A LITERARY CURIOSITY.

A REMARKABLE POEM TO WHICH THIRTY-
EIGHT POETS CONTRIBUTE A LINE EACH.

[The following very remarkable little poem is a contribution to the San Francisco Times, from the pen of Mr. H. A. Deming. The reader will see that each line is a quotation from some one of the standard authors of England and America. This is the result of years of laborious search among the voluminous writings of thirty-eight leading poets of the past and present. The number of each line refers to its author below.]

1. Why all this toil for triumphs of an hour?

2. Life's a short summer, man's a flower,

3. By turns we catch the vital breath and die,

4. The cradle and the tomb, alas so nigh.

5. To be is better far than not to be,

6. Though all men's lives may seem a tragedy.

7. But light carers speak when mighty griefs are dumb,

8. The bottom is but shallow whence they come.

9. Your fate is but the common fate of all;

10. Unmired joys here no man can befall;

11. Nature to each aloes his proper sphere;

12. Fortune makes folly her particular care.

13. Custom is often reason's overrule,

14. And throws a cruel sunshine on a fool.

15. Live well; how long or short, permit to heaven;

16. They who forgive most shall be most forgiven.

17. Sin may be clasped so close we cannot see its face—

18. Vice intercourse where virtue has no place.

19. Then keep each passion down, however dear,

20. Too pendulous betwixt a snail and tear.

21. Her sensual shares let fall; let pleasure lay

22. With craft and skill to ruin and betray.

23. Soar not too high to fall, but stoop to rise,

24. We masters grow of all that we despise.

25. Oh, then renounce that impious self-esteem!

26. Riches have wings and grandeur is a dream;

27. Think not ambition wise because 'tis brave;

28. The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

29. What is ambition? 'Tis a glorious cheat,

30. Only destructive to the brave and great.

31. What's all the gaudy glitter of a crown?

32. The way of bliss lies not on beds of down.

33. How long we live not years but actions tell—

34. That man lives twice who lives the first life well.

35. Make then while yet you may, your God your friend,

36. Whom Christians worship, yet not comprehend.

37. The trust that's given guard and to your self be just,

38. So live we how we can, die we must.

"Aunt Katherine never owned the marriage,

though she might have easily got a divorce, and she gave him a large sum to promise in writing never to claim her, and she burned the certificate. And as for letting me marry the nephew of this man, and having him drop in upon us at any time, why, she shouldn't, and she ended by declaring that it was my fortune James Lavater (there, the name is one), wanted, and not me, and that not one cent of her money should ever go to forgers and fortune hunters.

"Matters didn't mend. Neither gave up. We couldn't; we were born so. It was just as impossible to either as to sit crooked or to make our hair curl; and we were just alike. I felt sorry for my aunt, I must say; but I saw no reason why her bad luck should keep me from happiness. Well, Kitty, it wasn't many weeks after that aunt died. Died in a moment, of heart disease. Nobody knew she had it, unless maybe herself, for she had looked strange and shaken for some days, and I guess she felt it coming on. At the funeral I saw a stranger, an old man standing close by the grave. You'd have thought he was chief mourner, and James Lavater, my James, went up to him, looking very red, and they walked off together, talking low.

"That was aunt's husband. I found it out afterward, and that he had been hovering about the neighborhood for a week or two. And the next thing that came out was that the Masons were to have the old place and furniture, but the $60,000 that were have gone to me, were nowhere. Aunt had drawn that whole sum out of Government securities, a little while before her death, and it was all gone.

"Of course I knew that the good-for-nothing husband had seen her, and either frightened or coaxed her into giving it to him. He left the country right afterward."

"How perfectly courageous!" cried Kitty. "Did she leave you nothing?"

"My dear, she left me a trunk with some old clothes in it. One dress in particular she stated she hoped I would wear when married. She needn't have troubled herself to write that bitter sneer in the new will she made only two days before her death. Of course you know I never was married. Aunt Katherine judged James Lavater right. Perhaps there is something in a name. After her and fortune went, the lover soon followed. Never mind the details.

"I went away just then as a hospital nurse, Kitty, and it did me good. You know I had a little property from my mother, and I came to her old neighborhood when the war was over, and this house I hired. I had $1200 a year to live on, and peace and independence if nothing else. I don't say I have not been lonely and sad, Kitty; but, if you can content yourself here and put up with my fidgety ways, there'll be some brightness left after all in your old aunt's life."

"Kitty felt the appeal, and responded with a caress; but answered in a hesitating voice:

"You know, darling aunt, you are all I have to cling to now, and this seems my right place; but—but—I must speak frankly."

"Freely and fully, my dear. I like plain speaking."

"In the first place, aunt, the money question. I must pay my share."

Aunt looked thoughtfully, and then nodded.

"I see, dear. You would be most welcome to what I have; but I know what it is to be born independent. You shall do as you like."

