

POMONA MEETS IN PHILLIPS

There was a largely attended meeting of the Pomona Grange at Phillips last Thursday. The degree was conferred on 28 candidates and 19 applications were filled in for the sixth degree which will be conferred in Farmington some time in October.

State Master Stetson was present and gave an interesting talk on subjects of interest to the patrons as the parcel post, telephone, etc.

There was a large attendance from the surrounding towns.

A short program was enjoyed, reading by Mrs. C. N. French and a solo by Mrs. W. E. Gates.

SHIPMENTS OF LIVE FOXES

A shipment of 126 cub foxes, estimated value $100,000, recently arrived in Vancouver on a Canadian Pacific railway steamer from Skagway, Alaska. Included in the lot were red, black and silver gray foxes, one pair of black foxes being estimated as worth $10,000 when full grown. The owner, who accompanies the shipment, collected them in northern Alaska and Yukon Territory, purchasing them from the white and Indian trappers. They are being shipped East to the fox farms in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and the Eastern States.

It is reported that since the opening of the season 219 live foxes, ranging from silver gray to cross, valued at $320,000, have been shipped from Edmonton to points in eastern Canada and the United States for breeding purposes. Included in this lot were ten young black foxes which were sold

NORTH FRANKLIN AGR'L SOCIETY HAS LARGEST FAIR IN HISTORY

More Cattle Than Ever Before Shown on These Grounds
---Many Interesting and Educational Features--- Twenty-five Fast Horses Entered for Races---
Friday Will Be Banner Day.

At the hour appointed for opening the cattle show and fair of the North Franklin Agricultural society for 1913 Tuesday, Sept. 23, at Toothaker Trotting Park the only indications of a fair visible from the entrance to the park were a few canvass tents near the judges' stand and two pairs of handsome hereford oxen contentedly grazing in the infield. These oxen are owned by a Mr. Ranger of Temple and had been driven here for exhibition and were very beautiful specimens of that excellent beef family.

The officers of the association early announced a postponement of the opening of the fair until the following day and the setting forward one day of the entire program. This was necessary on account of a rain storm that began Sunday noon,

Horses from a distance entered to compete for the purses offered for this fair, began to arrive Saturday afternoon. The stables at the track were soon filled and many found quarters in private stables near the grounds. Horsemen responded liberally to Secretary J. I. Harnden's invitation to come here and race and it is doubtful if a larger number of entries ever has been received at any previous meeting given by this association. Purses were offered for five classes, viz 2.50-2.35-2.25 Free-For-All and Two-year-olds.

There were 12 entries in the 2.50 class; 13 in the 2.35 class; 10 in the 2.25 class; nine in the Free-For-All and three in the Two-year-old; all trot and pace. Eight of the 12 entered in the 2.50 class were pacers. There were only two trotters among the 13 entries in the 2.35 class; but one in the 2.25 class and all the entries in the Free For All were pacers. The three entered in the two-year-old class were trotters.

The three fastest horses entered were Van Brown p. 2.13½ owned by Walter Bradford Strong; Brownette p. 2.13½, owned by Dr. A. L. Stanwood, Rumford and Prince Alfordly p. 2.15½, owned by Isaac Ellis, Rangeley. The animal which is by the fastest record sire and from the fastest record dam, of any entered here, is Queen Patchen, a young, clean-cut, black mare by Joe Patchen p. 2.01½; dam Helen R. p. 2.08½. She was entered by Ranny Lamy, Fall River, Mass. The one that ranks next to Queen Patchen in speed of sire and dam was Little Queen, a wiry nervy looking black mare by Dan Q. p. 2.07½; dam Goldie Wilkes p. 2.19½. She was bred and is owned by Dr. A. L. Stanwood, Rumford, Me.

The postponed opening day Wednesday, of the 62nd annual exhibition of the North Franklin Agricultural society, will go down in the annals of history as one of the most successful. It was declared by those who know that never were so many cattle seen in Toothaker park at one time.

There was Charles Lewis, of Strong, O. A. Ranger, Temple; Bert Noyes, Weld; F. E. Ladd, Temple; Charles Noyes, Raymond, Ross, N. E. Butler, C. O. Dill, and Dill Brothers of Phillips among the big exhibitors.

Great interest was evidenced in the poultry exhibit this year, a larger display than usual being shown. Some fine turkeys were shown by C. A. French of Temple and Will Ross of Phillips.

F. A. Phillips had one of the largest displays of poultry on the ground. It included different breeds of hens and chicks and guinea hens. Mrs. Weston Parker showed Rouen ducks and Rhode Island red chicks. B. Frank Savage showed Pekin ducks also.

The swine exhibit was one of much interest, too. Some beautiful white chesters were shown by Will Ross. The sheep were also much in evidence, W. J. Ross, W. W. Mitchell and Raymond Ross being the chief exhibitors.

The entries of cattle being so large no judging was done until noon, it being about 11.30 before the books were declared closed.

A walk through the grounds showed more than the usual number of tents while quite a lot of booths were in the hall, including an evaporator exhibited by the G. H. Ginn Company of Rutland, Vt, two cream separators and a couple of jewelry booths.

The entire afternoon was taken up with the cattle. By referring to the premium list it will be found who carried off the blue ribbons. The principal interest centered around the pulling of the big oxen. This was especially interesting this year, for when O. L. Ranger, "the little man with the big voice" gets out his big oxen, hitched up his suspenders, shifts his quid of tobacco to the other side of his mouth, the crowd all surge to the pulling ring to watch the fun, and it is fun, for we know of no one who has such an extensive vocabulary as Mr. Ranger when he gets to driving oxen. He'll put on a big load, give a gentle jab of the goad stick and then begin to holler hish, there Star, and away they'll go as if they enjoyed it!

C. F. Lewis is another good driver and his big oxen always obey his gentle commands uttered in his low toned voice.

F. E. Ladd was also there and the way the big fellows pulled for him was a caution. The interest did not abate until the sun began to go down, and the oxen were beginning to feel the need of their supper.

The trustees were satisfied with the gate receipts, for Treasurer Davenport reported $300 taken for the day.

The exhibition of fancy work in the hall promises to be a fine one. Miss Lillian Cushman has one of the most beautiful exhibits seen for many a long day. Mrs. Glidden Parker, Mrs. George Bangs, Mrs. Carroll True, Mrs. Howard Leavitt, Mrs. Clifford Cushman among those who have contributed specimens of needlework, and many more will bring in their quota before Thursday noon.

Mrs. Carroll True has some of the most exquisite crochet work. A beautiful dress made in panels of muslin and insertion, over a rose silk lining, a handsome petticoat and corset cover to match, comprises a part of the display.

The lower hall display is rather lacking as far as apples are concerned, but it is being made up by vegetables, especially potatoes. H. J. Wing has a fine farm display.

By noon Thursday the trustees expect to see one of the best displays ever seen here.

Messrs. George Lewis and son of South Strong, exhibited 15 pairs of steers and oxen. Among their ex-

ANNUAL OF 1913 ENJOYABLE EVENT

The King's Daughters celebrated their annual in Everett hall last Friday evening. In past years it has been their custom to hold this event at the close of their meetings in June before the summer recess, but they decided to make this change and it seemed to meet with satisfaction by the members.

The regular committee, Mrs. E. B. Currier, Mrs. C. E. Parker and Mrs. F. S. Haley had this affair in charge and it was successfully carried out to the letter.

The hall was transformed into a typical school room, with its maps, drawings and blackboards. Mrs. E. B. Currier made a most efficient "school-marm" and she had some very apt pupils. The primer class was considered her star class and composed of Ida Hersey, Edith Haley and Cherry Pratt.

The little pupils were in pinafores, hair in braids, etc.

A singing class in which Ida Hersey, Edith Haley and Cora Wheeler participated was much enjoyed as was the spelling match, Addie Parker and Ida Hersey choosing sides. Mrs. Parker's side won. There was also a recitation by Cherry Pratt. Mrs. George Bangs excelled the others in tearing out the best looking animal from paper with nothing but her fingers to work with.

The grim school board and committee sat in state near the teacher's desk and consisted of Maud Beedy, Etta Smith, Emma Shepard, Nan Leavitt, Grace Whorf, Eva Toothaker, Sarah Bangs.

At the noon hour they gathered with their dinner pails and baskets and enjoyed lunch as in the old school days.

This annual of 1913 will be reckoned as among the pleasantest of the many good times of the King's Daughters.

YOU ARE INVITED

To the rally day exercises of the Union Sunday school next Sunday morning at 12.10.

Miss Miriam Brackett and Mrs. E. H. Whitney will give a report of the Sunday school convention which met on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in Farmington and the superintendent, Miss Georgine Wilbur will tell the children the story of The Piper. This story will be taken from the prize play, The Piper, written by Josephine Preston Peabody.

MOOSE IN BREWER AND HOLDEN

One morning a few weeks ago Mrs. Ambrose Smith, who lives on the Wiswell road just over the Brewer line, saw a pair of adult moose—a full grown bull and cow, browsing about in the second-crop clover in the field of her brother, Mr. Cornelius O'Leary the wholesale dealer in milk. The animals nipped and nibbled about in the lush growth, apparently unafraid; then leaped the fence into the field of Dr. Edward Hart, and thence passed beyond sight in the direction of the telegraph road from Bangor to Ellsworth.

Nearly a week later Frankie Adams, some 15 years of age, went from the back door of his home on Elm street, Brewer to feed the stock. As he crept about the family woodpile in the morning mist a high bull moose stood in front of him as if to bar his way. Unaccustomed to seeing moose so near Penobscot river, the boy says he fell to the ground in a fright. When his consciousness returned, the moose had gone.

Fly Rod's Note Book

BY FLY ROD

One of the most enthusiastic fishermen I have met for many a day is also a poet. He can catch fish on the fly, he writes volumes of poems about fish and fishing, and he can also eat fish and dream of fish and fishing.

I have reference to my friend, Dr. J. W. Harper of Hartford, Conn., who recently has been enjoying life and adding to the happiness of others while at Upper Dam with his mother, and the following is the latest of his unpublished poems which hundreds of the readers of the Maine Woods will appreciate:

AN UPPER DAM DREAM.

Tomorrow I shall have my wish
That I may catch a "record" fish,
I feel it in my very bones,
I hear it in the thundering tones
Of the big sluice—they seem to say
"Tomorrow Doctor is your day."
Then take your four ounce rod and flies,
Beneath my swirling rapids lies
A square tail of a monstrous size,
For years the fisherman's despair,
Out on the flats he makes his lair,
Just as the weary day is done
And low descends the sitting sun.
In truth a wary, lusty trout,
'Tis up to you to take him out."
And so in answer to that call,
When evening shadows lengthening fall,
I'll hie me to my rock where surge
The waters o'er it and submerge,
And silhouetted, 'gainst the gloom
I'll make my cast out o'er the foam;
Out o'er the curling, swirling tide
With all the boats ranked, side by side,
For piscatorial scrimmages,
Whose occupants like images,
Sit in the evening breezes cool,
Like Gods above the sacred pool,
And cast, and cast, and cast again,
And keep on casting—all in vain—
Who smile at me—a tenderfoot,
Lone standing there as the taken root,
Then shall it there be up to me,
Before this brilliant gallery,
To doff my hat and make my bow
And then these amateurs show how,
And next a long lung cast or two,
Then from the depths and into view,
In answer to my tempting flies,
That loveliest sight to mortal eyes,
A lordly square tail, swirl and rise,
And then the strike and then—the prize,
And now comes in the fight and play,
Oh! 'tis indeed my record day!
The lunge, the plunge and the fear, the doubt,
The whirling reel goes singing out,
A music sweeter far to me
Then e'er the finest symphony.
Now straight across the pool he goes,
And I grow cold clean to my toes,
I wonder—have I line enough?
Ye gods! should it be rotten stuff!
I know 'tis of an ancient crop,
Great Heavens! will he never stop?

