THE SMALL TOWN

We have always thought that the person who lived in a small town got a great deal more out of life than those living in a city, and still think so, and in support of our many arguments for enjoying life where one is known intimately in the community, we are publishing in this issue an article which appeared in the American Magazine written by W. O. Saunders, editor of "The Independent," on "What I Like About a Small Town," which contains the opinions of a man who is in a position to see how much more there is to life spent in a small town than in a city, and yet if everyone lived in a "small town" there would not be any.

We have often heard many criticisms of life in Aroostook in the winter and the remark in the paragraph above would also apply to life in Aroostook in winter. It has been proven by statistics that with good health a person is much better in the long run to have the variation of the seasons that we have here than to live in a warm climate the year round, but when a person reaches an age when the vitality is lowered or is afflicted with some ailment that will not withstand the cool climate of an Aroostook winter, it prolongs life in many instances to move to a warm climate during the winter months.

Here in Aroostook we are blessed with many things or perhaps it might be better expressed by saying that we are not worried by many things that other sections are troubled with. Burglaries of a professional nature seldom happen, thugs do not frequent Aroostook, night prowlers are seldom seen and one can go to bed at night and even leave their windows and doors unlocked and yet the interiors are not disturbed, women and children are safe to travel on our streets any time during the day or night, the town is healthy and there is very little poverty and the people on the whole are contented and happy. What more can one ask for?

A GOOD INVESTMENT

"Why not have the ladies of each town in Aroostook county to solicit funds for the use of the Association in fighting the great white plague instead of paying the expenses of traveling and hotel bills of a lady from Bath?" asks "subscriber" in The Aroostook Republican. This is a reasonable question surely, only no money is being paid for such purpose to "a lady from Bath," but to one from Bar Harbor, although of course the difference is not material. Yes, this would be a fine idea—if only it could be done with good results, but it is impossible. If the matter was approached in the way that "subscriber" suggests, we doubt if five per cent of the money that Mrs. McGouldrick has succeeded in collecting would have been brought in by this time. This "having" somebody do something for nothing sounds very easy and practical when talked about, but when the working out of the plan comes along the results show something altogether different. F. F. Review.

Theoretically having ladies of each street in a town do the work of soliciting may be all right, but it does not work out and as far as the soliciting for the Anti-Tuberculosis Association is concerned, there was more money raised by Mrs. McGouldrick from Bar Harbor who did the work than ever before and it cost the association very much less. If one knew the particulars of Mrs. McGouldrick's work when she was in Aroostook they would understand what it meant. In one day she started out from Houlton on the morning train, went to Oakfield where she traveled from house to house in a wet snowy storm in Smyrna Mills and Oakfield and did not have her supper until 8 o'clock that night and then it was a box lunch, not only that, but while she received a small weekly wage for her services and expenses, there were lots of small expenses each day that were never put into her expense account as she felt as though she wished to get all that she could for the organization that she was working for, so that every cent that was paid for her services was well expended and she did work that no other woman or even a man would do for money, and it would not be expected that a person would do it for nothing. The Association should be congratulated upon the good judgment in securing the services of such an efficient worker.

NOT SO BAD A PLACE

New England is not so bad a place for farming, after all. To make sure of this Secretary Styles of the New Hampshire Farm Bureau Federation has been making a tour of the country and has come to the conclusion that the New England farmers are better off than most of their competitors. He found one farmer in the West who told him that in 1919 he had an offer of $60,000 for his farm, had $22,000 in the bank and his farm well stocked. Today he has no money in the bank and a $35,000 mortgage on the farm which he doubts if would sell for the amount of the mortgage. He found a tenant farmer in Texas who one year ago had practically nothing, but was able to get assistance though he is now $1700 worse off than nothing. This he found to be representative of conditions there. In New England outside the dairy business and potato growing, which have been hard-hit, he finds the condition of the farmers superior to that of the West and South.

Why shouldn't they be better off? They are within easy access to the best markets in all the world; their competitors of the West and South are handicapped by the high freight rates. We have a good soil here in New England if it is properly attended to. We have facilities for learning how best to do that if we will but take advantage of them. The conditions are unfavorable right now when the farmer isn't able to secure prices for his products proportionate to those received in most other lines of endeavor. But those whose vision extends beyond their noses realize such conditions cannot always endure. When men who have made success of their business affairs and are acquainted with agricultural conditions throughout the country, men like Mr. Park of the Jefferson Farms enterprise, see opportunities and demonstrate the faith that is in them it is time for the rest of us to wase up; to ask ourselves whether we have really learned the advantages of our soil, if we understand ways and means for getting the most out of it. We are slowly cooperating to get the products of our farms more directly and cheaply to the consumer, altogether too slowly. This is something greatly needed. Are we doing all we can to help it along? This winter season is the fallow season for our fields but ought not to be for our brains.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE CONTROLLING FACTOR IN OUR CIVILIZATION

If we were to examine carefully into the causes of the present lax moral and spiritual situation we would undoubtedly find that it roots largely in a certain changed attitude on the part of women. From a desire to be popular or some similar motive, a dangerously large number of women have ceased setting a higher level for men to attain, and have themselves come down to the lower masculine level. It is a repetition of the old formula: "The woman gave me of the tree, and I did eat," but it is true, nevertheless. It is more than an accusation against the woman. It is also a confession of weakness on the part of the man.

Whether or not it is to man's credit he is usually a reflection of the moral and spiritual quality of the womanhood of his time. He is never much more than the woman of his acquaintance insist that he shall be. He is never much less than they are willing for him to be.

The most wonderful character in our civilization always has been the good woman—the wife, mother, or friend, who helps the men of her acquaintance or family to fight the battle bravely, who makes of her home a temple of worship and service, and who rears her children for the service of God and humanity.

Through the long, slow process of moral and spiritual progress stretching through the ages we have discovered the compelling factor in our upward growth. Queenly and saintly womanhood was steadily and persistently pulling the men of the period up to its own level of thought, purpose and ideal. It must be said to the credit of masculinity that it responded well.

