

PORTLAND PARTY AT LONG POND

An hunting party consisting of Messrs. George L. Morrison, district foreman of the Maine Telephone company and John Bailey of Portland accompanied by Frank Toothaker of this place and son Howard of Portland have been on a hunting trip to Long pond, occupying the camp belonging to George Snowman. They met with great success, securing four mice deer. Also some partridges. The party have returned to Phillips and are at Frank Toothaker's this week, expecting to leave for their home Friday.

MISS HOLT WINS THE $5.00 PRIZE

Farm Buildings Burned---Interesting Meetings Held.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Weld, Oct. 14. Karl Schofield and Conie Masterman were home from Kent's Hill to attend the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wheeler of New York City are in town.

The prize speaking contest held Friday evening was well attended. There were five contestants: Ezra Noyes, Harry Newman, Carolyn Kittridge, Marilla Holt and Jennie Sanborn. The judges were: Henry Riggs of New York, Mrs. Emma Dummer and Mrs. Madge Whitin. The award of $5.00 was presented to Marilla Holt.

Mrs. Fairbanks of Phillips is visiting her grandson, Trueman Masterman.

Some new books have recently been added to the public library.

Mrs. Mary Hardy, who has been spending several weeks with her son, C. A. Hardy, returned to Phillips Sunday. While here she attended the fair and was one of the oldest ladies present. She with Mrs. Alonzo Parker, who was also present, are both smart and active at the age of 83.

C. A. Hardy has gone to Phillips for a few days.

Lena Newman was home from her school work at Farmington over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Foster are the proud parents of a baby girl.

James L. Cummings and Mr. Dunlap of Portland have been holding special meetings in the Union church since Saturday; also two afternoon services at Maple Grove schoolhouse. Mr. Dunlap sings the story of the gospel in a very pleasing manner.

Monday morning at about one o'clock fire broke out in the farm buildings owned by Bert Plummer and occupied by H. Arthur Foster and the buildings were burned to the ground. Mr. Foster's people lost a large part of their household goods and personal property. Much sympathy is felt for the family in their loss.

T. A. Schofield was operated on for appendicitis at the Maine General hospital last Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Field have been in town for a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyman and daughter have returned from a week's vacation spent with his parents at Dickvale.

ENTERTAINS PARTY OF LADY FRIENDS

Last Thursday, Oct. 8th, a merry crowd of ladies drove to the Shepard farm on the Bray Hill road. They had been invited by Mrs. Shepard to spend the day and partake of a harvest dinner and nearly all accepted this invitation.

Dinner was served at noon. The guests took all kinds of pies, cakes, doughnuts and pickles and coffee was served. Mrs. Shepard knows how to cook a boiled dinner, as all the guests can testify.

In the afternoon several snap shots were taken of the party. Mrs. Fred Wells favored the company with a French song and the hostess served ice cream and cake.

As the shadows began to lengthen the party wended their ways homeward with thanks for a very enjoyable day, and three cheers were heartily given for Mrs. Shepard. Those present were Mesdames Frank Atwood, Will Ross, Charles Berry, Cheney Parker, Ed Rideout, George Bangs, Charles McKenzie, Harry Bell, Warren Larrabee, Harvey Sampson, Belle Pease, Charles Dunham, Dexter Beedy, Arthur Grafam, Sarah Graffam, Arthur Beedy, Frank Haley, Proctor Smith, George Dennison, Fred Morton, Joel Carlton, Frances Record, Everett Holt, Fred Wells, George Adams, John Teague, Miss Beth Pease and Master John Bangs.

MISSIONARY AND TEMPERANCE MEET

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Eustis, Oct. 8—Members of Eustis Center Sunday school met on the afternoon of Oct. 5, for their annual Missionary meeting. Similar meetings have been held for about 12 years. The weather was perfect and friends came from far and near to the number of about 60 thereby showing their interest in this little band of workers.

The exercises opened by reading and singing the responsive service, Gorgee Richards and Earl Ken prepared by the Women's F. M. S. of the Presbyterian church. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. Gilpatrick. Then followed readings and recitations on Missions and Temperance, interspersed with singing. One of the songs being The "Lords' Prayer" set to music by Dr. Judson, the pioneer missionary to India nearly 100 years ago.

Special music was furnished by Daisy and Rolland Potter, Mr. Potter rendering a solo "The Whole Wide World for Jesus" in a very pleasing manner.

A much appreciated object lesson by Mrs. F. L. Porter illustrated the amount of money expended by the United States in one year for foreign missions, church work of all kinds, the public schools and all educational institutions, and for strong drink, the last named requiring a ribbon several times the length of all the others combined. Mrs. Porter also gave a talk about the Free Baptist Mission Field, showing pictures of the public buildings and the missionaries.

The offering was collected in white boxes passed by two little girls and enough was received to pay for one share of the salary of the Children's Missionary Sinclair Orphanage.

The exercises closed by singing India's Jubilee Hymn, after which a short address was given by Rev. H. Gilpatrick.

RANGELEY MAN BAGS FOUR BIRDS

(Special to Maine Woods.)

West Freeman, Oct. 13—Will Lovejoy of Rangeley, who with his wife is visiting his mother, Mrs. Sumner Lovejoy, is one of the lucky hunters. While out hunting one day recently in a short time he bagged four fine partridges. His companion captured one bird by hitting it with the butt of his gun, a rather novel and unusual mode of securing the game. Partridges are reported very plenty everywhere. We have heard of several who have committed suicide by flying against window panes or getting entangled in wire fences. Deer hunting by auto is getting to be quite a common and successful method.

HUNTERS AND HUNTING

John Hinkley of Madrid secured a small doe one day last week.

Fred McLaughlin shot a small doe last Saturday while hunting in the vicinity of the Center road, Madrid.

Elwin Webber was among the hunters to secure a deer near the opening of the season.

George Adams and Charles Stevens, who are trapping this fall, got two deer recently in the vicinity of the Gore. Adams' deer was a big buck and Stevens' was a doe. We also understand that Adams has shot a bear this fall that weighed 150 pounds.

Hunt at Katahdin View Camps. You will get your deer and a chance at moose and bear. Birds are plentiful. W. H. DAVIS & SON, Norcross, Maine.

MAINE STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Maine State Sunday School association will meet for its 45th annual convention at Augusta on October 22, 23 and 24. Hon. H. W. Oakes of Auburn is president of the association.

A very interesting program has been prepared and it is hoped that many from this section can avail themselves of the opportunity to attend these helpful as well as interesting meetings.

All pastors and superintendents and two from each school are eligible to attend as delegates. The churches of Augusta will furnish free entertainment on the Harvard plan (bed and breakfast.) The local committee will make arrangements for dinners and suppers at reasonable prices.

PORTER LAKE TO HAVE A BOOM

John A. Staples of Newburg, N. Y., has bought about 100 acres of land on the shore of Porter Lake in New Vineyard, and Gustavus Stickney of Morris Plains, N. J., has bought a strip of land half a mile long on the shore of the same lake. A summer colony will be established there next season, work on a number of cottages to begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring.

E. E. Lincoln, a prominent Boston banker, has bought the farm in New Vineyard recently owned by Mrs. Nettie M. Hogg, and will remodel the place into an attractive summer home. This farm is also on the shore of Porter Lake—Lewiston Sun.

CONSERVATION EASIER UNDER FEDERAL LAW THAN UNDER STATE LAW.

The conservation of wild song-birds and game, which is hoped to accomplish through the working of the new federal migratory bird law, was spoken of recently by Colonel Joseph H. Acklon, president of the National Association of Game and Fish Commissioners of the United States in an address delivered to the members.

Colonel Acklon pointed out that many persons in the country have come to shoot almost anything with feathers or fur and are sportsmen rather than sportsmen. He suggested that under old regulations state game wardens, either because they were careless or did not want to offend their constituents, let their neighbors shoot with impunity and prosecuted only strangers. He favored the new law in that, under federal supervision, wardens would be above local influence and would be offenders would have greater regard for possible penalties. It was Colonel Acklon's opinion that the public opinion of the day, as well as the general desire for conservation, would help in the enforcement of the law.

THE NIMRODS RETURN

They Bring Many Stories of Game, but—No Game.