"Oh! you dear, sensible thing," cried Kitty, giving her a hug. "Now that is comfortable. Let us have it all over at once. You say you have twelve hundred a year. I will put in another twelve hundred, and we can live quite nicely on that, in a very small way. Can't we?"

"Kitty! Kitty! that is twice too much."

"Not one cent, aunt. I could not possibly live on less. We will have two maids, and make a pretty garden, with lots of roses and vines."

"Earwigs and slugs," remarked aunt, grimly. "And the maids will quarrel. Well, go on. You haven't got through, I can see."

"Just one thing more," floundered Kitty. "This house (don't feel bad, dear) is so hopelessly ugly."

"Ugly! Well, I declare, Kitty Randall, do you mean to drive me crazy with modern art? Are you going to tack up Japanese fans and idiotic paper parasols all over the walls? Must I have a row of kitchen pie-plates on the mantel shelf and stick a sunflower in the middle of the dinner table? Are you an aesthetic young lady, Kitty?"

Kitty laughed heartily.

"Don't be afraid, aunt. I only want my earwigs and slugs, and the maids shan't quarrel; but want some low chairs and a pretty little table and lamp, and a place to put my piano and pictures and pretty things. And I want to send away this dreadful stove and have an open wood fire. I saw some beauties of hand-painted and brass fenders in the attic, aunt."

"But wood fires make a lot of dirt, Kitty."

"The new girl can sweep it up. Let us put this carpet in your room, and stain the floor and put down rugs. It is so much cleaner. I see you are going to say 'Yes, dear. There is just one thing more. I saw a trunk in the attic—the trunk, I guess, and a most beautiful silk dress—the dress, aunt?"

"Yes, Kitty, the dress. What now! Am I to wear it to church, with a peacock feather in my hat?"

"Not quite. I was thinking what a lovely soft-cover it would make."

"Kitty! A pink and white brocade?"

"Not exactly. Have it dyed."

"I never thought of that," said Miss Randall, opening her eyes very wide.

"It's not a bad idea. A good, sensible brocade."

"Or a soft olive or lavender," suggested Kitty. "You must choose a pretty paper, first, you know, and then color to harmonize. Oh! you dear, good aunt! I do believe you are going to let me have my way, and turn this house into a distractingly lovely little home."

"Distracting, indeed!" sighed Aunt Catty. "But—yes, Kitty. You are young and have the tastes of your times. I will not thwart you. If you sit by the fire I shan't miss my dear little stove, perhaps. If you are happy, maybe I'll get to like the new-fangled ways."

"Do let me kiss you, dear Aunt Catty. I am so glad. I wish I could set to work this moment."

"Well, dear, you can. There is that brocade. Rip it up."

"Just the thing!" cried Kitty, delighted, but her aunt stopped her.

"Only, child, don't rummage. I do hate to have my things tossed and trampled about. There's nothing in the garret but old broken things, no good at all. Promise me to leave them all alone

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the office—whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post office or removing and leaving them unsealed for inspection is prima facie evidence of fraud.

ENLARGEMENT.—With the first issue of our 51st volume, the OXFORD DEMOCRAT will be enlarged to an eight column paper. Our business has been so heavy that for two years we have issued a half sheet supplement nearly every week. This makes a vast amount of extra office work, and gives our subscribers more reading than they can expect to obtain for their money. In order to accommodate our advertising patrons and at the same time give subscribers a fair division in the matter, we are forced to enlarge. In order to do this we have negotiated for a fine new printing press, which will cost a large sum of money—enough to buy a small farm or a fair set of village buildings—and in order to do this we shall need to collect all small bills now due for subscriptions or other work. With the first issue of the new volume, we shall publish a history of the first fifty years of the OXFORD DEMOCRAT's existence, prepared by a competent historian. This will embrace a sketch more or less extended of several men who have been connected with the management of the DEMOCRAT and who have become noted in the country since that time. The DEMOCRAT was the first paper to break away from the Democratic party on the great issues of temperance and anti-slavery, and we may expect some interesting reminiscences of that great event in which Oxford County took so active a part. We shall also add new features to the paper, during the coming year. Among them will be an agricultural department, to be conducted by a practical farmer, who will be named hereafter. We are determined that the DEMOCRAT shall not be surpassed in its special field by any paper in the State, and shall ask for a liberal support from the people of Oxford County who have so well maintained this paper for the past fifty years. There will be no increase in the price of subscription, though nearly every eight column in Maine sells for two dollars per year.

Two weeks ago we published an appeal to the voters of Maine from a committee of the Maine State Temperance Alliance and other temperance organizations. This committee will have in charge the campaign in favor of the proposed amendment to our State Constitution. It is composed of members of all political parties, and its sole aim will be to secure the adoption of the amendment. The campaign will be carried on during the coming winter, on a non-partisan basis, so that all who favor the amendment may vote for it without feeling that they are supporting the interests of either of the great political parties. No one can predict the importance of a vote on this question. The liquor interests of the country will pour money into this State and use every means at its command to secure the defeat of the amendment, as it has done in Ohio. If a negative vote could be secured here, in the home of the "Maine Law," it would be a great triumph for the liquor interest, and set back national prohibition for a generation. Let every voter make up his mind now to cast his vote for the amendment, before his attention is taken up by national and State issues which will hereafter be made up by the great political parties.

