Much Dissatisfaction Felt

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed about not having street lights and it would seem that the complaints are just. A party remarked to us this week that it was pretty tough to go out during the day and see the water flowing over the dam, and then at night find it all shut off and the streets in total darkness. If the water is needed by the leatherboard, as it is claimed it is, to keep things running and give employment to people, why should not the firm or town buy coal to furnish power to run the same? People who pay for commercial lighting are certainly worthy of some consideration.

A lady who was in the office a day or two since said she entirely lost her way the other night and it reminded her of the time when Old Joe Littlefield, familiarly known as "Uncle Joe," used to light the street lights. All the pleasant moonlight nights the lamps were trimmed and burning brightly, but the dark rainy nights the old lamp-lighter would never light them, but would say if questioned: "Let people stay to home dark, stormy nights," and we guess while the idea has not been expressed in so many words that this is about what the sentiment is at the present time.

We hear complaints from West Kennebunk citizens the same way. Before the streets were lighted everyone carried lanterns and it would be a good idea to go back to this old time method if there are to be no street lights, but the trouble is, people do not know what to do as the lights will come on perhaps for ten or fifteen minutes the first part of the evening then off they go for the rest of the night. What is to be done about the matter? Don't kick all the time, good voters, take some action in the matter and straighten things out.

P.S. Since writing the above we learn that Mrs. Wm. Barry was quite badly injured one night last week by falling into a gutter as she was going across the street. Henry Durrell lost his way so that parties were obliged to look him up. Saturday night things seemed to reach about the limit when many of the stores were obliged to close, the moving pictures were shut off and those who did any business were obliged to resort to the old kerosene lamp, and an accident happened over the river; and thus it goes. Monday night the lights were on, but Tuesday night darkness again predominated.

Trolley Notes

Steam heaters have been installed in some of the Atlantic Shore Line cars and the large stoves in the corner give the cars a peculiar appearance.

The Atlantic Shore Line has in its employ a very versatile trio of brothers who are most useful as they can turn their hands to a number of things. They are Victor Erastus Amee. Amos Amee and Percy Amee. Victor Amee is head dispatcher of the western division also a motorman and conductor. He understands the different positions from A to Z and is a most valuable man to the road. Amos divides his time between the duties of a motorman and that of a pilot and captain on the ferry boat. Percy holds papers as an engineer of steam boats. He is also a conductor. Taking it all in all they make quite a noted trio.

Two cars heavily loaded with passengers, from Badgers Island for the navy yard, on the Atlantic Shore Line, came together at Kittery, Sunday afternoon, in a rear-end collision on account of the brake failing to work on the second car. Passengers on the vestibule of each car jumped, while those inside were tossed about and some of them badly shaken up. Both cars were badly smashed and traffic delayed all along the line.

Odds and Ends

The money the government pays the old soldiers in pensions is at once put into circulation and tradesman of every community get most of it. It is not the ideal dollar of the nabob, but the nimble dollar of the poor man going about like a missionary and doing good in the channels of trade.

No less than 246 foreign students have registered at the University of Pennsylvania, representing forty-four different countries. Pennsylvania is the most cosmopolitan of all the country's colleges. Nearly every state in the Union and all but three counties in the state of Pennsylvania are represented.

Fred B. Averill, editor of the Sanford Tribune, has leased the old town hall at Springvale and will introduce the latest and best in moving pictures and vaudeville. W. E. Rogers is to be a partner in the concern. The lease does not preclude the possibility of securing the hall for local and traveling performances.

Did you ever notice how many people there are, who seldom, if ever, speak well of any other person? Did you ever notice yourself falling into that habit? Perhaps unconsciously, until very noticeable and at once disgusting to others. Life for each is hard enough without having others to magnify faults and give them publicity. Why make life harder for any person? Watch yourself and don't allow the habit to get so strong a hold you can't break it, and go about speaking ill of all you know. There are good traits in everyone.

Every soldier in the regular army will wear the campaign hats Montana style in the future as orders have been issued by the officials in Washington that hereafter the men will wear their hats the same way and not in any old way as has been the custom. Previous to the orders just received the men could wear their hats with the single crease in the center, many having worn their hats in other shapes but today the change was made and every man has adopted the mode a la Montana, which is with the crown in a pyramid form with sides, front and back dented.

