THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

An Organization That Should Receive Encouragement And Support.

The Phillips circle of King's Daughters is a local organization composed of about 87 members, whose object is to carry cheer and comfort to those in need and to give material aid in cases of necessity. Along these lines the efforts of the circle have been directed, and the degree of success attained in this work has been best shown by the appreciation of the large number of persons who have received its benefits.

An important factor in the work for the sick has been the emergency closet, which has been much appreciated by the public, and the members of the circle feel that this line of their work has been especially successful. The closet is owned and maintained by the circle and contains articles for use in the sick room and are loaned, free of charge, to anyone for use in sickness. A list follows: Two bedside tables, one rubber sheet, one hot water bag, three douche pans, two fountain syringes, one cabinet chair, one bath robe, one bed rest, two rubber air cushions, three drinking cups, one urinal, one ice bag, two bed pans and one breast pump.

The closet has been maintained since Jan. 1, 1904, and has been in charge since that time of different members of the circle, including Mrs. Addie Parker, Mrs. Eva Toothaker, Mrs. Emma Shepard and Mrs. Evelyn Currier, who has the closet at the present time and to whom all applications for articles should be made.

The co-operation of physicians and nurses has been of assistance in extending the usefulness of the closet and an ever increasing demand for articles is proof that the loans are appreciated and are providing means of comfort to many of the sick. Those in charge express satisfaction at the excellent care taken of articles loaned and say that almost without exception they have been returned in a cleanly and sanitary condition.

That the extent of the work of the emergency closet may be understood, we quote from the book in which the record of all loans is kept, and note that bed pans have been loaned in fifty-two instances; air cushions, thirty-four; douche pans, twenty-five; the rubber sheet, twenty; the bedside tables, thirteen; the bed rest, twelve; and the other articles in from one to a dozen or more instances.

There have been a few times when the number of applications exceeded the articles on hand, and the circle regrets it has not always been able to furnish the articles asked for. Generally, however, the equipment of the closet has been adequate to the demands upon it.

The circle has for many years sent out from twenty-five to fifty Thanksgiving packages each year, and about the same number of sick and shut-ins and aged people have been remembered at Christmas. The circle has always sent many gifts of fruit and flowers to those in need of kindly remembrance, also gifts of money, clothing and other articles to such worthy institutions as the Children's home in Augusta and the Children's hospital in Portland, and to many deserving persons or families in this vicinity.

A clothing department is maintained where donations of clothing are received and where any who desire garments may apply. This department is now in charge of Mrs. Nan Leavitt.

The circle has a lookout committee whose duty it is to report to the president or executive committee any case coming to their knowledge where assistance may be needed and help offered. The ladies on this committee are Mrs. Eva Toothaker, Mrs. Lydia Harnden and Mrs. Etta Smith.

The regular meetings of the circle are held at the homes of the members on the first and third Friday evenings of each month.

The officers of the circle at this time are: President, Mrs. Mary McKenzie; vice president, Mrs. Ida Hersey; secretary, Miss Lillian Toothaker; treasurer, Mrs. Nan Leavitt.

CELEBRATES HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

On Sunday, October 19, the 80th birthday anniversary of Mr. George S. Whitney was observed by his children, all of them being present with the exception of his son, Wilson, who it was much regretted could not be present at this time. A chicken dinner, Mr. Whitney's favorite, was served at 2 p. m. and one of the pleasing features of the dinner and which was a surprise to him, was a birthday cake, a rich fruit cake made by his sister, Mrs. Annie L. Gilbert of Auburn, who is 70 years old. The cake was inscribed with the words "Brother" and "80".

Congratulations were tendered Mr. Whitney by friends and relatives during the day and he was the recipient of a number of gifts, including birthday cards, money, clothing, and last but not least a beautiful bouquet of carnations, snap dragon and ferns from his sister, Mrs. Gilbert, and niece, Mrs. C. E. Fuller, of Auburn. Those present to enjoy the anniversary were Miss Emma Whitney of Lewiston; Edson B. Whitney of Florence, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Lion T. Allen and two children, Stanley and Lucy, of Strong; Mrs. Georgia Masterman and son, Kenneth; Miss Celia Whitney, and the guests of honor, all of Phillips. A very pleasant day was passed by Mr. Whitney.

ADDITION TO F. B. VESTRY

At a meeting of the F. B. church held at the vestry Tuesday evening, a vote was taken to repair the vestry and build an addition on the side of 12 or 15 feet, giving ample accommodations for a dining room, kitchen, cloak room, etc.

The changes will be planned so that the rooms can be thrown together and be ample in space for gatherings of any kind in connection with church work and it is the purpose of the church and committee to make it very attractive.

MAN SHOT WILL RECOVER

Taken to Maine General Hospital
---Locate Bullet in Ankle.

Last Saturday Harold Eaton, clerk at Abbott & Cleaves' lumbering camps, accidentally shot himself while taking a rifle from the wall.

A telephone message was sent to Phillips and a special train took Dr. E. B. Currier and W. H. Caswell, master mechanic of the railroad.

They found that the bullet had entered the thigh, and they bandaged the wound the best they could and brought him to Phillips, accompanied by his wife and little son, and thence on to Portland on the 1.15 train to the Maine General hospital.

Dr. Currier received word last night that he is doing nicely. They have used the X-ray and found the bone shattered in two places and that the bullet is lodged near the ankle. They do not intend to remove the bullet if the wound heals well.

It was only 40 minutes from the time word was received in Phillips, before the train crew was made up, the doctor on board and the 12-mile run made.

Mr. Eaton was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Eaton of Portland and was formerly a clerk in the Maine Central offices in Portland.

CUSHMAN ESCAPES WITHOUT INJURY

Washout Monday Ditches Train
No. 17 on Kingfield Division.

Kingfield—Train No. 17, engine No. 2, was ditched two miles above Carrabassett on the Kingfield division of the Sandy River and Rangeley Lakes railroad, Monday evening at 7:30. The cause was a washout which could not be seen by the engineer until it was too late to stop the train, although he was on the lookout for any effects of the heavy rain on the track. The train was made up of two cars only, the baggage and smoking car combined and the coach. The engine and baggage car were thrown over, the engineer D. H. Cushman was pinned down in his cab where he remained for some time unable to extricate himself. The train men soon dug him out none the worse for his hazardous experience. The fireman Raymond Phillips jumped and saved himself. The rest of the crew consisting of L. A. Thomas conductor and Ned Tufts expressman were uninjured. Of the passengers eight or ten in number, none were severely shaken up or injured. They with the mail were taken back to Kingfield for the night, and the following morning a wrecking train righted the engine and cars and by noon the regular service was resumed.

HOREYSECK AND VOTER NUPTIALS

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Voter, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock the marriage of their daughter, Miss Fern Ella Voter to Mr. Frank Horeyseck was solemnized, Rev. M. S. Hutchins pastor of the Federated church acting as officiating clergyman and using the impressive single ring service.

They were attended by Miss Genevieve Harnden of Portland, a cousin of the bride and Julius Horeyseck of Portland, brother of the groom.

In her gown of white lace net and shadow embroidery the bride looked very attractive. A wreath of lilies of the valley caught back the veil of tulle and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Genevieve Harnden, wore a handsome blue messaline with overcast and garniture of cream lace.

The rooms were very beautiful and effective in their decorations of greens and autumn leaves and the background of green made an attractive setting for the bridal ceremony being performed under an arch. There was also a profusion of atern and cut flowers throughout the home.

Following the ceremony came a reception when a large number of friends called to offer congratulations and best wishes. Glidden Parker acted as usher and Mrs. Lewis Robash of Farmington, an aunt of the bride assisted in receiving the guests and escorting them to the dressing room. Miss Ruth Austin had charge of the gifts, Miss Edna True of the guest book; Miss Miriam Brackett presided at the punch bowl in the dining room where punch, bon bons and nuts were served; Mrs. Glidden Parker, Mrs. Harry Chandler and Miss Algie Pratt served ice cream and cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Horeyseck were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Voter, Mr. and Mrs. August Horeyseck and Miss Genevieve Harnden. Mrs. Voter wore

BETTER HUNTING AFTER THE RAINS

Hotel Men Say Higher Licenses Keep Sportsmen Away.