MR. CAMP OWNER

It is rumored over the state that no hunters are coming to Maine this fall on account of the new license law. Do you believe this? Do you believe that true sportsmen who love to place a good gun on their shoulders can find such a variety of hunting in any other state in the Union? We do not believe they can, and we also believe that Maine will have a good big bunch of hunters this fall.

IT IS NOW TIME TO ADVERTISE
for them, and Maine Woods offers publicity that is more valuable, to Maine camp owners, than that of any other publication.

SIXTY RECORD SALMON TAKEN

Birthday Surprise to Popular Lady Guest—Makes Perfect Golf Score.

(Special to Maine Woods.)
Upper Dam, Sept. 19—The famous old pool looks lonely and the water rushing over the dam makes music that is not accompanied by the click, click, of the reel, for the new law closed the pool on September 15. Although there were only eight fish, all salmon, caught the first 15 days of the month, it is doubtful if more than that number would have been taken had the 30 guests who have returned home remained here until the end of the month. Hundreds of dollars less will be left in this section this year than last, on account of the license law in force this year.

Mrs. F. R. Baker of Rumford Point plans to return with a party of friends and with Clayton Swett guide, spend ten days in camp at Richardson pond.

The record for the summer of fish taken on the fly tells that on May 31, E. M. Nicholas of Columbus, Ohio, opened the season by landing a 3 pound, 15 ounce salmon on a March Brown fly and he closed the season on September 14, by landing a 3 pound, 8 ounce salmon on a Silver Doctor fly. Four other salmon were taken the last week, Tom Miner of New York catching one of 3 pounds, 2 ounces. S. H. Palmer of Milford, Penn., brought a pair to net, one 4 pounds, and 5 ounces.

Looking over the record, I find 60 salmon, the largest 6 pounds, 3 ounces, caught by S. H. Palmer all that were taken this season from the pool and four trout, the largest 6 pounds, 5 ounces, caught by Hon. Arthur B. Calkins.

"If a few fish bring hundreds of dollars into this region and all taken on a fly, why is a foolish law passed that forbids it?" is a conundrum a New Yorker asks and "why?" is the only answer that is given.

The partridge hunting has been extra good this season. Tom Miner had all the law allows to take home. Mrs. F. R. Baker shot four the first day of open season.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Van Dusen of New York start homeward tomorrow. They make the trip in their touring car, going via the White Mountains and their friends expect to welcome them in June next season. Just before supper to-night they went for a walk up by the garden and saw four deer taking a lunch from the peas.

L. Arthur Reese of Philadelphia, with Geo. Thomas guide, is spending a few days in camp at Richardson pond.

Among those who returned home this week are Dr. J. B. Wister and family of Philadelphia; Dr. F. B. Gammy and family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Brown of Germantown, Penn.; S. H. Palmer and family of Milford, Penn.; Tom Miner and family of New York.

Last Friday was the birthday of one of the most popular ladies, who has been passing the season in came here, Mrs. Geo. F. Brown, and Mrs. Palmer invited the ladies to give her a surprise at her camp. It was a merry party who gave gifts and drank tea and served a birthday cake in honor of Mrs. Brown, who will not forget the surprise or the many friends who offered congratulations and wished her many returns of the day.

Harold White of Lewiston, who has been here for several weeks, plans to remain until he can take a deer home.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Marble of Lowell, Mass., who plan to remain until October, have been joined by Mrs. Marble's mother, Mrs. H. J. Talbot of Lowell.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Dougherty of Syracuse, N. Y., plan to remain until there is snow in the air.

It will look a little odd after tonight to see only one camp below the hotel lighted and that the first one, where Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Stilwell of Philadelphia will keep the hearthstone warm for several days.

Geo. B. Bearce of Lewiston and friend, D. E. Parlin of the same city are now at Beaver Lodge with Chester Swett guide.

Mrs. S. E. Ladd and daughters, Miss Atta W. and Miss Vara M. Ladd of Saco arrived Thursday and will spend part of October in Camp Kirk.

Eugene F. Van Dusen closed the clock golf season to-day by making 24, a perfect golf score and his witnesses were Oren Dyke, Harold White and Joe Morin. Now all wonder what "Brownie" will say to that while he watches the Englishman play golf in Boston.

Walter H. Sawyer and C. I. Auten of Lewiston were here for the week end, en route for Magalloway.

Mrs. Henry Biglow, daughter of the late E. V. R. Thayer of Lacaster, Mass., who with her family have been for several weeks at Mill Brook lodge, have arranged to make many improvements at the camp and will return next year. Clayton Swett, who has charge of the place will this fall put in cement piers under the camp.

As there is a daily mail until October 15, the steamboat, Dorothy B. will make the usual trips to and from the train to Bemis.

School will open here on September 29 and Miss Mildred Clewley of Holden will be the "school marm."

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Grant and their families expect to spend the winter here at the Dam and as there is to be lumbering in this section, and a mail will be brought from Bemis every Tuesday and Friday during the winter and the telephone bell will ring, Upper Dam will not be as far from nowhere as it used to be and the hundreds of guests who have spent such happy days here this summer hope only good things will come to those who remain to shovel snow this winter and here's many happy days to one and all.

AUBURN MAN INJURED IN HUNTING ACCIDENT.

Fred Bates of Brookvale, West Auburn, was painfully though not seriously injured, Thursday afternoon says the Lewiston Sun. The big toe of his right foot was so badly mutilated by the accidental discharge of a gun that it was found necessary to amputate it.

Mr. Bates was hunting partridges, when the gun, which he was carrying muzzle downward, was discharged in some unknown manner, the charge of shot tearing through the shoe and badly injuring the toe.

He was taken to the C. M. G. Hospital, where the toe was amputated.

INCREASE OF GAME IN THE NORTH COUNTRY.

There appears to be no doubt whatever of the increasing abundance of wolves in the north country. The information comes from too many sources to admit of any doubt on the subject. There are also perfectly natural reasons for believing in the increase of these ravenous creatures in the Lake St. John country. All who have studied their habits know very well that they follow the red deer in its migrations. During the last few years, the deer have been driven farther and farther south by the work of railway construction in the north, and the wolves have naturally enough followed the deer.

Yet again the increase of big game and especially of red deer, in the National park, without a proportionate destruction of the following wolves, has apparently provided the destructive animals with a comparatively safe asylum.

COL. JOHN J. DOOLEY, PORTLAND, HONORED.

A recent issue of the Cleveland Plain Dealer contained the following about Col. John J. Dooley of Portland, chief of ordnance of the National Guard, State of Maine:

"Colonel John J. Dooley of Maine enjoys the distinction of being the only National Guard officer in the United States ever given an official position on a service team at a national match. This honor came to him at the recent Camp Perry tournament when he was appointed adjutant of the United States Marine Corps team. Colonel Dooley was also spotter on the United States team in the race for the Pan-American championship and he acted as assistant executive officer at the National Inter-National matches.

AQUARIUM AT STATE MUSEUM

Present plans of the fish and gam department are for an aquarium in the state museum at Augusta, to be supplied with running water from the state spring, as a sufficient supply from the water company would prove too costly a proposition. In the big tank will be placed specimens of the game fish of Maine from the hatcheries and streams of Maine. It is an interesting proposition and will probably be realized some time in 1914.

Nothing Can Keep Fresh After It Is Cut Up

You can't expect the chopped-up tobacco that comes in packages to be fresh, because it has been chopped up too long a time. Most of the natural moisture and flavor escapes from the small particles of tobacco before they are put in the package. By the time you smoke them, they are so dry that they burn fast and bite your tongue.

All the flavor and fragrance of the tobacco is pressed into the Sickle Plug and held there by nature's own covering—the natural leaf wrapper. When you whittle a pipeful off the plug you get fresh tobacco — slow-burning, cool-smoking, rich and sweet.

You don't pay for a package—don't waste any tobacco—and get more tobacco for your money. Buy some Sickle at your dealer's today. You'll find the Sickle way is the only way to get a satisfying smoke.

OBJECTIONS TO FISH AND GAME LAWS

Dutton of Augusta Calls Attention to Codification of Fish and Game Laws Since Last Legislature.

The following communication has been sent to several of the State papers by Frank L. Dutton of Augusta, who takes objection to some of the Rules and Regulations which he claims have been made by the commissioners since the codification of the laws made by the last legislature:

I desire to call public attention to the first attempt of the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game to make so-called "Rules and Regulations," since the codification of the Fish and Game Laws made by the last Legislature.

F. N. BEAL G. P. A.

for the local regulation of fishing, I made some very pointed remarks as to the viciousness of this class of legislation. I stated that I did not believe that there should be a special law for every frog pond in the State of Maine, but that the whole subject matter should be covered by general laws. Whether caused by the discussion or not, a widespread demand for the repeal for the Special Legislation and the enactment of general laws in relation to Fish and Game, followed from all parts of the State. This demand became so strong that an order was introduced into the Legislature, authorizing that Committee on Inland Fisheries and Game to codify all existing laws in relation to the subject, and to employ for that purpose, two competent attorneys. Clothed with this authority the committee did employ Hon. L. T. Carleton and, I think, Hon. William R. Pattangall. At any rate, I know that Mr. Carleton spent weeks of time in assiduous and painstaking labor in revising and codifying the existing laws in relation to the subject. The labors of counsel, and of a very hard working committee, of which Senator Joseph W. Allen was chairman, finally reported a complete codification of the laws in what is now Chapter Two Hundred and Six of the Public Laws of 1913, making thirty-eight pages.

From my general information on the subject I had become satisfied that the principal trouble was with the authority vested in the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game, under Section Thirty-six of Chapter Thirty-two of the Revised Statutes, authorizing them to make "Rules and Regulations," which authority they had used in the past ad libitum in closing streams and ponds upon the petition of a few interested citizens.

Under that practice the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game, could, and did close many streams and ponds, and made it illegal to fish therein without the actual knowledge of but very few citizens of the State. The result was that very many honorable and law-abiding citizens became law-breakers without any intention of violating any of the laws of their State. What happened might have been expected. A general feeling of hostility towards all Fish and Game Laws prevailed throughout the State.

In order to correct this practice, and to make it impossible for the Commissioners to defeat the action of the Legislature in codifying the laws, I introduced a bill taking away from them the authority to make "Rules and Regulations." I talked with two members of the Commission and several members of the Legislative Committee on Inland Fisheries and Game and they all agreed with me that the law ought to be repealed. Later I had a talk with Mr. Carleton and he suggested that it might be well to leave with the Commissioners, authority to close waters in case of emergency. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Viles assured me if that provision be used except in cases of actual emergency, because it was a power which the Commissioners would be very glad to surrender.

The result was the bill, as reported by the Committee, which became a law, contained a provision giving to the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game the authority to make "Rules and Regulations." But it was generally understood that this authority should not be used, except in cases of emergency.

I thought I knew the feeling of the Legislature in regard to these Special Acts and Special "Rules and Regulations," and I do not believe that the law would have been passed with that provision in it, had the Legislature thought that the very first time the authority was invoked the petition would be granted as it has been, in changing the law in Great, Long, East, North, Ellis, McGraw and Snow Falls, so-called, being the Belgrade chain of lakes in Kennebec and Somerset counties.

