.22 RIFLES

The Little Rifles—Big in Quality

YOU are going to buy a .22 calibre rifle, single shot or repeater—you'll find that many well known crack shots started with a Remington-UMC .22. Their advice now would be "By all means, get a Remington-UMC" because they know that there is a tendency in some quarters to look upon these models as only "a small boy's rifle" and to cheapen them so that they can be sold at a price.

You have just as much right to expect full shooting value in your .22 calibre arm as in your $75 big game rifle.

You want the Remington-UMC single shot at from $3 to $6, .22, 25-10 or 32 calibre, made by the same people who make the famous Remington-UMC Autoloading Rifles.

Or, if you prefer the repeating rifle, the Remington-UMC slide action .22 repeater with its easy take-down and special safety features, shooting .22 short, .22 long or .22 long rifle cartridges, at $10 and up, is your arm. Sold by live dealers of this community—the most popular small calibre rifles in America.

MISS DENNISON GIVEN A SURPRISE

Last Friday evening, June 5th the members of the Junior class of the Phillips High school gave Miss Lura Dennison a genuine surprise party. All the class was present except Henry Lufkin.

They drove to Miss Dennison's home in Avon taking with them a picnic supper, consisting of sandwiches, pickles, doughnuts, cheese, ice cream and cake, which was enjoyed in the dining room.

After supper the boys helped wash the dishes and the company spent a pleasant hour in the parlor around the open fire telling stories.

They arrived home about 9 o'clock, all agreeing that it was one of the most enjoyable occasions of the school year.

The members of the class are Misses Hazel Webber, Fern Gould, Mildred Kempton, Hazel Sargent, Florian Wheeler, Kathleen Noble, Janet McKenzie and Messrs. Antonio Croteau, Clifford Wing, Henry Lufkin.

As the date of the marriage had been kept quiet by the interested parties and as they went to their cottage at Sandy River Ponds, Tuesday morning for a few days, their friends were not fully cognizant of the fact until they received the wedding announcement the latter part of the week.

Mrs. Haley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Parlin and some years of her girlhood were spent in Phillips. She also attended the Normal school at Farmington.

For several years past the family has resided in Boston and where Mrs. Bradbury held several responsible positions, the last being that of city manager of the Massachusetts Viavi Company, where her recognized ability was much appreciated by that company.

Mr. and Mrs. Haley invited the following friends to enjoy the week-end with them at their cottage at Sandy River Ponds: Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Field, Hon. and Mrs. H. B. Austin and Mrs. J. W. Brackett, which invitation was accepted and a very enjoyable outing was the result.

RALLY WELL ATTENDED

Progressives Out In Large Numbers to Hear Able Speakers

Lambert Hall was the scene of a big rally last Monday evening, when Halbert P. Gardner of Patten, candidate for Governor on the Progressive ticket and Alton C. Wheeler of South Paris, candidate for Congress in the Second District came to Phillips to speak in the interests of the Progressive party.

Before the meeting the Phillips Cornet band gave a good open air concert and the large crowd that congregated for the concert also took in the meeting and the hall was crowded with enthusiastic Progressives as well as many from the other parties.

On the platform besides the speakers of the evening were seated Charles Chandler, Ernest L. Mills, George Bean, C. M. Hoyt, Charles Allen, Phillips; H. W. Worthley, Avon; Dr. J. W. Perkins, Wilton; J. W. Carsley and Manning E. Titcomb, Farmington; C. A. Thompson and F. P. Caswell, New Sharon.

C. M. Hoyt called the meeting to order and prefaced in the introduction of the speakers by making brief remarks in regard to the prospects of the Progressive party in 1914 as being very bright and stated that the Bull Moose horns of 1914 were larger and stronger than those of two years ago. His remarks were greeted with applause, especially when the name of ex-President Roosevelt's name was mentioned. He then introduced Hon. Alton C. Wheeler, who spoke at quite length but we shall only be able to give a few paragraphs from the same.

The Progressive party has been summoned into the arena of political contest by a large group of citizens who insist upon a new instrument with which to express their desires respecting the common government of their country. Now, as always, political parties are merely voluntary associations formed to insure responsible government in accordance with a definite political policy. And whenever that policy fails, the party supporting it must fail or seek a new issue. And whenever the members of any party become, first suspicious and then convinced that the leaders of that party are not acting in good faith for the interest of the party membership, then that voluntary membership will inevitably seek other political alliance in accord with its convictions.

With the panorama of our country's history before us, who can doubt that the Banner of Right has fallen from

PACKARD'S CAMPS SEBEC LAKE, ME.

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Bangor, Me., June 4, 1914.

The last days of May and the first days of June have shown record fishing on Sebago lake. The famous June fishing has commenced earlier than usual and grand good sport can be counted on all through the month of June. The lucky fishermen at Packard's camps last week were: Mr. Geo. H. Ball of Lowell, Mass.; Harry Crockett guide, who caught nine salmon, the two largest weighing 5 and 5½ pounds each. Mr. McGuire of Lowell, Mass., caught his full quota. Mr. J. J. Côtter of New York City landed a 6½-pound salmon. Dr. G. H. Wilbur of Fall River, Mass., Scott Cook guide made a very satisfactory catch. Gen. E. S. Boss, who came through with his touring car had Geo. Edgerley as a guide and has had good sport at the small pond sand brooks fishing trout with the fly. Mr. and Mrs. Huntley of Fitchburg, Mass.; Verne Cook, guide, are putting in long days on the lake trolling and bring in a good catch every night. Miss Emma Chaffin of the same party with F. Crockett, guide, is a true sport and can handle a six-pound salmon as nicely as the best fishermen.

Mr. Wm. M. Dean of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Irving Preble guide, caught three nice salmon the first afternoon they were out. Mr. M. D. Wolfe of New York City, who has spent three seasons at Packard's camps, thinks it is the best fishing that he has ever had on Sebec Lake. Mr. Jos. C. Holmes of Boston, who has been here ever since the ice went out, May 9, thinks the fishing improves as the days grow warm. Mr. Leslie P. Phinney of Allston, Mass., Walter Arnold guide, has made a number of fine catches of salmon and last Tuesday brought in a nice string of trout from Buttermilk Stream, the largest weighed 2 pounds; it made a grand fight on a No. 10 hook in quick water.

COMMON BELIEVE THAT BLACK BASS ARE NOT PROTECTED.

Joseph Beaulieu and Charles Gifford, both of this city, were before Judge Frederick W. Knowlton in the municipal court Monday morning, says the Bangor Commercial, and were given a fine of $15 and costs, for the taking of more than the legal number of trout allowed by law, which they caught in Great Works stream.

It was due, after the catching of the fish, to the activity of Chief Warden Frank Perkins of the inland fish and game commission's staff. It appears that Messrs. Beaulieu and Gifford went up Great Works for their outing, ready for business. They spent a most successful day on the stream and when they returned, displayed with much satisfaction, a string of trout that totalled 60 fish to the man. As the legal limit of brook trout under the general law is 25 trout or not over 15 pounds, the warden promptly looked them up Monday morning, invited them to see the court and the case was explained.

Both men alleged ignorance of the law and Judge Knowlton was inclined to believe them, even while he realized it did not excuse their violation. By agreement with the warden and in view of their promise to obey the law in the future, he decided to punish them on the possession of five trout in excess, only so that the penalty for violation is $10 and for each fish in excess of the legal number, $1, making the fine as stated.

In speaking of the affair, Warden Perkins announced that he was continually surprised at the number of persons who go fishing without any apparent knowledge of how far their privileges go. He also felt rather sore, apparently, because many offenders who have been caught and settled with him have gone about accusing him of lining his own pockets with the penalty funds, rather than turning them over to the state.

"Henceforth, he declared with emphasis, 'I shall take all persons whom I catch violating the law, if it is anyways possible, before a justice and let the funds go to the state treasury through the medium of the court, then there can't be any idea that I get any part of the money.'"

Mr. Perkins is much surprised to find how common is the belief, that black bass are in no way protected by the state laws. Under the enactments of the last legislature, all black bass in the state are protected up to June 15 of each spring and any person who catches one of these fish is subject to the penalty provided by the law. Only the other day he was obliged to make a woman pay the fine for catching one of these fish, taken in all innocence and ignorance of the law."

FROM MOOSEHEAD LAKE

Fishing has been good at the east outlet of Moosehead lake. Word comes to the general passenger traffic manager's office of the B. & A. R. R. regarding some of the recent catches made by guests at the Outlet House and camps at Moosehead station.