Reports from the woods of northern Maine are to the effect that the rain has been of great benefit to hunters, many will doubtless take advantage of the better conditions says the Bangor Commercial.

Two big bears were received from up river, and attracted much attention at the Union station. One of the bears weighed 390 pounds. The carcasses were shipped west on the 8 o'clock train.

E. B. Sweet of Mars Hill shipped a bear hide to the S. L. Crosby Co., Monday.

According to hotelmen in this section of the state the advance in the prices of licenses is keeping some of the out-of-state hunters away from Maine this season, one of the chief points of objection of the new license law being the fact that after Oct. 1 a non-resident hunter must pay $25 whether he wishes to shoot deer or not. There are many, the hotelmen say, who like to come to Maine after birds, and birds alone. Up to Oct. 1 they may hunt birds by paying $5, but they complain that the bird shooting in the state is no good until after that time.

The hotelmen say that the traveling men who come into the state at this time of the year used to like to spend a week-end at some of the camps in this vicinity, but now they cannot go into the woods and take a gun along unless they pay a full license tax. This they will not do, as they claim there is little certainty of getting any large game in the short time they can devote to the sport.

Consequently they are not spending much of their time in the woods and the sporting camps near the cities feel the loss of this business.

Over in the Rangeley section the sporting camp proprietors say that the higher license is keeping a lot of men away. John R. McDonald, who is an inspector of steamboats on inland waters was at Rangeley going to Upper Dam. He was told there that last year 300 non-resident licenses were disposed of during the season, while the indications are this year that there will be very few sold in that section.

On the other hand, the state game authorities report that just as many demands are being received for licenses from out of the state sportsmen as in the past few years, and that it is anticipated that the season will not show any diminution in the number of non-resident hunters.

The non-resident licenses are distributed in Bangor by the S. L. Crosby Co., and according to Mr. Pickard of that firm, the demand is just as great this year as last. "The principal kick we get from the non-resident hunters is not over the advance in price," said Mr. Pickard, Monday, "but is because the resident is not obliged to pay a license and because the summer fisherman from out of the state does not have to pay anything."

Francis Rogers and J. Archibald of Lawrence, Mass., brought one each from the Moosehead Lake region. F. H. Sylvester and Julia Sylvester who were at Enfield got two deer and A. Wallace of Bangor brought down one from Wytoplock.

Up at the northern end of Moosehead lake, and at all the sporting camps in that section the proprietors say that game is unusually thick. Most of this game goes down by the way of the Somerset Branch of the Maine Central railroad and never gets into this city, while in past years, before that branch was built Bangor used to receive a lot of the Moosehead game.

Birds are particularly thick and not a sportsman has come out of that section without a full quota of birds. One party of sportsmen, who have been making their headquarters at the Kineo Annex, which is open this fall until Oct. 15, had exceptionally fine luck. They were above Moosehead lake, going in to the Wimmeragnock house at Northeast Carry, and they brought out 10 deer and 50 birds. They reported the birds as exceptionally thick. In the party were E. Aston of Lebanon, Va.; Dr. T. E. Perry, of Bremen, West Virginia; D. V. Kirk, J. L. Kirk and J. J. Lincoln of Elk Horn, West Virginia.

Job Tyler of this city has been at the lumber camps on the Stetson operations near Lobster lake bringing down a fine bag of birds.

Bill Doyle, one of the best known of the Moosehead lake guides, who spent last winter in this city, started with a party of sportsmen for the Allegash trip, leaving Northeast Carry.

BOSTON'S BIRD HOUSE OPENED ON MONDAY.

The Aviary, the winter quarters for the birds at the Franklin Park zoo, built by the city of Boston, at a cost of $150,000 was opened October 13. Members of the Park and Recreation Commission attended the opening at which Mayor Fitzgerald spoke.

The new building, erected after the style of a Japanese pagoda, is one and a half stories in height, constructed of brick and cement, and accommodates hundreds of birds. The present number exceeds 400, and more are expected within the next few weeks. Many birds new to this part of the country are among the collection. The arrangement of the cages and the many devices for the comfort of the feathered occupants as well as the building itself are said to be equal if not surpass anything of its kind ever attempted.

The report of the fishery board for Scotland for 1912 shows that the number of persons employed in the fisheries and the various industries subsidiary thereto was 90,040.

BEAR WAS A VETERAN

A big black bear which for the last six years has eluded the hunters in the neighborhood of Hudson, Glenburn and Alton, was shot this week. The bear was caught in a trap six years ago by Storman, but escaped by gnawing off a paw. Since that time he has made frequent raids, killing many sheep, stealing pigs and spoiling acres of growing corn. He was easily traced by the stub paw, although shot at many times, always escaped. He eluded traps several times by springing them and making off with the bait. When found in the trap he had dragged it nearly a mile. Bullet marks were found in both ears and two long scars on the flanks showed the course of others. The bear weighed 225 pounds.

BEAR EATING HIS APPLES

Bears are reported as quite plentiful in the region of Sebec lake and several of the farmers of Bowdoin are missing sheep, apples and other products of the farm, as a result of the depredations of these animals. Traps are being talked up and some of the citizens are instituting nightly hunts for the invaders of the orchards and sheep pens. Not long since one of the mighty hunters was holding a lonely vigil at one of the approaches to his orchard, rifle in readiness, watching intently the path by which the bear was wont to enter the place. On hearing a light noise behind him the hunter turned to find the beast had stolen a march upon him, come into the orchard from the other side and was close upon him before discovered. Whether man or beast was the most frightened it would be hard to say, but the young man fled leaving his rifle behind and Bruin in full possession of the sweet apple trees.

HAPPENED IN DAMARISCOTTA

The wonderful experience of a resident of Damariscotta with a bull moose is related by a Bath woman who returned home this week from a visit over east, relates the Bath Times. The Damariscotta man while driving through the woods was overtaken by a large bull moose. The man was not armed and for a time he had an exciting time. The moose attacked him from the rear and seemed to take pleasure in pushing the cart ahead, using his head just as an elephant does. The horse became frightened and jumped the fence. The driver held to the reins and when the horse cleared the fence the wagon was left behind, but the driver was hauled clean over. When he landed he managed to release his hold on the reins and had a chance to look at the moose, who was standing over the wrecked cart snorting quite vigorously. The moose then disappeared in the woods. The man later found his horse in the woods. He said that it was an experience he would not care to go through again, and could not imagine a reason why the moose should have attacked him.

GAME PROSECUTIONS

Every few days the office of the Fish and Game commission receives information from the hunting region of the state that someone has been prosecuted for breaking the game laws. All tend to prove that the wardens are keeping a sharp lookout over their respective sections that no unfair tactics be carried on. The latest report states that Freeman Nadeau was prosecuted before Justice Fredrick Doyle of the Millinocket municipal court and fined $16 and costs for the killing of two muskrats in close season. The complaint was entered by Warden E. M. Ward.

DAY'S NEW PLAY EXCEPTIONALLY CLEVER.

FROM KINEO TO CANADIAN ROAD

Chief Engineer Hill of Portland with other prominent engineers began a survey, Monday, for a road from Kineo to connect with the Canadian road, which when completed will add much to the advantage of people of this state as well as others. This road will include about 25 miles and will give a chance to automobile travelers as well as teams to get to Kineo without going by water. Heretofore automobiles and teams could go only as far as Greenville at the foot of the lake. When this road is built it will connect with the road from Skowhegan to Canada and will join this road about half way between Parlin and the West Forks. It will be through timber lands and will include the Haines Gore, Misery, Sapling Town, Ten-Thousand Acre township, and Cold Stream township.

34,000 FRY PLACED IN LAKE AUBURN.

Ernest Mathews, Ira Hewison, Oscar Holmes, Jerry Murphy, D. E. Parlin, James Tracy, Lew Barrett, Gus Knight, Frank Curtis and Reuben Estes placed 34,000 salmon fry 4,000 of them yearlings in Lake Auburn recently from the fish hatchery. Last year 46,000 were placed in the lake.