It is entirely immaterial to me who the petitioners were who asked for the closing of these waters, or how much pressure was brought to bear upon the Commissioners. In view of all the circumstances, their action in making these so-called "Rules and Regulations" is a breach of faith with the Legislature.

The people of Maine do not believe in, or desire, secret pigeon-hole legislation. The Commissioners have recently published a little pamphlet containing the Revision of 1913, and every citizen of Maine has the right to believe that that contains all the laws of the State in relation to the subject. No good can come to the cause of the protection of fish in this State by having an innocent fisherman notified for the first time what the law is, under these so-called "Rules and Regulations," by a warden who is hired at three dollars per day to follow in his footsteps along some stream or pond which the Legislature has left open.

If the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game would surrender their Legislative functions, and bend their efforts to the enforcement of duly enacted statutes, it would be much better for the cause which they represent.

Nor is this my only objection to these so-called "Rules and Regulations." Under the Constitution of this State as adopted in the so-called Initiative and Referendum, all legislative acts (emergency measures excepted) take effect in ninety days from the adjournment of the Legislature.

JOE KNOWLES NOT A FAKIR

Canton, Me., Sept. 17, 1913.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

I saw an article in your valuable paper about Joe Knowles.

"Some of the guides of Dead River think Joe is not doing all he claims. They do not take much stock in the 'bear story' and call it a fake and they can see him going to his well filled store house for provisions."

Now I do not believe Joe Knowles is that kind of a man. I think I ought to know Joe pretty well as I have trapped, hunted and lived beside him in the woods for several years and know very nearly what he can do. I know there is not his equal in the State of Maine in the art of taxidermy and woodcraft and was always a successful guide and liked by all sporting people.

Perhaps the guides are more or less jealous of Joe. I should like to know how they know what he is doing if they have not seen him since he entered the forest. Now I for one, believe Joe is filling his contract to the letter. All I am afraid of is that the exposure and privation will be too much for a man of his age, but it may not be.

Maybe there are others that could perform the same feat as far as living in the forest, but they might not be able to describe it as well, for all do not have the same gift and ability.

Now, guides, do not say he is a faker and that you do not believe he caught the bear in the pit and

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES

Vance Brown is absent on account of illness.

Marian Smith entered school at the beginning of the third week.

The grammar school has 44 pupils, the largest registration for several years.

Hortense Butler went to Farmington last Friday to have her eyes fitted.

SIT DOWN AND THINK CALMLY

Every year, both in fishing and hunting seasons, the inexperienced woods intruders wander away from familiar scenes, get lost—and perhaps lose their heads to complete the tragedy. There seems to rest the whole fault. A clear, cool mind will accomplish wonders in such a situation, while panic, a terror-stricken rush and quick exhaustion is the other choice. Instructions from a typical woodsman may be of interest:

"If you discover that you are lost in the woods, sit down and think calmly back over the road you have traveled, trying to decide where the camp should lie. Then, if you have your compass, and it seems to agree with your judgement, stick faithfully to that direction. If you have no compass, the sun is an excellent guide during the day.
Should the sky be overcast, place
the point of your knife blade on the nail of your thumb; turn slowly until the full shadow of the blade obscures the nail, and you have discovered where the sun is. You can discover the points of the compass in other ways; by noticing that the tops of the tall trees incline to the north; that the leaves of the trees are generally closer on the south side; that their branches are shorter and more irregular on the north side. Two fires going at once, one a little removed from the other, constitute a well-known signal of distress among woodsmen.
The firing of three shots in succession—two at first then a pause,
then the third shot—is another recognized signal, if you happen to have a gun."

to a New York firm for $30,000. Many young foxes die soon after capture.
Several black pups have died after being sold for $1,500 to $2,500. A western raw fur company, which has been supplying Eastern markets with young live foxes, announces that it will discontinue the eastern shipments, having decided to establish a farm in western Alberta, where 40 foxes are already domiciled.

It is stated that a decrease of 25 to 50 per cent. has taken place in the prices paid for these animals, which is attributed to the large number which have been supplied from the entire northern country of Alaska, Yukon Territory and the northwestern territories. The supply has been plentiful on account of the young foxes being dug out of their holes before they were able to escape. In a short time the young foxes will leave their dams and it will then be impossible to catch them other than singly in traps, when will then in all probability increase the price of these animals in the Eastern markets.

IN AND ABOUT PHILLIPS

The Blue Mountain Lodge of F. and A. M. elected the following officers Wednesday evening last week:
W. M., Colby Whittemore; S. W., N.
H. Hamden; J. W., C. D., A. G.
D. Harry Chandler; G. D., A. G.
Cronkhite.

Mrs. Lucinda Butterfield, who has been on a visit to her sister in Canton for the past few weeks, returned to Phillips last Saturday.
Her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Noble drove there and accompanied her home.

Mrs. E. H. Wiggin and Miss C.
E. Hamlin of Boston came last week Wednesday for a two weeks' visit with their sister, Mrs. Mary Field and other relatives.

W. R. Leavitt made a business trip through West Phillips and Madrid last week and bought $70.00 worth of sheep. R. H. Preble made the trip with him, taking his shot gun and bringing back a partridge.

F. C. McKenzie was confined to his bed with a bad cold recently.

Clifford Wing of Madrid has entered the Junior class of the High school.

W. B. Butler made a business trip to Weld recently.

Walter Heath of Salem was in town one day last week.

Walter Hodges recently traded with D. R. Ross for a fine work horse.

W. B. Hoyt made a business trip to New Vineyard with Mr. and Mrs.
Gerry Proctor of Rangeley recently.
J. H. Kerr of Rumford had a new platform built in front of his building on Congress street, that greatly improves the appearance of the place.

Mr. S. W. Springer brought to this office an interesting volume of Gleason's Pictorial Drawing Room Companion published in Boston in the year 1851. It is well preserved and contains much interesting matter. Among some of the interesting contents is a picture of the vehicle and equipage of Mrs.
Fillmore, wife of the president which New Yorkers presented to her. The ladies of Albany presented the horses valued at $1000.
The entire cost of the equipage was $2600. Another interesting sketch is the address of Daniel Webster in the open air in front of the Revere House as the citizens of Boston had been denied the use of Faneuil hall by the Board of Aldermen, for the purpose of listening to a speech from the secretary of state of the United States. The people were indignant at the insult and welcomed the object of their enthusiasm in the open air. There is also a portrait of P. T. Barnum and his palatial residence at Bridgeport, Conn. One could spend many interesting hours in perusing this book and Mr. Springer should consider it a valuable addition to his library.

Ernest Mills, the Watkins man is assisting George Bean in his store during the fair. Bean has a stand on the fair grounds.

Mrs. Will Davenport of Madrid was a recent guest of her son, Lee Davenport at the Dixfield House.

E. E. James and family of State street, Portland, will return to their home this week after spending the summer at their cottage at Little Diamond, where they went early in the spring. Mr. James as a traveling salesman visited Phillips regularly in former years and has many friends in this section.

Rand Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs.
Fred E. Dunham of Rumford has come to Boston where he will attend the New England Conservatory of Music. Mr. Dunham has much ability in the musical line and we wish him success in his studies.

Miss Mildred Daggett of Lowell,
Mass., is visiting her aunt, Mrs.
James McGregor of Rumford.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wood of Lewiston have been on a trip south and in company with Mrs. N. C. Brackett and Mrs. S. W. Lightner of Harfer's Ferry, W. Va., have visited Norfolk, Richmond and other interesting places. They will return to Lewiston in a few days.

The 1913 club was entertained by Mrs. C. F. Chandler last week Friday. Refreshments were served.

Miss Helen Hilton left for Bates college Tuesday. This is Miss Hilton's junior year.

Ernest C. Butler, esq., of Skowhegan has recently been in Bar Harbor where he purchased one of the famous horses of the state from the Joseph Pulitzer estate. He drove the team from Bar Harbor, making the trip in two days.

While on the road from Farmington to Phillips last week J. C. Metcalf shot a partridge from his automobile.

Mr. W. H. Jacobs will close his house this winter and will go to New Hampshire.

Dr. J. H. Rollins of Portland came to town last week Friday and remained in town during the fair.

Nathaniel Toothaker has had a vacation from the grocery store of the McKenzie Trading company.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jodrey were in East Wilton last week visitin friends.

W. S. Badger was the guest of relatives in Rangeley last week for a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lufkin left Phillips this week for Indiana where they expect to reside for the present, although the exact location has not been decided on. It will probably be Columbus or Fort Wayne in Indiana. Mr. Lufkin has had offers from several different firms to put their articles on the market and he will presumably be engaged in the canvassing business. Their friends in this section wish for the success in whatever they undertake.

We are pained to report the critical illness of Emery S. Bubier, who has been very ill for some days past.

Members of the Social Service club will want to be sure and take in the annual rally and tasting party at Mrs.
Louisa Butterfield's, Sawyer street,
Tuesday afternoon, August 30. Important business combined with pleasure on the program. Don't fail to remember the date and place and come prepared with a quotation for the roll call and a taste of your favorite food, fruit or candy for the social hour.

Everyone will want to attend the Fair on Friday as there will be good racing of the classes Two Year Olds, 2, 35 and Free for All. The following horses have been entered in the latter race: Little Queen, Arthur M., Van Brown, Prince Alfordly, Pat hand, Eola Patchen, Hazel R. and Babe High-moor.

J. Henry Dow of Wayne was in town Wednesday, greeting old friends on the Fair grounds. He has not been in Phillips for four years, and said he had not been up as far as the Park for nearly 20 years.

Mrs. Ira Whittemore of Portland and Mrs. Lilla Armstrong and son Roy of Worcester, Mass., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Worthley.

Melvin Bubier, brother of Emery S.
Bubier, and uncle, Thomas Rose and Percy Rose of Greene, were called here this week by the serious illness of Mr.
Bubier. His uncle is still in town.

Frank Hitchcock of South Orange,
Mass. is visiting his cousin, W. B.
Hoyt.

Mrs. J. F. Hough returned from Lewiston Tuesday night where she was called on account of the illness of her son Vinton Hough who had a severe attack of asthma.

Miss Mame Bennett was the week end guest of her sister, Mrs. R. H.
Preble. Miss Bennett will attend Columbia University this fall to take a special course in playground work.
She formerly graduated from this school. She is also a graduate from Amherst academy, Colby academy, Farmington Normal school and Bates college. She has been principal of the Lubec High school for seven years.

Mrs. Charles Berry received a cheese Wednesday coming by parcel post, from Mrs. Lincoln Badger of Industry. It weighed 14 pounds and the postage was 19 cents.

Miss Dorris Knapp is boarding with her grand mother, Mrs. Cora Knapp and attending the village
school.

M. W. Harden has Henry Deal to help him in his bartering business this week.

Mrs. Charles O. Dill returned Monday night from Portland where she has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Blanche Morrison, who is recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Knapp of Kingfield are guests of Mrs. Cora Knapp this week.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Hammond of South Strong are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Dill.

Miss Gladys Hewey is working in the family of W. B. Butler.

Mrs. Olive King is the guest of her grandson, Fred Toothaker this week.

Mrs. Calla Morrison of Auburn is spending the autumn months at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hew-ey.

Mrs. Will Whitfield and little daughter, Evelyn, of Somerville, Mass., who have been guests of Mrs. Louise Berry, have returned home.