The solution of the problem of the present demands the continuance of the process. Of late we have slipped downward a little, but the moral and spiritual power of a noble womanhood can right things again. If womanhood conforms to the spirit of the times we are lost. If it transforms it can save the world. By Clarence E. Flynn

SAFE BET THAT THAT

COOPERATION WILL WIN OUT

It is a pretty safe bet, as bets go, that Aroostook will go over the top reasonably early in signing up on the Cooperative Marketing plan. Mapleton has pretty nearly gone over the top, and Mapleton, though small, is a pretty good barometer of Aroostook public sentiment. Patten, outside the county limits, but similarly circumstanced to Aroostook, has done it and other towns are scrambling toward the top. The reason why one can safely bet on the plan winning, is that in the first place it seems to be strongly endorsed by very high authorities in the financial world, as the only thing for the Aroostook farmer to do, and the second is, as far as our own local situation is concerned, it will soon go faster and faster toward a winning finish by its own momentum. The prominent farmers in every district are signing up, and with these leaders enlisted in the cause it is safe to prophesy success of the movement.

Personally, the writer believes that it is the proper thing to do, and about the only thing in sight that can put Aroostook on a sound and stable economic basis.

As regards the financial features of the proposition, our people will hear this pretty ably expounded when Judge Bingham, a millionaire backer of Kentucky cooperation, gets here. It is proper, however, to keep signing up as rapidly as possible, just to show Judge Bingham that Aroostook is all right on the cooperative issue, but his visit is very welcome, and will be helpful, because it will clarify the situation by his explanation of a feature of the plan which is bothering many farmers and keeping them in a condition of suspense. EVERY GOOD CITIZEN'S JOB

At last the President of the United States and Governors of several of the States have met and talked over the prohibition situation and expect to have another meeting in the near future.

Really it is time for something of the sort. Not that it brings out any particularly new and striking features or advances novel phases of the problem under consideration. There is, however, one little not on the meeting seemingly worthy of consideration if we would attach importance to the claims of the "wets"; none of the Governors, whatever might be their views respecting the desirability of the law, cared to recommend laxity in enforcement. No one disputed that the law should be obeyed, though the Governor of Maryland would have the amendment recommended to the States. A majority of those present favored rigorous penalties for violation of the law. Weak spots in the Federal enforcement were pointed out; the need of more money was emphasized; Governor Cox of Massachusetts, possibly mindful of the reported serving of whiskey in nursing bottles at a banquet at his State's road builders, suggested "dollar-a-year" men volunteering to give their services to enforcement, that it would be well to call for volunteers and that great care should be exercised in selecting the enforcement agents.

So much for advice, or for part of the advice. Recently another adviser declared that the clergyman of the land, they having been instrumental in bringing about prohibition should see that it is enforced. And while the advice is being so freely handed out how would this do? Violating the law being a crime, why should not every agency whose duty it is to apprehend criminals, every agency which assumes to uphold law and order, every good citizen, regard it a personal obligation to enforce the prohibitory as well as the other laws? We've all got something mighty to be ashamed of if we don't aid in maintaining respect for the laws of the land. Kennebec Journal.

BEST WAY TO MEET

THE SITUATION

It is not to be denied that Aroostook is pretty hard up under the present conditions of a short spud crop, with potatoes everywhere a drug in the market. How it got into such straits it is not very much to the present purpose to investigate, for the reason that if the various contributing causes could be traced to their sources and their relative contribution to the existing crisis settled, it would do little or nothing to help the county onto its feet again.

The question is, how is Aroostook going to get back to normal, and what is the best course to take to get it back there with the least loss and damage to individuals and to the county as a whole?

The first obvious thing for all concerned, especially creditors with claims in the county, is to bear in mind that there is nothing to be gained by adopting harsh and compulsory measures to enforce collections, especially in the case of honest and willing debtors who, through circumstances beyond their control, find themselves unable to liquidate their indebtedness. Any disposition shown to make the few cases of harsh collection methods which have lately occurred, the policy of creditors generally, might very possibly invite a veritable avalanche of insolvency.

The situation is very much like that of a crowd which has to make its exit from a burning building. It is best and most quickly made, the fewest casualties are sustained, and there is a minimum of damage when the exit is made without crowding, confusion and panic, and without the strong trying to secure their own immediate selfish ends by trampling under foot those in the way.

Generally, when people are in debt and unable to make immediate payment, by far the best results accrue to creditors by refraining from such compulsory courses as the law gives them. No benefit to any class or any community was ever accomplished by converting a discouraged debtor into a desperate seeker for escape through the avenue of insolvency. That is liquidation, to be sure, and it was tried on a wholesale scale in Aroostook from 1895 to 1900. At that time thousands of debtors liquidated at the cost of their self-respect and honor, and no one was the gainer except the lawyers, who did a profitable business steering people through insolvency. There does not at the present time seem to be very much of a disposition on the part of debtors to liquidate in insolvency courts. There does, however, seem to be some disposition, especially on the part of creditors, who have harvested millions of dollars profit from business in Aroostook, to resort to harsh measures. This class had better refrain, for it will get its money no sooner, and in no larger percentage by a policy of coercion than by leniency and moderation, and it stands a chance of turning a profitable future business field into a poor one.

The best way is for all hands to maintain a spirit of optimism, and to play the game on both sides fairly and honorably, for if things are managed right, Aroostook has many resources of recuperation that it will surprise one to see how it will emerge from the present depression once it gets headed in the right direction.—Presque Isle Star-Herald.

Rev. T. B. Hatt was called to Bangor this week to attend the funeral of Miss Mildred Miller, a former parishioner and while away he has visited his daughter at North Anson.

Dog lovers in this vicinity will be sorry to learn that the valuable dog that the Sprague Bros. of Grand Lake Stream showed here last fall fell through this ice and was drowned.

The dog was one of the most valuable ones in the state.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Coburn of this village celebrated the eightieth anniversary of their birthday on Friday, Dec. 22nd, the birthday of both coming on the same date, and Saturday, Dec. 30th, was the fifty-fourth anniversary of their wedding day.

A merry party of relatives and friends were guests at S. R. Crabtree's for a Christmas dinner. In the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Emerson and son Hal, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Crabtree and son Samuel, Mrs. Geneva Emerson, Mr. J. C. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Al. Drew, Mrs. Lenora Reed and Harold McElwin.