HE MET A MOOSE BUT GOT BY ALL RIGHT.

"Uncle" John Bowden, who was the game warden at the Union station last year, was in Bangor recently says the Bangor Commercial, accompanying a shipment of 25,000 salmon fry to Harwood pond, near Machias. Uncle John was cordially greeted by his Bangor friends, and enjoyed his short stay here.

They tell a story about Uncle John Bowden that reflects credit upon his skill and bravery. One summer morning a couple of months ago, at about 4 o'clock he was returning from an all night expedition in the woods, in the town of Otis, on the search for hunters who might be out "jacking" deer, and other poachers. Coming along to Brimmer bridge, what did the veteran game warden meet but a big bull moose, weighing, say about 600 pounds. The moose peered curiously at the stranger, and didn't seem the least afraid, in fact, he appeared just a little bit threatening.

To hasten back in precipitate flight would mean a chase by the moose in all probability, the thought flashed through Uncle John's brain, and he decided to take a chance. Noticing that the moose's horns were in velvet, and remembering that they are very sensitive, Uncle John decided to make that portion of the moose his a tacking point. He grabbed the moose by the soft and tender horns, and as it was near the edge of the bridge, which was only a rustic affair, it happened that the moose lost his foothold on one side.

With this temporary advantage, Uncle John took a decided brace and with a terrific wrench, gave the moose a push overboard into the stream. He did not stop to look more than once, seeing the animal floundering about in the water, and then fled. The moose did not follow him.

Asked about this incident, Wednesday, Uncle John, who ordinarily is very willing to give reporters a good "game" story any time he runs across one, suddenly became very reticent. "Sorry, I can't tell you anything about game to-day," he replied. But no denial of meeting the moose was forthcoming.

SOME WOMEN WHO ARE FAMOUS FOR ADEPTNESS WITH "SHOOTING IRONS."

There are to-day in New York and the vicinity, says the New York Herald, a score of modern Dianas who handle gun, rifle and revolver in a way to make the average man look like a schoolboy with a toy popgun. They are quicker of eye and shoot in better form than a hundred marksmen picked out at random. When you come to consider that some of these women fire more than 250 times in a match you will begin to realize that the one time called "weak" woman needs no handicap allowance in the strenuous pastimes or pursuits of rifle.

One of the best exemplifications of what woman may attain in the way of marksmanship is Miss Laura M. Boles, of Greenwich, Conn.

Miss Boles at a recent meet of the Greenwich Gun Club made 117 hits in 175 tries, an achievement of which many a so-called expert shot among men would brag considerably.

Another remarkable woman shot is Miss Jessie Thorpe, of Mount Vernon, N. Y. Miss Thorpe is only sixteen years old, but she has already demonstrated that she can shoot in a way that might make many a marksman envious. At the recent tournament of the Western Connecticut Trapshooters' League she made a score of 107 out of a possible 150. She has been shooting two years, and experts predict that she will be a champion of champions before she is eighteen.

Mrs. F. F. Rodgers, of Stamford, Conn., is another remarkable woman shot. At the Greenwich meet, where Miss Boles made her score of 117 out of 175, Mrs. Rodgers totaled 118 hits, or one more than her rival Diana.

Miss B. Brown, who is also a member of the Greenwich Gun Club, is a fine marksman. At the Western Connecticut meet she scored 85 out of 150 and received great praise for her fine shooting.

Miss M. E. Hyland, of White Plains, N. Y., is still another famous amateur woman shot. She has been shooting five years and improving all the time. When the trap shooting season ends she generally goes gunning. Two years ago in Washington county, Maine, she brought down with her rifle a fine moose and has laid low with her bullets many other specimens of big game.

CHIP OF THE BLOCK

Bert Johnson of Hallowell distinguished himself as a successful young sportsman. Recently he shouldered his shotgun and was gone but a short time, when he returned with a partridge and a rabbit weighing 4½ pounds. He is associated with the Hallowell Gun Club, and during the past season he made some of the old veterans sit up and take notice by his effective trap shooting. However, he comes honestly by it, as his father, W. E. Johnson, is considered one of the best shots in the city.

It is rumored over the state that no hunters are coming to Maine this fall on account of the new license law. Do you believe this? We do not believe they can, and we also believe that Maine will have a good big bunch of hunters this fall.

Fresh Tobacco Never Bites; Dry, Cut-up Tobacco Does

Only when the natural moisture dries out of tobacco can a "bite" get into it. In the Sickle plug, all the moisture, flavor and fragrance are pressed in and kept in by the natural leaf wrapper. Every pipeful you whittle off the plug is fresh—so you always get a slow-burning, cool, sweet, satisfying smoke.

If you want your tobacco already cut up for you, in packages, you have to be content with dry tobacco, that burns fast and hot, and bites your tongue.

That's why experienced smokers cut up their own tobacco, from the Sickle plug. They get more tobacco, because they don't pay for a package—and better tobacco, because it's always fresh.

THE AUTOMOBILE AS A NECESSITY AS WELL AS LUXURY.

F. E. Stanley, the famous motor car inventor and manufacturer, who is authority on the line of red devils of which he is master, was asked recently the probable number of motor cars in the United States.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Stanley, "but I believe there are now at least a million cars in commission, not counting the derelicts or the has-beens. The owners of these cars pay for gasoline about a million dollars this year, or twice more than was formerly paid, since gasoline is now twenty cents more or less per gallon. Repairs and depreciation of automobiles probably amount to three hundred million dollars a year. The annual charge for automobiles in the United States including chauffeurs and interest on the investment, and not including new purchases, probably is upward of half a billion of dollars.

"The probable investment in automobiles in this country to-day is several billions, including the investment in plants,—it would be risky to guess without careful comparing of notes. One motor car manufacturer last year sold in Europe more cars than many manufacturers billed, taken together. One factory is said to turn out close to 200,000 cars this year. The figures are almost incredible."

"This business, it must be borne in mind, hardly existed in the last decade of the century preceding the twentieth century. As yet, the annual outlay of the American people for automobiles is hardly in excess of ten dollars per unit of population. The addition of creature comfort—not including the joy rides—and the annual betterment of business and enlargement of human life and opportunity, due to motor cars for pleasure, for business, and for affairs, are worth twice what they cost.

"More business can be done in a day with the aid of an automobile than could be done in a week without it. Take the telephone and the motor car together, one man of gumption can accomplish more in one day in the year 1913 than his ancestors accomplished in half a month in the year 1893 when Colonel Bryan was talking of investing a hundred cents' worth of purchase power on fifty cents' worth of wind, and fifty cents' worth of white metal.

"Those who think the motor car is going to ruin this country are short sighted. Grant that man 'idiots and a few fools, who haven't the price and who oughtn't to be trusted with any responsibility, have done much to ruin themselves, their families and the credit of society, by playing with this costly edged tool; grant that many who ought to be satisfied with a cheap machine insist in competing with the millionaire's outfit; grant these things and a lot more, the man who thinks the automobile is a curse, because it is abused, is brother or nephew of the fellow who mobbed the first Maine saw-mill, or the man who declared railroads would ruin farmers, and of the man who thought the automobiles would kill off everybody who held the rein over a horse.

"This world hasn't half got its growth. Cheer up. More devils were paid off yesterday than will have to be settled for to-morrow. The world is growing better even though its voltage is rather high. Let's give to the old fogies a respectable funeral but be resigned that new graveyards are yet to be established. The resurrection is not an exclusive dogma of credulity. There is a resurrection of the body and of the body politic. All things are being clothed anew. The development of organic as well as of spiritual life is yet in the cradle. Future doings will be far greater in all ways than those of history.

"Ten years ago the American automobile cut a very small figure in the export trade. During the past fiscal year the exports totaled over $26,000,000 in value, and loose parts and tires shipped abroad brought the total valuation of this particular trade up to $35,196,753. The increase in a year amounted to more than the whole export trade in that line as late as eight years ago. The average value of the export car is about $1000. Altogether 26,286 cars of different grades were exported in this past fiscal year, and only 748 were imported. These imported cars averaged over $2000 in value."

