

THE ENGAGEMENT OF TWO POPULAR SKOWHEGAN PEOPLE.

A social announcement which, owing to the prominence of the families involved, will be of great interest to our readers, occurs this week, the engagement of Miss Maribel Greene to Dr. Charles R. Viles. Miss Green is the eldest daughter of

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Green of Pleasant street. Dr. Viles, to whom we hasten to extend congratulations, is among our best known professional men. Both are deservedly popular here and throughout the county.—Independent Reporter. Miss Green formerly resided in Stratton and is well and favorably known in this section.

ARROW SHOT SHELLS

SPEED—SPEED—and again, SPEED

YOUR object in shooting is to get your bird with the center of your load. Of course! Then shoot these Steel Lined Speed Shells.

They are the fastest shells in the market. Their speed is demonstrated beyond question by the one sure test in all ballistic matters—the Electric Chronograph.

Then, too, there is the experience of thousands of seasoned gunners who have been shooting the Remington-UMC Steel Lined Shells ever since they came out.

The steel lining is the thing. It grips the powder—holds it in compression—puts all the drive of the explosion behind the shot.

Your load travels quicker—you shorten up your lead. You cut down the guess work on lead and angles—you get more birds.

Your dealer carries these speed shells. Get them. Use them. Find the Red Ball mark on every box of shells and metallics you buy.

PROSPECT GOOD TO RENEW BONDS

Let Us All Help in the Work of Assisting This Society

At a recent meeting of the trustees of the North Franklin Agriculture society to discuss the matter of renewing the bonds that will come due the first of November, ways and means were considered and it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the President, Elbridge Dill; Secretary, J. I. Hamlen and treasurer, A. W. Davenport.

Mr. Davenport informed Maine Woods that they have met with much encouragement from those they have seen and talked with, who hold the bonds and they feel quite confident that they will be able to renew them.

It is certainly to be hoped that this can be accomplished, as it is prophesied that the society is just on the eve of prosperity, and with a little help at this time will be able to carry the thing along. The past two years have been prosperous for the society, especially this year and it seems to many that it would be a lamentable condition of affairs to have to discontinue the annual show and fair of the North Franklin Agricultural society that has been looked forward to each year by old and young for 62 years.

Let us all put our shoulder to the wheel and assist the management towards making a success of it.

In talking with a member of the society a short time ago, he suggested that one way to help a little would be to cut out the life members and have them pay their dollar each year the way the annual members have to. In looking at the list we find there are 43 life members now receiving the benefits, besides the families of the 40 who are deceased. We very much doubt if there is a life member who would not be willing to make this concession, and nearly $100 each year would help some and it certainly seems as if they have had their money's worth. We think this is a matter to consider when talking of ways and means.

STATE ROAD COMPLETED

Kingfield, October 28—The State road comprising 4750 feet in charge of H. Woodcock was completed October 17, and has been accepted by Road Inspector Henry Giffman of Farmington. The part just finished, from the Chas. Simmons corner to the chain bridge, had carted in 215 loads of filling, gravel and sand, then 153 loads of gravel on top. The road built this year extends from the foot of Lane hill to the chain bridge.

Parker and has been newly furnished by them.

Mr. Morrison is at the present time the attorney of Franklin county and has proved himself to be very popular among the legal fraternity as well as among his townspeople. Although young for this important position he is filling it to the satisfaction of all. He is a graduate

LOST IN WOODS ALL NIGHT

But Is Paid for the Experience by Securing a Deer.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Andrew Nichols of West Mills, a brother of Norman Nichols, who has been visiting at Dean Henderson's, went to the Iron bridge about four miles north of Kingfield Monday forenoon hunting, with the understanding that he would be home in good season at night. He did not return and Tuesday morning Mr. Henderson and Pearle Nichols went to the Iron bridge and found his horse hitched apparently as he had hitched it in the open, having stood all day and night in a heavy rain. Nichols remained to look for his uncle and the horse was driven back to Kingfield by George Durrell. In the afternoon a searching party was organized consisting of George Burke, Wayne Dutton, Gilbert Boyce and George Durrell, which scoured the country without success. About 6 o'clock Nichols came out at Parker Williams' in Lexington, having been lost in the woods all night in a pouring rain and without food since Monday noon. During the night he lay down in a hollow behind a log covered with leaves and boughs, starting to walk as soon as he could see and reached the settlement in a very exhausted condition. He shot a deer and hung it up in the woods, being too weak to drag it out. Wednesday, in company with Dean Henderson he went back for the deer.

of the Phillips High school, and was salutatorian for his class in 1903. He studied law with F. W. Butler in Farmington and was admitted to the Franklin County bar after which he commenced practicing law in Phillips in the offices formerly used by his father, Judge James Morrison and has made a successful law practice.

Although the bride is a Massachusetts young lady she is not a stranger in town as she has been the popular music teacher in our public schools for the past two years resigning the position at the close of the summer term. She is a very accomplished musician and much liked by her pupils. We feel that Phillips is fortunate to have her take up her residence here.

Many wedding gifts are being received by them, including furniture, cut glass, etc. A very beautiful chime clock presented by several of his Phillips friends is in the lot and is greatly admired.

The very best wishes of their numerous friends in town as well as throughout the county are extended to County Attorney Morrison and his bride.

FRANK GOTCH THE FARMER

Famous Wrestler Having Worked
the Sporting Game to Its Limit, Turns Farmer.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:
Laverne, Iowa, Oct. 20.

Several years ago when Frank Gotch was simply a husky farm lad with the wrestling ambition in him he came to this town, Laverne, Iowa, and had a match with a professional. Gotch was defeated. Working the professional wrestler on him was of course merely a scheme of some local talent to defeat Gotch and the perpetrators never guessed that they were dealing with a future world's champion, the only real world's champion wrestler who has ever lived. Gotch's appearance here at that time was his first match away from home and the beginning of his world wide reputation. The following clipping from a Billings, Mont., paper gives an idea of what Gotch has in his mind now:

"Frank Gotch, world famous wrestler, may become a property owner in Billings, or possibly a Montana farmer. He is expected to arrive in the city Saturday to look at land in the basin, which has been brought to his attention. Gotch has large farming interests about Humboldt, Iowa, his home city, and also in Minnesota."

S. G. Winne, brother of E. K. Winne a local land owner interested in the basin, has wired the latter that he and Gotch will be here, and if they find the land to be represented are ready to invest a large amount of money.

Some time ago Gotch declared that he had forsaken the wrestling for the farm, which he intends shall occupy all his time in the future."

NEW WORLD'S SHOOTING RECORDS.

Fresh from victories at Camp Perry, A. P. Lane, the Olympic pistol and revolver champion, captured nearly all the short arm events at the Sea Girt tournament which opened on September, continuing until the 20th. The All-Comers' Military and Police Revolver Match Mr. Lane won with a score of 142 out of a possible 150 and was again returned as leader in the All-Comers' Squadded Pistol Match, making 144 out of the possible 150. This being the second time that the New York expert has captured the event, another winning will make him permanent possessor of the trophy. From a field of sixteen cracks Lane took the All-Comers' Military Revolver Match with 135 out of 150. The grand aggregate prize also went to the Olympic, his ticket summing up for a total of 1060.

The All-Comers' Rapid Fire Military Match was closely contested, Lane eventually winning by one point with 138 out of the possible 150. The Botcher Match, an event of 5 shots at disappearing bullseye cartons at 75 yards was also captured ed by Lane with a total of 72. Two world records were annexed by the champion; in the Military Revolver Match slow fire, 142 out of 150, and aggregate of slow and rapid fire scores Military Revolver Match, 257 out of 300, shooting, as he did in all the matches, Remington-UMC metallics. With this ammunition Capt. R. H. Sayre won the All-Comers' Squadded Rapid Fire Match, scoring 100 out of 150.