It may not be generally known that Biddeford has a Joseph Knowles, in fact, four Knowles, but such is the case. Not that any resident, or number of residents, have been going into the woods clothed only in a fig leaf and a smile, but that considering their knowledge of wood lore four Biddeford young gentlemen who did venture into the wilds last week took quite as much a chance as did the redoubtable Knowles and like him have lived to tell the tale. Sunday night they returned, bearing wonderful tales of the amount of game seen, but "nary" a sample of the wild life of the woods. The bunch also looked more or less hungry.

But we run in advance of our tale. To begin at the start, it appears that a number—there were originally eight—of would-be nimrods who make the Harmon and Ross garage on Washington street their headquarters, have been planning a trip into the wilderness after Big game, with a capital "B." Friday morning they started, that is, four of the bunch did. Of the other four, three state that Ernest L. Harmon, who was to have taken them in his car, was seized with a case of "cold feet" just before the time to start, so they perforce had to stay at home or walk. They stayed at home.

Of the four who went, Roy B. Ros, Oren B. Staples, Leon R. Knight, Clarence E. Holt, all survived, and Sunday night they arrived at the garage after having passed two nights and three days in the wilds of New Hampshire.

Nothing very exciting happened to the party excepting the first night out—they slept in a tent—when Ross, frightened by a porcupine nosing around outside the tent insisted on sleeping "in the middle." Otherwise than this there were no narrow escapes.

As for game, they had stories galore of its abundance, but that was all. This morning the main entrance to the Harmon and Ross garage was plastered with signs to the effect that Staples and Ross would serve roast bear at 4 o'clock; or "We helped Knowles make a success of his venture"; and again "Venison steaks for sale here." It is needless to say that it was all a bluff, as they didn't even kill a rabbit.—Biddeford Journal.

FINDS GAME PLENTY IN FAR NORTH LAND.

The number of those who have ranches in Patagonia and do their shooting near the Arctic Circle, is small says the Bangor Commercial. In fact, so far as is known, the only members of the order are Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Luke, who came down from British Columbia the other day, and have left for Buenos Ayres.

"The best big game hunting region I know," said Mr. Luke, "is the Wolcott, is known as the Casuar country, in the extreme north of British Columbia. You have to take a steamer from Vancouver to Wrangell Island, Alaska, and then proceed by gasoline boat to the Slikine river and up that to Telegraph Creek, the head of navigation. Then you ride horses up along the river for 150 miles.

"There is an abundance of grizzly and black bear, of goat, of two kinds of sheep, the Stone and the Fannin, of caribou and of moose. Not many hunters have found their way into the region as yet, though some have been going there for as many as fifteen years.

"Here is a picture of a moose I got. The spread of the antlers measured 60 1/2 inches, and they had 28 points. Here are three grizzlies that I got within one minute. The guide spotted them all at once together. It took three days to bring down the big one, which was 30 yards away when he killed it.

"This caribou," said Mr. Luke, "taking up another picture, 'made the record spread for British Columbia, with 55 1/2 inches, and horns 54 1/2 inches long. Mrs. Luke is the first woman who shot a moose up there. This is a picture of Moose Camp, where the hunters, who have been up there during the last seven years, have left their records on the trees. These records are written in lead pencil on board and nailed to the trees, and such is the dryness of the atmosphere that they are still clear. Of course, the records show the number, name size or points of the animals killed, together with the name of the hunter and his guide. This seems incredible, but all the records are correct.

"I was up there just six weeks this time, and got 15 head of big game. The whole region fairly teems with ptarmigan, which makes fine eating, and are difficult to shoot because they change the color of their plumage with the season, becoming snow white in winter. They look very much like willow grouse."

Do you find big game shooting dangerous for the hunter?" Mr. Luke was asked. He smiled.

"I cannot see where the danger is, if the game is at least 25 yards off, and you have a good rifle. I can conceive that if a grizzly got within five yards of you after you had wounded him, he might make things a little uncomfortable."

"I have been ranching 14 years in the Argentine Republic," said Mr. Luke, in answer to a question. "To be exact, the location of our ranch is in Patagonia. There are three of us, and we take turns of a year each on the place. When we bought the property 13 years ago, we paid 60 cents an acre for it. No there is no land for sale in the vicinity.

"People are making a good income from their land, and they have no thought of selling. It is a fine grazing country, and we have 20,000 head of sheep. Naturally, we are interested in the prospect of big wool and free wool for this country. You see, our people, the Switz and others, have bought all the freestone and granite out of the down there. I believe taking the tariff off is certainly going to make this country a great market for Argentine beef. It will also help the wool market for us.

"The Americans haven't gone much to London for their wool of late, but when ever they have gone, their advent has meant higher prices. When they get into the market regularly, as they are bound to do now that they will have to pay no duty, prices will improve."

NELSON INTERESTED IN PRESERVATION OF FISH AND GAME IN VICINITY OF MOOSEHEAD.

Thomas Nelson of Brunswick, N. J., for long years one of the most constant visitors to Maine and devoted admirer of Moosehead lake and vicinity, has written the Bangor Commercial as follows from his camp on Sandy bay, where he spends several months every year:

Camp Nelson, Greenville, Me.

Sept. 30, 1913.

J. S. P. H. Wilson, Chairman,

Augusta, Maine.

Dear Mr. Commissioner: I wrote you last season stating my views with regard to the fish and game in the vicinity of Moosehead lake, what I thought was necessary for the preservation of the same and the improvement of conditions; and to my letter I received from your commission a very courteous reply.

I am vitally interested in this subject, for I have been coming to this locality every year since 1871, because of the fishing and shooting. I have seen the conditions gradually change, I have talked with most of the guides, and many of the sportsmen, and have compared notes with them, and as we are all interested in this subject I venture to write you again, believing that your commission will appreciate the views of others who have this matter at heart.

With regard first to the fishing conditions: The fishing is going back every year, and naturally, too, for there are really more fishermen coming to this locality because of the accessibility of the place caused by modern facilities of travel. This locality will soon cease to be an attractive fishing resort unless something is done to regulate the exhausted supply.

This could be easily accomplished without undue expense. What is needed at Moosehead lake is an adequate and modern hatchery in place of the present building one at Squaw brook, in charge of a modern and scientific pisciculturist. This hatchery should produce a supply of trout which would more than supply each year the fish that are caught. The product of this plant should be used only and exclusively for Moosehead lake and its waters, and the fry should not be liberated until they were of sufficient size to take care of themselves, and able to escape from the larger fish.

Now how can this expense be met? Of course it probably would be necessary for the State to make an appropriation for the building of such a plant. The sum of $25,000 ought to do it in good shape, after which the maintenance could be more than met in this way: A license tax could be imposed on each non-resident fisherman of $5 for the season (and no real sportsman who comes here would object to such a tax), and a license tax on every resident who fishes these waters of at least $2; for there is no reason why residents should not bear a small portion of the expense for the benefits which will accrue. I am assured by those residents with whom I have talked on the subject that they would gladly pay such a tax if real improvement would follow.

It has been figured by several of the guides in this vicinity who are in position to know that under such a plan, and with the number of people who now fish here there would be a revenue of considerably in excess of $10,000 a year, and with vastly improved fishing the revenue would correspondingly increase. It would be easy under these improved hatchery conditions to liberate annually in this lake several hundred thousand fry of livable size and vigor.

A law should be enacted and enforced preventing any fisherman from using more than one rod or line at a time. If any of you gentlemen will come to these waters while the spring fishing is on, you will see many self-styled sportsmen fishing with from two to three rods, trolling one on each side of the boat and one directly behind. Is there any wonder our fishing is getting poorer under these conditions? The game wardens should specially watch some of the residents who make a practice of going to the spawning beds in the latter part of October and November, and who completely clean out the bed.

Some of the laws enacted in recent years are good as far as they go; the use of the Archer spinner should be prohibited; but this law is not enforced in this section. As an instrument of destruction there is nothing like it, and no true sportsman can object to its prohibition.

The fishing of all the streams tributary to Moosehead lake, including Moose river should be closed after Sept. 1st.

In the early part of September you will find many of the trout full of spawns, and every trout taken after that date is a detriment to general fishing conditions.