The following is the list: W. E. Culley, one salmon, 5½ pounds; J. E. Fuller, three salmon, from 4 to 6 pounds; N. J. Libbey, four trout, from 2 to 4½ pounds; also a three pound salmon and a laker of the same size; F. L. Deihl, two lake trout, 6½ and 4½ pounds; L. E. Bova, five and a half pound salmon; E. W. Deihl, two trout, 4 and 3 pounds, five lakers, from 4 to 5 pounds; G. M. Lancey, trout, from 4 to 5½ pounds; W. J. Robinson, three pound laker and a 4-pound salmon; J. Martin, 6½-pound salmon, six lakers from 2 to 4 pounds, three trout, from 3 to 4½ pounds; Miss Hammett, 12 trout, the smallest weighing 2½ pounds and the largest over 4; J. Nichols, 6 pound salmon; Deihl party, 15 trout, the smallest being two pounds; A. Harris, three lakers, about 4 pounds each. Among those registered at the hotel and camps there are Miss G. L. Hammett, H. G. Hammett, Troy, N. Y.; John Sutphen, Newark, N. J.; Chas. E. Moore, Newport; N. J. Libby, E. W. Deihl, J. E. Fuller, Boston; W. E. Culley and nephew, Fitchburg, Mass.; A. W. Harris, Quincy, Mass.; J. B. Wing, Bangor; D. J. J. Donohue, C. M. Comstock, Norwich, Ct.; Dr. J. Harry McLaughlin, Jersey City, Ct.; F. E. Farrell, Norwich, Ct.; Dr. E. T. Nealey, Hon. E. H. Blake, Bangor; L. E. Bove, Boston; J. Nichols and J. Martin, Boston.

James H. Mason has returned from spending Saturday and Sunday at Phillips lake, where he landed the record salmon of that water for this season, a magnificent seven pound silverside, whose glistening body almost got away from him in the mistake of thinking he had hooked a snag. Mr. Mason and Lyman V. Blake, also of this city, were out in their boat opposite the Hooper camp at the thoroughfare, about 5 o'clock in the morning, when the rod of Mr. Mason doubled back as if the hook had caught a log or rock. Laying down the rod the fisherman was taking in the slack as the boat retraced its way, when out of the water leaped a salmon and then the line began to slide through Mr. Mason's fingers with great speed. Soon he was playing the beautiful fish and in half an hour it was safely netted at the second attempt. So far as could be learned, this was the only large fish taken at the lake during the day, someone reported a small salmon. The fish was taken on the troll.

Manager Ernest Littlefield of the plumbing supply store of the R. B. Dunning Co., took C. S. Fisk, a Boston man, on an early morning trip to Plank Bridge brook and Chemo pond, Saturday. They left the Bangor House at 2:30 a. m., and were back at noon, having caught a magnificent string at the bridge and vicinity, eaten their fill of the delicious speckled beauties at the Littlefield cottage at Chemo and then journeyed home in comfort. It gave the Boston man the time of his life.

EVERYTHING FINE AROUND CAMDEN HATCHERY.

A roof has been built over the out-of-door troughs at the fish hatchery at Camden, says the Kennebec Journal. This will keep the water in the troughs cooler and be a great improvement. The buildings are to be painted right away. Supt. Libby has everything looking fine about the hatchery this spring and the fish were never in better condition. The deer that suffered a broken leg early in the season is getting along fine but walks about with a slight limp. The number of visitors is increasing right along.

KENNEBAGO LETTERS

A Chronicle of the Adventures of Two Young People in the Woods of Maine.

By H. V. Schieren

LETTER NO. 11

From Peter Woodhouse at Kennebag Lake, Maine, to Mrs. John Woodhouse, New York City.

Kennebag Lake, Me.,

October 6, 19—

Dear Mother:—

Is it fate that is keeping me here a prisoner; fate or what, for prisoner I certainly am. Now please don't get frightened when I tell you that I've had an accident, because it isn't anything at all serious, just annoying. You'll be relieved to hear that it is nothing more than a sprained ankle, but just now I'm about as helpless, so far as walking is concerned, as if I'd lost both my legs. They have sent out to town for a pair of crutches and when I get them I won't be absolutely dependent.

Our hunting trip of day before yesterday started out most auspiciously and I was very anxious to make a successful day of it, not only because I wanted to shoot a good head to bring home, but also because Diana Morgan was anxious to qualify as a huntress, as it was her first experience of the kind, and she was very keen for the idea. If I had been a little less clumsy all would now be well, and I would not be here imposing on the good nature and kindness of these good people, for you see they have insisted, since my accident, on my staying at their cabin.

I sprained my ankle in a rather peculiar way by slipping on a rock, in a little stream way up on the ridge north of here. Bob Whitman and Diana were wonderful in the emergency and, though I protested vigorously, he insisted on carrying me all the way home on his back.

How humiliated I felt you can well guess, me a great big hulking baby carried "piggy back" home, on the broad shoulders of poor old Bob, and that slip of a girl lugging my 45-70 as well as the other two guns. The trip is a perfect nightmare to me. My ankle pained of course, but that was nothing to the way I felt when I'd see little Diana fall down on all fours over some wretched obstruction, get up smiling, and keep on without so much as a murmur of protest. And to think that I was the cause of it all. It must have very nearly killed Bob to lug me all that distance but he laughed and joked about it as if it were a very holiday.

They got me here at last and Mr. Raymond poured about a pint of whiskey into me which, while it may not have been strict medical practice, certainly did me a whole lot of good. Then Bangs, the proprietor of the hotel, fixed me up in real surgical style with a sure enough bandage (I had been wearing Diana's neck muffler cut into strips, a first aid affair) so that taking it all in all I certainly was in the hands of what you might well call "loving friends."

This beastly ankle has got to be kept quiet for a couple of days, but I'm going to get out of here as soon as ever I can. It seems awful to be sponging so on these folks. Mr. Raymond and Diana are going to start home on the fifteenth and want me to wait and go with them as they seem to feel as if I'd need some assistance on the journey. Well we'll have to wait and see how I get along, and if I don't improve rapidly perhaps I'll stay and go with them. I really feel though, as if I ought to leave just as soon as my crutches arrive, which I hope will be by to-morrow or next day.

By the way, do you know you never have answered a very important question that I asked in one of my letters. I refer to Diana's engagement. I haven't found out one thing about it as yet. It does seem funny that she never wears the ring I found for her the night Tom and I arrived. Probably you are wondering why this matter of the engagement should interest me so much, but you see I'd feel a little differently towards Diana if I knew positively one way or the other.

As matters stand I'm in a sort of embarrassing position.

Don't worry now about this ankle of mine, because it is going to be all right in a very short time I feel sure. Everybody is treating me like an invalid and if I'm killed it will be through kindness, I'm sure of that.

Love to you, mater,

Your semi-invalid,

Peter.

P. S. What do you think I had for lunch? Broiled partridge, shot by Diana and cooked by the self same lady over the open fire here in the cabin. Oh what a pampered soul am I.

LETTER NO. 12

From Mr. Joseph Raymond at Kennebag Lake, Maine, to Mrs. Joseph Raymond, Richmond, Va.

Kennebag Lake, Me.,

October 7, 19—

Dear Agatha:—

It does indeed seem as if I ought to be thinking of starting for home and I wouldn't blame you one bit for accusing Di and me of being very naughty children when we start out by telling you that we'll be home by the first of October, and then linger here until this date. To tell you the truth I'm in a bit of a quandary to know what to do. You see since young Woodhouse sprained his ankle a couple of days ago, he has been staying here at our cabin, a very much pampered invalid, with Diana, his devoted nurse, catering to his every whim and wish. She even went so far as to give up her bedroom to him and took up her abode in the garret cubby, as she said the steep stairs would be too hard for him to climb.

Peter as you have no doubt gleaned from my letters, has found a very strong place in my affections, for he is a most admirable young chap and a mighty pleasant fellow to have around. He is devoted to Di and I honestly believe, desperately in love with her, for he watches her every movement with his haunting eyes, although I really think that she is absolutely unconscious of his utter devotion. He's a young scamp and makes out half the time that his ankle is paining him dreadfully, just so that she will come and sit down beside him and sympathize.

I saw some days back that he was becoming very much interested in our young niece, but it never occurred to me that the matter was really serious until the accident. That clinched it for Peter I feel sure, and if a man ever had the look of a love sick swain he surely has.

Now the question that confronts me and bothers me not a little is this; should I sound him do you think and find out if his intentions are really serious, or should I keep my foolish old tongue silent and let matters take their own course? Really, you know, I wouldn't object to having Peter for a nephew, and although you've never met him I'm sure that you'd agree with my sentiments, could you know him as I do.