Sergeant Chas. F. Robinson won the Hayes Match, scoring 16 consecutive bullseyes, shooting Remington-UMC Metallics in his army rifle at 600 yards. The New York State Rifle Association Match was won by J. W. Hessian with the same ammunition. Hessian scored 153 out of 170. A new official world's record of 1,721 out of 1,800 was made in the Sadler Match (under Palmer Trophy Conditions) by the Massachusetts Team, 7 out of 8 men shooting Remington-UMC Metallics.

GUIDE KILLED BY HUNTER

Frank Holmes, one of the best known of the Adirondack guides, was shot and killed by Eugene De Bronkart, a wealthy resident of New York City. The shooting was accidental and occurred just as a party was starting from De Bronkart's lodge on Little Moose lake, to hunt deer. De Bronkart had just loaded his rifle when it was accidentally discharged. The ball entered Holmes and passed through his abdomen. He died, two hours later.

CLEVER RUSE TO DECOY BLUE HERON

The Bath Times tells of a clever ruse employed by a Bath taxidermist to decoy and shoot "the first young, little blue heron ever known to have been taken in Maine." The young of these birds are snow white in plumage, and it was this fact that gave Mr. Monroe the idea that resulted in a novel decoy which proved entirely successful. Finally he rigged a little blind in the marsh grass near the edge of a big brackish pool. Taking a white handkerchief he fashioned it into the model of a pliable briar twig. The birds at once approached near enough for the fatal shot.

EARLY FALL GOOD TIME FOR PEARL FISHING

Since early fall, as well as summer, is an exciting time for fresh water pearl-fishing, Maine frequenters of lakes and streams may put to good use just now the valuable information given by Sara Swage Muller in the October "Suburban Life" on how to do it successfully. After discussing various theories as to how the mussels happen to form pearls, she offers her conclusion, drawn from much experience in pearl-fishing, notably among the Green Mountains in Vermont. She finds no pearls in mussel beds free from parasites; but plenty where a parasite worm had been at work, the lining of the shells showing blisters and discolorations. The pearls, therefore, are to be looked for in unhealthy mussels. They are found not only under the thin skin that stretches from the plump stomach to the edges of the shell, but sometimes embedded in the flesh of the mussel. True pearls are round and of good color and lustre. Imperfect pearls with good lustre are called baroque and have a commercial value. Lusterless pearls of any size, are "slugs." The writer, besides giving interesting data on the discovery of the value of the fresh water pearl, some 50 years ago in New Jersey, closes by warning pearl-fishers to beware the thin shelled, green-tinted, yellow-footed Anodonta, which variety never rewards the seeker after sudden wealth.

STEEL STEAMER FOR MOOSEHEAD LAKE.

The first carload shipment of the hull of the new steamer Katahdin for the Coburn Steamship Co., of Moosehead Lake, was shipped on Thursday from the Bath Iron Works. It will take four cars to carry the hull. The hull has been set up and knocked down and the work of putting it together on the arrival of the material at the lake will be performed by a crew from the Bath Iron Works.

The craft will be the first steel passenger boat for service on Moosehead and is intended for the Greenville, Mt. Kineo and East Carry route. She will be the largest boat in the lake. Her dimensions are: 126 feet long and 24 feet beam, and she will have three decks and a passenger carrying capacity of about 700 passengers.

The engines and boilers of the steamer Katahdin which was destroyed by fire will be used in the new boat. The engine is compound 15 and 28x18. It is expected the boat will show a speed of 14 miles. P. J. Robinson, manager of the Coburn Steamship Co., is to command the new craft, and he accompanied the first carload from this city to be sure of its rapid transit. It is expected the craft will be ready for commission the last of April. Frank A. Purington of Bath, who is to do the wood work in the new steamer, has been at Greenville for several weeks working on the material. He is assisted by Charles Powers of Bath. The new boat will be named Katahdin. The first Katahdin was built by Charles B. Harrington of Bath.

CADDIES GET $12,500,000

It is estimated that nearly $30,000,000 is spent on golf in the United Kingdom every year, and that of this huge sum only a little less than half, or $12,500,000, goes to the caddies.

The estimate has been made by a well known golf specialist, who after a careful census has placed the number of players in the country at roughly 250,000. Three-quarters of a million players pay on an average $25 a year each in club subscription or a total of $6,250,000, which added to $250,000 for green fees, $6,250,000 for golf balls, $625,000 for clubs and the amount which it is calculated the caddies collect, makes the total mentioned. The estimate gives one ball a week to each player, at a cost of 50 cent, each.

Each golfer's expenses are placed at a trifle over $100 a year, on the game alone, his highway fares or other means of reaching the links, and of course what he loses on his games, not being computed.

A GOOD WORD FOR THE CROW.

Down with the scarecrow and up with the sign "Welcome" in the cornfields of the United States is the new dictum of Uncle Sam's Department of Agriculture. Corvus americanus—that is Mr. Crow's real name—should be a welcome visitor. He is a benefit to the arable lands and not a detriment.

Generations, centuries, eons have witnessed the springtime elevation of a rack of lathes and sticks draped with discarded coat and pants, topped with ancient headgear, to do duty in the newly planted cornfields as a warning to the crows that dire and sudden destruction await any attack on the seed filled soil. From nearby fence corners the farmer's son or the hired man has watched, gun in hand, the coming of the black visitors.

"Bang," and the innocent victim of an age long superstition was gasping out his life on the ground.

"Now," says the Department of Agriculture, "all this must be ended. After a careful study of the habits and the examination of a large number of crows' stomachs the Department experts have reached the conclusion that the crow consumes enough grasshoppers, cut worms, white grub and other injurious insects to make him highly valuable to the farm."

SUBSCRIBER WANTS OPINION OF BEAR'S SCENT APPARATUS.

Saco, Me., October 20.

To the Editor of Maine Woods:

The writer, a subscriber to your valuable paper, has been somewhat interested in the "stunts" executed or claimed to have been executed by Jog Knowles.

In this connection I would like to inquire of the guides and others among your readers whether or not a bear with his scent apparatus in good working order will deliberately walk into a section of the woods where a pit has been dug in the earth about 48 hours before. I await with interest the opinions of those of your readers competent to pass upon this matter.

PRESIDENT ENJOYS GOLF

President Wilson climbed the hills of the golf links in wind and rain and came back to the White House aglow with color. He smiled at stories that he had been in ill health.

Representative Murray of Massachusetts, who dropped in on the President, greeted him with the remark: "I am sorry to hear that you are sick, Mr. President."

"Well, just tackle me and see," laughed the President, as he assumed a pugilistic pose.

The President had a slight attack of indigestion last week, but entirely recovered from it.

DIGNARD SAYS HE CAN BEAT KNOWLES.

Joe Dignard of Sabattus, veteran hunter, trapper and all-round woodsman declares he can beat the record of Joe Knowles by a month and do it in the winter time at that. Dignard says that when it comes to playing the part of primitive man nobody has "got anything on him." He was brought up with the Indians and has made a study of woodcraft since he was a waddling.

"Why," said Dignard, "the yarns Joe Knowles has been spinning are enough to make a real woodsman laugh. I suppose I know more about bears than any other living man. I have caught little ones and big ones, and I have a pet bear now, and when anybody tells you that a bear can be caught in a pitfall such as Knowles built, you want to laugh right out loud at that man. I tell you it can't be done by any man primitive or progressive. And I know what I am talking about."