Under present conditions the supply of food for the fish is far too great to develop a hardy and game fish. Many years ago it was an unheard of thing to obtain minnows in Moosehead lake, we were obliged to go to outside brooks to obtain them for bait. Now there are countless millions in these waters, the consequence being the few fish remaining are overfed and fat, never rising to the fly as they formerly did voraciously and with ready willingness, rolling up sluggishly when they do notice the fly at all, more out of curiosity than because of hunger. The excessive supply of minnows can easily be checked. In the spring of the year while the minnows are in the brooks and before they have come down to the lake they can be rolled out in tons and the supply of food regulated to a sane and scientific number. The evils of overfeeding have equally true in a fish as in a man.

Now with regards to the shooting. This year I think you have made a mistake in advancing the license to $25 from the fee of $15 formerly in force, which was enough for non-residents. There is not a guide, hotelman, or supply man in this vicinity who is not openly against this new law. You are going to drive a desirable class of sportsmen who have yearly left many thousands of dollars in this State, which have been distributed among the people generally. You are driving these sportsmen, I claim, into Canada, where they can be assured of good specimens and a more varied selection of game with cheaper guide service, and outfitting than they can get in this State. The license tax should be put back to the old price and every resident who desires to hunt should bear his share of cost for the preservation of the game, as in New York State, where all natives who want to hunt are obliged to buy out a license.

The guides tell me here that the residents who want to hunt would not object to an annual tax of $3 for the privilege, and I am willing to go on record as saying that the residents kill by far the greatest quantity of game that is yearly killed in Maine.

The lumber camps are the great destroyers of game in the Maine woods. Take for instance a camp of a hundred men, 30 per cent of the men take guns in the woods with them and on Sunday every one of them goes hunting. At the end of logging operations

MR. CAMP OWNER

It is rumored over the state that no hunters are coming to Maine this fall on account of the new license law. Do you believe this? Do you believe that true sportsmen who love to place a good gun on their shoulders can find such a variety of hunting in any other state in the Union? We do not believe they can, and we also believe that Maine will have a good big bunch of hunters this fall.

COON HUNTERS ALREADY HAVING GOOD SUCCESS.

More Monson people are enjoying hunting than for many years, although the law is yet on much of the game that is hunted in this section. Ducks, foxes and coons are about the only game that can be hunted now, and for the two latter the season is not far enough advanced to be anything like ideal. Parties are out every day hunting foxes. They have captured but few but they state that they are now trying to get the dogs in condition for the season that is near at hand. John Roachford lost two valuable fox dogs in the northern part of the town Tuesday. They were running a fox on Bunyon mountain, and it crossed the main road and led the dogs over the Brimfield mountain, and their failure to return has caused the owner, as well as many other local sportsmen, much worry, as they were considered the best fox dogs in this section. Several foxes have been shot, but their skins are of little value at this time of the year. Reports from all sections are to the effect that there are a large number of these animals in Monson this year, and the fox hunters are expecting a fine winter's sport.

The success that the local coon hunters are having is quite unusual for so early in the season, more coons having been captured already, with the ideal season for the sport yet to come, than has been taken during many an entire former season. The reason for this is not because coons are more plentiful than formerly, but because of the abundance of the hunters. There is hardly a night passes without there being one or more parties of coon hunters in the woods, and the parties are by no means small. In one of them that visited the gulf, a favorite haunt of the animals, there were 18 Monson huntsmen. One party has secured five coons this season, and another party got two one night last week. The sports have become so interested that they have bought high-priced dogs from the west and south, that they expect will do great work when the best coon hunting season arrives.

With the arrival of the open season on birds, squirrels and rabbits a severe epidemic of hunting fever can be safely prophesied. The old hunting dogs that have been neglected all summer are now receiving all kinds of attention. The question as to who owns the best shooting gun, or the best rabbit or bird dog will start a more heated argument than any other topic imaginable. Besides the usual number of men who spend much time in the woods each year, there are many who formerly were content to follow the usual routine of duties who have been captured by the hunting talk and are spending much time looking over guns and ammunition. The woods will surely be alive with huntsmen, when the season opens. The open season on partridges, quail, woodcock and squirrels comes in on the 12th and rabbits and white hares on the 15th. If there is as much game then as has been predicted, there should be wild game on every Monson table.

GOOD COON STORY

Joseph French of Windsor was in Augusta, Tuesday, and in the course of his travels he came across a Journal man. In consequence of the meeting a short but interesting story was narrated by Mr. French in regard to a recent experience which he encountered with a large coon. During the week that the great "World's" fair was on in Windsor, Mr. French decided that he would set a trap or two down in his corn field, to see if he could not catch some of those "pesky critters" that always play havoc with a piece of corn. The traps were set about dusk, and left there until the next morning before any one went near them.

The following morning, after doing his chores and looking after the various farm duties, Mr. French took a trip to the corn field in question to determine his luck. Sure enough, as he approached the piece of corn in the vicinity of where the traps were set, he discovered much to his astonishment two coons, one in each of the two traps that he had set the night before. Not wishing to kill the animals until colder weather, he at once began to contrive a plan for getting them to the house alive. This as it happened was no easy task, as the reader will learn later on in this narrative. About the only thing to do was to take the traps by the chains, coons and all, and drag them to the house. This was attempted by Mr. French.

All went well until he was about half way across the field, when suddenly he felt a quick jerk and looking back he discovered that one of the coons which had been caught by one toe nail, was free from the trap. With no club, or weapon of any kind it was by no means an easy task to corral Mr. Coon as all will agree who ever had any experience with an animal of this nature. The coon in the other trap was dropped and the capture of the fleeing fugitive was at once started. Mr. French made a "swipe" at the coon with one foot and the coon made a swipe at him. Both coon and man made repeated swipes at each other and the battle raged on for a solid half hour. When ever the Windsor "white hope" kicked at the animal the coon would jump at him, four feet into the air, but by some skillful dodging Mr. French prevented the animal from landing any effective blows.

Finally one to the solar plexus sent the terror of the corn field to the mat for the count of nine. Up he was in an instant and at it again. The coon was the aggressor in the fight forcing it for the entire distance, until at last, after feeling his opponent over carefully Mr. French sent in a stiff uppercut on the point of the right jaw that sent the coon to the ropes for the count. Feebly he arose, but a quick jab under the heart put him out of business. After hunting a round the field Mr. French found the other coon and with the two started for the house. Being out of training Mr. French felt the results of the battle more than he otherwise would, but has issued a challenge to any 45-pound coon in the state.

PRAISE FOR MAINE GUIDES

R. M. K. writes in the Washington Star under date of Oxbow, Maine, September 25, as follows:

The guides of Maine who pilot an care for sportsmen in search of fish or game certainly deserve all the good things that have been said of them. As a class they are substantial, honest, competent and agreeable men, and are considered as rather of a higher type than the Indians or French Canadians, although purely as woodsmen the two latter are certainly their equal. They are, in a majority of cases, Yankees, with one now and then born in Ireland or New Brunswick. Not only do they know their business thoroughly, and are a necessity to the sportsmen, but as companions, both mentally and physically, they are mighty pleasant to have along. In the winter the majority engage in some form or other of lumbering and many are trappers. In summer, making the tourist, or "sport," as they always call him, comfortable, is their specialty, and they take a most professional pride in having the camp site and all the details as near perfect as circumstances will allow. It is a source of never-ending pleasure to the city-bred man, and of amazement, too, to watch them at it. So quickly and quietly do they work at their allotted tasks that it seems a sort of slight-hand trick. They make, so-

OLD TOWN HUNTERS REPORT EXCEPTIONAL SEASON FOR GROUSE.

Old Town lovers of bush hunting, who go sometimes to nearby covers and again far afield with dogs and autos to distant sections, where they know of flocks of the brown breasted, toothsome grouse, are reporting a much more satisfactory condition than in previous seasons. The year which has made the raising of crops hazardous and cut down the products of the agriculturists, has afforded the partridge an exceptional season for propagation.

She has laid her eggs and hatched her young with a greater degree of safety than for years. She has led them afield and, with watchful eye out for the marauding fox and clumsy human being, not to mention other enemies, she has watched them grow to a size where they could take care of themselves and she has winged her way to a safe cover, or been shot by the keen-eyed marksman as she sought to escape his scattergun.