Mrs. Walter Heath expects to go to the Central Maine General Hospital at Lewiston soon for an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Field and Mr.
and Mrs. Sumner Austin returned from a few days at Kennebecago Tuesday night, taking Mr. Field's auto at Oquossoc and returning home via the Dead River region.
They did not accomplish much in the game line as the hunting conditions were so unfavorable on account of the heavy rains and got only one bird. Mr. Austin returned to Bath Wednesday morning and Mrs. Austin will remain for the remainder of the month with her mother, Mrs. Emma Shepard.

A horse, belonging to DeBerna Ross did quite a trick at "slight of hand" performing Wednesday.
The horse was standing in front of McKenzie's store where it stands day after day as it is the family horse that Mr. and Mrs. Ross use in making trips to their business, when it was noticed that the horse was running around the stone post and pretty well cleared by the harness. She finally cleared herself entirely from the harness and broke loose into the street. The thill was also broken, but both wagon and harness was left where the horse was standing, as though she had just picked up her feet and stepped out.

Glendon Smith is assisting Oscar
Beede in his barber shop this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beedy of Livermore and son Clarence are visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter Toothaker and sons, Bernard and Harold Beedy this week.

Miss Dorris Haley, who has passed the summer with her aunt, Mrs. Herman Deal and in Rangeley with her father, F. L. Haley, left Phillips last week on her way to Massachusetts to take up her studies again at the Quincy Mansion school for girls in Wollaston, Mass. She will visit Mrs. Howard Toothaker for a few days in Portland and will also visit her aunt, Miss Mettie Kinney in Boston.

Howard True is assisting E. H.
Whitney in his drug store.

Everett Beede came over from Rumford Sunday by auto to spend the day with his family who have been in Phillips for several weeks.
He was accompanied by Bert Wele and a chauffeur. They returned in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cushman visited the former's sister, Mrs. O.
B. Hutchins in Kingfield recently.

Dennis Soule of Buxton, formerly of Rangeley and Strong is in town this week attending the Fair and calling on old friends who are glad to see him.

Mrs. Gertrude Jordan and son Ordo of Wilton are the guests of Mrs. Proctor Smith this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith of Livermore Falls came Tuesday to pass the week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Dill.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Parker and little son Andrew, of Long pond visited Mr. and Mrs. Weston Parker during Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Will True were out

from Dallas for the week.

Mrs. Joel Wilbur, Miss Georgine
Wilbur, Mrs. E. H. Whitney and Miss Miriam Brackett attended the Sunday school convention at Farmington Tuesday afternoon, Misses Wilbur and Brackett remaining over night for the Wednesday morning session. Mrs. F. N. Beal also went down Wednesday morning.

Oscar Aldrich of Somerset Junction is visiting his mother Mrs. Diana Aldrich and sister, Miss Eugenia Aldrich this week. Mrs. Aldrich and little son have been visiting relatives in Boston
for the past two weeks.

Elbert Matthews has entered the employ of the Oxford Printing company in Rumford. Mrs. Matthews is with her mother, Mrs. John Turner at Lisbon for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sprague of Farmington are in town visiting Mrs. Sprague's son, Carrol Noyes, and attending the fair.

FRIEND AND FOE TO FISH

Sea Anemone Preys on Many But Protects Scarlet Species.

During the cool season, the tides
on the coast of North Queensland offer peculiar facilities to the observer of the tropic sea. E. J.
Banfield explains in his recent book,
"My Tropic Isle," that the lowest spring tide in winter exposes far more of the reefs than the lowest tide of summer. In many places on this reef little secrets, well-kept throughout the rest of the year, are boldly proclaimed, when the sea retreats.

There is one, a fairly common anemone, a huge fellow of a rich cobalt blue, that opens out like a soup plate with convoluted edges.
Being an animal, it possesses sensues that the most highly specialized vegetable lacks. It has the power of waving its spikelets, and each of the thousands of truncated tentacles that cover the spikelets seems to possess independent action. Although all no doubt, contributed to the sustenance of the animal, they rest from their labors, or assume great activity at will.

It is natural to suppose that the diet of such an animal must be of microscopic proportions. The other day I happened on one that had seized a fish about four inches long, and seemed to be greedily sucking it to death. The fish was still alive, and it looked up at me with a pathetic gleam in its watery eyes, I released it. It was very languid—indeed, so feeble and faint that it could not swim away. Aid had come too late. The fish was the legitimate prey of the anemone.
As the fish's hold on life was too fragile to be worth much, I put it close to the enemy again, I am certain that the anemone made an effort to reach it. There was a decided swing of one of the spikelets in the direction of the fish, and marked agitation among the hundreds of minute tentacles. When I put the fish in the anemone, the latter grasped it immediately, and at the same moment the activity on the part of the tubes subsided with what I thought an air of satisfaction.

Another giant anemone is friendly to fish—at any rate, to one species. It is the landlord or host of one of the prettiest fish of all the wide, wide sea. It seems proud of its guests; and the fish is so dependent upon its host that it is quite helpless apart from it.

The good fellowship between the dainty fish—resplendent in carmine—
and the great anemone is apparent.
If you offer the finger to any part of the anemone it seizes it, or, if it is not in the mood for food, it curls and shrinks away. But the beautiful fish on the least alarm returns within the many folds of its host and entirely disappears. The anemone makes no effort to seize or hold it. In a few minutes the fish will peep out again shyly at the intruder. It is almost as elusive as a sunbeam, and most difficult to catch, for if the anemone is disturbed it contracts its folds and, shrinking away, offers inviolable sanctuary. If the fish is taken away from its host it soon dies. It cannot live alone, although the anemone, as far as we can judge from outward appearances, endures the separation.

Why should one anemone greedily seize and eat a fish, and another find pleasure in the companionship of one of the most beautiful and delicate of the tribe?

NORTH FRANKLIN HAS LARGEST FAIR.

They also had four two-year-old heifers, one of which a short horn was a remarkably choice animal.

The manager of the Fair had a pair of large horses at work pulling a float over the track all day, to put it in the best possible condition for the races on Thursday. Most of the horses entered in the races were jogged on the village streets.

The Maine Woods goes to press too early to give any account of the races and premium awards in the horse classes, but a full account will appear in next week's issue of this paper.

At 10.30 Thursday a ball game was called between Phillips and Madrid.

The pulling and exhibition of the big cattle entirely crowded out the showing off of the trained steers, although there were three pairs entered, two pairs by A. R. Sedgely and one pair by Charles C. Smith.

It was a disappointment not only to the youngsters, but to the grown ups as well, for it is interesting to see the stunts they will go through.

CAUGHT A GIANT EEL WEARING DOG COLLAR

John Balinski of West Warren captured in the Quaboag river, a mile below Willimantic, Conn., a giant eel with a dog collar on its neck.

The eel was 47 inches long, as large around the body as the wrist of an ordinary sized man and weighed 13 pounds.

Balinski killed the eel in low water, it evidently having been caught in the pool where it was captured when the tide went out.

The collar, of the sort worn by a small dog, was securely locked about its neck, and so tight as to cause the skin to bulge out around the edge. The initials "W. R. C." and the name "Prince" were engraved on a silver nameplate.

The eel's back was badly scarred, showing where it had been speared on various occasions. Four fishhooks with lines attached were found in the monster's mouth.

"It was almost impossible for me to hold the eel after I grabbed it," said Balinski, "for it would twist and squirm about in my hands with ease. I finally got it between two stones, and, drawing my knife, cut its throat. About the only thing it is good for is to chop it up and feed it to the chickens. The collar I will keep as a souvenir."

LESS DAMAGE FROM FIRE RECORDED.

With the middle of September the fire season on the national forests has come practically to an end with less damage than ever recorded. There is always some danger from carelessness of campers or of settlers burning brush and clearing land, but the real danger season extends only from the middle of June until the middle of September. Forest officers throughout the west are congratulating themselves on a season so markedly free from heavy losses. They feel that the immunity from loss has been due to two principal causes, partly to a favorable season, but largely to a much better organization. The effectiveness of the organization is shown particularly by the fact that while there were in all approximately 2,260 fires, as against 2,470 last year, yet the area burned so far this year is only about 60,000 acres as against 230,000 acres in 1912, and 780,000 in 1911.

A single administrative district, which covers the intermountain region of southern Idaho, western Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, and western Arizona, gives an example of the most favorable situation. Only 43 fires were encountered, 29 of which originated in Idaho. The total area burned over amounted to only 956 acres, which is considerably less than four hundred thousands of the total area patrolled by forest officers in these states.

California, Arizona and New Mexico have suffered most during the past season.

The various causes of fires have not changed greatly in their relative proportions. Railroads and lightning head the list, with campers next. There has been, however, a marked decrease in the number of fires caused by burning brush, which, according to the forest officers, indicates a closer cooperation with the settlers in and near the forests and with timberland owners in fire prevention and control. It is still true, nevertheless, that a large proportion of all fires started are due to human agencies and may generally be charged against carelessness. Fires caused by lightning are of course not preventable, but the system of lookouts by which they may be detected immediately after being set is greatly lessening the loss from this source.

TRAPSHOOTING AS A TOWN BUILDER

Officials of the Minneapolis, Minn., Rod and Gun Club have petitioned the city of Minneapolis to provide a municipal shooting ground whereon trap shooting could be indulged. We sincerely hope, says Sporting Life, that the officials of that city will rise to the occasion and seize this opportunity of not only benefiting the sport-loving citizens of their community, but also benefit the whole city by advertising it broadcast throughout the country. The matter is still in abeyance, the only hitch being over the doubt in the minds of some of the city fathers as to whether there is not too much danger to spectators and contestants in permitting a shooting field in a city park. We hasten to assure them that there is not the slightest danger to be apprehended from such a source. In all our recollection there has not been any kind of serious accident on a properly conducted trap shooting field. It is true that there are many accidents during every hunting season, but these, as a rule, are due to the inexperience of a great body of the hunters. If these same hunters had spent a short time in the sport of trap shooting there would have been absolutely no danger in entering the woods in pursuit of game. Trap shooting teaches the proper method of handling firearms, an invaluable lesson. It also develops self-control to a high degree, thus making shooting of any kind absolutely safe. All that would be necessary in the case of Minneapolis would be to build some kind of barrier at a distance of 150 yards from the traps, and by keeping mere spectators from encroaching on the field any further than this, all danger would be obviated. The sport would provide a harmless and pleasurable amusement in any city park, and would in this way be adding to the pleasure of the citizens. From the standpoint of publicity for the city, a municipal trap shooting field is to be commended. As we have frequently pointed out scores of cities in this country are known to hundreds of thousands of sportsmen only because they are the stamping ground of certain noted shooters, or their homes. In other words such cities as Spirit Lake, Ia., Fallon, Ills., Guthrie, Okla., and Keithsburg, Ills., have received hundreds of thousands of mentions in daily papers and sportsmen's journals, simply because of their connection with trap shooting as being the birthplace or homes of noted shots. If Minneapolis is awake to its opportunity it will not only give the requisite permission to the Rod and Gun Club, but it will do everything in its power to aid it in this enterprise. Other cities might well do the same.

WOMAN HUNTS BEARS IN THE ALASKAN WILDS

Mrs. J. H. Ingram has arrived in San Francisco from Alaska on her way to visit friends in Los Angeles. Mrs. Ingram is known as the most daring woman athlete in Alaska.

Chicago, Ill.—"I take pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with such awful periodic pains, and had a displacement, and received no benefit from the doctors. I was advised to take Lydia E. made many pilgrimages into the great frozen territory that lies beyond the port of Valdez. Mrs. Ingram's husband is superintendent of the Alaska Road Commission, and is compelled to make many trips into the interior of Alaska during the coldest season of the year. On many of these sorties Mrs. Ingram has accompanied her husband.