Perhaps it is silly of me to get excited and worked up over this thing, and maybe these two young people are not thinking of anything more serious than a strong friendship. I do wish that I had you here to advise with because my experience in matters of this sort is most limited as you well know. Di came to me the other day and said that she thought I ought to tell Peter that she is not engaged. (You remember the ring incident.) I told her that I'd be very glad to speak to him if she wished it, and had made up my mind to talk to him that very evening, when she suddenly changed her mind and said that after all it was perhaps best not to mention the matter just now.

Bob is a very keen observer of human nature and he says he is absolutely certain that, Mr. Peter as he calls him, is dead in love with Diana. He and I have had some long talks on the subject, but we both feel the need of womanly counsel to help us in the matter. I do wish that you'd write me a line and let me know what you think is the best thing for me to do, under the circumstances.

Diana and I have planned to leave here about the fifteenth so I would just about get a letter from you before we start. Peter will of course be well able to travel by that time and we hope that he will go with us as far as New York. He told me yesterday that he felt he must leave here by the tenth, but I think that in the end he'll decide to wait until we go.

Please let me have a word of advice from you. I feel almost as if I were sitting on top of a volcano which was liable to "erupt" at any moment.

I am very fit and enjoying life, although the sudden coming of this love affair has upset me a trifle.

I hope that you and Austin and Anna are well and that you are taking life easy these wonderful fall days.

With best love to you my dear "Aggie," I am,

Your loving,
Joseph.

QUEER ACTIONS OF A ROBIN

Up in Madison a robin has interested the citizens of that town by flying in the early morning to the residence of M. S. Ward and W. E. Spear of Madison and pecking at the glass, arousing the sleepers in those homes. In both cases the members of the families at first thought that the robin was trying to attract attention for the purpose of obtaining some food, but although the birds ate the crumbs which rewarded the urgent calls from the window sills, invariably has renewed his pecking at the glass of the window and came day after day on the rising of the sun. The robin redbreast, who does this trick in Bath, half the time does not bother to eat the crumbs, but seemed to be a joker, pecking at the glass to make the sleepers arise.

The Bath man anent this story that comes down from Madison, insists that the robin in flying past the window had seen his reflection in the glass and the pecking was in the shadow of the robin which he thought was another bird. In similar fashion a kitten will, when placed in front of a mirror, often put its paws against the glass. This citizen says that he has seen in Weymouth a king bird do the same trick as the Bath and Madison robins.

FARMINGTON WEATHER

It was in the smoker of the Limbick, says a writer in Everybody's Magazine, and the New England Yankee was talking of Joe Knowles, the Boston artist who took to the woods without food or clothing and lived there for some weeks, by way of proving that Nature is an adequate provider. The man from the Soo was skeptical "Well," said he, "maybe he might do that in Maine but out here where we have weather he never could have done it. Why, man, I've seen good sleighing out here in August!" The Pine Tree man never blinked, but replied: "Nothing wonderful about that! Why, up Farmington, Me., way, where Joe and I come from, they never think of using the snow until it's two years old."

GANNETT'S HERD OF 90 GOATS

Augusta residents have been interested, during the last few months, in the recent introduction into this vicinity of a large herd of goats, an animal extremely novel to most of the people of this section. These animals were brought here by W. H. Gannett, the wealthy head of the Gannett Publishing company, and are quartered on his property near lower Sewall street. There are a total of ninety animals in the herd and those of this number which are old enough for pasturage purposes are allowed to roam the wild woodland recesses of Betsy Howard hill.

Augusta residents have wondered for just what purpose these animals have been brought here, as they are generally regarded more in the light of curiosities than anything else. However, it should be distinctly borne in mind that goats are extremely profitable, both for milk producing or stock purposes. As to his idea in securing them, Mr. Gannett has nothing to say, it is however, safe to predict that the herd will prove a profitable investment.

The goats were brought to Augusta from Kendall Green, Weston,

F. N. BEAL, G. P. A.

Mass., where they were the property of H. H. Ambler, a pioneer goat breeder of New England and a charter member of the Massachusetts branch of the Standard Milch Goat Breeders' Club of North America. The animals were brought here in charge of Mr. Ambler, who has been retained by Mr. Gannett to take charge of the herd.

"After I am through with the care of these animals here," declared Mr. Ambler to a Sentinel correspondent, "I plan to erect a sanitarium in Massachusetts. I want to make some money but I am also anxious to do some good. I shall establish a sanitarium to raise babies on goats' milk. I shall make it partly philanthropic in nature, as for every paid-for baby I shall give free treatment to another child. Why these children of mine were raised on goats' milk." As he made this remark Mr. Ambler affectionately stroked the head of one of the boys of whom he is candidly proud.

"On account of its uniformity of quality, goats' milk is most healthy food for young and failing babies or for all invalids and I am anxious to do my part in putting this fact before the public," he added.

There are two breeds of goats in the Gannett herd and both are originated from Switzerland. The breeds are the Sannen, pure white and the Tozenburg, of a brown and white color. These breeds have been found the best adapted to this section of the United States. Mr. Ambler is especially proud of Lady A, daughter of Perfection, said to be the best doe ever imported from Switzerland. These Swiss goats are at a premium now, as it is impossible to import them due to the fact that the government has placed a quarantine upon them, believing that the hoof and mouth disease exists in Switzerland.

Goats' milk is immune from tubercular germs. It is also much richer in butterfat than cows' milk. The standard of butterfat for cows' milk in Massachusetts is 3.35 per cent while the average for goats' milk is 7 per cent and this percentage sometimes reaches as high as 8 or 9. The Massachusetts standard of bacteria per cubic centimeter, for cows' milk, is 500,000 while bacteria germs found per cubic centimeter in goats' milk are 1400. The lowest percentage of butterfat ever found in goats' milk is 6.20.

The average yield of milk for one goat is 2½ quarts per day while some yield as high as 5 quarts. One milk-producing doe at the Gannett farm could not be bought for $300. In proportion to its weight a goat yields three times as much milk, as a cow. A goat annually produces fifteen times as much milk as its body weight, while a cow only produces five times as much as its own weight in the same period of time.

There are 50 mature does, 20 doe kids and 20 bucks in the Gannett herd. A thoroughbred buck, with no defects, is practically worth almost any price which its owner may place upon it.

Goats have been the financial salvation of Mr. Ambler. He grew very enthusiastic in discussing his growth in the business.

"My start in the goat business was brought about in a peculiar way," he said. "I was out, one day, looking for a goat for my little boy to drive. I was then a painter and business was poor. It happened that I met a man who had three goats which had been pets in the family. He was willing to sell them all but would not allow them to be separated. So I decided to purchase the three. We became greatly interested in them. After some time several little kids were raised. They attracted so much interest among visitors that I became convinced that it would pay to go into the business. Since that time the goats have paid my way. At my goat farm in Massachusetts we used to entertain as many as 75 automobile parties on some Sundays. The United States is now the only country where goats are not the leading branch of livestock."

In Maine there is but one other goat herd and that is in Bangor. These goats were secured from Mr. Ambler some months ago.

Considering the extraordinary richness of goats' milk, one wonders why this product is so digestible for invalids and babies. The fact is due to the uniformity of the diet. No cream will rise on goats' milk when it is set in a pan. The only manner in which the cream may be separated is by use of a mechanical separator. This quality is so desirable that dealers in cows' milk have commenced to adopt mechanical methods to create the same conditions in the milk of the ordinary cow.

"I believe that the healthful properties of goats' milk should be made known to the general public in order that the great masses of the people may be able to profit by the knowledge. The milk is the most complete human food known and it is said that a person can exist for an indefinite period upon goats' milk alone."—Kennebec Journal.

BOSTON HAS A FISH POND

Anglers May Catch Many Varieties Within the City Limits.

Beginning the first of June fishermen can take their tackle over to the Charles River Basin and fish for trout, perch, catfish and smelt, and when the law is off on June 20 for bass. This privilege is accorded by the Metropolitan Park commission, which has just announced that it proposes to open the basin between the dam and Cottage Farm bridge to fishing.

How they will bite nobody knows, but there ought to be some good catches, for within the last three or four years the water has been quite extensively stocked by the State Fish and Game commission and fishing has been prohibited. Under the direction of Dr. George W. Field, chairman of the commission, as many fish have been put in as was possible with the small appropriation allowed by the state for the purpose, but the stocking has included approximately 50,000 brown trout, many thousand white perch, also bass and smelt and some Potomac catfish. There are no salmon in the basin, as it is not adapted to them, and there probably are few pickerel, as they prefer the shallower water up stream.