"Say, did you know that bears are the slickest and most careful animal that you can find. They have got a fox tied to a tree when it comes to playing foxy. But I can catch bears easy enough."

"I'd just like to try that stunt Knowles pulled off. I'd make him look like an amateur. I tell you what I'll do, if some one will pay me the money he got for his two months in the Maine woods in the most favorable season of the year. I will enter the woods just as he did without clothes, weapons or supplies of any kind, right now and remain three months. That would take me into the winter, but I wouldn't care for that. I'd have time enough to catch enough animals to make me a suit of furs before snow comes and then what would I care about the cold. I'd be a real primitive man and do the job right. There'd be no fake business about it either."

Mr. Dignard has just completed several months of primitive life on Wilson Island where he has a camp. During his stay on the island he wore no clothes, so he says, and now finds even the lightest wearing apparel burdensome. "Oh," I just tried a little of the primitive life for fun and by gosh I like it first rate."

SHE GOT A BIG BUCK.

Mrs. Fred D. Jordan, wife of the manager of the board department at the Merrill Trust Co., of 46 Maple street, Bangor, has just returned from an automobile hunting trip in the Maine woods, says the Bangor Commercial, on which she secured one of the finest bucks that have been brought into Bangor this season. It weighed 268 pounds, and has a fine set of antlers. It attracted a lot of attention, Friday hung up in Mrs. Jordan's yard at her Maple street home. Mrs. Jordan is deservedly proud of the buck.

She left Bangor Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, heading in her automobile toward Howland. When about 40 miles from Bangor, the driver thought he heard a noise in the woods, just about dusk, and stopped the car to investigate. He went among the trees, and in a short time frightened a buck into a field. He was a magnificent fellow—one of the best of Maine's wild animals, and in his prime.

Mrs. Jordan was not afflicted with buck fever at this critical moment. Standing erect in the car and aiming at the shoulder of the living target, he landed a shot just where she aimed. "That downed him," said Mrs. Jordan in telling about the episode, "and then I aimed again took him in the head, which finished the buck. After that I guess I got a little shaky for the next four shots went wild, but they weren't needed."

"It was not a very difficult matter to haul the buck to our auto, even if he was a big one, as it was only a short distance through the field. After that I secured a fine bag of partridge."

AROOSTOOK'S SECOND KNOWLES MAKES TRIP TO BOSTON.

Dan Buckley, Aroostook's second Knowles, took a trip to Boston to see Knowles as he emerged from the wilds of Maine. Dan said there were somewhere near a million people packed in and around Boston streets and all had good things. Dan vows, that he, too, can go into the woods and stay one month or two, providing someone will bring him something to eat and drink, and that he will send out messages on birch bark or on any kind of bark. He has practically made arrangements with a Boston newspaper to cave up for a couple of months in the wilds of Aroostook.—Mars Hill View.

MR. CAMP OWNER

It is rumored over the state that no hunters are coming to Maine this fall on account of the new license law. Do you believe this? Do you believe that true sportsmen who love to place a good gun on their shoulders can find such a variety of hunting in any other state in the Union? We do not believe they can, and we also believe that Maine will have a good big bunch of hunters this fall.

IT IS NOW TIME TO ADVERTISE

for them, and Maine Woods offers publicity that is more valuable, to Maine camp owners, than that of any other publication.

Don't let the other man get all the hunters. Send in your ad today.

Ask Any Sickie Smoker Why

he sticks to Sickie plug and slices off each pipeful as he needs it, when he could get tobacco already cut up, in packages. He'll tell you, "because the Sickie way is the only way to get fresh tobacco, that smokes cool and sweet, and doesn't bite the tongue." He knows.

Tobacco that is cut up at the factory gets dried up on its way to you. Result—it burns fast and hot, and "bites." When you cut your own tobacco off the Sickie plug, you are well repaid for a minute's work by fresh tobacco—because all the flavor and moisture are pressed into the plug and held in by the natural leaf wrapper.

Get a plug of Sickie at your dealer's today. Notice how much more tobacco you get, when you don't have to pay for a package.

REPAIRS AT STATE CAPITOL

The repairs which have been going on all over the State House at Augusta during the past two months, are now being completed, and the offices and corridors are greatly improved in appearance. The pictures in the main lobby have been rehanging with charming grace and symmetry. And a coat of paint has renewed the appearance of the lobby, as well as the hallway on the lower floor.

The work which has been done in the offices of the building, also, cannot escape notice. The office of the State treasurer has been brightened by the addition of several large pictures. A large art square has improved the looks of the insurance office. The office recently occupied by the State pension clerk has been fitted up attractively. And a telephone has been installed in the room of the Commission of State Charities and Correction.

The new additions to the State fish and game museum, have drawn much favorable comment. Thomas A. James, the curator of the museum, has finished painting the background for the caribou exhibit and is at work arranging the caribou in the case. The moth collection containing nearly 7000 specimens, has been put into large cases newly made and painted. With the new specimens of birds and now the collection in the museum can only make favorable impressions.

WARDEN RAY NEAL SAYS DEER ARE LARGER NEAR SETTLEMENT.

Fifteen deer were received in Bangor in 24 hours, one day recently, a fair day's receipts for this month so far. It brought the seasons' total beyond the 200 mark, or 211. It was noticed that some of the deer, especially those from the deep woods, were rather small. Game Warden Ray Neal says that the deer which are taken near the thickly settled portions of the state, especially in Waldo and Washington counties, run larger than the deer in the wilderness.

Mr. Neal says that in the parts of the state where there are many settlements, the deer have a better opportunity to feed with the result that they are fatter and that he has been receiving many complaints from farmers about the deer eating crops, one man down near Belfast reporting to Mr. Neal, and he told him to shoot the deer. The next time he saw the farmer, the warden asked him how his crops were getting along. The answer came, "I took a shot at the deer, but didn't hit them, but they've never come back, and I don't have any more trouble."

On the other hand, the deer in the remote sections are often hard pressed for food, which tends to make them lean and small. Some years, there is more feed than at other times. The report from Sepois this year is to the effect that there are very few beechnuts up that way this year, this scarcity depriving the deer of one of their favorite foods.

It is evident that the writer of the dispatch from Monson stating that the coon hunting up there is simply great, large parties of hunters going out every night with dogs after coons, is not posted on the game laws of the state. "It is close time until Nov. 1," stated Chief Warden Perkins at the Union station, Thursday, "and it is most emphatically against the law to hunt them with dogs." The dispatch, which was printed in the morning paper, tells of the "sports" bringing high priced dogs from the west and south that they expect will do great work.

Artist Knowles, who is lecturing in Portland this week, feels hurt by the attitude of the fish and game commissioners of Maine, alleging that they did not treat his venture fairly because the commissioners refused him the privilege of killing game sufficiently to fully clothe himself and furnish him with sustenance in the woods. Upon return from Megallowick, he was fined $205 by the commissioners for illegal killing of deer and trapping of bear without a license.

Knowles says he will never enter the Maine woods again until he has been granted a permit from the commissioners to kill game for his maintenance, and in the interests of science. "I feel confident that this experiment is only in its infancy and that it will lead up to another and even greater attempt on my part, but it will be done in a state or county where I will not be hampered by game laws," he is quoted as saying.—Bangor Commercial.

Mercer Farmer Has Intelligent Hen.

Have you read the latest "discovery" by that tireless Skowhegan correspondent? Here it is: "Training hens to lead others from the road on the approach of an automobile is the new style farming that Joel Carpenter of Mercer is engaged in. He cherishes a hen that on seeing an automobile will give a wild cry to call the attention of the other hens and will then run to one side of the road with the others huddled with her. There they remain until the machine has gone. It is estimated that 5000 hens have been killed in this county each season by automobiles. Mr. Carpenter is now training other hens to act as leaders to sell them to other farmers to place with their flocks."