Last year the birds were brought into Old Town, but seldom before the middle of October and many whose love for the delicate meat led them to forsake business and don rough tramping togs, with but scanty recompense, have this year come home triumphant with a brace of the birds dangling from belts or tucked snugly into a corner of the open automobile, in a few cases swinging from the handle bar of a bicycle. Incidentally, the gunmen are noticing that there are lots of deer, whose whistles of alarm have sounded with frequency as the hunters have touched off the death dealing shot shell, in the pursuit of small game and it is anticipated that more deer will be brought in as soon as it is cold, than before for many years.

YOU LOVE YOUR DOG BECAUSE

He doesn't talk back to you.
He thinks whatever you do is all right.
You don't have to make company of him.
He eats what's set before him and asks no questions.
He will follow you to the end of the earth.
He never sulks when you mistreat him.
He tries to please you.
You have no rival in his affections—his love is all yours.
He respects all your moods.
He never tells you his troubles.
He never pries into your secrets.
He is polite and thanks you with his tail for every kind word you see fit to give him.
He will fight for you.
He misses you when you are away.
He rejoices when you return.
He is faithful until death.
He does what you tell him without knowing why.
He is jealous of the attentions you show to other dogs.
He trusts you to the utmost with a faith that is wonderful, blind, inexplicable.—New York Women's League for Animals.

Wilton Man Brings Home His Third Moose and Says There Is Great Hunting.

George F. Goodspeed of Wilton, who has just returned from New Brunswick, where he had been looking after his lumber interests in the northeast corner of the Province, says that there is some great moose hunting in the provinces. To prove it he brought a fine one home with him. But the cost of hunting counts up in that country. Mr.
Goodspeed stated that it cost about $175 to $200 at least to get a moose up there even though they are plenty, the license being $50 for a start. This is the third moose he has captured.

visiting in Massachusetts for several weeks, has returned home.

Mrs. W. I. Blanchard were moved to the cars this week and will be sent to Concord, N. H., for the present until they are located permanently.
The Doctor will go to McConville, Pa., on a business trip very soon. He has been working on some plans for a hospital there and the men interested now want him to come and help equip the new building and carry out his plans.
He is uncertain how long he may remain. Mr. Amos Blanchard, of Concord, N. H., father of the Doctor, was in town a few days ago, driving back home with their horse.
Many friends of Dr. and Mrs. Blanchard much regret their departure from town.

Phillips Rebekahs had a gala night last Friday when a masquerade was enjoyed, refreshments, program, etc.
There were a goodly number who masked and only one who could not be guessed among the maskers, C. E.
Parker. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Berry gave a dialogue and George Grover a declamation. The partners were chosen for supper by numbers, and the menu consisted of sandwiches, doughnuts, cake and coffee. After supper a march and games were enjoyed. The mem-piano which will add much to the work of the degree staff.

E. D. Jackson who has been manager of the Maine Telephone company at Farmington, has been in town this with a foreman for each division, and Mr. Jackson is employed as one of the foremen. The other foremen are Per-

WHALES ARE AWED

Captain of Blubber Bark De- scribes Eruption of Volcano.

Portuguese Sailors Pray to the Saints and Every Form of Life in Sea or Air Vanishes—Hurricane Hits Ship.

San Francisco.—The whaling bark Gayhead, Captain Wing, which left here seven months ago on a blubber expedition in the frozen north, returned with 350 barrels of sperm oil, the product of eight whales, and an account of the volcanic eruption at Katmai in June. The Gayhead was 200 miles from the volcano and 150 miles off shore at the time of the eruption. Whales were plentiful, sea birds were visible in all directions and fish, large and small, could be seen in the clear, green water.

A whale had been out of the school that was spouting not far from the bark, had been killed and made fast alongside the vessel. Fires had been started under the blubber kettles and the work of cooking up the whale was in full blast when a muffled explosion that seemed to shake the universe was heard. It was followed by six more explosions.

A few minutes later there appeared on the horizon a small, black cloud that assumed leviathan proportions as it rushed toward the Gayhead. There was wind with it, and it struck the vessel with the violence of a hurricane squall. As it hit the bark the air was filled with fine white dust, that soon covered the decks.

The blackness was on both sides of the vessel. "Black as the darkest night" is the way Captain Wing describes it. Between the two strata of black was a column of fiery yellow, bright as gold. Captain Wing, who has passed many years in the arctic and who recognized the explosions as of volcanic origin, says that the combination of black and yellow was the strangest sight he had ever seen.

The Portuguese whalemens quit work, dropped to their knees and invoked the aid of every saint on the calendar. They were satisfied that the day of judgment had arrived. The shower of ashes and the accompanying darkness lasted for forty-eight hours.

"As the squall approached," said Captain Wing, "I noticed the whales skedaddle. They hooked on at full speed. When the air cleared, two days later, there was not a whale in sight, nor a fish nor a fowl, nor a sign of any kind of life. It was not until the Gay-head had cruised many miles and had winged its way far out of the track of the volcanic dust that as much as a bird was seen. That cursed squall queered our cruise all right."

It was more than a month later that the people on the Gayhead learned that Katmai had been in eruption.

FATHER YIELDS LIFE FOR SON

As Tree Falls He Hurls the Boy to Safety and Is Caught Himself and Crushed.

Aberdeen, Wash.—While Frank De-Hart of Oakville, Ky., was pinioned to the ground by a tree, his seven-year-old son worked frantically to pry the immense trunk off his father's body, and, failing, ran four miles to his home to summon help. Men rushed to the spot to find DeHart lifeless.

According to the boy he and his father had stopped to rest on the bank of the river, when suddenly a large tree near which they were sitting toppled without warning.

DeHart grabbed the boy and threw him out of harm's way. His act of heroism cost him his life, and the trunk caught him across the chest.

The boy grabbed a stick and tried to use it as a lever, but could not move the log. All the time he had to watch his father's face contorting from suffering. Realizing that he could not do anything, the boy then ran for help.

OUR TWO MINUTE SERMON

By Rev. M. S. Hutchins.

This sermon, and others to follow, will not occupy over two minutes of your time in reading. Although miniature in size they will be real sermons. They will be based on timely topics of the day.

THE TYRANT OF MEXICO

The attention of the world was aroused last week by President Huerta of Mexico when he had over one hundred members of the Mexican Legislative Body thrown into prison for no crime other than that of asking embarrassing questions concerning the mysterious disappearance of one of their number who had incurred Huerta's displeasure. Yet the proceedings was to have been expected.

The man began bad. As a general he turned traitor to his government, he threw his country's rightful President into prison and declared himself the ruler. Treason and usurpation are a poor beginning for statesmanship.

Only a little later he deposed president and vice president were shot to death under strangely suspicious circumstances.

Traitor, usurper, and probably murderer, it is not strange that Huerta has now turned tyrant. All honor to our President, Woodrow Wilson, for refusing to recognize his rule.

The crimes of this wicked despot are not without their warning to us for they show the danger of unbridled selfishness in affairs of government. Whenever an office-seeker we forget to think of "public office as a public trust," whenever as wealthy tourists we fail to declare the full amount of dutiable goods we bring from foreign lands, whenever as property-owners we seek to dodge the payment of any part of our just taxes, whenever for selfish reasons we disregard unpopular state laws, we are guilty of that selfishness that is in reality opposed to all true government and that has so conspicuous an example in the present tyrant of Mexico.

Meanwhile we need not envy him his ill-gotten power, for we remember the terrible warning uttered by the Great Teacher when he said "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword."

LOSES HIS CAR AND LIBERTY

St. Paul Man in Auto Wreck Jailed for Reckless Driving by Judge.

Minneapolis.—J. B. Lawrence, wealthy business man of St. Paul and a member of an automobile firm there, not only is out $1,000 for damages to his automobile, but also must spend 20 days in the Hennepin county workhouse for reckless driving, according to the ruling of Judge C. L. Smith of the municipal court. Lawrence, who was found in the wreckage of his automobile, was given three days to arrange his business for the enforced vacation.

Judge Smith, in pronouncing sentence, declared that after investigation he was convinced the only reason Lawrence did not kill some one was because there was no pedestrians near him to be killed.

The arrest of Lawrence is in line with the campaign being waged by police and court against speeding.

THROWS OUT RED HOT STOVE

Philadelphia Resident Also Whips
His Wife and Spanks Two Sisters.