INTERESTING SPECIMENS PRESENTED TO STATE.

More and more interest is being taken in the State Museum which is becoming very attractive and interesting under the supervision of Curator Thomas A. James.

Varied gifts have been received there recently. The latest is a preserved specimen of a sea horse, presented by C. E. Sturtevant of Augusta.

An Indian skull—that of a Chickamauga squaw—dug up from an old burying ground—was given by Major E. E. Philbrook of the State agricultural department. Another noteworthy gift was that of a short eared owl, presented by L. Erwin Higgins of Readfield. The museum room is now well filled with specimens, and collections, including the moths, birds and fish of the state, are nearly complete.

Mr. James is painting a background for the caribou exhibit. The scene is of the woods in winter, and with the clumps of moosewood in the exhibit, it will appear very natural. It has been placed in the same case with the moose exhibit in the museum room.

RECEIVE ANOTHER ALLOTMENT OF FISH.

The fish committee of the Cobbosseecontee Yacht Club received, Friday noon, through the United States Fish Commission, a lot of trout fry, about 1000 in all, from the Craig brook station at East, Portland. The fish, which were one year old, were taken to Cobbosseecontee in the afternoon, and put into the water. This makes the second lot of trout that has been planted at the north end of the lake within a short time past, the others, 10,000 coming from the Mounmouth hatchery.

THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER.

The principle upon which the state must go in its distribution of benefits must logically be based upon the old rule of the greatest good to the greatest number, says the Portland Express. Mr. Lyman H. Nelson, in his address before the Biddeford Board of Trade, clearly shows that, in order that the greatest good may be done to the greatest number in the construction of highways under the new law, it is necessary that the road construction shall be of such a character as to extend its benefits just as far as the money appropriated for that purpose will possibly go, and that can best be done, not by building a little section of perfect road but by making "good enough" roads, penetrating into and connecting together all the countries of the state. This is a case where narrow or local interests must not supersede the broader view of accomplishing what is best for all the state. And Farmington and Skowhegan and Houlton and Calais are entitled to due consideration, as well as Bangor and Augusta and Portland and Biddeford. Mr. Nelson shows that, with the same money that it would cost to construct a cement road from Biddeford to Portland, a good highway, under-drained and on proper foundation, could be built from Portland to Augusta by the way of Lewiston and Winthrop. While that Biddeford highway is a desirable one and would be a fine thing if we could have it, we must cut our garment according to our cloth and we must reach with the

CAN GET DEER IN KENNEBEC COUNTY.

Augusta nimrods who aspire to getting a shot at a deer, this fall, but do not feel like going up into the northern woods after it, can have the opportunity, in about two weeks, of hunting these animals in Kennebec county, as the law goes off at the end of the current month, the open season continuing through the month of November. Only one deer can be killed by any one person during the open season, according to the law, and the law, further provides that a person lawfully killing a deer in open season shall have reasonable time to transport the same to his home, and may have the same in his possession at his home in closed season. Deer were reported within a few miles of Augusta during the summer months, and as Kennebec county deer are always fatter than those of the northern counties of the state, whoever succeeds in bagging one of them will get a prize.

SARGENT—VOTER.

On Saturday evening, October 18,
at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Voter occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Gertrude E. to Mr.
Samuel J. Sargent.

Rev. M. S. Hutchins impressively performed the single ring service in the presence of the immediate family.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and greens.
Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargent left town on the noon train Monday for New Britain, Conn., where they may possibly reside for the present.

Mr. Sargent formerly was a resident of this town but of late years has been away most of the time working on contracts as he is a skilled carpenter. The bride is one of our most respected young ladies and the best wishes of their friends are extended.

LAW IN REGARD TO DEER SHOOTING.

Sept. 24.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

Please answer through the column of the Maine Woods the following questions:

Are the 1913 game laws any different than the 1912 in regard to deer shooting?

Is there any law against shooting deer between sun up and sunrise in open season?

Yours respectfully,
A subscriber.

In answer to the first question above we quote from the game laws:

I. Section 27 of Chapter 206 of the public laws of 1913 provides that two deer may be legally killed in the counties of Aroostook, Franklin, Hancock, Oxford, Penobscot, Piscataquis, Somerset and Washington, (except that no deer shall be killed on the island of Mt.
Desert at any time,) during the open season which is from October first to December fifteenth, both days inclusive, and that one deer may be legally killed in the counties of Androscoggin, Cumberland, Kennebec, Knox, Lincoln, Sagadahoc, Waldo and York during the open season which is from November first to November thirtieth, both days inclusive.

II. We know of no such law.

cinda Butterfield.

Mr. Luce of Temple and Luce, photographers of Farmington opened the studio here last week and dia rushing business. Their work is first-class and it is not necessary to wait until you go to the city to get some good photographs. They also try very hard to please their customers and succeed in doing so.

Quite a part of the roofing of the grand stand at Toothaker Park was blown away in the recent heavy wind.

OUR TWO MINUTE SERMON

By Rev. M. S. Hutchins.

This sermon, and others to follow, will not occupy over two minutes of your time in reading. Although miniature in size they will be real sermons. They will be based on timely topics of the day.

THE ANNIHILATION OF DIS- TANCE.

The practical completion of the Panama Canal is another step in that annihilation of distance that is the outstanding accomplishment of our age. The steamboat, railway, locomotive, telegraph, ocean cable, telephone, electric car, automobile, wireless telegraph, and now the Panama Canal with its tremendous aid in uniting East and West, are important contributions to the destruction of distance.

Distance ought to be overcome in social and spiritual realms as well as in those merely material, for distance stands for separation, waste, and dead barriers.

The abolition of distances between neighbor and neighbor, tribe and tribe, nation and nation is the measure of progress in mankind's development.

The atonement of Jesus is nothing less than the breaking down of the awful barrier of separation man's sins had reared between him and the loving heart of his Heavenly Father. Jesus annihilated the distance between man and God.

There is one distance that is particularly annoying and disheartening and that is the distance that separates us from our ideals. We all have high ideals but when we strive to reach them how sadly we fail. We try again and again only to fall the harder until it seems no longer worth our while to try. The trouble is we are attempting a task too large for our weak strength. To succeed we must have help. We must change our style of warfare. We must open the doors of our heart-life. We must find room for God in our scheme of things. We must struggle not alone but in fellowship with him.

Then will we be successful. Between us and our highest ideals the great gulf shall be no longer fixed.
With God's presence in our daily lives this mocking distance shall be at last annihilated.

The bride is a graduate of the

Their friends were not content to let them depart without some when they discovered that the brid-proceeded to make some. Mr. Ro-

BOSTON MAN WITH 8 POINT BUCK

Bear in Camp Living on Cow's
Milk and Molasses.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Saddleback Lake Camps, Oct. 14.—
The hunting is fine and everyone is getting their game.

J. V. Atwood just returned home to Boston with a good 8-point buck and a large doe. Others are waiting here until colder weather before shipping their game.

Your correspondent and G. Bernard Santorn as guides had the pleasure of bringing in a live bear by tying him to a pole, after a few hours succeeded in bringing him to camp. Now we are feeding him on cow's milk and molasses. Sometimes he is very quiet while at other times he will try and eat our hands or legs. The guest leading in the bear consisted of Dr. J.
R. Biron and A. J. Parry of Amesbury, Mass., and J. H. Atwood of Boston. They said leading in the bear was a pleasure of a life time.

These camps close for the winter
October 25.

OBITUARY.

NANCY VINING DAGGETT

Again the grim messenger Death has entered our midst and taken one of our most highly respected and dearly beloved ladies, Mrs. Nancy Vining Daggett, on the evening of October 14th, after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Daggett was born in this town on May 2d, 1836. On October 1st, 1856, she married the late Plimington Daggett, who died many years ago. This union was blessed by three sons, Walter and Fred of this town and George of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is employed by the Public Service Commission of New York City.

The past few years she has kept house for her eldest son, Walter, who has always done all possible for her pleasure and happiness since living with him. Before this time, since the death of her husband, she lived with her son, Fred, and family, who is a member of the firm of Daggett & Will.