At the Baptist church a tree was held on Saturday evening for the children. There was a good attendance and exercises by the children were given under the direction of Luvie Porter. At the Congregational church the tree for the children was held at the close of Sunday school Sunday. There were no concerts held in either church.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy McKenzie of Barker Ridge entertained a party of relatives for Christmas dinner. In the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brown and daughter Rita and Eva, Misses Grace and Beryl Gerow, Mrs. Olive Hews and daughters Pauline and Irene, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lurvey.

On account of so many of the band members having been away through the fall, meetings for practice have not been held for some time, but they have been resumed again and it is hoped that the citizens will help in every way possible for it would be very much to be regretted if the band was obliged to disband after it has been so much enjoyed by every one and they have their uniforms and instruments and the town built the band stand.

It was a welcome sound to both men and women of this village when on Wednesday morning, Dec. 27, the mill of the Northern Wooden Ware Company blew the whistle to announce that work would again be resumed at the Mill. The Mill has been shut down for about six weeks and it is probable now that it will run without interruption all winter. During the shut down the Mill has been thoroughly repaired.

Perhaps one of the largest gatherings for Christmas day was held at B. C. Pettengill's. Those present being the Pettengill family, were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Donham Sr., Geo. H. Donham Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Donham and daughter Alice, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Donham and baby daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Bliss, Gordon Curry, Chester Chamberlain, Harold Dunphy, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kelso.

A picnic dinner was served from tables set up in the hall and after dinner the entire company were invited by friends to join them in a social dance at the Grange hall.

Miss Bernice Dow entertained Thursday night, Dec. 28, at the home of her mother Mrs. Lufia Dow, Shuman St., in honor of Fred E. Walker who has been their guest for the holidays.

Those present were: Madeline Campbell, Dorothy Caldwell, Wm. Alexander, Nellie Flynn, Waldo Flynn, Theodore and Carl Pettengill, Frank Paul and Hazel McGowan. One very amusing feature of the evening's entertainment was the making and dressing of dolls. Each guest was given a potato, three tracks, four wire hairpins, paper napkins and some mullage. The prize for making and dressing the best looking doll was won by Madeline Campbell and Waldo Flynn. Dainty refreshments of Welsh rabbit, crackers, cocoa and assorted cookies, nuts and candy were served.

Island Falls is still on the map and not so bad a place to live in after all. In spite of the alleged hard times the Christmas trade in the stores has been better than the average year and there probably was not a family in town who did not have some of the Christmas cheer. And all the money that has been spent in town has not been spent for Christmas presents either. J. H. Lurvey, tax collector, has in the last three weeks collected $1575.19 making a total of $28,714.07 of $36,107.89 committed to him for collection this year. The credit of this should not be given entirely to the tax collector but to the fact that we have in our town a large number of hard minded citizens who realize that the town has to have the money to meet the bills. It is to be regretted that there are a few in every town who do not plan to pay their taxes until obliged by law.

IS IT ANYBODY'S BUSINESS

Is it anybody's business
If a gentleman should choose
To wait upon a lady
If the lady doesn't refuse?
Or, to speak a little plainer
That the meaning all may know
Is it anybody's business
If a lady has a beau?

Is it anybody's business
But the lady's, if her beau
Rideth out with other ladies
And doesn't let her know?
Is it anybody's business
But the gentleman's, if she
Accepts another escort
Where he doesn't chance to be?

If a person's on the side walk,
Be he great or be he small;
Is it anybody's business
Where that person cares to call
Or, if you see a person
While he's calling anywhere,
Is it anybody's business
What his business may be there?

The substance of my query
Simply stated, would be this
Is it anybody's business
What another's business is?
If it is, or if it isn't,
I should really like to know.
For I'm certain if it isn't
There are some who make it so.

widow of the late Wm. Dakin at 8 days, age of 71 years, 3 months and 8 days.

Mrs. Dakin had been a great sufferer for the past five months but had borne her pain with great courage and patience. Mrs. Dakin was a woman who was devoted to her home and family, her greatest joy was to minister to the needs of her dear ones.

She was born in Amity, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Esterbrook, and was one of a family of fourteen children. Of this family there are left four sisters and four brothers, Mrs. Caroline Brown, Mrs. Irena Hunter, Mrs. Annie Roix, Mrs. Christine Leavitt, Leverett Esterbrook, Thos. Esterbrook, Benj. Esterbrook, all of Hodgdon, Geo. Esterbrook who resides in the West.

The daughters are Mrs. Therese Cuthbert of Amity, Mrs. Lucy Prescott, Mrs. Rose Markey, Misses Chriss and Dora Dakin and the son Leverett Dakin of this village. The family wish to take this opportunity to thank their friends and neighbors for all the many acts of kindness shown them during the sickness and at the time of the death of their mother.

MT. CHASE AND VICINITY
Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Crouse spent Christmas in Washburn with relatives. Carl and Frank Cunningham of Patten were visiting their sister, Mrs. E. O. Arbo recently.

Miss Dorothy Spooner of Hodgdon closed a very successful term of school in the Willett district Dec. 22.

Among the young people who arrived in town the last of the week for the holidays were Misses Opal Myrick, Edna Arbo, Beulah Bell, Arlene McDonald and Thelma Hatt.

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Willett have been quite sick with bad colds, also a young child of John Willett has had a severe attack of croup, but all are better at this writing.

This section was visited by a heavy snow storm which set in Thursday evening with a terrible wind and the cold was intense, so that no mail was received Friday and the roads are impassable until broken out.

Mrs. Gertie Steen is caring for the baby of her brother, Lehauna Porter, whose wife recently passed away leaving four little ones, the oldest 5 years and the youngest about 4 days old. Much sympathy is extended to him in his bereavement.

B. L. Myrick has just closed a very successful term of sixteen weeks of school in District No. 1. A Christmas tree was enjoyed the last day by the pupils, the drawing-name idea being carried out so that each child received a present and also a generous bag of candy, popcorn and peanuts which was enjoyed by each of them.

William Howes
This community was saddened early Sunday morning, Dec. 17, upon learning that Mr. William Howes had suddenly passed away. He had been in failing health for a number of years, so that his death was not wholly unexpected, yet it came as a shock to his family and friends. Mr. Howes was born in Ashland, Maine, the son of George and Almira Speed Howes and was 66 years old.