The Alaska Road Commission uses 70 or 80 horses for transporting supplies over the Alaska trails. There are 300 men employed by the commission. Mrs. Ingram takes a personal interest in the work of which her husband is in charge. She has braved many hardships and has travelled over the Alaskan trails.

"I love the life in the far North and take pleasure in accepting its hardships," said Mrs. Ingram. "When the thermometer goes down to 70 degrees below zero I don my furs and strike out over the trails. My faithful dog seems to get as much pleasure out of the experience as I do. It is a great, great life. No one can realize the pleasures to be found on the snowclad wastes of the frozen north until experiencing them.

"With only my four dogs for company I have travelled many miles through the snows of the North. With enough supplies to last me for a week or ten days and with my rifle strapped into the sled I start out in quest of big game, and I often find it."

Mrs. Ingram has had many a tussle with the bears of Alaska. She has shot several of them and to substantiate her story has brought several magnificent skins out with her.

The plucky woman agrees that it were inserted the authority would not takes considerable "nerve" to try conclusions with a full-sized bear, but she derives untold pleasure from the "mix-up," and, as she said, "has gotten the better of the argument" in each of her battles.

Mrs. Ingram was born in California and is loyal to her native state. She says that she loves the life in Alaska with its many hardships but that she always looks forward to her yearly pilgrimages South. Mrs. Ingram has lived in Alaska for nine years and is acquainted with most of those who have made fortunes in the mines. After a short sojourn in San Francisco Mrs. Ingram will visit friends in Los Angeles. She will return to Valdez in September.

ALWAYS LANDS THE BIG ONES

Has Fished These Waters for 30 Years---Camp Haverhill to be Torn Down.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Bald Mountain Camps, Mooselookmeguntic Lake, Sept. 18—Tonight everybody is talking about the sunset which all say was one of the most brilliant and beautiful they have ever seen in this or any foreign land.

The heavy frost of a few nights ago has made a wonderful change in the forest and now the mountains are dressed in their autumn colors.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Clark of North Attleboro, Mass., who came from their home in their Packard touring car the first of the month will remain until the last of next week. Nat Ellis tend the meetings by that Department, is their guide and on Wednesday evening their son, Foster Clark, gave a big dinner at his home in North Attleboro when one of the largest salmon caught in the Rangeley waters this year was what made the event worthy of note. Mr. Clark is a good fisherman, but does not plug fish, and the first of the week while trolling across the lake, his first fish weighed 4½ pounds, a salmon. Nat had just put on a new live bait and they were trolling with about 50 yards of line out, when suddenly something happened. A big fish had taken the bait, hook and all and the sport began. When the salmon was almost reeled to the net, and Nat was sure he could land him, away the old fellow would rush and the reel sing. Over and over Mr. Clark carefully reeled in, and they could see the handsome silver beauty and think sure they would net him, when away he would go, taking out 50 or 75 yards of line, and the anxious fishermen had the sport for more than an hour, when both fish and fisherman were tired out, for it was a salmon that weighed 9 pounds, 4 ounces and was the next morning sent by express to North Attleboro, Mass. Thirty years ago Mr. Clark first came to these lakes and Amos Ellis was his guide. "What was the size of the largest fish you have ever caught in all these years?" I asked Mr. Clark, who said, "My largest fish caught in the 30 years I have been coming here was in 1888 and Amos Ellis was my guide, and that was a male trout, 29 inches long, 22 in. girth and the spread of tail 10 inches and weighed just 10 pounds, 4 ounces. I have fished every summer and caught a good many trout and salmon weighing 6 and 7 pounds but not until 1910 did I get another big one, that was a 9 pound, 6 ounce salmon, and this is my third big one, 8 pounds, 4 ounces. But my biggest catch was in two and one-half days' fishing in 1888 when I caught 15 trout that weighed 76 pounds." Those were in the good old times when a salmon did not swim in these waters, and it is often asked, "Would it not have been better fishing in these waters if a salmon had never been put in and the smelts also kept out?"

This morning Mr. and Mrs. McIlhenny and family of Philadelphia, who have been enjoying life here for three months, regretfully started for home, planning to return next year.

Messrs. B. Markham, Joe Warren and D. Malley, three young gentlemen from Meriden, Conn., have greatly enjoyed the week in Portland camp and tomorrow they go home via the chain of lakes through Dixfield Notch. "It is our first trip but not our last one," say the boys. Ernest DeMerritt is their guide.

Theo Brown of Philadelphia, who the first of the season spent five weeks here with his family, is expected to week to accompany his wife and daughters home. It is their first summer here at the foot of the mountains on the lake shore, and they have engaged Camp Manhattan for 1914.

Mrs. Amos Ellis, Wednesday, started for an automobile trip to Portland with Mr. and Mrs. Olin R. Rowe, planning to enjoy a week's trip through the country.

Thomas W. McKay of Portland is assisting Mr. Ellis in the office for the remainder of the season.

A party of six from New York telegraphed, "Have a camp ready for us the 19th," and as others are expected, these camps will not close until the middle of October.

A. S. Hinds has a crew of men busy putting in an electric plant to light his camps.

While everyone is glad to have a fine set of camps built by Foster Clark of North Attleboro, Mass., on the site where for nearly half a century Camp Haverhill has stood, all will be sorry to see the workmen tomorrow pull down this old landmark and Camp Haverhill be built a memory.

that he has a supply of provisions in the woods. You do not know and that kind of talk does not help anyone and hurts you in the end. I think he will prove to us all that he has accomplished all he claims and can prove all the feats he has drawn pictures of and sent out while in the forest.

It has been very interesting to me to read his articles that have been printed in the Boston Post.

COMMISSIONERS VISIT BOSTON

Attend Meetings of the American Fisheries Society and Other Important Matters.

Messrs. Walter I. Neal and Blaine S. Viles of the Inland Fish and Game Commission have returned from Boston, where they have been attending the annual meetings of the American Fisheries Society and the National Association of Game and Fish Commissioners, also the public hearing on the proposed regulation upon hunting migratory game birds which have been promulgated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture under the provisions of the new Federal bird law—the Weeks-McLean bill so-called.

Mr. Neal, in speaking of this trip to a Kennebec Journal reporter, stated that "the meetings were attended by representatives from nearly all states in the Union and from some of the Canadian provinces, and that the opportunity of meeting the officials from the different states and exchanging ideas upon fish and game matters, methods of protection, law enforcement, etc., was much enjoyed and thereby much valuable information was secured."

"Thirty of the wardens employed by the Fish and Game Department of Massachusetts were reported to attend for the purpose of learning all they could regarding the manner of enforcement of the laws in other states. As previous to my appointment as a member of the commission in this State I was for years on the warden force, I particularly enjoyed meeting the Massachusetts wardens and found them to be an exceptionally bright set of men."

"A large number of papers were read and lectures delivered at the several meetings upon various subjects pertaining to fish culture and fish and game protection, by leading authorities upon these subjects in the United States and Canada, which gave much information of value and interest. Hon. Hugh Smith, chief of the Bureau of Fisheries of the United States Department of Commerce; Dr. Charles H. Townsend, of New York, president of the American Fisheries Association; Dr. T. S. Palmer, assistant chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture and chairman of the Committee on the Regulations on Migratory Birds; Dr. L. L. Dyche, State Commissioner of Kansas; Dr. George W. Field of the Massachusetts Commission; Prof. E. E. Prince of Ottawa; Col. Joseph Acklen of Tennessee, president of the N. A. of Game and Fish Commission, and Prof. Jacob Reighard were among the leading speakers. Dr. Palmer, above referred to, also presided at the public hearing upon the proposed federal regulations."

"The reports of the propagation of black bass, carp, sunfish and bull-heads by some of the officials from the southern states were listened to with more or less amusement by us; one of the officials most kindly offered to send us a supply of yellow perch eggs—saying they were held in high esteem in his state as a pan-fish, and that they had excellent success in raising them. In this connection it should be stated that the waters in the southern states are not suitable for our favorite red-spots or salmon, the commissioners are obliged to propagate many varieties of fish which Maine would not permit to be introduced in her waters."

"Some of the states told of the poor luck they had at times in raising fish; the New Hampshire commission this year had the misfortune to lose all of their fish so they have none for planting this fall."

"The discussion upon the subject of fishways was particularly interesting to us—one official stating that although all of the dams across streams frequented by migratory fish were equipped with fishways, he never knew of a fish going up through them, and from description given regarding the construction of these fishways we did not wonder the fish could not pass through. We extended an invitation—to the Massachusetts officials particularly—to come to inspect some of our Maine fishways, as they are generally conceded to be constructed after the best plan which can be devised. The Massachusetts law is the same as ours regarding the maintaining of fishways."

"In talking with the commissioners of the different states in regard to the resident hunting license law, which 36 states in the Union now have, we were informed that this law works very successfully and is a most popular one and one that is bound to be adopted sooner or later by the 12 states which do not now have the law, and the statement was made by nearly everyone with whom I talked in regard to such a law, that they could not understand why Maine—the best game preserve in the United States, had not enacted such a law long, long ago."

"Another law which is constantly growing in favor among the States is that providing for a non-resident fishing license; we were urged by nearly all the commissioners we met to have such a law enacted as soon as possible; that there is no reason why non-residents who come to Maine to fish should not pay a nominal fee for so doing, and the money thus secured should be devoted to raising more fish for planting in our waters in order to keep up and increase the supply; they all acknowledged what we already know—that Maine, the home of the speckled beauties, has waters the best adapted for raising these fish of any State in the Union, and that we are losing a great opportunity to get a large revenue from non-resident fishermen to help run our hatcheries; without doubt such a law would yield an annual income of at least $100,000. The people of Maine must realize that the expense of hatching and raising from four to five million fish each year is very large, and this expense, which at present is borne by the State, should be paid by fishermen who annually come here in large and ever increasing numbers, and who would not object to paying a small fee for the privilege of taking our beautiful trout and gamey salmon."

"With a resident hunter's license law and a law requiring non-resident fishermen to be licensed,—in addition to the present income from license, the fish and game interests of Maine would be self-sustaining; we would then have sufficient money to propagate the necessary supply of fish and protect our fish and game; our taxpayers should realize this and be willing to co-operate in securing these additional laws."

"I met many people from outside the State who come here each year and found them all vitally interested in matters pertaining to our fish and game interests, and they one and all urged that we adopt these laws in season to save our fish and game."

"I found that quite a number of the States have adopted our method of having a chief warden in charge of other wardens in a given district or territory, the chief warden being held responsible for his territory, and nearly all officers whom I talked with emphasized the fact that in order to get good warden service we must have good men, pay them good salaries and eliminate all politics in the appointment of such officials."

"As the result of meeting many of these officials and arranging for co-operation in the work of law enforcement, the market hunters in Maine who may occasionally succeed in getting game by the sharp eyes of the inspectors at Bangor, Portland and coast points, will find, this year, that their illegal shipments will be quickly apprehended in Boston, and the Maine commissioners will be promptly notified of the names of the shippers, etc., etc., etc."

In this connection Mr. Neal stated that when the big game season opens he intends to be on hand at Bangor with his "dog and little hatchet" to assist the game inspectors in their work and that throughout the game season every moment he can spare from other official duties will be spent at that place.

KNOW KNOWLES

Former Lewiston Man Tells How He Blew Up Parental Home.