THE LOVER OF THE OPEN.

(Written for Maine Woods)

Let us linger where the shadows,
Softly play on limpid streams;
Traverse wood and velvet meadow,
And indulge in boyhood dreams.
Linger long where trail of wildings
Lead through deep sequestered
glens;
Seek the swift elusive partridge
Or the grouse among the fens.
Follow sleek and keen nosed pointer
O'er the stubbles sere and
brown;
Far from moilers in the city,
Or the idlers of the town,
Gain our freedom in the open;
Drink the pure and frosty air;
Break the chain of business a thralldom;
Free ourselves from toil and care.
Lead the way through open spaces
Of the prairies, vast and
wide;
Tramp the glistening sandy
reaches;
Hear the gurgling of the tide.
Throw yourself with pure abandon
'Mong the joys that nature
flings;
Freely to o'er weary mortals,
How her voice with gladness rings.
Why seek pleasures superficial?
Why for lust or why for greed?
Spend thy life, for, 'twill be futile,
Not sustain in time of need.
Come with me where gleaming shadows
Play athwart the larger world,
Be't on mount or shimmering
meadows
Joys forever are unfurled.
And the lover of the open
Grasps the joys that be-to-day;
His the life that knows full meaning
E'en looks back on yesterday.

demonstrated at Keith's theatre says the Portland Press where that very remarkable man is twice each day meeting large audiences and telling them of his experiences.

On the fourth day of last August Mr. Knowles entered the Maine woods. He wore no clothes, carried neither food nor any implement with which to provide for his existence. His object was to prove that he could live for a period of two months without the aid of the things which modern times have made us believe are indispensable, to prove that man through his ingenuity and quick wit is equipped to face life without the assistance of anything that our civilization has to offer.

He accomplished his object. It was an experiment both remarkable and unique, without a parallel in the world. Is it to be wondered at that people flock to see him and hear what he has to say, hear him tell with his own lips just how he accomplished the wonderful feat?

Joe Knowles is a Maine boy. That of course, makes his accomplishment hold an added interest for Maine people. He performed the stunt in Maine woods. That's another reason. But above these, the real attraction about him is what he has accomplished.

Complying with many requests from people who feel that they will not have an opportunity to see the man during his brief stay in this city, Mr. Knowles yesterday allowed himself to be taken about the city in an automobile that these people might see him. Although there was a chilling wind blowing he wore the costume of deerskin breeches and a bearskin coat. He wore no hat and his arms and shoulders were bare, yet he noticed the chill not at all, so hardened had he become during his out-of-door life. A reporter met him in his dressing room at the theatre just after he returned from the ride and asked him if he had noticed the cold any.

Mr. Knowles replied that he had not, that he was more comfortable in his garment of skins than he was in his "civilized clothes," as he called them.

Mr. Knowles' act consists of a 20-minute monologue in which he talks about the most interesting of his experiences. Of course in so little time he cannot go into details, but he tells his hearers enough to give them a fair idea of how he lived, how he obtained his food, how he spent his days and nights alone in the great silent forest.

Persons who have a love for out-of-door and wood life can best appreciate what he talks about and to others it is nothing short of an education.

Although Mr. Knowles has received very flattering offers in the way of theatrical bookings, it is not his intention to continue long on the stage for he has plans which he believes will mean more to himself and at the same time give him an opportunity to bring his experiences to the attention of a greater number of people. What these plans are he is not ready to say, but when all arrangements have been completed he will take the public into his confidence.

DISEASES OF CHILDREN

I find that worms is one of the most common of children's diseases—either pinworms or stomach worms.

These parasites attack the stomach and bowels and make their presence felt
through deranged stomach,
swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly, pale face of Trade Mark leadish tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

For over 60 years, Dr. True's Elixir, my father's discovery, has been the standard remedy for worms and stomach disorders. Take no chances—but use the time-tried remedy—Dr. True's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. At all dealers, 35c, 50c and $1.00. Advice free.

OUR TWO MINUTE SERMON

By Rev. M. S. Hutchins.

This sermon, and others to follow, will not occupy over two minutes of your time in reading. Although miniature in size they will be real sermons. They will be based on timely topics of the day.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

"The bright side is the right side." So often in this present day do we hear sentiments like this proclaimed thoughtlessly and flippantly by those whose experience and thinking are alike shallow, that we are tempted to throw aside all such claims as unwarranted and fos-lish. But, remembering that the truest optimism consists not in denying evil but in finding good to offset it and finally to conquer it, we discover the truth of the claims made by those who preach good cheer.

The bright side is the right side because:

1. It is the healthy side. The despondent person cannot be the possessor of either mental or physical health. In sickness the one who has good cheer has been said to have three chances for recovery where the morose man has only one.

2. It is the victorious side. Cheerfulness not only leads a person to hope for success and to put forth his strongest effort for victory, but it brings him help from those around him. Cheerfulness is strong where moroseness is but weak.

3. It is the helpful side. The sour, gloomy person is not the one to whom we go for sympathy and aid in any of life's needs. Though no one really likes a sad will never il-len to it when coming from those who by their gloominess make them understand that they have faith
neither in one's intentions, ability, or ultimate success, yet we will often receive it provided it is given by those who by their courage and cheeriness make us feel that they are sure of both of our good intentions and in our final victory.

4. It is the trusting side. It alone really honors God and con-fides in his care over His children.
It leads to Heaven for it is Heaven begun.

"There's a bright side, 'tis
the right side,

Try and find it.

There's a dark side, 'tis the wrong side,

Never mind it."

DEATH OF RESPECTED CITIZEN

Funeral Services Held at Church Under Odd Fellow Honors.

Last Saturday morning about 1 o'clock occurred the death of William B. Hoyt at his home on Main street after a week of illness. Mr. Hoyt had a severe attack of illness in the summer and had only recovered in a measure since that time but has been able to be up around and some days to attend to his business. The cause of his death was acute Bright's disease.

Mr. Hoyt was well and favorably known throughout the county as his business as a marble worker took him to all the towns, and his customers always found in him the man they could depend on to carry out any agreement he made them. He was a man of genial disposition, and always met his friends in a cordial manner. Was always willing and anxious to accommodate and help others, sometimes at great inconvenience to himself. Mr. Hoyt was considered a good workman and he carried on quite an extensive business.

He was the son of Bradbury and Clarinda Luce Hoyt of New Portland and was born there August 14, 1863. On October 5, 1889 he was married to Mabel McKenney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seward McKenney of this town. They lived at Strong four years he having learned his trade of J. M. Soule of that town, they then lived in Wilton for a year, moving to Phillips 19 years ago. Besides his immediate family the deceased leaves his father, two brothers and three sisters, viz. Messrs. Hovey and Calvin Hoyt of New Portland, Mr. Lucy Simmons of Fort Fairfield, Mrs. Dora Horn of Mr. Vernon, Mrs. Flora Clark of West Farmington and Mr. Charles Smith of Strong.

Four children have been born to them, Mrs. Howard Leavitt, Mrs. Clifford Cushman, Miss Freda Hoyt and Seward Hoyt.