Dr. Field says that probably the fishing will not be particularly good, but there ought to be trout of two pounds or more in weight, some good sized bass and a large number of white perch, the perch being well adapted to the water of the basin. He estimates that the basin ought to yield from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds of food fish a year.

The catch allowed any fisherman in one day is ten fish of a kind, except that 24 smelts may be taken. The trout in the basin are of the European species and the season for them is now open and will remain open until July 31, but no trout may be taken under six inches in length. The season for bass will be opened June 20 and will remain open until April 1, but the limit on bass is eight inches. The smelt season opens June 1 and remains open until March 14.

YEARS ADDED TO ONE'S LIFE

Quincy, Mass., Party Have 15 Pounds of Fish to Take Home With Them.

Upper Dam, June 7—A big boom of logs are being put through the sluice way and the city folks take great pleasure in watching the lumbermen at work. The many big trees that were cut in these forests around the lakes last winter one does not seem to miss as he takes a look over the vast wilderness that extends for miles in the direction of Canada.

Many of the early fishermen have reeled in and gone to their city homes with sunburnt faces and a smile that tells of their good luck for although not everyone catches a "big fellow," all are content.

"This outdoor life, the dinners cooked on the lake shore by the guides, add years toones life" said a New Yorker as he regretfully started homeward this morning.

The Hopkins party were here for the week end and this year numbered ten, Messrs. H. W. Newhall, W. A. Spurr of Boston; John Hill, H. M. Sweetland, O. Koeing, G. Zeese, J. S. Watson, J. W. Bothwell, J. J. Dowling and N. R. Hopkins. They all caught fish and had a great outing.

Messrs. Lewis, Kenneth and William C. Edwards of Quincy, Mass., left for home this morning after a week's fishing trip. Henry Bunker was their guide and the boys had each their 15 pounds of fish to take home with them. Lewis caught the largest, a 3½-pound trout.

Mrs. Chas. Wylie and maid of New York were here recently for a few days and all will be glad to learn that this summer the attractive Wylie camp on Brandy Point will be open.

Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Judkins of Lynn, Mass., with W. E. Littlefield, guide never had better fishing than this spring, although they have been annual comers for many years. The last day out they caught nine trout and one salmon that weighed from 2½ to 3½ pounds each.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Greenia of Brooklyn, who came the first of the season with Elmer Snowman guide, are having a great outing and good fishing too. Mrs. Greenia is very proud of her 4½-pound trout.

Dozens of beautiful carnations the gift of Florist Strout of Biddeford, have for several days decorated the tables in the dining room.

Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Marden and Judge Elsha M. Stevens of Lynn, Mass., are among the late comers and with Elmer Woodbury and W. E. Littlefield guides, intend to keep up the honors their friends from the city have won.

Everyone was sorry to say good bye for 1914 to John B. Watkins one of the annual comers from New York and his friend W. B. Sutherland who was so much delighted with life at Upper Dam and he plans to "come again." Ernest Grant was their guide and they caught all the fish they wanted and sent home and carried with them some handsome ones. Mr. Sutherland will never forget to tell of his 4½-pound trout. Mr. Watkins' record was a 4½-pound salmon.

The Johnston and Cotter party this trip includes Messrs. Chas. F. Cotter, Wm. F. Dee of Lynn, Mass.; Frank X. Johnston, Ed F. Savage and Jas. F. Meehan of Boston. Their guides are Frank Philbrick, Geo. York and Carrol Hewey. From the time the party landed here until they leave the region and they are going from here to Mountain View and Kennebago, there will be something doing and many a big fish will they catch, eat, send home and tell yarns about. Here is luck to you, gentlemen.

Geo. B. Bearce of Lewiston is entertaining a party of friends at his camp on Beaver Pond.

The flag is flying at Black Point Camp and the following gentlemen of Lowell, Mass., are spending the June days there, Messrs. F. B. Kenney, J. E. Thompson, H. A. Thompson, Edson Humphrey, T. McDonald, Joseph Detra, L. A. Derby and Henry Taft. They have for guides, Orin Dyke, Rob McGilvery and Geo. Robertson. "The fishing is great" is the way they put it. Mr. Kenney had good sport with a 2½-pound salmon he caught on the fly and is proud of the pair of trout, 2 pounds and 3 pounds. Mr. McDonald yesterday, caught a 3½-pound salmon. Life on the shore of Mooselookmeguntic lake has charms for the business men.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dallam of Philadelphia are greatly enjoying this their first visit at Upper Dam.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. White of Lewiston are here for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wilbur of Portland find this a delightful place for the June days.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Truce of Biddeford have opened their camp and are entertaining a party of friends. John Chadwick as usual is their guide, who has charge of the camp.

MARKINGS OF PURPLE FINCH

A bird, having the markings of a purple finch, and singing a song similar to the mating song of the purple finch, but possessing a decided crest, was observed in Rumford Falls, while the streets below him were filled with passing autos and marching children, who were taking part in the Memorial day observances. The confusion of the street did not in the least disturb the bird, which with outspread quivering wings was singing a very beautiful and passionate carol to a quiet little roommate perched on a nearby electric light wire.

William F. Nye is the greatest authority on refined oils in the world. He was the first bottler; has the largest business and NYOIL is the best oil he has ever made.

NYOIL HAS NO EQUAL.

Beware of scented mixtures called oil. Use NYOIL on everything where a light oil is needed. It prevents rust and gives perfect lubrication.

Sportsmen, use it liberally on your firearms and your rod. You will find it by far the best. Hardware and sporting goods dealers sell it in large bottles (cheaper to buy) at 25 c. and in trial sizes at 10 c. Made by

OUTFITTING COMMENTS

By Robert Page Lincoln

Where there is a lake with bass in it there you will always find an enthusiastic bass bait-caster, and if he has any luck out of the ordinary you will soon find others there following the example he has set. Bait-casting from a free reel has ceased to be a thing of curiosity; it is now an institution. If angling with the fly, by means of the bamboo, for trout, has been the universal standby, surely, now, with increased attention being directed toward it, bait-casting is coming double quick to the front as the prime pastime of our American anglers. To cast for bass is the sportsmanlike system of fishing. If you are solely out in quest of fish and would just as soon lay aside the sportsmanlike process of it, I can introduce you to the long cane pole, a common linen line, a large hook, a frog, and with an oarsman to row the boat for you, I can take you where there are a lot of bass and you will likely as not get them, and sometimes in greater numbers than any other way—but the sporting proposition of it is lost. Fishing ceases to be a pleasure when the enjoyment of each fishing day is gauged by the number of fish taken to net. It then becomes allied properly, and enthusiastically, with the rest of the commercialism-ridden units, and serves not to enhance, but to brutalize. For that reason a man who goes out with rod and reel and lures in three bass, to the cane pole, fisherman's ten or twelve, has by far the more sport; and you say he is not successful?

Consider Nature on all sides, awaiting your patient attention. Nature always has for the true fisherman a great wealth of charm; there are some who would not go out fishing at all unless they could breathe deeply and intelligently of God's pure atmosphere, or if they were denied wood vistas, and landscapes, and mirrorlike waters, all spread out before them like a plentiful feast.

When vacation time comes around we should all try to get away from the dusty, muggy city for a few weeks' communion with Nature in her numerous moods. It not only serves to take one's mind off of a vampire business, but it stores up, and adds to one's spirit of resistance; it increases energy and brightens up the vision.

Personally, I know of no sport for a fisherman to equal that of getting out after a good husky bass and playing him at the end of a good silk line to the finish. Such things as this serve to take one's mind away from those oppressing things. It is really odd now, a man can go out, catch a few good fish, have a good two weeks' vacation and go back and live contented the whole of the year. It is for this reason that all should endeavor to get away, each as his circumstances allows, and replenish again his red blood; it will do him good; it will do his wife good, and better yet, it will please the children and they are the generals and stars in our lives I guess. Do it for the kids' sake if not for your own; give them a lot of fresh air; warbling streams; singing birds; breezes; red clover; shady trees, and quietudes and they will be better men and women. And let them fish and be content.