PENSION LIST.—By an act of the last Congress, a list of all persons drawing U. S. pensions, with their post office address, nature of their disability, and amount of pension was published. The work was so voluminous and expensive that but few copies were published, and they cannot be obtained for general circulation. The Portland Argus obtained a copy and has published the list for several counties in Maine. From its columns we cut the entire list for Oxford County, and publish it in our supplement this week. The intention of Congress was that the list should be made public, that the department might be aided in detecting fraudulent claims. We do not believe that there are many such in a rural territory like Oxford County, where everybody knows everybody's business; still this publication will of great interest to all our people, and will serve as a roll of honor to show who has made sacrifice for the benefit of our common country.

It is amusing to see in the daily papers of Portland, last week, as news, an account of the death of a Livermore girl from fright on suddenly finding a snake near her work bench. The account appeared in the Canton Telephone five or six weeks ago.

Mr. E. N. CARVER of the Canton Telephone called at this office last week. The publisher was away, but hopes "the boys" did the honors of the office and showed Mr. Carver the same courtesy he exhibited to us during a recent visit to Canton.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Mason Brothers, Norway, advertise the "Queen Emma" Parlor Cook stove. This is a cast iron stove, neatly trimmed, and having a large fire box and oven, is the most perfect parlor cook stove yet introduced. This stove will easily keep a fire over night, and is therefore just the thing for those who have to rise for an early breakfast.

There will be an examination of teachers at the brick schoolhouse Paris, on Saturday, Nov. 3. All who intend to teach in town, must receive certificates at this time.

Twenty-two Probate Notices. Change of time on G. T. R. R. The afternoon express to Portland has been discontinued.

Seven Insolvency Notices. Two Sheriff Sales by J. W. Whitten, Deputy at Buckfield.

Caution by C. A. Severy, Brownfield. E. W. Bartlett of Norway will write your name on one dozen bevel and gilded cards for 25c.

OXFORD COUNTY LOCALS.

ALBANY, Oct. 16th.—Our people were made glad today by the privilege of once more listening to words of edification and comfort from their much esteemed former pastor, Rev. S. L. Gould, now of Bethel, who has long been in feeble health but is now so much restored as to be able to officiate at the funeral of Miss Nellie A. Ward, well, who died on the 13th inst., after a very long and much of the time painful sickness, which she bore with Christian resignation. She was a member of the Congregational Church, and will be much missed at home and by a large circle of friends. Her funeral was very fully attended.

Mrs. Eben Upton is now a little more comfortable after submitting to the operation of "tapping," at which 21 lbs. water were taken from her body.

Mr. Robert Ingham and Mrs. Alex Sloan are experimenting with a galvanic battery to relieve from partial paralysis of the right arm.

Miss Anna Cummings has so far recovered her health as to return to her accustomed work at Deacon Lovejoy's, in whose family she had lived for about five years.

Last Sunday the weather was exceedingly warm, and the day following intensely cold, making great coats and mittens indispensable. Thermometers have to be on the double quick to keep in trim this season.

ANDOVER, Oct. 19.—Miss Georgie Akers is teaching the fall term of school at No. Surplus.

Miss R. L. Bailey of this place has been engaged to teach the winter school in Dist. No. 7, Roxbury.

Mr. D. G. Berry recently sold a nice pair of colts to a Lewiston party for $500.

Mr. Wm. G. Cushman who has been stopping at Greenfield, Mass., for some months past, is at home for a few days.

Mr. Harry Bacon lost the thumb of his left hand Tuesday, by catching it in a planer, which he was running in F. M. Thomas's shop.

Mr. Chas. Meserve has moved into the stand lately occupied by Frank Dresser. Mr. Dresser we understand is to leave town.

S. Betton, esq., is having his residence recently purchased here, enlarged. The work is in charge of Mr. F. M. Thomas.

Mr. O. T. Lovejoy is about to put up a new barn at his place on the Horse Shoe valley road.

Mr. Warren Thomas is quite sick with a fever.

The M. E. Ladies' sociable met with Mrs. Oliver Merrill last Thursday evening. Considerable religious interest is reported at No. 4. Rev. Mr. Parlin of the M. E. Church preaches there every two weeks while sabbath school and prayer meetings are regularly sustained.

An interesting sabbath school concert was given by the scholars of the Congregational Sabbath school last Sunday evening.

Harvesting is over and the farmers are improving the pleasant weather by rushing fall's work, fixing up for winter or making permanent improvement on their farms and buildings.

