useful as well as ornamental addition. It is semi-circular, 8 1-2 feet in width, and presents a shady and inviting appearance. Everett Beedy was foreman and was assisted by Edward Fairbanks in its construction.

N. J. Hackett lost a valuable horse one day recently which died suddenly after a drive.

Arthur Libby, who spent the winter in California, has arrived home for the summer. He says he met numbers of Maine people in California and enjoyed the climate, but that Phillips and Maine generally was good enough for him either summer or winter.

Friends of W. A. D. Cragin are pleased to see him out once more after his serious accident occasioned by a fall.

Work has been commenced on the foundation for the residence to be erected by N. J. Hackett on the lot in front of his livery. If the cellar is any indication of what the superstructure will be, it will surely be a structure of solidity and substance.

Mrs. H. H. Hamilton, of 43 Lancaster St., Portland, Me., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did for my husband what doctors and other remedies had failed to do. He had been a sufferer from kidney complaint for six years and was gradually growing worse. His back finally got so painful and weak that he was compelled to stop work for a few days, and one spell laid him up for two weeks. At that time we happened to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and sent to our druggist for a box. Mr. Hamilton was in bad shape when he began to take them but Doan's Kidney Pills cured him and he was soon able to resume work again. IN MEMORIAM.

Tribute of Weld Club to Ezra H. Wheeler.

Died at his home in Dorchester, Mass. on Sunday May 31, 1908. Mr. Ezra H. Wheeler, a member of the Weld Club, Massachusetts Chapter No. 1.

Mr. Ezra H. Wheeler was born in Phillips, Me. Oct. 8, 1840. He was educated in the district and high schools of his native town and resided there until the year 1863 when he obeyed the call of his country and enlisted in the 17th Maine Regiment. With his regiment he served in the Army of the Potomac and was severely wounded at the Battle of Chancellorsville May 3, 1864 which caused the loss of one of his limbs and an honorable discharge from the service. After returning from the Army he attended a business college at Hudson, N. Y. and afterward came to Weld where he engaged in business.

In the spring of 1866 he was married to Amanda H. Rowe, of Phillips. He continued in business in Weld, about five years, then removed to Strong, where he was in the drug business about four years, removed to Salmon Falls, N. H. where he did a very successful drug business until about 1890, when he sold his business and moved to Boston. In Boston he continued in the drug business for about nine years, when he was obliged to retire from business on account of disability.

Of his family, two daughters, the eldest married Mr. Edward B. Wilder, of Dorchester, Mass. where she now resides. The youngest daughter died when about five years of age. Since his retirement from business, he, with loving and faithful companion of his wedded life have resided at their comfortable and pleasant home in Dorchester, Mass.

By the passing of Mr. Ezra Wheeler, from our earthly presence to the realm of the Spiritual, the United States has lost an honorable citizen and a brave and gallant veteran soldier. As a citizen he performed all and every duty required of him faithfully and well. As a soldier he volunteered to serve his country in its hour of peril and how well he did his duty is told more forcibly than words can speak or pen can write, in the loss of his right limb upon the battlefield of Chancellorsville. To such men our nation owes its deepest gratitude.

He was a member of Gettysburg Post G. A. R. of Boston and the esteem and honor of his fellow veteran comrades was shown by the large delegation that were present at his funeral services. He was a faithful and earnest member and worker in the Pilgrim Congregational Church in Dorchester and for several years served as one of the deacons of that church. His venerable church associates, who were present at his funeral services to do him honor, was a grand tribute of the esteem in which he was held by his brethren. His family relations were of a pleasant, cordial and loving nature, and he leaves a host of friends who will miss a kind and obliging neighbor.

By our brother's departure to higher duties with his heavenly comrades and associates, the Weld club loses an honest, earnest and able member, one who was loved and respected by every member of our club. He was always prompt at the meetings and doing all he could to promote the best interests of our club. His ever pleasant and genial presence we miss from our number today, but we would not mourn, we would not weep, but rather rejoice when we know that our brother's name is written in the Great Book so sacredly kept by our Father who art in Heaven.

The funeral services were held at his late residence in Dorchester Tuesday, June 2, 1908 at 4 o'clock and on the following morning loving relatives accompanied the body to Phillips, Me., where they laid him to rest in his family lot in the cemetery of his native town.

Gave It Up.

A friend of the writer recently made application for a public appointment in a small Scottish town, and, thinking that his chances of success would be greater by a little judicious canvassing, he resolved to call upon a few of the town councilors, in whose hands the appointment lay. Of the civic dignitaries' position in private life he knew nothing. Journeying to the town in question, he hired a cab at the railway station and requested the Jehu to take him to Councilor Bisset's, the treasurer. The councilor was found in his blacksmith's shop shoeing a horse.

"I'll see somebody of more importance than this, anyhow," said the candidate to himself, and, turning to the driver, he said, "Drive me to Councilor Maitland's office."

The cabman thereupon drove him to the local joiner's shop. This was worse even than the smithy, and in despair he ejaculated:

"Drive me to Councilor Gray's."

"I am Councilor Gray, sir," replied the cabman.

The answer staggered the candidate. He quietly paid his fare and disappeared, resolved to leave his fate in their hands without prejudicing them in any way in his favor. — London Standard.

When Life Was Little Valued.