The funeral services were held at the Union church on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. M. S. Hutchins officiating and under Odd-fellow honors, over forty members of Mount Saddleback lodge attending. The pall bearers were Messrs. A. D. Graffam, A. S. Beedy, C. E. Parker Nathaniel Toothaker. Undertaker Chandler had charge. Miss Florian Wheeler rendered two solos, accompanied by Mrs. J. Blaine Morrison. The interment was in Evengreen cemetery. The floral offerings were many and included the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Cronkhite, pinks; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Webber, daybreak pink; family, pillow with word husband and father; Colby Whittemore and family, pinks; Mrs. Lionel Allen, Mrs. Georgia Masterman, Miss Celia Whitney, daybreak pinks; Mr. and

BELIEVE DUCK HUNTER KILLED.

Adrift in the Housatonic River was picked up a small power boat with the stern seat smeared with blood. W. W. Bedell, aged 16, of Stratford, Conn., had left in the boat to go duck hunting. Both barrels of a shotgun in the boat were empty. The theory is that after the accidental shooting Bedell's body fell overboard.

FISH WITH FUR FOUND BY BUNKER.

Polar trout, the only fur-bearing fish known to natural history, is the latest contribution of the arctic regions to human knowledge if the report of John Bunker of Northwood Center, N. H., is to be accepted.

Bunker, who is a descendant of the Bunkers of Bunker Hill fame and locally known as the "Izaak Walton of New Hampshire," arrived in Boston recently via Halifax from a two months' camping and exploring trip in Greenland.

When his boxes of specimens and curios arrive, he says, he will be able to show photographs and preserved skins of the strange fish, which for want of a scientific name he has called a polar trout. If he bears out his contentions, one may no longer speak consistently of the "finny tribe." The polar trout is not finny; it is furry.

This peculiar denizen of the polar ponds and rivers resembles a square-tail trout in shape and gameness, according to the discoverer, and reaches 10 to 15 pounds in weight. The skin on the head, belly and tail is scaleless like that of a trout, but a fine brownish fur resembling most nearly the texture of moleskin covers the back and the upper two-thirds of the sides. This so-called fur is slightly spotted with white as is a young seal in the spring. Bunker says this fact first led him to call the strange piscatorial curiosity a polar trout.

Bunker caught in all three specimens, two in a river and one in a small headwater pond about 200 miles north of Baffin Bay, where he made his start July 2.

MRS. McLEAN KILLS MOOSE.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean have just returned to Blackpoint Farm, Newport, R. I., from a shooting expedition to Canada.

Mrs. McLean was the more successful of the two, bringing home an 1800 pound moose, the largest ever brought out of Canada. Mrs. McLean killed two caribou. The moose was shot at what is known as the Penn camp, which is north of Quebec several miles.

MONSON NIMRODS HOPEFUL

Monson, Oct. 18.—Fewer hunters have been in the woods this week than was expected. It was not because there is a scarcity of men who have the necessary license or that their dogs, guns and ammunition were not in readiness, but the very bad weather kept them from enjoying their favorite pastime. On the arrival of the open season on birds and squirrel which came in Monday, a large number of men were in the woods early, only to be driven to cover by the rain. The same condition has persisted in continuing each day since so that they have been denied one good day all week. The rain and high wind, even if it has kept the hunters in this week, has denuded the trees of their foliage to such an extent that with the arrival of pleasant days, which should be numerous after such a long spell of lowering weather, the huntsmen will have the ideal conditions for the sport much earlier than in former years.

The few who did try their luck on the rainy days bagged considerable game. They report game of all kinds numerous, particularly rabbits and squirrels. The birds are plentiful but very wild. It will be only men with well-trained dogs who will get many birds this year. The coon hunters are continuing to have good luck, the weather being ideal for the sport just now. The leaves being wet hold the scent, and this makes it much easier for the dogs to follow and tree the game. Coons are reported captured by Monson huntsmen nearly every night. John McCarthy captured two Monday evening. Several coon suppers were held in town this week. Two large parties enjoyed coon suppers at the bungalow shop this week.

The rain did much good in one respect, it no doubt prevented one or more forest fires which at this time of year are usually reported. With so many men in the woods there are always among them the careless few who in their thoughtlessness will throw down a match, cigar or cigarette butt in the dry leaves, which will soon be whipped into a forest fire by the wind. The property damage in the country caused by the combination of a lighted cigar or cigarette butt, dry leaves and a brisk wind each year reaches enormous proportions. To their credit it should be said that few forest fires of this kind are started by the old hunters who are schooled in the business and are extremely careful of smoking materials in the woods.

The damage is usually caused by the young fellows who pay little heed to repeated warnings and persist in the careless handling of matches and cigarettes. One of the rules in the issuing of hunters' licenses should be the warning by the official of the great danger and loss caused by this kind of carelessness and a guarantee on the part of the applicant that smoking materials would be carefully handled. To the warning given the huntsman and others relative to the care necessary to prevent forest fires, a warning that is equally essential and important should be given at this time of year to property owners and tenants to see that the chimneys are properly cleaned before the cold weather arrives, thereby removing the one cause that calls out the fire department more times by far than all other reasons. If the public would only realize the fact that the cleaning of every chimney in town would reduce more than one-half the liability of buildings being burned during the next six months, a chimney cleaning campaign among the property owners would be started at once.

More than two-thirds of the calls that brought out the fire department last year was to chimney fires and practically every one of them was caused by the chimneys being filled with several years' collection of soot. The cleaning of the chimneys not only reduces to a great extent the liability of damaging fires and the cutting of the expense of fire fighting in two, but makes caring for the range and fur-trace much less burdensome.—Springfield Republican.

SAFETY FOR HUNTERS

Rules Suggested by Man Who Has Been Shot Five Times.

Noting the large number of fatalities or serious accidents every season as the result of the careless handling of firearms, Prof. L. L. Dyche, state fish and game warden of Kansas, who has himself been shot five times by careless hunters, has evolved a set of rules to be followed by those who carry guns. These rules are the result of forty years' experience as a hunter in the country's best game regions, and Professor Dyche guarantees that the man or boy who follows his rules carefully will never shoot a human being by mistake. Shorn of all explanatory details, these rules follow:—

Never point the muzzle of a gun whether the weapon is loaded or not loaded, toward any human being.

Never take a loaded gun into the house.

Never get into any kind of vehicle or boat with a loaded gun.

Never climb or crawl through a fence or jump a stream with a loaded gun in hand.

Always look carefully and think before you shoot.

When carrying a gun always keep the muzzle pointed upward into the air or downward to the ground.

Always hunt alone.

Always be sure that "the sights are on the gun" before you shoot.

Never stand around with a hand over the muzzle of a gun or lean on the gun with any part of the body.

Keep cartridges out of the gun except when in the field or wood where the shooting is to be done.

Do not borrow another person's gun or lend your own.

Some of these rules may appear useless to those who look upon the gun as a mere plaything, but the more experience a hunter has had the more certain he will be that a loaded gun is something with which one cannot afford to take a chance.

The modern gun, whether rifle or shotgun, can be loaded and unloaded so quickly that there is no excuse for a hunter carrying one loaded except in a locality where he momentarily expects to see game.

The more experience a hunter has had the more readily he will recognize the dangers that are present when the woods are full of men and boys who deliberately ignore all precautions against accidents. In a locality like the deer and moose hunting region of Maine, for example, there is danger enough from unavoidable accidents, like being hit by a stray bullet from a big powered rifle, etc., to make it worth while to take care to eliminate all that are of an avoidable nature, and the more a man hunts the more certain he is that it is much better to be safe than sorry, and that no amount of afterthought can compensate for lack of forethought.

Rube Marquard of Giants.

The return to form of Rube Marquard has been highly pleasing to the baseball fans of the metropolis. Rube has done fine work for the Giants this season and has made himself solid once more with the followers of the Giants. Last season he hung up a record of 19 consecutive games won in the early part of the year. After that he struck a big slump and lost almost as many games as he had won in the earlier part of the campaign.