Last Saturday the Bethel Base Ball Club, H. Clough, Captain, played against the Andover nine on their home ground, with the result being below:

BETHEL, Oct. 19th.—Last Sunday was a really sultry summer day. Monday the weather changed as suddenly from hot to cold as Sunday it leaped to summer's heat.

The Fair and Festival held by the ladies of the Methodist Church, at Pattee's Hall, Tuesday evening, was a grand success. The tables were filled with useful and fancy articles. On the fancy cake table I noticed a nice cake, made by Mrs. Dr. Gray, representing the snow-storm of Oct. 3rd, 1883, which attracted much attention. The receipts of the fair were some over one hundred dollars.

Miss E. E. Burnham, dealer in Millinery and Fancy Goods, on Main Street, has just arrived from New York, where she has purchased a new stock of goods for the fall and winter trade, and proposes to have an opening on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 23rd and 24th. We advise every one who is in want of goods in her line to call on Miss Burnham, as she keeps a first-class shop and sells at bottom prices.

The Oxford County Musical Association opened its annual session, Tuesday, in the Congregational church. Thursday there was a chorus of one hundred voices, and the prospect is that the Convention will be one of the very best ever held in the County.

Farmers have nearly completed their harvesting. The potato and grain crops are good.

Mrs. Barker, wife of the late Francis Barker, died quite suddenly, last Tuesday. The deceased was about eighty years of age. Funeral services were held at the residence of her son, Thursday, 11th inst. Kind hands led her trembling form, and smoothed her dying pillow until, at last, worn out with pain and bowed down with the burdens of many years, she has gone peacefully to her rest.

BUCKFIELD, Oct. 19.—The many friends of Mr. Holman W. Waldron of New Castle, Ind., (formerly of Buckfield,) will regret to learn that he recently met with an accident which came near proving fatal. While unloading lumber from a car, he slipped and fell, and some of the lumber rolled upon him. It was at first thought that his neck was broken. Some of the ligaments prove to have been quite badly strained, and a stiff neck will probably be the result.

Soon after his arrival in New York, Mr. Geo. M. Atwood received a pleasant surprise in the form of a nice book sent him by the teachers of Hebron Academy to mark the close of his connection with the school as teacher and student. The book is "Twelve Americans," and contains portraits and biographical sketches of Horatio Seymour, Chas. Francis Adams, Peter Cooper, Hannibal Hamlin, John Gilbert, Robert C. Schenck, Frederick Douglass, William Allen, Allen G. Thurman, Joseph Jefferson, Elihu B. Washburne, and Alexander H. Stephens.

The village schools closed last week, having been successfully conducted during the fall term by Mr. Fred Robinson, Miss Emma Pulsifer and Miss Rilla Bard.

U. S. Marshal Geo. D. Bisbee is putting a wood & Bishop coal furnace in the cellar of his house. He has been at home during the week—on the sick list; but expects soon to return to his office in Portland.

Miss Thirza W. Andrews, of Portland, is spending a few days with Mrs. Alfred Cole.

The meat market has changed hands; George Long having bought out G. W. Hammond.

The caprices of the weather are past comprehension. From a snow-storm on the 2nd inst. the mercury had risen to 84° in the shade on the 14th, and at the same hour of the following day couldn't get above 46°, while yesterday morning it was down to 20°. Meanwhile our occasional rains are not sufficient to affect the wells, and plenty of water is a luxury few can boast.

CANTON.—A tramp made his appearance in Canton village on Wednesday, frightening some of the ladies. He was afterwards met by some of our folks returning from Livermore, late in the night. It will not be well for him to call again, in this place.

Thompson's Band gave an entertainment on Tuesday evening, the 16th; it was well attended, and the receipts very satisfactory.

The Odd Fellows of Canton entertained their brethren from Livermore Falls, on Wednesday evening, the 17th, to the number of about thirty. They had an oyster supper at Hotel Swasey.

The Good Templars of Canton visited the Good Templars at Breton's Mills, in Livermore, on Wednesday evening, and enjoyed their visit very much.

The Grangers are preparing for a grand jubilee to be held at Canton; the time is not set.

The click of the carpenter's hammer is heard on almost every street in Canton village. Mr. Thompson, editor of the Horse Breeder's Monthly, is erecting a building for his business, and also to be occupied by the Telephone editor. H. J. Deshon is getting along well with his new building, which is designed for a store with dwelling over it, and others are repairing and building.

Apples are reported more plenty in this vicinity than was expected. W. W. Rose and W. F. Berry have raised two hundred bushels, which is a very good crop for this year. Oren Reynolds & Son also have a very fair crop.

W. H. Taintor of Dixfield has purchased the Dixfield & Mexico Stage Line, and entered upon his duties. The public will find in Mr. Taintor an accommodating and reliable man.

Rev. Mr. Roys is expected soon to return to Canton, having been confined by sickness for some three months at his old homestead in New York.

DIXFIELD.—Ellis has sold his stage route to Mr. Taintor of this place.