That much for an introductory. I will now drop in a few lines about outfitting for bass and in the course of these articles I hope that I shall be of use to such new beginners as are interested. Bait casting from a free reel, with a stiff rod is hard in as you make it hard. If you have it in you to learn you will very shortly make a success of it. Then again you may have a hard time. Some men learn right away, and others seem to move along by degrees. First and last of all I would impress upon the beginner the need of procuring as good tackle as his means will allow. By this I mean that you may be able to lay hands on a dry-goods store bargain bamboo rod, not worth making up for kindling for about fifty cents. Then again you may purchase a two-dollar steel rod with about as much energy and bend in it as a log. Such things are worthless to begin with. If you wish to fail at bait casting for pleasure and profit to the mind by all means invest in these things. Also purchase some minnows for thirteen cents apiece and you will be more than ever disgusted with yourself in the end. The most of us learn by doing this though. I remember my own trials and tribulations and if it is possible I would like to have you escape just what I went through; by getting the best material for your pleasure that your purse will allow. Now by this I do not mean that you are going to buy a $30 dollar or a $60 dollar reel; a $12 dollar rod and a thousand other things far out of the line of your vision. For the sum of four dollars you are able to purchase a very decent rod, and for the sum of six or seven and a half dollars you will find yourself the possessor of a reel that will do you for many years, if you accord that same real good treatment keeping it oiled, and dried, especially when you are in from a tour of the waters.

There is found on the open market a vast variety of poor material awaiting the attention of the unskilled at selecting. Poor artificial minnows peel; poor and cheap reels spin nicely for a few times and then they are no good. A grain of sand gets into the mechanism and then and there something happens that you do not wish to happen.

The best company in this country putting out steel rods to-day is the Bristol company. Their rods have the world's standard which is not in the least surprising considering the very excellent material that goes into them. All their rods, whether cheap or costly are far and above any other production in this country. This is said upon experience, and use on my part of other rods besides those put out by this firm. I have at present a Number 33, Bristol bait-casting rod, costing $11 dollars, and I would not for the world part with it. It fills in my demands to a dot and could not be made better in my way of thinking. The qualifications of a good bait casting rod are readily recognized by the man who has spent many years following the pastime; but this in no way helps out the amateur. Good steel in a rod must be had, and this the above company always furnishes in all its steel rods, since they have specialized in just that sort of stuff. I began with a Luckie rod put out by this company, and now have a really good rod. Their Luckie rod is cheap and yet it has good material in it for the price. However their five and six dollar rods are excellent. In the matter of length for a bait-casting rod, here there has always been a wide variety of opinion. Long ago the bait caster was not satisfied unless he had a rod six, seven, and almost up to ten feet in length, but that day is past now, and a man casting with such a rod would be laughed at. Rods steadily went down in length till now six feet is considered the longest one should, with consistency, go. For my part I have always preferred the five and a half foot rod for length. It is quite long enough, and within that space you are given a certain degree of limberness, toward the tip, that is an eminently desirable thing in a bait rod. A bait rod should never be stiff. From the center to the tip there should be a merging limberness, this for the reason that it helps the cast far better, and is felt throughout the whole frame. Also in playing your fish there is a give to it that resists a sharp attack.

And this amounts to a great deal in itself. For instance you get a big fish on your barb and there will be a mighty lot of tugging and pulling. With a stiff rod you will have to put the tip almost to the water's edge to fight your fish. Always, therefore, remember to get a rod with a limberness to its tip.

I have always recommended, in material, the steel rod for steady use, in bait-casting. It is the most reliable material. Then again, you can have a rod in steel that is good for both trolling for large fish and bait-casting too. Such a rod I recommend. The Bristol company has just such rods. The wooden rods while they might fulfill, cannot give the same satisfaction and they are therefore not mentioned here. Bait rods are often forced to stand a great deal of hard work and misuse, as misuse goes. Neither the bamboo rod or the wooden bait rods could stand this and in a short time they would give way before the strain upon them. And when one of these rods do begin to slack down they prove worthless. But the steel rod clings on with a tenacity that is admirable. With good care there is no reason in the world why such a rod should not last the better part of a man's lifetime.

There are found on the market a number of very short rods, but these are gradually being done away with; that is to say, they are not putting out very many of them now for the demand is not great. There has been much said for and against the very short bait-casting rod. This rod has guides that are sometimes as large around as a quarter; at least the reel guide has this diameter, while those toward the tip become smaller as a natural consequence. For tournament casting, where one wishes to put out as much line as possible to a cast, this rod is said to be without an equal, but for fishing it is not very good. The reason for large guides is that it prevents the line from wearing out against the guide sides. This has been remedied by having the insides of these guides, the linings, fitted with agate, and this very well safe-guards the life of the line. Some of these guides and their fittings, on a very good rod, will cost you one dollar each. I would suggest, that, if you do not want to pay that for all of them, then have the reel guide, or the guide that is nearest to the reel, fitted with agate and also the tip guide. The tip guide should always have agate lining for the reason that it stands the most wear on the line. The reel seat and fittings of the rod should be German Silver if possible; otherwise on cheaper rods the material is nickel. German Silver is a material that lasts where other material will soon show the wear from the elements.

The average bait rod has no finger-pull. The finger-pull is the affair connected with the reel band and it is presumably made to help gain a better hold on the rod. This is true. I would not be without the finger pull. The one good reason for it also is that the reel is held firmer in place. Often with just common hands, the hands come away from the reel shoulders, getting loose, but with the finger pull this is entirely done away with. Where there is no finger pull I would therefore recommend the locking band which also holds the reel firm in place, even more firm I might add than the finger pull. The locking band device has a thumb screw and by the aid of this the reel may be held just right.

The average bait rod has but one handle. That handle is below the reel seat; the reel is always up on the bait rod where it is held down on the fly rod. On the fly rod the reel is below the handle.

Good rods have a double handle, and this second handle, or grip, is right ahead of the reel. That such a handle is necessary goes without saying. It gives one a firmer hold on the rod, wherein, the rod, without this second grip, one must hold the thin rod part in his hand when reeling in.

On very cheap rods you will find what is known as imitation cork handles; and those unlearned in selection will inevitably "fall for it" and not know the difference. On cheap rods the handle is but a wooden inner piece with thin sheets of cork, one eighth of an inch in thickness, glued to this wood. When the water gets on it it swells and often peels off. True cork grasps are made of washers of cork fitted to a thin inner piece of steel. One can usually tell these washers by the sectional lines, denoting where each was fitted into place. Get such a rod, with such a handle.

Cork is the best. It has a soft feel to it. The other material for rod-hand-grasps, such as wood, celluloid and hard rubber can never act as well as the cork.

VALUABLE AUTO GOGGLES

The newest thing in automobile goggles is endowed with the magic-like quality of giving the wearer a view all around him as well as in front. These have been recently patented, and the main feature of the device is a pair of reflectors mounted adjustably on the rims of the goggles so they may be readily placed in an operative or inoperative position according to the desire of the wearer. One of these reflectors will give the chauffeur a clear view of all going on to the rear of him, and the other reflector, being placed at a different angle, gives him an oblique view of one side. These reflectors do not in the least interfere with his constant view to the front of him.

Discipline.

In the old days the wives of naval officers accompanied them on cruises. This privilege was suddenly withdrawn, and a certain Captain F. had his wife and daughter on board his ship at Nice when the order to send them ashore reached him. He sent the following reply to the navy department: "Received order. Communicated same to Mrs. F. She refuses to go. What do?"

Wood for Cigar Boxes.

Only one wood, Spanish cedar (Cedrela odorata) is commonly used for cigar boxes. Sometimes a cheaper wood may form the basis of the box, with paper-thin veneers of the tropical cedar over it.

FISHING IN NORTHERN MAINE

(Special to Maine Woods.)

Bangor, Maine, June 6, 1914.

Trout Brook Camps, Mackamp, Me. The record is being made at these camps for salmon fishing. On Tuesday, June 1, there was a 7-pound salmon landed with several other smaller trout and salmon. Up to that date there have been caught one hundred and ninety trout and salmon. A party from Waltham, Mass., stopping at these camps, are getting very good fishing. The weather is cold and disagreeable and is holding back the fly fishing very much, but on June 3, some good trout and salmon were taken on the fly. It is expected that in a day or two, as soon as the weather warms up, that there will be some grand fly fishing which will hold out all through the months of June and July.

Reports from Katahdin Iron Works, Me., advise that the fishing is good now in most any place where there is water. The togue have commenced to bite in Big Houston Pond. Mr. M. G. Brackett of Milo, Me., got two this week, weighing 7 and 8 pounds each. The fishing in Pleasant River, above the farm is good, also up at Sherburne's camps. Mr. B. W. Peabody caught 14 trout in the river the other day that were a foot long. They were beauties. Mr. A. L. Green is prepared to take care of transients and give lunches during the summer to any one coming here fishing. He has no other accommodations except teams, but the chances for tenting are good. Some very good catches of trout and salmon have been taken out of the pool below the dam at the Works. Mr. G. A. Babbick caught 5 trout, and one 14-inch salmon there in an hour's fishing the other evening.

LOCATING AND PLANNING A RANCH.