Situation Alarming

From reports which have been received at the department of agriculture at Augusta concerning the gipsy moth situation in York county, it is learned that men of the state field force are still finding the infestations in such numbers that it means a winter's work right in that section alone. The largest infestations which have been found since the work began have been located in and about York village, and the moths have become so thoroughly established in that locality that they can only be routed by the most determined efforts.

Capt. E. E. Philbrook of Portland, who has charge of the field work, was in Augusta Tuesday, having just come from the scene of operations. and brought with him a section of a tree enclosed in a box with a glass top as a sample of what the gipsy moths will do when once they gain a foothold. The piece of tree was dead, and was literally covered with gipsy egg clusters and pupa cases, some of the egg clusters being apparently three or four years old.

The specimen came from the Edwin Moulton place near York Corner, where in one day alone 2,974 egg clusters were taken, while in one week the men found over 600 egg clusters, which were more than were taken in the state last year all together. On the lot in question a portable saw mill was operated some time ago and there are now 450, 000 feet of lumber in board piles in that vicinity, and owing to the fact that the moths have deposited their egg clusters all through these piles the men will be there about all winter.

Ogunquit

Charles L. Littlefield, who is on the warship Alabama, was at home on a two days' leave of absence last week. He has many interesting stories to tell of the different parts of the world he has been in.

Alexander Maxwell killed a nice pig last week that dressed 175 pounds.

A. S. Wyman shot a large buck deer recently in one of the pastures at the cliff.

Archie Littlefield and Roscoe Hayes have been camping out for a week and hunting for deer.

Mr. Arthur Ramsdell spent one day last week in Portland.

Miss Gertrude Garvin was in town Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. James Cornish was at his home in Portsmouth, Monday.

Mr. Ewing Hatch has been suffering from a severe cold.

On account of the pastor's illness, there were no services at the M. E. church last Sunday.

Miss Nancy Huff passed away early last Sunday morning. Her age was 79 years. She has been ill for a long while.

Last Saturday night Mr. Jude Hutchins' house caught on fire, and when his brother, who lives in the next house, got to the door it was impossible to get in, the flames were so hot. The house and man were burned before anything could be done. The cause is unknown.

Mr. Archie Fenderson is having a week's vacation.

Mr. E. C. Hatch has been appointed to run the snow plow this winter on the A. S. L. R. R.

Wells

(Wells Depot.)

Died at her home in Boston recently, Olive Getchell, wife of Frank Neal, age 67 years. Mrs. Neal was the only daughter of Ephraim and Elmira Getchell of this place. She is survived by her husband and one son, Frank Neal, Jr., also one brother, Seth Getchell, of Providence, R. I., and three sisters, Mrs. Myra Howland of Rhode Island, and Misses Susie and Addie Getchell of Boston. The remains were brought here for interment in the family lot.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Littlefield of Wells Branch were guests of Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Osborne last week.

Mrs. Nellie Russell of South Berwick has been visiting friends here.

William Shaw has moved his family to the lower village. They occupy the house owned by G. G. Hatch.

Frank Neal and son Misses Susie and Addie Getchell and Agnes Elliott of Boston, and Eugene Getchell of Providence, R. I., were in town recently.

The residence of Perley C. Goodwin at Wells Depot was entered by thieves Tuesday, Nov. 17, and two purses containing money were taken. The robbery took place in the early afternoon. Mr. Goodwin went to his work at 1 o'clock and at 1.30 Mrs. Goodwin went out to visit her sister, who lives a short distance away. She was careful to leave the dog in the house. At about 2 o'clock her dog came to the house where she was calling, but thinking he had by some means got out, she took little notice of the fact. Later, upon going home, she found her house in confusion, the sideboard drawers in the dining room were pulled out and the contents scattered about as also were the contents of the bureau drawer. The beds were pulled apart and every part of the house gone through. Of the purses taken one belonged to Miss Nellie Littlefield, a teacher who boarded at Mr. Goodwin's. The other was the property of Mrs. Goodwin.

The house is situated on the main traveled road and surrounded by other houses. The thief entered by a rear window, yet in plain sight of the road and three other residences, unseen by anyone. It is one of the boldest and most mysterious robberies ever in Wells village. There is at this time no clue.