Mr. Reynolds the druggist is remodeling the store formerly occupied by Trask & Kidder and will carry on his business there as soon as completed.

A game of ball between the Canton and Dixfield nines was played here Saturday. Owing to the darkness the game was called at the end of the seventh inning. The following is the score:

Oct. 20.—Dixfield is quite lively at the present time. Our Grist Mill having changed owners, the Messrs C. & P. Stanley are making many very fine improvements, having thoroughly repaired the same, and put in a new set of corn stones are now doing a thriving business in custom grinding, they also keep on hand a large stock of flour and grain of all kinds. They have erected a large building for a store house, and shed to accommodate horses.

E. G. Reynolds our druggist has leased the store owned by Henry O. Stanley and has repaired it in a fine manner where he proposes to keep not only drugs of all kinds but a large stock of paints, oils, groceries, &c.

Our worthy citizen, S. E. Griffith who went to Auburn, a short time since has returned, to occupy the store owned by him and formerly occupied by him, but more recently by E. G. Reynolds. We were all glad to welcome our friend and neighbor Griffith back again, and trust that he will, as he has formerly done, "keep in the harness," and continue to do a thriving business.

Quite a number of our citizens have taken advantage of excursion rates and made a visit to Boston to attend the Fair.

Wednesday eve the Weld Brass Band gave a concert and dance at the Grange Hall. They had a full house and a good time.

We have had a bountiful crop of all kinds (apples excepted) and the farmer is smiling and happy, and greenbackers scarce. The bottom has dropped out of their theory and they are non est inventus.

Our stage line from Canton having changed hands, our mail arrives here much earlier, and the general and gentlemanly driver and owner, W. H. Taintor, gives entire satisfaction.

James P. Johnston our barber and harness maker has erected a fine residence on Weld St., which is now completed and is quite an ornament to our beautiful village. May others go and do likewise.

ONSKOPE.

FRYEBURG.—The term at the Academy is half gone; several who are to teach have been obliged to leave, but the number is more than kept good by others who have come in. The class in astronomy and Mr. Richardson's fine telescope a great advantage and the other scholars also have the benefit of it. A part of the new chemical and philosophical apparatus has arrived, and the rest will come so as to be ready for use next term. The lyceum flourishes, the scholars finding it easier to discuss before their schoolmates than if outsiders were admitted. Messrs. Robie, Walker, Graham, Poor, Barrows and Shirley, all Academy students, climbed Kearsarge recently, one Saturday.

Mr. H. C. Stark is out about town again. He has been indoors all summer.

Mrs. Susan Vogt, who wrote up Fryeburg last year for the Boston Herald, has one or two letters from here in late numbers of the Boston Commonwealth.

Mrs. Howe, late widow of Chas. Howe, died last week. She has been in failing health all summer. She leaves three children, two boys and one girl, the youngest about ten years old.

Miss Maimie Howe, who has been an invalid the past two years or more, died last Sunday, Oct. 14, aged 23 years. She was a good Christian example.

Dr. Mason has returned from a fortnight's vacation, during which he has attended the National Congregational Council at Concord, N. H.

Miss Mary Abbott is teaching in the Menotomy district.

Miss Lila D. Osgood is teaching in South Conway.

Mr. John F. Lewis, who lately came from Massachusetts, on account of failing health, died last Thursday, Oct. 11, at his brother's, Henry Lewis, East Conway. The Odd Fellows took charge of the funeral.

Last Sunday the Congregational pulpit was filled by Rev. D. B. Sewall of York, for a long time his pastor. He spent several days in town visiting his former parishioners.

The Fryeburg Brass Band has come to life again, and, as formerly, is under the leadership of Doctor Lamson. They start with 16 members.

Miss Lizzie C. Shirley, daughter of Mr. Thomas C. Shirley, has accepted the position of organist at the Swedenborgian church, Portland.

HARTFORD, Oct. 17th.—David Sewell, a live temperance Republican, formerly postmaster and merchant at East Sumner, is pleasantly situated with his wife and two grandchildren at Exira, Audubon county, Iowa, and writes me on the 10th, saying: "We have had one of the hardest battles we ever had in this State. The battle is over; the victory won. We have made a clean sweep in this county. It reminds me of the battles we used to have in old Maine."

Henry C. Ricker, of the Line School District Hartford, says: "I bought last spring one pound of potatoes called Seedling No. 103, of Henry Merrill, West Newbury, Mass., for one dollar. He offered a premium of ten dollars for the best yield, I received. Number of hills planted, 46; weight of entire crop, 78 lbs.; weight of merchantable potatoes, 64 lbs. Mr. M. wrote me that the next largest yield was 60 pounds." If there was a larger yield of any sort I should like to hear of it.