The details as to the care of the foxes, in so far as they are not trade secrets, are not complicated. New ideas are continually being brought to light. The ranch should be located in a retired place, usually a grove or piece of underwood, not too far from the owner's dwelling. The outer inclosure should be three to six times as large as the area of the pens, if possible, thus frequently being an acre or more. The pens or paddocks are each 30 by 40 feet or sometimes smaller. Pens and outer fence alike are usually constructed of 16 or 14 gauge fox wire, which is now specially woven for the industry, resembling chicken wire. Originally this wire was made by a firm in Wolverhampton, England, but it is now also manufactured in the United States. The fences are now seldom more than 9 or 10 feet high, with an overhung wire shelf extending 2 feet inward. The wire is sunk also about 2 or 3 feet in the ground, with a shelf extending inward.

The outer fence may be a stockade of 2-inch planks with wire overhang and undershell. The bottoms of both inner and outer fences may be made of cement. Any trees left within the paddocks—a few being desirable—should be trimmed as high as a man standing on the ground can reach. If these directions are followed it will be impossible for the foxes to escape either by digging or climbing. Inside each paddock, or immediately outside it but opening into it, are the kennels or fox houses, double boarded and divided into a cleaning and nesting room for each pair of foxes. The nesting room is bedded with hay or eel grass. Each pair of foxes should have a pen or paddock to themselves but by placing the kennels outside the pens one large kennel may be separated off into apartments for as many as four pairs. The mouth of each kennel is a crooked tube or spout, frequently built to simulate the entrance to a natural burrow.

The newest ranches have a strip of sheet iron 3 feet wide extending around the pens about 5 feet above the ground in place of wire netting, to prevent foxes from climbing too high and tearing themselves or injuring unborn young. The heavy cedar posts, 15 feet long and averaging more than 6 inches in diameter, are brought from the mainland and sold to the ranchers at 60 or 75 cents each, this traffic and that in wire netting having developed into quite a flourishing trade on the island.

Care and Food of the Animals

The average weight of a healthy animal is 11 or 12 pounds. The foxes should be fed and watered night and morning with the utmost regularity. If possible there should be running water in each pen. The diet of the foxes is not difficult to provide, but overfeeding should be guarded against constantly, especially during the breeding season. Full feeding for a few weeks just before the pelt is taken, if not overdone, helps to make the fur glossy if fatty foods are used to produce oil. The fox is omnivorous, but best enjoys meat, fish, fowl, small game, mice, crickets, etc. Rats should not be fed. Near the sea fish furnish a cheap fare, while otherwise scrap and unsalable meat, the flesh of dead horses, and table scraps are relied upon. The best breeders are quite careful in their selection of meat, however, and feed mainly on hard-tack or ordinary sea biscuit dipped in fresh milk, on bannock or unleavened bread shortened with tallow in the winter, and on patent dog biscuit imported from England, in some cases in wholesale lots by individual ranchers. Berries are eaten by the foxes of offered, but are not fed on the island. Fresh grass is fed twice a week by some fox farmers, or may be grown where the foxes can get at it when wanted, as it is a valuable laxative. Potatoes are not much fed. To a vixen with young, both before and after birth, eggs, milk, gruel, and other easily assimilable foods are given. Just before an animal is to be killed for its pelt some breeders feed it honey, molasses, or patent stock food, with the idea of enhancing the sheen of the pelt. The total cost of feeding is estimated at from $10 to $15 per annum.

The exercise which a fox takes in burrowing around the paddock is useful in aiding its digestion, and such burrowing is not discouraged except that in winter no completed burrow is permitted to take the place of the warm fox house for maternity.

"Breakfast" Comparatively New.

Few people realize that the meal "breakfast" did not become recognized until late in the seventeenth century. The earliest period to which the word can be traced is 1463. In the days of the Tudors the higher classes and the merchants seldom took their meals before twelve and six o'clock.

A Four Ounce Rod Doing Good Work for R. Pierpont Tyler at Indian Rock.

Mooselookmeguntic House, Haines Landing, June 6—Although many of the early fishermen have reeled in and gone home with "all the trout and salmon the law allows," there are now a good company of merry, happy guests, who when the wind blows too hard to go out on the lake are content to stay in camp and pile the wood on the open fire and tell over again the adventures they had with their "big fellows."

Coming by automobile Messrs. W. H. Andrews of Boston, H. W. Warren and Arthur G. Spear of Portland spent part of the week here.

Mr. and Mrs. Marmaduke Tilden of Philadelphia, who have been passing their honeymoon days in one of the log camps left for home this morning, planning to be among the annual comers in the future.

H. B. Goodrich of Haverhill, Mass., who is here for an extended sojourn has been joined by his friend, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dudley of the same city and Mrs. Dudley the first day fishing caught a handsome pair of trout weighing 3 pounds and 3½ pounds each.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Mosser of Boston regretfully started homeward to-day, having had a most enjoyable stay. Mrs. Mosser's last fish was a 3½-pound salmon.

Mrs. H. L. Heath of Boston is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. F. B. Burns.

George A. Drew of Lewiston, celebrated his last day fishing, by landing a dandy pair of salmon, one 5 pounds, the other 3½ pounds. Tom Splane was his guide.

Rev. Fr. John J. Farrell of Canton, Mass., Fred Fowler guide proved himself a fisherman, by landing a 4½-pound salmon.

A. L. Powell of New York with a 5¼-pound salmon is high line this week.

Miss Dora Reich, a New York young lady has chosen this delightful place to spend most of the summer.

When the big stage loaded with people were on their way to the depot this morning a beautiful deer came out of the woods and trotted along the road in front of the team as if to be admired by the city folks.

We are happy to report that Theodore L. Page is now fast recovering from his recent severe illness, and able to be sitting up, and all hope when the warm days come to see him out of doors greeting old friends.

As there are several fine musicians at the hotel the evening concerts are one of the much enjoyed events.

"Did you see that 8¼-pound trout up to Welch's?" one of the guides standing on the wharf asked. I was soon at the attractive store of H. L. Welch and my first question was, "Did that trout weigh 8¼ pounds and who caught it?" "Sure it weighed just that when it was brought in, and was taken on the fly by a gentleman from New Haven, Conn., R. Pierpont Tyler, who is over at Indian Rock, and he was using a rod that weighed less than 4 ounces." Mr. Tyler at one cast caught a pair of trout that weighed 9 pounds, was another fish fact I learned, from Mr. Welch, who has more trout and salmon for mounting than ever before, so early in the season.

SPORTSMEN ENJOY A GREAT DAY AT ORCHARD ISLAND.

The following letter was received from the executive committee of the Clark County Fish and Game Protective Association of Springfield, Ohio, in acknowledgement of 200 copies of Maine Woods of May 28, which were sent them for distribution on their excursion train at their request:

June 6, 1914.

Publishers Maine Woods, Phillips, Maine, Gentlemen:—

I wish to assure you of our sincere appreciation of your contribution to the success of our Outing, Wednesday, June 3.

The distribution of the magazines through your liberal donation proved of considerable interest and formed not a little part of the day's pleasure.

A special train of eight coaches carried our crowd, and the day passed by without a single thing to mar the success of the outing. The day was ideal and one to be long remembered.

We copy a few extracts from the paper published in that city of the events of the day:

All tired out but having had the time of their lives, more than 300 men detrained at the Big Four passenger station shortly before 8 o'clock last evening. It was the returning home of the members of the Clark County Fish and Game Protective association who had spent the day at Orchard Island, Lewistown reservoir.

The outing was one long to be remembered by those who were able to lay aside their cares for a day and spend the time with the jolly bunch of sportsmen. The weather was ideal and could not have been better had it been ordered especially for the occasion by the committee in charge.

Early yesterday morning, June 3, a well equipped train was placed on the track at the station awaiting the arrival of the excursionists. One by one and in small parties they kept coming from all parts of the city, representing all walks of life. Some were carrying fishing poles, bait and other paraphernalia used by anglers. Others had ball gloves, shotguns with plenty of ammunition for shooting up the country.

Gathering around in a big semicircle a panorama view of the party was obtained. The members then boarded the train and within a short time were on their way to the hunter's paradise. Ticket Agent E. E. Gorsuch went along with the party to enjoy the day and see that the passengers were all carried to their destination without any mishap.

Cadet Band Leads the Party.

On the way up, baseball and various other sport magazines were handed out while many of the members perused The Sun which was distributed on the train. Those who did not care for reading spent the time playing "pedro" and some of the other card games that made the journey seem all too short.

Arriving at Russell's Point the members of the party, headed by the Cadet band, marched to the island nearly a mile away. Those who did not care to walk were taken across on the motor boats and arrived at the beauty spot at about the same time.