Surviving are a widow and five children, Mrs. J. A. McDonald, Mrs. John Young, Mrs. Orlando Carver, Willie and Edwin Howes.

Services were held Tuesday, Dec. 19, at 2 o'clock at the home, Rev. I. H. Lidstone officiating.

COMMUNICATION

Editor Houlton Times,

Sir:

In addition to the article which appears in this week's issue of your valuable paper, covering the excellent concert given on Friday last, at the Temple Theatre by the Houlton Musical Society and their assisting artists, please allow space for some facts about the organization itself.

The writer is in a position to know all the facts regarding the organization and work of this splendid society which is such a credit to the town.

The idea of forming such a society in Houlton was first conceived by Mr. B. E. Anderson, its business manager. In conversation with Mr. Anderson over a year ago, regarding the project, he expressed the opinion that if a suitable conductor could be secured its success was assured as he felt confident that enough singers could be interested whose reliability and social standing were of the best.

He wisely approached Mr. Archibald, "our own Bernard," who at once became an enthusiastic member and agreed to act as conductor. How well the management, conduction and work of the society has succeeded has been

To My Customers:

I wish to announce that on January 1st, 1923 I will go on a strictly cash basis. In doing this I will sell goods for less profit as there will be no losses and I will have the use of the capital that is now tied up in book accounts.

I sincerely hope none of my old customers will be offended by this change and will realize I can give better values for cash. Wishing you a Happy New Year, I remain fully attested by the excellent concerts given to the public.

The amount of work involved, especially on the part of Mr. Anderson, has been considerably more than the public may suppose. If a monetary value could be placed on the collective work of the society, it would run into quite large figures; but these gentlemen are apparently not so much interested in financial returns as in the helpful and uplifting influence that good music has in the community.

While attending the legislature Mr. Archibald's absence will be keenly felt, but it is understood that another efficient conductor is available during his absence. It is sincerely to be hoped that the society will take advantage of his services and that their activities for the good of the community will continue.

The deceased is the last of a large and much respected family that has resided within a few miles of Houlton for a great many years. He was well known and liked by many people in this section and his passing will be much regretted.

The services were held from St. Mary's Catholic church at two o'clock Tuesday, the Rev. P. M. Silke officiating. Burial was made at the new St. Mary's cemetery.

EMILY RUSSELL

It is with a deep sense of loss that the friends of Mrs. Emily Russell will receive the news of her death which occurred Thursday at the home of her son, Murray Russell on Green street.

Mrs. Russell was born in Upper Keswick, N. B. seventy-three years ago, and lived there for many years. Since coming to Houlton she has made a great number of friends as she was a woman who was respected and loved by all who knew her. She was a member of the Episcopal church and will be greatly missed in church circles as well as by her friends.

She is survived by one son, Murray Russell, two sisters, Mrs. Hannah Jones of Fredericton, and Mrs. John Brewer of Upper Keswick, also one brother, Kyle Brewer of Fredericton.

Funeral services were held at the Episcopal church Friday afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Steenstra officiating. Soles were given by Donald Dunn and John Houghton. Interment was made at Evergreen cemetery.

PRESQUE ISLE MAN WEDS

Mr. and Mrs. William Miliken of Presque Isle were in town Friday last calling on relatives and friends. Mr. Miliken introducing his wife whom few in this section had met.

The details are best expressed by the following from the Portland Express of Nov. 15, 1922.

"Allow me to present my husband," was the somewhat startling introduction given by Miss Pauline McLaughlin of Presque Isle, who is visiting her father, L. A. McLaughlin, Westbrook, when William L. Miliken of Presque Isle, a long time friend of the family called at the McLaughlin home.

Mrs. Miliken had been visiting her father for a few days and yesterday Mr. Miliken, being in this vicinity, called to see his respects to the family. With the introduction came the announcement that the young couple had been married secretly some four months ago and had kept the affair quiet until yesterday's propitious opportunity came to break the news.

Mr. and Mrs. Miliken are very well known in the vicinity of Presque Isle where Mr. Miliken is engaged in lumbering operations. He was in the army during the World War and has an excellent military record. The young couple will remain in Westbrook for a short visit before returning to their home in Presque Isle.

O. E. S.

The annual meeting of Fidelity Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was held at Masonic hall on Monday evening. A six o'clock supper was served and a good attendance was present notwithstanding the fact that there was a heavy downpour of rain throughout the day and evening making walking dangerous as well as unpleasant.

The reports of the various officers and committees were read showing this organization to be in a good financial standing. One candidate was initiated and the following officers were elected:

Annie McElroy, worthy matron; Geo. Newell, worthy patron; Susie Hamilton, associate matron; Helen Haskell, secretary; Mattie Clough, treasurer; Rena Chandler, conductress; Mrs. Samuel Parks, associate conductress; Mrs. Edith Donald, trustee for three years; Finance committee: James Archibald, Mary L. S. Smart and Mable Cates.

It was announced that the annual installation of officers would take place on Friday, Jan. 19, at Masonic hall, the same to be public. Committees to look after this part of the program was appointed. At the close of the meeting a memorial service was held in honor of the late Mrs. Abbie Bryson who was a charter member of Fidelity Chapter and the late Richard Withersby. The Conductress and Associate Conductress deposited flowers to their memory at the altar.

POSTMASTER

Houlton's new postmaster, Preston N. Burleigh, assumed the management of the office Tuesday, Jan. 2nd, Mr. Shochan who has been its efficient head during the past eight years retiring to private life.

Mr. Burleigh's appointment was confirmed during the final session of Congress and last week he received his commission as postmaster, since which time he has been awaiting the new year to take over the office.

Preston N. Burleigh is the son of the late Hon. Albert A. Burleigh. He was born in Oakfield, Maine, Feb. 18, 1866, coming to Houlton with his parents a few years later where he has since resided.

He attended Ricker Classical Institute, graduating from that institution in 1882, and received his A. B. degree from Colby in 1887.

The following year, together with other Houlton people he went to Wisconsin where he took up a government tract of timberland and remained there some five years.

After returning from Wisconsin he attended the Harvard Law School for some time, leaving there to take up engineering work, both location and construction, on the Bangor & Aroostook R. R.