MASON, Oct. 12.—As our farm crops have been nearly gathered a fair estimate can now be made of results of farm operations of the present season, and I think we may say without fear of being classed as a grumbler that on the whole they have been rather disappointing. Hay, our great staple crop was truly abundant, but the loss of our usual fall feed in consequence of the drought has made large drafts on our fodder supply, so there can be no great surplus left over. The price of farm stock has fallen off within the last two months nearly twenty per cent. In fact there are no sales just now, and it is a big disappointment to many farmers who failed to sell early. Sheep and lambs are very low as compared with past years. Potatoes a fair crop, but no sales. Thirty cents per bushel is all I have heard offered for them. No one is willing to sell at that price. Corn was badly injured by drought and frost—not one half of a good crop has been harvested. Ears short, and shrivel badly in drying. Those who cut up their corn immediately after the first heavy frost got much better corn and nicer fodder than those who let it stand till after a second freeze. Fodder corn and late oats were nearly ruined—frost-bitten fodder a poor stuff. We have no apples. It is no use to say, "half crop," or "quarter crop," many of us who have usually an abundance for family use, and some to sell, have no apples to use—Daniel B. Grover of West Bethel, a large farmer, told me a few days ago, that last year he sold one hundred and fifty barrels, and this year if his family had apples to use he should have sold them, and his case is not an isolated one, for it is general through this section. Much more attention is paid to raising onions in this section than formerly, and they have done wonderfully well. No crop pays better when they are properly cared for. The sweet corn business here was a sad failure. Some farmers who made it their leading crop do not get a dollar from it except as fodder.

A. S. Bean and wife of Littleton, Mass., are making a short visit to Mason. Mr. Bean has been very unwell, and thought he should be obliged to leave his business entirely, but has so far recovered, as to hope to attend his work during the winter. They have sold their farm in Mason, to Alphaeus I. Bean of West Bethel. He buys it so as to use the house for a boarding house, as it is near his steam mill.

Hiram Putnam has been very feeble for some time, but is a little better now.

A. Q. Paine is out of health and unable to attend to his farm work.

Young pigs are plenty here this fall. But little plowing done as yet, G. H. B.

OXFORD.—The matched game of base ball between H. O. Blake, esq., and Dr. Stevens proved to be a most exciting affair. All Oxford, Gumbel and Androscoggin counties were ransacked for the best players. Notwithstanding the rain, quite a crowd came together. A. S. Fuller acted as umpire. John Robinson acted as captain of Dr. Stevens's nine, and his shrewd management was the chief cause of Stevens's victory, as three scores at least are due to him which would not otherwise have been made. Mr. Robinson also made a big strike—knocking the ball clear over the fence in front. E. C. Hanscomb, George F. Edwards, A. L. Robinson, Glover and a Mr. Cushman from Hebron, all did some very heavy striking. As Blake and Stevens had probably never played a game before, they did get in a very heavy work; but as they undoubtedly did better than the writer would have been in their place, he will refrain from all criticism. Score—14 to 11 in favor of Dr. Stevens, so Blake had to "pony up" on the oysters.

E. C. Ambrose, our lawyer, has purchased an orange farm in Florida, and moved there with his family.

I wrote a reply to "Flash's" most entertaining criticism, but the editor refused to publish it for fear of hurting some one's feelings. This sudden display of tenderness on his part is astonishing.

A. WARD, JR.

PARIS.—Surveyor Green is laying a plank walk from the corner of Lincoln Street to the residence of J. T. Clark on Maine Street.

A gallon of gin was seized at the express office, Saturday. It was directed to a young man who will have an opportunity to appear before a justice and prove that it was all for his own personal use. It is going to be hard work to smuggle much of the stuff into this village. The boys have been very quiet and orderly of late and we are sorry to see this attempt to revive a bad habit, particularly just at a time when all hands should be steady in order to keep up with the rush of orders for sleds.

Mr. B. S. Doe is repairing the Parsonage. Owing to a combination of circumstances Mr. Cochrane was obliged to move his family in before the building was put in order.

A. C. Jones the machinist of So. Paris has made a new iron frame and yoke for hanging the church bell. This was made necessary in the course of repairs preparatory to putting in the town clock.

The stock holders of Paris Hill Manufacturing Co. and the citizens of Paris Hill, are requested to meet at the Academy next Saturday evening, Oct. 27th, to see if any action can be taken whereby a portion of the business of the Company may be retained at Paris Hill. Every person who owns a dollar's worth of property in this village—whether man or woman—is interested in this matter and should attend the meeting.

Rev. Mr. Hill will occupy the pulpit at the Universalist church next Sabbath a. m.

So. Paris, Oct. 20th.—Splendid weather for the season—quite a contrast to that of two weeks ago, when the ground was white with snow; now due long comfortable evenings, with the hunters' moon at its full—just the time for paring bees, pleasure rides and surprise parties or roller skating. Better some rational and enlivening recreation of the kind than inhaling the doubtful atmosphere of saloons and groceries redolent with tobacco-smoke, profanity and obscene jokes; or the rude rough-and-tumble kissing games of the everlasting "sociable" so long sanctioned by the so-called best society (?). But enough of moralizing; the public must have a record of our "daily happenings" and local gossip.