Within a short time the pleasure seekers had scattered in all directions. Some at once secured boats and started out for a day on the pond at their favorite sport of fishing. With guns on their shoulders many of the shooters headed for the range to spend the day in their own fashion.

A baseball game was soon started with Tom McCormick and Tim Graham as the leaders of the respective nines. Shortly after the opening of the second inning one of the heavy hitters on Graham's team hit the ball over the post office and it was lost in the weeds. That broke up the game.

At noon a buffet luncheon was served at the hotel. The only disappointing feature was, that the barrel of perch that had been ordered failed to arrive and there was roast beef and pork instead. This was soon forgotten, however, as the members were nearly starved.

Handicap Shoot Enjoyed.

In the afternoon, beginning at 1.30 o'clock, the big prize handicap shoot was held at the range and a large number of the members gathered to see the big event. During the day music was furnished by the Cadet band. Director Earle Hawken gave an attractive program of music.

It was estimated that during the day more than 5500 clay pigeons were thrown by an ideal Yeggett trap donated by the Chamberlin Cartridge Co.

CHARACTERISTICS OF BLACK-FOX FURS.

In addition to the standing of black-fox fur with connoisseurs and dealers, its intrinsic beauty and attractiveness, should be taken into account. A perfect skin has a foundation of jet black, with a sprinkling of hairs on the back and rumps which are silver gray for a portion of the distance between the root and the tip of the hair. The extremity of the tail is always pure white. The brilliancy and sheen of a fine pelt are notable. It has been estimated by furriers that if black-fox skins were as plentiful as those of the red fox they would still command from $20 to $100, while red-fox skins are quoted at $5 to $8 for ordinary specimens and $12 to $15 for Prince Edward Island ones in current commercial price lists. Therefore, even if the increase of the supply in a geometrical ratio does bring about a radical reduction in the prices after a few years, it is believed here that the industry will still be decidedly profitable and that breeders will sell for prices perhaps approximating those of 1911. A pair of breeders with their hypothetical lifetime production of 32 young animals would produce perhaps $3,200 in fur value; while if part of the whelps were salable for breeding purposes the value produced would be much greater.

This will give an idea of the computations which are being made by the parties here who are investing in the fox business. One prominent ranchman has stated that with pelts at $50 each he could breed for fur alone and make twice as great profits as by devoting an equal amount of energy and capital to ordinary farming. Thus it appears that, all in all, the Prince Edward Island fur growers do not anticipate any decline in the demand for the skins sufficient to render the industry unprofitable.

PENOBSCOT SALMON IN THE MARKET.

The first Penobscot salmon in any amount came up to Bangor from the Bucksport region last week, when 49 good fish were received at Fickett's market. The season is late and many of the fishermen have had their weirs ready but a short time. The U. S. government will soon begin collection of 800 live salmon for breeding purposes, which will shorten the market for a time as the fishermen get $1 bonus for each fish besides the market price for keeping the fish alive. This means considerable extra work as the fish must be dipped from the weirs and placed in "cars" which are towed up Orland river to Dead brook, where the fish remain until fall.

Not all of the fishermen sell to the government and often the collecting takes a comparatively short time. The salmon fishery is very uncertain and predictions of a short catch often turn out wrong and prospects of a good catch as often "pet-er out." But the chances are that everybody will have a salmon dinner before the end of the season at about the usual price.

DO NOT HAVE USE FOR THE WHIP-POOR-WILL'S SONG.

A tuneful whip-poor-will has been making life burdensome for the Bar Harbor & Union River Power Co., crew which is erecting the power line to Bluehill, says the Commercial. Just now the men are occupying a camp on the East Bluehill road. After men have worked all day on a pole line they are pretty apt to seek their beds early. But about the time they retire, the too friendly whip-poor-will starts on his serenade. When a man's trying to sleep all the romance goes out of the whip-poor-will's song at close quarters. One night recently the bird seemed unusually close, and time after time the men turned out to drive it off. The moment they stepped out of the camp the song ceased, only to begin again when they had gone in. They were unable to locate the bird, though it sounded as if in the camp. Finally the bird was discovered sitting under the hood of the stove-pipe, singing down the pipe into the camp to make sure its song would be heard. It isn't safe to talk poetically of the whip-poor-will around the camp.

First, let all thinking men admit that the doctrines of the Progressive party on the whole are right, and, being right, they must eventually triumph.

Second, the rank and file of the old parties are progressive, and many of them will eventually find their places in the ranks of our volunteers.

Let no Progressive campaign speaker so far forget himself as to condemn the rank and file of voters in the Republican party, with the archaic and expiring leaders of that now historic party.

The rank and file believe with us and while they may not all resign, yet when their term of enlistment expires they will refuse to be drafted and will enlist with us and continue to do their patriotic duty in support of the principles of Abraham Lincoln.

The Progressive party stands pledged to the establishment of a non-partisan, scientific tariff commission, and a tariff scientific not political.

The Progressive party is in this fight with a mission, and in to win. We have candidates who do not seek the office, but who stand for justice and equality and a square deal, and we are under a leadership brave, able and invincible, a leadership that is coming back into its own, for Theodore Roosevelt will be the next President of the United States.

Mr. Wheeler's remarks were frequently interrupted by hearty applause and he was roundly applauded at the close.

Chairman Hoyt then introduced Hon. Halbert P. Gardner as the next Governor of Maine. He congratulated the meeting on the number of ladies present and hoped the time was not far distant when he could address the audience as "voters of Maine." He confined himself almost entirely to State issues. He told about the wrench that came in breaking away from the old parties. The struggle was for popular government against organized political control. He scored the policy of the Wilson administration in the Mexican affair. Men doing business in Mexico or Latin America, he said, had to take refuge under foreign flags.

Mr. Gardner reviewed the history of the Progressive party and called attention to the claim now being made that the Republican party is Progressive. He quoted Colonel Roosevelt and his announcement just prior to his leaving for Spain in which he emphatically denied any thoughts of returning to the Republican fold, but promised to begin immediately upon his return a campaign for the principles of the Progressive party.

The speaker took up the prohibition issue and said the law should not be under discussion. He believed in the law and hoped to see it honestly enforced. Only then could the people see whether it was a good law or not.

Rate regulation in Maine and the distribution of the bond issue road money were also taken up by Mr. Gardner. The Maine Central Railroad has made a marked advance in freight rates and is now contemplating a further increase. "The railroads should not be allowed to increase freight or passenger rates until they have shown they are absolutely necessary."

"They have done everything to get you back into the G. O. P., but if you believe in the Progressive platform, you will reject all attempts at amalgamation. The platform is one which we are proud. Remember that the real campaign has not yet opened. Do not follow false gods and be tolled back into the old parties. If you believe in representative government and popular control, remain steadfast to the honest principles of the Progressive party."

Progressives have reason to feel proud of the rally, and the enthusiasm shown by those attending. There were several automobile parties from Farmington, Strong and other places.

KNAPP-PRATT.

A quiet but pretty home wedding was solemnized last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. Leonard Pratt, when his daughter, Miss Aggie, was united in marriage to Everett P. Knapp by Rev. M. S. Hutchins, in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride who is a most attractive young lady, looked charming in her wedding gown of white silk crepe with tulle veil and point lace cap. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

Both bride and groom are graduates of the Phillips High School, and the bride has taught several terms of school, but since the death of her mother some over a year ago she has been housekeeper for her father and brother, Lubert Pratt. Mr. Knapp has been clerk for Sedgely & Company since his graduation.

Both young people are popular among their associates and friends who wish for them every success and happiness in life.

After the ceremony refreshments were served.

The honeymoon was to be passed at the Pratt cottage at Long Pond, and very shortly after the ceremony the couple (supposed to be the wedded pair) proceeded to the carriage. The company of friends who had congregated outside to give them a royal send-off, immediately sent the rice flying and in a very short time had distributed several pounds.

After following the carriage some distance they discovered to their surprise that they were showering Mr. Carroll Knapp, brother of the groom and Mrs. Arthur Beedy, a sister of the bride. They had donned some wearing apparel of Mr. and Mrs. Knapp which made the resemblance to that couple quite striking. Not daunted however by this failure, the crowd soon procured more rice and repeated the work, this time with better success. Mr. and Mrs. Knapp will remain at the Pond about a week.

Life

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins" is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes exiguity into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

SEVERE RHEUMATIC PAINS DISAPPEAR

Hood's Sarsaparilla Will Surely Bring Relief—Don't Suffer.

Rheumatism, which perhaps causes more suffering than any other disease, depends on an acid which flows in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints, producing inflammation, stiffness and pain.