At the age of 16 years she joined the Methodist church and continued a faithful and active member to her death. She was a Sunday School teacher over forty years; was president of the Ladies' Aid several years; a great worker in foreign and home missionary work, a member of the W. C. T. U., and besides this she was always working for the benefit of any good cause, always helping those in trouble and sorrow.

She was of a happy, cheerful disposition and her life was always an inspiration to those with whom she associated.

The funeral services were held in the Methodist church Thursday afternoon at 2.30 P. M., conducted by Rev. W. P. Holman. Several selections were very feelingly sung by Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Starbird, Mrs. Roy Lewis and M. A. Will. The following flowers were noticed: Wreath, Walter, George and Fred Daggett; pillow, Ladies' Aid; pillow, Albert and Reliance Daggett; cross, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Vining.

Mrs. Daggett will be greatly missed by all, and much sympathy is extended to her sorrowing sons, all of whom have so tenderly cared for her and helped make her life happy.

OBITUARY.

MRS. INA HOLMAN.

A great sorrow came to the Methodist parsonage at Strong last Wednesday night Oct 15, when the death angel came and called for Mrs. Ina, wife of Rev. W. P. Holman. She has not been in good health for several years suffering from heart trouble. For a few weeks before her death she rode out nearly every pleasant day. Wednesday afternoon she was listening to a poem which was being read to her and she got out of her chair and walked around the room several times finally saying she felt badly and sunk down unconscious. Dr. Bell was quickly summoned and all that medical skill and loving friends could do, was done for her relief, but at 9.30 she passed away.

Ina Ward Holman was born in Wilton, April 29, 1882, only child of Rebecca Chandler and F. J. Ward. She was educated in the public schools of Wilton and graduated from Wilton Academy in 1898, and for a period of your years was a very successful teacher.

In 1903 she was married to Weston P. Holman of Dixfield who was then a teacher. In 1905 Mr. Holman joined the Methodist conference and his first charge was at South Berwick where they stayed five years. Mrs. Holman was very active while there in all departments of church work, in the Ladies' Aid, W. C. T. U., and always ready to help those in need.

Two children were born to them one at South Berwick which lived 8 months, one in Strong which lived 5 months. They came here in 1910.

The funeral services were held from the Methodist church Saturday forenoon conducted by Rev. J. R. Clifford of Wilton, Arthur P. Craig of Fairfield and District Superintendent Frost, all of whom have been her pastors at different times. Rev. Arthur P. Craig married them.

Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Starbird, Mrs. Roy Lewis and M. A. Will with Miss Frankie Keen as organist. The casket was completely banked in flowers, mostly set pieces. She surely looked as though "God's finger touched her and she slept." She was very beautifully robed in her wedding dress.

Each minister paid her the highest possible tribute for her noble, useful life. The remains were taken to Wilton for interment, Saturday afternoon.

The entire community extend sympathy to Mr. Holman and her parents, all of whom have so tenderly cared for her in her years of poor health.

Mrs. Holman was a member of Oppalunski chapter O. E. S. No. 125 of this town.

RESIGNATION OF GENERAL DILL

Accepts Responsible Position with United States Cartridge Company.

Adjutant General Dill whose resignation will take effect November 1, will be placed on the retired list with rank of brigadier general. His successor will be Captain Albert Gremlaw of Eastport, 2nd infantry. General Dill retires to accept a responsible and lucrative position as assistant sales manager for the United States Cartridge company with offices in Boston.

Gen. Dill's retirement will be a source of deep regret not only in the National Guard circles, but to his many friends through the state as well. Under his direction the Maine guard has been brought up to a high state of efficiency.

Previous to his appointment as adjutant general, Gen. Dill was one of the best known and most capable newspapermen in Maine. He served for some years on the staff of the Lewiston Journal and later went to the Portland Press where he was managing editor at the time of his accepting Gov. Fernald's appointment as adjutant general.

Gen. Dill had the distinction of being the only Republican appointee who continued to hold his position at the head of a state department during Gov. Plaisted's Democratic administration.

He first became interested in military affairs in 1898, when he accompanied the 1st Maine Regiment to Chickamauga.

Soon after his return to Maine he entered the military service of the State, becoming inspector of rifle practice in the 1st Regiment. He remained in that position until 1890, when he was named as inspector general of rifle practice in the State upon the staff of Governor Hill with the rank of colonel. In this position he continued the splendid work, which he had started in the 1st Regiment and soon became known as one of the authorities of the country upon military rifle shooting.

Under the administration of General Dill many important changes have been made in the military service of the State and he has won the approval of all the officers and enlisted men of the service.

None have watched with more pride the success and advancement of General Dill than his many friends here in Phillips, which town was his birthplace and where he spent the early years of his life. He has made an enviable record in his military career, and we predict for him continued success in his new work. The United States Cartridge company are to be congratulated on their choice for the responsible position assigned him.

this good old state of Maine, with only the rifle or fishing rod for a companion, and on many of these trips have seen game of all kinds in abundance. As I am very much interested in the prospects for fall hunting. I am on the look-out for signs of game, and on recent trips through the eastern parts of this state especially in Washington county I have seen many deer, moose and a few bear, and I think the prospects for good hunting in that locality especially for moose is as good if not better this season than for many seasons in the past.

I have on many trips wished for a camera. I have seen and had plenty of time to take the photo of many a deer or moose, some of which had very large antlers.

HOW BIG GAME IS SHOT IN THE MAINE WOODS

The following account of a hunting trip by a "Near Hunter" was taken from the Portland Sunday Press:

Tom Clyde and I came home from the woods this noon and we each had a deer with us. Maybe you saw our names in the Bangor papers, Tom Clyde, Portland, one deer; John Henderson, Portland, one deer.

I say maybe you did, but as a matter of fact you didn't see those names in the paper for they are not our real names. But we were in the paper all right, and we were each credited with a deer apiece. If you want to bother to look it up you'll get our true names, but don't for heaven's sake give us away, for really neither Tom or I shot a deer, and more than that didn't shoot at one. We had a good time though and if we didn't shoot anything we didn't take a chance at getting shot at.

I have never forgotten the time a few years ago when I and another fellow were strolling down an old wood road looking for partridges and a couple of men suddenly come around a turn, rifles raised ready to fire.

"Good Lord," one of them said, "it's lucky we didn't fire. We thought sure you fellows were a couple of deer." I thought I was kind of lucky myself, and the more I thought of it the luckier I thought I was.

Also it was the kind of luck I didn't care to bank on for next time we might run against some hunters who wouldn't wait so long before they fired. There have been such cases. So after that when I went partridge hunting I kept back in the counties where there aren't so many deer hunters out.

But you know a fellow will forget that sort of a thing after a while, and last week when Tom proposed that we go down East and see if we couldn't get a deer I said, "All right, it's a go."

We'd both shot ducks and partridges and had tramped around in the woods more or less but neither of us had ever seen a deer killed and neither of us had ever been in a sporting camp in the big game season. But we had read in the Portland papers every fall about men whom we knew didn't know half as much about shooting as we did, coming home with deer and even moose and we made up our minds if they could go get big game we could.

Well we got the game all right, just as I told you in the beginning, but we didn't get it quite as we had planned to. In fact the way we succeeded as big game hunters was more expensive than going out in the woods and knocking them over. I'll come to that a little later, however.

We made some inquiries and finally picked out a sporting camp up in Aroostook county where we were told there were plenty of deer and where we could get board at a reasonable figure and guides if we wanted 'em. As for guides, Tom and I decided that we could get along without any help of that sort. We were planning on spending three days in the woods and we figured that if we tramped around long enough we would be pretty sure to run across a deer.

It wasn't as if we knew nothing about getting around in the woods without alarming the whole region, for our experience hunting for partridges had taught us how to come the gum shoe act in the forests.

So we wrote to the fellow that kept the camp and got word that we could be accommodated all right and that there wouldn't be any trouble about getting a deer apiece any how, and maybe more. He also wrote us that he had no parties engaged for the first week of the season and that we would probably stand a better show if we came then, than if we waited until later, especially after the moose season began.