Philadelphia.—John Lepis, of 804 Buttwood street, doesn't like to have his wife ask him for money on pay day. Just because Mrs. Lepis asked him for money he gave her a beating, then spanked his two sisters who went to the assistance of Mrs.
Lepis, after which he proceeded to throw a red hot stove into the street.

He was finishing his house wrecking job by breaking the last whole window in the house when Policemen Nonamaker and Lukweine took him to the police station where he was locked up after the police had separated him from his pay envelope and given it to Mrs. Lepis.

ONE BRACELET TO AN ARM

High School Girls at Camden, N. J., Are Restricted as to Adornment.

Camden, N. J.—Girl students at the Camden high school are now probited from adorning themselves with more than one bracelet on each arm.
This is in accordance with an edict issued by the principal, Miss Clara Burrough, and violation of the rule will result in the offending miss being sent home for the day.

Many of the girls have been wearing three or four bracelets on each arm, and the merry jingling therefrom has upset discipline and interfered with the studies to such extent that the principal limited the arm bands to two.

The new rule is the last on the list of "social conditions and manners to be upheld by the girls."

BRUSHES FAST

Races Trotted at Farmington Fair
---Pottle Sells "My Chance" to Fall River Man.

Rain on the second instant caused a postponement of the meeting until Saturday, the 4th instant. Three events were on the score card for that day, the first of which was the 2.25 trot and pace, with five starters. The only trotter in the lot was Arrow Belle, 2:26 1-4, winner of the 2.19 trot on the 1st inst. As the horses entered the back stretch the first time around, Little Queen a very speedy, nervy mare bred and owned by Dr. Stanwood of Rumford, broke and collided with Arrow Belle. Mr. Bragg, driver of the latter, was knocked from his sulky, thrown some distance and landed near the inside rail. He was stunned and considerably bruised by the fall but was soon upon his feet. Fortunately Little Queen and Arrow Belle were behind the other horses when the accident occurred or the injury to Mr. Bragg might have been more severe. Arrow Belle ran around the track four times before she was caught. She was uninjured, however, and was placed, but Mr. Bragg was injured too seriously to drive the race out. A colored man took his place behind the mare and she finished second in the second heat.

An incident occurred in the third heat which amused the spectators greatly. The last half of this heat was a very close contest every foot of the way between Eola Patchen and Arrow Belle with the latter on the outside and both under a strenuous driver. In rounding the upper turn to enter the home stretch Eola Patchen was driven farther out than was necessary. This gave the driver of Arrow Belle a chance to slip in at the pole, of which he took advantage, and by industrious driving he won the heat from Eola Patchen. His successful effort was generously applauded from the grand stand. It is doubtful if President Wilson was more highly pleased, after signing the tariff bill, than was the driver of Arrow Belle when he drove back to dismount after winning that heat. It is suspected, however, that the owner of Arrow Belle may not have felt grateful for the lowering of the mare's record four seconds in that heat, but it was the most interesting scrap of the meeting.

Secretary George D. Clark is entitled to a vote of thanks from newspaper reporters for courtesies extended to them.

Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Fred Lamb has reason to feel a little rejoicing at the good fortune which has befallen him this season in the hunting and trapping line. About two weeks ago we reported his catch of a fine silver gray fox and upon going to his traps last Thursday found another silver gray fox. The animal was very large and a very fine specimen for this season of the year. As the animal was uninjured in any way it was sold through Charles Harnden to Hanscom and Sargent of Strong for a very handsome sum. The animal being alive and in such splendid condition is very valuable and certainly very rare in this part of the country. The skin of the first fox has been sold by Mr. Harnden at a very satisfactory figure we understand.

BIRD CONSERVATION.

Under the Weeks-McLean migratory bird law, recently passed, the regulations which are to become effective on Oct. 1, have been announced by the bureau of biological survey. These regulations will make probably the most complete and effective measure yet taken in this country for the protection of its wild life.

So many species and varieties of birds have been threatened with extinction that manufacturers of powder and firearms have become actively interested in the conservation movement. When the supply of game birds becomes exhausted and nothing is left to shoot, sport and business alike must suffer. These regulations are discriminating in their provisions, dividing and sub-dividing the birds in proportion to their relative abundance, and protecting some birds at all times and in all States.

Students of bird life have pointed out the enormous value of birds as the controllers of vermin. The insect plagues are fought and subdued by swallows and night hawks, quail, pheasants and grouse, and a thousand other varieties which thus render man by no means the least of their services.

But the Senate of the United States has so amended a section of the tariff bill, which was inserted by the House through the effort of the National Association of Audubon Societies, that the struggle for the protection of wild birds is made more difficult than it should be. The amendment permits the importation of the feathers and plumes of birds "commercially recognized as edible or pestiferous." And in that classification might be placed a great number of the birds most needing protection. If these feathers may be slain at nesting time and their plumes sold as "imported." That our birds may be protected, the Weeks-McLean law should have the added support of this section of the tariff act in its original form.—Boston Journal.

DEPARTURE OF BIRDS.

Autumn Migration Swifter and More Silent Than That of Spring.

At this season of chill nights and heavy dews, the great, almost silent southward migration of the birds is under way. It is the gold and purple time of the year—the gold of the leaves, the corn and the aster hosts, as well as patches and streakings in the maple's foliage. Weed-seeds are ripening, apples are falling, the oppression of dog-days is past, and the birds are on the wing. During the August moult, the woods and thickets have been silent, apparently deserted. Even the red-eyed vireo in the maples has ceased his tireless twittering, and in the evening the whip-poor-will has given only two or three repetitions of his elastic cry. But go out these brisk September mornings and observe the change. There is a reminiscence of spring in the glad voices of robins, flickers and errant bluebirds. Swallows and swift course about in the sky, and the downy drums in the orchard. Chippies in endless numbers are feeding by the roadside, and scatter like leaves in a wind before the approaching team. Where in August yesterday, all seemed lifeless, now abound the activity of newly feathered wings and the calls of gay foragers.

The juncos have returned to the meadow border or to the back yard, where they will linger until snow flies, and later still if seeds hold out, and there is a dense covey to retreat to in a storm. And I know of no pleasanter winter friends to have about. Before my barn is shut for the winter gay companies of them pick over the chaff on the floor, or flash back and forth on the rafters with twinkling music.

The pine groves at this time are filled with a fally, transparent coolness, with an occasional leaf sifting down before the wind. The trees are bronzed lightly with dead needles which fall in sprays beneath the touch of furtive warblers. Jays scream noisily as they troop through the nut trees, whilst crows answer back from high-in-air expeditions. September is the month of jays and crows.

The migration is on in full swing, but swifter, more furtive, more silent than in spring. There are occasional bursts of song, but no continuous music; and the bright plumage of spring has in most cases been exchanged for a somber autumnal garb. The gay warbler legions that filled the May woods with singing and color are now hurrying, almost unseen, through the groves, uttering only faint calls to one another, and in scarce distinguishable raiment. Identifying them at this season is a task reserved for the experienced only, and even then with some uncertainty.

The lisp of the chickadee is to be heard everywhere now; and he plays an important role in respect to the bands of small birds. He seems to have become a kind of pilot, marshalling his careless warblers and kinglets through the wood, inspecting intruders with his snapping black eye, always fearless, always resourceful. After the warblers have departed from the North the chickadee (who is himself a Northerner) still assumes this part with the small winter birds. Indeed, one of the prominent characters of the winter forest is what might be called bands of winter friends"—consisting of several chickadees, with kinglets, brown creepers, nuthatches and a downy woodpecker or two, in tow. You are standing in a silent woodland, when suddenly you catch the note of a chickadee or the high drawl of the Canadian nuthatch, then another, now sounding nearer, and before you know it one of these bands goes darting, flitting, swinging, ever exploring and peering for food, through the trees over your head. As if by magic the cold woods are made gay with happy activity and fine, merry notes. One of the chickadees flashes up to you, looks in the face as if to question your intent, dee-dees some observation, and in another moment the troop has passed on, and quiet remains, as before.