Cape Porpoise

Mrs. C. S. Bryant, who is spending the winter at the Cape with her husband, engineer of the Elizabeth W. Numan, has gone to her home in Bristol for a two weeks' visit.

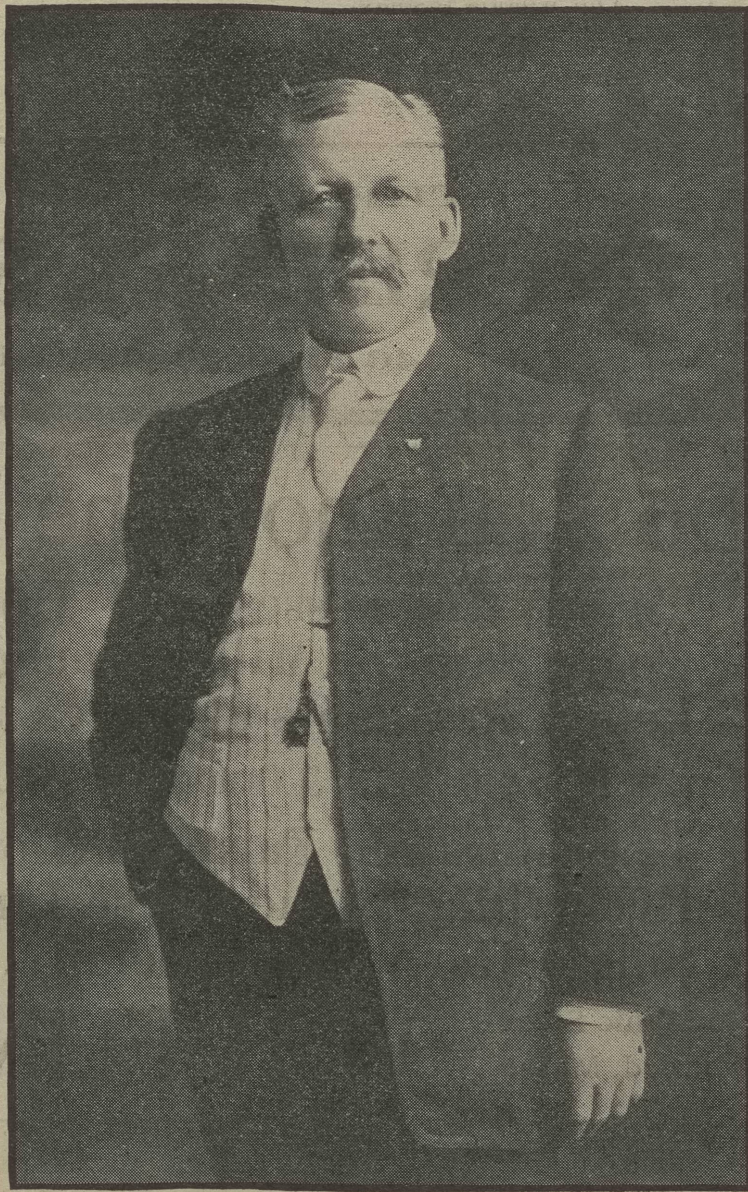

Miss Martha Huff, who has been ill, is very much better.

The fifth lecture in the course given by the pastor, Rev. William Wood, was held at the church Monday evening, "The Diamond Fields of Dixie," was listened to by a good sized audience and the illustrated song, "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," by Mrs. Chick, sounded sweeter than many a later song.

While at work in the woods on Tuesday of this week, Christopher Perkins met with a painful accident, the axe slipping, severing part of the toes from the foot. Drs. Barker and Bourne dressed the foot and with the loss of but two toes, it is thought after the healing of the wound, he will escape lameness.

GRAND OPENING

Many Local People Attend the Opening of W. E. Youland Co.'s Store in Biddeford.

W. E. YOULAND, PROPRIETOR.

Last Friday was the opening of the new, enlarged store of the W. E. Youland Co. of Biddeford, and a number of people from here and the surrounding towns were present to listen to the delightful music and receive a dainty souvenir in the shape of a neat celluloid pocket calendar, containing a picture of the store plan on the outside and pages on which to write the list of articles wanted.