Residents of Lewiston of more than 20 years standing will recall the explosion of a keg of gunpowder, which wrecked the house of the Knowles family, Middle street, on the day before a Fourth of July about that number of years ago. The youngster who brought about that explosion was the Joseph Knowles, artist, who is now living in the Maine woods for a period of two months in imitation of primitive man. Howard Noble, formerly a reporter on the Lewiston Journal staff, in the Boston Post of Tuesday gives the following story of that explosion:

My introduction to Joseph Knowles came about through an explosion which devastated a small section of the city of Lewiston, Me., about 30 years ago. "Joe" was the cause of said explosion.

He and a younger brother had come across the 25-pound kegs of powder

PARTIES COMING FOR THE HUNTING

Many Climb Mt. Katahdin---Guest Comes in with Good String of Partridges.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Katahdin View Camps, Norcross, Me., Sept. 20—The September fishing here has been so far the best for the season. Most of the fishermen are working out of this section now. There are a few parties coming in to stay for hunting so as to have a little of both fishing and hunting and the deer which are to be seen along the river every day gives them great hopes of success.

Dr. L. P. Grant of New York came into camp one night this week with a fine string of partridge.

There have been seventeen people up Mt. Katahdin from here this month.

which some workmen had been using in blasting operations on the outskirts of the city. Under the cover of night they carried the powder home, and the following day, when their parents went to work in the cotton mill, Joe and his kid brother Leander transported the powder kegs to the kitchen and began experimenting in the manufacture of home-made fire-crackers.

That was the beginning of the end of the Knowles establishment. Up to that time it had been an humble and more or less peaceful home, but when a scrap of burning paper happened to land in one of the open kegs the character of the place immediately changed. It was no longer a domicile.

The roof went sailing into the empyrean blue. Each of the front walls took a different course through space. Even the door went upward. Horses and pedestrians were knocked down and windows in neighboring buildings were blown out. It was some explosion.

When I arrived on the scene in company with half a hundred other small boys, a number of men were bending over a pathetic form lying prostrate in the dust of Main street.

"Poor little fellow!" I heard somebody exclaim, "he is all blown to pieces—give him air!"

It was the first time I had even been in the presence of death and I was awed beyond description. A man present took off his hat and everybody followed suit. A human soul was about to take its flight to another world and the moment was impressive.

Suddenly the owner of the soul in question raised himself on his elbow and a sickly smile spread over his powder-begrimed face. Someone in the crowd bent low to catch the last words and this is what we heard:

"Which way did Leander go?"

Leander was located in a wood yard some distance in the opposite direction, and the two boys were rushed to a doctor's office. For the next week or two physicians were kept busy picking powder grains out of their countenances, and strange to say, they suffered no more serious consequences from the terrific explosion.

But Knowles senior, became discouraged. He moved his family and belongings back to Wilton, Me., and the boy who had given Lewiston its biggest sensation in years dropped out of sight.

That is temporarily.

The next thing I heard of Joe Knowles was that he had run away from home and his parents had called upon the authorities to locate him.

It developed long afterward that Joe had made his way to Portland, and after starving around the wharves for four or five days, had shipped aboard a three-masted schooner, en route to Pensacola, Fla.

This vessel was wrecked on one of

MAINE INFORMATION BUREAU,

LAKE PARLIN BEAUTIFUL SPOT

Climbs Mt. Coburn and Gets a Grand View.

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 22, 1913.
To the Editor of Maine Woods:

Without embellishment or rhetorical endeavor I want to tell the readers of "The Maine Woods" about a tramp I took today, and of a sight I saw: I have a fair command of the English language and have hit some of the high spots in Greek and Latin; I can swear in French and Spanish, still I realize that any word picture of the view from the top of Mt. Coburn (formerly called and now on all maps as Johnson Mountain) will be as inadequate in conveying a complete or clear idea of the beauty, magnitude, the sublime grandeur and wildness of the heart of the Maine woods as the book of Genesis is in giving a correct account of geological formations of the earth, or a Psalm tune, a clear conception of eternal life to a Cree Indian. Even with this handicap I beg you "hear me for my cause."

Mt. Coburn is the second highest peak in Maine; Katahdin is higher. I had the good fortune to run across Larry Comber, a game warden at Lake Parlin House, and it being Sunday,—when, of course, no one would fish, Larry had a desire to study geography with field glasses and was good enough to invite me to go on a walk with him. It was a rare chance, as few men know this region of forest as well as Comber does, moreover, it was a clear day, it having been some rainy for a few days previous. We each took a small pack of food, put our coats in our packs and started at about 8 a. m. It is "eight miles" from Lake Parlin Hotel to the summit. In northern Maine they feed a dog and run him until he dies, and call it a mile. We found a live dog on the summit, so it must be a little less than eight miles.

The first part of the trail is an open sled road for winter toting. The last three miles is a steep ascent. It would make a gothic roof look like a billiard table. Part of the way it is through virgin timber, and part through second growth and hard wood. Great tall white birch, straight as an arrow for fifty feet and as clear as a hound's tooth, and trunks as white as paper. The last mile is very steep and rocky, with stunted spruce and fir trees. I cut a spruce tree near the summit and counted the concentric rings and found it was seventy-eight years old. This tree was 6½ feet tall and 3¼ inches in diameter at the butt. The same tree, growing under favorable circumstances would have been 14 inches through and perhaps 60 feet tall.

There is a fire warden's log cabin at the summit, where Pat Welch is "Monarch of all he surveys." He is there from May until October with a keen eye and powerful telescope to watch the forest fires. When he sees smoke which threatens, he telephones to the station nearest the fire, giving warning. Then men are sent to quench if possible, the fire. This summer has not been very disastrous so far as forest fires in this region are concerned. We could see a fire away up in Canada which has been burning, more or less, for several weeks. It was probably 60 miles northwest of us.

One could no more count the lakes and ponds from the summit than he could count the hairs on a dog. We had good maps and could locate many lakes and streams and rivers. Moosehead Lake could be plainly seen for nearly its whole length. Attean with its three hundred islands was at our feet. Holeb Pond, near Spencer Mountain, was early located, but Spencer Lake could not be seen. Dead River could be seen winding around, in and out like a tortuous silver band. The little village of West Forks, Forks Pleasant Pond is where they get the 16-lb. salmon, was to the south of us. Jackman and Moose River Village were seen without the glass. Moxie Mountain and Lake Moxie were in plain view. Mount Kineo was located with certainty by the glass and map.

Stand on a pinnacle like this and see an area with at least a 60-mile radius, and every mile covered with forest (except the lake area), almost trackless, all looking like a great bed of moss at your feet; being aware that you are seeing but a small part of Maine's forest, one is loth to think it is "sunset with spruce timber," as some lumbermen will tell you. Of course many, many miles are cut over, but it is all growing again, and with suitable conservation and scientific forestry, four hundred years from today it will look about the same. Benedict Arnold went to the top of this mountain to see if he could see Quebec, "The Seat of the Mighty." He didn't see Quebec, but he saw everything else just as I saw it. I am a Maine man and know the State from end to end, and know no more beautiful spot than Lake Parlin and no better fish and game country.

GAME LAW PROSECUTIONS

Information is received by the State Fish and Game commission that on complaint of H. L. Stone, warden, J. M. Aldrich of Redwing Ridge, Ct., paid a fine of $40, on Aug. 28, for camping and kindling fires on wild lands without a guide.

By the same warden $25 was collected by R. R. Valentine and C. Clifton Lewis of East Rockaway, N. Y., for having a rifle in their possession fitted with a Maxim silencer.

On Aug. 20, the same warden collected $60 from John MacDonald of Oxboro, for killing one deer and two partridge in close season.

Neil Violette, deputy forest commissioner has been on a trip to Aroostook county to look after the stumpage on the public lands, passing most of his time at Eagle Lake, Fort Kent, Houlton and Presque Isle.

Information has been received at the Fish and Game commissioner's office that Frank Shaw of Patten and Lewis Thompson from Pennsylvania, were fined $200 at the supreme judicial court at Bangor for the illegal killing of a moose. The complaint was entered by Wardens H. S. Stone and L. C. Jones.

ALLOTING FISH TO HATCHERIES

The Fish and Game commission has commenced the work of allotting fish to the several hatcheries of the State. This work together with the supervision of the delivery of these fish will take, at least, two months time.

ADVISE ROAD TO KINEO STATION

Important Meeting of the Maine Automobile Association.

At one of the most important meetings of the directors of the Maine Automobile Association held in Portland late Friday, it was voted to recommend to the Maine State Highway Commission that a road be built to Kineo station, either from Greenville or from the so-called Quebec road, and thus open up this vast Moosehead lake territory, now almost wholly inaccessible except by railroads. The vote passed by the Association was as follows:

"Realizing that the Moosehead lake region is a vast territory capable of great development and at the present time almost wholly inaccessible by road, and while the State Highway Commission is laying out its routes, we recommend that it lay out one into this territory to Kineo station from some point on the Quebec road either by the way of Parlin pond or Jackman, or along the west shore from Greenville Junction.

"On either route the big lumber companies have built several miles of good road so that there will have to be only from 15 to 18 miles of new construction.

"From Kineo station the Great Northern Paper Company already has built a good road for about 20 miles north to Pittston Farms, and the state last year appropriated $4,000 for the construction of a cement bridge on this route."

It was the opinion of the directors of the Maine Automobile Association that the Moosehead lake region was destined to become one of the greatest pleasure spots in the entire state, as well as the scene of much business activity. At the present time, there is only one highway leading to the lake, this being the one at Greenville Junction at its most southern point. The remainder of the miles of shore of this greatest lake in Maine and one of the largest in the eastern half of the United States, can only be reached by steamer from Greenville and by one line of railroad, the Somerset County line, at Kineo station.

There is not a passable road anywhere along the shores of this great body of water, and Mt. Kineo House is inaccessible except by steamboat and railroad.

During the past few weeks, a strong movement for the development of this vast region by the construction of a highway along the shores of the lake, has been in progress, and the two routes named have been suggested by two opposing interests. The towns on the so-called Quebec road would like to see the new highway built in from this section, while the people at Greenville believe that the most feasible route, and the one that would open up the greatest amount of territory, would be from Greenville Junction along the west shore of the lake to Kineo station. It is known that the Maine Central railroad desires this road, and practically every great business interest in that section of the state is in favor of the project.

Another important action taken at the Maine Automobile Association meeting yesterday was regarding working county prisoners on the highways, and as a result of this vote, the following resolution will be sent to the State Highway Commission:

"Voted—That we suggest to the State Highway Commission that it would be advisable to take advantage of the law passed at the last session of the Legislature authorizing the employment of the prisoners in the county jails on the highways."

This action is now possible as the result of the passage of the law at the last session of the Legislature.

Still further important action was taken by the directors when it was decided to recommend to the State Highway Commission that it adopt a uniform signboard post 5½ feet from the ground. This vote was as follows:

"Voted—That the State Highway Commission be requested to adopt a uniform and standard system of highway signs erected on a post 5½ feet from the ground, and that it enforce the law compelling towns to erect such signs."

It was also voted that it is the opinion of the Maine Automobile Association that the State Highway Commission should grant no state aid to a town unless it owns or uses at least a five ton, horse drawn roller in the construction of the state-aid roads.

It was stated at the meeting that the new State Highway Commission is getting into working condition with all possible speed, and that the department is being entirely re-organized. It was also reported that the road between Portland and Portsmouth would be immediately completed and that work was now in progress surveying the road between Fryeburg and Portland and between Bath and Portland.

It was brought out at the meeting that careful investigation by the officers of the Association had shown that a signboard should not be over 5½ feet in height. At this height it is directly on a level with the eye in conveyance, and what is far more important, it is directly in the range of automobile lights at night so that, with signs at that height, it would be unnecessary to get out of a machine and light a match, or climb a post in order to get directions, as is likely to be the case at the present time with the tall signs.