If you wish to remark the autumnal migration in its swiftest progress, go out of doors some of these clear September nights, take your stand in a quiet spot, and you will hear the voices of the multitudes passing overhead. You must not expect something loud and spectacular; but (far more impressively) you will catch the hurried calls of the small flyers, keeping account of one another in their swift night course. A faint tisp now here, now yonder, or now a longer, slightly louder note, dropping from the apparently empty sky will give you a clue to what is going on. You may have heard these fine, frequent sounds of a September evening without knowing whence they came or what they were. But imagine to yourself a stream of warblers, wrens, vireos and other small birds, flowing as it were along invisible pathways of the sky throughout the night—a stream miles upon miles in length, taking its course, it may be, from rivers, coast lines or mountain chains—a course that is as inevitable as the tides. And it is a stream into which plunge young birds of the year as readily as the old and accustomed, frail, short-winged sprites that dare not leave their thicket of a summer, as well as big strong-winged fliers—all obedient to an instinct yet unexplained.

That portion of the migratory stream which finds itself over our neighborhood at daybreak descends, and it is these birds that fill our groves and hedges with restless movement on fall mornings, pursuing a food hunt through the trees in the same southerly direction of their nocturnal passage. So that the migration goes on night and day, quietly, persistently. The blackpoll warblers stirring the sprays of this great spruce today are in all probability not the same ones that were there yesterday, nor the ones that will be there tomorrow. Southward Ho! is in the air. The birds that have sung in our woods during the summer are taking their unannounced departure day by day. It is difficult to say when they go; we only know finally that they are gone. And so it will be until the wild geese pass, leaving only the birds that can brave a New England winter—E. S., in Boston Transcript.

TREES AND INSECTS THAT FORECAST THE WEATHER.

Many woodsmen claim they can tell when a winter will be severe or mild by means of the growth of bark on tree trunks of saplings the growth being much thicker some years than others and an unusually cold winter invariably following when the bark has grown thick. They also declare the moss or lichens that grow on the north side of many evergreen trees will be heavier during the season preceding a cold winter.

Gardeners look at the caterpillars as a means of foretelling the sort of winter that is coming. Of course these observations have to be made in the summer and autumn. Last fall there was printed an article from John T. Timmins, of Birdlaw Conservatory, who declared the winter would be unusually mild. He based this forecast on the fact that the caterpillars had no dark stripes down their backs. The writer averred that when the dark stripes ran full length and were quite black it meant a cold winter, when the stripes ran but halfway down the backs of the caterpillars, it meant a medium winter and when there were very light stripes, scarcely noticeable, it meant a mild winter.

He said the caterpillars of last summer and autumn had scarcely any visible stripes at all, and his forecast seems to have been as accurate as possible.

It is not necessary to be a student of nature to learn much concerning the weather, if all claims are true. It is said crickets will chirp slowly if it is going to be colder during the next day or so, and again chirp with greater rapidity if a warm spell is coming on.

Other animals and insects seem to act as barometers. The ordinary frogs, although called green, have a great deal of yellow about them. While this remains a clear or bright yellow, fair weather may be expected to continue, but it is said that when the yellow begins to fade and becomes rather dull and of a brownish color, bad weather is approaching. Nearly every one knows about the spider that makes his web on the grass. Throughout the summer one may see thousands of closely spun cobwebs spread out on the grass, under rose bushes and such places, with always a little hole in these webs where the spider goes to hide.

If your lawn is well dotted with these webs in the morning, regardless of how cloudy it may be, you are safe in assuming that it will be a fair day, at least for more than half the day. As far as known these spiders will not spin their webs if it is going to rain that day.

founded, as far as the majors are concerned, but back in 1895 Billy Hulen, then with Minneapolis, drew six bases on balls and scored as many times.

BEAR RESENTS BIRD SHOT

One of Caratunk's experienced hunters had a rather exciting time one day last week, while partridge hunting. WORLD CIRCLING TOUR

Series Probably Be Inaugurated in Chicago in October.

Special Train to Coast to Be Decorated With Flags of All Nations to Be Visited—Japan First Foreign Country.

The world circling series between the Chicago White Sox and the New York Giants will be inaugurated with a contest at Cincinnati on October 18. After the game the tourists will board their train, which will be decorated with the flags of all the nations to be visited. A band of music will accompany the party as far as the Pacific coast to enliven the trip and furnish entertainment before the games to be played on the way west.

An entire month will be spent in reaching Vancouver, from which place the party is booked to sail on November 10. On the way to the coast the teams will play games in the middle south and southwest, and will enter California by way of Los Angeles. Games are to be played in that city and in San Francisco, Sacramento, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Vancouver before boarding the steamer for Japan.

The first stopping place after quitting the United States will be Japan, where the native sons already have acquired a great liking for and considerable knowledge of the American pastime. The tourists will continue their trip to China, then to the Philippine islands, where they will be on United States soil again.

From Manila the athletes will travel to Australia, with games booked for the leading cities of that great sporting country. More long-distance traveling will be in order after quitting Australia. India, possibly Calcutta, will draw a game, and then Cairo, Egypt, where a battle will be waged at the foot of the sphinx. If this doesn't bring the sphinx back to life and make him talk, his case may be considered hopeless. Italian cities, Rome, Venice, Genoa and Florence, will next be visited. France, Germany and Austria will be visited before the Americans leave the continent for the British Isles.

It is hardly likely that any games will be played in John Bull's back yard. The weather at that time of the year is too inclement for pastime. The big cities will be visited, however, with a grand finale at Dublin before departing by steamer from Queenstown. The teams will then hustle back to America to go into their respective training camps.

The players who will be selected to make up the two teams will be picked as much for their personalities as for their baseball skill. It is realized that the great American game will be on trial in all of the countries visited, and it is the aim of the promoters to insure sportsmanlike conduct both on and off the field throughout the trip. Men who will realize and attempt to uphold the dignity of their nation's game will be chosen, in so far as possible.

The National commission will select an umpire to accompany the team and officiate as the representative of baseball's "supreme court" during all the games. This will avoid the risk of giving the sport a black eye in foreign lands through disputes or controversies that would be almost certain to grow out of inexperienced umpiring.

No Chance for Trade.

There is absolutely no chance of Tinker getting Bob Harmon from the Cardinals for Bob Bescher and Pitcher Suggs. Huggins says Tinker will not listen to the trade, even if he wanted to put it over.

APPOINTED FISH WARDENS

MAINE INFORMATION BUREAU,

WARDENS WILL BE UNIFORMED AT THE STATIONS.

Walter I. Neal of the game commission was in the city for a few days at the Penobscot Exchange. In talking to a Commercial reporter, Friday, Mr. Neal said that the hunting is very good at the present time, although the warm weather this month is a disadvantage on account of the difficulty of preserving the deer for shipment, and a number of the shipments have come down in poor condition.

Mr. Neal states that the wardens have been doing excellent work this year, and that he doubted if any illegal shipments would escape their watchfulness. Already this season five seizures have been made, one big one of partridges on the third day of the season. Illegal shipments of deer meat, coons, and fish have also been made.

From the numerous complaints received at the office of the commissioners, relative to the hunters having difficulty in having their game examined at the stations and finding time to get lunch, the commissioners have hit upon a plan to have their wardens uniformed at the stations so that it will be easy to pick them out in the crowds. The uniforms which have been selected are after the design of those worn by government inspectors, dark blue with brass buttons and will be a great aid to the hunters.

The Commissioners have also issued framed placards, which will be hung in the stations where the game is examined, namely, Bangor, Northern Maine Junction, Newport, Farmington and Portland. The cards were all that game must be examined and identified at the station nearest to where taken.

The commissioners are endeavoring to make it as plain as possible what is expected of those who go into the woods to hunt deer, and are making a special effort to make the law understood by all. The appreciate the courteous treatment and cooperation given by the express companies, and the railroads and are expecting a very satisfactory year. From the present outlook Mr. Neal stated that looking over the reports received from the wardens and guides, and from the number of non-resident licenses sold, and the increase in fines over last year, everything points to a record breaking year.

Good shipments continue to come and on Friday seven more deer were brought down. Harold L. Rowell of Haverhill, Mass., brought down a 122 pound buck, and a 77 pound doe. R. A. Nichols of this city was among the successful hunters to bring home a prize Friday, bringing down a fine looking deer.

LAND NINETY PICKEREL

It is reported that pickerel fishing in the lakes and ponds around Augusta is now better than it has been at any time during the season, and that big strings are being taken. One party of three Augusta gentlemen which was out early in the week, near Belgrade, landed 90 of these fish.