The 223 capital offenses which the old English law recognized as punishable by death did not keep down crime, and with the abolition of the death penalty for all crimes but murder crime in England, as well as everywhere else all over the world where the death penalty has been modified, lessened markedly, notes the Boston Traveler.

Edmond Burke said that he could in his time obtain the assent of the house of commons to any bill that carried the death punishment.

A man's life was not very valuable in those strenuous days. If he scratched his name on Westminster bridge, if he wore a wig or false mustache or any other disguise on a public road, if he cut down a young tree, if he stole property worth more than $1.25, if he had been transported for crime and returned a day ahead of the expiration of his term of punishment, if he wrote a threatening letter, if he stole a hide from a tanner's, for any and all of these things and for 200 more than these he was hanged by the neck until he was dead.

Loading Freight by Cards.

"I don't know whether the practice is still kept up in the far south, but I remember how tickled I was at seeing the method used in loading goods into freight cars down in Mississippi some while ago," said a railroad man of St. Louis.

"A lot of strapping black fellows will be on the job under the supervision of a white man, who will be issuing orders with great volubility. 'Put this aboard the king of diamonds; take this to the ace of hearts; load this on the ten of spades; this to the jack of clubs,' and so on, and then you'll notice each one of the long line of freight cars has tacked on it some one of the fifty-two cards composing a full deck. The Senegambian loafers for the most part were ignorant of letters and figures, but every man of them knew the paste-board emblems which he had often handled in games of seven up. That next to craps is the chief diversion of the colored sports of Dixie."—Baltimore American.

Cruel Spring.

The talk in the village hostelry had been on the subject of vegetable freaks, but at length it veered round to goats.

"Did ever you keep a goat, Bill?" inquired a gray whiskered gentleman in a corner seat.

"Did I ever!" answered the little man addressed with rustic familiarity. "I bought one last Christmas what nearly brought me to the work'us. Eat anything, from tins o' blackin' to flatirons, that goat would. Lucky thing for me the spring killed it."

"I didn't know the seasons affected goats," observed the gray whiskered gentleman.

"Who's talkin' about seasons?" came the reply. "It was the spring of our alarm clock what 'e made a meal of one day as done it!"—London Express.

Generally the Case.

"I wish you would mention this to Jinks. It is highly important."

"I'll mention it to him today."

"But how do you know you will see him today?"

"I'm bound to bump into him. I owe him money."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

"Can you lend me a fiver, old fellow?"

"Surely I can."

"But will you?"

"Ah, my will power has utterly deserted me these days!"—Town Topics.

ROWE—HUNTOON.

Marriage of Popular Young Rangeley Couple.

On Thursday evening, June 11 about 50 invited guests met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Rowe on Allen St., to witness the marriage of their only daughter, Hazel Amanda, to Mr. Harry Otto Huntoon, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lyman Huntoon.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of cream colored granite cloth with white silk guimpe and wore a bridal veil. She carried a large bunch of lillies of the valley. Mrs. Olin Rowe, who attended the bride, carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. Austin Huntoon acted as groomsman. Precisely at eight o'clock the wedding march began, played by Olin Rowe, brother of the bride.

Two little girls, Ruth Hinkley and Rena Tibbetts preceded the bridal party, strewing their path with flowers, as entering the parlor they advanced to a beautiful arch of green intermingled white roses. A horseshoe made of tiny white blossoms and leaves was suspended from the arch and a mat of flowers and foliage was spread beneath it. Here the happy couple were made one, Rev. F. P. Freeman performing the ceremony in an impressive manner using the single ring service.

Lucille Harris, Mildred Huntoon, Phyllis Robertson and Susie Tibbetts acted as ribbon girls, Harold McCard and Don Mathieson as ushers.

Numerous bouquets of white lilacs, for-get-me-nots, honey suckle, etc., added to the beauty of the decorations. After the ceremony all repaired to the Grange hall where a large company was in waiting to extend congratulations to the newly married couple.

The decorations at the hall were in charge of Mrs. Ada Sprague and were too beautiful for description, the color scheme being green and white. A short program was listened to with pleasure, consisting of songs by Prudence Richardson, Sherman Hoar and Olin Rowe, also readings by Miss Richardson.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served in the banquet hall below, by the following: Misses Gladys Barber, Hildred Robertson, Bessie Harneden, Ona Gile, Florence Barker and Genie Eastley.

The presents were many and beautiful a list of which is given below.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful brooch set with 17 pearls.

They are to begin housekeeping in the near future and the money received as wedding gifts will be used by them towards purchasing a stove.

Their friends unite in wishing them long years of happiness and prosperity.

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quieting and relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles.

A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving bruises and sprains that the proprietors, The Twitchell-Champlin Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

“Along the Kennebec,” a New England comedy-drama, now in its third successful season, will be produced at Kingfield, Thursday, July 2; Phillips, Friday, July 3; Rangeley, Saturday, July 4. The play is moulded along the same idea as “The Old Homestead,” “Shore Acres” and “York State Folks” and deals entirely with country life. Plays of this nature are deservedly popular, inasmuch as they are clean and wholesome and leave a good taste in the mouth. They usually illustrate some good moral principle without descending to the oftentimes morbid sensationalism or the soul-harrowing incidents of the problem play. “Along the Kennebec” is said to have met with great favor wherever produced, and much interest will be taken in the presentation of the play in this town. All special scenery is carried for the production.