That letter settled it and it was us for Loon lake and this sporting camp Monday night. That brought us in to the camp Tuesday noon so that we would be ready to go out hunting Wednesday morning.

It was sure, a pretty fine sort of place and I wouldn't mind staying there a month if I hadn't a thing to do except canoe around on the lake and loaf about the camp. There were half a dozen little log cabins ranged along on the shore of the lake and one big camp containing the dining room and kitchen. Each of the little cabins contained a couple of bunks and they were furnished with open fire places, tables, chairs, etc. Tom and I were assigned one and after one of the men employed about the place had come in and built up a big fire in the fireplace we sat down before it, lighted our pipes, and began to make plans for the next day. It was all very nice and comfy and we felt like big game hunters sure enough. Of course we had brought a little Scotch along and a couple of drinks didn't make the situation look any the less rosy to us.

We had lunch soon after we got in but of course we couldn't go out hunting until the next day for it was not open time until Wednesday. We spoke to the man who kept the camp about that and he grinned and said that it would probably be just as well if we didn't do any shooting until the law was off.

So we sat around in camp the remainder of the afternoon and got to bed early that night.

The next morning we were up bright and early for the hunt. There was a mountain on the shore of the lake opposite the camp and when we asked the proprietor—his name was Jim, and we soon got to calling him that—where we would better go, he said that we might take one of the boats and cross the lake and hunt around the foot and side of the mountain. He said that the mountain sloped right down to the camp, so that there would be no danger of our getting lost.

We took a lunch along and spent all day in the woods, hunting alone and hunting together, but never getting very far apart. It was glorious in the woods and we enjoyed every minute of it, but nary a deer did we see. That didn't discourage us though and Thursday we went out again.

This time we kept a little further apart and agreed to meet at the place where we landed the boat at three o'clock. I had an experience that afternoon of how easy it is to get lost in the woods, even when the slope of the land would seem to make it impossible. When I started to return to the shore it took me a good deal longer than I thought it ought to and I began to get a bit worried, I kept on though, and when I did come out I was plumb at the foot of the lake, a full mile from where I had supposed I would hit it. If I had worked down six rods further I would surely have passed the lake and there is no knowing where I would have brought up.

I walked back to the shore and found Tom waiting for me. When we got over to camp we found a couple of deer hung up in front of the camp. It seemed that a couple of the guides had gone up to the head of the pond and shot a deer apiece. Of course, we looked them over and admired them and asked all about where and how they were shot. The guides seemed willing to tell all right, and the only thing I didn't understand at the time was why they took all that trouble to shoot two deer, when there was no one in camp to feed them out to.

The next day was Friday and we had planned to go out that noon so as to get home Saturday morning. Jim asked us about our luck but said nothing about the deer the guides had shot.

Of course Tom and I were feeling a little bit disappointed and that night when we were sitting in our camp smoking our after-supper pipes, Tom remarked that he wondered if we couldn't buy those deer. I said I guessed that we could if we wanted to pay the price.

"I tell you what I think," said Tom, "they were cut and shot those deer especially for us."

"Well, shall we buy?" I asked.

"We'll see what they ask," answered Tom.

The next morning we didn't go out hunting and in the course of the forenoon we asked Jim what he would sell the deer for.

He didn't know. They belonged to the guides.

What would the guides ask for them?

Oh, probably five dollars apiece.

"That's all right," said Tom. "Can you fix it?"

Jim allowed that he could, and we told him to pay the men and we'd settle when we paid our bill. That was about all there was to it. When we came to go out the deer were tied on to the buckboard and our board bill was increased five dollars each.

We met some hunters on the train and nonchalantly told them that we had got a couple of deer. Of course we had to tell them when and where and how. Tom and I had that all cooked up. Coming down from Bangor I wrote this story out and of course if you want to you can publish it.

MORE SATISFACTORY CONDITIONS REPORT EASTPORT HUNTERS

Eastport lovers of brush hunting, who go sometimes to nearby covers and again far afield with dogs and autos to distant sections, where they know of flocks of the brown breast-ed, toothsome grouse, are reporting a much more satisfactory condition than in previous seasons.

The year, which has made the raising of crops hazardous and cut down the products of the agriculturists, has afforded the partridge an exceptional season for propagation. She has laid her eggs and hatched her young with a greater degree of safety than for years. She has led them far afield and, with watchful eye out for the marauding fox and clumsy human being, not to mention other enemies, she has watched them grow to a size where they could take care of themselves and she has winged her way to a safe cover, or been shot down by the keen-eyed marksman as she sought to escape his scatter-gun. Last year the birds were brought into Eastport but seldom before the middle of October and many, whose love for the delicate meat led them to forsake business and don rough tramping togs, with but scanty recompense, have this year come home triumphant with a brace of the birds dangling from their belts or tucked snugly into a corner of the open automobile, and in a few cases swinging from the handle bar of a bicycle. Incidentally, the gunners are noticing that there are lots of deer, whose whistles of alarm have sounded with frequency as the hunters have touched off the death dealing shot shell in the pursuit of small game, and it is anticipated that more deer will be brought in, as soon as it is cold, than before for the past few years.—Eastport Sentinel.

DEER CRASHED INTO PLATE GLASS WINDOW.

A wild young deer wandered out of the woods into the business section of the North End in Providence, R. I., October 17, and became so confused that it crashed into a plate glass window of a bakery on North Main street. After the animal had extricated itself it made a mad dash through the streets almost into the heart of the city and plunged into the Providence river. It was hauled out but was so badly injured that a policeman ended its existence with a bullet.

JAMACIA PLAIN MAN VISITS NEW BRUNSWICK AND MAINE.

William Davis the newsdealer of Poplar street, Jamaica Plain, Mass., returned recently from a month's vacation in the woods of New Brunswick, and visits to Woodstock, N. B., Houlton, Bangor and Portland, Me. Mr. Davis enjoyed the experience of life in a lumber camp at Salmon Falls, N. B., for 16 days, and says there is nothing like it for putting new life into a tired man. The fishing there was excellent and the bird shooting good. He was present in the wood when one of the French lumbermen killed a large black bear, the part of which he sold for $20. Mr. Davis was so delighted with his experience in the wilderness of New Brunswick that he says nothing will keep him from going there next Autumn.

Mathewson is Greatest.

A number of ball players anxious to discover the reason for the remarkable effectiveness of Mathewson, Plank, Sallee, Miner, Brown, Chief Bender and other veteran pitchers this season studied the records the other day and their research brought to light the fact that Mathewson was the greatest all-round twirler of all times. The specialties and strength of each big league twirler were examined and the ranking was found to be the following:

Best speed—Walter Johnson.

Best curve—Amos Rusie.

Hardest to hit—George Edward Waddell.

Greatest all-round pitcher—Christopher Mathewson.

Disapproves of Change.

Walter Johnson is not strong for the change in systems. Walter thinks that Ban Johnson should keep the record of games won and lost and not how many earned runs were made off the pitcher.

AS THE PITCHER WINDS UP.

From Second Base—Put 'er right over, big as a barn—he can't hit it. From Right Field—Make 'im hit it, ol' man; make 'im hit it.

From the Shortstop—'Nother strike out, ol' sport. This is a punkin.

From the Side Lines—Make 'em put it over. Wait for a good one. Make 'im cut the plate.

From the Catcher (signaling for a straight ball)—Now one o' them curly ones under the chin. T'row it right at his bill.

From the Left Field—Ho! Ho! Here's an easy one! Toss it to 'im.

From the Bench—Soak 'er down this way, ol' dub, an' watch me eat it.

From Third Base—Cut the pan, ol' sport; cut the pan—they can't touch it in a t'ousand years.

From the Bleachers—Right on the nose, Chimmie; right on the nose. A nice, clean single, bo; a nice, clean single.

"Han' 'im one of them fade-aways."

"Move the fielders back about a mile."

"A home run, Chimmie; a home run."

"Send 'er down to shortstop—he can't never stop it."

"Wait for a base on balls, ol' man—the pitcher's wild."