A WHITE ENGLISH SPARROW

The Kennebec Journal says:

Among the thousands of English sparrows that make their homes in Augusta there is one at least that is not like the others of his kind, inasmuch as he is nearly white, the only brown color about him being along the lower portion of his wings, and at a short distance this is not noticeable. Just where the bird has his roosting place is not known, but he is probably not far from Winthrop street, for he has been seen several times within the past few weeks feeding in the roadway along that thoroughfare. English sparrows with more or less white on them, sometimes but a few feathers, have been noticed in different sections of the city in times past, but the bird which has now made his appearance seems to have it all over his brothers when it comes to wearing white plumage, and he is almost an albino.

EMPLOY TRAINED CORMORANTS

In the same way that hawks and falcons were formerly used in Europe, not only for sporting purposes, but to replenish their masters' larders with furred and feathered game, so do the Chinese and Japanese still employ trained cormorants, but in their case they are used solely for economic purposes. This may at first appear to be a somewhat primitive method of obtaining fish, yet it seems to be a very serviceable one, and has at least the merit of being exceedingly picturesque. The antiquity of this form of fishing is conclusively proved by the existence of very early Japanese paintings, which, if we allow for a somewhat crude and Oriental treatment, otherwise faithfully depict the sport as it is practised down to the present day. There is also documentary evidence to show that these birds were similarly utilized in China as far back as the sixteenth century. In many parts of the latter country cormorants are used on still-water lagoons or sluggish rivers, where they are allowed to swim free; but in Yunnan and Japan, where they are fished in swift-running streams, the birds are invariably harnessed.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE POISONOUS MUSHROOMS.

Now that the mushroom season has arrived, there will be cases of mushroom poisoning. Mushroom poisoning, sometimes called toadstool poisoning, is commonly due to failure to distinguish between the poisonous and non-poisonous varieties. The rules which are commonly accepted for doing so are as follows:

Consider dangerous all mushrooms which have

"A cup-like formation at the base of stem (so-called death cup)."

"A scaly or close-fitting layer at the base of stem."

3. "Loose warts on the cap."

4. "A milky juice (unless this is red)."

5. "Great brittleness, with gills nearly all of equal length and the flesh of the cap thin."

6. "A honeycombed appearance of the gills, if the flesh tastes bitter, or the mouths of the tubes are reddish, or the flesh changes color when cut or bruised."

7. "A cobwebby veil or ring when the plant is young."

8. "A slimy cap and clay-colored gills."

CALL FOR INDIAN SUMMER

The call to the country is never so strong as in autumn. Custom and commerce and society have conspired to call men back to the city just when the heat has passed and the mellowing air and the coloring world is most alluring in the country. When the haze hangs over the hills, and leaves are green, gold and scarlet, and soft sunlight of Indian summer fills the world, then the west wind stirs in man the halcyon memory of his hunting ancestors and he longs to strike the trail for the unknown woods. Then it is his primal instincts prompt him to build wood fires and sleep under the starlit skies. But alas; stern necessity or feverish nights of winter gaiety call most men back to the nervous grind of the world as it is. But only we could strike the long trail and answer the call of Indian summer, what wonderful high adventure, what kee delight, and restful health we might find over the rim yonder—from whence the west wind comes. —Harper's Weekly.

GOOD GAME CONDITIONS

According to the reports that come down from the lakes and pond, to Houlton says the Arcostook Pioneer the September fishing was particularly good, especially at Square lake in Arcostook county, which is fast becoming one of the leading salmon lakes of the state, and bids fair in the estimation of many to rival Grand lake.

Square lake was stocked a good many years ago with salmon, and during the past two or three years the fishermen have been getting the benefit. The fish are good sized and gamy, and there are plenty of them.

J. P. Yerxa, proprietor of the Square Lake camps, writes the Pioneer that the fishing held good until the last of the month.

The birds are thick in this section, he says, and there is every indication that there will be lots of deer taken there. He has had an unusually busy season, and most of his guests are coming back next year. —Arcostook Pioneer.

BOTHERED BY BLUEJAYS

The farmers in this state have been troubled to a great extent this season by bluejays. These birds are more plentiful this year than for a number of years past and have done much damage to the crops. In the northern part of the state, especially in Piscataquis county, the birds are very thick and in nearly every community flocks can be seen in their work of destroying the crops. They multiply unusually fast and as they are birds of good size and sharp bills their work of destruction is carried on rapidly.

This species of bird does the most damage in corn fields, and in the northern part of the state whole acres of corn have been devastated by the jay. It does not, however, confine itself entirely to corn, but will attack apple orchards, and will drill the fruit to the core. It does not consume the apple but will flit about from twig to twig drilling holes, thus spoiling the fruit.

The birds are unusually bold this year, and all efforts to keep them out of the corn fields have been of no avail. There is never any open time on these birds, and a heavy fine killing them off, and allowed to go unmolested, and breeding throughout its range have become thicker each year.

HUNTING WITHOUT BLOODSHED

Shooting a tiger as it jumps at one on a moving picture screen is the latest idea for the rifle range. The instant the rifle report rings out the moving picture film stops abruptly, so that on the screen the picture of the tiger becomes fixed, and it is easy to see from the bullet hole in the screen whether or not the shot went true.

All kinds of rifle sport without bloodshed have been found practical with this outfit. One favorite film in the rifle range in London using this idea shows a motor cyclist dashing at full speed across the field of vision, or across the screen. Shooting at the motor cyclist has been especially popular, though the records show that more bullets hit a clergyman sitting at the roadside than hit the rider.

Pigeon shooting on the screen has been found to require nearly as much skill as potting live pigeons or clay pigeon at a match shoot.

Adaptations of the idea to various kinds of shooting are numerous already, and any one can figure out for himself new films that would give a thrill.

Most essential in the apparatus is the device to stop the film when a shot is fired. Without such a control it would be impossible to determine with accuracy where a bullet landed, and consequently the principal element of rifle range pleasure would be lost. The sound of the shot stops the film automatically. A delicate microphone that will catch any sound is violently vibrated by the sound of the shot, and this vibration causes it to throw on an electric current to put brakes on the moving picture machine or in other words to press a button and stop the machine. The stop is almost instantaneous. After the stop, comes on the next picture succeeding the one fired at, but as the pictures succeed one another at the rate of 16 a second the difference between them is slight, and the following picture shows well enough the location of the bullet hole in relation to the moving animal. Back of the screen is an electric light so placed as to be out of the range of the bullets. Thus when a bullet hole is made in the screen a point of light discloses its location.

Another automatic device comes into play in five or six seconds to close up the bullet hole and start the moving picture again. The screen is not made of cloth, but of three thicknesses of heavy paper. One thickness of paper unwinds from a roll of paper at the top of the screen and winds up on a roll at the bottom, and these rolls are given a slight turn occasionally by an attendant.

The other two thicknesses unwind from rolls on one side and wind up on rolls on the other side, but they travel in opposite directions. A few seconds after the shot each of these sheets moves an eighth of an inch automatically and the bullet hole is thus hidden.

Thus far the principal trouble with the apparatus is to keep the moving picture film from catching fire when it stops, as the heat of the light needed for protection is intense.

Devices have been tried to meet this difficulty, such as a fan to blow the hot air away from the film when it stops, and even this difficulty is not preventing the daily use of the new rifle range. —Saturday Evening Post.

TO OPEN UP MOUNTAIN TRAILS IN CAMDEN.

Camden has long been proud of its famous Camden mountain range which has doubtless been an asset in inducing summer visitors to locate thereabout. But now, says an exchange, Camden admirers are awakening to the fact that the most is not being made out of this grand background to one of the most beautiful seashore towns along the New England coast. The proposition is to open up a number of mountain trails. There are, to be sure, some paths now, the one on Mount Battie being the most popular, but there are many other possible ones. Not only from Battie and Megunticook but at Maiden Cliff, Bald, Ragged, Mount Pleasant and Bald Rock are wonderful views obtainable. The matter will probably be referred to the Camden board of trade and it is believed the opening of such trails over the Camden range, properly advertised, would attract hundreds of new tourists to Maine, especially those who enjoy walking and particularly mountain climbing. A committee of organization already is planning to make and mark out the trail.

a deer is a "rara avis" in that section. By the imposition of a license on residents and the careful watching by the wardens of these camps you will be surprised to see how conditions will improve. I know of one camp in this vicinity whose cook had fed over 50 deer to the men before the season was half over. Is there any wonder game is getting scarcer?