The store as it now is, is one of the best in York county, having 15,000 sq. feet of floor space. The arrangement of the departments on the street floor is much the same as it was before, but the second floor has been entirely transformed. The walls are beautifully tinted in a champagne shade, furnished with a border of leaves in delicate shades of green. The carpet in the suit and cloak department is of a beautiful moss green shade while beautiful mirrors and upholstered circular seat add further charms to the place. In one corner there is a circular table of oak, comfortable chairs, and here you will find stationery and telephone at your service. There is also a fine fittingroom and toilet connected with this department.

The private office of Mr. Youland is very attractive, facing Main street as it does, and overlooking the entire floor. This is artistically furnished and the pictures of the proprietor and his wife, also many views of the sunny south land a charm peculiar to itself.

Mr. Youland came to Biddeford eleven years ago and bought out "Sanborn Bros." His constantly increasing business shows what square dealings and persistent effort will do.

The W. E. Youland store is now an organization with Mr. W. A. Lumb vice president; Mrs. E. R. Robertson, secretary and Mrs. Youland is one of the directors. Mr. Youland is ably assisted by a number of the most obliging clerks to be found in any department store in the state.

We would advise our readers, if they are going out of town to trade (but, mind, we are not advising you to) to visit the W. E. Youland Department Store, where full value will be received every time, and where you cannot fail to find something to your liking.

Mrs. G. P. Moulton was in Biddeford last Friday.

Saco Road

We learn, with surprise, that our old schoolmate, George Hutchins, has taken to himself a better half in the person of Miss Jennie Frye. We think this the most sensible thing he could have done after many years of single blessedness. We congratulate them and wish them all happiness in their new relations.

The Samoset Club are talking of giving a drama at Miltum in Parvo Hall in the near future.

Mrs. R. A. Fiske was the guest of her sister, Mrs. I. S. Ross, Wednesday night.

I. S. Ross has set the monument in the square which will be veiled until Memorial Day when the corner stone will be laid and dedication services will be held by the children. This will make a fine addition to our hitherto unsightly square.

D. W. Hadlock has moved into his sister's, Mrs. Mary Washburn's house.

Mrs. Mary Goodrich has moved into the Tuman house.

Ernest Benson, our popular blacksmith, is spending a few days in Lawrence, Mass., with his friend, Walter Jeffrey.

The lectures at the M. E. church are better every night. We wish they would continue all winter.

May Mitchell, who attends the high school, has been absent part of the week on account of having a very bad time with her teeth.

Moving, settling, etc., has taken all our time of late so we have had no time to write, but would like to say a word about the school fair and entertainment although a little late. The fair netted between fifty and sixty dollars, and the entertainment was fine. There are some beautiful little singers in our schools and they did credit to their teacher, Miss Rose Seavey, who is to be congratulated. We would not forget the primary teacher, Miss Gertrude Young, and her little folks, whom we had the pleasure of visiting recently. Such bright, smart little scholars, and we heard them sing, too, each one taking their part through so nicely; it is really surprising to hear how fine they sing, and then the teacher has them draw and the little pictures were really fine. Such a difference as there is between these school days and our own, when we used to read and spell twice during the day, and the rest of the time was spent in wishing it was time to go home, or swinging our feet, which could not touch the floor, the seats were so high; but with all the discomfort, we wish we were a child again, such care-free, happy days with father, mother, brothers and sisters. We are glad to see the children happy, may their lives be ever as innocent and happy of now, is now our sincere wish.

Mrs. George Hutchins is quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Ross will entertain the family party who were entertained by their parents last Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Fiske were guests at Kennebunkport Village, Sunday.

In MEMORY OF MISS CAROLINE GOODWIN OF KENNEBUNK LOWER VILLAGE

She is not lost, the loved and cherished Whom God hath called his purpose to fulfill, Naught of her love and sympathy hath perished, And oft unseen she hovers around us still.

There's but a veil that hides her from our vision, Whose earthly form beneath the damp sod sleeps, She has but gone before to joys Elysian, Then wherefore do we mourn in anguish deep.

She is not lost to us though lonely hearted We yearn for the dear face seen no more, Oh, no, not lost to us, the dear departed She waits for us upon the other shore.

Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pie

YOU may talk about your foreign cooks and all the things they make,

The thousand dainty dishes that they stew and boil and bake; You may prate about their wondrous skill in culinary arts, How deftly they can manufacture puddings, pies and tarts; Go praise the French and German chefs and the Italians, too, For making salads, sauces, soups and fancy dishes new, But for a toothsome morsel upon which I can rely Just give to me a solid wedge of Yankee pumpkin pie!

Let those of fashionable tastes turn up the nose in pride And think it quite plebeian to be simply satisfied; Let them eat their pate de foie gras, their truffles and such stuff With foreign names, suspicious looks and odors rank enough;

JUST GIVE TO ME A SOLID WEDGE OF YANKEE PUMPKIN PIE!

Let them eat those airy pastry puffs they think so very nice Because they've got outlandish names and cost a mighty price, But, say, to curb your appetite and your stomach satisfy There's nothing like a great big chunk of Yankee pumpkin pie!

Roast beef may have more nutriment, more body building worth; Veal, mutton, lamb, be nourishing and stretching of your girth; Your chicken, duck or turkey may suit palates very fine, But these can take a back seat when I'm passing down the line. Fish, flesh and fowl may serve to stay the appetites of some, But you must treat me better when I to your table come. Leave out the high toned viands, let each dainty dish go by, If I can get my face fast in a piece of pumpkin pie!

—John S. Grey in New York Tribune.

HIS TURKEY WAS CROW.

Why the Fine Old Gentleman Hates Practical Politics.

"Bluest Thanksgiving I ever spent?" mused the fine old gentleman who has an unconquerable antipathy to practical politics. "It stands out in my memory like an obelisk on a plane, and it was not so very long ago either."

"I had been induced that fall to run for an important public office. It was done against my better judgment and under great pressure, but when a man enters such a fight he wants to win. I was in a close district and determined to put up the very best fight that the circumstances would permit. I advertised at once for an extra stenographer and from the many who responded selected a beautiful, bright and dashing young woman who justified my immediate faith in her ability. She did all my private correspondence, knew as much about the inside of the campaign as I did, working day and night with a willingness that was surprising, and even took from one of my shrewdest advisers the list of voters in the strongest section with which I had to contend, with full instructions as to how the most influential persons among them could be won to my cause. It was great work, and yet I fell several hundred short of the normal party vote."

"My successful opponent lived in a neighboring town and graciously invited me to be his guest on the following Thanksgiving. It would have looked surly to refuse, and I went. It was really an admirable social function, but the few hours I put in there were torture. The host met me with a hearty hand clasp. Turning he said, 'My wife.' Resplendent in satin and jewels I saw my stenographer. 'Love and war,' she murmured. 'He thinks I was visiting my old home in New England.' I held my peace, but that fatted turkey tasted like crow."—Detroit Free Press.

Fatherly Advice.

"The farmer," said the young turkey, "seems to be very fond of me. He throws the choicest morsels of corn to me every day and in many ways shows his admiration for me." "Well," advised the old turkey, "I wouldn't let it go on if I were you. You are apt to lose your head over it."

THANKSGIVING IN FRANCE.

M. Blanc's Surprise For His American Guests.

"The most un-American Thanksgiving I ever spent was in a French hotel ten years ago," says a woman contributor to the New York Globe. "The proprietor was a friendly old soul and liberal to a fault. He not only invited all the guests in the house to dinner, but he sent invitations to ex-guests as well. One family who had spent the previous winter with him had gone home to America, leaving their daughter at school. Old M. Blanc sent an invitation to the school, and the demoiselle Americaine and a governess came to Paris and spent the day at the hotel. I had a country house near Paris then, but M. Blanc did not forget me either. So I went into Paris, taking my two girls with me. The hotel was a small one, but well known, and it was a rendezvous for many interesting Americans. The tables were decked with holly and mistletoe. M. Blanc in his ardor had mixed up our American fetes. He moved about, smiling mysteriously and whispering to questioners that he had a surprise in store for us—a dessert which would make us all feel as if we were not in Paris at all, but back in that faroff 'chez vous' whence we had come. There were much laughing and merriment, and we drank M. Blanc's health in his best wine as a mark of appreciation. His waiters soon appeared tottering beneath the weight of a huge plum pudding wreathed in holly and bearing an American and a French flag. Of course we heaped him with praise. He beamed and beamed, poured brandy over his chef d'oeuvre and lighted it, served it himself and said to each person as they thanked him: 'Did I not tell you you would feel chez vous? It is good and hot. Your national dish! Will you have some more fire?'"