"Knock the cover off'n it."

"Kill it! Kill it!"

"Here's five dollars, me boy, for a home run."

"Make 'em be good, ol' scout; make 'em be good."

Then from the umpire, as the pitcher is about ready: "Hey, hold on a minute. Say, there, somebody dust off the plate a little."

And then it all begins again.—Puck.

NOTES of the DIAMOND

Harry Clark has signed a two-year contract to continue as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Connie Mack believes Danny Murphy, his veteran player, will quit the game at the end of the season.

Players of the Washington team have been made a proposition to visit Cuba this fall and are considering it.

Manager Tinker of the Reds started in life as a carpenter for his father, who was a contracting carpenter in Kansas City.

Connie Mack has failed to land one college player he wanted—Sam Felton, the Harvard pitcher, who declined an offer to play with the Athletics.

The veteran Cy Seymour is managing a semi-pro team in New York and he avers that it can beat any of the major league teams that wish to hook up with it in exhibitions.

NEW STEAMER FOR MOOSEHEAD

The Bath Iron Works is building the hull of a new steamboat for the Coburn Steamboat Co., of Moosehead lake, which will replace the steamer Katahdin, the queen of the Moosehead fleet, which was destroyed by burning during the past summer. The new steamer will be the largest in use on the inland waters of the state, and will have a steel hull, which will be shipped from Bath to Greenville Junction in sections. The upper works of the steamer will be built there. The length of the new boat will be 126 feet over all and the beams will be 24 feet. She will have three decks and will have a passenger carrying capacity of 700. The boilers are of the vertical tube type, 15½ feet high and with a diameter of 108 inches. The plate is three-fourths of an inch. There will be a compound condensing engine, 18 and 23 inches in diameter, and it is expected that the new boat will make about 13 miles an hour. An arrangement will be made on the forward deck for the transportation of automobiles.

STAGE DIRECTOR ALBION A PIGEON FANCIER

Like Julius Caesar, Louis Albion of the Jefferson theatre stock company can do two or even three or four things at a time and do them successfully, says the Portland Press. They say that the famous Roman general could attend to twenty different things at once, but we have no substantial proof of the assertion. We do know, however, that to come off with flying colors in any one line of activity keeps the average man pretty busy, and we who boast nervous temperaments, at least, are pretty certain that to mingle the staging and producing of the plays at the Jefferson would be quite enough to engage our minds.

Not so with Mr. Albion. Indeed the multiplex pursuits of staging one week's play, rehearsing the production for the next week, playing a part, and learning 30 or 40 sides (as they call pages in theatrical vernacular), do not prevent him from being a pigeon fancier. From which we may deduce that Mr. Albion is not an average man.

The rumor that Mr. Albion was very much interested in pigeons and was quite an authority on their habits had been current about the city for some time, but the genial stage director at the Jefferson is reticent, preferring rather to exploit his company than himself, so he wouldn't give out a bit of information on the subject.

Then a little girl who was weeping her heart out because her pet pigeon had died was presented with a beautiful fan tail by Mr. Albion, and the cat was fairly out of the bag. He had to own up that he had the neatest little pigeon farm imaginable across the bridge in East Deering, and made it his hobby to raise pedigreed birds.

Takes Mind Off Work

"I have to have something to do to take my mind off my work," he said, when he was confronted by the fact that we of the newspaper knew all about his farm, and that there was no possible way of escape.

"This staging of plays is a nerve-racking business at best, for the responsibility of the production rests largely with the director," he continued. "If some individual actor is not up to the mark at the Monday evening performance the remonstrance may come to him in due course of time but first it comes to me, so that I have a good deal of the worrying to do.

"Accordingly in my leisure moments I must have something to take up my attention, something that is utterly apart from my work, and will keep my mind from the theatre, in other words, a hobby. My pigeons are my hobby."

"But why pigeons?" I asked. "Why not flowers, for instance, or dogs, or old fashioned furniture, or something of that sort?"

"When I was a kid," he said, "I used always to be having some live thing about me for a pet. White mice, rabbits, pigeons, I kept them all. Well, I've outgrown the white mice and rabbit stage, but I still cling to my pigeons.

"And do you make personal pets of them, now?" I inquired.

"No, I've not attempted to do that. It's the fun of breeding them, the scientific side of the proposition that appeals to me. Of course the birds differ in their habits. Some will single you out for their attention and try to make friends with you more than others. But I have never made any advances to them."

"And what kind is it that you breed?"

Fan Tails Are Gamey

"Fan tails," Mr. Albion replied, "I have never paid any attention to the other varieties until now, for I've raised pigeons purely as food without any intention of making them a commercial asset, and the fan tails struck me as the gamier birds.

"Lately, however, I've gone into the breeding of squabs for the market, and I've gotten quite interested in it. I truly believe, too, that there'd be a lot of money in it, if one did it on an extensive scale.

"They pay pretty good money for squabs, 50 or 60 cents a piece, and they're coming to serve squab in place of game at a great many of the big hotels and restaurants because its easier to get.

"We breed squab from big birds which we call utility birds, and they're very prolific. They breed the year around. The fancy birds, the fan tails, that is, breed only in the spring.

"I've had pretty good luck, too, with the squabs I have raised. They have averaged in a good many instances 12 pounds to the dozen, and always 8 pounds to the dozen. Indeed I'm thinking seriously of going in almost entirely for the breeding of squabs.

"There's practically no market for the fan tails," he went on. "The trouble with them is that often times you'll pay $18 or $20 for a bird and have to part with it for $5. The man who wants to begin raising fan tails often foolishly thinks that he can start with an inexpensive pair of birds and improve his stock by breeding, which is, of course, a great mistake. As a result he isn't willing to pay the price that is asked for the pedigree bird."

Pays Good Prices

Mr. Albion has paid as high as $15 for some of his pigeons and almost all his birds are of blooded stock. He has about 150 of them at the present time, and keeps them at the farm of which we have spoken, over on the East Deering shore. Many are Carneau or Belgian birds, and are exceptionally beautiful in coloring. They are of what is known to experts as the red and yellow varieties, although the coloring of the lighter birds approaches a soft dove brown, it is said, while the darker ones are nearer of a chocolate shade. At least so it would appear to an uninitiate, although the pigeon fanciers may tell quite another story.

To keep his birds safe from marauders Mr. Albion has a pigeon house and outside of it a pigeon yard where they may scratch unmolested in the dirt, for it is fenced in and screened and roofed with wire netting. There is abundant room, too, for the birds to fly, for Mr. Albion tells us that it is not safe to allow the fan tails to navigate for themselves out in the open.

"There are some varieties of pigeons," he explained when I asked him about it, "that may be trusted to come back home if you permit them to fly for themselves. But when the fan tails spread their fans in a high wind they may be blown about anywhere and everywhere. They are absolutely unable to steer for themselves and there's no knowing where they will come down. Then, too, they're such stylish birds, they hold their heads so far back that it's impossible for them to see where they are going."

Accordingly this actor-pigeon fancier provides a fly for his birds where they may test their wings without getting away from their home environment.

It goes without saying that Mr. Albion cares for his pigeons scrupulously. He is too deeply interested in this hobby to do otherwise. A part of each day's program is to pay a brief visit to his farm to see that his birds are fed and watered properly, and if anything unavoidable keeps him away he usually sends out a bell boy from his hotel or a messenger from the theatre to see that all is going well with his pets. Friday afternoons, when there is no matinee, he goes over to Deering to spend his time with his pigeons. He has patent feeders and patent watering troughs into which he can put food and drink enough for for three days if it is necessary, but the day is pretty rare when Mr. Albion does not show up sometime between morning and night to oversee matters at the farm.