During the world's series Rube did effective work in the box. Much speculation was indulged in this year as to whether or not he would be of much assistance to the Giants in their pennant fight. At the start of this season Rube did not show anything wonderful, but as the season wore on he has gradually struck his stride and has been a big factor in keeping the Giants at the top in the National league race.

WELLS AND PARKER EACH GET DEER

Weston Parker and Ernest Wells were fortunate enough to get a fine buck and doe last Saturday afternoon and the way of getting the doe, at least, is worth the telling.

The afternoon was rainy and Mr. Wells went to the mill in Avon for a load of lumber, while Mr. Parker took his shotgun and dog, "Booker," and went to look for rabbits. He was no very successful, however, and along about 3 o'clock he decided to come home. Just then what should come into view but a couple of deer strolling along in the most unconcerned way. Which was the more surprised, the deer or Parker, is difficult to say, but while the deer dashed off in one direction, Mr. Parker went the other. Rushing to the house he left dog and shotgun and grabbing his 30-30 he hurried back and took the track, which was not hard to follow. He proceeded cautiously, as he did not wish to alarm them any more, and in fact they did not seem to be very wild owing, he supposes, to its being early in the season and not being hunted much.

At first the tracks showed they were running, but soon they became a walk again, with an occasional stop to browse. Straight up to the little ice pond on the farm known as the Fairbanks place, went the two deer. This pond is a favorite place for deer and probably these two were natives of this location. Then a peculiar thing happened. The buck was either tired or sleepy, probably having been out the night before, for he laid down to take a rest or a snooze, while the industrious "female of the species," kept on getting her supper. In the meantime Weston was creeping along on the unsuspecting buck and was within 60 rods of him before the buck got the scent or sound of the man. He sprang to his feet but alas! too late. Up went Parker's faithful rifle and three shots rang out in quick succession, one at least being fatal, for he fell dead.

After bleeding the buck, Parker decided he would not try to drag his game home but would get the horses and come back for him. So he hiked homeward with a broad grin on. At the house he met Ernest Wells just driving in. When he told him about his good luck Ernest turned green with envy. "Do you suppose that doe is hanging around there anywhere?" he asked.

"Oh, yes!" said Weston. "They always come back to see what has happened. They are just like a woman, full of curiosity."

"Well," said Ernest, "you just let me take that rifle of yours and I'm going up to get the doe."

So Ernest took the rifle and went on ahead, Weston following with the team. He went up till he got near the pond when he sat down and kept still for a short time. Soon he heard a little crash in the bushes and peering through he saw the form of something, but held his rifle until he was sure it was a deer. Soon she swung around side to and then Ernest waited no longer, for should she turn a little more she would have gotten his scent. He took aim and fired, hitting her in the shoulder. She fell and died almost without a struggle, the bullet penetrating the heart.

It was a triumphal procession that wended its way to the Parker farm and two pleased men were they with their two nice deer. The buck was a 2-years old, but the doe was much larger than her mate. Both were fat and juicy.

GOT BEAR DRUNK TO TRAP HIM

How a big bear that was rather tipsy from copious draughts of rum and molasses was captured with lariats in the wilds of Maine after a long struggle was described to a Post reporter yesterday by Dr. J. F. R. Biron of Amesbury, who was at one time city physician of that municipality.

Set Alcoholic Bait

Dr. Biron was seen at the Hotel Oxford, where he was resting en route for his home. He did not have the skin of the bear with him, for that part of the bear's anatomy was right where nature placed it—on the animal's back. As a matter of fact the bear became quite a camp favorite at Saddleback Lake before Dr. Biron left the woods for home. But let him tell the story.

"We had discovered that a good-sized bear was about the camps frequently at night," said the doctor. "At first we thought that we would lay for Bruin and shoot him in cold blood. Then one member of the party brought to mind the fact that bears, even State of Maine animals, are inordinately fond of booze, especially rum.

"We mized up a dose of rum with a goodly portion of molasses. The stuff was placed in a pan and set where the bear could not help finding it during the night.

"The next morning, as soon as it was daylight, we started on a hunt for Mr. Bruin, and when I saw that bear I had to laugh. His eyes were red and he was eagerly lapping water from a spring. If it is possible for a bear to look bedraggled that bear looked the part.

Bruin Worse for Wear

"Although the bear was somewhat the worse for wear and lurching slightly as he walked, it was apparent that we would have our hands full in bringing him to camp, even after he was roped.

"A lucky cast of one of the 'ropes' about the animal's neck caused a growl and a display of fine looking teeth. The next instant another rope settled about the bear's neck, and with two husky guides hanging on for dear life, we had what looked like an easy capture. But we were reckoning without our host, for Mister Bear started through the woods at a speed that was surprising, the two guides bobbing along in his wake like kedge anchors. Every now and then they would try and snub the ropes on trees, but as time was limited they didn't have the opportunity to make good and fast.

"In the meantime I was running along, trying to get my work in as a rope artist. Finally I succeeded, and with another rope about his hind leg we landed Bruin on his back, where he struggled hard, but with no success.

"Believe me, it was a bit of work to get that bear to camp. We finally succeeded by tying him up in good shape and making what woodsmen call a 'dragsled' of limbs.

"When I left camp the bear was tame enough to eat from the hand. And, strange to say, he learned no good lesson from his rum jag, for the last thing I saw as I got on the buckboard, homeward-bound, was that bear lapping up some rum and molasses that a thoughtful guest had provided. And, worst of all, he seemed to be enjoying it."—Boston Post.

We wonder if the above mentioned bear is one and the same that was mentioned in the issue of Maine Woods of October 16, in the Saddleback Lake camps, which was being fed on rum and molasses.

PRAISES KNOWLES AND POST

The Rev. Chauncey J. Hawkins addressed the congregation of the First Congregational Church, Jamaica Plain, recently on the subject of "Joe Knowles—Was He Honest?"

No Cause for Distrust

"Mr. Knowles has had to suffer from general scepticism," said Mr. Hawkins. "A man who tries to perform an honest experiment has much of the effect disturbed by those people who have no reason for disbelieving. What he did was simple. Mr. Knowles himself claims that there was nothing wonderful in what he did, but the conception of the idea was probably the most wonderful part of it.

"Any man who knows wood life could go out in the forests of our northern sections and live during the months of August and September. Every Boy Scout knows how to build a fire without the aid of matches, every trapper knows how to catch a bear without the aid of a steel trap, every boy in the backwoods home knows how to catch trout from brooks without the aid of hooks.

"Why there should be such universal mistrust concerning what Mr. Knowles did seems incredible to men who know wood life. If Mr. Knowles was not honest, it was nothing to his credit, for he might have performed the experiment without great hardship. He is to be congratulated upon his conception of the idea and in carrying it out he has done a great service to his fellow men.

Most Difficult Part

"The most difficult thing was staying for two months without companionship. That is the real hardship that people seem to think so little of, to be for two months where you could see no human face, hear no human voice, was a thing to tempt the spirit of the strongest man. It is no wonder that Knowles was tempted to turn back and seek human companionship.

"I am inclined to think that the best part of the thing was not done by Knowles, but by the Boston Post. During August and part of September people suffering from the heat, when thousands were at places of toil in stifling rooms, the Post brought a voice from the woods and gave them an insight into wild life. It helped to create in thousands of people an interest in nature study, who up to this time had been indifferent to the whole subject. More people will love the hills and will seek the woods for vacations than ever before because of what the Post has done for them. Every genuine lover of nature, every person interested in the promotion of nature study, must be grateful to the Post for what it has done."