This acid gets into the blood through some defect in the digestive processes, and remains there because the liver, kidneys and skin are too torpid to carry it off.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old-time blood tonic, is very successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It acts directly, with purifying effect, on the blood, and through the blood on the liver, kidneys and skin, which it stimulates, and at the same time it improves the digestion.

Don't delay treatment until you are in worse condition. Get Hood's and begin taking it today.

Miss Elizabeth Hayward of New Hampshire is visiting her cousin, Miss Nellie Hayward.

Add Williams of Chelsea, Mass. is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Williams.

One of the merriest evenings yet was spent recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Wilcox. A company of 37 appeared at their door with a Maybasket in the form of five pounds of candy and one half bushel of russet apples. This was a genuine surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, who made their friends right welcome. The younger people passed the evening with old-time plays and all remained until a late hour.

Responded With Ready Wit.
Mr. Curran once dined with a brother advocate, when on circuit, at a small inn kept by a hostess named "Honor." They were pleased with their dinner, and invited the lady to take a glass of wine with them, and, handing it to her, proposed a toast, "Honor and Honesty," to which the lady added, with an arch smile, "Our Absent Friends," drank the toast and withdrew.

To Take Out Coffee Stains.
The most difficult of all stains to take out are those made by coffee. With care, however, the stain can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabric. Rub the mark gently with a little pure glycerine, then rinse it in lukewarm water, lay a cloth over the damp part on the wrong side, and press with a cool iron until dry. Do not wet more of the material than is absolutely necessary.

renovated and put in perfect order. Many of the rooms have been newly decorated and there could not be a more homelike or attractive hotel, situated as it is a few rods from the lake shore commanding an extensive view of lake, forest and the surrounding country.

It seemed like a happy home coming as some 25 guests were so heartily greeted by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Marble and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Marble.

The first to pen their name on the register this year was Frederick Skinner of Boston who has for days been enjoying the fishing while waiting for the hotel to open. But alas, we cannot take notes from the wonderful record book he carries in his pocket, but we do know he took on a fly a 5-pound, 6-ounce salmon, thus being high line to date for this hotel.

J. N. Mink of New York is most happy to return. "I came to stay until the house closes, and although I have been in many of the best hotels in the country I never found one where everything is so perfect as at the Rangeley Lake House was what he said to the Maine Woods reporter.

Col. John Caswell of New York was the one to open the "Fish record of 1914," by landing two fine salmon one 5 pounds, 2 ounces and one 5 pounds. Everyone says "the fishing is fine," but not many of the guests were trying their skill to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Stanley of Boston are here for a two weeks' stay and Mr. Stanley with his old guide Ed Hoar brought in a 3½-pound salmon "just for luck you know."

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Jackson came from Boston to spend some time at this hotel before going to Andover where they will as usual pass the season.

Joseph I. Wadsworth and John Mason Tilney of New York are here for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Adams of Philadelphia have taken their old rooms for another season and as Mr. Leideley is in Europe Mr. Adams will endeavor to carry off the honors in landing big fish and telling bigger fish stories.

C. E. Knowles of Pittsburg, Penn., came last evening for the summer and is anxiously waiting for the golf links to dry and then he will spend much time on the course which is now one of the best in Maine.

J. J. Brigham of Springfield, Mass., is putting his fishing tackle together and will soon be on the lake.

The buckboard just came rattling up to the door bringing J. Russel Marble and W. H. Inman of Worcester, Mass., who with Arthur E. Nye of the same city, after a few days' fishing at Haines Landing took the train for Kennebago, and returning by the old road made a short stay at Loon Lake and will now try their skill after one of the 10-pound salmon in Rangeley lake.

Mrs. Stephen G. Wheatland and maid of Salem, Mass., and Miss R. Holt of Boston are here for a short stay. Later Mrs. Wheatland will open her beautiful summer home on the lake shore.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hutchins and maid and friend Miss Balderston of Boston were among the first day's arrivals.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Burrows and son are for the summer at Rangeley cottage.

Mrs. E. M. Brown of New York is one of the first comers for a summer sojourn and the "happy family" will be coming back every day until the house is filled.

Miss Rachel Marble is now visiting with Miss Gilman in Haverhill, Mass., for a few days.

"Have the robins returned?" several asked. "Yes, Mr. and Mrs. Robin Redbreast are here again," but decided to locate this year over the door off the end of the piazza, where for sometime they worked diligently building their new home nest, flying close to those who come in and out the door many times each hour.

The season of 1914 promises to be the most successful in the history of this hotel the bookings have never been made earlier and the large number of letters received tell of the hundreds who plan to come to Rangeley, and in a few days the summer rush will be on.

A wonderful change has come over the woods and fields the last week, the grass is green, the trees are dressed in their bright new leaves the ferns and wild flowers are everywhere and in all this land there is no more beautiful place than "the Rangeleys way down in the State of Maine."

A queer combination of a motor cycle and an automobile has been seen on the streets of Rumford for the past few days. It consists of a regular motor cycle, with a seat for one attached by the side of it. It is said that many of these combinations are seen in Washington, and many of the other large cities, where the roads are paved and smooth. The trips about Rumford will test the advisability of the use of such a machine over roads that are not as smooth.

"BILLY" WILL DO THE REST

Fifteen Trout Taken Weighing 25 Pounds---New Camps Attractive.

Dear Maine Woods:

Ox Bow, Me., May 30--We had a fine voyage up from Bermuda, just the opposite of the voyage down from New York, everything being favorable. I started for Bangor by boat last Thursday night; stopped at the "Windsor," in Bangor, and left Saturday at 7.10 a. m. for Masardis and here I am.

We landed in a shower of rain, but before the mail auto was ready to start for Ox Bow the clouds rolled away and the sun shone out bright and warm. Billy was away, at Lake Millmagasset, with Thomas Pratt and his friend Small from Portland. Mel Murphy, Billy's helper, came back from the lake Saturday night with 15 trout weighing about 25 pounds, and left almost as many more with Billy. One brought back was a handsome 4-pounder, and we believe there are plenty more in the lake just like him, if not heavier. Billy's new log cabins are pleasantly located, on high ground, just across the cove from Libby's cabins, and very near a fine cold spring of pure water.

Potatoes are all planted, of course and a bumper crop is looked for. Trees and grass have jumped for ward during the warm days, and there is no lack of good pasturage. If any sport would like to skim the cream from off the top let him or her come to Ox Bow and Billy'll d the rest.

If you want only to rest, or get away, effectually, from all the plag ues and pains of business or poor health, come to Ox Bow. There are others, to be sure, but Billy has the best location, by all odds, for his home-camp, and his log cabins at Lake Millmagasset are all brand new and comfortable. Good fishing if not the best, is right at hand and on the way up the Aroostook, at the mouth of every mountain brook, trout can be taken any day in summer and almost any time of day. I there was a J. P. handy I would swear to this story, (the which there is not) so I bow my head and cross my heart and say au revoir.

RECOGNIZED AS ARTIST OF ABILITY

Herbert L. Welch, of Haines Land ing, who is an artist of recognized ability, has just finished an oil painting representing a five pound trout in the act of leaping the falls; which is so realistic it makes one's mouth water. The canvas is 27x40 inches and is in a hard wood frame which sets it off to the best advantage. Mr. Welch finished the picture Tuesday after months of painstaking effort, which the painting shows. The picture is now in his store and attracts much admiring attention.

W. J. Weld, who was formerly station agent at Oquossoc, has accepted the position of agent at the Rangeley Lake steamboat company's office at the village. Mrs. Weld left Sunday for Pickford's Camps, where she has work for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Perham were dinner guests, Sunday, of John Trask of Dixfield, at Oaks's Camps.

John Lamb, who has been making his home with his daughter, Mrs. L. E. Bowley, at the Mountain View House for the past two years, has gone to another daughter's, Mrs. W. A. Tibbatts, for the summer.

Roscoe N. Penley and E. R. Parent, of Lewiston, spent the week end at Mountain View coming by auto.

O. D. Rogers, of Jamaica, Mass., who was called to Haines Landing by the serious illness of his brother-in-law, Theodore L. Page, returned home Tuesday. Mr. Page is recovering nicely from his illness, which is considered remarkable in a man of his age.

Charles Harris and Sol Collins, of Rangeley, a carpentering for Louis Jackson, of Providence, R. I., at his summer home at Quimby Pond; and boarding with Mrs. Clara Quimby at Broadview Farm.

Friends of Mrs. Annie Eastwood are glad to hear that she is improving from her recent operation at the C. M. G. hospital in Lewiston.