For the past eight years he has been assistant engineer for the B. and A. R. R., engaged principally in maintenance work.

Mr. Burleigh is well qualified both by training and experience to give a fine administration of this office which is one of the most important ones in the state, and his hosts of friends in this town and county are extending congratulations.

It is understood that Burns McIntyre, Mr. Shochan's assistant, will continue to act in a like capacity for Mr. Burleigh.

WOMAN'S CLUB

All roads lead to Watson Hall next Monday afternoon, Jan. 8th, at 2:30 o'clock, to hear Mr. Montford S. Hill, superintendent of the social welfare work for the Great Northern Paper Co.

Mr. Hill tells of his experiences in the spruce woods in the State of Maine. His lecture will be interesting, entertaining and educational.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS HOLD TWO MEETINGS

The County Commissioners held a meeting last week and cleaned up the business of the year which showed them to be in good standing, all bills being paid and the only outstanding indebtedness being an issue of bonds amounting to $76,000, 4 1/2 per cent, which sold for a premium of $16.70 on a thousand.

These are a serial bond with one maturing each year for 20 years and of this amount $33,000, was used in paying outstanding indebtedness and the rest goes to the State Treasurer for building bridges in the county.

The meeting this Tuesday was for organizing the new board, Remi Daigle being the retiring member, Geo. York of Island Falls taking his place.

The following Associated Press dispatch appeared last week:

Washington, Dec. 27.—The Eastern Maine Railroad applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission Wednesday for permission to issue $2,000,000 in capital stock. The road intends to build a new line from Houlton to Bangor, Me., connecting with the lines of the Maine Central.

While no information regarding this is available, it is supposed that this is in relation to the original charter and has no relation to the hearing held before the Interstate Commerce Commission last fall in August. As the railroad has already a charter and the right of way has been located and some work done on the line, this it granted would give the company permission to go ahead and build the road.

As far as the thirteen miles of road is concerned, which was known as the Mattawamkeag and Eastern, this is a closed chapter.

The history of the Eastern Maine railroad is too well known to need further comment here and doubtless the officials will go before the Legislature and ask for a renewal of the charter for another two years.

WHAT I LIKE AND DON'T LIKE ABOUT A SMALL TOWN

By W. O. Saunders

Editor of "The Independent," Elizabeth City, N. C., in American Magazine

I have lived in big burges and little burges. After trying both kinds I am back in a small town and expect to finish out my days right here. I am having lots of fun, and wouldn't trade jobs with a lot of fellows in New York who are making ten times more money than I am making in Elizabeth City.

Life is what you make it, whether in a big burg or a little burg. Your world is no bigger than your own job and your own circle of acquaintances. Folks are folks, wherever you find them; the folks in Elizabeth City are no different from the folks in New York. But the difference in living in New York and in Elizabeth City is: In New York one may live a lifetime without getting acquainted with his next-door neighbor; in Elizabeth City I know just about every man, woman, and kiddie in the town, and we all speak whenever we meet.

I like small-town life because I like folks. Life in a small town is living in a very laboratory of human nature and human experience. The life of the small town, and every man and woman in it, is nearly an open book. Life in the small town is an endless open air drama of human interest; one gets an endless repertoire of romance, comedy, tragedy, and all the rest of it. And one is most times permitted to see behind the scenes as well as from the front row in the orchestra. The gossips are busy from morn till night; they leave no item of human interest uncovered. They know how many boxes of candy every stenographer receives in a week and where she gets them from. A substantial citizen has to be a pillar in the church and walk decorously; he deserves no credit whatever for being the staid and sober citizen that he is; he doesn't dare be otherwise, because he can't fool even his wife in a small town. God bless the gossips!

I say God bless the gossips! That doesn't mean the scandalmongers. The curse of the small town is the disappointed and fading woman whose life has been cheated of experience, and who, unbattered by her own barren prospects, is determined that no one else under the sun shall do the things she would have done herself if she had ever had the nerve or the opportunity to do them. She sits behind half-open shutters at night and spies upon her neighbors, reporting everything she sees or thinks she sees, and often defaming innocent mortals by placing false interpretations upon their conduct. Every small town has that type; I hate them, and am very polite to them.

But the gossips! They are the news gatherers and the newsmonkeys who never permit small-town life to stale. There was Uncle Brownley; bought himself a brand-new hat one day, the first he had had in ten years, and got up before day and sneaked out of town on a night train. Everybody in town knew it before ten a. m., and knew that he was on his way to some place in Maryland to marry an eighteen-year-old girl that had nursed his former wife in her last illness. And there was another prominent citizen who thought he had 'em all fooled; but the gossips bored a gimlet hole in a side door to his office, and he is now doing time in the state prison.

Only once in a long while are the gossips misled. There was the case of a couple who lived in a nearby town, who were always pointed out as the happiest of married couples. One morning the woman was found in her bedroom with her throat cut from ear to ear. She had done it herself with a razor. When neighbors found her and one sent hurriedly for a doctor, she protested with her dying breath, "Do not try to save me, I want to die! My life has been a very hell on earth!"

One finds every element of tragedy in a small town that one finds in a great, overwhelming place like New York. Only a few months ago two young women came into town on a night train and registered at the hotel. Two hours later the husband of one of them came by automobile and registered at the same hotel. He asked to be shown to his wife's room. When his wife opened the door he shot

I had to get up many times at night. I also suffered from rheumatic pains and my feet swelled badly. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised led me to get three boxes. her dead, shot the other woman to death, and then put the pistol to his own head and killed himself. New York or Chicago couldn't scare up a greater thriller than that.

There have been numerous murders and suicides in the town since I have lived here and the mystery of most of the murders has never been solved. One living in a big city reads about these things in the papers or catches a glimpse of them in vast crowds. In the small town one gets the whole story, views the remains, and follows them to the cemetery.

The greatest difference between New Yorkers and North Carolinians is, in their attitude toward personal wealth. The average New Yorker that you meet wants everyone to believe that he has more money than he really has. The average small-town man is chiefly concerned in concealing his wealth and posing as poverty stricken. Uncle Bart Brownley hadn't bought a new hat in ten years, not because he didn't like new hats but because he was sensitive about letting his neighbors know that he could afford a new hat. A stranger would spot the men of means in my town with a great deal of difficulty; they have so many ingenious ways of concealing it.