It also was stated that the membership of the Maine Automobile Association, in good standing at the present time, is about 2500, a gain of about 500 during the present year.

KEW KNOWLES

the Florida quays and the crew, including Young Joe, was picked up and taken to Havana by a passing steamer. From Havana he shipped aboard a New Brunswick hooker bound light to St. John. Thence he made his way back to Portland and speedily embarked upon new enterprises of adventure.

All this we learned long afterward.

When next Joe appeared in Lewiston he was wearing the uniform of the United States navy. He was then about 17 years old. He paid a visit to the old folks in Wilton and then came back to Lewiston, where he was idolized by his former chums.

He had numerous tattoo marks upon his body. I recall that upon his breast was a fascinating young woman twirling a young snake around her waist. Each of his wrists was encircled by elaborate bracelets done in red and blue India ink. Between his shoulders was a map of the western hemisphere. There was scarcely any part of his skin covering that did not make its mute appeal to art. He has them yet.

To us youngsters Joe Knowles became a fetish. We worshipped him. To us he represented all the romances of youth—the embodiment of half-baked, callow dreams, inspired by the literature of the day.

We went so far as to let him tattoo us. I have on my left arm at this moment a design done in blue India ink which Joe Knowles intended as a monument to his artistic ability.

Fortunately my mother appeared on the scene before the picture had got fairly underway, and drove him off.

A good many years went by—at least 20—and then, having been employed for some time on a Boston newspaper, I took a vacation in the wilds of northern Maine, on a deer-shooting expedition. Arriving at King and Bartlett camps, I asked the proprietor, Harry Pierce, if he could furnish a guide. He could, and he introduced me to "Mr. Knowles."

We struck out the next day and hunted hard with indifferent luck. That night we camped in a lean-to that Knowles built, and made our supper of partridge and salt pork. With pipes lighted we fell to talking and speedily rediscovered each other. I wish that space permitted a recital of the epic that Knowles related.

HOW TO TREAT YOUR TOWN

The following from the Mars Hill View voices the sentiments of Maine Woods:

"Praise it. Improve it. Talk about it. Trade at home. Be public spirited. Take a home pride in it. Tell of its business men. Remember it is your home. Tell of its natural advantages. Trade and induce others to trade here. When strangers come to town use them well. Don't call your best citizens frauds and impostors. Support your local institutions that benefit your town. Look ahead of self when all the town is to be considered. Help your public officers do the most good for the most people here, and you should help others as they help you. Don't advertise in the home paper 'to help the editor,' but advertise to help yourself."

EARLY SNOW STORM REPORTED

Camps at Grant's Are All Full and Many Booked for the Hunting
---Fishing Still Good and Birds Plentiful.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Grant's Camps, Kennebago, Sept. 17—Although September days are waning the number of guests in camp does not diminish and a full house is still the outlook and a big booking for the hunting in October.

Owing to the easiness of excess Grant's camps is becoming a very popular place for week ends and on Saturday nearly thirty new arrivals swelled the number of guests already located. Mrs. E. C. Gilman and party, Miss Gladys Gilman, Miss Charlotte Chesley, Miss Rachel Marble, J. C. Gilman, Edw. Gerry, Parker Brown, Nelson Shields and Paul Cummings with guide, Abe Ross spent Sunday in camp and though the weather was not propitious, they gathered around the piano and made the place resound with echoes of the latest and also old fashioned airs, which were greatly appreciated by a large audience of listeners. Miss Gilman presided at the piano.

Another party who spent the week end consisted of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Field, Phillips; Mr. and Mrs. Elias Field, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Emery, Miss Ruth Emery, Boston. The party came from Phillips and were joined by Ralph Hallett, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Glavin at Oquossoc. Some of the above named have made three trips to the camps this season being members of the Field party who have made annual visits since the camps have been opened.

Mrs. W. D. Grant and family returned recently from a month's trip to the sea shore.

"Where to put them" has kept landlord Grant guessing for the last two months and many applicants are booked for the fall days. The outlook for hunting is very bright and everyone who can shoot straight enough is sure of filling his game bags.

J. P. Garland, with sons James and Chas. are in camp for their annual visit. A lessening of the birds about camp will be evident when these boys get their rifles in good working condition.

Mr. Coates and family of Springfield are enjoying their cozy camp, Harmony Lodge. This is their second visit this season.

Theodore DeWitt has recently made his second visit and will return later in the season to Camp DeWitt which at present is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Parker.

Mrs. Chas. M. Cushman and sons, Malcolm and Gordon, were in camp for the week end.

Although there have been some frosty nights, the foliage has not as yet become noticeable in coloring.

Visitors at the fire station on the top of West Kennebago Mountain have been numerous this season and patrol man Braun, shows a register in which nearly two hundred names are recorded.

Mr. Maynard of Portsmouth, N. H., of the Draper, Maynard Co., makers of athletic goods, accompanied by his son, Edward and friend Mr. Batchelder are occupying Kam Kumseelt.

Some fine fish have been taken the past days, since the rain. Mrs. Elias Field enjoys the distinction of being the high line of the party with a 4 pound salmon, Miss Ruth Emery caught a 2 1/2 pound trout, while H. H. Field cast a skillful fly with gratifying results. Mrs. H. H. Field got a fine salmon, while H. P. Garland brought in a beauty weighing 3 1/2 pounds which he captured in the lake in the edge of the pads. Several fish weighing over 3 pounds were taken within a radius of a few rods. The Field party greatly enjoyed a picnic lunch at the falls the other night. They were served with a bountiful repast, prepared by guides, Panjoy, Cleveland and O'Brien.

K. B. Reed is in camp for his second trip this season.

Everyone who started out for birds this week got them, more or less. Messrs. Sanderson, Rockwood, Garland, Clegg, Marcy, Field and many others provided their table with this luxury without going away from the vicinity of the camps.

Messrs. J. P. and C. G. Garland, who visited the fire station Sunday report a sharp snow storm up there, which turned the ground white.

Frederick Eckstein brought in two nice trout, each weighing over two pounds and reported with regret the big one that lost himself.

Every day applications are received for accommodations during the hunting season and the prospects are good for an abundance of all kinds of game.

MANY DEER SAYS "HARKEE BILL."

The hunting conditions in the Maine woods are improving every day now for the convenience of the sportsmen who, on the first of October will send their advance guard of hunters into the great forests of the Pine Tree State. The sportsmen who are now enjoying the last few weeks of September in the woods are having very good partridge shooting according to the reports as the birds are very plentiful this season and are unusually plump after a fine summer says the Portland Telegram.

"Harkee Bill" or in other words, William Holt, proprietor of Indian Rock Camps at Hanover, Me., was in Portland a few days ago and said that he had not seen deer so plentiful in the forest as they are this fall for a good many years. Last winter there were not many severe snows which were followed by rains and freeze-ups forming a crust on the top of the snow and for this reason not many of the deer "winter killed."

Portland men are already perfecting their parties to go into the woods in October. At the "forts" there are a number of officers who are going into the Holeb and Lambert lake country in the extreme northern part of the state, while "Nate" Lane well known as a camp owner and guide is arranging to take a party of five into the Russell stream country. "Nate" when seen by the Telegram representative a few days ago said, that the deer were very plentiful "up stream" and that many moose workings had been discovered. In order to reach Russell stream a party has a good day's journey into the woods with a stop over night at Northeast Carry, Moosehead lake, which permits one to see the beauties of this great inland lake and after leaving the lake some of the best of the enormous hunting regions of Maine are encountered.

EXCITING BEAR FIGHT AT LITTLE SEBOOIS LAKE

Fred Brown of Camp Moosehorns
Slays Mr. Bruin After Lively
Chase in His Canoe.

The Bangor News says: Fred Brown, one of the proprietors of Camp Moosehorns on Little Seboois Lake, was returning from a duck hunt, when he saw ahead of the canoe, an animal swimming in the lake; he gave chase, and on getting near found it was a bear. The bear was nearing shore, and immediately Mr. Brown sent the canoe between Mr. Bruin and shore, at the same time shooting a charge of double B shot into his face, which had little effect except to madden the beast. The animal then tried to climb into the canoe, but was beaten off with the paddle and aim was again taken, but to the hunter's dismay, he had shot away all his ammunition at ducks, and had fired his last shot at the bear. The next best thing was to paddle around and around to keep him from going ashore and he called for aid.

Guests at the camp were immediately astir, and a fleet of canoes and boats were soon going to his assistance. Mr. Haskell, a guest, was in the lead, and tossed a ball-loaded shell into the canoe where the tired hunter could reach it, and soon it was sent into Bruin's head. Mr. Haskell was too quick to reach for Mr. Bear, for one stroke of a powerful paw lacerated his hand.

Dr. H. G. Beck of Baltimore will have the skin made into a rug for his office, while the table is supplied with juicy steaks for those who like them.

ing to know that for some four or five seasons past that full-grown moose with occasional calves have been seen skipping about the "burnt lands" district in August and September, though they vanish entirely before the beginning of open season on moose in October. Two years ago a three-years-old bull was found dead in a boggy place back from the pasture of Mr. William H. Coffey of South Brewer. When found the body was so badly decayed as to be offensive. Game Warden Perkins came down from his home in Bradley and said the animal had been shot by some unknown party.

Allied to the rare forms of nervous hiccough there is also the emotional hiccough, which arises in connection with a moral shock, severe fright and sudden emotion, the hiccough due to irritation and hysterical hiccough. BIRD HUNTER SHOOTS MRS. BRUIN

Earl Hutchins of Kingfield was out partridge shooting last Tuesday on the Day Ridge, about a mile south of Tufts pond and ran onto a bear feeding on acorns. He slipped in a buck shot shell and fired, the shot taking effect in her hind quarters. Instantly she charged for him and very soon Hutchins found himself rapidly climbing an 8 inch beech tree, but he did not get out of reach before the bear with a snarl made a cuff at him, tearing two slits in one leg of his overalls. Unseen before, two culis now appeared and soon called the mother bear away. The bear weighed about 200 pounds and the shot started quite a flow of blood, but although Hutchins with his father, William Hutchins and H. H. Boynton, went back the next day they were unable to find any trace of her.

OBITUARY.

Ada E. Daggett

"God's finger touched her and she slept." After a brief illness of a few weeks during which her faith was bright and inspiring to all who knew her, Ada E. Daggett daughter of Jeremiah and Lydia Pottle, and the wife of Albert Daggett, entered into the heavenly rest.

She was born in Freeman, Me., December 23, 1853 and was translated at Strong, Me., September 15 1913 at the age of 59 years, 8 months and 22 days. In early life she taught school, beginning her career as a teacher at fifteen years of age and for 20 years taught in both the East and West. In this capacity she evidenced marked capability and was very successful. In June 13, 1888, she married Albert Daggett, who survives her. This union has been a very happy and delightful one. Mrs. Daggett was a very domestic, substantial, sensible and genial woman.

Her mind was vigorous almost to the last. Her religious life was of the Puritanic type. She believed in the essentials of religion. She knew her Bible, loved to pray, had an experience all her own and nothing delighted her more than to talk of the things which she had experienced. All classes received a draught from her cup of salvation and it is said that no child crossed her path without a greeting. She was a most excellent teacher in the Sunday school for 25 years. Had a wonderful ability of opening up the word of God to her scholars. They all loved her and were present at the funeral in a body and accompanied the remains to their last resting place. She was an active worker in the Ladies' Aid society and all other departments of church work. From such statements as these it can be readily inferred that she loved the church of her choice, of which she became a member May 6, 1874 and that she faithfully and conscientiously devoted the energies of her being in its upbuilding.