Reads Pigeon Papers

Like all real enthusiasts he takes the papers that have to do with the cultivation of his hobby, and among them one called the Pigeon News, which is widely read by bird fanciers. In common with other poultry journals it has departments in which its readers exchange confidences with one another, tell what kind of birds they have and how highly they value them, and what methods they have taken to improve their stock. And Mr. Albion peruses its columns religiously. Before he came to Portland he had kept pigeons two or three times in other cities, and when two years ago he purchased his place at East Deering and decided to start his pigeon farm it was through correspondence with some of the readers of the Pigeon News that he first obtained his breeding birds. Since that time he has sent a great many birds of his own to pigeon fanciers in other parts of the country: as far west as Wisconsin, Iowa, and Omaha, Nebraska, and as far south as Virginia. So far he has never exhibited any of them, although he has made it a habit to attend poultry shows and compare his own stock with that of other faddists. But it is the pure fun of breeding, of trying experiments to produce bigger and better birds, that most appeals to him. He long ago ceased to breed the black and white fan tails because it was too easy, and success was too well assured. With the red and yellow birds the risk is greater, there are more obstacles to overcome, and consequently the triumph is all the sweeter when he does breed a perfect bird.

"It's an intensely interesting proposition," he says, "and all the more so because it's a gamble. In breeding squabs, for instance, we may take a long bird and one that's short, and thick through the breast where the meat lies, and breed them together in the hope of producing a bird that is both long and broad. Then we may take a fan tail that has a perfect tail and another bird whose feathers grow sparsely, and breed in the attempt to improve the tail of the first. Of course the things to avoid in fans are the wry-tails—the tails that grow long on one side—and the open-centered tails—those which have few feathers in the middle. Sometimes, of course, you can calculate the results pretty accurately. Then again you may take two of your finest birds and produce a thoroughly scrubby and unattractive specimen. In such a case you are almost ready to throw the whole business over, and say that trying is no use. But in the main the encouragements are more than the discouragements, so I get a great deal of pleasure in experimenting with my birds.

"And then," he added, "with a twinkle in his eye, 'their company is pretty satisfactory. They can't talk back to you. Humans can.'"

HOW THE FEDERAL BIRD LAWS AFFECT NEW ENGLAND

Every sportsman of New England will be interested to know how the new Federal Regulations for the Protection of Migratory Birds affect his territory. He will want to know under what circumstances the Federal laws take precedence and when the State laws are effective. A little study of these different regulations will be necessary to determine whether he is hunting legally or illegally.

Under an Act of Congress, passed March 4, 1913, known as the McLean-Weeks Bill, the Federal Government was given the power to make regulations to fix the closed seasons for migratory birds. On October 1, at 12.40 p. m. these regulations were signed by the President, as the statute requires, and now have the force of law. Under these regulations New England comes in the Northern Zone or Zone No. 1.

The Federal Regulations apply to migratory birds, but not to all migratory birds; only to migratory games and insectivorous birds. If a game bird is migratory it is included under the regulations. The ruffed grouse, bob-white and prairie hen are not considered migratory enough to be included under these regulations. On the other hand the woodcock and snipe are included. All perching birds which feed entirely or chiefly on insects are protected at all times. This includes bobolinks, catbirds, chickadees, cuckoos, flickers, flycatchers, grosbeaks, humming birds, kinglets, meadowlarks, nighthawks, nuthatches, orioles, robins, shrikes, swallows, swifts, tanagers, titmice, thrushes, vireos, warblers, waxwings, whippoorvills, woodpeckers and wrens. Kingfishers, for example which are insectivorous in a small degree, are not included, but they may be protected under State laws.

Consultation with State and Federal legal authorities shows that they agree that the Federal laws take precedence over State laws except where the State law makes a shorter open season than the Federal law, in which case there is nothing to prevent the State authorities from enforcing the State law. For example: the Federal Regulations in Massachusetts fix the open season on woodcock from October 10 to December 1, while under the State law the season is established to coincide with that of the grouse and extends from October 12 to November

If you find where there is a burrow 12. In such a case the State law will hold, but when the open season under the State law begins earlier and ends later than that under the Federal Regulations, the Federal Regulations will hold.

The open season for migratory birds in Zone No. 1 under the Federal Regulations are as follows: Waterfowl, September 1 to December 16; exceptions in New England,—Massachusetts from September 15 to January 1. Rails, Coots and Gallinules, September 1 to December 1; exceptions in New England,—Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island from August 15 to December 1,—Connecticut, September 16 to December 1. Woodcock, October 1 to December 1; exceptions in New England,—Connecticut and Massachusetts from October 10 to December 1 and in Rhode Island from November 1 to December 1. Shore-Birds—Black-breasted and golden plover, Jacksnipe and yellowlegs, September 1 to December 16; exceptions in New England,—Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island from August 15 to December 1. The shore birds named above are the only species that may be legally killed for five years under the new Federal Regulations. All small plover, sandpipers or "peeps" and "grassbirds" are protected at all times. All migratory game birds are protected from sunset to sunrise throughout the United States, and in Vermont rails are protected until the year 1918. There is a close season on wood ducks in New England until September, 1918. The regulation of the collecting of birds for scientific purposes is left to the several states.

BANQUET BY BOSTON POST

Knowles Received with Great En- thusiasm and Eulogized by Fellow Townsman.

At the banquet tendered Joseph Knowles in Boston at the Copley Plaza hotel recently, by the Boston Post, there was a large and representative body of men present, all loud in their praise of the man who has accomplished such remarkable feats.

Among those present were three Franklin county gentlemen, Messrs. C. N. Blanchard, esq., George F. Goodspeed and L. F. Adams of Wilton. Mr. Blanchard had the honor to respond to toast "Joe Knowles as I have known him," as Wilton was his native town. Mr. Blanchard highly lauded Knowles for the primitive man venture and took the opportunity to thank the toastmaster for the honor of being the one to represent the State of Maine and especially the town "where our honored guest first saw the light of day."

In speaking of Knowles he said: "His parents were poor, but they were possessed of those sterling qualities which made them persevere. His early education was limited, but he drank deep of nature. The grandeur of the scenery near his old home was unsurpassed."

"Persistent effort, backed up by his physical strength and indomitable willpower, made him successful."

"His fertile mind evolved the idea of a man. The task he has accomplished shows us that it is but a small distance between primitive that it was possible for the 20th century man to live like a primitive and 20th century life. His love of nature, his love of honor are too big for him to attempt any fraud on the American people. His bronzed skin, his uncouth covering are silent witnesses of the ordeal which he went through."

"The reception which he received when escorted to his parents was never before excelled in the history of Wilton."

"Not even the boys in blue when they came back from the war from '61 to '65 received the welcome that Knowles did."

"It is a fitting conclusion, this banquet, to the long list of receptions he has received from the time he left the Maine woods until he has returned to you."

"This feast of his was never before paralleled in the history of modern civilization."

CARLTON BUYS FISH FOR POND

Trout Taken from Private Pond of the Late Ex-Governor Hill.

There have recently been liberated in J. W. Carlton's private pond 3500 trout from four to seven inches in length.

These fish were taken from the Spring Brook Trout pond owned by the late ex-governor, John F. Hill of Augusta. The fish cost Mr. Carlton at the rate of $30 per thousand.

The prospect is that the past excellent fishing in this pond will be improved with this addition of trout.

THE ROYAL MONTH AND THE ROYAL DISEASE.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative,—consumption.

R. H. Preble will pay back your money if Hamilton's Old English Black Oil fails to cure all kinds of flesh wounds, sprains, stiff joints, inflammation of all kinds, on man or beast. It is the most healing preparation known to the medicine world to-day. Never in the history of this store said Mr. Preble to a representative of a wholesale drug house, "has there been so great a demand for any remedy as there is just now for Hamilton's Old English Black Oil. Phillips people are coming in every day inquiring if it really is true that we will sell Hamilton's Old English Black Oil with the understanding that it will do all that is claimed of it or pay back the money." But we do just as we agree and we will hand back your money without the least argument if you are not satisfied.

HEED THE WARNING.

Many Phillips People Have Done So.

When the kidneys are weak they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Weak kidneys usually expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brickdust" sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys often cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. There is no better recommended remedy.

Phillips people endorse Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. E. A. Kennedy, Phillips, Me., says: "My back had pained me constantly for six months and was very stiff and sore. I was tired most of the time. On a friend's advice, I got Doan's Kidney Pills. After using two boxes, the pains and tired feeling left me. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