We have one citizen who was filing saws in a sawmill here several years ago and walking to his work every day, when he perfected an invention that has since brought him in thousands upon thousands of dollars in royalties annually. He has never said a word about it to his neighbors, is still filing saws in the same sawmill every day and walking to his work, while his helpers ride in fivers. But he owns much real estate in a city fifty miles away and a big apartment house in that city bears his name.

We have another who never bought a gallon of gasoline or paid a telephone bill in his life—a very meek and inconspicuous merchant who will get a yardstick and take the greatest pains in measuring off a yard of baby ribbon for two cents. Yet he owns a woolen mill in New England and a garment factory in New York City!

I could name a score of citizens in this small town whose wealth gives the lie to a common belief that money-making opportunities do not exist in the small town to the same extent as in the cities. There may not be so many opportunities in a small town, but one does not need so many opportunities in a small town. For one doesn't need so much money! I dare say that a man with one hundred thousand dollars in a small town is better fixed and can get more out of life than a man with a million in a big city. The tragedy is, so many of them don't.

The same opportunities for getting ahead in life are open to everyone in the small town as in the larger towns. It all depends upon the individual. A lot of fellows can't see the opportunities in the small town early in life and restlessly migrate to the cities. Those who, like our David Pender, start out as a store clerk and develop a chain of a hundred grocery stores, are rare birds. Most Elizabeth City boys who have succeeded away from home got their equipment and start right here in the old home town. A greater number of those who have stayed at home have succeeded.

And I have always noted that the who drift away from home are always happy to get back home; they make no complaint about bad plumbing or dim lights, but smile joyously when the dinner bell is rung by a black girl in the back of the house, and linger long at the table loaded with home-cured bacon, and turnip greens grown in the garden.

An attractive thing about small-town life is its appeal to human vanity. All of us like to be recognized, like to be spoken to, like to be identified. The small town recognizes every personality; every frog in the small puddle can make himself heard; the smaller the puddle the less effort in making his voice carry. And the vanity of most of us is such that we would rather be a big frog in a small puddle than lose our identity in a pond of magnificent dimensions. A big town overshadows and engulfs everything, including personalities. In a small town personalities tower. The most towering thing in New York is a monument to a five-and-ten-cent store idea.

Perhaps the greatest thing the small town has to offer is the opportunity for the man of small income to own a home of his own close to his work. One never has to commute to his job in a small town and two or three blocks around the corner takes a fellow out of the high rent district. It is possible for a young man with any sort of salary to buy a piece of ground for a few hundred dollars somewhere in any small town. And small town lots are not city lots. A lot that is less than fifty feet wide by a hundred feet deep isn't considered a lot at all in Elizabeth City, where most lots run a hundred and fifty feet deep, affording the owner an ample garden plot and room for a garage, a tool house, and a chicken yard on the back.

I can show you block after block of houses in Elizabeth City built and owned by their occupants, and most of them never owned a share of building and loan stock; they started by acquiring a piece of ground and saved a little along until they could make a start in building. Often the small home builder is financed by his employer, who realizes that his most valuable and most dependable employee is the one who has a stake in a home of his own. There is no recognized Moving Day in a small town, most of the families owning their homes and sticking to them. I'm speaking of honest-to-goodness towns, and not of factory and industrial settlements.

Human kindness and contentment are more conspicuous in small towns only because every other human attribute is more outstanding in a small town. Two citizens in New York may have a difference, exchange a few heated words and go their respective ways without seeing each other again for a month. In that time they will have cooled off. But let a pair of citizens in a small town have a quarrel, and they don't have such an opportunity to cool off. What's more, everybody knows they have quarreled, and their human pride and stubbornness prevent them from getting together because everybody is watching them.

Out of mere trifles oftentimes grow factional differences that keep on growing and growing until half the town is dragged into them without knowing just what it is all about. And the women don't help these factional rows a bit. Women are very, very slow to forgive, and they never forget. My wife never will forgive certain citizens with whom I have had differences in the past, and the wives of some of my best friends won't speak to me because once upon a time I said nasty things about their husbands in my paper. When I condemn this unforgiving, unforgetting nature of the female of the species in the presence of my wife, she retorts that men forgive and forget only for business or political reasons, winking at principle for the sake of self or political preferment. And then I shut up.

The one thing that operates to keep the average small town from being a community of kindred spirits with more common interests, is over-organization. We have more organizations in Elizabeth City than one could count on the fingers of Siamese Triplets, but there is no community organization. I find the same condition existing in other small towns and I guess it's the same world over. Here in Elizabeth City we have a Chamber of Commerce, a Merchants' Association, a Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Masons, Shriner, Knights, Pythians, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Elks, Jr. Order United American Mechanics, Volunteer Firemen, and a number of minor organizations. We have three Baptist churches, two Methodist churches, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Christians, Catholics, and Holy Rollers.

There is enough energy, enthusiasm, and ability in the combination to accomplish anything under the sun possible of accomplishment in a group of ten thousand mortals. But the energy, enthusiasm, and ability that might unitedly transform an ordinary country town into an ideal community of neighbors is scattered—one might say dissipated—in a score of lesser activities. A score of groups are doing good piecemeal when not actually pulling against each other, secretly jealous of each other, or openly hostile.

The maintenance of so many diverse organizations is a great drain upon the pocketbooks of a small town, and the average fellow who feels compelled to support several at once is inclined to lose interest in one and all. You can't get a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday night because that is prayer meeting night; nor Friday night because that is Rotary night; nor on Tuesday night because that is Shrine night.

We have about six revivals a year in our town and everybody gets good for a season. But most of us slide back into our indifferent, happy-go-lucky ways, and in three weeks after the evangelists have decamped we are laughing, jesting and putting raisins in the apple cider just as if there were no death, no resurrection and no after-life to bother about. Funny how we refuse to take our poor little souls seriously all the time.

Life in the small burg is pretty much like life in the big burg in every particular. The servant problem on Main street, Elizabeth City, is not different from the same problem on Fifth Avenue, New York, except in the color of our servants. Our servant class is drawn almost wholly from the colored population.