Our rural serenity has been disturbed by two disastrous fires within a short time past. First, the farm buildings of E. A. Brooks, occupied by J. A. Deering and family, about two miles south of the village on Fore Street, were burned on the 12th inst., together with all his crops, farming tools, household furniture, two hogs and a horse. This is a very hard blow for Mr. Deering, who has always been a hard working man in moderate circumstances, and especially at this season of the year with scant time to make provision for winter it is all the harder to bear. The fire is supposed to have been set by sparks from a passing locomotive, as the barn next to the railroad, here but a few rods away, and the grass ground between had the appearance of being just burned over, showing conclusively that the fire must have been communicated in this way. Total loss estimated at about $1,600; insured for $600. Next, the proprietors of the pulp mill, known as the Jackson Mills Co., had for an appetizer, last Wednesday morning, the news that the mill with all its contents was in ashes, having burned shortly before midnight the previous night. Cause of fire unknown. Total loss estimated at $15,000. Insurance on mill and stock, $10,000, placed in five of the strongest companies. The owners are D. N. True and A. G. Wilson of this place and Chas. Morgan of Portland. This fire throws some 12 to 15 persons out of employment.

The New Fruit Evaporator of Messrs. Holden & Pierce is now running at full blast, with a crew of about twelve young men and girls at work preparing the apple, and one man to run the evaporator day and one night. They prepared seventy-five bushels last Wednesday. They pay from 25 cents to 35 cents per bushel for the apples.

The first or basement story of the sled factory is up and boarded and first floor laid and two upper stories will be up and boarded in a few days more. The masons have commenced work on the big chimney which will be sixty-five feet high and 7-1/2 feet square at the base.

E. M. Thayer, our veteran horseman has moved into Mrs. Stowell's rent on Pleasant St. He has some handsome young horses in his stable.

E. F. Bowker has lately taken one of F. A. Thayer's tenements.

Mel Cummings has moved into Mrs. Dudley's on Hill Street.

V. A. Greenleaf has lately set up house-keeping at Mrs. Giles's on Gothic Street, and Mr. Dunn has moved his household goods from over True's store to Auburn. Truly this has been a moving month.

H. N. Bolster has just built a brick platform in front of his store with granite curbing—a great improvement over the old style plank platform, always breaking and giving out. W. A. Frothingham has the stone hauled for a similar platform for his store.

It would be a grand idea to have some brick or concrete sidewalks in our village, and especially around Market Square where every building has a platform of different height and material. In going from the hotel to the post-office one has to either walk in the street or bounce along over three or four stone platforms each of a different level, when there should be one straight walk of uniform grade. And the same difficulty is experienced on the opposite side of the square from Mr. H. Gerry's to Thayer Bros.' meat market.

Happening in Dr. Davis's office, recently, we found him busily engaged fitting a set of teeth to the model of a very diffimouth—that is, with the jaws such shape as to make it a very difficult matter to make the teeth match at all and with the arch too spongy to hold an ordinary upper plate. This difficulty the Dr. overcame by disposing the air chambers in a manner altogether different from the ordinary method, and by skillful manipulation brought the teeth together as they should be, thus getting a splendid fit where it seemed utterly impossible. His uniform success in difficult cases brings him many persons who have hitherto despaired of having any teeth.

The popularity of the skating rink continues unabated, as why should it not? Jones's Orchestra furnishes excellent music; everything is civil and in order, no vulgarity or noisy demonstration being allowed. It is frequented by the most respectable people from our three villages of Norway, Paris Hill and So. Paris. Not only by the young, but by many of older growth, and nearly all the professions are represented, and, altogether, it is a splendid recreation and a highly respectable place for any, old or young, to pass a pleasant evening.

—The Gazette in an article disseminating our prohibitory laws and statutes, with apparent approval the following from the Boston Courier: "In Lewiston, more drunkards are to be seen on the streets than in any city of corresponding size in Massachusetts." Lewiston, Me., population about 20,000, and Lowell, Mass., population about 60,000, are both manufacturing cities having a mixed population nearly identical. In Lowell last year there were 1760 arrests for drunkenness, one to about four hundred of the population, or less than one-tenth as many arrests proportionally for drunkenness in Lewiston as in Lowell. If it be said by anyone that there is less strictness in Lewiston and other Maine cities in arresting intoxicated persons, he will find on inquiry of our present democratic Mayor and Board of Aldermen, who have charge of the police, as well as past officials of Massachusetts cities, that there is and has been even greater strictness in arresting intoxicated persons here than in Massachusetts cities.—Lewiston Journal.

Oxford Democrat.

PARIS, MAINE OCTOBER 23, 1883.

SUPPLEMENT.

Newspaper Decisions.
1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the office—whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of fraud.

For the Democrat.
"MAINE WOMEN."