AN ARGENTINE CRACK SHOT

Argentina, a country with only half the population of New York State alone, has twice furnished the winners of the Pan-American Rifle Championship and only a few weeks ago at Camp Perry, Ohio, was the chief contender against the United States for the long range rifle championship of the world, losing the match by but one point.

In such company Gregoria Pereira received the training which enabled him to make two world's records at the great international meet. Shooting for Argentine, in the Expert Rifle-men's match, Senor Pereira, using Remington-UMC ammunition in an army rifle, scored 98 out of a possible 100 points at 300 metres—nearly 1,000 feet—from prone position. Again in the Individual International Army Rifle Match, the Argentine marksman, using the same ammunition and rifle, made 156 out of a possible 200. Both of these scores are world's records that will undoubtedly stand for a long period.

Speaking of the work of Pereira and of his other men at Camp Perry, Captain Juan Gallegos, of Buenos Aires, who was in charge of the Argentine team said: "Until a few years ago target practice was entirely unknown in the Argentine. It was the individual privilege of the wealthy to perfect themselves in the use of the pistol—never the weapon of war. We had always intrusted everything to our innate courage for a rally to the ranks of the army in the days of great crises. But we found ourselves at a great disadvantage in war because the large majority of us had never used a rifle. We saw that a tremendous risk was being run and we sought for means to avert it. It was not possible to improvise a standing army so we set about to convert the whole people into an armed force. We formed the Tiro Nacional—the institution which sent our team here to compete against the world. Gradually we have established rifle ranges ("stands") in each town throughout our country where our young men may practice. The term of compulsory service in our army and navy diminishes in proportion to the skill developed at these ranges. The benefit which this system has produced in our country is great. The person who learns to master his nerves, subjecting all to his will, even submitting his feelings to a rigorous discipline, as the marksman must do, improves and tempers his moral fibre. Marksmanship has become a national passion with us. Today it welds our citizens into one patriotic body. Such is the esteem which the Argentines have for their rifle clubs which are national social institutions in the fullest sense of the word. Does this explain why our boys have done passably well up here?"

Is there a lesson here for citizens of the world's largest republic?

NOVEL HUNTING LAWS

New laws directly affecting the hunter on the conditions under which game may be hunted contain some novel features.

Ohio and Pennsylvania now require a licensee to wear a badge conspicuously exposed, bearing the number of his hunting license. In order to minimize shooting accidents Manitoba requires hunters to wear a white coat or sweater and cap, and Saskatchewan insists that those who hunt big game must wear a complete outer suit and cap of white. The latter province has recently made the penalty for accidentally shooting a person a fine ranging from $500 to $1000, or imprisonment for six months, and suspension for further license privilege for ten years.

To the present list of six states prohibiting the use of silencers—namely, Maine, New Jersey, North Dakota, Washington, Mississippi and Louisiana—are now added Minnesota and Wyoming. Connecticut has provided that any hunters who shall injure a fence or let down a bar without replacing it shall forfeit his hunting license and the privilege for two years. Connecticut, Pennsylvania and British Columbia require license applicants under sixteen years of age to bring the written consent of parent or guardian. Vermont has a similar restriction for those under fifteen, and Oregon does not permit children under fourteen years old to hunt except on the premises of their parents, relatives and guardians.—New York Times.

CREW COMMITS HARA-KIRI

Six Japanese Sailors on British Bark Helpmate End Lives When Mikado Dies.

Rehavana, Java.—The British bark Helpmate, Captain Steers, arrived here from the north Borneo coast manned by an island crew of natives picked up by the skipper after his former crew, six Japanese, had committed hara-kiri upon the deck of the vessel after learning of the death and burial of the mikado.

Captain Steers says that he was proceeding from Pelori island to Zamara on the Borneo coast to complete his cargo of copra when he was hailed by the British barkentine Clyde Town, from the master of which he received a number of items of news, among them being the information of the Japanese emperor's death and burial.

Without realizing what it might mean, Captain Steers gave the tidings to the men, and immediately they were as stricken, raving about the ship and engaging in loud lamentations. When he remonstrated with them for allowing the bark to drift aimlessly they threatened his life and he said no more to them until he saw them gathered on the deck, each with a knife in his hand and stomach bared. The captain thereupon realized what was about to happen and came forth from his cabin with a repeating rifle, but the men paid no heed to him and upon a signal each killed himself.

The Helpmate, the captain alone alive on board, drifted helplessly, but finally made Hadgona bay without serious injury; and here Captain Steers succeeded, after some days, in prevailing upon enough natives to man his ship and sail it to this port.

Mortality Among Young Ducks.

The cause of mortality among young ducks may be traced to overheat, dampness, getting wet, lack of grit, grey head lice, sudden showers, delayed hatches, exposure to sun, lack of fresh water, drinking vessels too shallow, breeding stock out of condition.

Chaff Litter in Henhouse.

The litter of chaff, etc., which accumulates in the barn should be put in the henhouse. The hens will scratch it over and obtain seeds and pieces of clover that will do them lots of good.

THE ANIMAL CONVENTION

The following poem appeared in the Boston Post of recent date in the "All Sorts" column by Newton Newkirk:

Joseph and His Brethren

They express themselves in convention assembled after the departure from their midst of Joseph Knowles, the "Primitive Man."

THE BULL MOOSE:

"My horns spread sixty inches, plus—I'm fiercer than I look!
Good thing he didn't cross my path—
That saved him from the hook."

THE DEER:

"When I met that man face to face,
He scared me pale, you bet!
I beat it forty miles an hour—
I should be running yet!"

THE BEAR:

"I am a mournful widow now—
To tears I oft do melt;
When Joe left here he wore a shirt
Made from my husband's pelt!"

THE WILD CAT:

"I got just one good look at him—
'Twas in the early dawn;
I gave a screech and ran twelve miles!
Gee whizz, I'm glad he's gone!"

THE BEAVER:

"The skin I wear keeps me quite warm!
I'd miss it much, and so
While he was living in our midst
I kept my eye on Joe."

THE SPRUCE PARTRIDGE:

"I'm full of years and old and tough,
Which same Joe Knowles well knew;
But sons and daughters all, alas!
Have vanished in the stew!"

THE BROOK TROUT:

"I'm wise to hooks with strings attached—
I've heard the "Don't" commands;
But what's a trout to do when this Man fishes with his hands?"

THE RED SQUIRREL:

"He didn't get my willie goat,
And every time we met
I told him what I thought of him
In language straight, you bet!"

THE MOOSE BIRD:

"Come back, old pal—I miss you more Than I can ever say;
While you were here I always swiped
From you three squanes per day."

THE WOOD MOUSE:

"You didn't notice me at all,
But I was close, and—gee!
One day when I was half asleep
You nearly stepped on me!"

THE BLACK FLY:

"Meal ticket, Oh, I miss you so!
I miss you day and night;
While you were here you furnished me
With many a luscious bite."

BRITISH GROUSE HUNTERS

The grouse hunting season in Britain opens on Aug. 12. On that day every Englishman and every Scot who makes any pretension to a standing in society goes gunning for two weeks at least. Nothing is allowed to stand in the way of this annual diversion. For a week or two preceding this out-going business is of little consequence. Everything to receive any attention at all must relate in some way to guns and dogs. A year or so ago a New York man had occasion to go to London to meet a British financier to put the finishing touches to a matured business proposition. He arrived a couple of days before the 12th of August. The financier was not in his place of business. "No," said his chief clerk; "he has gone for the grouse shoot. He will not talk business with any one. I do not think he will see you at all, sir."

"But," said the New Yorker, "I have crossed the Atlantic for no other purpose than to see him. This business will not take more than half an hour of his time, and then I'm off for home again."