I reckon no discourse on life in a small town would be complete without some reference to the subject that is never dry, to wit: Prohibition. Yes, we have our hootch in Elizabeth City just the same as they have it in New York, but with this difference: we usually know where and how ours is made and the age of it. There's where we have it all over the New Yorker.

The rural hootch-maker hasn't the art of chemistry at his command, as has the city fellow, and must rely upon simple formulae calling only for the grains and fruits that he grows, plus sugar, molasses, and yeast cakes that any grocer can supply. It is my belief that the moonshiner and bootlegger are rapidly being forced out of business. Two things are against them—the prohibition commissioners and the tendency of every drinking man to make his own hootch.

But to get back where I started, life in a small town is just as interesting and just as remunerative for a fellow as a big town; and the slow birds are infinitely better off in a small town than in a busier place, where they would live in imminent danger of being knocked down and run over. Y. A.

Half Way Between Depression and Prosperity Says Babson

Famous Statistician Discusses Prices, Wages and Sales for Coming Year

Stocks and Bonds to go Higher

You Can Make Money During the Next 12 Months

Kelley Hills, Mass., Dec. 23, 1922. "What is going to happen in 1923?" "That question is uppermost in the minds of 1,000,000 American businessmen and investors who are facing the problem of making plans for the New Year.

Signs are not clear and the usual barometers seem to contradict one another. In the face of this general confusion we had best fall back on the facts and figures. After a thorough study of the fundamental conditions that govern our market, Roger W. Babson today issued a statement which clears the air and furnishes a basis of fact for your plans.

"We are now at a point in the business cycle," says Mr. Babson, "where you can get almost as many different opinions as there are business men. Some are very bullish for the coming year, and others cannot see much hope for business. The reason for such a situation is that we are at present neither at the top of a boom nor at the depth of a depression. If we were at either of these extremes there would be no question of what the next move would be. As it is we are about half way between them.

"During the past year United States business has steadily advanced until the average for the whole country is what we usually call 'normal' business. Having advanced thus far, shall we immediately continue into a great prosperity period or shall we go into another period of depression and poor business as some predict.

"If you will only remember the five years preceding 1921 and recall what an enormous orgy of expansion existed, you can see for yourself that it will take some time to get a proper foundation for really good business. We danced during those years, and now we must pay the fiddler's complete bill. Business has really been like a convalescing patient. Everything will go well with the patient if he does not try to get out of bed too soon. If he tries to overdo he will have a relapse. We now have passed the most painful part of the readjustment. The crisis is over, but a process of cost reduction and re-balancing is necessary."

Price Spread is Wide. "Today a wide disparity exists between prices of different commodities, and particularly the spread between producers' and consumers' goods. This is a brake on trade. One half of the people cannot earn enough to buy the goods that the other half has to sell. There are one hundred and six million people in the United States and fifty per cent of them get their living from producing or distributing raw materials. It has thus far been impossible to reduce the prices of finished consumers' goods to meet the cuts on these raw materials. The purchasing power of these people is out of its natural proportion.

"It is not entirely a matter of reducing wages, although labor costs are a large factor, nor is it entirely a matter of inefficient management. No, the problem of high costs is not a problem of any one element; and readjustment can come in only one way—drastic competition. All this will take further time.

"Does this mean that there will be no opportunities in 1923? Not a bit! There will be just as many chances to make money as in any year you ever lived. It will be possible for you to make as much during the next twelve months as in any year of your business life, but it will not be along the lines which made money in 1919 and 1920 nor in any other boom year. The profits in 1923 will come by giving attention to details, by stopping the little leaks, by saving here and there through new labor-saving inventions, and most of all, by devising new, and more economical means of distributing goods. This was not at all the situation during the business boom. Then the man who stopped to prevent small leaks found himself caught by the momentous rise in prices and changes in general conditions.

"Those days have passed. They were wild and merry while they lasted. Now business has come back to earth. In most industries, an excessive producing capacity was created. During the boom, overhead costs were increased to keep up with an abnormal turnover. Today the amount of business has dropped back more nearly to normal, but costs have not been proportionately reduced. Higher wages, higher rents, more expensive sales organization—in fact, nearly every item of expense is out of proportion with the amount of business done.

"Instead of wild gyrations in the commodity markets, the average trend throughout the coming year should be more of a side-wise movement. Some commodities are high and others are very low, but the majority at present are about 15% above their levels a year ago. A year from now we shall probably find them averaging at about the same level they stand today. In between, there may be a further rally from the low of 1922, and agricultural products certainly should do better."

Earnings Will Be Higher. "Earnings," continued Mr. Babson, "should average somewhat better than in the year just passed. A survey of 100 leading industrial companies, recently made by my organization, showed that in 1919, 96% of these companies made a net profit, while only 4% showed a deficit. In 1921, the number of firms which could show a profit was cut down to 48%. Over half, or 52% of these industrial concerns lost money on their year's business. 1922 has witnessed a change from red ink figures into black ink figures, but the amount of net profits will not be large when the books are finally balanced. We are just getting back onto the right side of the ledger.

"The shortage of labor is one of the worst features of the 1923 outlook. The moment that business works up to average activity it becomes impossible to get sufficient workers. This raises costs and in turn increases commodity prices and the cost of living. The immigration law is largely the cause of this shortage. This law restricts the number of immigrants in a single year to 3% of the total number of respective nationalities already in the United States. Before the war we had an addition of a million immigrants a year. Now we are receiving less than 300,000 and at least 60% of these are women, children or other dependents. On the other hand, I doubt if the repeal of this 3% Immigration Law is the proper solution of the present labor shortage.

"The real solution is not the repeal of the present immigration law but rather the repeal of the Contract Labor Law for as long a period as the 3% law remains in force. This would make it possible for employers to promise selected foreign workers employment before leaving their own homes. The moment that the immigration law is repealed the Contract Labor Law can again be applied.

"There should be no great difficulty in getting ample supplies of bituminous coal this winter. The car shortage is diminishing somewhat. Ample supplies of bituminous coal are being produced, suggesting lower prices. The misdeed of this situation lies in the fact that it will again be to the advantage of both miners and operators to close the mines for a time. The difficulties which brought on the strike last year have not been settled. There is serious danger of another strike in the soft coal fields.