"YOUR NATIONAL DISH."

The Athletes' Dinner. De Style—What makes you think the Farrants are going to have a regular athletic Thanksgiving dinner? Gunbusta—Why, they had their turkey killed with a golf club and stuffed with tennis balls.

Turkey Test

It Was Great, but It Drove One Man to Drink.

He had been gazing long and earnestly at the rows of turkeys hanging from the hooks of a stand in Washington market, and the poultryman began to eye him suspiciously. He did not look like a thief, the mild look in his eye denoting anything but the gleam of acquisition. Still, his actions were not calculated to inspire confidence.

Every now and then he would walk up to the rack and feel a gobbler's breastbone, then stand off and take a side look at the fowl, moving around presently and gazing at it from the other side. In this way he would admire it from all points of view and seemed to derive immense satisfaction from the observation.

The poultryman was fast becoming nervous over these strange proceedings, and to put an end to his anxiety as to the man's intentions he approached him and asked:

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

The man started and for a moment appeared to be disconcerted; but, recovering himself somewhat, he blushingly stammered:

"Why, you see, I don't quite know yet."

"Well, it's about time you did," gruffly replied the poultryman.

"Ye-yes—I suppose so, but I don't. I want to get a turkey, but I want to be quite sure of my ground before I proceed."

The poultryman looked at him still more suspiciously.

"I dare say you will think me a little peculiar," continued the stranger, "but the fact is my wife is not very well, and she has sent me to buy the turkey for our Thanksgiving dinner. Now, I never bought a turkey in my life, and I don't want to make a mistake in it. I have full instructions from my wife, but still it requires great care to carry them out."

"Oh, if that's all," said the poultryman, reassured, "I will help you out."

"You will?" asked the man eagerly.

"With pleasure. What's the matter with this one?" And he took down a turkey and held it up to view.

"Does his breast move in or out under pressure?" asked the purchaser doubtfully.

"Try it for yourself."

"It seems flexible," said the man, gingerly pressing his fingers upon the part mentioned. "You know, my wife is a great judge of these things, and she told me all about it. Now about the color of the legs. They should be purplish blue, with just a tinge of gray."

"Well, there they are. You couldn't get anything nearer the description unless we painted them for you."

"No, no. I don't want 'em painted. She said the color should be natural. Now about the flesh. I want to pinch that and see that it is elastic."

"Well, pinch," said the dealer. The purchaser pinched and pinched until there was not an inch of the bird not fairly covered. Then he gave a sigh of satisfaction.

"That seems all right. But there's one thing more—the wings. You don't mind my twisting them according to my wife's instructions? She calls that the crowning test of tenderness." And he delicately turned them around as he would the knob of a door. This done, he opened the beak and looked into the mouth, devoting considerable time to a minute examination of the tip of the tongue. Finally he announced his satisfaction, paid for the turkey and started off with it.

He reached the door, then suddenly turned.

"Great heavens! I forgot to examine the flexibility of the spur, and without being backed by that all other tests are useless."

But the poultryman had vanished into a nearby saloon and at that moment was engaged in tuning up his nerves for the next customer.—New York Herald.

These Remarkable Sale Values May Seem Strange to some merchants. But we are no worshipers of traditional methods of merchandising. Old ideas must step aside for better new ones. We understand that some merchants intimate that we are "cutting our own throats" by offering good winter merchandise at reduced prices when winter is just beginning.

They only consider the intrinsic value of our goods and the sale prices we are quoting. They don't know the way we buy them—or the way you buy them. We will tell them the receipt, for we have no secrets.

We study the market—Watch it, search it and scour it. Buy when prices are lowest—pick up good goods at special commissions when we can whether we need them or not [this is important] always pay cash and get the discounts "spot cash" entitles us to. Then we are satisfied with very small profits. But we are fortified. Small profits make quick sales and speedy turnovers. Hence in the end we are gainers, even though they sell merchandise at these prices.

Special.

Our store will be open Wednesday evening till 10 o'clock, but will close all day Thanksgiving, Thursday, Nov. 26th. In connection with this we may add that very special low prices will be made on Garments, Suits, Furs, Dress Goods and Millinery on Friday and Saturday.