Under the above title the Lewiston Journal recently gave some interesting items regarding a few of the sixty-six women of our state who have been makers of books; at the same time alluding gracefully to others whose talents would warrant them a place upon the same roll of honor. It was with peculiar pride that we listened to hear the Journal say, "An Oxford county woman whose poems have occasionally been contributed to the Lewiston Journal during the past ten years under the nom de plume of 'Kate Kendall,' in our judgement is as fine a poet as the State has ever produced. Longfellow only excepted." Now we will leave it to the DEMOCRAT, who for half a century has so impartially judged matters local and matters foreign, if the Journal's compliment be not sufficient to send a thrill of pride through the heart of every child of old Oxford? We seem to see the wise old DEMOCRAT nodding assent—for nothing so stirs the blood in his veins as to hear of the success of any born within his broad domain. Sure of his venerable approval, we venture a step farther in our self-congratulations, and claim for Buckfield the honor of being the birth-place and early home of the fair "Kate"—at mention of whose name memory flies back to early years, when by her gentle sway in the school-room she won our childish love. When, a few years later on, we had arrived at the doubtful dignity of occasional editors of the lyceum paper, our position was fraught with no little anxiety, since desirable contributors were few, and their patience could hardly be expected to be equal to our repeated demands. Poetry, real and genuine, was especially rare in our periodical, and it was with profound gratitude that we were able at intervals to give our audience verses from the pen of our friend and former teacher, "Kate Kendall." Her poems even then had a pathos and a sweetness of their own, and it is with real pleasure we find them now taking such high rank in the estimation of the Journal.

Going back to those days of trial in the editorial chair, there rises to meet me the face and form of one, now passed away from earth, to whom belongs no mean place upon the list of talented Maine women; as all who are acquainted with her poems will testify. Through long years the name of "Oithona" was familiar to the readers of the DEMOCRAT, as well as to those of other journals in the State; and her thoughts, ever gracefully expressed, were always helpful to others. With her tender sympathy for the sorrowing, and genuine joy for those who rejoiced, and her keen appreciation of the Divine realities of life, her verses could hardly fail of reaching the heart of the reader. Amid all her cares, her interest in and support of the lyceum paper, as a means of elevation for the youth of the town, was a tower of strength to the oft-tired and overworked editor; and the name of Mary Prentiss Cummings will ever be held in grateful remembrance by one to whom she was so often "A friend in need." Mrs. Cummings was emphatically an Oxford County woman; by birth, by life-long residence, and by an unflinching love for her native hills and valleys. To Paris, Sumner and Buckfield belonged jointly the honor of her name; while the fragrance of her memory is scattered far and wide, wherever her poems were known and read.

Since these reminiscences are prompted by the purest patriotism, and an honest pride in whatever tells to the advantage of our beloved old Oxford, it may not be entirely amiss to recall the memory of our one-time acquaintance, and who can never be forgotten by us, since we have so often voiced our love of home and country in words of her composing. So far as we know, the author is still living, and it may be that her verses have been published, but if so we have never seen them; and being somewhat tired of copying them for every native of Oxford who hears them, we venture, upon our own responsibility, to send them to the printer, hoping the author will graciously forgive the audacity of the act, and sure that we need no forgiveness from our readers for giving them.

"OLD OXFORD."
"The hills of Old Oxford, how stately they rise,
In the wilderness of grandeur to blend with the skies,
With their fair azure outlines, and tall ancient trees,
Old Oxford, my birth-place, I love thee for these.
The woods of Old Oxford, so verdant and high;
Though rocky by the tempests of ages once they lie,
Romance dims thy green arches, and speaks in thy breeze,
Old Oxford, my birth-place, I love thee for these.
The streams of Old Oxford, that roar as they go,
Or seem in their stillness but dreaming to flow;
O bright guide the sunbeam their march to the sea,
Old Oxford, my birth-place, I love thee for these.
The vales of Old Oxford, that cradle her streams,
Or smile in their beauty like land in dreams,
O may thy heart treasure its seraphim there!
Even more than thy mountains and forests there,
Old Oxford, my birth-place, I love thee for these.
God bless thee, Old Oxford, dear land of my birth,
And thy children that wander afar o'er the earth,
Thou' not my country! where'er my lot may be,
Take thou to thy bosom, these ashes at last."

OUR PUZZLE CORNER.
 (Communications for this Department should be sent to the editor, W. H. EASTMAN, East Sumner, Me.)
 I.—RHYMING DECIPHERMENTS.
 A little boy went in the—
 To try to find his "Noah's"—
 "A light would aid you much my friend—"
 His mother called; he still went—
 And as he went he proudly—
 "I'm sure I do not need it—"
 Just then he stumbled over a—
 That had been standing in the—
 At on the carpet he fell—
 That he was hurt he would not—
 A haecook next lay in his—
 He then fell against a music—
 He said, "I'll not try this—"
 Much time I'm sure that I shall—
 "If mother's call I do not—"
 To carry in my hand a—