"I should advise against your going to his home, sir. He would not receive anybody at this time. He will attend to no business."

But the New Yorker thought differently. He went to the country home of the financier. A burly butler met him at the door. To him the New Yorker gave his card. It was promptly returned to him.

"The master," said the butler, "will see no one. He sets out for the grouse shooting tomorrow. He says to call, please, in a fortnight."

And the New Yorker was compelled to remain two weeks longer until the Englishman returned from his hunt, when the business was finished in twenty minutes.

INSPECTS HATCHERIES

Walter I. Neal of the Fish and Game commission has just returned from an inspection trip in the north east part of the state, where he visited the Mosquito Fish Hatchery, the Moosehead hatchery, and the Squaw Brook Hatchery. He reports that the work of distributing the fish in the Moosehead and Squaw Brook hatcheries, is practically completed.

At the Moosehead hatchery, Mr. Neal saw that a number of repairs were necessary, and these will be attended to immediately. These can be made at a very little expense, and when finished will make this hatchery one of the finest in the state.

On the trip he consulted with a number of the wardens of the state. Upon his arrival at Greenville he found Chief Warden Howard Wood closing up the third case that day for violations of the law. In all cases the men settled, paying fines and costs.

STANLEY PLACES FISH IN WEARY POND.

John F. Stanley, superintendent of the Lake Auburn fish hatchery, was in the city, Tuesday, says the Kennebec Journal, with 2000 6-month old salmon which are to be placed in Weary pond, Whitefield. Mr. Stanley stated that the hatch of fish this season had been very good, fully 85 per cent of the eggs hatching. In all 450,000 fish have been hatched this season at the hatchery and about one-half of this number have been distributed. The fish are fed twice a day on ground liver.

ARTIST KNOWLES NOT SO VERY WONDERFUL.

Joseph Knowles, the Boston artist who went naked into the Maine woods two months ago for the purpose of proving that he could live as did primitive man, has returned to civilization, says the Waterville Sentinel.

If the experiences of the Boston man are to be looked upon in the light in which they are regarded by his admirers, he has accomplished something very remarkable. On the other hand, if they are to be studied with reference to what other men of to-day have accomplished in battling with the forces of nature, they sink into insignificance. Knowles went into the woods abounding with fish and game at a season of the year when the weather was not severe. He managed to kill a bear, to catch fish and small game and to start a fire. He made good in the sense that he showed he could live, as did the cave dweller.

But Mr. Knowles did nothing to compare with the hardihood and heroism of the men who have braved the perils of the Arctic and Antarctic. Archdeacon Stuck who climbed Mt. McKinley faced dangers and hardships much greater than those encountered by our artist friend. The ingenuity displayed by Knowles in providing himself with food and clothing has been in many cases exceeded by the ingenuity displayed by shipwrecked sailors who have managed to sustain life in barren regions and to find their way back to civilization.

All this does not mean that the experiment tried by Mr. Knowles was not interesting. It made wood newspapers "copy" but it was not, after all, a very wonderful achievement. Not half so wonderful as it would have been could one of the cave men have returned

COL. DOOLEY MAY RESIGN.

It is rumored among military men that the resignation of Adj. Gen. Dill is but the first in the changes which will take place in the staff of Gov. Haines within the next few months. The report is that Col. John J. Dooley of Portland, who has been chief of ordnance of the Maine national guard since April, 1909, when he succeeded Gen. Dill, will soon ask to be retired from the service as he is to leave the state. Col. Dooley, who is one of the authorities on rifle shooting and who was selected to explain the mechanism of the American military rifle to the king of Denmark at the Olympian games, last year, is in charge of the military division of the United States Cartridge Co., Boston, the same concern for which Gen. Dill is to become assistant sales manager. His duties keep him out of the state most of the time and it is understood he is to remove to Boston, which will be much more convenient for him. This would necessitate his resignation from the service in Maine.

LIBERATED 3000 TROUT

Members of the Cumberland County Angling Association went out recently and liberated 3,000 trout in three different brooks in Cumberland County.

START WORK ON NEW ROAD IN MAINE WOODS.

The upper portion of Moosehead Lake is to be made more accessible to tourists and sportsmen. At present automobiles and carriages can get only as far as Greenville, at the foot of the lake, and the twenty-mile stretch to Kineo must be made by boat. Last week engineers began a survey for a road which will run from Kineo to a point on the road connecting Skowhegan with the Canadian border, the roads joining half-way between Lake Parlin and the West Forks of the Kennebec River. The new road, which will be about 25 miles long, will run through the forest for the entire distance.

SHOT COONS ILLEGALLY

Fremont Trafton of Alfred was arraigned before Judge John B. Tucker in the Sanford court on Wednesday on the charge of illegally killing raccoons. Trafton paid the fine and was released.

WANTS TO CORRECT ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION

To the Editor of Maine Woods:
Newburgh, N. Y., October 16.
Copies of several different papers have reached me having an article to the effect that I was about to start a summer colony at Portland pond. The facts of the case are as follows: Last spring I purchased the property of L. J. Hackitt and A. P. Sweet, consisting of the building and some five hundred acres of land, and having a frontage on the pond of some two and a half miles.
I have sold half a mile of the shore front to a friend, Mr. Gustav Stickley, editor of The Craftsman Magazine, and it is his intention to build a summer home for his family in the near future.

Other than this the property is for our own private use as a summer home, and as long as we need it for this purpose there will be no land for sale, or other development than such improvements as we may make from time to time for our own needs.

The summer colony item has been copied in some of our local papers, and it keeps me busy explaining that it is not so. If you will help me to correct the erroneous impression that I am now abroad, I will greatly appreciate the courtesy. Meanwhile, I am very truly yours,

DEGREES WORKED BY GRANGE

Herman Corbett of Farmington to be Present November 8.

Saturday afternoon, October 25, the regular meeting of North Franklin Grange was well attended. The first and second degrees were worked on a class of three: Lois Hutchins, Melvin Hutchins and Norman Butler. At the next meeting which will be held Saturday afternoon, November 8, the third and fourth degrees will be worked, followed by a tasting party.

Brother Herman Corbett of Farmington Grange has been invited to do the work. Let every member make a special effort to be present, as Brother Corbett is very thorough in Grange work and we are always glad to have him with us.

If any member holding Grange singing books will see that they are in the hall November 8, it will confer a great favor on our chorister, as only two could be found at our last meeting.

THE ROYAL MONTH AND THE ROYAL DISEASE.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative,—consumption.

R. H. Preble will pay back your money if Hamilton's Old English Black Oil fails to cure all kinds of flesh wounds, sprains, stiff joints, inflammation of all kinds, on man or beast. It is the most healing preparation known to the medicine world to-day. Phillips people are coming in every day inquiring if it really is true that we will sell Hamilton's Old English Black Oil with the understanding that it will do all that is claimed of it or pay back the money." The pains were in my back and limbs and sometimes I thought I could not endure them. The secretions from my kidneys were in bad shape. I tried many ways to get relief, but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Cragin's Drug store (now Preble's Drug store) and began using them. It did not take them long to rid me of the trouble."

THE GROCER PHILLIPS, ME.

BACK TO SCHOOL.

The children are trudging the time worn path, just as other children have done for generations. But the modern children should have watches. Twice a day they should be on time but they will waste time if they have to guess. One of the great lessons of life is to learn to spend time carefully. Give the child a watch—it will teach punctuality while the mind is still plastic. Boys' watches, $1.00, $2.00 and $5.00. Girls' watches $2.00 and up. Good enough for grown-ups at that.