STRENGTHEN WEAK KIDNEYS.

Don't suffer longer with weak kidneys. You can get prompt relief by taking Electric Bitters, that wonderful remedy praised by women everywhere. Start with a bottle to-day, you will soon feel like a new woman with ambition to work without fear of pain. Mr. John Dowling of San Francisco, writes:—"Gratitude for the wonderful effect of Electric Bitters prompts me to write. It cured my wife when all else failed." Good for the liver as well. Nothing better for indigestion or biliousness. Price, 50c and $1.00, at R. H. Preble's, Phillips; L. L. Mitchell's, Kingfield; Charles Dyer's, Strong; H. C. Riddle's, Rangeley.

As she saw the end approaching she looked with triumphant joy and knew that it was all for the best. Such recognition in death her loved ones never saw.

In her youth she stocked her mind with hymns and poems that were retained to the very last.

Only a few weeks before her death, while her pastor sat by her bedside, she talked over the plans for her funeral as if she was going away on a brief journey. She chose the scriptural reading, which was, Matt. 5; verses 3 to 9. 14th chapter of St. John as far as the 16 verse. 15th chapter of St. John as far as the 9th verse and the 91st and 23rd Psalms. She chose her hymns and those to sing them which were "Face to

Five Years of Severe Rheumatism

The cure of Henry J. Goldstein, 14 Barton Street, Boston, Mass., is another victory by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine has succeeded in many cases where others have utterly failed. Mr. Goldstein says: "I suffered from rheumatism five years, it kept me from business and caused excruciating pain. My knees would become as stiff as steel. I tried many medicines without relief, then took Hood's Sarsaparilla, soon felt much better, and now consider myself entirely cured. I recommend Hood's." The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. P. Holman and were carried out just as requested. The services were held from the Methodist church Thursday afternoon September 18 and were largely attended. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The casket and pulpit were completely banked besides many large pieces which were on stands.

She leaves to mourn their loss which is her gain, a husband Albert Daggett, who is 86 years old

NO QUESTION ABOUT IT

Kimball's Liver Pills Must Cure Liver and Stomach Troubles or They are Free.

R. H. Preble continues to sell Phillips people with the understanding that they positively must cure liver and stomach trouble or they will not cost a cent. Experience has proven that Kimball's Liver and Stomach Pills cure liver and stomach trouble in forty-nine cases out of fifty. That is a remarkable statement considering how difficult it is to cure liver and stomach trouble, but the facts in the case can be easily verified, there is every reason to have confidence for Mr. Preble will hand you back your money without the least hesitation should you fail to be benefited and cured. You will see a marked improvement right away; all kinds of food can be eaten freely and is more easily digested. There is no fullness or distress after eating because Kimball's Liver and Stomach Pills aid the stomach to assimilate and digest the food and tones up the liver. As a nerve tonic nothing in the world will do you so much good as Kimball's Liver and Stomach pills.

THE RENEWAL A STRAIN.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

COMMISSIONERS HAVE HEARING

Rangeley, Sept. 16.

At Furbish hall at 7 o'clock this evening was held one of the most important public hearings by the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game that has ever been held in town. For weeks there has been much feeling about the law passed last winter whereby the ponds in this section, which after great expense for years past had been stocked with trout and salmon were opened for bait fishing. Hon. Blaine S. Viles of the Commission called the meeting to order.

There was a large number of persons present both guides, citizens and the city people who make their summer homes in this region. The first hearing asked that "It shall be unlawful for any person to fish for, take, catch or kill any kind of fish at any time in Quimby pond, Dodge pond, Round pond, Gull pond, Haley pond, Dead River pond or Saddleback Mountain ponds all situated in the county of Franklin, except in the ordinary way of angling with the artificial flies.

It shall also be unlawful for any person to have in possession any kind of fish taken in violation of these regulations."

Wm. S. Marble of the Rangeley Lakes Hotel company was first called upon and said that they took great interest in the fishing in this section, that he had talked with many of the guests and others and all thought these ponds should be closed to fly fishing only.

Wm. P. Mason of New York was the next speaker. He said that for 30 years he had been coming here, that he loved the place and the people and had only what would be for their best good at heart, that he wanted to come here for 30 years more, but if Gull pond where he has a camp and where he has helped to put in thousands of fish was not closed except for fly fishing soon there would be no fish and he should not come. "I was driven from the Adirondacks, but hope to remain here as I have faith in the Commission and the people that the right laws will be made and our fish protected" and also that they were always glad to welcome anybody who came to Gull pond to fly fish.

ell game warden, Eugene Soule, Eugene Herrick, Ira Huntoon, John Russell and others all asked that the ponds be closed for fly fishing only.

It was with much enthusiasm that the people heard Commissioner Viles say the request of the people would be granted and that it is now lawful to fish with the fly only on Quimby pond, Dodge pond, Round pond, Gull pond, Haley pond, Dead River pond and Saddleback Mountain ponds, allowing six fish to a person at any one time.

The next hearing was asking the same for Loon and Cow ponds.

Lewis York of York camps and others spoke for the interests of this region in asking for fly fishing only.

The Commission granted the request, also that it shall be unlawful to take or send any fish from Loon and Cow ponds and the audience was very much pleased to have the request granted.

The hearing regarding the fishing in South Branch of Dead River stream was of interest and the Commission will later decide for the greatest interest for the people.

It is most pleasing for Maine Woods to announce the good will of the people and the interests

MADRID

Sept. 22.

Sandy River Grange held an interesting session in their hall in Madrid, Saturday evening, Sept. 20. The subject of farming with less land and more education among the farmers, was ably discussed, opened by Annie Weymouth and followed by several other patrons, which became very interesting and instructive before the close. The same subject will be taken up later together with other questions on agricultural pursuits. A committee of two to work in conjunction with the lecturer was appointed to prepare programs and papers on various subjects to be taken up for the betterment of the order and to awaken more interest in the Grange meetings during the fall. The lecturer's program consisted of select readings, anecdotes, remarks and piano solos finely executed by Mrs. Eva Stowell. At the close of the meeting the "penny march" was in order, the proceeds of which is used for the benefit of patrons who are sick or need help in any way. It is hoped the next meeting in two weeks will be well attended as items of importance will be in order.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Resident of Phillips Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved

In gratitude for relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney pills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Phillips who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Phillips kidney sufferers.

Eben Tyler, retired farmer, Pleasant road Phillips, Me., says: "My back pained me almost constantly for six months. I was lame and sore all over and it was hard for me to move. The secretions from my kidneys passed too frequently and health was all run down. Finally, I read of a party in town who had been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got a box at Cragin's Drug store (now R. H. Preble's Drug store). The results of their use both surprised and delighted me. I am now in good health. The public statement I gave some years ago, praising Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

IN AND ABOUT PHILLIPS

Charles Richards of Strong, was in town recently trying out a very promising four year old colt by Westland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Larabee who have been on their farm in Kingfield the greater part of the summer, have returned to their home in Phillips.

Mrs. Mary Butts, mother of Mrs. A. A. Jacobs, has gone to Kingfield for a visit with friends.

Mrs. Fred O'Brien was thrown from a wagon near the grade crossing in Farmington of the Sandy River and Rangeley Lakes railroad last week at the Novelty mill of Russell Bros. and Estes Company and quite badly hurt. She and her husband were both thrown out by the horse becoming frightened by an auto. Mrs. O'Brien was taken to the office of Dr. George L. Pratt and was later removed to the home of a relative on Box Shop hill. She was badly bruised about the back and hips and suffered much pain but the physician believes no bones were broken.

Mrs. Octavia Blanchard has been a recent guest of her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Russell.

We understand that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Greenwood will return to Phillips and occupy their old home which will be vacated soon by Dr. and Mrs. W. I. Blanchard who are to move elsewhere. Phillips friends will welcome Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood to town again.

The last issue of The San Francisco Chronicle in commenting upon Edna Worthley Underwood's new book says: "There is something more than average quality in these 'Love Sonnets to a Spanish Monk.' The writer has a fine command of the difficult sonnet form and a singular felicity of phrase. More than this, there is genuine passion permeating the whole work, and if it falls short of greatness it is because there is no new angle to the thought. In some of the passages Swinburne himself could not have been more daring." Other critics have compared the sonnets to the work of Leigh Hunt, and to Meredith. Stories from Mrs. Underwood's "Book of Dear, Dead Women," have been re-published in the leading magazines of England, and an entire edition of the complete book was furnished for Australia. Phillips friends of Mrs. Underwood are very grateful at the success she has achieved in her literary work.

Alex D. Johnson of Lewiston U. S. Army Recruiting officer is in town this week looking for able bodied young men for the army. The Government needs from 2,500 to 3,000 men each month. Lewiston is the nearest office at which to enroll.

Rev. Abel Pottle of Waterville was in town last week called to Strong by the death of a relative, Mrs. Albert Daggett. While in town he called on Mr. O. W. Russell and daughter, Mrs. Ella Brackett and other friends.

Mrs. Orris Vose was in town Tuesday. She has recently returned from a trip to Boston.

Mrs. C. S. Hayden of Lewiston came Saturday to visit her daughter, Mrs. M. S. Kelley. She will remain for several weeks and her many old friends in Phillips will be glad to meet her. Mrs. Hayden has come to Phillips annually for many years on the Bath excursion.

B. T. Parker of Waltham, Mass., and daughter are visiting his sister, Mrs. Edwin Tyler and friends.

I. D. Lambert, proprietor of the Lambert Nail Holder Mfg., and who is lumbering at Roxbury, was on a business trip to Phillips last Friday, returning Saturday.

The Sandy River was unusually high Tuesday morning after the heavy rain of Monday.

C. A. Mahoney, salesman for a cigar and confectionery firm in Portland was in Phillips on his regular trip this week.

Mrs. Grace Mitchell calls attention to the fact that she will close out her stock of millinery this fall and that it will be sold at low figures. Ladies in town for the Fair will do well to call and inspect her up-to-date stock.

Mr. C. L. Pierce, manager of the Lambert Nail Holder Mfg. returned home this week from a business trip through the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Bean of Bethel arrived in town Saturday to visit their son, Mr. Lester E. Bean. They were accompanied by Freeborn Merrill and Miss Hattie Merrill also of Bethel and came in Mr. Merrill's automobile. The party returned home Sunday with the exception of Mrs. Bean who will remain for a week. Mr. Merrill is editor of the Bethel News.

Mrs. Frank Trufant of Lisbon Falls is visiting her uncle, William Shepard and also her friend, Mrs. R. E. Harden.

Mrs. W. S. Briery, Mrs. W. P. Douglass, Mrs. Robert Byron and son, Fred Byron came Saturday on the excursion to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kenniston, and sister, Miss Blanche Kenniston.

Mrs. Dolloff of Mount Vernon, who has been a guest at William Leavitt's for a few weeks past, returned to her home Tuesday.

The Sunday school will be held at the Methodist church at 12 o'clock next Sunday, September 28.

Miss Celia Whitney resumed her work in the office of A. W. McLeary at the railroad station Monday morning. She returns in excellent health from her European trip.

Bonney Webber has moved his family to the upper village.

The children are trudging the time worn path, just as other children have done for generations. But the modern children should have watches. Twice a day they should be on time but they will waste time if they have to guess. One of the great lessons of life is to learn to spend time carefully. Give the child a watch—it will teach punctuality while the mind is still plastic. Boys' watches, $1.00, $2.00 and $5.00. Girls' watches $2.00 and up. Good enough for grown-ups at that.