I trust you will pardon me for this long letter but the subject is one in which I have a great interest. I have given it a great deal of thought and have talked with many others who make it their business and pleasure, and under the circumstances think the suggestions I have made should be of value. I could not put these suggestions in fewer words hence this must be my excuse for this letter's length.

GREAT INTEREST IN RALLY DAY

Preparing for Convention--Several Attending Music Festival.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Rangeley, Oct. 7—

Sunday services at the church were of a very interesting nature. At the morning service, Communion was observed and special music was rendered by Miss Prudence Richardson, Mrs. O. R. Rowe and H. O. Huntton. An unusually large congregation listened to a very helpful sermon by Rev. Mr. Childs from the text found in Psalm CXIX verse-130. The church was very attractively decorated with autumn leaves by the young ladies of Mrs. E. P. McCard's class. Rally Day exercises were held for the Sunday school immediately following the church services. A large number from each department was represented including those from the outside Sunday schools which have been in session during the summer. The reports from the different schools were as follows for the four months: Dallas—17 present, average attendance 23, enrollment 35. Chapel—13 present, average attendance 23, enrollment 35. Quimby—24 present, average 38, enrollment 55. Main school for nine months—148 present, average attendance 110, enrollment 183. Home department 40. Cradle roll 75. The banner was presented to the Dallas school as having the largest representation for the exercises. The exercises consisted of music by the schools and primary department, prayer, address of welcome by Supt. O. R. Rowe, remarks by the pastor Rev. H. A. Childs and the reading of various reports. At the close a circle was formed reaching around the church while all joined in singing Blest Be the Tie That Binds. The superintendent and pastor worked very hard for Rally Day and conducted a very successful campaign the previous week. The report for the day was as follows: Number present 293. Collection $8.12. Aletha Childs and Leora Tomlinson succeeded in getting the largest number to attend Sunday, receiving dainty books as souvenirs.

Eva Arnburg picked a ripe wild strawberry Saturday.

Mrs. Harvey Tibbetts and little Florence accompanied Mrs. Matilda Tibbetts to Farmington where she will make her home at Chesterville with her son, Marsh Tibbetts.

Mrs. G. L. Kempton, Mrs. Addie Richardson, Miss Eugenie Easley are attending the Music Festival at Portland this week.

The Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. F. H. Kempton Wednesday to prepare for the winter's work.

The Pythian Sisters have been holding rehearsals at every opportunity for the past two weeks preparing for the convention which will be held Monday evening, October 13.

GRANGE NOTES

The patrons of North Franklin Grange held their regular meeting Saturday afternoon with a good attendance.

CORRECTION

Phillips, Oct. 13.

We wish to correct the statement made in the obituary of Mrs. Vesta L. Sargent, which appeared in the last issue, where it said that there were eight children. It should have been nine, five boys and four girls. The names of Samuel J. Sargent and Nettie Wing both of Phillips being omitted by mistake.

Also it should have said she was cared for in her long illness by her four daughters, Mrs. Mary Thompson being there quite a portion of the time and Mrs. Anna Stinchfield remaining there continually as a nurse.

FISH CHOWDER AND FROGS' LEGS

West Paris, Oct. 14.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

It was a lovely day in October, many years ago, and my friends had invited me to go with them to a place called Bottle Brook. We had to go down the river some two miles in a small row boat. There were four of us. We found a nice place to land, where some party had camped before, for there was a nice bough tent, and bed laid nice with hemlock boughs placed fine and close, two feet or more in thick ness.

My friends had taken along everything we might want to make a fish chowder with except trout. They intended to get those there if they could. So when all was ready and "Polly put the kettle on," they commenced to fill it with a laying of fish, then another of potatoes, some onions, crackers, pepper and salt, also a big ball of butter and some water. It was the best fish chowder I ever ate in my life, cooked as it was, and out in the open air, it gave it a most delicious taste, and we were hungry, too.

We stayed and fished awhile, and enjoyed the nice bough camp, pure sunny air, then took our seats in the little boat and paddled our way back home.

On the way Mr. Reid caught a big frog, the kind they liked to eat (he said) and asked Mrs. B. to cook it, said he would dress it nice, and said they were nice eating. She told him she did not want any of it herself, but she would cook it for him. He took the hind legs, skinned them all nice, and it looked very nice and white. I tasted just a bit to see for myself for I wanted to taste of all the good things in the "Wayside Inn." This spot was made twice romantic, I may say, for two big boys set a trap down there by the river, just where we had our fish dinner, and going there one day to see if there was any thing in it, found a little cub bear in the trap. Boy fashion, they thought they would have a little fun, for boys are apt to do so. They cut some long poles and made a thrust at him. They did not enjoy this sport but a very few minutes, for the old mother bear came rushing out of the bushes to see what was the matter with her little one just the same as a true "mother" would the world over. The boys had just time to scamper off down to the landing and jump into their boat, the old bear keeping up pretty close down to the shore of the river.

The moral to this may be I think, something in this line. "A prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself, but the simple pass on and are punished." Proverbs 22:3.

THE ROYAL MONTH AND THE ROYAL DISEASE.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than are in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative,—consumption.

R. H. Preble will pay back your money if Hamilton's Old English Black Oil fails to cure all kinds of flesh wounds, sprains, stiff joints, inflammation of all kinds, on man or beast. It is the most healing preparation known to the medicine world to-day. Never in the history of this store said Mr. Preble to a representative of a wholesale drug house, "has there been so great a demand for any remedy as there is just now for Hamilton's Old English Black Oil. Phillips people are coming in every day inquiring if it really is true that we will sell Hamilton's Old English Black Oil with the understanding that it will do all that is claimed of it or pay back the money." But we do just as we agree and we will hand back your money without the least argument if you are not satisfied.

KNOWLES PAYS
HIS FINES

Banquet Given at the Falmouth by Cumberland County Angling Association.

As Joseph Knowles stated after he had broken game laws that he should visit the Fish and Game Commissioners at Augusta as soon as he had the opportunity and pay the penalty, he made that statement good last Wednesday.

When he arrived at Augusta he was taken to the State House and escorted to the private office of the Commissioners Chairman J. S. P. H. Wilson, Walter I. Neal and Blaine S. Viles, the commissioners were waiting to receive him.

Mr. Wilson examined him and asked him to what extent he had violated the game laws. Mr. Knowles informed him that he was forced to kill a bear, two deer and some partridges.

Mr. Wilson said "I don't see anything we can do but impose the minimum fine upon you." He called to his clerk and the following list was compiled: For the killing of two deer $80, for hunting without a license $25, for making a fire without a license $40, for trapping fur bearing animals out of season $50, for killing partridges $10, making a total of $205.

After the adjustment was made Mr. Knowles proceeded to the Museum of Natural History where hundreds were given the privilege of shaking hands with him.

At 8 o'clock in Portland he was given a dinner in the State of Maine room at the Falmouth by the members of the Cumberland County Angling Association. William N. Taylor, president of the club presided and seated at the table were the other officers of the club: Harrie B. Coe, Vice President George C. Orr, Secretary and representatives of the Boston Post and of the Portland papers.

An informal reception followed, during which Knowles had to answer many more questions and show his clothing, fire kindling appliances and his other tools and implements. It was late when the party broke up. Everyone had shaken hands with Knowles and assured him of their belief, though they had been somewhat sceptical at the beginning of his two months as a primitive man.

Jim Wilcox, a Rangeley guide was with Mr. Knowles on his trip over the Franklin county route and that he also met him in Canada when he submerged from the forest, but we have not authentic proof of this as yet. We are however certain that he could not have had a better companion and guide than Mr. Wilcox on this trip.

The children are trudging the time worn path, just as other children have done for generations. But the modern children should have watches. Twice a day they should be on time but they will waste time if they have to guess. One of the great lessons of life is to learn to spend time carefully. Give the child a watch—it will teach punctuality while the mind is still plastic.

Boys' watches $1.00, $2.00 and $5.00.
Girls' watches $2.00 and up.