"Everybody is worrying about the political situation. There is talk of radical legislation during the coming year. Most of this is merely the echo from campaign speeches. It may be a noisy thing, but the Conservatives and the Radicals have a veto power, but neither is strong enough to push through any extreme measures of its own. The only kind of legislation that will really be enacted is that which will appeal to members of both groups. Already the Federal Reserve Board has issued a ruling, admitting a large amount of agricultural paper for redemption in the Federal Reserve Banks. The Muscle Shoals problem will probably be settled, either by sale to Henry Ford or by development on the part of the government itself. The Soldier's Bonus will probably be enacted, although no agreement as to the terms or means of raising the money has yet been made. It is improbable that there will be any increase in the amount of business taxes.

"The political aspect has frightened many stockholders, but it is entirely too early to be worried. The thing to watch is fundamental conditions. We are still in a readjustment period. This means that sooner or later we shall work toward better prosperity. It is true that industrial stocks are much higher than a year ago and are certainly not the bargains that they were. However, as I have already stated, certain lines of industry are just getting ready to go forward. The industrial market will be 'spotty' but there are a great many issues that should do better in the coming year.

"The rail group is relatively not so far advanced as the industrials. I do not believe rails should be bought indiscriminately, but the rail average will follow up the general market. I am much more attracted to the long-haul road, than to the shorter lines. The motor truck is a feeder for the former but a competitor of the latter. Copper stocks have really not started yet, but the statistical position of the metal is far better than it has been for a long time. Coppers, certainly, are selling at bargain levels.

"Money conditions should continue good. There is no question that the banks are in a strong position. The Federal Reserve Banks today have reserves equal to about 76% of their note and deposit liabilities. The reserve required is between 25% and 30% and the fact that when foreign countries begin to get on their feet, it will be necessary to send much of this gold back. For the present, however, this gold represents the basis on which a considerable expansion of credit can be built. It guarantees to us a relatively easy money rate, until heavy gold exports are resumed. During the coming year, borrowers need have little fear of a lack of funds for all legitimate purposes, and this also applies to long-term money, that is, capital for permanent investment. Mortgage rates during 1923 should work lower. Today, the average rate of real estate mortgages throughout the United States is between 6% and 7%. The time is not far away when this average will stand between 5% and 6%.

"Of course, the ease of the money market is distinctly favorable to long-term bonds. When industry becomes so active that money is absorbed by trade, when this occurs bonds are sold and develop a downward tendency. This point in the cycle has not yet appeared. Moreover, history shows that following the Civil War bond prices, barring temporary fluctuations, rose for a long period of years, the advance culminating about 1900. From this point, a descent for gradually made to a low point at the end of the European War. Since this low point, history is repeating itself, bonds having reached a middle ground, but still far below the 3.50 or 4% basis of the 1900 period. All these factors suggest that well selected bonds, both municipal and corporate, are a distinct purchase.

"Bonds and money," concluded Mr. Babson, "are certainly sound factors in the situation. As for business as a whole, there is no doubt that it will average better this coming year than it did in 1922. This does not mean that there will be any boom, but that there will be plenty of money-making opportunities for those who know fundamental conditions."

make your own world, whether you live in a big burg or a little one. There are restless mortals who can never know the art of taking life leisurely nor the refreshing joy of a full night's sleep. The country town is not for them; they think they would die of ennui in the country, when they will surely die of high blood pressure, apoplexy, or sunstroke in the rush and excitement of city life.

A New Yorker may get more money, more entertainment, more jazz and more excitement out of life than we poor rubes back in the small towns; but he'll never get the human touch, the human companionship, and the human smell that is found in the small town. His golf links are his confession that a fellow cannot know the joy of life without comfortable clothes, fresh earth for his feet, clean air for his lungs, and leisurely hobnobbing with friendly spirits. Life in a country town is as good as a game of golf every day except Sunday—on Sundays we all go flat. That's another story.

I like my own small town better all the time. Its faults are always interesting, its weaknesses generally amusing, its leisureliness and neighborliness ever delightful. It hasn't the glamour of bigger places; but from my own front porch, through the arched branches of the oaks and myrtles I can see the whole procession of human life go by in fancy undisturbed. I may be rusty on the standing of the big leagues and the latest song hits on Broadway, but I can get more out of a book in my hammock than Mr. Gotham's can get out of his New York Public Library, and more run out of my kind's playing in real honest-to-goodness dirt than he can get out of a night at Coney Island or ten nights in a jazz parlor. All of which brings me to the conclusion that Croesus with all his gold, Solomon with all his wives, Cyrus with all his soldiers, the Pharaohs with all their slaves, Cleopatra with all her charms, Napoleon with all his generals, and Louis XVI with all his furniture, could never purchase the freedom of movement, the peace of mind, the security of life and the friendliness of neighbors that are obtainable without price by the poorest moron of any of us who live in a small town.

There's a lot of fun in living in a one-horse town if you are capable of making your own little world. You probably couldn't be satisfied in the biggest town on earth if you are not naturally inclined to be busy, to be friendly, and to find your own and enjoy it no matter where you are.

"I want people to know the truth about Goldine, how marvelous these medicines are," gratefully tells D. E. McDonald, 287, Spencer St., West Lynn, Mass. "About twelve years ago I was taken with a shock and dropped on the street. I grew worse as time wore on and lost the use of my legs. I was dizzy short of breath, could not sleep, badly eat, had gas and bloating, constant headaches, my limbs and ankles would swell and my rest was disturbed nightly. Twelve years I was confined to the house and could not work. The past three years I had not taken a single step. I was treated by numberless doctors who told me I was beyond help. After three bottles of Goldine Tonic and Nervine I now walk around the house. It's true, I'm a little unsteady yet, for I haven't walked in so long, but I stand up straight and WALK. On my first trip into town I walked into Fitch Drug Store to thank the Goldine Man. I can eat, am strong and sleep the whole night through. My disagreeable feelings are gone. Oh, how thankful I am. Goldine has done for me in a few weeks what all the treatments and skill I could get in twelve years did not do. I am telling my experience for the benefit of other sufferers who should take Goldine."
